Excellent peaches are selling here at 50c per crate.

Warren Hill, of Baltimore, is home on a week's vacation, visiting his parents.

Mrs. T. H. Eckenrode is on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Jennie Peters, in Middletown, Pa.

Mr. and Mrs. Luther C. Hawk and son Ralph, of York, Pa., are at home on a visit to Mr. Hawk's parents.

John Newcomer, Sr., has purchased the Fink property, near Copperville, and will remove to it next spring.

Mr. U. L. Reaver and family, of Westminster, have been visiting his brother, Mr. E. K. Reaver, this place, during the week.

Edward S. Harner has sold his small farm, near Bethel church, to George F. Bowers, who will take possession next spring.

Jeremiah J. Garner has accepted a position with a large dairy, at Waynesboro, Pa., and reports that the work is likely to be congenial.

A mistake occurs in F. M. Yount's advertisement of mouse traps, in his new ad on second page. The word "fine," should be "tin."

Ten new names were added to our subscription list this week, several of which came from the extension of the Rural Delivery service on Routes No. 37 and 40.

The average temperature for August was 75°; highest 89°, lowest 56°; total precipitation 5.90 inches; thunder storms 9 days; clear days 9, part cloudy 14, cloudy 8.

The John E. Smith property, on Middle St., extended, was purchased by Samuel P. Sterner, last week, who will take possession very soon and enter the butchering business.

The Lonaconing town council has ordered that all hog pens in the town "must go." The mountaineers evidently have the nerve to do the right thing, regardless of "kickers."

Rev. H. Max Lentz, of Shepherdstown, W. Va., was here several days this week, and returned home on Wednesday, accompanied by Mrs. Lentz, who has been on a visit to her mother, Mrs. John Fair.

The farm formerly owned by the late Emanuel Lambert, was sold, on Thursday, by J. Henry Lambert and Wm. H. Knox, attorneys for the heirs, to William G. Fessler, who will gain possession, April 1st, 1902.

The Fire Company and Drum Corps will give a street drill and parade, this Friday evening, at 6.30. This will be the first public appearance of the Drum Corps. The regular monthly meeting of the Company will be held after the parade.

Mr. S. H. Stultz, wife and daughter, Miss Bessie, entertained, on Sunday last, Mr. James A. Long, wife and daughter, Miss Pease, and Master Stanley, of Littleton. Mr. Henry Seigfried, of Hanover, arrived at the same place to spend a while.

Rev. R. H. Williams, formerly of Uniontown, but latterly of Iowa City, Iowa, paid our town a visit last Sunday and Monday. Rev. Williams has accepted an offer from the Home Mission Board (Lutheran) to work in Oklahoma, and will soon leave for this field.

Our streets usually strike the average visitor as being noisy, especially between the square and railroad, and this is true, considering the size of the place. One afternoon this week, thirty-two wagons were on this section of street at one time, the most of which were after fertilizer.

Rev. S. G. Hefelbower, who recently resigned the Frothingham Lutheran charge for the purpose of going to Germany to take a special course in Theology and Philosophy, paid Rev. C. A. Britt and the Editor a friendly call, last Friday. He will sail for the "Fatherland" in about two weeks.

The following item is from the Union Bridge Pilot, of last week: "Isaac L. Rount, formerly of here, sold his horse some months ago on leaving here, to a Mr. Buffington, in Taneytown, and Emory Stoner, of near there, bought it from Buffington. Mr. Rount's father, Wm. Rount, near here, says it was his horse and only loaned to his son and recovered the horse from Stoner. Stoner and Buffington then got the horse back from William Rount upon a legal point that substantially made them the rightful owners by the purchase made in the first place, and there the case ended last week."

Some Pointers About the Whale. No one has yet been enabled to make out why the whale was constructed on the large and liberal plan of a two million dollar city hall, but we must take him as we find him and look with wonder and amazement at his vast proportions. He needs a harbor more than half as big as he is to be boss of the Atlantic and other oceans, but as there was room for him to keep on growing and it didn't cost a cent he went in for bulk and made a success of it.

