C. E. STATE CONVENTION.

An Enthusiastic Gathering and an Excellent Program.

The 14th. convention of the Maryland C. E. Union convened in Westminster, on Wednesday morning, with a very satisfactory attendance, yet not as large as was expected. The convention was called to order by State President, George K. Mather, the devotional exercieses being in charge of Rev. C. E. Mc-Cullough, of Uniontown.

The first address was by Rev. J. M.
Holmes, of Baltimore, on "Bible Study."
W. C. Perkins, an ex-president, delivered an address on "Uses of Christian Endeavor Unions." H. M. Hanna, of Belair, spoke on the "Good of Christian Endeavor Conventions," and favored Endeavor Conventions," and favored annual, rather than bi-ennial conventions of the Union. The last speaker was Rev. T. Holmes Walker, of Balti-

The afternoon session opened with a devotional service, led by J. P. T. Mathias, of Thurmont. W. M. Robinson, the state secretary, submitted his report, by which it appears that the number of societies in the state, including the juniors, is 411. The total membership f the Christian Endeavor societies is 10,800, and of the junior societies 4,200, an increase in the total of 2,200 during the year. The societies raised for all purposes $8,481.04, of which $3,200 went to missions, $3,700 to their churches and $1,400 to other benevolent objects. Seventy-six of the societies showed an increase of 10 per cent and over in mem-

The report of M. E. Reddick, the treasurer, was submitted, showing the the Historical and Industrial edition, receipts of the union for its own purposes during the year to have been $991.12 and the disbursements, $987.65. After adjournment a junior rally was held at Grace Lutheran Church, where skill. Game Sent to Market.

Game of various descriptions is now which to work for the next four years being displayed for sale at the different market stalls and larger grocery stores of the city. While the shooting season for game in most of the counties in Maryland did not open until yesterday, rabbits, squirrels, quail and pheasants, as well as venison, are arriving in the local It is yet rather early to give an accurate indication of the prospects for hunting this season, although the general feeling among commission men is that this will be a good year for game. The game thus far received has been in very good condition, which commission men attribute to the chilly, frosty weather prevailing for the past week or so. Hundreds of rabbits have been received ed in the market during the past two days, and, while as a rule they are rather young and small, they have shown good conditon. The best variety of Maryland rabbits sold at wholesale to-day as high as $3 a dozen, while the inferior grades sold at from $1.50 a dozen up-

Squirrels are being received in much smaller quantities than rabbits. The condition of the arrivals, however, has been good. Partridges are also being received in limited quantities, and on the wharf to-day they were quoted at from $2 to $3, according to size and condition In some of the counties the season for partridges opened on October 15.-Balt.

It has pleased Almighty God to bring the American people in safety and honor through another year, and in accordance through another year, and in accordance with the long unbroken custom handed down to us by our forefathers, the time that you can fold it back just as it was down to us by our foreraters, the has come when a special day shall be set apart in which to thank Him who Do not unner to us. During the century and a quarter of our national life, we, as a people, have been blessed beyond all others, and for this we owe humble and heartfelt thanks to the Author of all blessings. The year that has closed has been one of peace within our own borders, as well as between us and all other nations. The harvests have been abundant, and those who work, whether with hand or brain, are prospering greatly. Reward has waited upon honest effort. We have been enabled to do our duty to ourselves and to others. Never has there been a time when religious and charitable effort has been more evident. How to Count the Ballots.

Our wonderful election law is continually developing new complications so that it is necessary, each year, to have new legal opinions given to cover new possibilities. The danger in this is clearly evident; it gives one man (the Attorney-General) a power far beyond that which should be vested in one man on such a vital subject as determining the intention of voters.

Attorney-General Bryan is so thoroughly convinced of the iniquity of our present law that he has expressed himself as It think that all these questions, some of them perplexing, which arise as to the proper method of counting the ballots, and as to the right of a candidate to have his name upon the official ballot, demon-

The unvarnished statement made by Attorney-General Bryan, that our entire election law should be repealed and a return made to old-fashioned methods, is not likely to be relished by the managers of his party, but it is undoubtedly true that by far the greater portion of the voters of the state are in favor of of the politicians who see in the present laws possibly indefinite control of the state. Should it at any time be demonstrated that the laws and ballot do not mean this, they too will gladly abandon the miserable system.

