ENTERED AT TANEYTOWN POSTOFFICE AS SECOND CLASS MATTER
SATURDAY, AUGUST 8th., 1896.

THREE seems to be a connection between whiskers and Populists, yet, strange as it may, neither Bryan or Watson wear either beard or mustache.
UNDER a recently passed ordinance, children in Columbus, Ohio, under fifteen years of age, must be off the streets by nine o'clock at night. This has very good argument in favor of it, even if it is likely to come in for a good share of ridicule. As a rule, there is no actual necessity for children to be abroad late at night, and the result of the habit is likely to be more harm than good.

Better or Worse—Which?
The principal thing from which the country is suffering at present is lack of confidence. There is an uncertainty attaching to future events which affects everybody and everything, so far as financial questions are concerned; a fear of something to come, without knowing just what, instinctively counsels us to be cautious, economical and self-protective; a feeling, which, for a time, makes us penurious, exacting and suspicious—features really foreign to our natures—and leads us in the way of the fault-finder and discontented.

Give the producer a reasonable guarantee that his income for the next year will be satisfactory, and his present possessions unimpaired, and he will make his plans in advance, with confidence. Assure capital that it may with average safety go beyond the doors of the vault, and plant itself for future increase, and it goes, both for that and other profits and employment and its own. Guarantee employment at ordinary remunerative wages to the toiler, and he becomes at once a factor in the general prosperity of the country. Remove all, these things, and we have hard times, suspicion and discontent, just as at present.

Money scarce? There's money in plenty, and it is not near all in the safes and vaults of the capitalist and banker. Distress and poverty? There's more in the imagination than in fact. Times could not be worse. Your concerns are seriously at fault.
Well, then, what is the matter? Too much political agitation; a widespread lack of confidence in the general government—produced partly by the fact that it has been compelled to increase its debt, and partly because there is no assurance of a fixed national financial policy—which has prevented the individual from adjusting his affairs to suit changed natural conditions, and which interferes with building confidently on certain sequences to follow certain beginnings.

It may be predicted with confidence, that the coming national election will bring a change one way or the other. There will be a return of stability and a gradual settling down of the many uncertainties of the present, or there will be a panic, compared to which, the present times will be but a mild foretaste. It is scarcely possible that there will be a stand-still; probably no great change will occur until after the first meeting of Congress under the new administration, but, it is sure to come—for better or worse. The questions at issue are so important, and they are advocated so earnestly, almost violently, that no other after effect than a radical one, could be expected to follow—unless, indeed, the defeated party should be powerful enough to prevent a change of legislation; but, even in this case, the effect on the country would only be lessened, and there would be no permanent quietude.

A Town's Reputation.
Be careful how you speak of something bad which happens in your town, and be sure not to magnify the details in order to make a more interesting and exciting story. It is decidedly better to have a common-place reputation for a town than to have one so highly colored in certain particulars which will give strangers the impression that the place is populated principally with law-breakers and scandal-mongers. Stick to the truth, when it is necessary to relate the distasteful, even if by doing so you spoil a hair-raising yarn which would sound so well if told in a confidential undertone.

Every town and village has its quota of citizens who delight in retelling "off color" and sensational bits of news, who take great pleasure in button-holing everybody that chance throes in their way, to propound that delightfully mysterious question—"Have you heard the latest?" And then, the audience secured, the story is told with all the color added necessary to make it interesting and important. Whether these stories be partially or wholly true, there is seldom any real good accomplished by the telling of them; in fact, the reverse is the most probable result.
"Give a dog a bad name, &c," is as applicable to a community as to a dog, although it may not appear so to everybody. The report of a theft may not sound badly to a thief in another neighborhood, and he would not be deterred from looting in such a place on account of it; indeed it might attract him. This applies to like cases, and like classes of people, but, the effect is to drive out and keep out, those who do not want to live and associate with thieves and questionable characters. If the gossips and scandal peddlers could be made to see the damage they do with their tongues, possibly the innocent ones among them might mend their ways, and say nothing, when they know nothing good.

