

It is difficult to spend too much money for good reading matter.

The man who does not read, is deep in a poor business man.

NEWS NOTES OF INTEREST.

Brief Items from County, State, and our Exchanges.

Geo. J. Everhart, of Carroll county, has been granted a teachers' pension. Edward S. Bankard, of New Windsor, has been granted a patent for a spout or gutter hanger. Unionville, Frederick county, is no longer a postal station of Union Bridge, as the Postoffice has been re-established.

THE FRIZELBURG MEETING

The Shoemaker Road Law Aroused Considerable Interest.

The public meeting which is to be held in Frizelburg Hall, this Saturday afternoon, for the purpose of discussing the new road law, has attracted considerable interest and will no doubt be largely attended. Although the law has been published, it seems not to have been generally read, and even those who have read it are pardonably uncertain as to its interpretation, and much more so as to its effect.

Printed Stationery for Farmers.

Just why the use of printed stationery for business letters is so generally neglected, is somewhat difficult to understand, especially when it is a matter of economy.

Just why the use of printed stationery for business letters is so generally neglected, is somewhat difficult to understand, especially when it is a matter of economy. It is more difficult, of course, to understand why some business men fail to use it, except for the reason that they are not good business men.

Prayer Meeting Topic for the Week... Rev. H. D. Kyle

The New Testament makes no distinction between home missions and foreign missions.

Our own country soon after its settlement by Christian people became a home mission field.

But home missions in particular present to us a class of heroes who are often overlooked.

These 5,000 suggest the whole humberg, perishing world, perishing for lack of the bread of life.

Let us watch our Lord working and see how easily and beautifully and abundantly the multitudes are fed.

The one city of Calcutta has twelve Christian Endeavor societies of one denomination.

Professor Sterling of the Christian college at Madras is a Christian Endeavor leader.

Text of the Lesson, John vi, 1-14. Matthew xvi, 1-12. Luke xiv, 1-12.

Give Your Stomach a Rest. Your food must be properly digested and assimilated to be of any value to you.

The Popular Fancy. The fancy of the people is a hard thing to catch and a harder thing to hold.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The soothing and healing properties of this remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and permanent cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere.

He Believed them All. Moody, the great evangelist, often used with his theology a most vivid and graphic illustration.

Afraid of Strong Medicines. Many people suffer for years from rheumatic pains, and prefer to do so rather than take the strong medicines.

Pointed Paragraphs. Do you always keep an appointment or just claim to?

Friends and Acquaintances. It is not given to many people to have large circles of friends.

Scott's Emulsion. and tolerate it for a long time. There is no oil, not excepting butter, so easily digested and absorbed by the system as cod liver oil.

but if he is animated by no other motive, the vessel will crack at times and he will exhibit his true inwardness to those with whom he comes in contact.

Baptized Without Ceremony.

Hagerstown, Md., Feb. 19.—During baptismal services this afternoon by Rev. Mr. Bowersox, of the Church of God, in a large pool of water in the cemetery, the ceremonies, were precipitated into 12 feet of water by the ice breaking, and many of them had narrow escapes from drowning.

Miss Irene Bloyer and Mary Saffa who were rescued in an exhausted condition. A dozen or more would have been rescued but for the prompt and cool headed action of a number of men who assisted in the rescue.

About 100 persons assembled on the banks of the pond to witness the baptism. The pond, which is 15 feet deep in some places, was covered with ice, which had melted but for the prompt and cool headed action of a number of men who assisted in the rescue.

The greatest excitement prevailed and shouts for help and the despairing screams of those rescued were heard on all sides. Many of those rescued were taken with violent chills, due to their water soaked garments. The dripping victims were hurried to nearby farmhouses and given dry clothing and medicine. After the excitement had subsided Rev. Mr. Bowersox proceeded with the baptism of five persons.

Letter to Michael Fringer. Taneytown, Md. Dear Sir: A man said: Send me 25 cents. Generally I use 2; don't think I'll be enough.

Ordered 9 more for another job; 16 for the job. Had 6 left. This comes from Messrs W. & F. Bower, Methuen, Mass. They add: This has been our experience with the violence of the discharge.

Then the current was shut off, the noise ceased, and the acid white fog crept back and enveloped the courtyard once more.

When it was suggested that a score of installments should be made, I promised practical relief to the fog bound city Sir Oliver said: "All that I can do is to erect this model apparatus for the benefit of engineers who are interested in such a project."—London Mail.

One day a young man of Russell Sage's acquaintance—in fact, the grandson of an old friend of mine—approached me with him on the subject of a loan of $10 for two weeks and got it. He promised faithfully to return the money at a stated hour, but he never did so.