It is encouraging that such emphatic condemnation of the law should come gence of its family of readers. from a democratic state officer, and esthat he is opposed to further jugglery,

"I think that all these questions, some of them perplexing, which arise as to the proper method of counting the ballots and as to the right of a candidate to have his name upon the official ballot, demonstrate the wisdom of repealing our whole system of voting and of going back to the old-fashioned methods.

"It is a good thing to prohibit elec-tioneering within 100 feet of the polls; it prevents fraud. It is also wise to have a matter of skill and chance and not, as it should be, a simple and easy method of ascertaining the popular will."

As we have repeatedly stated, the law does not stand for intelligent voting, nor even for the disfranchisement of negro voters. It is an arbitrary, dishonestly conceived and cruelly enforced law, to make the best of it.

The End of the Battle.

Before another issue, the contest for the Presidency will have been decided by the people, and for another four years National politics will have a rest. The in a general sense, because of its comparative quiet, lack of vituperation, and the fact that it is had little or no effect on business. In a special sense it has been exceptional because no great issue -like money, or the tariff-was at the front, and because neither party has seen fit to make the subject of trusts one of paramount importance.

The campaign has essentially been one of party against party, with neither side and administrative intolerance may obfully united on all questions, but with the closest union on the Republican side. To this latter fact may be attributed the the result, a feeling which seems to be shared, more or less, throughout the been giving odds on Roosevelt.

There is not, however, any sure taches to the proper placing of the hundreds of thousands of votes which have have been killed off by the rinderpest. in late years been uncertain for either party's candidate, renders even approximate figuring decidedly uncertain; and this condition is added to by the fact that in a number of important states, such as New York, New Jersey, Wisconsin and West Virginia, state issues are of such importance as to render mixed results quite probable.

The general prosperity of the country, too, has contributed its share of calmness to the campaign, and the fact that no great change is to be looked for on this score-no matter which side wins-renders either victory or defeat somewhat tame, from a business standpoint-a standpoint which, by the way, determines most of the affairs of our country in the present age, whether political or otherwise. A summing up, therefore, inclines one to the belief that the country is safe, and will be safe, no matter what the ballots may say on November

Senator Lodge's characterization of President Roosevelt is the sincere tribute of a near and true friend. The trusted political adviser as well as the intimate personal friend of the President, Senator Lodge writes with authority of his interesting subject. He declares his belief that "no man has lived the life of his time so amply as he; no one has known humanity in so many phases, no one has wider sympathies or so many interests." President Roosevelt's real "strenuousness," he says, is simply "the well-ordered activity of a very busy man of energy, a man who thinks and acts quickly, of high ideals, unquestioned integrity and unwavering courage." In conclusion he finds in Theodore Roosevelt, "the typical American," a "brave man an honest man; very human, with no vain pretense to infallibility * * * simple in his home life, democratic in ways, with the highest education that the world can give, kind to the weak, tender and loyal and true, never quarrelsome, but never afraid to fight, with a strong, sane sense "The use to which he has put these qualities of heart and character," Senator Lodge adds, "is cut pretty deep into the history of our last twenty-five years." Every voter will enjoy and profit by this opportunity of studying the two Presidential candidates in the white light of intimate acquaintance and high stand-

It is undeniable that many of the accidents which occur are largely contributed to, if not directly caused by,the long hours of duty to which trainmen uniformly enforced in every case where are subjected. It was pointed out on behalf of the company in this Glenwood case that the company rules permitted employees to take ten hours' rest after they had been on duty sixteen hours. It is a universal rule with railroad companies to permit a period of rest after a certain period of duty before employees are called upon 5 cents. to go on duty again. But the trouble is that these rules are permissive, not mandatory. They do not compel employees to take rest unless the employees themselves think they need it, and as a consequence, the necessities of the roads, sometimes get forty and fifty bushels to growing out of the movement of traffic, coupled with the greed of the men, who in many cases overwork themselves in order to achieve a big month's pay,

