

Local and Personal.

This is meant to be a purely LOCAL column, to which the RECORD invites contributions. Events of local importance...

Miss Rosa Hess is spending a few weeks in York, Pa., visiting her brother and sister.

About 7000 bushels of wheat were purchased by Reindollar & Co., last week. This week, the receipts have been comparatively light.

The heavy snow on Wednesday afternoon, furnished some so-called sleighing on Thursday morning, and plenty of raw material for eye water.

Special services were held in St. Joseph's Catholic church, on Monday morning, to the memory of those who perished in the explosion of the war ship Maine.

The interest of our people in the destruction of the Maine, and the possibility of war, is plainly demonstrated in the greatly increased demand for daily papers.

Miss Martha Keefe, an aged lady living with Mr. John Stouffer, died suddenly on Wednesday morning. She was a sister to Mr. Thomas Keefe, of Longville, and was eighty-four years of age.

We have now corrected our mailing list to correspond with our books. Subscribers will therefore examine the date of the label on their paper, and if any error is discovered, report the same at once.

The Fire Company will turn out for practice, on Saturday afternoon, at 2 o'clock, providing the weather and condition of the streets permit. This will be the first public appearance of our firemen and apparatus.

Eight valuable milk cows belonging to Mr. Isiah Reifsnider of Bruceville, were poisoned by some enemy; three are dead and two more not expected to live. Unfortunately, there is no clue to the scoundrel who did the work.

Word was received here by telephone on Monday night of the extreme illness, from hemorrhages, of Mrs. Palmer, of Gamber, a sister to Mrs. D. E. Kephart of this district. At last report she was considerably improved.

David B. Shawm has bought the butchering business of Bollinger Brothers, on Baltimore Street; Mr. Plank having concluded not to come here. Mr. Shawm has had considerable experience in the business, and will no doubt succeed.

The following is the summary for February of the Taneytown weather observer; mean temperature 31.7, maximum 63, on 11th, and 14th; minimum 3, on the 4th and 5th. Snowfall 1.1 inches; clear days 15, cloudy 9, part cloudy 4; hail on 21st, sleet on 18th.

E. E. Reindollar has concluded to build a two room, instead of three room building, on his Baltimore street lot. Each room will be 20x70, with a hall on second floor 40x70. The building will be a substantial one of brick, with slate roof, and work will be commenced soon.

The Chesapeake Telephone Co. placed phones here this week for Dr. C. Birnie, Charles A. Elliot, H. M. Clabaugh and Reindollar & Co. This is the only place in the county, outside of Westminster, at which this company has extended its business beyond a pay station.

Under the auspices of the C. E. Society, Rev. Chas. Eckels, a missionary lately returned from Siam, will deliver an address in the Taneytown Presbyterian church, Sunday afternoon, March 6th., at half past two o'clock. All interested in missionary work are invited to attend.

John J. F. Whitmer, son of Lewis Whitmer, living at Pipe Creek on the Westminster road, died on Sunday morning of throat consumption. He was a brother of Jesse Whitmer who also died of consumption several years ago. Interment was in the U. B. cemetery, on Tuesday, Rev. J. O. Clippinger officiating.

Subscribers who will want the RECORD changed from one Postoffice to another this spring, should notify us in ample time, giving not only the new, but their former postoffice. Those who have accepted either of our combination offers, should notify the other paper direct, when change is wanted, as we have nothing to do with such subscriptions after they are once sent in.

Our Special Notice column is an excellent medium for a certain kind of advertising. If you have one or two animals, or a single article of some kind, for sale, let the public know it through this column. If you want to buy, rent or hire, or if you find or lose something of value, make use of this column. We charge 5c a line, counting seven words to the line, exclusive of the address. No notice inserted for less than 10c.

COUNTY AND STATE.

News Notes of General Interest from various Sources.

Thomas J. Keating, state tax commissioner, resigned his office on Tuesday and Robert F. Graham was elected to fill the vacancy. Mr. Keating resigned on account of ill health.

Col. J. Thomas Scharf, the writer and historian, died on Monday at his home in New York. He was the author of the "History of Western Maryland," a work which was issued some years ago, and severely criticized.

Hon. Geo. L. Wellington, United States Senator, from Maryland, will give his lecture on "Martin Luther" in Brua Chapel, Gettysburg, Thursday evening, March 10th., for the benefit of the Y. P. S. C. E., of College church and the College Northfield Fund.

Maryland continues to allow cock fights to be held without interruption by the authorities, and Point of Rocks has become a well known resort for Hagerstown and Chambersburg toughs who hold high carnival on numerous occasions in the unmanly, degraded sport.

Senator J. W. Herring delivered an address on "Health" at St. John's college, Annapolis, on Monday night, which has been pronounced most excellent. Judge Magruder says, "It should not be lost, but should be printed by the state and distributed in the public schools of the state."

The bill requiring the County Commissioners of Carroll county, to pay the Mayor and city council of Union Bridge, half of the road tax levied on the property within the corporate limits of the town, has passed the General Assembly and awaits the Governor's signature to become a law.

Delegat Leake, of Allegany county, has introduced a bill, by the provisions of which minors who enter saloons to purchase intoxicating drinks, or who succeed in purchasing them, are subject to arrest and conviction for misdemeanor. The bill proposes to punish the minor-purchaser as well as the saloonkeeper selling him liquor.

The large flamine works of the John S. Young Company, of Hanover, were burned shortly after midnight, Sunday. The loss is about thirty thousand dollars, with an insurance of twenty-six thousand. The fire is supposed to have been of incendiary origin, several tramps having been closed shelter by the engineer when he closed the boiler-rooms Saturday evening.

Another exciting fox chase took place in Westminster on Saturday from the Central Hotel, where a fox was liberated. Many persons were on hand to witness the sport. Reynard was too slow for the hounds, and he was captured after a short run. Mr. David Starner, of Medford, was first in at the death and bore away the brush. Another fox was loosened later. This was a swift one, and he escaped after an exciting chase.

Four of the persons recently arrested on the charge of desecrating the cemetery at Williamsport, Md., by overturning and breaking monuments and grave stones, and who have been on trial in the Washington county court, were convicted on Tuesday. The verdict was arrived at on first ballot, and gives universal satisfaction.

The court reserved sentence for the present. It is generally supposed that the gang which has committed numerous depredations in the neighborhood is now broken up, consequently there is a feeling of relief over the verdict.

A circular letter has been received by the members of the General Assembly calling their attention to two bills, and asking for their passage. One is for local option in any county, district of a county or ward of a city whenever petitioned for by one-half of the registered qualified voters thereof. The other is for neighborhood option in the city of Baltimore, and to prohibit the location of a saloon within a given distance of a church, synagogue or schoolhouse. The communication is signed by C. Herbert Richardson as chairman, and Howard Waynesmith as secretary, of a Baltimore committee.

The Grain and Produce Dealers' Association of Frederick and Carroll Counties, which was organized in Baltimore February 14, with A. D. Birley, of Ladiesburg, chairman, held their second meeting at the City Hotel, Frederick, on Wednesday. The officers were continued and Mr. Birley presided at the meeting, at which about a dozen members were present. After the meeting Mr. Birley said only business of a private nature was transacted, and as their objects and purposes had been misstated through the press by articles from their members and the farmers themselves, they deemed it best not to disclose the nature of their business today. "However," said Mr. Birley, "at the proper time, in the near future, we will announce the true objects and purposes of our association, which we feel confident will meet with the approval of the farmers, as it will be for mutual protection to both them and us. I regret to see the objects and aims of our association, which are very laudable ones, should have become misunderstood."

Obituaries, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The regular death notices published free of charge.

WHITMER.—On Feb. 27, 1898, near Copperville, Mr. John J. F. Whitmer, aged 33 years and 19 days.

KEEFE.—On March 2nd, '98, in Taneytown, Miss Martha Keefe, aged 84 years.

KNOTT.—On Feb. 26th, '98, in Frederick county, Frederick O. Knott, infant son of Benjamin and Clara Knott.

The little crib is empty now. The little clothes laid by. A mother's hopes, a father's joy in death's cold arms both lie. By a Friend, M. S. W.

Services at Uniontown, this Sabbath as follows: Sabbath School at 9 o'clock; preaching at 10:15; also in the evening at 7. At Mayberry, at 2:30 p. m. J. R. Geisinger will preach in the Bethel at Frizellburg in the evening at 7. S. B. Craft, Pastor.

THE HALEY CASE.

Excites great interest during its Second Trial.

Dr. Louis H. Haley, the "Indian herb Doctor," was on trial in Westminster during the week, charged with shooting, with intent to kill, Charles H. Buckingham, of Freedom district. The facts, briefly stated, seem to be that Haley was notified to remove a pile of stones from the road in front of his residence, which he declined to do, and threatened to make "the bullets fly" if anyone moved them.

Haley did not remove them, and Buckingham, who was employed by road supervisor Charles V. Conaway, was sent to haul the stones away. After he had taken away one load, Haley appeared, drew a revolver and pointed it directly at him, saying, "I'll kill you if you touch another stone." There is some confusion as to whether Buckingham threw a stone first, and that Haley then fired at him, or whether the shots were fired first. In any case, Buckingham received two bullets, one of which still remains in his arm.

