TANEYTOWN, MARYLAND, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1903.

BRIEF POLITICAL NOTES. Facts and Fancies Relative to the Present

The democratic state candidates are several years in Baltimore. at present on a tour of the southern Maryland Campaign.

Hon. Isidor Raynor is prosecuting a vigorous effort to secure the support of the Baltimore city delegates to his candidacy for the Senatorship.

Evidently, those who estimate on crowds, yary greatly. We have seen the number at the Mt. Airy Democratic meeting estimated, in print, from

The result of the registration in Baltimore shows 91,064 white, and 16,773 colored voters, a total of 107,837. The white vote increased, over last year, 6673, and the colored vote 1079. The democrats claim a majority of 8000, in Baltimore, on the declared vote at the recent registration. The "declined" vote, however, is unusually large, and the republicans are claiming the largest part of it. The Republican state Candidates comenced their campaign in Garret county, and are gradually moving from west to east. The party battlecry is "fair elections and no puzzle ballot." Mr. Williams' speeches are especially plain and forceful. We renew our offer of a year's subscription to the RECORD to the person who figures out in advance of the election, the nearest to the exact number of rejected ballots at the election of the e tion in Carroll county, on November 3rd. Last year, the number was 332.

Calvin E. Bankert, of Union Mills, who was last week nominated by the prohibition party of this county for register of wills, has declined the nomination, and County Chairman Weigand has named Franklin P. Fenby, of Woolery's district, to fill the vacancy.

Both candidates for Governor are too straight in character for mud sling-ing to be profitably indulged in, notwithstanding the fact that certain low down political mouth pieces seem to consider it legitimate political warfare to operate from such a level, whether truthfully or not. As long as one candidate says of the other "he is a good man," that ought to shut off

Neither party, in Baltimore, is satisfied with the annual registration requirement of the law. There is a over six inches. great deal of trouble in getting the people to take enough interest in politics to get to the registration booths; itics to get to the registration booths; besides, there are always those who are sick, or absent from the city, on the registration dates. If there are tablets. objections to it, on any reasonable grounds, we should like to have them brought to our notice. Of course this is simply our "ideal" ballot, and is probably as near an "official" one as it will ever get. Single sample copies of it may be had, on calling at our office, by those who care for them.

The County campaign, this fall, promises to be a hot one, and candidates will no doubt resort to unusual efforts to secure votes. Remember, gentlemen, that it is better to be defeated, with honor untarnished, than to be elected by disreputable practices and with besmirched character. Any effort to win, connected with actions which lower one's manhood and reputation for uprightness, had better not be made. No office is worth such a cost.

Neither side appears to have gotten into its full stride yet in the city. What few local meetings so far held have been rather slimly attended, and this, together with the extraordinarily hard work that has been necessary in order to get people to register, would seem to indicate that Baltimoreans are not much interested in the campaign. The leaders on both sides believe, however, that this condition is merely a temporary one, and that sufficient enthusiasm will be aroused to bring out a big vote on election day.

If every Warfield button given out is worn by a yoter, and that voter casts his ballot for Mr. Warfield, the democratic Gubernatorial candidate will be elected by a handsome majority. Already 150,000 of these tokens have been distributed, and it is said that more will have to be ordered to supply the demand. The number of lithograph portraits of Mr. Warfield given out to date is a little over 2500, but it is said 10,000 of these will be needed. The cost of these items alone forms no insignificant part of the expenses of a campaign. The lithographs and buttons are all furnished by Baltimore firms.

Candidate Warfield, in a recent speech, said; "I have great personal respect for Mr. Stevenson A. Williams; he is really a very fine type of man. When I see him surrounded by an average crowd of his party associates I am reminded of the old fable of the jewel in the toad's head. When he rambles a little in meeting a political issue and talks in a way different from the clear, straightforward, intelligent style he uses at the trial table, or a business transaction, I remember that St. Paul tells us that evil communications corrupt good manners, and blame not Mr. Williams, but the evil company he has fallen into of

One of the most interesting features of the campaign, naturally, is the grand scramble among democrats for the Senatorial toga, and just as much of a feature on the other side is the lack of candidates for the honor. Senator McComas is, of course, a candidate for re-election, but he has not yet come out with a signed statement of his desire to succeed himself. has any other republican so far felt it necessary to announce that he would like to have this honor. There are seyeral more or less prominent members of the party who are said to cherish secret ambitions of sitting near Senator Arthur Pue Gorman in the "Millionaires' Club," but they are not doing much talking about this ambition, nor are they letting their friends talk.

