NEWS NOTES HERE AND THERE

A bill has been introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature, which will likely pass, appropriating $50,000,000, for the construction of state roads.

Baltimore now has a supply of real "Irish" potatoes, as a big steamer arned, this week, containing among its freight 15,000 bags, or 45,000 bushels of potatoes, grown in Ulster, the northern part of Ireland.

The House, on Wednesday, rejected all the increases in official salaries as granted by the Senate. The salary of the President was fixed at $75,000, instead of $100,000, the Senate figure. An exciting debate, lasting about six hours, characterized the day, and party lines therefore, for us to make comments involving comparisons.

The only criticism which may be propwere completely broken.

Washington Camp No. 5, P. O. S. of A., of Westminster, initiated a large class of new members, on Feb. 22, and after the ceremony gaye a luncheon to all present. This Camp is enjoying a year of growth and renewed vigor, and bids fair soon to stand up among the leaders in both numbers and prosperity. There were many visitors present on this ecasion from adjoining Camps.

Mr. Frank Brown's son, Frank, seems to be unfortunate in running down colored people with his automobile, as he furnished a second victim, one day last week, this time only injuring, and not killing him. Mr. Brown, Sr., is rather "touchy" on the subject, and thinks the newspapers give his son's escapades rather too much publicity.

An exchange says that the people who need religion are: The man who left his horse standing out in the cold all day without a blanket on; the man who growls like a wild beast when his wife asks him for money; the woman who is not what she ought to be; the minister who is looking for an easier place and a higher salary; the man who walks the streets with his hands in his pockets, while his wife carries the baby; the man who keeps a dog and says he can't afford to take the home paper.

A passenger train from Bruceville to Frederick, on Wednesday morning, ran into an open switch at Walkersville, and crashed into a loaded freight car on the siding. Two men-Charles Fitze, 30 Years old, and James Reddick, 60 years d, who had been standing near the car-were hurled a distance of 20 or 30 feet and seriously hurt. Fitze had his skull fractured, and is not expected to Reddick is internally injured and otherwise hurt. Both were taken to rederick immediately after the accident and hurried to the City Hospital. #### Record Office Additions.

The RECORD office has added to its equipment a 30-inch Oswego paper cutter, a very useful 1650 lb. instrument which we hope will do our cutting and trimming for years to come. We have also placed an order for 150 lbs. of 8 Point Roman type for book work, and ave other additions in view which will urther better equip our office for all classes of printing.

"Pauline" a Big Success.

The Operetta "Pauline," rendered by home talent, on Tuesday night, in the hardly an operetta; it is rather a musical extravaganza, with little or no well con-nected plot, the sole object being to make prominent a considerable number of separate characters. Even "Pauline" is not prominently a star character, but all are given something like an even chance to capture the audience.

Barring the lack of proper stage setting, scenery, costumes and the like, the event, as produced, was almost semi-professional, far above the average amateur standard, and all who participated covered themselves with well earned glory, some in the audience emphasizing the work of certain characters, while some found greater enjoyment in the work of others. It would be improper, erly made—and one not the fault of the participants—is, that the play is about a half hour too long. Four or five of the numbers could easily be cut out; but, as each character is appreciated locally, the objection of length is not a strong one.

We are glad to announce that Mr.
Reindollar and his "company" will reproduce the operetta, in response to numerous requests, on Thursday evening, March 4. Owing to the very inclement weather, many were prevented from attending, but it is just as well that they were, as the house could not have accommodated the crowd. At the next production, reserved seats will be sold at 25¢, while general admission will be 20¢. Tickets are on sale at McKinney's

The Frederick City Select Orchestra deserves special mention for its excellent work, throughout. The entire program rests.on musical excellence, both from orchestra and stage, and the Frederick artists did their part above criticism, notwithstanding that there was but one rehearsal.

Miss Alice May Youse, of Baltimore, principal of Shaftesbury College of Expression, whose splendid work in coaching the performers undoubtedly had much to do with the very successful production of the program, rendered a monologue between the parts, entitled, "The High School Girl Graduate," and received the full measure of applause to

Henry Clay Bishop Won Suit.

According to the Gettysburg Compiler. Mr. Henry Clay Bishop, well known in the neighborhood of Taneytown, won a case of considerable importance in the Adams county Court. The Compiler

A special session of Court was held last Tuesday and Wednesday, to try the case of Henry Clay Bishop vs. Mrs. Henry Clay Bishop. Judge Gilliland, of Chambersburg and Associates Trostle and Smith were on the bench. The case, which excited considerable interest was brought about by a disruption in the Bishop family about a year ago causing Mr. Bishop to leave, home.

Some time prior to this Mr. Bishop had given his wife $2000 which he testified as having received from his mother. Mrs. Bishop gave him a judgment note for the amount, but refused to pay the same when demanded, thus the suit.

Quite a number of witnesses were heard and the case went to the jury Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock and after being out an hour returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff."

THE ROAD QUESTION.

To-day (Friday) will be a lively day in Baltimore, when big delegations from six counties will appear before the Road Commission to protest against the routes tentatively selected for state roads. The trouble begins in Baltimore and extends to Frederick county, and each delega-tion has been given one hour in which to present its troubles, which is not likely to be half enough time, especially as there are antagonistic delegations Carroll will likely have at least four delegations, representing the Sykesville, Mt. Airy, Taneytown and Middleburg routes, each of which has Westminster at the other end. The greatest contest is apparently in the southern end of the county, the rivalry between Sykesville and Mt. Airy being very strong. Friends of the Taneytown road will also strongly urge the advantages of that road over the one via Uniontown and Middleburg, which has been tentatively selected.