The testimony was taken on Saturday and Monday, States-Attorney Reifsnider conducting the prosecution, with D. N. Henning for the defense. The case was argued by counsel on Tuesday, each side being allowed two hours.

The jury rendered a verdict of guilty on both counts—assault, and assault with intent to kill. Several exceptions to the rulings of the court were taken by the defense, and the case may be appealed.

Priestland Alumni.

Pursuant to adjournment, part of the alumni of Priestland met on Feb. 26th. At the proper hour, the President, Daniel Wolfe, called the meeting to order, and the Secretary read the minutes of the previous meeting, which were approved. The Sullivan and Nicholas D. Norris.

The unfinished business of the first meeting was then taken up, but very little progress was made, the absence of a number of attendants of the prior meeting, together with the failure of those present to secure the necessary data, caused the partial failure, and again the report was referred to next meeting.

The committee to report names of pupils attending school from its beginning, was continued, and a new committee of two appointed—John E. Senseney and Evan B. McKinstry—to report names of teachers who have taught under the present system of public school.

Those present at the meeting were Daniel Wolfe, David Rinehart, L. C. Rinehart, J. Q. Senseney, William Farquhar, E. L. Shriner, J. E. Senseney, E. B. McKinstry, W. S. Rinehart, Mrs. Elsie Griffin, Miss Addie Senseney, Mrs. D. Wolfe, and quite a number of pupils of the present school. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested, to attend the next meeting, which will be held March 26th, at 1 p. m. The editor of the RECORD is specially requested to attend.

L. C. RINEHART, Sec'y. (Will take pleasure in attending this meeting, if I can arrange to do so.—Ed RECORD.)

A Pleasant Event.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambers gave a dinner last week, in honor of Mr. Jno. Aulthouse and wife; but unfortunately Mr. Aulthouse got on the sick list, and this prevented his participation in helping to keep the good things from spoiling. About noon all present were invited to partake of those things, which many appetites welcomed, and which were most generously provided. Refreshments were served in abundance. After generous chats, all departed much gratified.

The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. Frank Chambers, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Ohler, Mrs. and Mrs. John Eckard, Mr. and Mrs. Isiah Ohler, Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Brown; Misses Rosa Chambers, Pearl Eckard, Ellen Houck, Grace Warner and Leona Brown; Messrs Chas. Whitmore, Russel Eckard and Harvey Warner.

Donation Party.

Rev. A. Bateman and wife were kindly remembered, on Thursday evening by the members of Grace Reformed church this place. A large number of persons, laden with provisions for the family larder, and also a plentiful supply for the reverend gentleman's horse, assembled early in the evening, at the parsonage, and after depositing their burdens in the care of the pastor and his wife, spent a pleasant evening in social games, conversation, etc. The party broke up about 10 o'clock, the participants being much pleased with the results of the evening.

A County Map Needed.

A good map of Carroll county would be much appreciated, and sure to meet with ready sale at a popular price. It ought to show all railroads, public roads, postoffices, mills, school houses, and other important points in each election district. There ought to be a wall map, as well as a pocket edition, the latter to contain brief sketches of the various towns and villages, giving such information as would be of value to a traveling man. The work might, in fact, be made a county directory, to a limited extent, giving the name and location of every land owner and business firm, and illustrations of the principal buildings in the county. The last suggestion, however, might increase the size and cost of the work too greatly to be popular. We should like to hear from the people of the county on the subject.

DIED.

WHITMER.—On Feb. 27, 1898, near Copperville, Mr. John J. F. Whitmer, aged 33 years and 19 days.

KEEFE.—On March 2nd, '98, in Taneytown, Miss Martha Keefe, aged 84 years.

KNOTT.—On Feb. 26th, '98, in Frederick county, Frederick O. Knott, infant son of Benjamin and Clara Knott.

WILL THERE BE WAR?

The Maine Affair Still Unsettled. No Official Report.

While official investigation has been in progress continuously, the findings of the commission have been kept strictly secret. There is considerable suppressed excitement and enthusiasm, both in this country and Spain, and the situation in Havana during the week on the occasion of the arrival of the Viscaya, the most powerful of the Spanish fleet, became alarming and an outbreak was only prevented by the prompt action of the authorities in increasing the police force.

Spanish divers are also pursuing investigations on the hull of the sunken ship and a Spanish board of inquiry will no doubt make a report to offset the one issued by the American board, particularly if it should show outside explosion and Spanish liability. No real change in the situation has taken place since our last issue.

Reports of increased activity among the Cuban insurgents continue to come in and a number of minor engagements have taken place, in which both sides claim advantage. While there may not be the least real cause for war, our Navy department is undoubtedly making preparations in that direction, in order that it may be prepared to meet any emergency. A number of Senators and representatives have gone to Havana in order to become better informed of the situation.

A Valuable Cook Book.

The ladies of Uniontown, who are at the head of a Cook Book publication enterprise, now have success guaranteed, and the work will likely be out about April 1st. It will be published by the CARROLL RECORD, and will be a credit alike to authors and publisher. As stated before, the volume will be a handsome one of over 100 pages, and will be sold at the popular price of ten cents. The edition will be 1000 copies, and will be on sale at a number of places which will be announced later. Liberal advertising patronage has made the venture possible, together with the commendable energy of Mrs. G. W. Bachman and her coadjutors. The profits arising from the work will be devoted to the organ fund of the Uniontown Lutheran congregation.

If you are not a subscriber to the RECORD, try it 3 months for 25c!

Zepp-Myers.

On Thursday evening of last week, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Myers, of near Pleasant Valley, was the scene of a very pretty and quiet wedding, the contracting parties being Mr. Edward P. Zepp and Miss Lizzie Myers.

Promptly at the appointed hour, a wedding march was beautifully rendered by Prof. Royer, of Westminster, and the couple entered the parlor where they were met by Rev. Wm. H. Ehrhart who pronounced them man and wife after the usual ceremony.

Miss Della Powell acted as bride's maid, and Christopher Zepp as best man. The bride wore a gown of white silk, with gloves and slippers to match, and carried a bouquet of beautiful bride's roses. The groom wore the conventional black. After the ceremony and congratulations, the guests partook of refreshments which were served in abundance.

The happy couple left on Friday on an evening train for Lancaster and other points, after which they will return home for a new days to make preparations for taking a trip through Virginia and North Carolina, with a possibility of their locating at Asheville.

The invited guests were, Mr. Harry G. Devilliss, wife and son; Jacob Spangler and wife, R. H. Bankard, Misses Della and Ella Black, Charles Eckard and wife, Millard F. Bankard and Emanuel Zepp and family. The presents were beautiful as well as numerous and useful. Our best wishes attend them on their journey through life.

Union Bridge.

Mr. Charles Stambaugh, our assistant boss of railroad gangs, was confined to his bed for a week, but is now able to be up in his room.

Elder John S. Weybright will preach at Bethel, on Sunday March 6th.

Mortgage Tax not Repealed.

The bill introduced in the House of Delegates to repeal the mortgage tax clause of the assessment law, came to a vote on Tuesday and failed of passage for want of a constitutional majority, the vote being 49 for and 99 against repeal. It is claimed that the operation of the law has proved it a failure. The county members, it appears, did not understand the scope of the proposed repeal bill, and narrowly escaped allowing it to pass, though being strongly opposed to it.

HARNEY NEWS NOTES.

Mr. H. David Hess Narrowly Escapes Serious Injury.

The CARROLL RECORD is a more than ordinary county paper, and all who are not subscribers should not fail to hand the Postmaster at Harney, at least 25c for a three months trial subscription, or one dollar for a full year, and we know that you will be highly pleased and your homes be greatly benefited. It is a paper for young and old, non-political and always gives the latest news.

It seems as if Harney was bound to have a fire. On Tuesday afternoon while Mr. John Heagy was smoking meat in Miss Susan Lynn's smoke house, from some cause or other, it caught on fire and badly burned some of the meat. The fire was discovered, and put out before much damage was done to the building.

Miss Anna M. Reek left on Tuesday for Baltimore, where she will spend some time, before going to work at the milliner business. She spent the last season in Sylvania, Georgia, but has not decided positively whether she will go back to that place or not. It is believed that the moving in this neighborhood will nearly all be done early.

Mr. Abe Rindger has rented in Gettysburg, and will leave this place in the spring. We are sorry to see him leave.

Mr. V. J. Clousher is having the lumber sawed for his new barn; the Millhise Bros. are doing the work. This promises to be a good season for our carpenters; at least it looks now as if work was going to be plenty.

The infant child of Mr. David Hess died on Thursday morning, at 3 o'clock. Interment took place at St. Paul's Lutheran cemetery on Wednesday; funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. G. Minnick.

On Wednesday last week Mr. H. David Hess had the misfortune to be kicked on the knee and hip by a horse. He went into the stable without speaking, and it is supposed that the animal thought it was another horse that was in the habit of biting and teasing the animal. Mr. Hess was knocked down, and after he fell the horse kicked clear over the top of him with both feet as hard as he could. At this writing he is getting better, and is able to move around a little.