E. E. Reindollar's Reply.

The Baltimore Sun has sent a letter to each nominee for the legislature, asking for an expression of sentiment on the oyster industry, and the Wabash railroad system in Maryland. The reply of Edward E. Reindollar Rep.) Candidate for the House of Delegates from this county, appears in the Sun, of Friday, as follows; "I shall at all times defend any industry in the State, looking to its advancement or betterment, and endeav or to protect it and those engaged in t, by wide and liberal legislation The oyster industry being one of the foremost in the State, is entitled to the very careful consideration of every member of the coming Legislature, regardless of party, and should be fully protected and enlarged, so as to benefit not only those engaged in it, but the State as well.

The Wabash Railroad, or Western Maryland, still lies close to the hearts of the people throughout the State. They naturally feel a deep interest in the future of the road and look forward to the time when it shall be extended and improved along the lines mapped out at time of the transfer to the present owners. To this end they should be entitled to the same consideration and peculiar rights now enjoyed by competing roads running into and through Baltimore city." The RECORD will publish other replies from county candidates, as they

Our College has again opened for work. The attendance is not quite as large as last year, but they have all that they can comfortably accom-modate. The new College building is ow about completed, so far as the brick walls are concerned. Captain Silvester, in company with a number of his friends, went before the Board of State Aid and Charities sometime ago, in order to present his claim for an additional appropriation, so as to be able to have the legislature pass upon the bill early in the session, so as not to delay the finishing of the

Our work during September consisted in filling silos, cutting corn, hauling coal for College, and getting ready for seeding; ground here is as hard as a brick and as dry as powder. We have had less trouble in filling our silos this season than we eyer had before. We put away about two hundred tons.

It is a characteristic of Director

Patterson to reward merit wherever it is possible to do so. Some time ago he got one of his faithful employees a position at the Junior Republic, at Annapolis Junction, which pays better than anything we could give him here. Another young man who had made himself yery useful in dairy work and always did more than his share, if necessary, without complaining, has been given a chance to take drug while on the street and was afterwards found in an alley in an unconscious condition. not having sufficient force to keep the work up as fast as it came in. Our apple orchard had quite a lot cure enough cars to move the great of apples this year, but they being all crop. An appeal for cars came from Larned last Tuesday, where 100,000 bushels are piled on the ground. Elevators are overflowing, and the only thing to do is to pile it on the ground. The Riverdale meeting was called for the purpose of bringing sufficient pressure to bear upon the County Commissioners to compel them to comply with the law. Prof. Doane has about completed his work for Director Amoss, who had him employed in the interest of the St. Louis Exposition. Prof. Austin is now engaged in the same kind of work along horticultural lines. He has collected quite a variety of apples for the purpose of putting them on cold storage in order to keep them for the St. Louis fair. Prof. Patterson is having quite a number of wax models of all kinds of fruits made, which represent the original almost to perfection. When he once gets this work completed he will have quite a museum in the fruit line.

Director Amoss is pushing his share of the St. Louis Expositon work with all his might. Upon the occasion of his last visit here, he had with him a picture of the Middletown Valley, in R. Judge Watters Scores a Jury and two Accused Persons.

Judge Watters, of the Harford Co., Court, discharged a jury and closed the business of the term in a very remarkable manner, on Wednesday, following a verdict of "not guilty" in the case of a notorious woman (Mrs. Neiman) with a case of like characte pending against a man (Petrie.) His scoring of the jury and the accused persons was so severe and pointed, that we depart from our usual cusom, relative to such cases, and give his remarks space because of the in-fluence for good they should have wherever law and decency are respectwhereyer law and decency are respected.