My boy," he said, "with no trace of kindness in his voice, 'you disappointed me, and I do not want you to do it again.'"

"I beg your pardon, I said not," argued the young man. "I did not want you to do it again."

"Yes, yes, my boy," purred Mr. Sage, "you paid back the ten, and I never expected you to do it again. Let me have a hundred I should expect you to pay it back, and you wouldn't. One disappointment at my time of life is enough, my boy."

Our Grandmothers gave us powders and teas, but they knew nothing of modern medicine and methods. In this age of progress and discovery, nicely colored, compressed tablets are fast superseding the old time powders and teas.

For many years a traveling peddler named Luce has been a well known character in the country towns of New England. His route lies mostly within Maine and New Hampshire, where he sells needles, pins, soap, extracts, etc., and is always a welcome guest at the isolated farmhouses where he calls.

When the empress Eugenie arrived the other night from the Hotel Continental and stepped from her electric coupe which had been sent to the station to meet her at a tall and soldierly old man of some seventy years stood with bare head and saluted in military fashion.

ENGLAND'S GREAT FOG.

There was one man in Birmingham who was profoundly grateful for the recent heavy fog in England. It was Sir Oliver Lodge, to whom the visitation presented a fresh opportunity to renew the steady war which he commenced twenty years ago against the fog.

Standing in a secluded courtyard of Birmingham university, his deerstalker cap and long brown overcoat beaded with moisture, Sir Oliver was to be seen absorbed in the contemplation of mysterious strands of barbed wire which vanished a few feet above in impalpable vapors.

From his research laboratory came the vicious crackle of a powerful electric discharge, and great jagged sparks vibrated between the spherical terminals of the apparatus with which his hands were busy.

Men pulled the terminals apart, and as the discharge was transferred to the outside wires there proceeded from the hundreds of invisible barbed wires a fizzling noise, like the sound of raindrops on a hot plate.

Then a wonderful thing happened. Through the opaque fog bank the outlines of the tall chimneys were gradually developed, with the slow certainty of a photographic plate. The fog became a cloud and the cloud a mist, descending in dank drops about the ears, writhing and sizzling as it struck a rackety by the violence of the discharge.

Then the current was shut off, the noise ceased, and the acid white fog crept back and enveloped the courtyard once more.

When it was suggested that a score of installments should be made, I promised practical relief to the fog bound city Sir Oliver said: "All that I can do is to erect this model apparatus for the benefit of engineers who are interested in such a project."—London Mail.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Couldn't Down Him. "Do you remember," said a middle aged man as he entered a stationery store and was asked what could be done for him—do you remember of my being in here about four weeks ago?"

"I can't say that I do," was the reply. "Don't you remember I asked you to give me a postage stamp?"

"Postage stamps cost money." "Yes, I know, but I explained to you that I was in love with a widow and had written a card for her hand."

"You said it didn't make a difference to you who I was writing to, and you didn't care a copper whether I got the widow or not. You ought to remember that I told you."

"No, sir, I'm not. I came in here to tell you that in spite of your meanness the widow is mine. When I went out of here I found a cent on the sidewalk and bought a postal card with it, and she accepted my love the same as if I had sent a letter."

"Then you are happy, no doubt?" "I am, sir. The widow is worth ten hundred dollars, fat as butter and as good natured as a goose, and I am walking around on eggs. Yes, sir, I am a happy man, sir, and you will be good to grass, sir, and I would not patronize you if penholders were selling fire for a cent. That's all. Good day, sir."—Brooklyn Citizen.

Sick Headache. This distressing ailment results from a disordered condition of the stomach. All that is needed to effect a cure is a dose or two of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. In fact, the attack may be ward off, or greatly lessened in severity, by taking a dose of these Tablets as soon as the first symptoms of an attack appears.

First Suburbanite.—The reincarnation theory is a queer idea. Second Suburbanite. Very, if it is true, I think that you and I in some previous state of existence must have been unscrupulous real estate speculators who tried to beguile people into owning their own homes.—Brooklyn Life.

How She Does Her Shopping. A severe cold or attack of the grippe is like a fire, the sooner you combat it the better your chances are of overcoming it. But few mothers in this age are willing to do the old-fashioned reliable treatment such as would be administered by their grandmothers, backed by Boschee's German Syrup, which was always liberally used in connection with the home treatment of colds and is still in great demand hold favor than any known remedy. But even without the application of the old-fashioned reliable German Syrup, will cure a severe cold in quick time. It will cure colds in children or grown people. It relieves the congested organs, allays the irritation, and effectively relieves the throat. Any child will take it. It is invaluable in a household of children.