Messrs William Snider, Sr., and William Snider, Jr., have purchased two new horses—one is a goer. It is claimed that there is nothing in Emmitsburg district that can go any faster. Billy says that he will show the Harney boys what it is to fly, and if any one wants a little chase, he is ready to pull the strings on his trotter at any time. Look out boys, Billy means business.

Mrs. Clingan was taken sick last Sunday, and has been confined to the house ever since. She has been keeping house for her son, H. F. Clingan, for a long time.

School Entertainment.

The pupils of Spangler's school, under the supervision of Miss Lizzie Horner, teacher, gave one of the most interesting entertainments that it has ever been our pleasure to attend. The following is the program as carried out: music; by Harney Glee Club; Greeting song; by school; address of welcome, by Ella Spangler; recitation; by three little boys; declamation; by Luther Spangler; dialogue "The Evil there is in it," by Frank Schott and Johnnie Harner; declamation; by Harry Shriver; recitation; by Jennie Sterner; recitation; by Ella Spangler; dialogue, "To be Happy you must be Good"; recitation; by Imelda Shriver; dialogue, "The Effervescing Glory"; declamation; by Lester Bowers; dialogue, "Snell Lady"; a motion song; declamation; by Frank Schott; dialogue, "The State over-seer"; music; by Glee Club; recitation; by Mamie Staley; dialogue, entitled, "Refinement," in three acts; recitation; by Lizzie Horner; motion song; by Effie Horner; dialogue, "New mode of borrowing money"; music by the school; dialogue, "Mrs. Jonas Jones"; recitation; by Grace Shriver; music by the Glee Club; Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works; tableaux; dialogue, "Witches in the cream"; dialogue, "The Western Serenade"; dialogue, "The New Rat Extremator"; dialogue, "Lord Dondras visit"; dialogue, "Who Stole de Chickens"; dialogue, "Conversation"; a drill by six young ladies; tableaux; a Colored Sermon; music by the Glee Club; music by the school; tableaux; "The Fisherman's Home at the rising of the storm, and after the storm."

The entire program was well rendered, and the amateur performers, although many of their quite young, are to be congratulated upon the excellent manner in which they performed their several parts. But it was plainly shown that the great success was due to the persistent efforts and careful training of their teacher, and the patrons of the school have a right to feel proud that their children, through Miss Harner's wise discipline and thorough training, were enabled to be brought so creditably before the public.

Double Pipe Creek.

Mrs. Rebecca Whitmore, of Westminster, Md., died last Sunday, of dropsy, at the home of her son-in-law, Robert Myers, aged 72 years, 5 months and 8 days; her funeral took place on Tuesday at Rocky Ridge, where she was laid to rest beside her husband who preceded her to the "Spirit land," nearly ten years ago. The text was II Timothy 4:7. The occasion was improved by Elders T. J. Kolb, and D. R. Saylor of this place, Elder U. H. Bixler of Meadow Branch, and Rev. P. H. Miller, of Westminster. The pall-bearers were six grandsons of the deceased: Charles and Milton Whitmore, Hayes and David Pitez, Samuel Haines, and Harvey Miller. The many friends were entertained at John H. Miller's for dinner. Mrs. Whitmore was an exemplary member of the German Baptist church for nearly 45 years, and always resided in or near D. P. Creek, until Ander's Mill was destroyed by fire. Mr. Whitmore was a cooper, and after the mill burnt, they moved to Westminster. She leaves six children: Mr. John Whitmore and Mrs. John Pitez, of Woodberry, Baltimore; David Whitmore, Mrs. Samuel Haines and Mrs. Robert Myers of Westminster, and Mrs. J. H. Miller of near D. P. Creek.

Mr. William Burner, of Waynesboro, Pa., was the guest of Elder D. R. Saylor last Sunday and Monday. Will be becoming quite a frequent visitor in our town.

Mr. Charles Stambaugh, our assistant boss of railroad gangs, was confined to his bed for a week, but is now able to be up in his room.

Elder John S. Weybright will preach at Bethel, on Sunday March 6th.

Union Bridge.

Mrs. McCubbins and children of Baltimore are visiting the family of Mr. J. Malown.

Correspondence.

All communications for the RECORD must be signed by the writer's own name; no necessity for publication, but as an evidence that the matter and facts transmitted are legitimate and correct. Items of a mischievous character are not wanted.

(Several communications arriving this (Friday) morning, have been unavoidably crowded out.—Ed.)

Uniontown.

Our village blacksmith is suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism, and has not been able to wield the hammer for the past two weeks.

Mr. Frank Mathias returned from a visit to friends in Baughman's Valley, last week. He is now visiting relatives in Baltimore.

Messrs John E. Heck and Obadiah Fleagle have an attack of lagrippe.

The election of the officers of C. E. Society of the M. P. church will take place Thursday evening, March 10th.

Mr. and Mrs. Clotworthy Rodkey, of Baltimore, are spending the week at Mr. Wesley Rodkey's.

Miss Mabel Mathias is ill with whooping cough.

The Uniontown Bank will hold their annual banquet, this Saturday evening, at 4 o'clock, at C. F. Eckard's cafe.

Miss Nellie Haines is visiting her grand-parents, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Zile, at Frizellburg.

Mr. John Michael has placed on trial in the Lutheran church, a fine Packard organ.

Mrs. Wm. Baust, of Woodside, spent Wednesday with Mr. E. G. Gilbert's family.

Mrs. Ann Haines spent Tuesday with her sister, Mrs. Emanuel Formwalt, at the east end of town.

Miss Rhua Whilde, of Thurmont, is the guest of Mr. Frank Palmer's family.

Mr. and Mrs. David Segafosse, of Baltimore, spent several days this week with Mr. Obadiah Fleagle's family. Mr. Segafosse has recently recovered from an attack of typhoid fever.

Mrs. Lizzie Franklin and son Joe, of Westminster, spent Tuesday with Mr. Wm. Segafosse's family.

On Wednesday, Mr. Jesse Billmyer's family, at Fountain Hill Farm, entertained the following guests: Mrs. Joel Caylor, Mrs. Benton Flater and daughter Edith, Mrs. Jerry Baublitts, Mrs. George Eekenrode, Mrs. Ezra Caylor and Mrs. Clayton Hann and daughters.

Little Albert Krenzer who has been very ill with pneumonia, is recovering. Little Herbert Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Will Davis, is quite sick with lagrippe.

Middleburg.

Washington Camp No. 9, P. O. S. of A., attended Divine service, February 27th, at the M. E. church. The members met at the Camp room, and at the hour of 10.30 a. m., proceeded to the church, where they were addressed and greatly encouraged in their work by a most elegant sermon by the Rev. S. H. Cummings, who has been pastor of this charge during the past year.

Mr. Thomas G. Otto lost a valuable horse last week; it died from lockjaw. Miss Margarette Arnold, of Baltimore, is paying a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Arnold.

Miss Alice Thomson, of New Windsor, is home on a visit to her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Clara Thomson.

Miss Rose Rites, of Union Bridge, is visiting Mrs. J. N. Miller.

Miss Carrie Arnsperger, of Sabillasville, is visiting Miss Minnie Biehl.

Mrs. David Mackley spent a few days in Union Bridge with her daughter, Mrs. Powell Oiler, this past week. Dr. W. D. Brown, of Union Bridge, was in town last Sunday making social calls; we wish him success in his new practice.

Mr. Harvey Biehl and Mrs. Ida S. Sentz have returned from a six months visit through Virginia. Miss Alma Coleman is on the sick list with a very sore throat.

Barth Hill.

Mr. Elias Erbly will have sale and move his family to Hagerstown, where he will have mechanical employment. Mr. Milton Hesson will take charge of Mr. Erb's farm, during the present month.

Miss Key Boyer, of Blue Ridge Summit, is the guest of Miss Rosa Rowe.

Mrs. Melle Simpson, of Middleburg, is spending the week at her father's home.

Mrs. Susan Routson, of Frizellburg, has been a guest in the family of Mr. David Wilhelm, at Hillsdale Farm.

Messrs J. Hamilton and Ivan Shaw, executors, are settling up the estate of their father, Thomas Shaw, who died eleven years ago. There will be sale of personal property this month.

Mrs. Ephraim Cover and Mrs. Harry Cover, of Frizellburg, were Tuesday guests at Ashland Farm.

Twenty-nine young ladies and gentlemen of this village proceeded to the home of Mr. Albert Greenwood on Tuesday evening, where they spent several pleasant hours in music and conversation. Mr. Oliver Angell was master of ceremonies. Miss Minnie Rowe rendered the first instrumental hymn. Refreshments were served by the kind host and hostess. Mr. Greenwood will soon change his location to a farm near Linwood.

Mrs. J. D. Myers, of Park Dale, spent Wednesday in New Windsor, with her afflicted niece, Mrs. Bruce Crabbe.

Last Saturday eve Mr. Will Smith unexpectedly found a nice bright "key" that had been sent from Blue Ridge Summit to Miss Rosa Rowe. He was much pleased with his lucky find, but pleasures are fleeting. Sunday evening he drove eastward, and on reaching Mr. Nathan Rowe's he unfortunately lost the "key," which he thought so secure. Being aggravated and mortified at his loss, he rushed into his buggy, drove rapidly to Uniontown in quest of g(g)race to soothe his ruffled feelings. The news of the "Lost Key" was soon circulated, and in a short while, Mr. Morrison Smith, of Woodside, drove up at Mr. Rowe's gate, and made search and inquiries for the key. He too, was unsuccessful in finding the prize, and left quickly, looking quite dejected.