"We have had a verdict in this case, which to me is not remarkable, but it is inconceivable, I would not have believed that it was possible, except that the fact is before us. It is not my duty to criticize the jury, and I do not intend to criticize the jury, and I do not intend to criticize it, except in so far as the result may be considered a criticism. Of course I recognize that a miscarriage of justice of this kind is not the fault of everybody on the jury; it may be the fault of a very small part, but if allowed to pass unrebuked reflects upon the whole jury and upon the court that has selected that jury. I do not intend to allow it to be passed without a proper rebuke. I say here very frankly that I am not willing to sit here and try any case at any time before a jury as it has shown itself of this character. I do not intend to try any more cases.

"So far as Louis Petrie is concerned, I am going to have his bail discharged, and I want to say to Mr. Petrie that we have no use for him in this community, and I am going to discharge him; we have no use for him now or at any other time. I want to say to him that if the law can't punish criminals, it can't protect anybody, and my advice to him would be now, that his ball is released, to lose no time in leaving this county. If the law can't punish criminals, it can't protect criminals or anybody else, and I won't be responsible for his safety in the county. "In my opinion we have reached a crisis in this court and in this community, and we have got to meet it. It is right that a community should be governed entirely by law; the people have a right to look to the law to protect them, and so long as I occupy the position I do, the law will be used for the position I do, the law will be used for the protection of everybody, but as soon as it becomes manifest that the law cannot punish criminals in such a place as this, the community will inevitably take the into its hands to project itself. I think; gentlemen, I will go ur

To Mrs. Neiman, the Judge said: To Mrs. Neiman, the Judge said:
"I want to warn you, and I think you will see it yourself, that if the law cannot punish criminals, it cannot protect criminals or anybody else. If you have succeeded in debauching one jury, you cannot look to another jury to protect you. My advice to you would be, to at once prepare yourself to leave this state, and leave it as soon as possible. I do not know that you are in any danger and I hope you are not, but you have nobody but yourself to blame if misfortune come upon you. So far as I am concerned, I am not willing to guarantee you safety under the law for three days—my advice to you is to leave this state just as soon as possible."

the President. A Swede named Peter Elliott called at the White House Monday morning shortly before noon and made a de mand to see the President. The police officers on guard at the main entrance to the White House, having been warned that a man of Elliott's description might visit the Executive Mansion, recognized the visitor as the suspect, and, while trying to quietly detain him until the police van of the House of Detention could arrive, alowed him to enter the vestibule of the White House. Instead of remaining quiet, Elliott immediately became violently insane and abusive, and the officers, in trying to avoid a scene, overpowered him and took him down by the elevator to the basement to await the arrival of the van.

He was searched, and on his person a monkey wrench, a screwdriver and several small tools used by a machinist, but before the search was com-pleted the House of Detention van arrived, and a pistol, which he had secreted in his trousers leg, escaped notice. When they attempted to put the Swede in the yan, which happened to be a cab with glass windows and doors, instead of the regular police van, he became desperately yiolent, and Police Officer James Cissle, who had him in charge, had much difficulty in getting him in the much difficulty in getting him in the vehicle. Officer Perry, of the House of Detention, was in the cab, but Elliott, as soon as the wagon started, reached into his trousers and pulled out his pistol. Cissle was too quick for him, and, grabbing him around the waist before he could shoot, prevented his using the weapon. A struggle between the two men resulted, and Elliott forced his head through the glass window of the cab, pulling Cissle with him, and the two men fell out of the van into the roadway. Elliott in breaking the glass cut his head severely, and Cissle had his right arm near the elbow badly lacerated and cut by the plate glass in the window. He managed, howeyer, to get the pistol away from Elliott, but the latter escaped the clutches of the officer and started to run through the White House grounds, when Cissle drew his own grounds, when Cissle drew his own pistol, fired several shots in the air—the police signal for help—and started for the insane man. Recent political eyents have turned he attention of the public directly to the contest in the democratic party for the honor of succeeding Senator Louis E. McComas as United States Senator from Maryland. A peculiar situation is said to be developing, and there are strong indications that, in the event of the democrats controlling the Legislature, there will be half a dozen or so candidates for Senatorial honors, each with more or less yotes behind him.