The situation is such, that, from a political standpoint, it is difficult to tell which end is safest to take hold of. As the Republicans were given no repre-sentation on the Road Commission the Democrats must shoulder the responsi-bilities growing out of the routes selected, and unless there are very clear and convincing reasons given for the selections made, the party is likely to suffer at the coming election. Every route will be carefully analyzed, and if it be apparent that political smart practice has been indulged in, the voters will be heard from, later. The idea seems to be creeping in that some very fine work has been done, in favor of certain routes, in which indi-vidual interests and certain real estate holdings, as well as a little "politics," have cut considerable figure, but nobody is willing to make definite statements, or charge anybody with crookedness and with being unduly influenced. Very naturally, the various sections of each county have had their own pet plan, and are unwilling to admit that any other is quite so good, which means that when these plans are turned down, suspicion is bound to arise that some-body "done them" on the sly.

This suspicion is further influenced, in some cases, by local reports of certain influences at work, and also by the fact that some of the routes, as first selected, do not seem to lead anywhere as part of a logical and clearly defined system. On the whole, the Road Commission is under a pretty heavy fire, at present and later on public sentiment may crystallize into open antagonism against the powers. The publication of a road map will likely show so many crooks and turns, that it will be an easy guess that the Czar of Russia had nothing to do with drawing the plans.

sion of the Commission will be rendered at the conclusion of the hearing. In all probability the meeting will adjourn, and several days be taken before announcing the result on which so much depends for the northern central and letters testamentary thereon granted

.0.0.0. Lesson from the Harney Fire.

The fire at Harney, last week, again illustrated the amount of energetic neigh-borly work that can always be depended on in every community. Fire seems to arouse the fighting spirit in everybody, property from destruction. It certainly is a splendid sight, and a fact worth great appreciation, to see determined men work at a fire, everything forgotten and save property.
But, there is a warning and a lesson to be learned from just such fires, and when people have certain plain facts illustrated to them, they should profit by the lesson, and Harney's lesson is thisit ought to have a Fire Company. All towns of that size should have one, with an equipment of ladders, buckets, axes, and practice in handling them. Even a "bucket brigade" when properly managed, is a big help at a fire—much more so than the indiscriminate running, and unorganized help, of all hands.

Positive knowledge of the location and condition of wells and cisterns, and the clear-headed direction of a chief and his assistants, are always great helps; and the known location of a supply of safe ladders and good buckets, and that they will be skilfully used, is the next best thing to an equipment of hose and a water supply.

There should also be a strong local interest manifested in the character of roofs, as well as in the construction of chimneys and the use of stoves in pantries and out kitchens. One badly placed stove may easily endanger a whole town, while shingle roofs and strawy barnvards are a constant menace to property. It is the prevalence of just such conditions which makes insurance companies unwilling to take risks in small unprotected towns, where citizens might make the risk of fire less-if they would.

THE WAR FLEET RETURNS.

Great Demonstration in Hampton Roads. The President is "Delighted."

The American war fleet, which has been on a tour around the world for over a year, arrived at Hampton Roads, Va., on schedule time, on Monday morning, Feb. 22, having in every way successfully carried out its great program. As the President said in his welcome address "This is the first battle fleet that has ever circumnavigated the globe. Those who perform the feat again can but follow in your footsteps."

It is well enough to talk of bond issues, but as a general proposition the revenues must meet the expenses. During the last three months a number of fakirs have been traveling through the counties of Maryland selling patent nos-trums and giving alleged theatrical per-formances and Wild West shows. The whole expedition has been variously estimated, many considering it an unnecessary and boastful exhibition, but it had at least an enthusiastic backer in the President, who, in the course of his address said: this excellent illuminant at a cost which compares, to the advantage of Acetylene, with city gas when burned in the open flame burner costing a dollar per thousand cubic feet.

The Congressional Record.

We used to hear a good many jokes about the "dryness" of the Congressional Record, and all sorts of opinions that it was a "great big nothing," so far as interesting reading is concerned. Well, we beg leave to differ. We feel that we have missed a great deal, in our editorial life, through not receiving this publication years ago. In fact, we like it, immensely, and read as much of its contents as time will allow.

Contrary to popular impression, our Senators and Representatives get a whole lot of fun out of their job, and many of them prove themselves to be first-rate humorists. Besides, the sparring back and forth in debate, the smart things said, and the sharp contests of both wisdom and wit over the passage of even the dryest legislation, are especially enjoyable to the comprehending

There is also a vast mass of most valuable and interesting statistical information given, which in itself makes the Record a valuable encyclopedia of knowledge, lacking only proper indexing to make it practically useful. And then, the courtesies and formalities observed, are interesting object lessons to "honored constituents." How the honorable "Senators" and "gentlemen" trim up their sharpest arrows to hit the mark without unnecessary mutilation, either of feelings or words, is a revelation, and must even rob the death of pet measures of some of the sting.

Why, one almost thinks he knows the gentlemen, after reading their speeches, and is very apt to admire both those who talk much, and those who do notthe former for their smartness of speech, and the latter for their discreet silence and polite forbearance. But, this one Maryland, we reproduce that of Conthing is true of Congress, as well as of gressman Goulden, of New York, who is smaller bodies, a few Senators and Representatives seem to feel it incumbent on themselves to do most of the talking, which makes ones wonder whether public business could be transacted should a dozen or more of them be "called up

We would not advise a too general reading of the Congressional Record because it would surely result in a flood of congressional candidates. When people get a clear realization of some "good thing" they are missing, they are very apt to want that thing, and want it bad, therefore, the proceedings had better be kept away from the people, for the reason that "where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise." Already, we are "stung," and have the bee in our bonnet that did the job. Let the Honorable Joshua Frederick Cockey Talbott guard any State might be proud to honor, and his job as never before, for we are after

Automobiles --- A Moral View.

It is a clearly established fact that the automobile, when operated by sports with little sense, and half drunk besides, is very dangerous to public safety. Even when the driver is responsible and normally sane, there is always an excitement, or speed mania-a sort of daredevil feeling-which seems to destroy caution and a proper consideration of the rights of others who use the highways, and which, in a measure, has a tendency toward arousing a sentiment against all machine drivers.

