A Hopeful Sign.

With the active special interest which will be taken in the county campaign by the farmers and school teachers on one side, this year, and the uncertain result of the new election law, on the other, the various candidates will experience a situation entirely new in county politics. There has not been, for some years, that delightful degree of certainty among democrats—commonly termed a "walk over"—or that feeling of resignation, among republicans, that a nomination meant simply political martyrdom for the sake of retaining the party's organization; therefore, the condition this year is a decided mix-up, the end of which, even "a man up a tree," cannot foretell.

We regard it as a hopeful sign that there is being something more than old-time partisan interest manifested in local politics. While farmers and teachers, are, in a measure, looking after special—personal—interests, they are, in a larger sense, looking after interests which have heretofore been persistently and shamefully neglected, and therein lies the hopeful sign for the future. The people need to come to a clearer realization of their power as individual voters, and, if this condition be arrived at, even at the cost of a slight development of class legislation, the eventual result is likely to be one of benefit to the whole people.

We see, in the present movements, the future investigation of many questions which have heretofore been regarded as political inheritances, with which parties and politicians have to do, rather than the individual voter and taxpayer. All rightful government, whether national, state or county, is directly by and for the people, and not by and for other political party or office-holding class. We have already had too much of the latter, and too little of the former.

While we do not care to comment at length, at this time, on the resolution recently adopted by the Teachers' Association, we will simply reiterate our often repeated appeal for better paid, and better equipped, public school teachers. Our county has been pursuing a niggardly policy, in relation to its public school system, for many years, and there ought to be a change toward the side of justice and liberality, even though the change be a tardy one. The action taken by the teachers may be slow in bearing fruit, but, persistence, and thorough co-operation will eventually compel recognition and relief.

Let us Hear from You.

We desire that our patrons should feel free to use the columns of the Record for the ventilation of subjects of a public general character, not in the line of personal or political discussions. There are many intelligent persons throughout the county who hold excellent opinions, the dissemination of which could not fail to be of advantage to the general reader; in fact, it is our experience that opinions coming from outside the Editor's office, frequently have more weight than those from the inside, for the special reason that they bear the impress of being unsolicited and unprejudiced testimonials from the people.

While we earnestly desire this invitation to be accepted, it is extended with the understanding that it shall not be used for expressing personal grievances, or very lengthy dissertations on subjects not closely connected with the affairs of state and county, or of certain social customs of general interest. The ladies, too, are included in this invitation, as many of them are keen observers and able to state their views clearly and logically.

As new topics, we suggest the Farmers' Club movement in favor of increased appropriations to the Agricultural College, and the effort being made by the school teachers toward securing higher remuneration. We do not consider either of these in the light of partisan politics, but think much information might be derived from their ventilation by the people. We have hundreds of well-meaning people who are always free to criticize the actions of others, but very few who have the courage to openly advocate—to originate—measures, before action is taken on them. This is the time—not after the election—to say just what should be done.

Unrewarded Faithfulness.

With their well known ability to improve on whatever somebody else does, a certain class of newspaper editors have definitely settled the question, to their own satisfaction, that the physicians in charge of President McKinley were a set of old grandfathers who fed their patient "solid food," and thus killed him. It seems almost incomprehensible that those in authority will keep on handling the most important affairs of our government, without consultation, until too late, with newspaper editorial writers.

We all remember how the recent war with Spain might have been so much more expeditiously handled, with this fraternity in charge, and how often they have saved the country during the past fifty years, that it is about time to quit fooling with fate in ignoring their vital services. No wonder we have "yellow" journalism. It is enough to make the know-it-all editor, green, black and blue, to be so continuously set down on, and that he simply gets a little "yellow," is an evidence of condescension on his part which should be appreciated.

State Printing at One-third.

The annual contract for state printing has been awarded to a firm whose bid was about one-third of the highest bid offered. It is said that it has been the custom to take the contract at a loss, then make a "poor mouth" over it and secure extra work at the close of the term with which to come out ahead on the entire transaction. This is undoubtedly wrong, as the successful bidder should be held close to the lines of his voluntary offer. At the same time, we secure a glimpse of the "fat thing"—in the three-times higher bid—that the favored newspapers receive in their monopoly of the state and county publishing, in which there is no chance for "bidding."

There is not the slightest doubt that the state and county are each year mulcted of large sums for public printing—publication of laws, etc.—to the extent of double the actual value of the work performed. We have made this statement time and again, and stand ready to demonstrate its truthfulness whenever opportunity is given. If a contract for state printing varies from a certain sum down to one-third of it, it is reasonable to presume that the same variation would apply to the publishing, should opportunity be given.

Roosevelt's Independent Position.