Middleburg.—The Harvest Home service last Sunday evening was attended by a large crowd, the church being filled to overflowing. The church was nicely decorated with flowers, autumn leaves, grain, fruits and vegetables. On the previous Sabbath the minister asked that the people turn out and trim the church to resemble a garden, but, judging from the broad smile that spread over his face as he entered the church, he was very agreeably surprised, for the people had given the "first fruits" the field and garden with lavish hand, and it did indeed present a fine sight.

There was a stalk of corn from R. W. Walden's farm that reached from the floor to ceiling, measuring 151 feet, with a mammoth ear of corn on it. THE RECORD'S IDEAL BALLOT. INSTRUCTIONS: In order to vote a straight party ticket, but one (×) mark is required—in the circle under party name. When it is desired to vote a "cut" ticket, or part of one or more tickets, the surest plan would be to omit the (×) mark in the circle, and make an (×) mark in the square after the name of each candidate for whom it is desired to vote. The instructions which applied to the voting of our previous Australian ballot, would also apply to this one, but we think there should be but two methods of marking, in order to avoid any confusion or misconstruction either as to marking or County: August Term. 19

AZARIAH OURSLER. The above form of ballot, which is a modified form of the one used in Michigan, is our ideal. It is simple, compact and easy to mark, as a study of it will demonstrate. Another column of blank lines should follow the Prohibition column for voting for persons not on either ticket.

This permits the voting of a "straight" ticket by making one (×) mark, and obviates the necessity for repeating the word "Democratic," or "Republican" after the name of each candidate, because of the party name at the head of each column. It contains a straight party ticket in each perpedicular division, and the names of all candidates for a particular office in each horizontal division. The party emblem is omitted, for the reason that no picture, or emblem of any kind, is properly part of a ballot. The circle at top of each divi-

New voters, as they appear for registration, should be required to read plain print and to write their own names; but, these requirements should not apply to those now registered, or to registration by transfer.

Voters who are blind, or otherwise physically unable to mark their ballots, should receive the assistance of two ballots clerks, as under the old law. No ballot should be rejected at the count because of its being improperly folded, or because of marks on the outside. The acceptance of a ballot, and its deposit in the ballot box by the proper officer, should guarantee its being counted.

In counting the vote, defects in marking the ballot as a whole should relate only to the candidates concerned in the defects, and the balance of the ballot should be counted, providing the intention of the voter is clearly indicated by the (×) marks.

The question of residence, and right to register, should be relieved of all technicalities, and made so clear that there can be no possibility of differing constructions. A voter, once registered, should have an incontestible right to vote; and a ballot once cast, should be counted, without regard to triffing neculiarities in marks, or anything but the clearly stated intention of the voter.

romance, and yet it is true, and one of the lives that illustrate that truth is stranger than fiction. The favorite son of his father, he was treated with unusual consideration. The jealousy and envy of his eleven brethren were aroused, and after a determination to take his life they did sell him as a servant to merchants traveling to Egypt. Here he started in a lowly position, and was even subjected to a false charge and to a false imprisonment. But, wonderful to tell, he was, in the marvelous providence of God, raised from the prison to the palace. He became second only to the king, and saved both Egypt and his people, the Israelites, from starvation during a famine of seven years' diration.

1. Joseph teaches us that in God.

Undoubtedly, in all his years of adversity, Joseph must have kept his trust in God firm and secure. His life must have seemed a hard one at times, his future must have looked dark and foreboding, yet God watched over him, and when he trusted Him he was not put to shame. All have their adversities. No pathway in life is strewn alone with flowers. Let us learn from Joseph to trust God along the rough ways.

2. Joseph teaches a lesson in purity. His act in resisting the advances of the wife of Potiphar, even at the risk of his life, demonstrates the great purity of his heart and life. This lesson needs to be impressed upon us today. Impurity in thought, word and deed abounds all about us in life, and many, many people make no effort to restrain their passions and appetites. Let us follow the example of Joseph, remembering the words of the Master, Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God."

3. Joseph teaches a lesson in forgiveness. His forgiveness of his brethren stands as one of the most conspicuous illustrations of Old Testament forgiveness. It bears a likeness to the spirit of the Master when He prayed, "Father, forgive them; they know not what they do." It is hard to forgive sometimes, but we should forgive one another, "even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven us."

