

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting People For the Week Beginning April 16.

Topic—Glorifying God in our recreations. I Cor. x, 31; Ps. xvi, 5-11.

True religion is never opposed to legitimate pleasure and recreation.

The line of demarcation between lawful and unlawful recreations is sometimes hard to draw.

Many Christians have special friends; some have special objects of His favor.

Putting together the records in Matthew, Mark and John, we learn that Jesus was very sociable.

Let us find our pleasures in God and our recreations in the exercises of godliness.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

LESSON III, SECOND QUARTER, INTERNATIONAL SERIES, APRIL 16.

Text of the Lesson, John xii, 1-11. Memory Verses, 2, 3-Golden Text, Mark xiv, 8-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

It is probable that all the events of Luke ix, 51, to xii, 52, are events between the raising of Lazarus and the supper and the night of the lesson.

Some one has suggested that in Martha, Mary and Lazarus on this occasion we have, in fact, a very real Christian life, for we see in Martha service without anxiety, in Mary true worship, giving to her Lord heart devotion and a costly offering, and in Lazarus the power of the resurrection life.

Putting together the records in Matthew, Mark and John, we learn that Jesus was very sociable.

In two years after, my second daughter was married, and she and her husband were now rich, you know, Molly had nothing but what she spun, and no other clothing has ever come into our house for any of us.

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN

Items of Local News of Special Interest to Home Readers.

All copy for ADVERTISEMENTS on this page must be in hand each week, except Special Notices and short announcements.

Harry I. Reindollar, who has been living in Baltimore for several months, is at home at present.

Misses Mary and Josephine Reindollar returned home, on Thursday, to spend the Easter vacation.

Dr. G. W. Demmit was in Baltimore, several days this week, doing some dental work for a lady patron.

C. Edgar Young and Burgess S. Miller attended the Grand Lodge of Md. K. of P., held in Baltimore, this week.

Mrs. F. H. Seiss and Miss Elizabeth S. Reindollar are taking a special course in pipe-organ instruction, at the Woman's College, Frederick.

Norval Shoemaker, of York St., left Tuesday of this week for Independence, W. Va., on a business trip; he will be absent several days.

An observant citizen marveled that the heavy rain of Monday failed to wash the mud-stuck from Baltimore St. Verily, it is "stuck on our ways."

With two sales of nursery stock in Taneytown, on Saturday, 15th, and one on the Saturday following, there should be nobody left unsupplied.

On Monday evening, the fourth thunder-storm of the year—an extremely severe one—visited this section, accompanied by a heavy rain-fall.

Taneytown is becoming famous as a buggy and carriage market. Last Saturday, about seventy of these vehicles were sold here, and many more will be sold during the summer.

Next week, a list of the delegates to the Woman's Missionary Convention, which meets here on April 27-28, will be published, as well as the home at which each will be entertained.

If Andrew Carnegie would divert his millions from libraries and colleges to the electric lighting of small towns, Taneytown might have a show for securing that which it greatly needs.

The article on "Cause and Cure of Hard Times" on third page, written in 1788, will be of interest to our readers, both for the sake of comparison with the present, and as representing "old times."

Next Tuesday night, the Junior debating club will tackle the following: "Resolved, that a social organization that creates hundreds of millionaires, is radically wrong." The hour will be 8.30, instead of 8 o'clock, on account church services. The attendance at these debates is increasing, each week, which denotes increasing interest.

Next Monday evening is the time for nominating candidates for Burgess and Commissioners. It should be the object of all to secure the best nominees possible, and not those who have "axes to grind," or who will fail to do their full duty if elected. These offices are thankless jobs, at best, and it is for this reason that it is sometimes difficult to secure good men willing to make the sacrifice which election entails.

Passion week services will be held in the Lutheran church, on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights, of next week. Preparatory service Friday afternoon, and Communion and reception of new members on Sunday morning, (Easter) April 23. The customary Easter service by the Sunday School will be held in the evening. On Easter Monday, the congregational election will be held, and in the evening, a Congregational reception. At the latter, Rev. Dr. Billheimer, of Gettysburg, and Rev. Chas. F. Steck, of Frederick, will be present.

