All Good for Once.

The Sun grew effusive, last week—and properly so, in all probability—over the high standing of our Governor and U. S. Senators, as distinguished men Maryland points with pardonable pride as an evidence of her resources in the sturdy and cultivated manhood which is the greatest factor in public life as it is in private endeavor. Which of the other 44 states is so fortunate at this time as to be served by a Governor of Hon. Edwin Warfield's culture, and by Senators of the quality of Senators Rayner and Whyte? There is no New England state thus equipped. The Empire State of the Union cannot command a hearing in the Senate through either of its present representatives. Kentucky, the second state to have a Senator of distinction. The other is simply a machine politician. Ohio has only one Senator of the first class and Illinois has no representative in the Senate who rises far above mediocrity. In truth, Maryland, with two Senators of the first class and one who is second to no State executive in the Union, is in a class by itself.

Rah for Texas.

J. D. Goodrich, publisher of the Hemp-hill, Texas, Leader, in a recent address gave the following reasons why he is "forever wedded to the Country weekly."
 "I love the work on the country weekly better than that of any city daily because it does not hamper in voicing my sentiments; because there is no power to dictate what I shall write or none to say what I shall not write. I love the country paper because I love liberty. I love to be grasped by the firm grip of the horny handed son of toil and from his open and frank countenance read the true meaning of simple and rugged honesty. I love the wild flowers and the fragrance of nature's garden better than I do the pet plants. I love to see the wild squall as he bounds from bough to bough and harks from behind the limb of the old oak tree in defiance of you as you pass by, better than the squirrel that is caged at your home. I love to see the rabbit as he is being chased over the meadow by the dog—as he gains ground, and in the distance the dog, discouraged, stops. The rabbit years on his hind feet, looks back at his pursuer and seems to say: 'I'm free I'm free!' I love the bird that I do the sickly rabbit you have in your back yard. I love to hear the mocking bird as he sits on the topmost bough of the tree pouring forth his melody of spring, as he flies up in the air with his song and his merry chuckles and whistles his music. I love this better than the birds that you have in your cages at home, because it teaches liberty—the grandest word in the English language, the word that fired every American heart with an enthusiastic determination that insured victory at Banker Hill—a word held in sacred reverence by every loyal American."

People Money Mad.

President Schurman, President of Cornell University, in his commencement address to the class of graduates made the "money mania" which prevails at this time. His words were strikingly pointed and convincing, and deserve general reading and consideration. He said:
 "To get and to have is the motto not only of the market, but of the altar and of the hearth. The energy of the nation is pouring itself into production. We are coming to measure wealth and man with his heat and mind and soul—in terms of mere acquisition and possession. A waning Christianity and a waxing Mammonism are the twin specters of our age.
 "The idle rich are an exercise in any properly organized community. And in a democratic republic, in which every man has a vote, be assured that the rights which convention grants to property will be swept away if the property class become idle, luxurious, selfish, hard-hearted and indifferent to the struggles and toils of less fortunate fellow citizens.
 "The vice of the age is that men want wealth without undergoing that toil by which alone wealth is created. Among the rich and well-to-do business and professional classes 'grafting' has become common that the very idea of commercialism has become a byword and a reproach. Financiers, capitalists, corporations may be the most conspicuous sinners, but equally guilty is the merchant who cheats his customers or the lawyer who shows his client how to circumvent the laws, or the scholar who glorifies his patron's success in business irrespective of the methods by which that success was achieved, or the preacher who transfigures the ruthless oppressor or robber of six days into the ex-plorable Christian of the seventh. We are dealing with the virus of a universal infection.
 "The whole nation needs a new baptism of the old virtue of honesty. The love of money and the reckless pursuit of it is undermining the national character. But the nation; thank God, is beginning to perceive the fatal danger. The reaction caused by recent revolutions testifies to a moral awakening. That moral sense has long been hypnotized by material prosperity. Without honesty and fair dealing no society can hold together. Dishonesty is the parent of anarchy. If I have already commended industry to you I now preach integrity.
 "The one solvent of all these evils is justice—absolute justice. Justice is the soul of society. The just man brings his own heart to bear for better hearts and wiser heads. And only with the development in the human race of reason and justice and honesty and kindness will economic problems be definitively settled. Meanwhile, we must restrain the brutal and predatory pursuit of wealth by laws for the protection of the weak and for the equalizing of opportunity. And have little doubt that the gigantic inequalities which the present system of distributing economic goods has brought about—here heart-rending poverty and there the opulence of imperial despots—will lead to modifications of that system in the interest of society as a whole.