President Roosevelt becomes as fully responsible for the policies and methods of the administration as if he had been elected President instead of Vice-President. There is no possible obligation resting upon him to abdicate his own will or judgment in any degree. This, of course, is fully understood by every one. His avowed adherence to Mr. McKinley's policies and his retention of high officials does not mean the suppression of his own views and preferences. It means rather that he finds it natural and agreeable to follow out lines of policy to which he was already committed, and finds it wholly congenial to work with the able and experienced public men under whom all the departments have been so well carried on that in the recent Presidential campaign there was no serious attempt made by political opponents to attack any one of them.

No man since George Washington has come into the Presidential chair as ably and as rightly as the individual claims of any kind upon him as Mr. Roosevelt. The Vice-Presidential nomination was given him against his earnest protestations. The circumstances are too well-known to be recalled here. Mr. Roosevelt has many political friends, but none who can claim any title to a reward; and, certainly, he has no disposition to punish his enemies. Nobody is entitled to consideration on the ground of having helped him to be President. When Governor of New York, he felt himself under obligation to consult at every step the preferences of certain leaders of the State Republican organization. These leaders had selected him as their candidate, had secured his nomination, and had aided in his election; and the consideration that he showed to them as governor was in every respect right and proper under our party system.

It happens, however, that Mr. Roosevelt now finds himself President without the favor or help of any man. He finds a well-ordered administration, the efficiency of which it will be his duty from time to time to enhance as much as possible. When vacancies occur he will be free to consider the good of the public service alone, and to appoint the very best men who can possibly be found, since he has no pledges to redeem, no personal promises to observe, and no political debts to pay at the public expense. He can devote himself to the many interesting and important public questions that lie before us without much thought for office seekers or for mere factional or party interests.—From "The Progress of the World," in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for October.

Farm Reading.

As the evenings lengthen and there is leisure time the subject of reading matter is or should be more prominent. It is now a recognized fact that the farmer to be successful cannot follow the same old beaten path of two or three generations before him. Competition has increased; brains have supplanted brawn; and the educated farmer is as much a necessity as an educated minister or lawyer. The pristine fertility of the soil is exhausted and chemistry is called upon to supply the deficiency; the natural equilibrium of the animal world has been disturbed by the slaughter of the birds and other causes, and the practical entomologist is summoned to the rescue; a new plant appears in our midst, and its nature and habits call forth an interest in botany. In short, agriculture, in its highest sense, is inseparable from science.

What is to be done? Farmers who have reached middle age cannot as a rule leave their homes to enter one of the numerous agricultural colleges. But are they to be debarred utterly from the advantages of these institutions? Not at all. The agricultural papers have admirably solved the problem by adapting to their needs the general principles of scientific farming, popularizing the subject so to speak, and thus bringing it within the grasp of all. The teacher who is not sufficiently interested in school work to take an educational paper in some places debarred from employment; and the agriculturist who fails to read regularly at least one standard farm paper loses many times the subscription price. It is his text book, one of the essential tools of the trade. It is a substitute for the education he will give to his children in the higher schools.

Read exhaustively on a subject, says a popular lecturer, and you would remember; a desultory reading results in a mass of unclassified matter, not easily retained in the mind. If the farmer and his family would each year resolve to study into the principles of some particular subject, they would be astonished at the advantage and pleasure derived from it.—Agricultural Epitome.

The Ladies' Home Journal for October.

The Ladies' Home Journal for October, perhaps, the best number of this magazine ever issued. The literary features include "How the Leopard Got his Spots," by Rudyard Kipling; "A Fifth Avenue Troubadour," by Ernest Seton-Thompson; the first instalment of "A Gentleman of the Blue Grass," by Laura Spencer Porter; the last of "Miss Aleott's Letters to Her 'Laurie,'" and the closing chapters of "Alien." "Some Things the President Does Not Do," a collection of anecdotes about Whistler, the artist, and Mr. Bok's advice to a young man about to marry are important features. The regular editorial departments are supplemented by nine new ones of great interest, among which Professor Edward Howard Griggs' talks on "The Education of a Child from Eleven to Eighteen," Professor Schumaker's "Seeing Things Outdoors," and Miss Withey's "Writing and Speaking Correctly" are noteworthy. The illustrations and art features are superb. By The Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a number.

The Cosmopolitan for October is full of entertaining fiction. Thomas A. Janvier, for some time not seen in the magazines, reappears in "The Cosmopolitan" with a Mexican story of love and adventure, "Forfeit to the Gods." Bret Harte, whose "condensed novels" won him so much fame, contributes a side-splitting parody of "The Chinese" and "The Christian." Irving Bacheller writes a short sketch of the New York inn, "The Shadow of Happiness." E. W. Kemble tells a sort of humorous story of "How the Buzzards Worked a Spell," while Clara Morris' love story reveals her as an accomplished writer, capable of analyzing and sympathizing with man's deepest emotions.