There is little use in our citizens complaining of fast and reckless driving unless they try to prevent it. All that is necessary is to go before a magistrate and swear out a warrant for arrest of driver, then appear and swear that the speed complained of was in excess of eight miles an hour. Much of the driving through town is at the rate of 12 and 15 miles per hour. Citizens do not like to swear out warrants, for fear of making enemies, but the nuisance cannot be prevented in any other way, as it is the constable's business to make arrests, rather than to swear out warrants, or try, personally, to prevent all violations of law.

Sudden Death of Clarence Feeser. Clarence Feeser, son of Wesley Feeser, of near Mayberry, who had been working in a bakery in Washington, D. C., died suddenly on Saturday night, of acute indigestion. He had gone out on the street in front of the bakery apparently in his usual health, and suddenly fell as if taken with a fit. An ambulance was called to remove him to the Homoeopathic Hospital for treatment, but before his arrival there he was dead. His body was brought to Taneytown, on Wednesday, and taken to the U. R. Cemetery for interment. He was in his 20th year, and was a young man of good character, well thought of by his employers.

A John Allen Story. Private John Allen, of the Mississippi regiment, was making a strong effort to secure the removal of a Republican postmaster and the appointment of a Democrat during one of the administrations of Mr. Cleveland. He had made two futile calls at the White House, and the third time the President said rather bluntly: "Mr. Allen, the civil service rules seem to apply in this case and it is useless for you to keep insisting on the removal of this postmaster." Allen was silent for a moment and then he said: "Mr. President, I don't want to take any more of your time by recalling that in your campaign I left my beloved state and stamped for you in New York, nor do I care to estimate to what extent the 27 speeches I made up there were responsible for the loss of the 1,100 majority by which you carried the State and won your election."

"Neither do I wish to recall my exhibition of joy on that election night—my exhibition which resulted in my wife's not speaking to me for a week. But Mr. President, I just want to tell you a little story before I go."

"Down in my district a fairly wealthy farmer died and his kin began squabbling over the estate. The man's son hired me as his attorney and the case dragged through the courts."

"One day the son came into my office and asked me if he couldn't expect a settlement soon, as his money was nearly gone."

"It's no use, Jim," I said, "you can't hurry the Supreme Court of the great State of Mississippi."

"The young fellow sat down for a minute or two with his head in his hands and then he got up to go."

"Mr. Allen," he said, "do you know sometimes I wish father had not died. Allen did not get that postmaster job for him, but he got a better political plum within a week."

Roosevelt Cuts Loose.

Before dinner the President held a reception, standing under one of the big trees that line the gravel walk. The Rough Riders came up one by one. The President called most of them by their first name. Occasionally he called a "Bill" or a "Jim," or thought "Hank" or "Tom," but usually he knew them by name. He was presented to him by Lieutenant Fortescue, who stood beside him.

"Hello, Ben!" he shouted, as "Ben" Daniels sidled up. "If you hadn't been here, I never would have forgiven you."

"Gee, Ben," said George McCabe, of Arizona, "do you remember when I was made of green corn for you?"

"Do I remember," exploded the President, slapping McCabe on the back. "Why, George, that was the best mess of green corn I ever had."

"I guess you don't remember me, do you?" asked Henry Barshaar, of Prescott, bashfully.

"Why, sure!" exclaimed the President. "Henry, isn't it?"

Then he turned to those around him and said: "Henry stole for me. He stole provisions from the quartermaster, and one night he stole a poncho and a Spanish blanket. Say, Henry, we didn't sleep that night, for it rained but we'd have been much colder if I hadn't had the blanket and the poncho."

Several of the troopers had been waiting for a chance to make a request. "Colonel," said one, "we've got some of our women folks here. Can we present them?"

"Present them? Well, I should say you can. Bring them up."

The ladies were brought forward—a tittering, embarrassed bunch. There were wives, daughters, mothers and stepmothers.

"Ladies," said the President, after he had shaken hands with all of them, "you're the only ones I purchase my Rough Riders."

Then he turned to the tickled men. "Boys," he continued, "I'm glad to see you in your country. I'm glad to see your wives and other female relatives. I certainly am proud of you."

Meanwhile Henry Barshaar had been standing around, first on one foot and then on the other. The President's eye fell on him.

"By Godfrey, Henry," he said, as he was wringing the trooper's hand again, "I am glad you are here. You see," he explained, "Henry was my orderly for a time, and every time I was on the firing line he was there. Every time I stood up Henry stood up, too. He seemed to think that if I got shot it was his duty to get shot, too."