Prosperity and Discontent.
 The figures recently given by the Federal Census Bureau showing in detail the advance that has been secured during the past five years in the production of the number of employees and the total of wages paid in American industries were not surprising. They coincide with the development of the nation's foreign commerce, which will reach the three billion level before June 30, with the market increase in governmental revenues which has turned what was promised to be a deficit into a surplus for the present fiscal year, and with the general consciousness in the production of material wealth, the twelve months to date to end have never before been equalled in the history of the Republic.
 It is certainly no exaggeration to say that more men have been at work in the United States, and that the entire volume of their pay is greater than has ever been recorded in an equal period. National prosperity, in fact, has become something to which the nation has become accustomed, and they view without any special self-congratulation the statistics which register its progress.
 There is, however, another phase of that matter that is worth attention. While the public understands that more money than ever is being made, there is an apparently growing disposition in many quarters to ask whether the masses of American citizens are getting their fair share of it—a tendency that has become appreciably strengthened by the revelations that have occurred concerning life insurance scandals, the existence of improper practices on the part of some railroad officials, the various prosecutions and the allegations respecting gross abuses in the great packing houses from which the bulk of the meat supply of the American people has come.
 This sentiment of discontent has not yet been attained formidable proportions, generally speaking, and it has probably been modified by the popular confidence in the President and the belief that whatever errors of judgment he might commit, he was fighting with energy and courage to do all that was possible toward securing "a square deal." But it exists, nevertheless, and upon its growth or its diminution the results of the next November's elections may largely depend.—Phil. Bulletin.

The Men Between.

The citizens who make up the real sinews and backbone of the country begin to see how they are being ground by the various trusts that feed upon them. There is the labor trust on one side to stop the supply of coal, stop the factories and cut off wages when they order strikes and throw whole communities into distress and want, and the capital trusts on the other side.
 The common citizens number about 78 millions, and the labor trust about 2 millions. The rights and interests of the citizens represent therefore seventy-eight per cent.—represented with two points of the labor trust. This means a very heavy majority of the readers of newspapers and the buyers of merchandise are not members of a labor trust. In other words, trust and their power is and should be supreme, both in elections and government. A prominent director in Washington is reported as saying: "There is a great middle class in this country which belongs on the side of neither labor or capital; the professional classes, the farmers, the salaried people, the small owners of property. It is, after all, the great class in the country fairly face to face with the inquiry where its interests lie in this controversy, which has been broadly dominated the contest of capital with labor."
 "The coal strike suggests this state of affairs in a timely way. There are half a million miners, a few thousand, perhaps, of coal and coal railroad owners and operators, and the rest of our 80,000,000 people represent this great middle class. Everybody has come to understand that the consumer pays for the strikes, and incidentally that the shivers while they are going on.
 "So I think it is fair to say that the great neutral class, or middle class, or whatever you call it, not directly concerned in a particular labor problem, is the one which will make its views felt. It is unorganized, it has never made an effort to secure organization. It is divided among different parties, and it has all kinds of political and economic views."
 "This class is going to look into the merits of these questions about which labor and capital have had so much to say for years. It is going to inquire 'Where do we get off?' It will be discovering, very soon after we see labor and capital arrayed at the ballot box and the political convention that pays the bills, and when it gets ready to take a position there will be doings. It will help the real solution of questions that the politicians have been dodging. It will come nearer the right solution than either of the more directly interested parties.—The Square Deal.

Our barbers have concluded to charge 25c for hair cutting on Saturday nights, due to the fact that they have little to do during the week. Everybody seems to want to wait until Saturday night, even those living right in town; therefore, the barbers, in self-defense, are compelled to raise the price until conditions change.

The Farmers' picnic will be held at the usual place, Otter's grove, on July 26, 27 and 28th. Many subjects of interest will be discussed by men of ability, as mixing fertilizers; insects, when and how to spray for best results; diseases of the pasture; the use of tuberculin, etc. Large posters will be on hand next week. Governor Warfield has promised to be present on one of the days.