Topic.—Some of God's promises that cheer me.—II Pet. i, 1-4. (A promise meet-

By REV. S. H. DOYLE. The promises of God as given in His word appeal in some way to almost all His people, yet there are promises that are especially precious to particular people or at particular times. One of the most precious facts concerning the promises of Gou is their numberover 30,000-and with the number their variety. Peter has well called them "exceeding great and precious promises." They are not few in numbers and limited to a small number of people, but like the sands of the sea for multitude and capable of being applied to every phase and condition in human life. The sinner mourning over his sin may read the precious promise, "Though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they affliction can hear God say, "When thou passeth through the waters I will be with thee, and through the rivers they shall not overflow thee, and when thou walkest through the fire thou shalt not be burned." To the sin burdened and care worn comes the Masand I will give you rest." To the Marys and Marthas there is the promise, "Thy brother shall live again;" to the lonely, "So I am with thee always," and to the dying, "In my father's house are many mansions," and "Blessed are the dead that die in the almost without end. No situation of sin or sorrow or adversity can be found in life but what there is a promise in the word of God to cheer the one passing through it.

lean more absolutely upon the promises of God than we do. They are "exceeding great and precious," and yet while we know them and can repeat numbers of them from memory we do not always lean upon them in the hour of need. We have the promise that "all things work together for good to them that love God," and yet when adversity comes to many who profess to love God, instead of accepting this truth they have their faith shaken in God and in His promises. No wonder therefore that they do not cheer and comfort us. But such an attitude toward God's promises is a miserably false one. If we faced bankruptcy and our earthly father who was im mensely rich had said to us, "If you get into financial difficulty draw on me," we would not spend sleepless nights worrying and wondering if we had an earthly father and if he really would do what he said. If wise children we would take him at his word, and then, by increased love and honor toward him, repay him for his help. Let us trust God in the same way. Let us take Him at His word to us. Let us, as His children, accept His promises in the hour of need, and then to repay Him let us love Him more and consecrate our lives more entirely to Him. He cannot fail us, for "He is faithful that promised.'

Interviewing Dr. Clark. Just after Dr. Clark touched English shores, completing a voyage from South Africa, he was interviewed for the Christian World of London. Some things he said are of wide significance When the reporter asked him, "You have found no signs of decay, no in stances of failure?" he replied:

"No signs of decay, but everywhere tokens of present increase and future promise. Here and there, but not very often, I have heard of societies that have fallen off or dropped out, but these have been comparatively few And I have had opportunities of comparison. Twelve years ago, when first visited Adelaide, there were five Junior societies. Now South Australia has 160. When I first went to Victoria there were six societies there; on this last visit I was told of 230. And the unions, made up of many societies, grow and prosper. Nearly all are doing splendid work. Only in one union did I find anything like sagging, but I am convinced that that was only temporary and that the union in question has already entered on an area of progress. As a matter of fact, it has taken up the increase campaign.

"Some of my most interesting experiences were in South Africa. Of course there have been somewhat strained relations since the war, and there are now two unions-the Dutch and the British. But there are two Boers on the South African executive committee, and at a meeting in the great hall of Adderley Street Reformed church, Cape Town, there were duplicate mottoes in English and Dutch and the hymns and prayers were in the two larguages.

The Automobile Subject.

Selfishness of Machine Travelers. A few days ago I met a farmer driving and by his side upon his seat I saw a large revolver. I called to him, and asked what he intended to shoot, and passing through the deep waters of scared his team and smashed his wagon few days ago, and that the owners of bile he met was going to stop until he got by. So far I have been lucky. Every automobile driver I met has been boiling. Whether scalded or dry picked a gentleman, and has halted his machine at the side of the road and given me a ter's precious promise, "Come unto Me all ye that are weary and heavy laden chance to pass with safety. In fact several have alighted from the machines, lowing that horses are not so much afraid of it with a human being standing by it. But the stories we hear of the artlessness, selfishness and the insolence of some of these machine travelers have a tendency to prejudice against allowing them the use of the roads. There was a time when bicycle people were Lord." Thus it might be continued just as selfish. I have seen a wheelman make women and children who were probably in as great haste as the wheelnan step aside into the mud and slush andwait until he passed by.

These machine travelers are the ones who can and should wait. They can clean. We should, as the children of God, travel so fast that a minute delay is nothing to them. Common sense and common politeness should impel them to give the one with the slower vehicle the chance to gain time. But few do so. It matters not to them whether the road is wide or narrow, whether at the approach of a bridge or elsewhere; on they go, and without stopping to observe the results. I notice that some of the more respectble and responsible automobile people of Pittsburg have come out strongly gainst the practice of fast riding. This s good. Now, if they will teach all fauto" drivers to be polite to people riving, and to sidetrack their machines minute when necessary, and to have a ittle consideration for those whom they meet, the question will soon settle itself. -Richard H. Wood in Tribune Farmer.

