In mansions, oh, so fair. Fit us, like her, to go: Or fit us, Lord, to stay That we may walk with Thee below, Or up the silent way.

So often we have heard; But loving hearts are weeping. For our dear Edith is dead. Farewell, my parents, I'm at rest, And shall forever be. I could not stay with you on earth,

We listen for her footsteps,

But you can come to me. We walk to thy lovely grave, In the pleasant summer hours; We speak thy name in softened voice, And cover thy grave with flowers.