4. Joseph teaches a lesson in God's providence. "It was not you, but God, who sent me to Egypt," said Joseph to his repentant brethren. God was working out his plans in the life of Joseph. So he is in all our lives. Our God is a sovereign God. He moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform, but He moves and performs His will. Our lives are in His hands. Let us rejoice over that fact and then strive more and more to come into complete harmony with His will.

The Promise to "Obey."

Not long ago we gave a line or two to the mention of a young woman who refused to be married by her rector because he would not omit the word "obey" from the service, and we remarked briefly that the promise to obey was now left out of all sensible services. This has brought us a number of letters, mostly from Episcopal ectors, who tell us that their young women seldom object to the word, that they always use it, and that rides ought to promise to obey their Why should they make the promise? hese rectors tells us that there must the necessity. If a government is an absolute monarchy it must have only one head. That is what the word monarchy means. But a republic has more than one head, or ruling power. Our government has three heads that unite to make laws; the Senate, the aim to please both, but it is wholly House of Representatives, and the President, who may sign or veto a aw. If a country can have three aw making powers, why may not a family have two? Why eannot the two confer and agree, on equal terms, in the family, as well as the three can confer and agree in the nation?

But these rectors all agree in telling us further that the promise should be is to be mailed, then, $1.05 must be quired, made and kept because the paid, in order to cover cost of mail-Bible commanded wives to obey their ing. But our correspondents point to us It is for this same reason that you are the reasons Paul gives for the command that wives shall submit themselves to their husbands. It is because "Adam was first formed and then Eve," and Eve was first "in the trans-gression." That reason was good enough for Paul and Timothy and his Ephosians but it is his Ephesians, but it is not good enough for us. Allowing that Adam was formed first, does that make him the better product? We read somewhere that Auld Nature first tried is adorned the most. "I don't know what we should do in this world without boys," said one of the members of a large business house. There seem to be certain functions which only a boy can properly perform, and if a boy—the right kind of a boy, I mean of course—is not forthcoming, one feels at a loss how to get things done at all. We have half a dozen first-rate boys connected with our establishment and I don't know how we could run business smoothly and successfully without them."

The command of the guard is intrusted to eight of the sultan's most faithful generals, two of whom are on duty every night.

Mutilated Silver. Mutilated silver-and by mutilation is meant any perforation of the coin or scratch or defacement upon it-is redeemed by the government at 40 per cent of its face value. This is a little less than the market price of the silver of which it is composed, and purposely so, for it is the federal policy to discourage tampering of any kind with the coin of the realm. It is no crime to pass a mutilated coin, and it is a case of let the receiver beware, for he is the man to be stuck. Probably every merchant in the course of his business every day in the year gets a certain amount of mutilated coin. PEOPLE OF THE DAY HOW PERFUMES ARE MADE.

Care and Skill Requisite In Extracting Essences From Flowers. The manufacture of perfumes deserves to rank as one of the finest arts. The extraction of the essences from flowers, such as jasmine, tuberose, violet and cassia, has long been carried out by the process of enfleurage, the blossoms being left in contact with purified lard for a few days and then replaced by fresh blossoms. The lard is either sold as such or the essential oil may be extracted from it by melting it under strong alcohol. As the process of enfleurage is somewhat tedious, attempts have frequently been made to extract the oil directly from the flowers by means of light petroleum, but these processes have not, as a rule, proved successful, and it has recently been found that a very large proportion of the perfume is actually produced for the first time in the blossoms during the time occupied by the enfleurage

An interesting illustration of this is given by Dr. Albert Hesse in a recent number of the Berichte, in which he states that a ton of tuberose blossoms yielded only sixty-six grams of oil when extracted with light petroleum, but during enfleurage yielded 801 grams of oil to the fat in which they were imbedded, while a further seventy-eight grams remained in the faded blossoms and could be separated by extraction or distillation. It thus appears that eleven times as much perfume is produced during enfleurage as is originally present in the flowers, and that, even after enfleurage, the exhausted flowers contain more perfume than when first gathered.-Chicago