An Indiana Opinion. Being an interested observer for the public good, I have clipped from the public good, I have clipped from the newspapers some fifty notices of accidents occasioned by the devil-dragon, known as the automobile. The results ave been broken limbs, wounds, bruiss, deaths and wrecked wagons, and uined teams, with doctor bills to match not to mention the suffering of weeks by the families afflicted. I am led to apply this "pleasure car" the remark of Davy Crockett, upon his first seeing a occomotive: "Hell on wheels! Lord, how tion that will positively prohibit the right of way on the public thoroughfares, of any motor power vehicle that is used as a menuer to the life limits. The control of the of others. If such legislation excludes the use even of the traction engine, how ever useful, it will have to go, for there s nothing more precious than human ife, and the right to live over against naking money, or the godless maddenng pursuit of pleasure for the mere sake f selfish gratification, as evidenced in the use of the automobiles. We speak f the traction engine as being included necessary, to secure a law that will ule out tee automobile. It is to be oped that the traction engine will stay n the ground of utility.

The auto is to be classed with the omotive, and has no more right than to a place on the thoroughfares. It is not a necessary element in our ustrial life as is the traction engine. belongs to the sporting realm; is a blendid machine on which to wager a et; a thing of wealth and luxury, and ruled out from the things that meet the essities of our civilization. There is aly one way to bring it under control exclusive right of way secured from the public, as the right of railroads erated under such restrictions as will not interfere with carriage and wagon ransit of the public roads. In a word, auto roads, as we have railroads, dis-inctly and exclusively used for auto raffic, racing, fun and frolic. It is the only solution of this vexed problem. In another paper I will outline a bill suitarmers in every county of the State hould organize to secure legislation at he next legislature. Many of the autosts are gentlemen and kindly disposed, but, like poor dog Tray, they are found in a company the majority of whom do not care for the life and limb of others. o whom it is the race of terror and leath, while it is a mere pastime of comort and sport to the "lords of the tub," flying in sumptuous attire at breakneck speed.—W. V. Pierce, in Indiana Farm-Good Roads and Automobiles. Recently, in a county in Central Penn-Recently, in a county in Central Pennsylvania, the writer passed over a most excellent piece of highway, built by the State Engineer under the law now in operation in this State. This piece of good road was soon passed over and then we came to a road nearly as bad as a country road could be. The remark was made to the driver that it would be well to extend the good road. The reply to extend the good road. The reply was: "It will not be done. The farmers believe that it will cause automoconvenient for a man to go to town, and the women go, but no man will trust his woman to drive on a road frequented by automobiles." I have heard this statement several times recently in this

In my own experience I was recently saved only by a good driver. One of these machines came dashing at us at a earful rate and frightened our horse, but the driver was able to control him. It ould not seem proper to permit steam occomotives to run on the public roads s the machines called antomobiles are permitted to run, yet one is a locomotive is much as the other, and just as dangerous. In this State it is becoming lear that we must have more stringen aws to regulate them. -Dr. G. G. Groff

Lewisburg, Pa.
Dr. Groff is well within limits in his refined of fats, especially prepared for easy digestion.

Feeding him fat in this way, which is often the only way, is half the battle, but Scott's Emulsion does more

Dr. Groff is well within limits in his comparison. The railway locomotive runs on a distinctly visible track; if this were on a public highway the horse driver would have only to keep off this and he is safe, except for the danger resulting from his horse taking fright. The railway locomotive runs on a distinctly visible track; if this were on a public highway the horse driver acting automobile may be on any side, or on both sides, of the road, despite the good intentions of the driver. For example, take the following, clipped from ample, take the following, clipped from a little local paper. Dressing Poultry for Market.

In the first place, poultry should be given special attention for at least ten days before killing and should have plenty of food, rich in nitrogen, to bring the highest market price. Keep them from eighteen to twenty-four hours without food previous to killing; full crops spoil the appearance and the contents are apt to sour, which means lower prices. See that they have plenty of good, clean drinking water before killing, and they will dress out brighter and Kill by bleeding in the mouth or opening the veins of the neck. Never make he mistake of killing poultry by wring-ng the neck. Hang by the feet and bleed well. In most markets the heads nd feet are left on, and the entrails are left in. Dry picked chickens or turkeys sell best to shippers usually. However, in many small cities scalded birds sell about as well. It is easier for the novice at the business to pick fowls that are scalded, and when they will bring about as good a price it might be best to dress them in this manner. When scalding chickens or turkeys, do not immerse the tew days ago, and that the owners of e"auto" got off without finding out heads. Scalding gives the eyes a shrunk-en appearance. For scalding chickens of turkeys, to hot limited the days ago, and that the owners of turkeys, to hot limited the ends. Scalding gives the eyes a shrunk-en appearance. For scalding chickens the fowls should be plumped, picking cleanly. This is done by dipping the bird in water almost boiling hot for ten seconds; then at once into cold water. Then hang in a cool place but not in the wind, until the animal heat is all out of the body.