PUBLIC SALE OF STORE AND DWELLING

in Taneytown, Md.

The undersigned, as agent for the heirs who offer in public sale, on the premises, on SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th., 1901, at 2:30 o'clock, p. m.,

the Davidson Store and Dwelling property in Taneytown, Md., situate on the south side of Baltimore St., midway between the square and railroad.

The building is two-story frame, with cellar, and is in excellent repair throughout. The store room is 13 feet deep by 15 feet wide, and is divided into six stalls, with two stalls on second floor, one of which is heated by a range located in cellar.

A well and cistern are close to the kitchen door, and a large stable and carriage house contained within all necessary outbuildings stands on the rear of the lot.

Parties interested in the purchase of a desirable stand, as above described, should investigate this offer.

At present this property is occupied by Messrs. Weart & Koons, as a Dry Goods and Notion house.

Particulars will be furnished by the undersigned.

Terms of Sale.—One-third of the purchase money to be paid on day of sale, and the remaining two-thirds on April 1st, 1902, with the usual conditions of security, bearing interest from day of sale.

J. M. BIRELY'S
Palace of Music,
FREDERICK, MD.

A recent visit to the above well-known Musical Instrument Emporium convinces the writer that it is the leading establishment of the kind in this section of the state. Mr. Birely handles all the latest styles of Pianos, Organs and Musical Merchandise, and makes sales on the installment plan, and carries a full line of Wash Machines, Wringers and Sewing Machines. His terms are easy, to responsible parties, and if you wish to see him, personally, or through one of his authorized agents, you are sure to get exactly what you contract for. His long-standing business has built up on Fair Dealing a fact which can best be attested on inquiry to those who have long known him as a business man, and to those who have dealt with him. Visit his place of business, if you can, if not write to him for catalogues, explaining your needs. You run no risk when you deal at

Two to One AND THE EMPIRE WINS!

Westminster, Md., Aug. 6, 1901.

Mr. D. W. Garner, Agent for the EMPIRE Cream Separator, Taneytown, Md.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 13th., 1901, at 2:30 o'clock, p. m.,

the Davidson Store and Dwelling property in Taneytown, Md., situate on the south side of Baltimore St., midway between the square and railroad.

The building is two-story frame, with cellar, and is in excellent repair throughout. The store room is 13 feet deep by 15 feet wide, and is divided into six stalls, with two stalls on second floor, one of which is heated by a range located in cellar.

A well and cistern are close to the kitchen door, and a large stable and carriage house contained within all necessary outbuildings stands on the rear of the lot.

Parties interested in the purchase of a desirable stand, as above described, should investigate this offer.

At present this property is occupied by Messrs. Weart & Koons, as a Dry Goods and Notion house.

Particulars will be furnished by the undersigned.

Terms of Sale.—One-third of the purchase money to be paid on day of sale, and the remaining two-thirds on April 1st, 1902, with the usual conditions of security, bearing interest from day of sale.

Our Home Circle.

Original articles solicited for this department on any subject relative to "Home" matters, whether of a social, decorative, culinary or general character.

A Place for the Boys.

What can a boy do, and where can a boy do it? He is always told to get out of the way? He cannot sit here and he must not stand there.

we go home, lay our lesson-leaf aside, our minds are called some other place, and we never see the next lesson until we go to class; now, we know this will not advance our Sunday school at all, but, how should we do?

Why, sometimes during the week, take the subject and study it, prepare to answer any question we may be asked, then we can easily see the Sunday school ground growing stronger and becoming more interesting; also, making those whom we may call "back-sliders," to the conclusion that they are traveling the wrong road.

Games in Our Schools.

Some people have the mistaken idea that our public schools are only for study, and that none, or at least very few amusements should be engaged in, especially in high schools.

much it shows egotism and love of glory. A nose that slopes out directly from the forehead, that shows no indenting between the eyes, indicates very few amusements should be engaged in, especially in high schools.

USE OF DRAIN TILE.

ITS VALUE AS AN IMPROVER OF EARTH ROADS.

Also the Best Preparation For a Gravel or Stone Road—Why Highways Should Be Underdrained—One Line of Tile Usually Sufficient.

All roads except those on pure sand can be materially improved by the drainage, says Professor Ira O. Baker of the Illinois experiment station.

road surface when wet is pumiced by percolating through the soil, and it is certain that in clay or loam the drainage thus obtained is of no practical value.

While a line of tile on one side of the road is usually sufficient, there is often a great difference as to the side on which it should be laid.

The tile should be laid in the bottom of the side ditch below the frost line. Of course the tile should have a uniform grade and a sufficient fall and an adequate outlet.

The side ditches are to receive the water from the surface of the traveled way and should carry it rapidly and entirely away from the roadside.