Mr. Frank Rowe is the happy finder of the coveted "key" and will retain possession until claimed by the owner. This straggling little village is coming to the front with quilting bees. We have quite a number of neat, skillful, and rapid needle women who are much in demand at this season of the year. Mrs. Harry Graham entertained a large quilting party last week; and on Wednesday, Mrs. Ella Rowe dispensed her social hospitalities to fifteen good fellows. Their hilarity was somewhat diminished in the evening by the biggest snow storm of the winter.

Copperville.

Mr. Bendigo Newcomer bought of Josiah Bankard, his property lying about half mile south of Copperville, on Tuesday last, and will take possession of it this coming spring. Mr. Kinehart who now occupies the property will move to Freepan in the house now occupied by Mr. Phillips the blacksmith, and Phillips will move into

ENTERED AT TANEYTOWN POSTOFFICE AS SECOND CLASS MATTER

SATURDAY, MARCH 5th., 1898.

IN THE EVENT of war with Spain, the New York Herald has figured out that in the first call for 100,000 men, Maryland's portion would be 16,000. This is encouraging for those who don't want to go, as ten times this number would likely volunteer. Maryland always has been to the front, when bravery was needed, and will be again.

THE ADVENT of the Myersville Guide, in Frederick county, as a republican organ, has stirred up a rumpus which includes the Examiner and the Valley Register. The trio are engaged in the pleasant pursuit of calling each other names and turning over ancient history, all of which, to "a man up a tree," is somewhat amusing, not to say ridiculous. There is nothing more hoary-headed in modern journalism than the senseless cross-fire between newspapers, as to their merits or opinions.

Injustice, as well as Waste.

If our legislators want to put in force economic measures, there is no better point to begin at than the one of public printing. The RECORD, of course, being out of politics, is "not in it" in the distribution of fat contracts for doing the printing required by law. Even the Act allowing our town to issue bonds for water works—something which did not interest a soul aside from the tax payers within our limits—could not be printed in the RECORD, because it is not considered as a factor in politics, and because the laws give party papers privileges which the people pay for.

The present legislature will pass an act legalizing a bequest to one of our churches—another law of interest only to Taneytown—yet, if printed at all, the party papers will get the job, without any competition as to price, simply because "it's politics" to feed the partisan press, particularly when the people pay the bills.

We are not finding fault with our contemporaries, but will agree that they are perfectly justified in plucking the grapes placed within such easy reach; neither do we need to be pensioned, thanks to a liberal, not to say, appreciative, patronage from the public. Therefore, it is not a case of "no grapes," so far as our necessities are concerned, and we can afford to speak out on the subject.

The time will come when subjects such as this will be taken in hand by the people; the time when all our affairs will be run on business, not political, principles. We want business methods in politics, not the methods of politics as a business—paste this in your hat as a campaign motto. Until this time comes, fancy printing bills, along with many others of like kind, will be paid by a generous and long-suffering public.

Lynching from a Southern Point of View.

That nothing yet has been done to secure the conviction of lynchers is the most discouraging fact connected with the problem. It is, in the nature of things, impossible to secure a jury in a community where lynch law is epidemic that will bring in an indictment against the law-breaking neighbors for taking the life of a criminal. If they are not in sympathy with the lynchers they are afraid of them, and either sympathy or fear is sufficient to blind them to the facts. It is becoming more and more apparent that there is no short method of reaching lynchers in an unenlightened community under a democratic form of government.

If lawlessness is to cease in such communities it must cease through the personal efforts of the few intelligent citizens who live in them. There is no community in the South without its intelligent citizen upon whom does not rest the responsibility for the prevalence of law views of law among his less enlightened neighbors. But right here one touches what the Southerner calls the weak spot in his make-up. He does not, as a rule, feel deeply the responsibilities of citizenship. The Northerner is impressed with the idea of the common good.

The Southerner is impressed with the idea of attending to his own business and letting other people's alone. The Northerner is a Roman, ready to sink individuality out of sight for the state; the Southerner is a Greek, whose highest ideal is not a perfect state, but a perfect man. The intelligent Southerner sits under his vine and fig-tree and does not presume to teach his neighbor anything.

There are hundreds of well-to-do farmers, college-bred men of unmistakable talent, living in out-of-the-way communities of the South, who have never moved a thumb to exert either an intellectual or a moral influence upon the ignorant masses around them. It is not selfishness—no people ever opened their granaries wider to the poor or enjoyed social intercourse more; it is individualism—the natural product of long years of independent agricultural life in thinly settled communities. From "The Prevention of Lynch-Law Epidemics," by Edward Leigh Pell, in American Monthly Review of Reviews for March.

Government by the People.

PART IV.

I shall not attempt to follow the convention through the course of its labors, but shall simply notice one other subject—that of importation of slaves. Though there was strong opposition to the slave trade, and many bitter denunciations against it, its opponents yielded with less reluctance on account of its not being permanent, like the other compromises, but expired at the end of twenty years by its own limitation.

It is worthy of notice that with all the wrangling over slavery, the word slave does not appear in the constitution. As showing the popular feeling against the institution at this time, Congress, then in session in New York, passed the ordinance of 1787 prohibiting slavery in the N. W. territory. This was the anti-slavery proviso of Jefferson.

In 1784, while a member of Congress, Jefferson had submitted a plan of government for the whole western territory out of which 17 states were to be formed. One of its provisions was, "that after the year 1800 there shall be neither slavery or involuntary servitude in any of said states other than in punishment of crimes whereof the party shall have been duly convicted." Our wisest and best men, north and south, then looked upon slavery as an evil, and the concessions made to it in convention were made in the hope that it would be of short duration.

The Constitution was adopted on the 17th. of September, 1787, by the convention, and signed by 39 members; although the entire number of the convention was 55. Some members were absent, others refused to give their signatures; indeed, many of the framers of the system deemed it very imperfect and felt entirely satisfied with it, but all felt the necessity for a more efficient government than the existing one—impeding anarchic secured and hastened its adoption.

By its own terms "The ratification of the convention of nine states shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the states so ratifying the same." The states ratified in the following order: by convention of Delaware, on Dec. 7, 1787, "Penna.," Dec. 12, 1787, "N. Jersey," Dec. 18, 1787, "Georgia," Jan. 2, 1788, "Connecticut," Jan. 9, 1788, "Massachusetts," Feb. 6, 1788, "Maryland," Apr. 28, 1788, "S. Carolina," May 23, 1788, "New Hampshire," June 21, 1788, "Virginia," June 28, 1788, "New York," July 26, 1788, "N. Carolina," Nov. 21, 1788, "Delaware," May 29, 1789.

The first political question in this country was upon the ratification of the Constitution. The division did not then crystallize into parties, but led to it soon after. The friends of the constitution took the name of Federalists, and those hostile to it, Anti-Federalists; Washington, Jay, Madison, Hamilton and others were champions for the constitution. Thomas Jefferson, Patrick Henry, George Clinton and John Randolph were champions against it. Several of the states ratified under protest, demanding immediate amendments.

Perhaps no political question has ever come before the American people for settlement (of a civil nature) in which public sentiment has been more stirred and party feeling more excited than in this one. In some localities, where demonstrations of rejoicing over the adoption were made, mobs attacked the processions and bloody tragedies followed. In New York city, the Federalists broke the doors and windows and destroyed the type of a printing office, because the editor had made disparaging remarks about the way some states had secured ratification.

At Providence, the anti-Federalists suppressed all rejoicing by an armed force. At Albany, still more violent exhibitions of party feeling were manifested. I quote the language of the historian, (Hildreth) describing the collision that occurred here.

"The friends of the constitution the day before (July 8th.) on receiving news of the ratification by Virginia, had celebrated that event by a procession and a salute of ten guns. Those of the opposite party showed their chagrin by meeting the next morning and burning the constitution. Both parties united during the forenoon in the customary celebration of the anniversary of independence, but separated to dine at different places. After dinner the friends of the Constitution formed a new procession escorted by some military companies. As they passed the headquarters of the other party, an altercation arose ending in a conflict in which clubs and stones, and presently swords and bayonets, were freely used, resulting in severe injuries to several persons."

Notwithstanding the misgivings of those who approved and disapproved of the Constitution, it has stood the test of time. During an experiment of over one hundred years no essential alterations have been made in it. It remains to day as it came from the hands of the framers except in the mode of electing president and vice-president. Additions have been made to it by way of amendments; it is true, but the original stands with all its provisions unchanged except the one just noticed, and is justly regarded by all enlightened freemen as a model system of republican government.

The Magnanimity of a Great People. (For the Record.) Three has the civilized world been shocked, since the Civil War, by events transpiring within our borders, and each occasion has been marked by the majestic emphasis given to the principle that "nothing is the greatest nation of modern times."