Of these 3,371,789 of the servantless class nearly 500,000 are pigged together three in a room, while 375,000 have half a room each; 354,000 belong to the very poor, 900,000 to the poor. The poor we have always with us to the tune of 30 per cent. The poor and the very poor outnumber all the men, women and children who find themselves on Sunday in church or chapel. Concerning Corn. With a crop of corn 500,000,000 bushels less than that of last year in pros pect many people are jumping to the conclusion that prices for that grain will be proportionately higher than they are now. Therefore they reason this will be a better year to sell corn than to feed it. Corn may be higher than it is now, for the crop is not safe yet, but the effect of the lessened yield has already been discounted in needed than last year. Not so much stock will be fed, nor will so much of the crop be devoted to replenishing the reserves which were practically exhausted when the last crop was harvested. Under these conditions unless there is great damage to the crop by early frost it is well not to expect too much of corn prices.-Stockman and

Purchasing Byproducts. The farmer who has a high grade class of animals, if he knows how to feed them for greatest gains or growth, need not be afraid of investing in some byproducts to balance his farm foods. If the manure is saved its value is greatly improved by feeding rich foods. The cottonseed meal, the wheat bran or gluten meal makes a good profit when fed to well bred animals. In addition to this profit these byproducts add largely of nitrogen, phosphoric acid and potash to the fertilizer from the stables

Increasing the fertility of the land increases the income from the farm. Where farms are getting richer their owners are becoming educated. They surround themselves with the comforts and even with the luxuries of life. They are progressive and feel contented upon the farm.—Indianapolis News.

A New 2-cent Stamp.

Washington, Oct. 5th.—The "flag" postage stamp, which has been in use for about six months, will soon be superseded by a new design, known as the "shield" postage stamp. The Bureau of Engraving is now making the plates, each containing 400 designs, from which the supply of 4,000, 000 of 2-cent stamps for the next year will be printed.

Lost Mail Matter.

That the dead letter office is by no means an unimportant adjunct of the postoffice department is shown by its annual report. The records of the office were broken during the regular fiscal year ended last June.

Over ten million pieces of lost mail were handled. Of this number nearly nine million pieces were hopelessly lost and were opened. During this process over $48,000 in small coin and commercial paper, such as drafts, checks and money orders, amounting o considerably over $1,000,000, were found. There are other details, such as the large number of merchandise parcels and letters containing various amounts of stamps, which are equally interesting, but those mentioned uffice to acquaint one with the volume of business transacted by the

It is rather curious that so vast a bulk of mail matter should go astray. The operations of the postal system are reasonably perfect, and there seems to be no plausible excuse for vagrant letters and other articles intended for mail delivery. The writer's name and address on the outside of the envelope or package, requesting ts return in a certain time if not delivered, would save worry and expense and lessen the annual duties of the dead letter office.—Balto. In the new design the central figure is, of course, Washington, of the Stuart type, similar in a general way to the portrait upon the stamp now in use. The lines of the engraving are, however, not quite so close together, and the bureau experts assert that in the mourners fainted the playars solemn measure while the body was being lowered into the grave. Only a few instruments were needed. I was slowly and solemnly swinging my baton, the spectators were silently weeping, when suddenly the trombone gave a loud long blast, enough to wake the dead. Some of the mourners fainted the playars

"No Chance Mit Me."

The German idea that the place for women is in the house, and not in the church, led recently to a curious complication. In a small town in Pennsylvania there is a female preacher. One ent stamp and the new design lie in the improved photo of Washington, and the abandonment of the flags when she heard a timid knock at the parsonage door. She answered it herself, and found a bashful young German standing on the step. He was a stranger, but the minister greeted him pleasantly and asked him what Duchesse de Berry at Dieppe. Dieppe boasts of being the most ancient of all the "bains de mer." Henri III. repaired thither in 1578 "to bathe in the sea in order to cure certain ailments from which he suffered."

For a long time the l'ieppe baths were reported to be efficacious in cases of hydrophobia. When Henry IV.'s little dog, Fanor, had been bitten by a big dog, supposed to be mad, it was dispatched to Dieppe in charge of a groom of the chamber, "pour etre mouille dans la mer." and Mme. de Sevigne relates that some ladies of the court who had been bitten by a mad log went there in 1671.

