tributes the American Monthly Review of Reviews for August an admirable exposition of the new tariff law. His article is intended to tell the business man what he may expect from the operation of the new schednles. So much of the newspaper discussion of the Dingley bill has been warped by partisanship that the ordinary citizen is at a loss to know the real animus of the measure or its probable bearings on individual and general interests. Mr. Conant writes with moderation and candor; his article is calculated to enlighten the public on a topic that requires first of all impartiality in treatment.

come older, and better understood, are appreciated. Early in the history of the RECORD, we advocated the application of business principles to farming operations, and a general breaking away from out-of-date methods. Some of our remarks were mildly resented, because they were regarded as being impertinent, no doubt, and not supported by a truthful diagnosis of the general situation. In other words, that there was no application in common between the methods attaching to business-other than agricultural-and those peculiar to agriculture. The time has already come, however, when thinking farmers agree that there is something the matter with their profession, and that they must work out their own betterment through the adoption of plansat least partially new to them; plans which require calulation, investigation, ex periment, and-we hope to be excused-a greater degree of intelligence than has heretofore been thought to be necessary for successful farming. The Farmers' Institute is bringing this knowledge home to the people, but the press-particularly the agricultural press-is doing its full share of the good work. Of course, both these instructors are apt to be found | Taneytown, Md. wanting in particular cases; but, if they only succeed in enlisting the aid of the third party-the one most in terested, the farmer himself-there is no doubt as to the ultimate benefit, or

The Price-Current publishes some interesting statistics to prove its statements. For instance wheat closed at 55½ cents on July 7, 1896, and at 70½ cents on the same date this year. Corn showed an advance of half a cent a bushel, pork of more than $1 a barrel, lard of 75 cents a barrel, and a large number of articles exhibit more or less advance, while very few products brought less in July this year than in the same month one year ago.

These facts are of the utmost significance, proving, as they do, that the period of decline is past, and that reaction already has set in.