The whale when left at peace is good natured, obliging and seldom out of temper. He knows he can lick anything he may come across, and he is not foolish enough to let a codfish or a flounder provoke him out of his dignity. He just goes swimming up and down the sea from Sunday morning to Saturday night, and if there is anything good going he grabs on to it.

It is an ideal life, with nothing to do and the whole ocean to do it in, and it is no wonder that the over-worked elephant sometimes complains of his hard lot. It is only when man goes forth to hunt the leviathan for his oil to grease up the grindstone that the big fish displays the other side of his character. Ticked with harpoons, plagued by lances and harassed by bombs he backs into a corner and fights to the death.

It is said by some naturalists that whales are subject to various diseases and that leviathans with the asthma, rheumatism, and other ailments, are not so much to be met with now and then, but even if this be so no one need pity them. A whale is big enough to take care of himself, no matter what tackles him, and he always has cod liver oil on tap to use as a remedy.

A Kansas Wheat King.

The land rentals of John T. Stewart, of Sumner County, Kan., will amount to nearly one hundred thousand bushels of wheat this year. In his home county he owns 115 quarter sections of land and about thirty quarter sections in adjoining counties. He rents the lands on the basis of half bushels per acre, and he has secured and taking chances of securing a crop.

It is estimated that if the wheat due him on rentals this year was shipped on consignment it would require seventeen freight trains of fifteen cars each to take it to the market. His rentals in wheat last year netted him $45,000. In addition to owning about $350,000 worth of land, every foot of it paid for, he has nearly $250,000 worth of bank stock and $300,000 invested in Kansas lands in Sumner County and Oklahoma.

About twenty-five years ago Mr. Stewart began life as a clerk in an obscure office at $80 a month. He made his money as a real estate agent in other ways. He began loaning money in Sumner County about twenty years ago, and has developed a large family of children. He is said that his ambition is to finally own a railroad, and he may gratify it, as he is still a young man, not more than 40 years of age. He is a small, round man, with his account books in his pocket, and it is said that he can take it out at any hour of the day when required and account for it exactly what his accounts of his vast transactions are always kept in a book that fits his trousers pocket.

It is said that he lives on less than $100 a month, and that outside of this his largest annual expense is $500 to the Methodist church. He is a large family of children attend. He is not fond of traveling, except to go to a Democratic convention—a diversion he is passionately fond of. He is a successful business man, and, it is said, believes in the prohibition laws of Kansas.

The great Wellington cyclone of 1882 played high and absolutely pelted him to the gable end of a barn and kept him stuck to it for more than half a minute, as if he was the picture of a man. When the tornado had passed he dropped to the ground and landed on his feet without a scratch.

Does it Pay to Buy Cheap? A cheap remedy for coughs and colds is all right, but you want something that will relieve and cure the more severe and dangerous results of throat and lung troubles. What shall you do? Go to a cheap remedy, or to a regular climate? Yes, if possible; if not possible for you, then in either case take the ONLY remedy that has been introduced in this country with success in severe throat and lung troubles, "Boschee's German Syrup." It not only heals and stimulates the tissues to destroy the germ disease, but always inflammation, causes easy expectoration, gives a good night's rest, and cures the patient. Try one bottle. Recommended by many years by all druggists in the world. Get Green's Prize Almanac. R. S. McKinney, Taneytown, Md.

Catonsville and the villages surrounding it are soon to be lighted by electricity. Subscriptions are being received by Mr. Arthur C. Montell, cashier of the First National Bank of Catonsville, and all owners of nearly every business house in Catonsville, as well as most of the large residences have signified their intention of using the electric light. The Patuxent Electric and Manufacturing Company, which has acquired the old Gray's Mill property, on the Patuxent river, near Elkton City, will furnish the power. The mill is being put in shape now for the installation of machinery and the poles and wires will be put up within the next few weeks.

CONSEL ADVICE OF A FATHER. Counsel That All Young Men Entering Business Should Read. "My son," said the fond but wise parent, "you are leaving me to go out into the world. I have nothing to give you but my advice. Never tell a lie. If you wish to put in circulation, get it published. A lie cannot live, but it takes one a blamed long time to fade out of print.