The great cost of automobiles, which causes their ownership and operation to be largely in the hands of the wealthy classes, is responsible for many of the accidents chargable to their use, for the reason that many such owners are apt to depend on their wealth and position to depend on their wealth and position wake it; his best thought, his deepest to entitle them to superior rights over the poorer classes. That wealth often brings arrogance and self-importance, is unquestioned, and when to this is added the ownership of machine power and intention. the excitement of distance annihilation, the combination is likely to be a dangerous one. Unfortunately, the good suffer with the bad, in this as in most other instances, which raises the question,

One thing is sure: The best, the most law abiding, sober and sane, autoists, been; conservative and wise we know who want to enjoy fast machine travel, must themselves raise the pleasure and privilege to a much higher plane than it now occupies, or it will surely sink to a still lower level in the estimation of the general public. There is no escaping this. No legitimate business, which is extensively practiced illegitimately, can extensively practiced illegitimately, can extensively practiced illegitimately, can know that his spirit lives on; that the long expect to stand high in the favor of things he stood for will be the better for the best people, even though it has the power of wealth and position back of it.

There seems to be little doubt that the auto is here to stay. It has many proper uses, both for pleasure and business. There is no question that with proper knowledge of its mechanism and operation, and the full observance of law, it But, the difficulty comes in absolutely conforming to these few necessary requirements. Many autoists are not proper persons to operate fast engines on our public roads; they do not understand their mechanism; they do not observe the laws, and in many cases recklessly and purposely disregard the rights of others. It is up to the proper autoists, therefore, to make machine travel fully respectable.

Scarcity of Railroad Ties.

Washington, Feb. 21.-That the humto do honor to our great men. He said; ble railroad tie is a most important fac-"Mr. Speaker, in this day of our wit- tor in the material development of the ness to the memory of Senator William | country is a great truth that is little understood by people outside of railroad circles. The puffing engine that speeds at the rate of a mile or more a minute over the country is a slave to the two steel rails that insure a smooth and safe road, and these rails in turn depend on tne old-fashioned wooden cross-tie which holds them in place.

Yankee invention has not yet found a substitute which has induced the railroads to give up wood, although experts introduced by me I always found him say that the day will surely come when the country's forests will no longer be called upon to supply the demand for ties. Up to the present time it seems attainments and experience, Senator ties. Up to the present time it seems Whyte was exceptionally distinguished. that no other material has been found which has the resiliency of wood and which at the same time causes less wear and tear on the rails, fastenings, and

The country's railroads during the last two or three years use 110,000,000 to 150,000,000 of sawed and hewn ties a year. The ideal tie timber is white oak, which combines the qualities of durability, hardness, strength, and close grain. It is not only excellent for ties, but is widely used in ship building, for general construction, co-operage, in the manufacture of carriages, for agricultural implements, interior finish of houses, and for furniture. On account of this wide use, the supply has been greatly reduced and some of the railroads have been forced to pay almost prohibitive prices for ties, or to substitute other and cheaper woods to replace the white oak ties rapidly disappearing from their

Over 40 per cent of the ties recently purchased by the railroads of the country are oak, according to latest statistics of United States Forest Service. Crossties of Southern pine formed somewhat less than 25 per cent. Douglas fir ties ranked third, with approximately 10 per cent of the total. Naturally the proportion of these two timbers will increase as the supply of oak dwindles. This is also true of cedar, chestnut, cypress, Western pine, tamarack, hemlock, and other trees which are coming into the market as tie timbers.

that it is readily cut by the rails. This necessitates the use of tie plates and ing to be carried away without the use dulgences, not wrong in themselves, which by association and reputation are to place power only in the hands of their other protective devices when cedar ties of laxatives or any other assistance.

also running short, it is necessary for the railroads to seek further for new tie timber. One of the woods which has all the requisites of a good tie, with the exception of durability, is the beech.

A beech tie generally consists largely of sapwood, which partly accounts for him to be; but we wish from our hearts of sapwood, which partly accounts for that there were more of him in these its lack of durability, but, on the other hand, allows a thorough and easy preservative treatment. In Germany and France, beech ties have been successfully preserved from decay, and are used extensively. Beech is found widely distributed throughout the eastern part of the United States, and at the present time is comparatively cheap and abundant. If, therefore, the railroads whose lines are located in the regions where beech is abundant can make use of this wood, treated with some suitable preservative, another source of supply of tie timber will be opened up.

Stumpage values have been increasing so rapidly during the last few years that many railroads have found it necessary to modify their timber policy, and they yearly apply preservatives to a greater number of ties and to more kinds of wood. Substitute woods naturally vary with different sections of the country, but in most cases they lack the two essential qualities found in white oak, namely, resistance to mechanical wear and decay. Experience proves that wear can be successfully retarded by the use of tie plates and other mechanical devices, and decay can be postponed by the application of proper preservatives. The new conditions have made it necessary for many railroad companies to meet the problem of preservation by establishing treating plants at central points of distribution along their lines.

Then he told how, hurrying once through a court-room, he was ordered by the judge to defend a prisoner accused of assault and battery. A witness was just testitying that the complainant had been fought all over a field. 'On cross-exami nation,' said Lincoln, 'I asked him, "How large was that field-twenty acres?" "No," he replied. "Ten acres?" "No." "Were there two acres?" I persisted. "Yes, just about two," he agreed. "And you saw him fight this man all over the field?" pointing to the prisoner. "Yes, sir." "Well, sir," I prisoner. "Yes, sir." "Well, sir," I said, "did you ever see a fight before that turned out so little to the acre? The witness admitted with a grin that he had not, the judge smiled, and the jury snickered. So, saying that as this crop was so poor it did not seem worth further cultivation, I submitted the case. Some of my friends said it was Yankee wit, but that was the only time I ever got credit for it. I wish I had it."

BARS ON THE FARM.

Easily Constructed and Serviceable, Attractive and Durable.