There was half an hour of this sort of greeting, all personal, and then the party sat down to dinner. It was a camp dinner, cooked in camp ovens and served with camp dishes. There were a pot roast of beef, corn, peas, potatoes, bread and butter and coffee.

The President felt with an appetite that apparently was voracious. He had two helpings of beef, and ate so much bread and butter that Secretary Loeb was obliged to replenish the plate three times.

There are finicky people, not to say penurious, who think the word "bully" is vulgar. He said he was "bully" when a Rough Rider asked him how he felt. He liked his reception, what he thought of the city, the State, the country or the universe. Everything was like a schoolboy on a picnic. He let down in every way. The sentries around the fence were deaf to the pleadings of the crowd who wanted to get in, and the President, as he said himself, "played hooky" from being President for three hours, and had the time of his life.—San Antonio Cor. N. Y. World.

Letter to Henry Shoemaker.

Dear Sir: You want a cheap job of paint for a cheap house, don't you? It's Devoe. It's the regular thing in Devoe; there's nothing in all paint, so cheap as Devoe.

Oh, yes, you can paint with mud; but that isn't paint; you can't get it to look about right for a month or two. Paint Devoe; can't do it for less; there is nothing so cheap as nothing of wear there is nothing so cheap as Devoe. It goes so far, save gallons; no matter about the price, save gallons. A gallon of paint, put on, costs $4 or $5; save gallons.

Devoe is your paint; save gallons; Devoe is your paint. "Ours truly," says F. W. Devoe, Co., 36 P. S.—J. S. Ewer sells our paint.

FACTS IN FEW LINES

The negro voter, it is said, holds the balance of power in Indiana. Japan has established her way to date system of education in Formosa, with much success. The Russian minister of finance has raised the question of the creation in Russia of chambers of commerce. Fresno county, Cal., produces 40,000 tons of raisins yearly. The profit on these ranges from $5 to $200 an acre. The bones of all flying birds are hollow and filled with air, thus combining the greatest strength with the least weight. An oyster containing pearls of the value of $125,000 was found by a fisherman at Neumunster, Germany, a few days ago.

A Fighting Parson.

Senator Blackburn of Kentucky delights to tell of a parson he knew down in the blue grass region who was a muscular Christian.

The parson found it necessary to take half a dozen young gentlemen who were in the street in front of the church and who were in his usual health, and suddenly fell as if taken with a fit. An ambulance was called to remove him to the Homoeopathic Hospital for treatment, but before his arrival there he was dead. His body was brought to Taneytown, on Wednesday, and taken to the U. R. Cemetery for interment. He was in his 20th year, and was a young man of good character, well thought of by his employers.

Relics of the Cave Dwellers.

A prehistoric cave which has recently been discovered near Winznan, on Lake Lucerne, in Switzerland. A party of antiquarians had the entrance passage into the cavern cleared of obstructions and a grove of articles of the cave inhabitants, including knives, axes and spears, gigantic shells rudely ornamented, evidently drinking vessels and dishes, was discovered. In one chamber of the cavern, the explorers found the remains of the bones of many extinct animals.

Relics of the Cave Dwellers.

A prehistoric cave which has recently been discovered near Winznan, on Lake Lucerne, in Switzerland. A party of antiquarians had the entrance passage into the cavern cleared of obstructions and a grove of articles of the cave inhabitants, including knives, axes and spears, gigantic shells rudely ornamented, evidently drinking vessels and dishes, was discovered. In one chamber of the cavern, the explorers found the remains of the bones of many extinct animals.

SEAR RHAPSODY

Why it should be so I cannot tell, but today as I sat on the grassy bank of the river which boats run to and from France and the big world of Europe it did not seem to me that I looked upon the channel only.

The gray water of waters leaped under a northerly breeze; there was a gray sun in a faint blue sky, but as I sat I saw faroff sunny seas, a sky as blue as the purest heavens of the tropics and great sunlit shores. This was beyond the English channel—but the channel—the English channel—the Lizard and the fatal rocks of Ushant, the Atlantic rolled, and not only the north Atlantic, but the southern, and beyond the southern Atlantic the vast southern ocean that washes the ice barrier of the antarctic pole.

I did not see the channel. What I saw was one; it was the ocean itself. I sailed, as of old, round the mighty wedge that the great world of Europe into cold seas, I saw the Horn. I saw the Diego Ramirez islands known to sailors as the Doggerbank, and I came up by the windy Falklands to the calms of Capricorn, or the horse latitudes, and lay there becalmed.

