(For the Home Circle.) Good-bye, old year, good-bye. For soon you'll pass away, And your records unchanged stand, Until eternal day.

Just twelve short months ago, We bade you welcome here: And bells rang merrily

For you, the bright New Year Your hands were filled with gifts, For each and every one. The promise on your lips Was fairest 'neath the sun. But now yov're old and gray, Your form is bent and weak, Your eyes are dim with age, Wan is your faded cheek. Along thy way, Old Year. Full many a sorrow fell, And yet we feel regret, To hear thy dying knell, We dare not chide thee now;

Hark ! hear the parting bell; Peace to thy memory; Farewell, old year, farewell. For lo! in the rosy gleam, Of the early New Year's day. The watchers see the lovely form