It is important to the farmer that his inclosure should be well equipped with substantial bars. There are farmers who go to as much trouble in a year's time in moving a poor gate or bars back and forth, as they drive in and out of fields and in chasing cattle about, as making dozens of such bars as are described in this article. For pole bars, as seen in the first cut, use round poles about two and one-half or three inches in diameter. Cut four pieces the same length to use for the upright bar posts or standards. In these bore four or more holes apiece an equal distance apart. Connect these standard post holes in pairs with five or six inch lengths of small round poles just the right size to fit tightly into the bored holes. If necessary shave off the ends a bit pointed so as to drive them into place firmly. As an additional security nail each one in place. Little blocks of wood can be nailed between the upright poles instead of the five inch lengths of pole. In either case these little bars or blocks hold up the bar poles. Set the two connected upright standards in position and put your bar poles in place and you have a good, tidy set of Salt and common tobacco leaves and stems will, it is claimed, keep sheep from having stomach worms.

DRINKING TIME FOR HORSES.

Common Sense Rules That Will Benefit the Beasts.

A horse should be watered before feeding and never given a large quantity of water after a meal, for the simple reason that the water will wash the food out of the stomach before stomach digestion has taken place, and the food will not be well prepared for absorption, and, besides, it is sometimes the cause of colic.

There is a popular idea that a warm horse should not be allowed to drink, and, unlike a great many other popular ideas, there is a little truth in it. If you water a warm horse in the ordinary way, letting him drink all that he will, you are likely to have a foundered horse on your hands. This is especially so if, at the time, the horse is fatigued. Nevertheless it is always safe to allow him from six to ten swallows, no matter how warm he is. If this be given on going into the stable and he be allowed to stand and eat hay for an hour and is then offered water, he will not drink nearly so much as he would had none been given

The danger is not in the first swallow, as we often hear it asserted, but in the excessive quantities he will drink if not restrained. The most dangerous time to give a horse a full draft is when he has cooled down from fatiguing work and has partaken of a

John Splan, the great trainer, writes: 'As to water, I think that a horse should have all that he wants at all A man says, 'Why, will you give your horse water before a race?' Yes, before the race, in the race and after the race and any other time that he wants to drink."

Do not tie your horse in a warm stall, where he cannot get a drink for five or six hours on a hot day, and then take him to a pump and give him all he wants. But give him water often, and in that way he will take only a small quantity at a time.

After long, continuous exertion the system is greatly depleted of fluid. Nature calls for its replacement, and this is the cause of a thirst which is so intense that if the animal is not restrained at the time he may drink much more than he needs.

The general custom, almost universally followed, of giving the morning meal before water is not very objectionable either theoretically or practically. At this time there is no depletion of fluid; consequently the horse is not very thirsty and does not drink rapidly or excessively, and apparently very little evil results from this method. However, the writer much prefers that the horse should have an opportunity to drink before the morning meal. A professor in the Colorado Agricultural college says it is better to keep horses, both summer and winter, in an open shed, with a large tank in the yard, than to tie them by the heads in

THE GRANGE

Conducted by J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y., Press Correspondent New York State

Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island Patrons.

Interesting Features of the Work as Shown In the Reports of the State Grange Meetings.

One of the most active grange states in the Union is the old Pine Tree State, which has a membership of 55,000 and is active in everything that pertains to the interest of the great Order. Without going into a detailed report of the last meeting, it will be sufficient to note some of the resolutions that were adopted. Dr. Leon S. Merrill, for the dairy committee, said that new laws were needed covering the dairy interests and demanded of the grange to present the subject to the incoming legislature. Dairy herds must be improved and sanitary rules enforced. He believed that the sweet cream industry should be encouraged and that farmers should co-operate with the national immigration commissioner in securing good farm help. B Walker McKeen, for the committee on education, said, "There is an unbridged chasm between the schools and the college, and we should try to discover some way to bridge it." He believed that normal school institutes would be a great aid, but they should be an auxiliary to the farmers' institute. Agriculture should be taught in rural schools. Sanitary inspection of the schools was advocated, and the committee urged that the legislative committee use its influence in this matter. The grange placed itself on record as opposed to any change in the present arbitration clause of the insurance law. The committee on co-operation emphasized the importance of getting together to buy and sell and urged that this subject be given its proper place in the lecturer's hour in each subordinate grange. A class of about 500 took the sixth degree. Invitations for the next meeting were received from Augusta and Bangor.

NEW HAMPSHIRE GRANGE.

Excellent Reports From State Meeting Held at Portsmouth.

What is considered to have been one of the most successful meetings of the New Hampshire state grange ever held was its December meeting this year. There were fully 1,500 Patrons present on the busy day of the session. A sixth degree class of 284 was initiated. The only election this year was to the executive committee, which resulted in the re-election of A. J. Richardson of Littleton.

The report of the lecturer showing the literary work done in the subordithe literary work done in the subordinate granges during the year was replete with information. Until we look at these figures one can scarcely comprehend the amount of work that is done during the lecturer's hour in the various subordinate grange meetings. During the year there have been delivered in the subordinate granges of New Hampshire 4,891 vocal and 4.117 instrumental selections of music, 9,024 readings and recitations, 1,371 essays, 823 addresses, 87 dramas, 286 farces. 563 tableaux; there have been 2,629 discussions participated in by 14.691 disputants, and the total attendance at these exercises was 169,716; 203 granges had 962 disputants discuss the articles of business in the town warrants; they were heard by 7,000 people The 172 essays on "Practical Forestry" in April were given before 4.011 persons; 187 discussions on "Advertising Natural Attractions," participated in by 623 speakers, were listened to by 3,779, and 191 granges considered the advisability of a permanent home for the state grange, with an adverse sentiment. Fifty-seven granges have property valued at upward of $1,000, and fifty-six own halls. The total value of subordinate grange property in the state is $159,925.

RHODE ISLAND GRANGE.

Order Growing In Influence-State Master Marchant Re-elected.

Rhode Island is a small state grange. but it has a very active state grange organization under the leadership of State Master Marchant, who at this session was elected for the fourth term. The Order has become quite a decided influence with the farmers and the end pieces and then bringing the with state legislation. One question that was discussed with considerable vigor related to the state board of health, which was quite severely criticised by the state master in his annual address and by many other speakers because it was not more in touch with the farmers. The end pieces. criticism was largely based on the fact that the department of health had charged that the epidemic of typhoid in the city of Providence had emanate from a farm in West Kingston which had been officially inspected and given a clean bill of health. Then after a cursory investigation it was stated that the farm was the source of typhoid infection.

