The Best New Year Of All.

Come let us make this bright New Year the best New Year of all, For years are growing fewer now, and soon shall come our call-That summons from the hand of Time where years are never known, And where we're sure to reap our crop, whatever we have sown. How selfish and how mean we've been along the journey's way. We passed the suffering in the throng with no kind word to say; The piteous wails of tearless waifs were lost upon our ears; We did not see the orphan's rags, nor dry the maimed one's tears.

We turned away from hungry souls without one pitying look, And thus have cast a blot upon our record in God's book. And dissipate the gloom of earth like sunbeams from above.

Rockefeller Predicts Hard Times.

John D. Rockefeller, on January 1st., uttered the second warning within a week against impending hard times. He shrunk millions in the past year, and that this is only the beginning of an extended siege of "tight" money. Mr. Rockfeller is worth millions less, on paper, in Standard Oil stocks, than a increase, it is thought, will be about year ago, but this makes little difference and Ohio had secured it. Conceived the to him as he simply increases the dividends to suit decreased market values of stocks, aside from Standard Oil, is decidedly downward, and that the capitalization, and from the unprecedented issue of new stock, due to trevery successful with their eleven-acre mendous improvements of railroads

He claims that stocks have been in jured, during the year, by attacks on corporate interests, and that through these attacks the general prosperity of the country is sure to suffer; that as stock values depreciate capitalists beclass begins retrenchment, and then the working man and his wages are reached. In other words, by depreciating stocks, everybody, in some degree, is injured. ...... Two Blind Men Build House.

Two totally blind men have built a house for themselves at Berkeley, Cal., doing all the carpenter work them-selves without any assistance whatever. The event is one of the most remarkable accomplishments in building. Neither of the men will ever see the sightly structure they have raised.

It is a coincidence that both these men are named Joseph—Joseph Brown and Joseph Martinez. The house is of the popular bungalow type, 1½ stories high, and constructed entirely of wood. It is 18 feet wide by 25 feet long. As the builders are sightless, the work necessarily progressed slowly. From early morning until frequently long after sunset the two men toiled patiently at their task. The shades of the night did not hinder the work, for noonday and midnight are equally dark to them, and out of the blackness come the song of the saw and the blows of hammer to pass ersby, who heard but saw no workmen. The bungalow presents a very neat and attractive appearance, all the work having been performed along strictly mechanical lines. Though totally blind, these builders have closely followed the square and plumb—sawing accurately to the line and driving straight home every nail. Each angle is periect; the vertical and horizontal parts of the building are very accurate—surprisingly so. How sightless workmen could accomplish such perfect mechanical results seems little short of marvelous. curiously watched by crowds, including many carpenters. The general work is pronounced as good as that performed Towns and counties were named after by many builders who are blessed with perfect eyesight. The Increasing Cost of Lumber. The three great northern forest states,

Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota, have been looked upon as the most important sources of the nation's supply of lumber, especially for all the region lying between the Rockies and the Atlantic, and north of the southern yellow pine belt. But so rapidly has the de-nudation of the pine lands in those three states progressed, that the lumber supply therefrom has, according to the American Lumberman, "been much reduced, probably cut in twain, within the last ten years." Statistics based on the value of the output are useless in making comparisons of last year's business with that of preceding years, since prices are steadily advanced, so that the smaller supply of one year brings practically as much money as was paid for the largest output known in any year. However much house-builders and manufacturers may suffer, the lumberman smiles contentedly as he rakes in for a thousand feet just as much as he sand feet.
