A quarter of a million dollars is being spent this summer in repairs about the Capitol, for it costs a pretty penny to keep in apple pie order the national legislative house. When the members of the Fifty-eighth Congress gather next November they will view a far grander Capitol than any Congress has yet convened in.

A man who has been traveling in Iowa has hit upon an odd use of corncobs. He says: "I made a trip through a big part of Iowa recently, and I found several grain shipping towns that had corncob sidewalks. In spite of what one would think about it, cobs make a pretty good sidewalk. They are a little rough at first, but when the cobs become trampled down the walk is smooth."

The cool wet summer has been disastrous to summer resorts, especially to those located in the mountains far from large cities. Mountain Lake Park, one of the most noted of Mary land's resorts, has had an especially unfavorable season, although all the hotels and cottages have kept open. Grasses have prospered during the week; in many parts of the section the hay yields have been heavy, in the remaining districts light to fair yields have been made.

The apple crop continues unchanged in prospect, which is to say that the fall and winter varieties promise large yields, although in orchards that have not been well cared for the quality is more or less defective; there has been no loss by highwinds during the week, and such dropping as is reported is still calculated to be a benefit by relieving the trees of an excess of fruit. Small shipments of peaches are being made, but the yields are very light. Quinces are scarce. Pears are fairly plentiful in some of the interior counth the organization is experiencing little

Gardens are variously reported as being in poor to good condition, de-pending largely, it would seem, on the amount of effort that has been made to keep them free from weeds and grass which have had a luxuriant growth during the entire season. Tomatoes are still an uncertain crop; the majority of the reports are of a ouraging nature, a general shortage being expreted, and a reduction to one-half of an average crop, or even less, where the outlook is worst. Sugar corn is generally a poor crop. Blackberries are still abundant in the extreme west, but the yield is about over in the interior. Grapes are ripening nicely, with the usual local loss by rotting and insects.

Responsibility of Citizenship.

The subjects of a despotic monarch are absolved from responsibility for the conduct of the government under which they live. It is different in a land where manhood suffrage prevails. There public officers are the representatives and the servants of the voters. If the former are insolent, inefficient or corrupt it is the fault of their constituents. Our public schools should emphasize the duty of exercising all the privileges and prerogatives of citizenship. Boys should be made familiar with the differences between the federal and the state governments, with the names of the various offices of nation and state, with the processes by which nominations are made and elections conducted, with the history of the country and of the various political parties, as well as with all other information essential to intelligent and efficient citizenship. More attention to vital matters of guages would probably bring good homes by the spread of this knowlresults. Of course, the Empire of 1895 was not the equal of the Emire of 1903; there have been very many improvements. The original Empire factory was in Newark, N. SWINGS. I will close out my Swing

There is no more important problem lands who are in serious need of the and got on the train. gospel of Christ.

The seriousness of the problem before the church today from the stand- but would unmake my toilet in the point of the foreigner is evident when berth, and so I ran for the little flight

1. Their numbers. Our population in 1900, not including our insular possessions, was 76,303,387. Of this number 10,460,085 were foreign born and 15,-687,322 were the children of foreign born parents. Thus every third person in the United States is either foreign born or the child of foreign born parents. Moreover, immigration is increasing instead of decreasing. It has averaged for the past five years about 10,000 a week, and it has been estimated that there will come to us this year 850,000 foreigners, an average of over 16,000 a week. What a serious problem confronts us from the standpoint of numbers alone!

2. Their character. The nations which produce the most undesirable classes of people are steadily sending larger numbers to us, while the best are indebted for much of our greatness. But today this is changed. While Great Britain, Germany, France and Greece are sending fewer immigrants, Austria-Hungary, Italy, and principally southern Italy, and Russia are sending German empire 20,968, from Greece 4,664 and from France but 2,971. The catch myself. worst nations of Europe are sending us their worst classes-foreign in speech, in customs, in religious beliefs and in character.

3. Their methods of settling in our land. The general tendency of the foreign element is to congregate according gation being our large cities, our great eastern industrial sections and the agricultural districts of the west and northwest. Thus our large cities have their "Little Italy," "Little Germany," "Little Scandinavia" and "Chinatown." Crowded together by the thousands, they live surrounded by squalor and confusion and by moral and spiritual degradation. In our great industrial and agricultural centers similar conditions exist. In the very heart of such an American commonwealth as Pennsylvania entire communities can be found where foreign languages are spoken, costumes worn, newspapers read, political and religious beliefs held and practiced. The problems of such an element in our population are serious and great. These people must be lifted up or the will drag us down. Our social, political and Christian institutions are all endangered by their presence in our land. They must be Christianized and Americanized or their presence here will be a constant menace to our national welfare and Christian institu tions. The church should measure up to its responsibility in this matter Solomon prayed "concerning the stranger which is not of Thy people Israel," and so we should pray and labor for the salvation of the "stranger within our gates."

A Cat Story.

Many who are good to other animals lislike and distrust cats. They are said to be ungrateful and treacherous. Perhaps this is one reason why cats are more persistently maltreated and abused than any other animals. Here A certain teacher, who was board-

Under the cover of darkness she placed a saucer of milk near a side door, where the poor skeleton beast could lap it unperceived. A Barrel Scarecrow The only sure method we find here to scare crows from cornfields is cheap and easily made, and no crows will light in the field where it is used, provided they have not begun to pull the corn. Take a common flour barrel, remove both heads, nail all the hoops with wire shingle nails to hold the barrel together, bore a half inch hole in the middle of the barrel in a wide stave, take a half inch rope (not a chain) four feet long, tie a knot in one end and pass it up through the hole. Then tle the other end to a strong pole set in the ground at an angle so the barrel will swing and not hit the pole. The barrel will always be in motion, as the rope will twist each way, and no crows will dare come near it. Two barrels will be enough for an acre or more. I have saved my field of corn many times with one barrel when all other methods failed.-New England Homestead.