Chas. A. Elliot has purchased Mrs. Dr. G. T. Motter's property on York St. He has not sold his hotel property, notwithstanding reports, but it is for sale. It is one of the best business locations in town—one of the kind seldom in the market—and there has been quite a lot of speculation as to who will get it. For very many years a successful hotel business has been carried on at this corner, and far and near the "old stone hotel" is well known.

At the installation of Rev. Richard A. Rinker, as pastor of the Presbyterian church at Pittston, Pa., Rev. James Cattaneo, the pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Manch Chunk, will preach the sermon. The selection of Rev. Cattaneo is a special courtesy to the candidate and to the First Presbyterian church, of Manch Chunk and his pastor. It is only on special occasions that a Presbytery goes outside its own membership in the appointment of an installation committee.

Four of our leading stores—Hessons', Mehring & Basehoar's, Yount's, and Koons Bros'—will close at 7 o'clock, on Monday, Wednesday and Friday evenings, during July and August, beginning with July 9th. This is a very modest beginning in the matter of early closing, which may result in a regular agreement, in the future, for the fixing of more reasonable closing hours for our stores. Those who have entered into the present agreement deserve credit, rather than criticism, in taking the step, for it is but truth to say that some of our public places keep open after 12 o'clock on Saturday night, and there is a distinct tendency toward not regarding the Sunday laws. Early closing stands for a number of moral reforms which need enforcement in Taneytown.

Prevention of Fires.

It is an old maxim that fire is a good servant, but a bad master, and a haphazard fireman, or a careless fireman, is a fireman who is not a fireman at all. Under a law that requires the display of a red light across the center of the roadway when the pole is kept down at night. The law was passed as a protection to the traveling public, for those using horses as well as users of automobiles.—Hagerstown Mail.

Chas. Thurston was struck by an auto in W. Washington St. on Sunday morning. He was walking in the gutter and was hit by the front of a car.

Never take an open light to examine a gas meter or into a closet.

Never get together in bed by candle or lamp light.

Never close up your place of business without going over the lights and switches to see that all fires and lights are safe or extinguished.

Never forget that carelessness and negligence are the cause of over two-thirds of all fires.

Never forget to have pails or buckets and water near at hand for immediate use in case of emergency.

Death From Lookjaw

never follows an injury dressed with Bucklen's Arnica Salve. Its antiseptic and healing properties prevent blood poisoning, and prevent the infection of the system by the bacteria of the wound.

Why He Advertised.

A couple of merchants out in Kansas got into an argument over the value of advertising. One was prosperous, and the other had seemed to miss the mark.

"I advertise in the newspapers because I get far enough ahead to spare the money. The other merchant framed his head, and he has based his prosperity, and the principal one was advertising. He put them down in black and white. They read this way:

"I advertise in the newspapers because I cater to the intelligent class. They read the newspapers, and I believe in increasing my business."

"I advertise in the newspapers because I can talk to more people through the newspapers, a great distance, in less time and at a more reasonable cost than in any other way."

Automobile News Notes.

Hagerstown Automobile Club swore out warrants for the arrest of several motorists on different pikes. Under a law that requires the display of a red light across the center of the roadway when the pole is kept down at night. The law was passed as a protection to the traveling public, for those using horses as well as users of automobiles.—Hagerstown Mail.

A large touring car ran into a carriage containing a number of Atlantic City, N. J., people, last Sunday evening, killing one of the carriage horses, wrecking the car and injuring several of the lady occupants of the carriage. The automobile was speeding around a curve and did not see the carriage in time to prevent a collision. The horse killed was fairly good to pieces.—American.

Los Angeles, June 24.—By the overturning of an automobile in Colorado street, Pasadena, while going 60 miles an hour and the subsequent explosion of the gas tank and battery of the machine, Mrs. James J. Corridy, 28 years old, was roasted to death. John Henderson, of Pasadena, chauffeur, was burned so severely that he probably will die, and Mrs. Ella May Morris, an artist of Pueblo, Col., was slightly burned and bruised.