When, in 1865, the assassination of President Lincoln shrouded the world in gloom, the intensity of the public feeling gave rise to the greatest apprehensions, and the millions of earth awaited with bated breath the issue. They witnessed the procession of events calmly adjusting themselves to the provisions of the Constitution, and the miscreant granted a fair and impartial trial, save the assassin, whom a violent death awarded his just deserts.

By the hand of the assassin, is the life of the Chief Executive cut short, and in 24 hours his coadjutor assumes the responsibility of the Presidency. The wheels of government roll on unimpeded. Seventeen years elapse and upon our very threshold, in ostensibly friendly waters, we are startled by the explosion of a battle-ship of the Great Republic amid concomitant circumstances which naturally suggest the hand of treachery.

Again, to the millions of America comes the voice of entreaty to calmly await a judicial investigation, and, in spite of the sacrifice of the dignity of a National Legislator, in an unseemly arrangement of a coordinate branch of the Federal Government, which is promptly and fittingly rebuked by his fellow associates; in the face of all precedent and substantial assertions in the columns of sensational dailies; eye, smarting under aspersions cast upon the character of our naval officers and their subordinates by those most interested and advantaged by the dire calamity; the world notes the dignified patience with which the American populace awaits the verdict of truth and justice.

To monarchical forms of government, where armed forces are necessary to keep the people in subjection, and are the stimulus to which appeal is made in times of great public excitement, a spectacle such as we are witnessing at the present time, within our borders, is indeed marvelous. The highest eloquence falling from the lips of the most eloquent of orators, concerning the fundamental principles of American Republicanism, passes unheeded by the multitude, with this great object lesson in the school of bitter experience. This is the more pronounced on account of the recent occurrence of the De Lome affair, which yet a thing of the past, and the strained relations which have for months existed between Spain and the United States.

The crystallization of the equity inculcated by the Declaration of Independence, in the life of the Nation, exhibited under the harassing conditions attendant upon such a trio of disasters, is fearlessly pursued, and the admiration of the human race, and the forbearance of those whose sense of justice and decency has been so shocked by the barbarities of the warfare waged in the island of Cuba, that any intervention would have seemed justifiable, is another link in the chain of excellencies adorning the character of American citizenship, and testify to the nobility of birthright in a land of freedom, where all else is subordinated to the claims of truth and justice.

The evolutions which have marked our history as a nation, are but the result of a faithful adherence to these features of our national policy. The crises through which we have passed, the crucial tests to which our form of government has been subjected, and the intricate problems of state craft and diplomacy with which the genius of our legislators has wrestled and solved, would have found us, but ill-equipped for the lofty mission vouchsafed to us, had we not so consistently and fearlessly taught the lessons of morality and virtue, which are the bases of correct and equitable methods of reasoning, and the criteria by which our citizenship and intelligent citizenship is to be judged.

In the deliberate investigation of every question submitted for settlement, there has been, and is, no desecration of duty or refusal to assume responsibility, but on the contrary, when the result of the investigation justified a certain course of action, it has been fearlessly pursued, and the pages of American history are stained by no cowardly refusal to measure up to the requirements of the occasion, and in the morality and virtue thus evolved is a tower of strength against which the waves of error and superstition dash in vain.

It is these inherent qualities of the American citizen, which so admirably fit her for the lofty position she occupies, and for the grander mission to which she shall be called as the centuries roll into the future. In the absolute justice and impartiality of her decisions the nations of earth find their highest ideals of arbitrate equity; in the righteousness of her conduct toward the nations of earth the peace of the world is conserved, and in the nobility and generosity characterizing her national policy, the character of her future citizens is assured, and the bulwarks of the Republic strengthened.

In the present instance, should the result of the investigation prove the explosion to have been the result of carelessness or accident, the blame will be placed where it properly belongs; if it be the result of defective machinery, in our workshops we will profit by the experience and rectify the error; but, should treachery be apparent, an outraged national dignity will demand the fullest reparation, and the culprit, be they who they may, taught that they may not presume upon the patience of a nation whose peaceful ministrations by no means unfit her for a magnificent defense of her rights and a terrible punishment for her wrongs.

Something to Know. It may be worth something to know that the very best medicine for restoring the tired-out nervous system to a healthy vigor is Electric Bitters. This medicine is purely vegetable, acts by giving tone to the nerve centres in the stomach, gently stimulates the Liver and the Kidneys, and aids these organs in throwing off impurities in the blood. Electric Bitters improves the appetite, aids digestion, and is pronounced by those who have tried it as the very best blood purifier and nerve tonic. Try it. Sold for 50c or $1.00 per bottle at R. To Young Men.

(For the Home Circle.)
I wonder why it is, that—well, I don't know how many, but a good many—young men take such little account of their credit. Scolding again, am I? No, I am simply being friendly, on the assumption that those are our best friends who tell us our faults. If you call it scolding, and don't care to read what my old "Faber" says, why just skip to the next article—there's no law against it.

Yes, it is a sad fact, that lots of young men, who are ought to be real good honest fellows, play fast and loose with their credit. I don't mean character, or reputation, which stand for a sort of credit too, but real financial credit. It is incomprehensible that the value of credit is so lightly regarded, or so little understood, that people will pursue any course but the straight one which leads to the preservation of this most valuable asset.

Some young men go in debt, apparently without necessity, or knowledge of how they will ever get out, and probably don't care. Some, mean well, no doubt, but calculate on too many favorable circumstances, the failure of one or more of which will cause them to default. They get into the bad habit of wanting things which they do not need, and double the error by going into debt for them, pledging, not only their credit, but often their word of honor.

This is not an overdrawn expression of opinion, but one which every merchant who has been in business long enough to have experience, will no doubt testify to. Of course, all young men are not meant, and some are meant who are not young men. People live too fast—too far ahead of their means—and so strong is the intoxication that their honor and credit is sacrificed with little regret.

If they could only realize what a mortgage they are placing on their characters; what a load they are hampering their lives and ambition with, right in the beginning, surely they would jealously guard their credit which they will have use for all their lives. On account of a false conception of what constitutes respectability and a correct life, young men frequently go into debt for a horse and buggy, bicycle, or fashionable clothing, and then spend the money they earn in "sporting around," that honestly belongs to those they owe.

What a terrible mistake such a course is! Why will not our young men understand what true independence is? Why will they not understand that self-dependence is simply a test of true manhood, and not a real hardship? Why will they not learn that the friendship which depends on keeping up a life beyond one's income is a sort of friendship not worthy the name? Young men, be real men—not young fools!

Bennie.

(For the Home Circle.)
Those who were interested in the story of the "brahma rooster" will perhaps like to hear the story of a turkey that my mother gave me when I was a little girl about thirteen years old. Although there is quite a difference in the lives of the two fowls, for I remember correctly, the rooster was very mischievous and often got into trouble, for which he was punished, while the turkey was quiet, and I never knew it to get into trouble.

To begin my story properly, my mother set a chicken hen with turkey eggs, and the result was, two little turkeys were hatched. Mother was naturally disappointed that the hatch was so poor, so she very willingly gave them to me, saying, that if I raised them I might have them.

I discarded the old chicken hen and adopted the little turkeys as my pets. I then put them in a box in a sunny place and laid an old soft cloth in one corner for them to crawl under at night, and they were contented and grew rapidly. I made a small yard around the box for them to play in; when they were about a month old, one sickened and died, which was a great disappointment to me and I naturally became more attached to the living one.

Now, I thought it was right and proper for my little pet to have a name, so I called it "Bennie." It was an odd name for a turkey, but not quite so odd then as it appeared a few months later, when I discovered it was a hen, and should have had a girl's name instead of a boy's.

We were raising other turkeys at that time, so, to distinguish Bennie from the rest, I cut off one of his toes. Now my little pet was named and marked and I was very anxious indeed to raise him. The little yard soon became too small and was taken away, which gave him full access to our big yard, but Bennie was not inclined to roam about; he would watch a chance to slip in the house whenever he could, or, if I would go out he would follow me. Did you ever see turkeys catch flies? Well, he did, and we let him in the summer kitchen sometimes just to see him catch them.

My mother had taught me that it was injurious to chickens and especially turkeys, to handle or play with them, so was very careful with respect. About this time we had two little kittens; one was tame and would come about the house, while the other was shy and stayed at the barn; thus the tame kitten and Bennie became great friends and often lay side by side on the door mat; indeed, it became a usual thing to see the kitten lying with its paws over the turkey, and the turkey trying to hide its bill in the kitten's fur. One day, I well remember, I was ironing, and it being very warm, had the doors open. The clothes basket was on the floor beside me, and Bennie and the kitten were playing as usual, which often attracted my attention. The kitten tried to get in the basket, but I would not allow that until I was through ironing, so when I took the last bundle from the basket I turned it over on its side, and in a few minutes both kitten and turkey were having a frolic which was fully as much fun for me as for them.

As time passed on, both pets grew, until Bennie was too large to be allowed to come into the house, and was often driven away from the door, and as a natural consequence, drifted out among the other turkeys and chickens, yet never forgot his playmate (the kitten) or ceased to follow us whenever he got a chance. It was about this time that we concluded I had given him the wrong name for he was growing into a well developed hen.

Bennie's later days were spent among her kind kin, and, instead of roosting in the little box, she perched high on a tree. She never did a bad deed in her life; never stole nor fought, but died as she lived a contented bird; and, I may add that she made a good Thanksgiving dinner, of which we all partook.