The secretary reported the total grange membership in the state at about 3,000 in thirty-two granges. The other matters discussed were the protection laws against deer, forest fire protection, grange fire insurance, parcels post and rural free deliveries.

ARTIFICIAL CLOUDS.

How French Vineyards Are Protected From Frost.

How the French grape growers protect their vineyards from frost by producing artificial clouds is described by Consul Murphy of Bordeaux: "The process, the invention of Edouard Lestout of Bordeaux, consists of filling small wooden boxes, open top, with an inflammable composition consisting of a mixture of equal parts of resinous with earthy matters (clay, terra alba and the like) reduced to fine powder and pressed into a compact mass. In the center a wick extends through the compound and serves to kindle it. The wick, however, may be dispensed with and the composition ignited by pouring a few drops of alcohol, petroleum or other inflammable oil over the mass and applying a match. These boxes, about six inches long by six wide, made of pine wood ordinarily, are placed in line about thirty feet apart around certain areas.

"So far as grapevines are concerned, the most dangerous period of the year is in April, when the young shoots are showing some vigor and the juices running freely. Then a slight frost may mean disaster unless the plants are protected in some way. There is little danger when a dark or cloudy morning follows a cold night. The trouble comes when the first rays of the morning sun strike the almost frozen and unprotected plant. By the Lestout process a dense cloud of smoke is produced, hanging over the vineyard long enough to protect the plants from the sun's rays and give them a chance to recuperate from the dangerous effects of the frost.

"The composition in the boxes to windward only is ignited, the thick, black, heavy smoke hanging over the field forming a shield against the sun's rays. The inventor declares that his process may be used for masking the movements of an army, hiding the erection of field works; also as a rain producer and even for driving off grasshoppers and locusts."

WEIGHT AND LONGEVITY.

Those Nearest the Standard Posses Greatest Vitality.

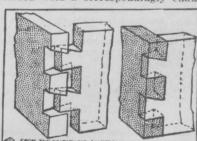

The greatest vitality and lowest mortality have been found by Dr. Brandreth Symonds in persons whose weight is within 10 per cent of the standard. His investigations have been based on the records of 200,000 males and have included all ages and various disease tendencies as influenced by age as well as weight.

For the normal or standard weight of a man forty years old and five feet six inches tall 150 pounds is accepted, while the rule adding 3 per cent in weight for each extra inch proves fairly accurate. The standard weight increases with age in little men up to forty-five, in middle sized men up tofifty and in the tall up to fifty-five or sixty. Standards for women are not yet worked out, though it is known that at twenty women are six to nine pounds lighter than men, the difference diminishing with age. Both overweight and underweight-each being a deviation of 20 per cent from the standard-affect health and longevity. Mortality increases as the excess weight rises above 20 per cent, and no overweight dies from old age or even lives to eighty. Underweight is less serious, as among 1,078 male underweights forty-four passed eighty and two reached ninety. In the young overweight may counteract predisposition to consumption. Overweights, however, have far more than average liability to disease of brain, heart and stomach, effects of alcoholism and diabetes, and pneumonia, contrary to common belief, is twice as fatal as among underweights. Consumption, especially in early life, is the dreaded disease of underweights.

The corners are joined not by forcing one side piece at right angles to the other, but by placing the side pieces within the ends of corner joints into place by moving the side pieces diagonally outward. A box thus constructed cannot pull apart without first crushing in the sides, as this is the only direction in which the tenons of the side pieces may be moved out of engagement with those of the Welding Copper to Steel.

A Pittsburg company has begun the manufacture of a composite metal which is none other than the welding of copper or brass in any thickness to steel. The welding process has been under development by the company for many months, and it has been so successful that orders are already being received for good sized quantities of the new metal. The idea is to manufacture steel sheets of ordinary thickness and weld them to thin sheets of copper, thus giving the stability of steel to the sheet and at the same time practically the same wearing or nontorrosive features of copper.

Sons of the Presidents.

"Blood will tell" is a common remark regarding the successful sons of sturdy stock. To what extent it "tells" is an interesting question. The sons of Presidents of the United States present illustrations for the test of the problem for Americans. Whether the application of | years ago. this test will answer the question to the satisfaction of many may be left to those who care to spend the time to debate it.

Several of our Presidents have had no sons, or were childless. George Washington left no sons to perpetuate his name or daughters to transmit his blood. The descendants of John Adams are as administration effectually prevented the Pigs were scavengers in those days. It was nasty work dipping the sour mess from those dirty old barrels and we were thankful to the pigs for making sewers of themselves, for we had to get rid of the stuff some way and it would never do to throw it on the ground. #### Things To Try.

Try cleaning with cloth trimmings with salt and flour, hot. This is very effective, while not injuring the material in

When starching Holland pinafores, if a little tea is put into the starch used they will keep their color, instead of getting that faded appearance we all know so well.

Water pipes are frequently stopped up with waterbugs. These pests can be gotten rid of by pouring a tablespoonful of turpentine down the pipe. The mouth of the pipe should be covered to keep in the fumes.

If there are any paint spots spattered about the house get a small quantity of steel wool and rub the spots off. It works much easier and more satisfactorily than any amount of scrubbing.

It you will dampen two cloths with kerosene and shut them up in a tin pail for 24 hours you will find them much more satisfactory than cloths dampened with water. They are handy for wiping dust off furniture or cleaning the linoleum and will not leave streaks.

Care of the Kitchen.

A true house wife should take the greatest pride in her kitchen sink and keep it spotlessly clean. The easiest and best way to clean a galvanized iron sink which has been more or less neglected is to rub strong soap powder into every corner If a farmer has more than three cows and over every inch of surface. Let it with a stout brush go over the whole dipping the brush into boiling water. When the sink is thoroughly scrubbed, polish it with kerosene, rubbing the oil into the iron and leaving no residue of it from rusting after the strong soap powder and boiling water are used. Care must be taken that the painted woodwork around the sink does not come into contact with the powder, as it may eat off the paint.