"Always read your contract. A man might consider he was getting a sinners' share for a man, but when he sees water in a china jug is cream sauce; in a pull on the sidewalk it is billsticker's complaint.

"Don't forget that there's a time for everything and that everything should be done in its proper time. Never hunt for bargains in umbrellas on a rainy day.

"You may make enemies. If you know who they are, don't mention them. Silence is golden. It saves the money that might otherwise be spent in defending a libel suit. If you don't know who they are, well, abuse lavished on a concealed enemy is like charity indiscriminately bestowed. It's a good thing wasted."—New York Commercial Advertiser.

As She Saw It. Mrs. Kleener—What is the matter with you this evening, John, that you ain't smoking? Mr. Kleener—The doctor says I mustn't. He says I must stop smoking or die.

Mrs. Kleener—Oh, I'm so glad! You won't be scenting up my curtains any more, will you?—Boston Transcript.

Second Class Mail Matter. Failing to get suitable corrective legislation to establish a fairly remunerative rate for the carriage of second class mail matter, the officials of the postoffice department have determined to rectify some patent abuses by adopting stricter measures of classification. Fake publications circulated for merely speculative or advertising purposes, books published in serial form to escape full postage, and merely merchandising devices with which the mails are burdened will hereafter be either excluded or properly rated. This is a step which the department should have taken years ago.—Philadelphia Record.

Pinheads of a Past Age. The announcement of King Edward's coronation to occur next June was made with all of the ceremony of the middle ages. It would have been much nearer in keeping with the spirit of the times if the announcement had been made in the "special notice" columns of the daily newspapers. Herald and pursuivants and kings at arms are a lot of rubbish belonging to an era that became ancient and obsolete when daily newspapers and telegrams came into existence.—Savannah News.

BRICKS WITHOUT STRAW.

Shadows of time, how the days go by—May seem strange, but you'll see it's so—After I tell you the reason why—Working in a brickyard, some say you And a lot of us have to do: Mixed in the trouble and worry and strife, The brick and the other things of life, Scattered in the hopes and the pains and fears, Worried the mud with his sweat and his tears, Found the mud and the other things of life, "Poor brick!" said the man, "but I have no straw!"

Up to his knees in the mire pit, A penny's way, but a giant's grit; The brick was a chain of clanking ashes, Lifting the mold with its earthen cakes; It was as lame he could hardly kneel; And so stiff it would clog a plow And couldn't be stirred with a wheel now; It was as short as the days were long; Nothing seemed right, but everything wrong; "But I can do," said the man, "but, please, You can't make brick when you have no straw!"

Taskmaster pitiless lashed the man, "Can't!" cried Weakness, but Courage cried, "Can!" "Don't!" said Despair, but Duty cried, "Do!" "All right," said the man, "I'll worry her through!"

Can't do much, and I reckon you'll see The man who has a ready eye on to her; Ain't nigh so good as I know I could make If I just had straw; but you'll have to take The best I can do for the work's own sake."

He finished his tale of brick and then he looked on to rest, and the best of him looked on his perfect work and saw He had spoiled the brick he had put in straw. —Robert J. Burdette.

GREYHOUNDS.

They Are the Fleetest of All Four Footed Animals. Comparatively few people realize of what remarkable speed dogs are capable. Some remarkable statistics in regard to this have been gathered by M. Dusolier, a French scientist.

After pointing out the marvelous endurance shown by the greyhound and pointer hours while the latter are riding on bicycles or in carriages, he says that certain great endurance is shown by certain wild animals that are akin to dogs.

Thus the wolf can run between 50 and 60 miles in one night, and an Arctic fox can do quite as well, if not better.

Nansen met one of these foxes on the ice at a point more than 70 miles northwest of the Sannikov territory, which is 480 miles from the Asiatic coast. Eskimo and Siberian dogs can travel 45 miles on the ice in five hours, and one team of Eskimo dogs traveled 6 1/2 miles in 2 1/2 minutes.

