Be Not Deceived.

This is not the first time we have attempted to sound a warning against the efforts made by unscrupulous promoters of mining stocks to "fatten their pocketbooks" at the expense of easily duped people, hastening to become rich.

For some time past the country has been flooded with circulars, "confidential" letters and prospectuses of mines and mining properties, investment in which, will pay enormous dividends, and in a few years make the investor independently wealthy. So tempting is the "bait," so alluring the prospect, so seemingly reliable and authenticated the that the Government is inactive or that glowing account of "assays" and "holdings" that many an honest dollar-the savings of hard working and self-sacrificing men and women who are seeking but the world hears little of it. Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Jan. 20.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE. Topic.—"More than conquerors." The victory over temptation.—Gen. iii, 4-6; Matt. xxvi, 41; Rom. viii, 37.

The saddest story to be found on the pages of human history is the one contained in the reference selected fall of the first man and woman into had been created in the image of God. | to one whom we have not met personholiness." Morally and spiritually he was a perfect being, like God, and as a result God walked with him and talked with him in the garden of Eden, his home. But, though perfect, man was not immune from temptation and sin. To prove his worth it was necessary for him to be subjected to temptation. In the wisdom of God this must have been wise and even good or else God would have willed it otherwise. And yet the greatest problem in human life is the coming of sin into the world. We cannot solve the problem. It is useless to try. We can only face the fact. Man was tempted and yielded. This is the sad fact. The tempter was shrewd and tactful. He lied as to results, as most tempters do. The temptation was a strong one, skillfully presented, and man yielded

Brought death into the world and all our

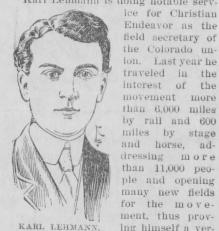

The downfall of Adam not only brought death and ruin to himself, but through him to all the human race, which is descended from him, so that today all men are liable to temptation and to sin. The soul is constantly in the midst of a great struggle between ! truth and error, right and wrong, righteousness and holiness. No human being in all the world is exempt from this struggle. The adversary of the human soul still exists, going about like a roaring lion, seeking whom he may devour." He is still most subtle and skillful in his attacks upon us. He knows our vulnerable points and constantly assails us where us the command, "Watch and pray v, 10), that ye yield not to temptation." A Cycle Corps. The use of the bicycle in Christian Endeavor work is very common in Great Britain and Australia, but far less common in the United States. We notice in the last number of the Christian Endeavor News of South Australia the organization of still another cycle corps, in the Burgess Memorial church of Adelaide. These enthusiastic Endeavorers ride out into the country twelve or fifteen miles to visit some society that needs the good cheer and inspiration they bring with them. After their ride they are in just the right trim for a vigorous religious meeting, and the ride back again over the hills is full of delight, with the added joy of duty done. This combination of physical and spiritual exercise should be adopted in the United States .-Christian Endeavor World.

Robert Ingersoll once said, "I would rather be a German peasant sitting by the river Rhine, the evening sun throwing an aureole of glory around my vine clad cottage, my children at my side, my book in my hand, at peace with my fellow men, than to be the greatest Christian that ever lived." I want to change that. I would rather be the humblest Endeavorer in Ohio, sitting in the evening twilight by the door of the plainest church in the most lonely countryside in our great commonwealth, the evening sun throwing an aureole of God's love and praise about my head, my fellow Endeavor. ers by my side, my Bible on my knee, at peace with my God and my fellow men, than to be the greatest infidel that ever lived.-C. H. Hubbell.

The best dairymen are now using both winter and summer silos. At the Ontario experiment farm they feed only twice a day-a succulent ration, with meal and clover hay an hour and a half afterward, in the morning, and at 3:20 p. m. the same ration, with long hay. When a man is afraid to remark at the breakfast table, even mildly and causally that, from what he has heard. Cleopatra was a beautiful woman, it is fair to assume that the specter of constant jealousy dwells in that household. When a wife fears to look at the moon because she may be accused of admiring the man in it, the husband needs to be gently reminded that he is taking a very rapid short cut to killing the love he seems to hold so sacred. Love is fed by confidence, trust, faith and serene, restful reliance, but morbid jealousy is a poison of doubt, suspicion and injustice that dulls the love it does not deaden. Jealousy is a disease that can be cured only by the subject, not by anyone else in all the world. No matter how gentle, kind, forbearing, forgiving and forgetting the object of it may be, this in itself will not cure the attacks. The subject whose heart is thus swayed by fierce gales of jealousy must first awaken to the folly of it, the injustice of it; must be conscious of the trail of bitterness and unhappiness it brings to both, must realize the cruel continued assault on the tolerance, love, loyalty and patience of the other, and, when the next attack comes, seek by strength of will, by force of character, by every weapon in the armory of the soul, to kill the feeling. Jealousy must be killed in the thought. In the mind, the battle-ground of the soul, must the fight of extermination be waged. In the thought must the jealousy be neutralized by faith, conquered by justice, and transformed by trustful love into a restful, abiding confidence that only absolute proof and certainty of just cause for jealousy can ever reawaken.—William George Jor-

Public Sale Advertising.

It will be impossible for those who expect to have sale of Live Stock and Farming Implements, this Spring, to invest a few dollars better than by taking advertising space in the CARROLL RECORD. Let the people who get the paper know what you have to sell. Nine-tenths of the people do not get into hotels and public places where the bills are posted, and those who do cannot take the list of articles home with them.

You need plenty of bidders for a good sale, therefore, tell all the people you can, what you have to sell-tell them three or four times, through the RECORD, right in their homes where they have plenty of time

OUR SALE CARDS.

We think a great deal of the colored "Sale Cards" which may be mailed, the same as postal cards, at one-cent. They are convenient to 'hand around," through the schools, or at sales or other gatherings. These cards (about 3x5 inches) are especially valuable if you have good stock or implements to sell—500 will do lots of good—some use 1000 and they are not expensive. If you do not know just what a "Sale Card'' looks like, send to us for a sample.

OUR SALE BILLS.

We will use, this year, as for several years past, good white paper with a bright red border, for sale bills. Our bills are clean and bright and always attract attention. We print three regular sizes, but can also supply an extra large, and an extra small size. The bill with the red border will please you.

Water In Old London. London's original water supply, says the Chicago Daily News, was the river Thames, and every apprentice was supplied with a water tankard for transporting liquid to the house. As early as 1479 there were "water thieves," "for in this yere a wex chandler in Fleet street had bi craft perced a pipe of the condit withynne the ground, and so conveied the water into his selar; wherefore he was jugid to ride thrugh the citee with a condit upon his hedde.' The first official water supply for London was made in Germany. In 1582 Peter Maurice, a German, made an enfield that he once dismissed a servant, gine at London bridge by which water was conveyed in lead pipes to the citi-