> The kitchen sink should be cleaned as thoroughly as this twice a week, and every day carefully rinsed out with hot soapsuds.

Humor at Funerals.

In "Other Days" William Winter, the famous dramatic critic, tells how he and Joseph Jefferson were among the pallbearers at McCullough's funeral. "As our melancholy train was halted in a Philadelphia street," says Mr. Winter, "he glanced along the line and gravely remarked. 'I never knew before that there were so many walking gentlemen in my profession.' Another quaint anecdote which he tells with reference to a melancholy occasion is this one on the burial of John Brougham:

"Edwin Booth and I assisted to bear his pall. I remember that the two gravediggers after they had lowered his coffin a little way into the grave were constrained, with many muttered exclamations of 'Aise her!' and 'Raise her!' to lift it up again in order to enlarge the cavity. Booth and I, like Hamlet and Horatio, were standing under a neighboring tree observing these proceedings, and nothing was ever more woefully comic or more immorously rueful than Hamlet's smile as he looked at me with those deep, melancholy eyes and with that little furtive grimace, murmuring as he did so, 'It's the last recall.' "

CHOICE MISCELLANY

Where Children Are Scarce. The 3,640 persons entered on St. Louis' social register have but 277 children, the term "children" including boys under twenty and girls under seventeen years of age. This is the showing of the 1909 register, just out. It is about one child to every thirteen adults. The record further shows that the average society family which has children at all-and on page after page of the book not a child's name appears-has two children. Those with three are comparatively few, and only half a dozen families have more than three. Dividing two-fifths, the reso at large, by one-fourteenth, the society ratio, it appears that children are more than five times as scarce in the social register set as in the city at large.-St Louis Post-Dispatch.

Ancient Dynamite.

One of the steam shovels engaged in work on the Panama canal, in the operation of which more than 300 employees were engaged, recently lifted out a quantity of dynamite which is described in an official report as being "more than a bushel." What would have happened if the shovel had struck the dynamite instead of the earth around it is easy to imagine. The explosive was in sticks three-quarters of an inch in diameter and five inches long, and the cartridges ore the trademark of a French manufacturer of dynamite and a date which appeared to be Nov. 29, 1887. Unquestionably the dynamite was put in by the French and either failed to explode or was abandoned when the work ceased. The dynamite appeared to be in perfect condition.

Trained Flies.

In a lecture on flies before the Royal Photographic society of London F. P. Smith said that with a little patience flies could be trained, and he showed some cinematograph records of flies lying on their backs twirling miniature dumbbells, balancing weights bigger than themselves, climbing revolving wheels and acting as nursemaids, holding dummy babies. Accurately balanced little machines were used for training the flies, and the only discomfort to the insect, said the lecturer, was involved in its being imprisoned for a day or two. On being released, although its wings were uninjured, it had no desire to fly, but showed tractableness and readiness to perform these extraordinary gyrations instead.

Common Mistakes In Astronomy.

Gore, the great English astronomer, has been calling attention to several widespread errors. He says the statement that with the Yerkes telescope one can see the moon as if it were only sixty miles away is utterly wrong, for if the moon were really only at that distance we should see only a very small part of it instead of the entire half, which we do see. We should, he says, see only one-ninetieth of what we see now.

Professor Gore says it is also an error to say that the stars can be seen in broad daylight from the bottom of a well. He says they cannot be seen unless a telescope be used.

Italian Royal Superstition

It is believed in Italy that dire misfortune will befall the present monarch if the chamber of the dead king be interfered with till at least two generations have passed. Therefore the room of the late King Humbert at the Quirinal is shut, no one except members of the royal family being permitted to enter it. Thus it will remain, silent and unused, like the apartment of King Victor Emmanuel, King Humbert's father, which is just as it was at the time of his death, some thirty years ago.

Benefits of the Gyroscope.

Further details regarding the electrical driven gyroscope used on the Lochiel in trips along the Scottish coast show that when the apparatus was out of action the vessel rolled to angles of sixteen degrees on each side -that is, the total angle or roll was not less than thirty-two degrees. When the apparatus was put into action the rolling was prevented and decreased to a total angle roll of from two to four degrees, an amount which is barely perceptible to a passenger .-Boston Herald.

Why They Want Old Bibles.

An extraordinary demand has arisen in the eastern counties of England for secondhand Bibles-the older and dirtier the better. Copies which formerly realized fourpence are now readily bought for half a crown. They are being used to manufacture evidence of age in the case of old age pensions. A woman who produced a Bible to prove her age as seventy-six from an entry on the fly leaf had unfortunately omitted to tear out the title page, which showed the Bible was printed in 1895.

A Many Titled Czar.

If the Czarowitz Alexis lives to ascend his father's throne he will have more titles than he can remember. He will be a czar six times over and in addition will bear more than twenty ducal titles, besides innumerable other dignities. He will be lord of a hundred palaces, with more than 30,000 servants, and his private estates will cover 2,000,000 acres, yielding an annual revenue of over $10,000,000.

His Measure.

"A few friends," relates Mr. James Moir in the Draughts World, "were chatting with Wyllie, the checker champion, in a club after one of his days of exhibition play in Glasgow when a youth, slightly under the influence of John Barleycorn, threatened to monopolize the conversation, blowing his own horn and giving out in no uncertain language that he considered himself the equal of Wyllie. The old man took no notice of him for a time, but, occupying the usual five minutes in considering the move, quietly asked the youth to remove his hat (not more than a six and a half size), then substituted his own-which was a large one and went well down over the young braggart's nose-and, casting his eye around the company, said scornfully, 'That's his measure!' The company enjoyed the retort so much that the youth was glad to make a hurried exit."

The Servant and the Factory Woman. Much as I loathe the factory system, it scores in some respects above sculleries. In factories, at any rate, women meet with their kind and have intercourse with many varieties of human nature. But, chained up in sculleries and kitchens, with tether just long enough to reach the stocking to be mended and no longer, their lives are bare and starved as the picked bones that they put in the pots.-London Woman Worker.

Economy of Costly Foods.