My little readers, is there not a lesson in the life of this turkey for us—a lesson of kindness? If animals and fowls can be kind and friendly to each other, is it not more natural that little boys and girls (and grown people too) should be kind, loving, and thoughtful of one another? Yes, God intended it so, for he said "Peace on earth, good will to men."

An Old Maid.

The ancient Greeks believed that the Penates were the gods who attended to the welfare and prosperity of the family. They were worshipped as household gods in every home. The household god of to-day is Dr. King's New Discovery. For consumption, coughs, colds and all affections of Throat, Chest and Lungs it is invaluable. It has been tried for a quarter of a century and is guaranteed to cure, or money returned. No household should be without this good angel. It is pleasant to take and a safe and sure remedy for old and young. Free trial bottles at R. S. McKinney's Drug Store, Taneytown, Md. Regular size 50c and $1.00.

A Story for the Children.

(For the Home Circle.)
According to a promise made to the children, I will now try to tell them one of Aunt Rachel's ghost stories. Once upon a time a certain man died, leaving his home to his only son, John, who employed a woman named Mary, to keep house for him. John, being a young man, would sometimes go away to spend the evenings, but always before going, would tell Mary not to sit up late and to be sure to go to bed before twelve o'clock. But, being busy, she forgot his orders one night and continued sewing until the clock struck twelve, when suddenly a man appeared before her. Now Mary did not faint dead away, but being quite brave, she asked who he was. He said, "I am John's father." Then she asked what it was that disturbed his rest, and made him come back to this earth. He said, "I died with a secret on my mind and I have come back to tell it, so I can rest."

He then told her to take the candle and follow him, asking if she had ever seen a certain barrel in the cellar. "Yes," said she, "John and I have often tried to move it, but could not." He walked straight to the barrel, and moving it quite easily, revealed the hidden treasure, two sacks of gold. Taking one in each hand he walked back to the kitchen, and telling her to keep one for herself and give the other to his son, he said "now I can rest" and disappeared as suddenly as he had come. John soon returned, and finding she had disobeyed his command, asked her if she had seen anyone. Then she told him all she had given him his share of the gold. He had often seen his father at that hour but not having the courage to speak, he had not found out what it was that troubled him. But after that he never came again. So the story goes. Let us hope it is at rest.

Now I will tell about her cats. She has one she calls Toby, and he is a beauty, but when he was a tiny kitten he was very wild, so she was quite anxious to tame him and have him for a pet. As the weather got colder he would come for his food on the porch; then she would have the door open a little and talk baby talk to him. Sometimes she put his pan inside, and so, finally, by being so kind, she coaxed him in the house. Now he often goes in and is a great deal of company for her, but runs away when any one else comes. He is a large gray cat with a white ring around his neck. She also has a black and white spotted kitten that she loves best of all, and calls it "Keedy." You just ought to hear her talking to her pets, but no wonder, for she has no one else to talk to. Now children, I want you to notice what it was that won. It was kindness and patience; she had to wait and work a long time to overcome their natural fear of mankind.

Gutta Serena Cement.

A gutta serena cement for leather is obtained by melting together 100 parts gutta serena, 100 parts asphalt or pitch and 15 parts oil of turpentine. It is to be used hot.

Elastic gutta serena cement, especially for fixing soles to shoes, which does not crack in bending, on account of its great extensibility, is prepared by dissolving 100 parts gutta serena in 100 parts benzine and pouring the solution into 100 parts linseed oil varnish, shaking well. The leather must be roughened before using this cement, in order to insure greater durability. By a case in borax cement a handsome surface glass is imparted to the leather. The borax is dissolved in boiling water and the borax solution poured into freshly prepared cement. The durable thick cement is very serviceable. —Scientific American.

The Largest Income.

Perhaps the largest house in the world is in Wieden, a suburb of Vienna. In this domicile there are 1,400 rooms, divided into 400 suites of from three to six rooms each, and they at present shelter 2,112 persons, who pay an annual rental of over 100,000 francs. —Scientific American.

The Enemy is Ours!

The gripe usually leaves the sufferer in a very feeble condition, with a persistent cough and other preliminary symptoms of pulmonary affection. Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup promptly administered at the beginning of an attack of gripe, will forestall that dangerous enemy to life—consumption. Mrs. Maggie Tulga, Ironton, Ohio, says: "It affords me much pleasure to bear testimony to the merits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. I had been a sufferer from the gripe for a week. I tried a bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, and after taking it, I was completely cured of the dreadful cough and disease. I cheerfully recommend it to all sufferers." Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup is sold everywhere for 25 cents.

Educational Department.

It is the intention to carry on this department during the coming winter, touching at random the different subjects as Arithmetic, Grammar, Civil Geography, Simple Surveying, etc. Contributions, such as problems and their solutions, questions arising in daily life, and coming under the above branches of study, are earnestly solicited. Answers to questions in other studies will be cheerfully given by the special editor of the department whenever possible.

Answers to problems and questions in RECORD of Feb. 19th.
ALGEBRA: (20) The value of x is 3.
ARITHMETIC: (26) Nine and one-twelfth tons.

THE MANURE QUESTION.

Stable Manures and Chemical Fertilizers. Insects That Feed in Manures.

Different soils require different treatment, or, in other words, the fertilizers that one may require, would not be deficient in the other. One soil may be deficient in lime, another in potash, while the third may be thirsting for nitrogen, and for special purposes every one is determined for himself according to his own situation and circumstances what the needs of his soil are for the crops he is to produce.

It is generally supposed the barnyard furnishes the best plant food, and at the least cost. American Gardening says in this connection: This may or may not be true. All depends upon the crops to be grown. If only such are grown as desire a free supply of nitrogenous matter, it will do, but plants must have certain mineral substances, some of which seem necessary to both as stimulants or condiments and which act upon and with the food in fitting it for use. Soil fertility will become impaired by the constant use of stable manure, where cultivated crops are steadily grown, and the same is true with chemical fertilizers, which impoverish the soil by not keeping up the balance of humus. The stable manure does not furnish the minerals, and the chemical fertilizers do not furnish the humus required for the plants. Consequently with a more than liberal application of either the soil does not yield as abundantly as it would do if given the kind of food the plants require and as they want it. It therefore follows that the two kinds must be used together in order to get the best results.

Insects are found in the greatest abundance in decaying animal or vegetable matter, their mission being to consume such. Besides that, while fermentation is the more rapid, the heat being favorable to the hatching of the eggs and the development of the larva. These will always be present where there is manure, but they will be far less numerous where the manure is thoroughly rotted before it is applied to the soil.

The insect question has many sides. The majority of insects do not come because of the manure applied, but because of the crops that are to be grown. Every vegetable has its insect enemy. The brassica has its caterpillar, the asparagus its beetle, the onion its maggot, the squash and potato their own bugs. When any insect finds its feeding ground it will immediately establish a colony in anticipation of a returning crop of the coming season. Should the progeny find it will not only destroy, but again deposit their eggs, from which the larvae will develop for the destruction of yet another crop. To thwart their purposes a rotation of crops will become necessary, and in most instances this will prove an effective remedy.

OLD FASHIONED DISHES.

How to Prepare Simple Food That Is Not to Be Scolded At.

Salted mackerel, such as is usually served in restaurants, makes a most appetizing dish for any luncheon or Sunday night tea. Instead of broiling the fish, after it has been well freshened with water to a spidery platter filled with water to which have been added a bay leaf, half a dozen pepper corns, three cloves, a slice of onion and a sprig of vinegar. When the fish is cooked, place it upon a heated platter and pour around it a well seasoned cream dressing, or the freshened mackerel may be boiled in equal parts of milk and cream. When the fish is cooked, put it upon the dish it is to be served upon and set it where it will keep hot. Put over the fire in a small saucepan a heaping tablespoonful of butter, and as soon as it is melted stir into it a level spoonful of flour. Then gradually stir into this the liquid in which the fish has been cooked. Season with a little cayenne pepper, and when the dressing has thickened strain it over the cooked fish. Sprinkle chopped parsley over the whole and serve at once.

Pork and parsnips may not sound very inviting, but, properly prepared, are one of the most delicious of dishes. Clean Pork of the size desired, score the rind and place it, meat side down, in a dry saucepan. Turn the parsnips into long lengths and place them with the pork. Add a small amount of water, cover the vessel closely and place it over a slow fire. Cook until the meat and vegetables are tender. Remove the cover so that if there is any liquid left it may evaporate and the vegetables take on a golden color. Turn the pork, putting the rind side to the bottom of the vessel, and let it become well browned. Then place it in a hot platter and arrange the parsnips around the meat.

Picked up codfish, prepared in an appetizing manner, is not an inexpensive fish, as many consider it. Indeed, a housekeeper who excelled in making delicious dishes of salt cod, when asked to "give us creamed codfish for luncheon, it's cheap," replied, "Porterhouse steaks are just as cheap." For 2 cups of picked fish take about 3 cups of milk and cream. Put the fish in a saucepan and cover it with cold water. Let pan and cover heat slowly to the boiling point, then drain it all off and add a cup each of cream and milk. Again put the fish over the fire and heat. Roll a piece of butter the size of an egg in flour and mix them together. Gradually add to the butter three parts of a cup of cream and stir into the cream mixture, stirring them thoroughly together. Season the fish with pepper and turn it upon a platter holding squares of buttered toast. Place slices of hard boiled eggs over the top. Condensed milk is an excellent substitute for cream.