A Remarkable Barn. Tan Crawley, a farmer of the Coral Hill country, had a novel experience. A few years ago he built a small barn and in its construction used green willow posts at the corners and along the sides. For some time nothing unusual was noticed, but after a year it was observed that where he had laid the floor near the ground it was three feet above the soil. He then discovered that the willow posts instead of being dead were alive and had taken root and were growing and that in their untoward movement they had raised the barn, says the Glasgow Republican. Last spring the barn was on stilts nine feet high, and he put in a new floor and surrounded the posts with siding, thereby making a two story affair. There is now a space of twelve inches between the new floor and the ground. is reproduced from Le Monde Illustre, Crawley expects to have a three story ing. which soil fertility is accumulated where dairy animals are kept on the farm. Twenty-three cows in 1896 consumed 9.40 tons of bran, 8.20 tons of dry brewers' grain, 6.10 tons of corn meal and 3.55 tons of linseed meal, these foods containing 1,700 pounds of nitrogen. In 1897 twenty-five cows consumed 12.50 tons of bran, 8.15 tons of dry brewers' grains, 3.30 tons of corn meal and 4.45-tons of linseed meal, the total amount of nitrogen in this food being 1,781 pounds. The same number of cows in 1898 consumed 14.50 tons of bran, 10.25 tons of dry brewers' grains, 5 tons of corn meal, 3.50 tons of linseed meal and 1.75 tons of rice meal. this food containing 2,190 pounds of nitrogen. The foods of the three lots mentioned contained respectively 958, 1,108 and 1,373 pounds of phosphoric acid; also 462, 562 and 655 pounds of potash respectively. There were contained in the milk of the twenty-three Homer R. Dill of Gardiner, Me., has cows of 1896 849 pounds of nitrogen, sumed. To summarize these results it may be said that during the three years there was a gain of 2,859 pounds of nitrogen, 2,385% pounds of phosphoric acid and 858% pounds of potash; that is, these amounts of the fertilizing elements were left on the farm in the form of barnyard manure after removing the milk. If there is this increase in fertility when the milk is taken from the farm, what must be the result when only the cream is removed? It simply is this, that the amount is practically the great actress looks forty or even no system of farming that to so great an extent conserves the elements of fertility as dairying, and especially and the skim milk left on the farm to

It was my pleasure in company with Messrs Filder Gilbert, Paul Devilbiss and my two sons, to spend eight days camping on the banks of the Monocacy, in the rear of "Linden Farm" Bridgeport. In direct contradiction to the assertion that a clean butter maker and an Inclean milk supply never travel together the writer wishes to call attention to a case which came to his notice bled in the brass kettle and the teacups | & few days ago. This may be the exexecuted a jingling dance as Fan- teption which proves the rule. However, it is the only glaring exception we ean call to mind. Upon visiting this creamery in the early morning we were at once favorably impressed with the sanitary conditions and appearance and the butter maker was as neat and tidy as one would wish neet. We anticipated having little trouble with the quality of milk, but we were greatly disappointed when the first load arrived. The milk as a whole proved to be the poorest it has been our lot to encounter at any one creamery, and nearly every can which came to the creamery was in anything but a clean condition. The butter maker was popular with his patrons and was generally considered a "good fellow." In his desire to remain in possession of their good will he was exceedingly timid about refusing milk which was untit for manufacture into butter. This case further strengthens our faith in the truth of the assertion that the butter maker is responsible for the quality of the raw material which he receives.

Will License Butter Makers. The Montreal Produce Merchants' association has taken a very decided stand in reference to the licensing of cheese and butter makers in the prov ince of Quebec. It has asked the Que bec government to appoint a commi sion to examine butter and chees makers and issue licenses to competen men, these licenses to be granted to such persons as upon careful examination are found qualified to manufacture cheese or butter of first class quality which Alvarado took out of the mine of the discovery, it is said that since its discovery, it is said that since its discovery, it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that and raged and wept, and they both since its discovery it is said that the said tha patrons and to carry on the business in such a way that the interests of all concerned will be protected.

The association further asks that the government forbid any person who does not hold a license to manufacture cheese or butter at any factory at which milk from various patrons is received and at which the proceeds from all sales of the products are distributed among the patrons in proportion to the quantity or to the quantity and quality of the milk supplied by

An Important Question.

How far can the milk producing machinery of a cow be increased without a breakdown? is a very important ques tion to the breeder and dairyman, says Dairy and Creamery. The wild cow and the poor cow, with but small udder capacity, know little of udder troubles. because the udder, though small, has action of bacteria that all strong, normal, healthy tissues have. But it requires but little examination of herd records to see how much time is lost by udder troubles. Garget, in all its forms and names, is an ever present trouble, and the lessened resistance of a highly developed gland, together with the increase in number and potency of the trouble producing bacteria, is bringing about a condition that requires careful consideration. Easily Frightened. "My partner up in New York state, who is running our creameries," said W. R. Boynton of Boston, "wrote to me a short time ago that he feared he would have to go out of the butter business, as the farmers were getting crazy about the feed for their cows. Their pastures were dried up, their hay crops destroyed, and nobody would be able to keep cows next winter for the want of hay. Now that talk is all changed. In his last letter he did not have one word to say about the grass and was sending along his usual quantity of butter. How