To dry pick a fowl properly, no time must be lost after killing. While the fowls are bleeding and the bodies are yet warm, pull out the wing and tail feathers. Do this first, and pull straight to prevent tearing the skin. After picking wing and tail feathers remove the others as soon as possible before the body gets cold, and you will not find the task difficult. A small scrubbing brush is just

Ducks and geese should be scalded the same as other poultry, but do not forget the importance of giving the water time to penetrate the feathers. It spoils the appearance to remove down by singeing. Plump the same as chickens singeing. Plump the same as chickens and turkeys. Leave the feathers on the head and for two or three inches on the neck, and remember fat, heavy ducks and geese are the ones that command the highest prices. When selling dressed poultry do not overlook the fact that it pays to put only one kind in a package; have them alike in size, shape and color. Straighten out the body and legs when packing, so they will not be bent and out of shape when they reach their destination. Pack snugly to prevent moving about. Do not use old boxes of odd sizes. It is

> WINTER CARE OF SHEEP. Quarters Should Be Light and Free

From Drafts. None of our domestica all animals requires less elaborate winter quarters than the sheep, but nevertheless they are often objects of dire neglect, and, though they may be able to endure a great deal of hardship, still it pays did Kiser beat Oldfield's old records. to give them all the attention and comfort they require. On account of the fleece which nature has provided the sheep is able to withstand a low temperature so long as it is shielded from drafts and dampness.

If located on dry and well drained land it is not necessary to put a wooden floor in the sheep pens, and, in fact, we would prefer the earthen floor, for besides being cheaper, it obviates any danger of draft from below. A liberal amount of dry litter should be providsecured, by paying for it in cold cash, ed, and if this is done and the building be built by an auto company and op- is free from drafts the sheep are not likely to suffer much from cold. Of course the building should be reasonably warm, though there is great danger in getting it too warm. Should the sheep be kept in a place that is so warm that they perspire a great deal another paper I will outline a bill suitable as we believe, for legislative enactment, provided "The Farmer" will see ble to colds. Sheep will do well if their constitutions will be weakened kept in a temperature a few degrees above freezing. Plenty of light and good ventilation are essential to the welfare of the flock. The pens should be so arranged that lots of sunlight may be admitted. This will call for numerous windows on the south side of the building. Sunlight plays an important part in the prevention of disease and aids in building up vigorous constitutions in the animals. Darkness is also conducive to dampness, which is injurious. A sheltered yard in connection with the pens, into which the sheep may run at will, is of great value. It provides for the necessary exercise, and during the bright sunny days the flock will spend a large portion of their time in this yard. In mild weather hay may be fed to chem in racks in the yard. Warmer quarters must be provided for ewes that may lamb before warm weather comes.-Farmer.

Alfalfa Pasture For Hogs. Results secured at the Utah experiment station show that good, thrifty shotes will make gains of one-third pound each day on alfalfa pasture alone. Better results were secured when grain was fed in connection with the pasture. Results secured by practical farmers indicate that even greater gains than those recorded in Utah may be expected. It is unnecessary and inadvisable to ring the hogs as long as the pasture is good, as they will confine themselves to feeding and will not

Canada and the Canoe. Abolish the canoe and Canada might have a war every five years and then lose fewer young men than the great number that must go down to death in ten years of summer holidays. It is pitiful the mothers who weep, the faare darkened simply because young people will take chances that they have no business to take. Death may part the young man from his canoe. Good advice cannot. "Ephraim is joined to his idols," and the victims of the canoe habit will neither keep out of canoes nor be careful while they are in canoes.-Toronto Telegram.