The deep apple pie of former days, known as "pan dowdy," is most excellent. Take a deep earthen dish that will hold about three quart. Peel, quarter and core enough tart apples to fill this dish to the top. Sprinkle over the apples half a cup of sugar and a cup of molasses and a very little cinnamon. Pour over the whole half a cup of water. Cover the top with a pie crust about as thick as for a chicken pie. Place the dish in a slow oven and bake about 2 1/2 hours. When the pie is taken from the oven, take a silver spoon and break the crust into the apples in several places. Then let it stand a couple of hours before serving.

CANDY CATHARTIC

ALL DRUGGISTS

FOR ELECTRICAL STUDENTS.

A Dynamo Designed to Be Used for Experimental Purposes. A new design of dynamo for experimental purposes is manufactured by the Institute For Home Study of Engineering of Cleveland for its students. It is a high grade commercial machine, adapted to experimental work, the idea in furnishing such a machine being that after the student has finished his course he can use it for ordinary and any work. When the student reaches that part of his course treating of dynamo construction, he receives the machine, with every part finished, and with all the materials for winding—i. e., making the armature complete, putting on and connecting the field coils.

This work is a part of the electrical course of the institute. When completed, the student uses the machine experimentally during the remainder of his course. The armature is of the drum type, with laminated core. The commutator is long, in order that collector rings for taking off currents uncommutated, in from one to four phases, may be slipped on it, together with the new set of brushes required. When operated as an alternating current machine, it excites its own fields.

The range of experimental use is wide. The machines have been found to be so well adapted for instruction purposes that they are now in use in a number of schools and colleges. The teachers of electricity find that the practice of winding and collecting the machine is of great value to the students. —Electrical Review.

Never "Broke" Again. An Inexpensive Young Man Who Will Always Have a Dollar in His Pocket. "Quer things happen at funerals," said a clergyman recently who has officiated at many, "and I remember one occasion which impressed me greatly on account of the standing of the family in which it happened, as well as from the peculiar circumstances surrounding the incident—the bestowal of money on a dead man."

The narrator was urged to relate the story, and on the promise that no names would be mentioned he continued: "It was a funeral at the house of one of my parishioners, and I was greatly surprised when I received notice to attend and conduct the services. I had not heard of any member of the family being ill, nor had I been summoned to the funeral, but I jumped to the conclusion that it was an old servant who had died."

"It proved to be a lad son—the black sheep of the family—whose shadow had not darkened their doors for years, but who, it was always believed, had been supported at a distance far enough to prevent him from disgracing the family by his misdeeds."

"Now he was brought home dead, and I was expected to officiate at his funeral, and as much praise was consistent with the dignity of my office and his relation to the family."

"I need not go into that part of the ceremonies, but come to what I consider the real expression of feeling which consecrated the memory of the man as nothing that I said could have done."

"Just before the casket was closed his old mother arose from her seat with the mourners, and, approaching the dead, slipped a silver dollar into his vest pocket."

"Jim never liked to be without money in his pocket," she said, with a low, tremulous voice. "Mary the dollar I've slipped into his pocket unbeknown to him, but he always found it and was thankful. I don't expect he's going to need it now, and maybe he'll never know that mother put it there, but somehow I shall feel better if he has it."

"And I felt that the woman who had loved much and forgiven much had preached a sermon of forgiveness and mercy before which I with my platitudes must remain dumb." —Chicago Times-Herald.

A Composite Monument. At the Pennsylvania State college, Center county, Pa., a column has been erected which is composed of 281 samples of building stones procured from 139 localities in the state. The base block is of conglomerate 6 by 6 by 2.5 feet, the base of the column is 5 feet square, the height of column is 22.7 feet, and the weight 25.4 tons. This edifice, constructed by the School of Mines, forms a comprehensive display of the natural resources of the state in structural materials geologically arranged. It is a prospecting guide to the explorer for stone and furnishes a comparative test of its durability by an equal exposure of all the quarry products to atmospheric influences. —Scientific American.

Random Thoughts on the Life of the Great Sculptor.

Prepared for the RECORD by "Hey."

PART IV.

He showed, in an off-hand way the manner in which modeling is managed. He then severed a small lump of clay from the general mass, and worked it about for a minute or two in his hands, and said quickly, "Here goes." Then commenced a spectacle which had all the interest of the most attractive novelty.

Instantly, as if impelled by some sudden inspiration, his fingers began to move with wonderful grace and rapidity; his eyes flashed, the amorphous lump of clay, as if by magic, began to assume shape and beauty. Ever finer grew the shape; ever more perfect the beauty; ever more gracefully moved the plastic fingers, until in a space of time incredibly short for so delicate and difficult an operation, the model was finished, the creation was complete, and out sprang a perfect crested head of Minerva. She burst into existence from the hands of our young American sculptor.

He evinced the same kind of enthusiastic rapidity in modeling, as did Michael Angelo, chiseling. An eminent writer says: "Michael Angelo worked hard after he had passed his sixtieth year, and, although he was not very robust, he cut away as many scales as from a block of very hard marble in a quarter of an hour as three young sculptors would have affected in three or four hours—a thing almost incredible to one who had not actually witnessed it."

Such was the impetuosity and fire with which Mr. Rinehart pursued his labor. With a single stroke he brought down fragments of the clay three or four fingers thick, and so close upon his mark that he passed, even in the slightest degree, there would have been danger of his ruining the whole.

Mr. Francis Mayer, and the Maryland artist from "Sam's Creek," were very close friends. Not an atom of envy or jealousy appeared to exist between them. Each seemed to admire the other's particular art more than which he himself practised. One had travelled among the Indians, the other had resided in Italy; both produced noteworthy works of art. One possessed the power of fashioning intractable marble into life-like form and attitudes; the other could make his conceptions visible on the canvas. Mr. Mayer executed the fine painting which is known and admired as "The Thunder-dance of the Dakotas."

One of Mr. Rinehart's favorite subjects was a little child falling to sleep on the grassy margin of a stream into which she had been dropping flower after flower until overcome with slumber.

It was in the summer of 1866, that the writer saw the American sculptor in his father's residence, and will relate the incidents attending his very brief stay, and his pleasant manner in accepting—what many would think—rather shabby treatment.

Mr. Israel Rinehart, Sr., more familiarly known as "Grandpap," at that time resided in a fine large brick building at Union Bridge. A short time after the death of Mrs. Rinehart Mr. and Mrs. H., a newly wedded couple, were induced to take a suite of rooms in the house. Mrs. H., was to care for "Grandpap" and his rooms as he had no female relative that could take charge of his home, so he was all alone.

The old gentleman was a little eccentric—some said, penurious—but he was one of those healthy, hard-tolling, care-saving farmers who believed in "looking after the pennies, and the dollars would take care of themselves." He never was physically idle. He had an aversion to professions, as he thought they savored of idleness, dissipation and extravagance.

He had no mind to appreciate art, or fame. He only fancied the tilling of the soil, and its returns. "Grandpap" lived on the very plainest of food, served in a simple manner. He greatly disliked style, or any attempts at table decorations, as my story will show. He never indulged in luxuries although he had ample means and opportunity to do so.

Never pull in your Sign.

In all towns where a newspaper is published, every man should advertise in it, if nothing more than a card stating his name and the business he is engaged in. It nearly always pays the advertiser, and besides lets the people at a distance know that the town in which you live is a prosperous community of business men and that the people may settle in it with a chance to make a living. Never pull in your sign in a home paper upon you expect to do business.—"Peter Cooper."

Counterfeit Two-Dollar Note.

A counterfeit two-dollar note was received at the United States Sub-Treasury Baltimore, on Wednesday, among a large number of genuine notes of various denominations deposited. It was detected by Mr. H. V. Bouie, assistant assenting teller. The counterfeit was a representation of the Window silver certificate of the series of 1891, and officials at the sub-treasury said that it is the best counterfeit note which has been received for a long time. The numbers are very good, and the general work is very good. Mr. Bouie detected the counterfeit in the portrait of the ex-Secretary of the United States Treasury William Windom. The eyes being rather hazy instead of clear and perfect, as shown in the genuine. The seal was also found to be a little defective upon close inspection. The counterfeit is so good that it would probably pass very readily except among expert money examiners. The note was among a lot of money received from one of the city banks, and was promptly returned to the bank upon its discovery.—American.

The Navy Would do Most of the Fighting.

The New York Herald, in an article on what might happen in case of war with Spain, says: The advanced base of operations for Spain would be Cuba, this of the United States would be Key West. Cuba is the largest of the West Indies group and the most important of Spain's possessions. It lies at the mouth of the Gulf of Mexico, 130 miles south of the state of Florida, and 75 miles from the harbor of Key West, from which it is separated by the Florida straits. On the east the island is separated from Hayti by the Windward Passage, less than fifty miles in width; on the south ninety miles of Caribbean Sea flow between it and the island of Jamaica, and on the west the Yucatan channel, 130 miles wide, separates it from Yucatan, the nearest land of Central America.

