FROM THE COUNTY AND STATE. Brief Items of General Interest from our Exchanges and Contributors.

Some Harford county people have started a crusade against reckless driving of automobiles on the public highways, and similar movements have been made in other sections of the State. It is more than likely that there will be some legislation on this subject at Annapolis this winter

In view of the fact that many thousands of people in all parts of the country are interested in the result of a guessing contest as to the number of cigars on which tax was paid in November, the Internal Revenue Bureau asks that public announcement be made. The number is officially stated to have been 578,157,470. When a splinter has been driven

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue has made a ruling relative to the practice of many eigar dealers in removing the lids of eigar boxes in order to display the goods in show cases, the lids, however, being placed under the boxes. The Commissioner holds that to divide the lid from the

Of these six have returned to their homes cured. Four more are ready to go. Four have been discharged for misconduct. One was returned as incurable. Two are much im-proved. One died from excessive, surreptitious use of tobacco. The remainder are improving.

A clerk in Chicago stole $12,000 from his employers, at the rate of $100 a day. His excuse is that he spent the money "living like a white man," and that "a white man can't live on $9 a week. In the first place, this is not a truthful excuse, as there are a great many decent, honest and altoplace, it is no excuse at all; for while it is good policy to pay men in responsible positions high wages, they are not justified in stealing if they get low salaries. Mr. Eyler was in his 56th. year, and has been a resident of D. P. Creek for many years. He was a man of considerable means, as he owned a good farm adjoining the village, as well as a residence, and a property in Bruceville. THE REPLIES RECEIVED.

Interesting Comment on the RECORD from Observing Readers.

In our issue of Dec. 5th., we asked five questions, the object of which being to find out, if possible, from our readers, how the RECORD might be improved. It was then stated that all replies received would be published in the first issue of January, and this we do, although the number of replies received has been very disappointing. Presumatly, we are to believe that "no news, is good news," and yet, the fewness of the replies somehow indicates to us the same lack of interest, on the part of the people, displayed in too many matters in which they should be more wide awake and assertive. Each paragraph, as given below, is the expression of a different cause we do not find quack medicine advertisements and light matter interspersed with the news.

The giving of considerable news in small space. Your paper reminds me somewhat of the Literary Digest, and that feature I think is commendable, as it makes the paper valuable to a busy man. Again, I like the pureness and sincerity of its editorials.

We like the items from correspondents, best; the Arizona and College Park letters, next, and then the editorials. I like the first because I am desirous of knowing what our neighbors and acquaintances are saying and doing; the second, because they are both interesting and instructive; the last, because I wish to know the Editor's opinions on subjects that seem of vital importance to me.

I like the Record because it is clean and newsy. It's type is plain, the paper good, and it's editorials are practical and easily understood by all who can read and think.

I would like to say that I greatly enjoy the articles on the Christian Endeavor topics and find them very useful; enjoy the jokes which you scatter through your paper and commend your selection of them, as they are generally very wholesome and rich.

The feature I like most about the Record is that it is a nice clean paper, giving the news in a concise manner, also "When you see it in the Record, it is so."

The one thing I dislike is, that "John Jones tichered his fat hogs last week." Of course e did if he is an up-to-date provider for the the, so what is the use of publishing the No. 3-What feature of the RECORD

The only thing to be desired in the Record is more local (Taneytown) news. We suggest a special reporter for this department.

The feature that can be changed is the ads. It is not very good proof that there is anything doing in the town when the merchant has the same stock of goods advertised week in and week out. If he sells one stock and buys another, let him say so. It doesn't cost much to change an ad and sounds better. Laces, fans, mitts and muslin, are not strictly winter furnishings.

