"It's God's Way. His Will be Done."

President McKinley is now a figure in history. Notwithstanding the prayers of hundreds of thousands of Christian people, and in spite of the efforts of the most eminent surgeons and physicians of the land, this honored life—this wise and true President of the whole people—has been called from us because of the inscrutable will of Providence, and the Nation mourns in the humility of submission. The shock was crushing. Had this great life gone out, on the spot, as the result of the assassin's bullets, the great heart of the people would not have been so severely touched. This is inexplicable, no doubt, and yet it is truth. The week of suffering, which brought with it so many favorable opinions and encouraging hopes, as well as the most spontaneous degree possible of universal sympathy, tended to make the blow all the harder to bear—harder to understand and submit to.

His parting words, "It's God's way. His will be done," will pass into history as one of the bravest and noblest farewells ever expressed. They denoted the soul of the man. As he lived, so he died; the God-fearing, humble, submissive, full-rounded Christian citizen. He was a man, singularly self-possessed, through life and unto death. Verily, the President is dead.

President Roosevelt.

Of all the men on the face of the earth, Theodore Roosevelt would have stood in front of the first rank of those not desiring to succeed to the Presidency under present circumstances. His whole life has been a strenuous protest against criminality, and for a robust exemplification of honesty and bravery. As a despiser of underhand methods, and as a champion of right, regardless of personal consequences, President Roosevelt stands to-day without a peer. That he will measure up to the vast responsibilities of his present trying position, no one who knows the man will have a moment's doubt.

He may not possess that remarkable degree of complacency which attached peculiarly to President McKinley, nor that almost divine power of foreseeing the proper course through the maze of the most perplexing National and International difficulties, but the sterling integrity of the man, coupled with his indefatigable determination to "get to the bottom of things," renders him an undoubtedly safe head of the government at this particular time. Increased responsibilities, with, with his predominant characteristics, so to speak, down his impetuosity as to fit him eminently for the high honor to which he has so unexpectedly and unwillingly fallen heir.

Probably, at this time, just such a man is needed. It may be, indeed, that the Divine Providence which directs all things in his own inscrutable way, may have some special work for this strong-hearted human instrument to perform. That he will do his duty, whatever it may be, there is not the shadow of doubt. Let those whose hearts are heavy—whose ideal lies in the tomb—take courage and attach full faith and fealty to the new head of the government, "which, under God, shall not perish from the earth."

His assumption of the office of President was informal, yet impressive. In response to the notification of Secretary Root, that it was desirable that he take the oath of office without delay, he said, with marked firmness and characteristic distinctness: "Mr. Secretary, I shall take the oath at once, at the request of the members of the Cabinet, and in this hour of deep and terrible national bereavement, I wish to state I shall continue absolutely unbroken the policy of President McKinley for the peace, prosperity and honor of our beloved country."

Judge Hazel then stepped forward and administered the following constitutional oath, Mr. Roosevelt repeating slowly the sentences as spoken by the magistrate:

"I do solemnly swear that I will faithfully execute the office of President of the United States, and will to the best of my ability preserve, protect and defend the constitution of the United States."

Can we Expel Anarchy?

The assassination of the President has developed the almost unanimous sentiment that anarchists shall be, if possible, driven out of this country. That they shall not, hereafter, operate openly as an organization, and that those who may be found promoting anarchy shall be treated as criminals. Just how this is to be accomplished, or what is to be done with those known to be advocates of the infernal doctrine, is not yet clear; but that an attempt to root out the evil will be made, no one now doubts.

Anarchy means "without a head;" absence of government and consequent disorder, as when "there was no King in Israel, but every man did that which was right in his own eyes." This is the substance of the most idiotic belief on the face of the earth—Anarchy. If the governments of earth were in the hands of a few rulers, and if these rulers were despots whose places would not be filled, there might be some sense in this mad theory of killing them; but, as every country provides some form of succession—some way of selecting a President, King or Emperor, which operates indefinitely along certain clearly defined lines, the Anarchistic method of their removal involves an endless array of murders.

That this bloody business cannot be fostered in this country, must hereafter be a fixed fact. The movement in this direction should have been made years ago. The Chicago plots—the murder of Mayor Harrison—the hatching of the plot in Paterson, N. J., for the assassination of King Humbert, we now see, in our "hind sight," as warnings to have taken decisive action earlier.

The ugliness of the question rests in the doubt as to whether open fighting these "mad dogs" of society will have the desired result. Russia has tried, for years, to stamp out practically the same thing, and yet it flourishes in secret. The conditions existing in the two countries, however, are vastly different. That the madness can exist here—be practiced here—without the slightest sign of Czarisism on the part of our rulers—except that which diseased imaginations invent, is preposterous; surely, the entire population, not included within the ranks of the Anarchists, will aid the government by every means in their power to assist in the absolute obliteration of this dangerous class.

In Russia, Nihilism is undoubtedly shielded by a considerable percentage of the unsuspected better class population, as a result of the despotic government of the country, for ages, in many directions. In fact, it has been found in the army itself, and among the officials of the country, receiving its support from those who desire a Republic, or some form of popular participation in the government. America is not Russia.

Sure Proof of Prosperity.

A positive proof of the unexampled prosperity of this country, is found in the fact that the death of President McKinley had absolutely no ill effect on market values. There has not been the slightest panic in stocks of any kind, capitalists holding on to their investments with supreme confidence. No doubt the early assurance of President Roosevelt, that the McKinley policy would be continued by him, was a wise proceeding, and removed the slightest doubts that might have existed in the minds of some.