The economy of expensive foods is explained by the fact that digestion, at least in man, is dependent upon flavors, without which it is so defec tive that we do not obtain the good of the food we swallow. As far as experiments go, they substantiate these assertions, for the sight and smell of pleasing food start the flow of digestive fluids, while disagreeable odors and sight stop it. Delicatessen, then, would seem to be staples, for they are necessary. The talk of being able to subsist on a few cents a day is simply nonsense and leads to deterioration of health. What seems to be extravagance in food purchases may be wholesome instinct. The high cost of living is partly due to the cost of the flavors we need. We commend these ideas to our worthy dietetic economists. Laymen may not be so foolish as the physiologists themselves. -American Medicine.

The postmaster objected to be denuded of all his stock. but his mysterious customer demanded the stamps over the counter, sheet after sheet, as an ordinary member of the public until he had bought every stamp to be had. Then he took the stock over to his store across the road and plastered his windows with notices that postage stamps were only to be had at his store, and to his mortification the postmaster had to send customers across to the store over the way for any stamps they needed until some days after he once more got in a stock from headquarters.

of the Lesson, Acts viii, 26-40. Memory Verses 29-31-Golden Text, John v, 39-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Pyright, 1909, by American Press Association.] e sent special messengers or special 888ages, is a great truth to have asp one's soul. Yet it is so plainly ated in such passages as II Chron. 9; Prov. xv, 3, as well as illusated in so many individual cases that Question it is simply unmitigated abelief. Here is the story of a great in the eyes of the world who had arge of all the treasure of the queen Ethiopia, a man who was well fixed, far as this world goes, but he eviatly had no rest in his soul, but a leat hunger for something that moncould not buy. He had made a long Irney to Jerusalem, the city of the Reat king, where the queen of Sheba ad once gone to see the greatness of <sup>0</sup>mon, but he was returning home Satisfied, not having found that hich his soul sought.

As he journeyed he was reading the hophecy of Isaiah. It would be a tre thing today to find any one travg by train or trolley or steamer ading such a book. Whether he posessed the book before he left home or otained it in Jerusalem the record 8 not say, but the record does say he read it as he journeyed, and dat is the important thing. He was dili ently seeking the truth, and he was Oticed in Heaven, and events were dered that he might obtain what he ought (Jer. xxix, 13). God used an gel and a man to bring it about.

connection with angels I love to oder Ps. ciii, 20. "Bless the Lord, ye angels, that excel in strength, that His commandments, harkening unto voice of His word," and then i, 14, where we read that they inister to the heirs of salvation. ey are His ministers doing His easure, and we should be the same, ving always that good and acceptaand perfect will of God. Philip s evidently one with the angels in 8 matter, a willing and obedient Trant of Christ, for without queshing he arose and went. The Lord hew His man and could say in this se as in some others: I have found Me a man. He is ever saying, "Whom lall I send, and who will go for us?" but how few reply like the prophet, Here am I; send me!" (Isa. vi, 8.) It has wholly against human reason and called common sense that a man was being used as Philip was lould leave a great work and go down the desert. But the great question Whose work is it, and who is doing That being settled, then it must day by day, What wilt Thou, or here wilt Thou? And to the reply dere is nothing for us but prompt and xxxvii, 1-5; xlii, 1-11; lxvii; ciii, 1-5; heerful obedience. Philip was a man Whom an angel or the Holy Spirit ould talk. He had obeyed the voice the angel, and now the Spirit says, Join thyself to this chariot." So he to it and heard the man reading Prophet Isaiah and said to him, derstandest thou what thou read-(Verse 30.) We are reminded of Lord's oft repeated similar quesas in Matt. xiii. 51; xvi. 9-11, and Heb. xi, 3, where we learn that the ay to understand is to believe. Philis invited to ride in the chariot that may explain the portion being read, hich was what we call Isa, liii, 7, 8, beginning at that Scripture he ached Jesus, His sufferings and Ory, His kingdom and the way to it. The eunuch, seeing him hom he unconsciously longed for as set before him, at once received and confessed it by baptism and ent on his way rejoicing, no doubt carry the glad tidings to many in hiopia. Philip was caught away by de Spirit and from Azotus to Caesarea reached the gospel in all the cities drough which he passed.

Our Lord was as ready to preach to he as to hundreds, and if we are His followers we will be ready do likewise. How varied was Philb's experience in this incident—a long urney on foot, a ride in a royal charlot, caught away supernaturally the Spirit, but, best of all, used by to turn a seeking soul to Himself! hat an illustration of "for any manof service, wholly at thy comhandment" (I Chron. xxviii, 21). As Preaching Jesus, there is no one to preach, and unless He is set as God manifest in the flesh, as God mannest in the differing for our sins, wounded for our transgressions, bruised for our inles, risen, ascended, interceding coming again in glory to estab-His kingdom, the preaching is not Ording to the Scriptures. Philip just where the man was readand preached Jesus, and, while Isa.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 7, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE.
Topic.—Life lessons for me from the Psalms.—Ps. xlvi, 1-11. (Consecration meeting.)

The expression "for me" indicated in the topic has a special significance as related to the Psalms. Every book of the Bible applies more or less to the individual, but the Psalms in this respect surpass all others. No other book has been more widely read, and no other has had so many comments written upon it. The reason for these things lies close to the surface. The the midst of all this great work | Psalms are largely devotional. They Samaria, Philip is commanded by are the expressions of the soul in its Messenger from heaven to arise and relation to God under the most varied toward the south to a certain road circumstances. The experiences of ngh a desert place. That Heaven the soul are and always have been really interested in affairs on earth, essentially the same, and hence when God Himself cares for my per- the soul is cast down or exalted, when affairs, that He careth for me as under depression or blessed with a as He cared for Abraham or perfect trust, we turn to the Psalms to ac or Jacob or Hagar or Samuel or read the experiences of others under deon or the many others to whom similar circumstances, and we never go away without a blessing. The Psalms have been a powerful factor both in church life and national life, but, above all, they have filled longing wants in the individual life. If you have neglected or are neglecting this book as a means of your personal growth in experimental religion and in all graces you are making a sad mistake. In the Twenty-third Psalm. for instance, only the singular personal pronoun is used, illustrating that they are "for me."