Christmas service at the Lutheran church was held on Christmas eve.
The program was well rendered and favorably received. The features that were specially pleasing were the trimming of the Christmas tree by the children of the primary department, and the tableaux representing the Nativity of Christ. The school received the usual treat. Special gifts were presented to the organists. Misses Belle Cover and Minnie Sittig. The pastor, Rev. G. W. The Christmas entertainment held by the Church of God Sunday school, on Wednesday evening of last week, was given in an unusually attractive manuer to a crowded house. The music was pronounced to be the best eyer rendered. The decorations were a marvel of beauty. The chief feature was a large painted canvas, representing the hills and sky of Judea, and in the foreground were the plains with the Shepherd and his crook surrounded by his sheep. The church was gracefully festooned with ropes of pine, and a large Christmas tree filled one corner of the church. The children rendered their parts very creditably. The annual treat was given, consisting of an orange and a box of candy. There was a general

Tell Your Representatives.

We have offered the advice before and will do so again. If our readers have ideas, founded on firm convictions, as to what should be done at Annapolis this winter in the way of legislation, they should either see, or write to, their county representatives, telling them plainly their views, and ask for such measures to be given active support. Unless this is done, our representatives will be excusable in taking their own course, as they cannot represent a constituency without knowing what that constituency

Have you decided yiews on the public school question? Do you want compulsory school attendance, or better paid teachers? Do you want the pensioning of teachers increased and continued, and are you in favor of the consolidation of schools? If yea, or nay, let your representatives know it.

Do you want better roads? If so, what is your plan to secure them? Are you in favor of the Haman bill? Do you want the present system continued, or are you in favor of increased state and county taxes for the purpose? Let your representatives know what yourself and the residents of your community want in this direcvotes? Are you satisfied with present laws, under which it seems impossible to secure the evidence necessary to prosecute the buyer and seller? Do you believe that the laws should be so changed as to allow the seller, for instance, give information against the buyer, without incriminating himself? Whatever your ideas may be on the subject, why not speak out plainly to your representatives?

How about the present election law? Would you like to see it so changed as to prevent the rejection of 1000 votes in Carroll county at each ties? Do you not think that the present ballot disfranchises very many of our best citizens, and that this should not be? If you know so, and want a change, why not tell your representatives so in no uncertain language?

Are you in favor of continuing big state appropriations to colleges, and to already powerful schools and semireligious institutions, from which the general public does not receive adequate return? Do you have an idea that these same pensioners on the bounty of the state will not be on hand at Annapolis again this year, with influence and lobbying, to secure a renewal of their "grafts" Whatever you think on this subject, let your representatives know it, or, keep quiet after the session is over when the high-toned beggars go home amply satisfied.

What think you of further legislation toward disfranchising the negro voter? True, you may have a chance at this, later, when a probable amendment to the State Constitution may come before the people for adoption; but, now is the time to show your pleasure or displeasure with such a proposition, and the proper place to show it is to your elected representatives, who, alone, now I ave the power to vote on the subject.

Whatever else, not above enumerated, you would like to have done, or undone, at Annapolis, go to your representatives about; personally, if Some persons think that because they may not have voted for the members elect, they have no influence with them, or no right to expect favors. This is a mistake. We are to assume that the result of the election was the voice of the majority; but, this does not mean that the minority has nothing to say. It is really a question whether a single one of the issues mentioned was decided at the polls-not excepting the so-called negro disfranchise ment, which is now heralded in some quarters as having already been settied. Therefore, consider that you are one of "the people" and stand up for your opinions. Your representatives have no right to weigh your politics against what you want, if what you want is desirable, and they ed deeply though they do their utare not likely to do so; because, after while they will return to private life juvenile judges. with public records to face and de-1904.-Eph. iv, 11-16. The kind of growth I need in 1904 depends entirely upon the condition of my moral and spiritual character at the beginning of 1904. What God wants us each one to be is a symmetrical, well balanced, full rounded Christian. No Christian grace should be abnormally developed. No one should be given such prominence as to dwarf the others and give them no opportunity for growth. Each Christian grace is to be so normally developed that when they are all taken together they will present a perfect spiritual life, as when the members of the body are so evenly developed that in the aggregate they This being the aim, we must therefore grow in the graces in which we are deficient. The missing grace is to be added and the weak grace to be strengthened. Therefore to grow intelligently we must examine ourselves as to our needs so that they may be supplied.

