Tammany controlled the convention, and would only allow the state democratic deleates, led by C. S. Fairchild and Evirett P. Wheeler, one-fifth repre-sentation. This they refused to accept, and left the hall. The state ticket was then nominated. All overtures for peace were rejected by Tammany, and the fight at the polls will either be three cornered, or the reform wing of the party will support the republican ticket. Senators Hill and Murphy, and ex-governor Flower took a prominent part in the proceedings.

A NUMBER OF our valued exchanges are really getting "red in the face" over the issues of the coming election. Keep cool brothers, and look out for the fellows who bring in the "big punkins."

THE BALTIMORE Independent papers, so called, have very evidently taken sides in the present campaign. The Herald, is for Hurst, and the Sun, for Lowndes, if "a man up a tree" can see clearly.

Head-Lines.

The head-lines of an advertisement determine to a great extent its value as a business-bringer. They ought to be so worded as to refer in a striking way to the matter which follows, just as the head-lines of a leading article are suppose to contain the substance of the article in a few crisp words. three states, may be said to be farreaching, because of the celebrated character of the senators whose fortunes are at stake. It is also interesting because these senators, who will be up for re-election, are opposed by a certain element in the democratic party because of their previous congressional record. The question of reputation for being a hard dealer vindication, therefore, would seem to enter into the contest to some extent;

It is this class, principally, news columns of the RECORD of the issue of Aug. 31st., in which Reuben F. Kolb is said to be again "a candidate under the banner of the so called populists, for governor of Georgia." He is a candidate in Alabama, as our correspondent states.

Whether he is a "Jackson demo crat," or simply "an office seeker," we do not know. Our report stated that he was a "so called, populist" because the party of which he is the head, is composed of all colors, classes and conditions which are opposed to the regular democracy of Alabama, and populism, is simply one of the 'isms represented by him. It is credibly reported that the dominant power in the state is extremely dogmatic, and that people of all parties are seeking relief through Kolb,

HISTORY OF LINWOOD. BY J. P. GARNER, 1895. PART V.

THE SENSENEY'S.

In the year 1796, John Senseney, Sr., with his four sons, came from Lancaster county, Pa., and purchased of Samuel Godfrey, 347 acres of land, being the land now owned by John E. Senseney, a great grand-son, and Thomas Haines. This he divid-ed among his three sons, Christian, and Thomas ed among his three sons, on John and Jacob, and bought what is now the Brilhart farm, near New Windsor, for the fourth son, Isaac. He also laid out a family burying ground near where the Priestland school house now stands. Many of the early Senseneys lie here. The the as a grand-son, Han-

Washingcalled in vain for a favor if he could grant it. His good nature was fre-quently imposed upon. The Plaine ton married Mary Ann Grimes, and remained on the homestead until he moved to Linwood. His son, John E. Senseney, now owns the farms of Christian and Jacob. Misses Mary and Addie Senseney, Mrs. Wm. Mess-ler and Mrs. John N. Weaver are daughters of Washington Senseney. Hanson Senseney married Lavina Englar. He was for a number of years a minister in the German Baptist church. His wife is still living. Their married life covered more than half a century. Jacob Senseney married a Miss Baer. His family was two sons, Pe-ter and Jacob, and two daughters, Catherine who married a Bishop, and Elizabeth who married Peter Christ, grand-father of the writer. John Q. Senseney of Linwcod, and Charles H. Senseney and Mrs. Sarah E. Parrish of McKinstry's Mills, are children of Peter Senseney Mrs. Bisherd Perter Peter Senseney. Mrs. Richard Foutz, who died some years ago, was also one of this family.

In 1805, John Senseney sold his farm to Joseph Roop. Abram Roop, fath-er of the late David Roop of Wake-field, afterwards bought the farm. Josiah Englar was the next owner till his death, when Charles Cramer bought it of Englar's estate, and af-ter a few years sold it to the present owner, Thomas Haines.

THE GARNERS.

The sketch of this family begins with Tobias B. Garner, who was born in 1754. He bought the present Garner farm, situated partly on little Pipe Creek, and partly in Priestland Valley, in 1789. He had three sisters, one of whom married a Mehring; one a Sharretts; and one, a Biehl. Tobias Garner is the property of the particular agreeing to allow their pastor to sup-ply this congregation for the present, fall Garner is thought to have come from Washington county, Md. He mar-ried Margaret Culp, a widow with one son, who went to Richland county, Ohio, about 1825. after the council had consulted a goodly number of the members, it was found that they were very much opposed to supporting Rev. Finckel, whom the Taneytown people had elected, and that more than double the amount of money could be raised for Park M I. Beard there extended

Two children were born of this marriage; Magdelena, who married Frederick Mehring, and George Garherefore a good workman. He married Catherine Buffington. Their family consisted of Jacob, John, David, Mary, Sophia, George, Abram, Ephraim, and Jesse.

THE SHRINERS.

Bounding Priestland Valley on the north and west are the farms of Ezra L. Shriner, and Jasper C. Shiner. Their grandfather, Peter Shriner came also from Pennsylvania. He owned the two farms now held by his grandsons, also the Jesse Smith property, where he resided. The original tract contained about 500 acres. He had two sons, Jacob and Abram, and one daughter, Polly. Jacob Shriner married John Sto-ner's daughter Elizabeth. His children were John, Isaac, Peter, Han-nah, William, Elizabeth, Ezra and He resided where Jasper Jasper. Shriner now lives, the two farms being in one. He was fond of eques-trian sports, and it is said would stand on his high porch and blow his horn as a signal for those of his friends to gather, who delighted in the enjoyments of the chase. The Shriners were staunch whigs; Jacob particularly took an active interest in politics. During the Harrison campaign in 1840, he was chief marshal of delegation which met at the old Priestland school house, and marched to New Windsor to attend a mass meeting. It is related of him that during the Clay and Polk campaign he passed a boy out on the road near a poke stalk, and gave him a quarter to cut it down. His farm was subse-quently divided and occupied by his two sors.