He was given a record of 54 4-5, but this record has never been recognized by the Automobile Association of America, his best mile of 55 seconds being recognized. Secretary Jewett's Plan. Secretary Jewett of the New England Breeders' association is going to appeal to the stewards of the grand circuit to furnish a uniform trotting and racing programme next year. Then it will be possible for trainers to prepare their horses with some degree of certainty, or rather with satisfaction. Commencing early in the season the trainers can lay out a programme and follow it. Whether the stewards will be able to agree as to the programme is another question, but with this year's fresh in mind it will probably not be a difficult task.

For a good crop of rye we would de-

If the rye is sown to be used as fodder early in the spring or to be plowed under to enrich the soil, it may be sown in September. In that case two bushels of seed to the acre is not too much, while one is enough where the grain is wanted. It would pay to sow rye on all the fields that can have the crops taken off in season to sow even up to the last of October and then plow the rye in before the fields are planted in the

Profit In Light Steers

Louis Pfaelzer, one of the pioneers of the Chicago live stock trade, was recently interviewed by Breeder's Gazette as to the most profitable steer for producer and butcher. In the course of his remarks he said: "As long as feeders insist on furnishing cattle that are light in ribs and nounced as though spelled "Gozway." loins and carry big rounds, chucks and plates, so long will they ignore their opportunities."

"By what means can such a reformation be accomplished?" Mr. Pfaelzer was asked.

"Simply by the use of good bulls. If I had a farm and was engaged in beef production I would throw economy to the winds in buying a bull. And every farmer-I mean the men who feed only a few-ought to breed his own stuff. This the owner of the big feed lot may find impracticable, but by making provision for raising fifty calves or so each year the small operator will score maximum profits. I do not care which of the beef breeds he uses. Personally

A BABY BEEF

I like Aberdeen-Angus, but any of the beef breeds suits the butchers' purposes equally, with the reservation, however, that a Hereford steer must be slaughtered before he is two years old. London, which a few years ago called for the heavy steer, now wants the pony. The butcher discovered that light steers could be handled to the greatest profit. The average grower has yet to realize the merit of the proposition Personally I have made many converts. The stockyard is a good sphere for such work. You get a man with a load of cattle on his hands for which $5.25 is the best bid, while his neighbor make a convert, and if I am not too busy I embrace it. The Separator In the Dairy. He said that from personal experience the separated cream made better butter because, being all of the same consistency, it ripens more evenly; because it has less milk in it than the skimmed cream; because it is taken from the milk while it is perfectly sweet and fresh, and it has not the chance of becoming sour or taking objectionable odors from its surroundings that it would have if it stood twelve or twenty-four hours waiting to be Some Chbbage Experiments.

At a congregational meeting held last Sunday at the Lutheran church, Rev Wm. E. Wheeler, of Woodsboro, was elected pastor to succeed Rev. C. A. Britt, who resigned the charge some time ago. It is understood that Rev. Wheeler is likely to accept the call, and that he will remove to Taneytown as soon as he can close his present relations with the Woodsboro charge, likely about the middle of December.

The Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst was discussing recently certain phases of corruption.

"I declare," he said, "when I see some of the deceit that exists about me, I can almost sympathize with the jury in the Jerome Ess case. You have heard of the Jerome Ess case? No.

"The judge was thunderstruck at this "'Innocent?' he said. 'Innocent?' But the man himself pleads guilty!' 'We know it, your honor,' said the foreman of the jury, 'but he's such a liar that we can't believe him.' "

A Frog's Appetite.

The frog's capacity for enveloping his comrades and assimilating them was once shown by an incident which occurred under the observation of one of my acquaintances. He had returned from the country with a lot of frogs, large and small, which he had obtained for one of the New-York educational institutions. I have forgotten how many there were, but they numbered over twenty, I am quite certain. These he put into a large bird cage, the wires of which were close at the corner." The problem of morals presses constantly upon the human race, presenting to each individual in turn new trials, difficulties and repugnant choices. Each must to a large degree choose his own way to fight his own battle. These are the facts which confuse our ethical counselors. It is not possible to act always in exact harmony with our moral code. If one is so placed that he can save his mother from starvation only by stealing, he will violate the fifth commandment if he permits her to starve, and he will violate the eighth commandment if he chooses to steal. The choice between two evils often comes to the individual suddenly and imperatively. He must act at once, rendering a decision for which there is often no precedent known to him. The Decalogue, which he can recite; the philosophical analysis of the evolutions of ethics, do not aid him. He who is thus tried and who desires to do right will choose the course which is least evil.