NEW YEAR'S CARDS.

They Originated In Japan, Where They Are Now Obsolete. In Japan originated the art of making and the custom of exchanging New Year cards. Today both are as obsolete in the Flowery Kingdom as is New Year's calling in the United States. More charming art, more delightful custom, are not numbered among the good things that have passed away to suffer in their time, let us hope, a happy revival. For more than a hundred years the designing and coloring of New Year cards occupied the attention of the foremost draftsmen and wood engravers of Japan. They were made at the command of the noblemen of the emperor's court. In size they were from six to eight inches, and each was inscribed with a poetic sentiment dictated by the noble giving the order. They were printed from five or six blocks, each color requiring, as in modern color printing, a separate block. The blocks were the property of the noble, who retained or destroyed them at will. No reprints for another were ever permitted. A nobleman's New Year card was like his coat of arms or his sword. The surimonos, as Japan's New Year's cards were called, were designed specially to please some ladylove.-New York Press.

NEW YEAR'S IN OMAR'S DAY

It Was Celebrated In the Springtime Nine Centuries Ago. Now the new year reviving old desires, The thoughtful soul to solitude retires; Ah, my beloved, fill the cup that clears Today of past regret and future fears. So sang old Omar, the Persian poet, nine centuries ago, and we of today can but echo his thoughts at this New Year's season of resolution and festivity, though kingdoms have risen and fallen, old nations have decayed and new ones sprung up and we live in a country where sentiments of freedom and justice abound, for the human emotions remain much the same whatever the time or clime in which we live, whatever the religious influences which govern us. Of course in the time of Omar in most countries the new year was celebrated in March, that being the beginning of the vernal equinox, and as it is the season when everything in nature is given new birth the ancients probably for this reason considered it a suitable time to begin their year also. Christianity, however, made a distinct break, and finally in the sixteenth century Jan. 1 was settled on by common consent in all continental countries.

Every 1st of January that we arrive at is an imaginary milestone in the turnpike track of human life, at once a resting place for thought and meditation and a starting point for fresh exertion in the performance of our

Thirty Years with a Shrew.

(The following rather remarkable poetic production has heretofore appeared in our columns, but we republish it at the request of a reader.

St. Peter stood guard at the Golden Gate With a solemn mien and air sedate, When up to the top of the Golden Stair A man and a woman ascended there Applied for admission. They came and stood Before St. Peter so great and good, In hope the City of Peace to win, And asked St. Peter to let them in.

The woman was tall, lank and thin,
With a scraggy beardlet upon her chin,
The man was short and thick and stout,
His stomach was built so it rounded out;
His face was pleasant, and all the while,
He wore a kindly and genial smile.
The choir in the distance the echo awoke,
And the man kept still while the woman spoke.

"O thou, who guardest the gates," said she,
"We come hither beseeching thee
To let us enter the neavenly Land
And play our harps with the angel band,
Of me, Sc. Peter, there is no doubt,
There's nothing from Heaven to barr me out.
I've been to meeting three times a week,
And almost always I'd rise to seak.

I've told the sinners about the day
When they'd repent of their evil ways:
I told my neighbor—I've told them all
'Bout Adam and Eve and their Primal Fall;
I've shown them what they'd have to do
If they pass in with the chosen few.
I've marked their path of duty clear,
Laid out the plan for their whole career. I've talked and talked to them loud and long for my lungs are good and my voice is strong;

So good St. Peter you'll clearly see
The gate of Heaven is open to me.
But my old man, I regret to say,
Hasn't walked exactly the narrow way,
He smokes and he swears and grave faults he's got, And I don't know if he'll pass or not.

He never would pray with an earnest vim, Or go to revival, or join in a hymn; He ate what the pantry chose to afford, While I, in my purity went to the Lord, And if, cucumbers were all he got, It's a chance if he merited them or not.