While it is true that the Presidential succession is provided for, with the object in view of preventing financial crises, and of maintaining the security of the institutions of the United States, it is also true that nothing but the most absolute confidence can prevent individuals from becoming panicky. Had any depreciation in values occurred, there would have been thousands of banks and capitalists ready to have taken the securities dropped on the market, and glad for the chance.

There was no such chance offered. The people are more than ever, at this particular stage, impressed with the fact that this country is too great and too substantial to be endangered even by the death of such a great and good man as the late President. Only outrageous mismanagement and misrule will ever affect a popular government by the people, such as ours.

A Praying Nation.

If someone had predicted on September 1st. that within a week our whole nation would turn her thoughts away from business interests for the time being to unite in universal prayer it would have seemed like the raving of one unbalanced in mind, and yet such has actually been the case. The commercial spirit has been overcome by the devotional spirit.

Sudden national disaster has revealed like a flash from Heaven the omnipotence of God and the utter weakness and helplessness of man.

National loyalty and ardent personal feeling have sent us to our knees. Jew and Gentile, Romanist and Protestant, indifferentist and fervent believer have worshiped and prayed side by side.

Our President's life has been more dear to one and all than ever before, and God has been most wonderfully recognized as the one great source of help.

As we consider the deep waters of anxiety through which we are passing nationally; as we still continue in heartfelt and earnest prayer, may we not learn lessons of permanent and inspiring blessing in this our common disaster?

If God is the God of the helpless, why is He not even well the God of the strong and well?

If our nation seeks Him in time of need, why may she not bow before Him in all her prosperity and influence? If statesman and churchman join hands in supplication, why may not law and righteousness always go hand in hand in the practical furtherance of the Christian nation?

If the individual citizen needs God in sorrow, national and deep, why does he not need that same God to shield him from the numerous temptations of prosperity and success?

If prayer is our national medium of power in our time of anguish, why not recognize this same power in the executive of every day.

"Blessed is that nation whose God is the Lord!" is still true. May the God of us all, who has listened to our petitions made subject to His will and wisdom, grant unto us nationally a continuance of this spirit of prayer and reverence, and may He grant that we may ever enter into the spirit of the closing words of our national hymn—

Protect us by Thy might, Great God, our King.

—Balt. Herald.

Mr. McKinley's Last Speech.

The last speech of President McKinley was delivered at the Exposition on President's Day—the day before he was shot.

It is considered one of his most notable utterances and states plainly his views as to the nation's future and the policies of government needed to provide for it.

Here are some of the things he said which will live long in history:

The court of arbitration is the noblest forum for the settlement of international disputes.

Our real eminence rests in the vicinities of peace, not in those of war.

Reciprocity is the natural outgrowth of our wonderful industrial development under the domestic policy now firmly established.

Commercial wars are unprofitable. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times.

Friendly rivalry is the spur of industrial improvement and inspiration to useful invention.

This portion of the earth (the Western Hemisphere) has no cause for humiliation for the part it has performed in the march of civilization.

We must build the Isthmian Canal. The construction of a Pacific cable cannot be longer postponed.

God and man have linked the nations together. No nation can longer be indifferent to any other.

We must have more ships. We must encourage our merchant marine. One of the needs of the times is direct commercial lines from our vast fields of production to the fields of consumption that we have but barely touched.

Expositions are the timekeepers of progress. They record the world's advancement.

Isolation is no longer possible or desirable. The same important news is read, though in different languages the same day in all Christendom.

Tradestatistics indicate that the country is in a state of unexampled prosperity. The figures are almost appalling.

We have a vast and intricate business, built up through years of toil and struggle, in which every part of the country has its stake, which will not permit of either neglect or of undue selfishness. No narrow, sordid policy will subvert it.

WINS!

Westminster, Md., Aug. 6, 1901.

Mr. D. W. Garner, Agent for the EMPIRE Cream Separator, Taneytown, Md.

I had been trying a De Laval Separator, Alpha Baby No. 1, for more than a week before you set in the EMPIRE. After you placed the EMPIRE and the De Laval agent heard of it, two of their special agents came to see me with an Alpha Baby No. 2, and they spent over a day trying to induce me to buy one of the De Laval machines. I had been using the EMPIRE for a couple of days and it was so much more simple than the De Laval and so much more easy to operate and clean, that when you came around, it did not take me long to decide to make definite purchase of the EMPIRE and the De Laval agents had to take their two machines home.

I can cheerfully recommend to any one wanting a cream separator that they buy an EMPIRE, and make no mistake.

Yours truly,

FRANCIS ORNDORFF.

TEN MILLION NERVES! YAGER'S Sarsaparilla with Celery. It benefits the nervous system in two directions. By purifying the blood it stimulates healthy action at the base. By direct action, it soothes the nerves and gives the body the opportunity through restful sleep to become renovated and invigorated.

ITEMS OF INTEREST. Enterprising Texas planters have shipped 6,000 pounds of cotton to Manila. Sugar exists not only in the cane, beet root and maple, but in the sap of 187 other plants and trees.

Bird-Shot For Tiger. No use to hunt tigers with bird-shot. It doesn't hurt the tiger any and it's awfully risky for you.

THE CYNIC. How many outrages we are all compelled to submit to! What a lot of stories you can tell under the head of "they say!"

Our Job Printing has a deservedly wide reputation. Why? Because it is always clean, first-class work. The proof that it is appreciated, and in demand, is the fact that we are always busy.

Orchard and Garden. To have the lawn look fresh and green mow it often.