It was, however, the Duchesse de Berry who popularized Dieppe. She went there regularly from 1824 to 1830 and once took part in a really remarkable ceremony of inauguration on the beach. While cannon thundered and bells pealed and bands played she publicly entered the water, led by the hand by the "royal medical inspector of the baths," who was attired in evening dress with kid gloves. One would give a great deal for a snap shot of that performance.—Pail Mail Gazette.

The one printed in Massachusetts was Eliot's famous "Indian Bible," and, although 1,500 copies were struck off, they are quite rare and "sealed books," as the tongue in which they are written is literally a "dead language," the tribe and all who had a knowledge of the dia-

Enough. A New York man says that one of the most pathetic remarks he ever heard was made by a youngster who belonged on New York's east side. The little fellow was taken to Coney Island on an outing conducted by a charitable organization. He went down on the beach and stood for several minutes watching the waves rolling in. As far as he could see there was nothing but water, and the expanse of waves and whitecaps fascinated him. Heaving a deep sigh, the little fellow remarked,

"Well, this is the first time I ever saw enough of anything." Professor Mascart has reported to the Paris Academy of Sciences that his observations proved the truth of the statement made by ancient writers that birds flee from cities and countries that are threatened with pestilence. He has found that birds that live in large cities, particularly sparrows and swallows, fly away when se-

Paine's Celery Compound

DYSPEPSIA, INDIGESTION, AND STOMACH TROUBLES.

The tortures and evils of dyspepsia and indigestion are experienced by thousands at this time. The dyspeptic's train of evils may be enumerated as follows: feelings of dizziness, languor, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache, distension of the stomach, loss of flesh, difficult breathing, and the action of the heart is seriously affected.

All forms of dyspepsia are quickly banished by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. The use of this marvelous medicine allays the nflammation of the nerves centred about the stomach; it opens up the sewers of the body and removes all waste matter; it cleanses the blood; it makes new nerve fibre; it restores digestive power, and promotes bodily strength and activity. Mr. Fred. Ross, Clarendon, Iowa, briefly writes about his happy experi-ence with Paine's Celery Compound as "It gives me great pleasure to testify to the merits of Paine's Celery Compound. I can candidly and honestly say it is the best medicine in the world. Two years ago I was suffering from indigestion and nervousness, and was so run down that I could hardly walk without help. I used two bottles of Paine's Celery Compound and got better almost from the first dose, and have had no use for medicine since. I was completely cured."

The following characterization of the Arab penchant for not telling the truth is from a paper by Dr. G. Saint-Paul on the Tunisians: "Arab lying is exasperating. It is absurd and victorious. It triumphs easily over the critical sense and the habit of scientific reasoning. It is sometimes childish. Your native servants will never be taken unawares. You forbid one of them to smoke in your dining room and you surprise him there with a cigarette in 8-29-tf. his mouth. 'You were smoking.' 'No.' 'I saw you.' 'Impossible.' 'You had a cigarette in your mouth; you are hiding it in your hand; there it is!" 'Then God put it in my hand. The native denies always. Taken red handed he denies. Beneath blows he denies. Pain is sometimes powerless to make him confess, even at the point of death. This obstinacy is due in part to the high idea he has of his dignity. His pride forbids him a confession, because the avowal of his lying is infinitely humiliating in his eyes. The fear of losing 'face' is all powerful in him. To recognize a fault is more shameful than to have committed it. Hence the peculiar obstinacy of the native in denying, even when it would be to his interest to confess, an obstinacy not manifested in other ways."

-Journal of American Folk Lore.

A native of Peru has vouched for the following: A native pointed out one day a huge white dog that lay before his wattled house. He declared that his dog had intelligence of an almost human order. He said that once, when it had broken a bone in its foot, he had taken it to a surgeon and the surgeon had set the fracture and relieved it of its pain. Some months afterward, in the middle of the night, the surgeon was awakened by a great scratching at his door and by a thumping as of some heavy body. He slipped ing as of some heavy body. He slipped on a dressing gown and went down, to find the white dog in his garden with a brown dog beside it that held one bundle Rye Straw, new. 10 00@10.00 blended with sympathy.
