To Begin Winter Dairying.

Have about two-thirds of the cows come fresh in the fall and fore part of the winter and the balance in the spring. This will insure an even supply of but ter, which will hold your customers. Strippers' milk will always make butter lacking in flavor and is often the cause of the trouble in churning, frothing of the cream, etc., that is complained of. Cows coming fresh in the fall, if they are rightly fed and cared for during the whole year, will produce more butter than if they come in in the spring. Besides, the price being higher in winter, there is more clear profit in fall cows than in spring cows. But to keep up the Washington Jan. 10, 11 and 12, 1895. supply and flavor it is necessary to have It has only been in existence a year, yet some coming fresh at different times | it has already a membership of 400. As evidence of richness and quality of milk I only mention these signs as a help to those who are about buying, as I would rather have them than not, but the only true tests are the scales and Babcock or other tester. Both quantity and quality are influenced by feed. In the selection and breeding of butter cows the character of ancestry should be carefully studied as regards quality and quantity of milk, and also the economy of its production. - Exchange.

He must encourage them to read dairy papers that they may profit thereby, exchange opinions and make creamery life one grand sweet song of prosperity.

On the other hand, he must not pretend to know it all. Each and every one of us will find plenty of room for improvement if we are only inclined to think so. He must not quarrel with his patrons for little or no reason, but, on the other hand, overlook some things which may happen contrary to his belief. He must ever be on the alert to learn something new and always bear in mind the old adage that cleanliness is next to godliness, but in the creamery it should be vice versa.

Now, then, take the patron who tries to make a success of dairying; watch his moves as he goes along in line. First to his dairy, notice the kind of cows he keeps and how he takes care of them. You will always notice that the more he makes out of his cows the more he will try to make and the better he will care for them. You will always find that his milk will come to the creamery in good shape both winter and summer, and that if he delivers it himself he will always be on time and not come straggling along when everything is shut down and cleaned up for the day (then if the butter maker does not start up and run his milk through he is the laziest. meanest man on earth), and you will always find that if such does happen to him the creamery man is too willing to forgive him, for he knows at a glance that some mishap has fallen. Such a man is always the butter maker's friend. -Address of W. J. Smith at Iowa Dairy Convention.

Can This Be True?

general rule, do not know how to discriminate between a first class article of butter and a fairly good article. This is more the case in the country villages and towns than in the very large cities. In shipping to the average town in the gulf states, even if the butter is not fairly good, if it has a good color and is not conspicuous for the unsightly streaks running through it, it will, when consigned to the average commission man, but it is a fact all the same. Our people, then, must need education to determine good butter from the indifferent article. Of course all this will change in time, but we only mention the matter as a fact that may not be generally known.—Cor. Southern Live Stock

PART XIV. My attention has been called to the fact that in writing the History of the Lutheran congregation I had not said anything about the present plan for raising money for the pastor's salary and church improvements. At the time of the vacancy made by the resignation of Rev. Mr. Williams, a committee consisting of Dr. Samuel Swope, David Buffington, Samuel Shriner and Benjamin Shunk, was appointed to report on the finances of the church. They recommended the plan of assessing each member according to the value of their property, male members without property to pay one dollar a year, and females fifty cents, and this plan was adopted and is now in force.

The present membership of the p Lutheran congregation is 504 and the present council is as follows: Jacob Sharetts and David Reindollar, elders; John A. P. Garner, Charles M. Hess, William Cluts and Hezekiah Hawn, deacons; Edward E. Reindollar, Dr. deacons; Ed deacons; Edward E. Reindollar, Dr. George T. Motter, Daniel Null, John E. E. Hess, Dr. Frank H. Seiss and P. B. The will of the late ex senator James G. Fair, disposing of an estate valued at $40,000,000 has been stolen from the county clerk's office and there is no clue to the thief. The last man who handled it as far as known was W. M. Davis, who was employed by Private Detective Stillwell to examine the document with a view, as he claimed, to make a comparison between the original and the printed versions of it. County Clerk Curry openly charges that Davis took the paper, and is backed in his statement by the opinion of Chief of Detectives Lees. The fact that the will has not been probated and not admitted to be the last will and testament of the dead millionaire by the various legatees, will make the case more complicated. It is also claimed that there are some things about the original will that needs close investigation, and for this cop-