It's a narrow gospel by which I pray, But the chosen expect to find the way Of coaxing, or fooling, or bribing you, So that their relatives can amble through; And say, St. Peter, it seems to me The gate isn't kept as it ought to be, You should stand right by the opening there, And never sit down in that easy chair.

St. Peter sat quiet and stroked his staff,
But spite of his office he had to laugh;
Then he said with a flery gleam in his eye,
"Who's attending this gate, you or 1?"
And then he rose in his statue tall,
And pressed the button upon the wall,
And said to the imp who answered the bell,
"Escort this lady around to hell." The man stood still as a piece of stone,

Stood sadly, gloomly there alone;
A life-long settled idea he had
That his wife was good and he was bad.
He thought if the woman went down below
That he would certainly have to go;
That if she went to the regions dim;
There wasn't a ghost of a chance for him. Slowly he turned by habit bent,
To follow wherever the woman went.
St. Peter standing on duty there,
Observed the top of his head was bare;
He called the gentleman back and said
"Friend, how long have you been wed?"
"Thirty years," with a weary sigh)
And then he thoughtfully added, "Why?" St. Peter was silent. With head bowed down He raised his hand to rub his crown,
Then seeming a different thought to take,
Slowly half to himself he spoke:
"Thirty years with that woman there?
No wonder the man hasn't any hair;
swearing is wicked, smoking isn't good,
He smoked and swore, I should think he would.

Thirty years with a tongue so sharp? Ho Angel Gabriel! give him a harp, A jeweled harp with a golden string; Good Sir, pass in where the angels sing. Gabriel, give him a seat alone—one with a cushion—up near the throne; Call up some angels to play their best, Let him enjoy the music and the rest. See that on the finest ambrosia he feeds;
He's had about all the hades he needs,
It isn't just hardly the thing to do,
To roast him on earth and the future too,"
They gave him a harp with golden strings,
A glittering robe and a pair of wings,
And he said as he entered the realms of Day,
"Well, this beats cucumbers anyway."
And so the Scripture has come to pass
That "The last shall be first
And the first shall be last."

The practice of hazing is a very bad one, and is often carried to extremes. It does seem to me that in any institution of learning there should be culture and refinement enough to prevent such outrages as are sometimes practiced. Dora tells us of a pleasant outing on Thanksgiving day. That must have been a delightful drive; sorry I could not go too. I once had visions of seeing that lovely country, the land of sunshine and flowers; I will not despair yet, but hope on and maybe some sweet day will find me there. I think holly is so very pretty; only saw it growing once. It was in this State, in Prince George's Co. It was beautiful, growing in hedges by the wayside. We gathered quite a bunch and tied it up to the inside of the carriage, but when we got hon it was not so pretty, as the wind and dust had spoiled it some.

For, when he placed his clothing on the hook in the booth, it was in the custody of the storekeepers, and they were responsible for what they may reasonably expect a man to carry in his pockets. But they were not responsible for the diamond ring, for they could not be presumed to know that he might carry a valuable ring in his pocket. The notice above referred to was no bar to the man's recovery, until they proved that he had read it, which they could not do. THEY MET AGAIN.

A Tale of a Summer Romance at the Seashore. As he pushed his luncheon check an "Why, Gertie-er-I mean Miss Ross." he exclaimed, "I need not say I am astonished to see you here. I wrote to you at-did you get my letter?" he asked anxiously.

"Oh, I got it all right," she answered sweetly, passing back a dime in change "It is in my bureau drawer at home But I shan't pay any attention to the nice things you said," she continued. with a blush. "I wasn't responsible for the girls down at S'conset telling you I was the only daughter of a rich contractor any more than you were for the man who drove the stage to the station telling me you were not a Wall street broker, but a collector for the

"But, Miss Gertie, I-I"-"It is all right, Mr. Summerman. Please don't stop to talk here. You are blocking the line. But if you care to call on us in Harlem I'm sure mamma will be glad to see you. You know the address. I didn't answer your letter because you don't live at the address you gave me. I have a friend who boards there, and she knows a 'Well," he muttered as he wandered dreamily away, "I've rung in a change
