punishment, but discretion, not excess of authority or abuse of discretion, is neces-sary. "The previous character and reputation of the traverser was good and he was held in respect and esteem. During the trial testi-mony of which any man might be proud was given in behalf of the accused, but evidence of the character does not affect a case of this kind, as it might some others. "Great care and unusual deliberation has been given this case owing to its delicate nature. That the whipping occurred no one will deny, but there is considerable discus-sion and doubt as to when and how it oc-curred. Concerning the condition of the boy's back there were differences of testi-mony, some of the witnesses giving testi-mony, some of the witnesses giving testi-mony even stronger than the child himself. "The boy was of tender years and the con-dition in which his back was found was one whild cannot be approved of by the court. The condition was there. The boy was whip-ped on Thursday and was found in this con-dition on Sunday, and there has been no sat-isfactory explanation offered. "An attempt has been made to show that the injuries might have been inflicted by someone else connected with the place." "This condition should have shown that the condition was not the result of the whip-ping by proving the condition of the boy's back after the whipping. There should have been some means of explaining the cond-tion of the boy's back. The fact that there was not has had a great deal of influence was not has had a great deal of influence. "The evidence in this case has been thor-oughly examined and discussed and a ver-dict of guilty has been found."

Judge Jones read the yerdict, and said by way of comment; "Never in the history of this court has there been a case more difficult to decide than the one now before us, owing to its deli-cate nature, and before giving the decision it would be better to speak briefly concern-ing the position of the accused. "The case, on the one hand, involves the protection of children of a very unfortunate class and on the other hand the care of such thildren by institutions. Usually the ques-tion to be decided is a very narrow one, the usual. CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 6-Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle. us.-Heb. xi, 1-40.

The eleventh chapter of Hebrews is one of great interest and inspiration. and who because of their faith in Him made their lives count and "obtained a good report." Heroes indeed and heroes of faith! Not by might nor by power, but by faith in God, they "subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of aliens." As heroic deeds inspire to emulation, so also should the faith of heroes, and from a study of this chapter our faith in God through Jesus Christ should be more firmly established.

The faith of these ancient heroes possessed several important characteristics. (1) It was faith in God. The faith defined and illustrated here is not distinctive Christian faith. Saving faith in Jesus Christ is something entirely different. This was faith in God, in His power and in His promises. Such faith always preceeds Christian faith. It should exist in every human heart and prepare the way for saving faith in Christ. (2) It was a practical faith. Some religious faith is not practical. It is not applied to the daily affairs of life. We believe, but do not live by our beliefs. Not so was it with these Old Testament worthies. They based their lives upon their faith. Dangers, difficulties, trials and afflictions had no terrors for them because of their faith in God. Our faith should be practical.

It should sustain us in difficulty, inspire us to duty and comfort us in trial and affliction. A fruitless faith is a worthless faith. (3) It was an adaptable faith. The experiences of none of these worthies were exactly alike, yet faith in God was adaptable to every experience. Nor is there any condition or experience in life where faith in God will not sustain us. It is able to meet the wants and needs of every human heart and life.

The numbers of the heroes of faith are also worthy of our attention. Many are also worthy of our attention. Many young people have the erroneous idea that but few of the world's great men have been men of faith. The impres-sion somehow provide that and how you are, and how good it is to see boys and girls growing up to take places in the life of the town as citizens and homemakers. Nor has the Jewish nation been peculiar in this respect. The world's truly great men have all believed in God. Therefore, we should not hesitate to believe and to act up to our faith. Enlargement.

Let us increase our working forces. Every manufacturing plant when it decides to do more business adds to its horse power. The soul power of the Christian Endeavor society is the active membership. Enlarge your active membership. Every real active member won is a new force added to the dynamics of the kingdom of heaven. Do not overwork the story of Gideon and his 300. It does not teach that God prefers to work with the few rather than the many. Ten thousand Gideonites are better than 300-only see that they are Gideonites. Let us get away forever from the heresy that a Christian Endeavor society is a little club of like minded young people who meet together once a week for a pleasant little conclave of a religious character. A good Endeavor society may be very small, but it is always as large as its field allows .--Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark in President's Annual Address at Denver Convention.

Courting in Ireland.

The Irish way of courting in the old days and in quiet country places even to the present day, was and is very different from that style of thing which makes the subject of many finely painted romances. There no stolen interviews, no twilight walks, no thought of kisses or even hand clasps-inshort, no love making what-ever. But if they were at reaping or hay-making Peter took his place next to Rosie, help to bind her sheaves when his own were done and at noon-day took his share of the soda cake and his draught of milk from her hands. Then in the quiet evening, most plausible or convenient at the moment. But the effect is more farwhen the work was done and the evening meal was over, Peter would rise and look out of the door and say to his father or sisters: "'Tis a fine night. I think I'll go for a bit of a stroll." reaching, and more serious than men realize And a bit of a stroll invariably ended on the narrow path through the whin ushes up to the stile, over which it was but three steps into Alec McCrossan's haggard, and then across to where the firelight shown welcoming through the open door Around the fire the family circle was widened for him, as a matter of course. Maybe he took a draw at the ipe, and maybe he didn't. Anyhow he would sit there quiet and content-ed for long enough, talking all the time to McCrossan or the neighboring lungs. Like other weeds it's men, but with quiet, hap y eyes watching Rosie, the loyed and chosen when old, sometimes im- one, as she sat in the flickering light or moved about the room. And there was a gleam in her eyes and a smile on her lips which told he was welcome and bade him stay long and come again soon, and in his heart was a firm resolve, as soon as ever he saw his way to marrying, that he would have Rosie and no other.

Italian Monuments In Danger.

L'Avenire of Bologna states on the authority of Signor Vedrasco, a well known Venetian engineer, that the tower of San Giorgio del Greci is in danger of falling. This fine campanile, which is nearly 400 feet in height, is more than 400 years old. Signor Vedrasco says that the inclination of the Clean your old clothes with Lum | tower, which was observed to be about has been slowly increasing until now it is more than three feet out of the perpendicular. In his opinion the campanile must soon succumb unless measures to restore it are instantly taken. It would naturally fall into the canal of San Paolo. Recently one of the great stones of the portico of Octavia fell in consequence of a storm. The report was for a time current that the whole monument was threatened. There is, however, no danger of further damage.