At the northwestern end of Cuba are the Straits of Florida, about 130 miles wide, and the Yucatan channel on the west, about a hundred miles wide. To operate in the Florida straits the base would have to be a line-connecting Havana and Matanzas, forty-five miles long. The two cities, the salients, are the most important strategically and commercially of the whole island.

Havana, the capital, is the key to the island, but its defenses now are like those of the other parts of Cuba, old and vulnerable, mounting no guns capable of injuring a modern armored ship. Havana is practically defenseless, although it should have been made, by harbor and coast defense, not only an impregnable base of operations, but also a base of supplies, a secure depot, where men, ships, stores and reserves could have been distributed wherever needed.

Mantanzas, the other terminus of this western base line, is a much smaller city than Havana, its population being only 70,000. The entrance channel is four miles long and a mile wide, defended by three ancient batteries.

The duty of the United States navy will be the reduction of Havana and the principal seaports, the blockade of Cuba and Porto Rico, the equipment of the insurgents, the destruction of Spanish commerce and the defense of our bases of supplies and other home ports. These are work of tremendous magnitude, and will demand many activities. Sea battles will have to be fought before Havana falls, and to this we can bring all the ships of the battle fleet not needed for coast protection.

Should an army be ordered into Cuba, Tampa, Pensacola, Mobile, New Orleans, Savannah and Jacksonville will give us many good ports of departure. The enormous railway facilities of the country will enable the government to distribute 100,000 men in these ports within eight working days—not volunteers eager with patriotism and burning to serve their country, but well-armed, disciplined and trained officers and troops.

Good for Croup.

Mr. Geo. W. Bolton, of Centerville, Md., says: "I have recently used in my family, for adults and children, both Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. They are certainly most valuable, and no household is complete without them. I have found the Cough Remedy especially useful in croup and the Diarrhoea Remedy acts like a charm in all disorders of the bowels." For sale by R. S. McKinney, Taneytown, Md.

A Trip to Annapolis.

Having been selected as a delegate to attend the Good Roads State Convention, which met at Annapolis on February 24th, in company with Mr. T. H. Eckenrode, whom we found to be a most agreeable travelling companion, we boarded the train at Taneytown on the evening of February 23rd, for Baltimore. Upon our arrival at Baltimore, we found the people of the State were in contact with quite a number of Carroll county's citizens, such as B. F. Crouse, Chas. E. Fink, School Commissioner Shafer and many others, whose names we are not able to mention, as of whom seemed to be somewhat anxious with regard to the appointments about to be made.

In conversation with these gentlemen, and through the daily papers, it did not take us long to find out that the managers of the several public improvement projects of the State were still actively at work, demanding appropriations. Only just the day before, Western Maryland College, which already has asked for $7,700 annually, asked for another appropriation of $8,000. The Johns Hopkins University has also asked for $100,000; their expense account asking the large amount is that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, their main supports has failed to pay their regular dividends, and consequently they were compelled to ask the aid of the State. We very well remember at the time when the request of Mr. Hopkins was made, that the Baltimore papers boasted that the securities were of the solid and substantial kind.

Wherever we went, this subject of extravagance was being discussed, and when we would ask the question, "Why is it all allowed to go on?" the answer was, that it has "got into politics" and will never be stopped until it is gotten out. It was not unusual to hear one say, "That is all right, but if we outvote these fellows we will defeat the party, and that must be considered before anything else."

By this time the train was due to be expected to bring the Carroll county delegation, which was fully represented, with one exception. We wended our way to the State House which had become crowded by this time, on account of the Pratt-Praet contest, which was to be decided by the House of Delegates on that day. It was a long time before the train was before us for consideration; they were there of Senators Day and Randall, Mr. Day took the floor and plead for his bill, but it was not long before he had substituted Randall's bill for Day's; it seemed to suit the managers better. They soon had two sections of this bill passed, but at this juncture it became evident that they were railroad every thing through to suit themselves, not allowing any discussion, which they had guaranteed in the beginning, by giving each member present, five minutes in which to give his views. Some of the members told them of this, and also tried to show them that the idea of purchasing a stone-crusher, and locating it near the House of Correction, in order to employ the prisoners in quarrying and crushing stone for the purpose of supplying the other counties with stone to build roads, was not feasible. The convention adopted this view of the case, and the managers soon found that they were in the hands of men that were not in politics, and the whole bill was defeated.

They then asked permission to appoint a committee of seven, to be named by the chairman, in order to formulate a bill in accordance with the expressed wish of the convention. This was granted and the president appointed the committee, naming Joseph L. Haines, of this county, as chairman of the committee, who is especially well known to the members of the Governor, who had come in sometime before, now addressed the convention; he hoped that they would come to some reasonable conclusion with regard to the roads; he dwelt especially on the question of personal property evading taxation; said that the last assessment bill was expected to bring millions into the treasury, but somehow personal property evades taxation. He also warned the legislature against making extravagant appropriations and then stated. The Governor was applauded when he made his appearance in the court room, and once or twice while making his address.

THE ROLLER ON THE FARM.

Instructive Statements Concerning Its Effect Upon Soil Moisture. "After the plow I consider the roller the most necessary implement on a farm. As a moisture benefactor, however, it plays its part in the spring only." This statement is made by a writer in the National Stockman. The following remarks are also good and worth reading. How should the soil be in its condition for the growing plant? Say we have plowed 8 inches. Of these, beginning from the surface, 1 to 1 1/2 inches loose soil should prevail, then 4 to 5 inches compact—not compact with lumps or clods, but solid with a once loosened soil. The rest should be in a mellow, loose condition. This is necessary because the rays of the sun striking on the loosened surface and penetrating to the compact part will draw every particle of moisture from below, following the theory of capillary attraction. The moisture will remain in the 4 or 5 inches compact part, as it cannot disappear or evaporate through the loosened surface, which acts as a seal. Take wheat, for example, the seed of which falls two to three inches from the surface. It will therefore come into the compact part, has a good mold of earth around it, and its tender roots will spread easily, having always moisture if there be any in the subsoil. Now let us see how we go to work in the fall if we approve of above theory. Say we have a corn stubble; we wish to put in wheat and timothy (sowing the clovers, of course, in the spring). Nature has done its work of compacting, counting from surface five or six inches; we need therefore only loosen and smooth this surface with a harrow. Then we will seed. Seeding is finished. The frost having left the ground in the spring, every farmer will notice the soil has lifted, has risen, and when completely dry will fall back and sink. There is where the roller plays its grand part. Should nature be allowed to take its course by the sinking of the soil 25 per cent of the little wheat and timothy roots will be torn away from the seed.

As soon as we find the frost gone and the ground in a fairly dry condition we top dress with nitrate of soda and sow the clovers, covering the latter with the roller instead of brushing. As I do not approve of a smooth surface on account of whirlwinds, etc., I have found the T bar roller perfection. This roller breaks in bars, rolls or compacts only 1 1/2 inches of the surface, leaving 1 3/4 inches untouched. The land, therefore, has obtained an perfect condition, one could desire, with but little expense. The roller is not necessary for intensive farming alone, but equally advantageous for the bonanza wheat farms of the west.

A Good Thing Cheap.

Clover seed is generally considered a good investment for the farmer at any price within reason. It should therefore be an exceedingly good one at present. There is no telling what the future of this or any market may bring forth, but it seems reasonable to believe that now is as good a time as any to lay in a supply of clover seed. And it may be well to buy a goodly quantity—enough next spring and another sowing. There is not much chance of loss, and the man who has plenty of seed is apt to sow liberally, to the benefit of himself and his land. Get clover seed, sow clover seed and have clover pasture, clover hay and clover land is as good as gold in the crop line as can be given to American farmers.—National Stockman.

Disatisfied.

Some People's Solly.

Why some persons will suffer with the excruciating pangs of rheumatism, when they can be so easily cured by that greatest of pain-cures, Salvation Oil, is past human comprehension. That Salvation Oil does cure rheumatism is evidenced by Mr. G. F. Schriener, Pierce, Neb., who says: "I have used Salvation Oil and think there is no liniment on earth like it. I had the rheumatism for several months and could get no relief until I used Salvation Oil, two bottles of which effected a cure, and I feel as well as ever. No home should be without it." Salvation Oil is sold everywhere for 25 cents. When dealers offer a substitute beware, you'll be victimized. Insist on having the best, Salvation Oil.

Dangerous Occupations. The results of professional study of the dangerous occupations, or those which give rise to more or less serious disease, show that almost every calling has some ailment peculiar to itself and arising from almost inevitable causes, direct or remote. It is found that sleepers, owing to their irregular life, and because of the hot air and dust, often become victims to consumption. Blacksmiths, though strong, very often suffer from paralysis of the whole right side from the continuous shock of hammering, and their eyes become weak from the glare of the fire. Bricklayers and plasterers commonly enjoy fine health. Carpenters and joiners are liable to have varicose veins in the legs, and the action of the shoulder in sawing and planing may produce a diseased condition of the large artery that runs from the heart to the arm. Miners, from working in the dark, acquire weak eyes, and their lungs become quite black.