According to M. Dusolier, the speed of the shepherd dogs and those used in hunting ranges from 10 to 15 yards a second. English setters and pointers hunt at the rate of 18 to 19 miles an hour, and they can maintain this speed for at least two hours.

Foxhounds are extraordinarily swift, as is proved by the fact that a dog of this breed once beat a thoroughbred horse, covering four miles in 6 1/2 minutes, which was at the rate of nearly 18 yards a second.

Greyhounds are the swiftest of all four footed creatures, and their speed may be regarded as equal to that of carrier pigeons. English greyhounds, which are carefully selected and which are used for coursing, are able to cover at full gallop a space between 18 and 23 yards every second.

How great an achievement this is may be judged from the fact that a thoroughbred horse rarely if ever exceeds 10 yards. Moreover, it is said that a hare at its greatest speed never goes faster than at the rate of 18 yards.

These interesting statistics are exciting much comment among sportsmen and other lovers of dogs, and the opinion is unanimous that M. Dusolier has fully proved the right of the greyhound to rank as the swiftest of the quadrupeds. Express engines only surpass them.—London Mail.

Tentative Interment. A poor Frenchwoman lay dying, and her husband sat by her bedside. After a time the wife took her husband's hand and said: "John, we're going to part. I have been a gude wife to ye, haven't I?" John thought a moment.

"Well, just middling like, Jenny, ye know," anxious not to say too much. Again the wife spoke.

"John," she said faintly, "ye man promise to bury me in the auld kirkyard at Stravon beside my mither. I could na rest in peace among uncivil folk in the dirt and smoke o' Glasgie."

"Weel, weel, Jenny, my woman," said John soothingly, "we'll just try ye in Glasgie first, an gin ye dinna be quiet we'll try ye in Stravon."—Spare Moments.

He Didn't Complain. Young Wife—This talk about men being so impatient when a woman is getting ready to go anywhere is all nonsense. Friend—Doesn't your husband complain at all? Young Wife—No, indeed! Why, last evening I couldn't find my gloves and had a long hunt for half a dozen other things, and yet when I was finally dressed and went down stairs to my husband there he was by the fire smoking and smoking as calmly as if I wasn't half an hour late.

Friend—Well, I declare! Where were you going? Young Wife—To prayer meeting.—New York Weekly.

As She Saw It. Mrs. Kleener—What is the matter with you this evening, John, that you ain't smoking? Mr. Kleener—The doctor says I mustn't. He says I must stop smoking or die.

Mrs. Kleener—Oh, I'm so glad! You won't be scenting up my curtains any more, will you?—Boston Transcript.

SOME ARMY NAMES.

Luster Shed Upon Them by Successive Generations. There are old "army names" in this country as well as in other and more military lands—such names, for instance, as those of Lee, McDowell and McCook. But at the present day we have a new crop of army names, presenting in certain instances rather remarkable coincidences. It is a curious fact that there are now four Captain Lawtons in the United States regular army; all young men, not one of whom we believe, is related to the late General Henry W. Lawton, who made the name illustrious in Cuba and the Philippines. One of these, Captain Louis B. Lawton, is to be retired for desperate wounds received in battle in China, where he distinguished himself not only for extraordinary heroism, but for sagacious action in a dangerous situation. After an exceptionally brilliant service he must now give up his chosen career because of these honorable wounds. In any other country extraordinary heroism would be rewarded with a pension, but here it is laid on the shelf at a stipend barely sufficient to support a family and must either live in the obscurest poverty or else adopt a new profession and "hustle" for advancement in it. At a disadvantage as compared with every other man who have had a good start.

Of the five Lees on the list, active or retired, only one is a Virginian and three are northern men. The McDowells are extinct in the army, but two of the "McCooks" still hold the "C" and the "Me" are heavily represented on the army list: the list of American officers, indeed, fairly bristles with Celtic patronyms—with O'Briens and O'Sheas, with Murphys and Quins, Moriartys and Connollys. The type of name which in Germany is also strong on the army list: the list of American officers, indeed, fairly bristles with Celtic patronyms—with O'Briens and O'Sheas, with Murphys and Quins, Moriartys and Connollys.