New York, June 21.—With a rosary in her hand, her head bent forward as she counted the beads, Mrs. Kate Buckle, sixty-two years old, returning from benediction service in the Sacred Heart church, was struck by an automobile in 1st street and 10th avenue at 4 o'clock last night and so badly injured that she died a few minutes after reaching Roosevelt Hospital. Her husband, 19 years of age, was driving the automobile. She was wearing a hat and a coat. Witnesses say Snelling was driving the automobile at low speed.

A party, including several young ladies from Baltimore, had a narrow escape from serious and probably fatal injury when the car and motor vehicle, returning from benediction service in the Sacred Heart church, was struck by an automobile in 1st street and 10th avenue at 4 o'clock last night and so badly injured that she died a few minutes after reaching Roosevelt Hospital. Her husband, 19 years of age, was driving the automobile. She was wearing a hat and a coat. Witnesses say Snelling was driving the automobile at low speed.

William Wales, accompanied by his wife, two children and mother-in-law, was killed by a trolley on Sunday in a 50-horse power Pope-Toledo auto. He was enroute from Fort Meyer, Florida, to Hartford, Conn. The party had been on the road for the past five weeks and the machine was covered with mud when it went through town. As it passed along a citizen remarked that he had his whole family including the grandmother. He went on to York and between this place and York had an exciting adventure with a bull. The auto struck the bull and broke one of auto's horns, if it would be no reflection on the headlights to call them by that name.—Gettysburg Courier.

SUBMARINE RELIEFS.

Prior to the nineteenth century navigation, except on the high seas, was usually by day. The first pilot who claimed to know all the rocks in the harbor, "An' their wan of them!" said he as he struck.

On approaching land one needs to know how far he is from the light-house leading in sight. Triangulation tells him. Two points on land being taken for the base of the triangle, lines from these points, representing the other two sides of the triangle, are drawn until they intersect. That angle is the angle to be kept. The distance from his point to the land can be easily calculated.

The maritime wars under Napoleon disclosed the dangerous ignorance of French mariners about their own sea-coast. French vessels were unable to break or run their enemies' blockade. After peace was established, Beaupre was appointed to the organization of a corps of engineers to chart the whole coast of France. His work was so well done that the other naval powers hastened to chart their own coasts according to his methods.

England, the United States, Spain, Italy and other maritime nations have adopted French methods. Japan for years has devoted to the subject its usual minute, trustworthy and masterful study, but has imitated the English crowded and complicated charts rather than the artistic execution of the French—New York Tribune.

In the "New World of Words," 1720, "towel" is defined as "a kind of Tablecloth or carpet made of fine Linen, Satin, Velvet or Tissue, spread upon a table in a Bed Chamber, where they are used to dry the face themselves; a Dressing-cloth." A similar definition is given in Bailey's dictionary. The origin of the word is curious, for Cotgrave lists: "See 'Toilette,' a toilet, the stuff which is used to put nightgowns in." In the "Rape of the Lock," 1, 12, "towel" seems used for the table and its contents.

Each unwieldy, the towel stands displayed in a mystic order.

Notes and Queries.

MARRIAGE.

The development of woman and the passing of matrimony.

It is woman's refusal to marry and woman's restiveness in marriage—for the immense majority of our divorcees are asked for by the wife—which so alienates us today.

For all these facts there is the same explanation—the character of our women is changing faster than the character of matrimony. The women of America are as well educated as men in many cases, often even more so, and thus wide reading and general acquaintance with facts of life, past and present, together with a rapidly increasing organization among them, give them a character and courage previously unknown.

HUMOROUS

WHY PRICES WENT UP.

Some of the curious effects of the recent boom in the cost of ice, we went over to the "parlor" across the way and called for a "brick" of mixed and put down the price we had paid always before. "The young lady chirped, "Five cents more, please." We asked why and wherefore. "Ice has gone up," she said. Ah, yes, so. Ice up from $3 to $5 a ton, ice cream from 35 to 40 cents a quart. Exactly. This led us to investigate.

We found the following facts—approximately, allowing something of course, to a deep inward activity of feeling: Our best went up because of increased refrigeration cost. A bunch of radishes cost 2 cents more. Oranges jumped and all kinds of fruits, but we did not