New Cure for Hard Times.
The following letter was written by Sperry, Jones & Co., of Baltimore, to Hon. Wm. McKinley, and we reprint it because we like it, and there is a great deal more of one's true self in what he does because he likes to. Only a part and that the drest part of any workman is enlisted till his endeavors emanate from a spot deeper down than the level at which he keeps his intelligence and his skill, and begin to flow out from the fresher and juicier regions of the heart. So that in settling this question of a vocation it is a matter of prime importance for a young man to decide what that particular business or profession is into which he can go with-out a remainder, into which he can throw himself in unreserved investment.

The situation in Cuba.
The proclamation issued by the President last week against violations of the neutrality laws was a friendly act toward the Spanish cabinet, which just now is being seriously threatened by the Cortes. Mr. Cleveland desires to assure Spain of the sincerity of this government's efforts to protect her against filibustering expeditions or other forms of assistance that might tend to aid the insurgents. The purport of the last proclamation, therefore, was to emphasize the determination of the State Department to prevent, if possible, the landing of men and munitions of war in Cuba. The Spanish Cortes for months has been wavering as to what new action should be formulated with reference to the Cuban question, and several times the cabinet has been on the verge of dissolution. The administration has known of this, and acting, it is understood, on the request of the Spanish minister to Washington, the President drew up another proclamation, differing but little in general terms from that of last winter, as an additional warning to intending promoters of expeditions.

What developments in Cuban affairs, so far as this country may be concerned, are expected by the administration is a subject the officials will not discuss. It is certain that General Lee has completed some report on the military situation on the island, and it is probable the President has it under consideration. It was the impression, strengthened by unofficial statements, that General Lee was sent to Cuba mainly to observe the military operations and send to Washington the exact status of the contending forces, the probabilities of success of each and the approximate period of time the war might be expected to yet cover. Whether he has done this will be developed later. It is equally certain that the public will not be informed of the character of the report until Congress assembles and a resolution calls for its transmission to the Capitol. Even then, if the President considers it "incompatible with interests," it may be held up to the close of this administration.

Regardless of the importance of this report, it is conceded that there will be little change in the situation until the autumn sets in. Both sides are now maintaining a "masterly inactivity" and neither seems to be making any attempt to dislodge or weaken the other. General Weyler has announced that no further decisive move will be made on the insurgents until September, when the warm season and unhealthy period closes. Then he proposes, with additional assistance from home, to force the Cubans to surrender. That is what the General says, but insurgent agents in the United States are not losing any time, and almost weekly are strengthening their cause at home. Delays will be to the advantage of the insurgents, they claim, and the longer Spain puts off direct action the better it will be for the Cuban cause, as each month brings additional recruits, enables more munitions to be secured and weakens the Spanish forces in the island. Six months ago, when Weyler succeeded Campos in command, it was announced in Spain that the rebellion would be put down before the summer.

Should the war continue through the autumn and early winter the duty of this government to recognize the belligerency of the Cubans will be obligatory, so say two of the best students of international law in Washington. But recognition is not probable. The President has all along contended that it cannot be granted until the Cubans show themselves capable of maintaining a temporary form of government of some sort and can retain possession of a town. This they have not yet been able to do, and it is not likely that they can hold any towns of importance on the island, inasmuch as all of them are on the seaboard and under the fire of the Spanish gunboats.—Sun.

Since 1878 there have been nine epidemics of dysentery in different parts of the country in which Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was used with perfect success. Dysentery, when epidemic, is almost as severe and dangerous as Asiatic cholera. Heretofore the best efforts of the most skilled physicians have failed to check its ravages, this remedy, however, has cured the most malignant cases, both of children and adults, and under the most trying conditions, which proves it to be the best medicine in the world for bowel complaints. What a man does not do heartily he never quite does, which is to say, what a man does not do with his heart he never quite does. There are touches of excellence to which an effort does not attain except as it is the outcome of a certain amount of enthusiasm. Work is doing a thing because we have to. Play is doing a thing because we like to; and there is a great deal more of one's true self in what he does because he likes to. Only a part and that the drest part of any workman is enlisted till his endeavors emanate from a spot deeper down than the level at which he keeps his intelligence and his skill, and begin to flow out from the fresher and juicier regions of the heart.