Yet even so was this the same sea, the sea one and indivisible, the republic of waters. For not a wave but had lain in quiet calm south of the line. It was our sea, even yet ours, the English sea of the world.

So wonderful a thing this is to me, that now I never think any sea so far from our Atlantic, no Pacific, no great southern ocean. It is one sea, and whether we sail, as Drake did, along the western shores of America or blunder through the strait of Magellan, the barrier with Enderby or north with Franklin it is the selfsame breathing creature of a sea that bears us up and onward.

Here are the Palm Islands of the Pacific, truly, let us say, and here strange, bold eyed Samoans paddle in their leeward waters. Yet these same waters are the equal heritage of the Eskimo, the God given gift to those wild savages of the North Pole. Whether the trades blow, or the passage winds that help us to India or the cyclones of the West Indies or the typhoons of the China seas, the sea are the great highways for all races, and all roads lead to God, as all roads lead to Rome.

Is this, then, to say nothing or to say what is known? I have heard of those who were disappointed with the Atlantic; I have known children to cry at the poorness of the reality they saw at sea. I have known the great sea under the sky—how it gleamed under a great moon even then, how even at that quiet hour wild woodwinds sprang across the foam that Magellan plowed, how at that very moment the great sea was ruled by the "vexed Beemothes" or screamed under the high cliffs of mighty Formosa—they would have sat down in strange astonishment by the eventful sea of the great waters that they saw. They knew not that I see, and out of the knowledge that I have first hand or that I have gathered from quiet seamen or from books it comes that I never behold any narrow creek or strait, or the great sea that I see, in the one parent of them all.

The Red sea is the sea, and the hot waters by barren Sokotra, and the cliffs of Guardafui, and the soon covered, and the sea that I see, and out of the knowledge that I have first hand or that I have gathered from quiet seamen or from books it comes that I never behold any narrow creek or strait, or the great sea that I see, in the one parent of them all.

One of the novel features of the Lewis and Clark expedition will be a shallow lake 200 acres in extent, in which will be many kinds of fish. The lake will also contain about 125,000 electric lights, which will illuminate the water and allow people to see the fish as they swim about.

The Mountain Laurel.

Following the example of twenty-two states which have adopted the laurel emblem, there has just been a hearing at the statehouse in Boston before the committee on probate and chancery with a view to selecting a floral emblem for Massachusetts. Petitions from all parts of the state were presented, and one naming the mountain laurel for the honor was signed by 25,000 men and women who want it for the state emblem. The next highest favorite, the mayflower, received only 3,000 votes, while the rest of the votes were "scattering."

A FAMILY NECESSITY.

Why Mrs. Talkereth Wanted an Opera House. Mrs. Talkereth, who was so discontented with her husband's income that she had just taken off, "one of us has got to be operated on."

"What are you talking about, Maria?" demanded Mr. Talkereth impatiently.

"Well, it's so," asserted Mrs. Talkereth decidedly. "Will you telephone for a surgeon or shall I?"

"Why, my dear," was protesting Mr. Talkereth anxiously, "I haven't the least suspicion that there was anything the matter with you."

"There isn't," snapped Mrs. Talkereth. "Do you take me for one of those pulpy, pasty, puttylike females all right away and seriously, too?"

"Well, there's nothing the matter with me either," asserted Mr. Talkereth, with intense relief in every glad accent. "I never felt better in my life than I do at this minute of time."

"It isn't that," cried Mrs. Talkereth, his eyelids flying up and his lower jaw dropping down until there seemed to be some danger of their colliding if they kept on in the middle of the back of his head.

"I never was so mortified in my life as I was at the sewing society this afternoon," replied Mrs. Talkereth positively. "So you can just make up your mind that the doctor is going to chop something, I don't care what, out of one of my breasts off. Why, either her own or her husband's operation, and I had to sit with my mouth shut all afternoon because we've never had one of them."

Representative Day of Virginia took of an altercation in a colored club in Richmond that resulted in nearly all the members being haled before a police magistrate.

"You were present during this trouble?" asked the magistrate of a witness.

"Yes, yo' honah."

"Then tell us in a few words just how the difficulty began."

"Well, yo' honah," replied the dandy, with much gravity. "I think it was when the chairman of the entertainment committee wanted the secretary to read the list of names of the members of the club who had not paid their dues."