The book of Psalms is a collection of sacred poems, used in song and composed by various authors, but principally by David, and hence they are commonly called the "Psalms of David." They include historical references, confessions of men, Messianic prophecies, the outpourings of the soul in times of doubt and despair and praises and rejoicings in times of implicit trust and joy. The book consists of 150 Psalms, yet there is no division as to time or as to the subjects used. The Jews divide them into five books, which division has been followed by the revisers of the Old Testament:

Book I.—Ps. 1-41. Book II.-Ps. 42-72. Book III.—Ps. 73-89. Book IV.—Ps. 90-106. Book V.—Ps. 107-150.

Nor are the divisions arbitrary. At the end of each one there is a natural stopping place. The first book closes with the words, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting, amen and amen" (Ps. xli, 13); the second, "The prayers of David, the son of Jesse, are ended" (Ps. lxxii, 20); the third, "Blessed be the Lord forevermore, amen and amen" (Ps. lxxxix. 52); the fourth, "Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting, and let all the people say amen; praise ye the Lord" (Ps. cvi, 48); the fifth, "Let everything that hath breath praise the Lord; praise ye the Lord" (Ps. cl. 6).

The Forty-sixth Psalm is a lesson to the church and to us as members of it. In the midst of all the trials of the church "God is in the midst of her; she shall not be mired. God shall help her, and that right early.' So it is with our lives. God is in the midst of them, and we need not fear though the earth and the mountains be moved or the waters roar. "God is our refuge and our strength."

The Town Fool.

[Copyright, 1908, by T. C. McClure.]

It was a brutal way of putting it, but everybody in the town of Graham had come to speak of Jimmy Landon as the town fool. It was said that the boy had been born bright enough, but at the age of five a stroke of lightning the power of speech, and his mind was weakened, and after the death of his widowed mother he was an inmate of the poorhouse for two or three years. Then he became a hanger-on of the town, having no particular home, but being cared for as an object of charity. Not quite that either. He was always willing to do any work he could to pay his way. He could hear if he could not talk, and, though seemed to have no more mind than a child of three, he got along very well. Two things the boys of the town came to learn in time-Jimmy had a streak of cunning in him, and he was revengeful.

Jimmy Landon was thirteen years town fool for several years when a sort of event happened in the quiet community. A stranger, who called himself Colonel Bliss and who was so crippled up with wounds that he had to use a pair of crutches, arrived in town and delivered a series of lectures on war. It came to be understood that he had been the colonel of a gallant Illinois regiment and that owing to his wounds and other misfortunes he was in bad financial shape. He did fairly well with his lectures, and he made many friends, and when he proposed to open a singing and writing school he received much encouragement. He could sing, and he wrote a beautiful hand.

The colonel took up his quarters at one of the two inns in the town, where he had the use of the hall used for dancing. He could have had the best room in the house, but he did not want He wanted one with a back instead of a front view. Just beneath his windows was the roof of the kitchen, and below that was the roof of a shed. From thence it was a drop of only six feet to the alley in the rear of the hotel. These things were not taken notice of by outsiders until later on. The town fool took a liking to Colonel Bliss at once. He was drawn toward him by his crippled condition. The lad had never seen anything like it in his life. The colonel could manage to get up and down stairs, but no more. If he left the hotel it had be be in a carriage. Jimmy Landon started out to attach himself to the stranger as a body servant, but his unusual curiosity brought about his downfall. He had served for two weeks when the colonel found him rummaging his trunk and sent him to the right about. Not only that, but he whacked him over the back with one of his crutches. Those whacks destroyed the boy's illusions. The colonel was no longer a god to him. Jimmy had reasoned it out in his silly mind that the trunk was a partnership concern and that he had a perfect right to examine its contents, and to be whacked for doing it and then to be driven away in disgrace aroused a thirst for revenge. The schools had just got fairly started when more events came along. One night the postoffice was robbed of cash and stamps to the value of $200. It was a widow who held the office, and everybody felt sorry for her. It was decided that the trick had been done by two men who were seen loafing about the streets at a late hour that night, and the sheriff failed to get any clew. The colonel heard of the robbery, of course, and seemed to take a deep interest in it. In fact, his advice was taken by the sheriff in seeking to solve the affair. Only ten days later the leading dry goods store was entered at night and $70 in cash taken. As no goods were taken, the sheriff reasoned that some one in the town was the robber, but the colonel differed with him. In his opinion an organized gang was at work and the fellows had been frightened away before they could begin loading up their had sold a lot of cattle and had the money in his house was neatly robbed of every dollar of it. He and his wife were sleeping in a bedroom off the sitting room, and the robber had effected entrance by using a ladder and a second story window. The sum taken was $300, and now the sheriff and his deputies began to move lively. By the advice of Colonel Bliss, who hinted that he might add a detective agency to his schools, certain highways were watched at night. Nothing came of that, but the postoffice in a village in a contrary direction was robbed of $100 worth of cash and stamps.

The town fool could hear, and he heard all about the robberies. He couldn't grasp the particulars the way other folks did, but he absorbed enough of them to make him act queerly. He went about with a grin on his face, and when spoken to about the robberies he put on the most knowing look his face had ever worn. The sheriff bought the lad 10 cents' worth of candy and tried for an hour to get something out of him, but Jimmy simply munched the sweets and grinned. If he had anything up his sleeve he wasn't going to bring it to light just then. The robbery of the farmer was still being talked of when a hardware store in the town was entered and robbed. In addition to $25 in cash, the robber bundled up $200 worth of old and had been looked upon as the the choicest cutlery. There was no clew until Colonel Bliss furnished one. He directed suspicion toward the town fool. Jimmy Landon was brought to the hotel by the sheriff, and the colonel and others set all sorts of traps for him, but were no wiser at the end of three hours. The boy would grin and giggle and lie down on the floor and laugh, but no one else could see where the joke came in-if there was

For two weeks after the robbery of the hardware store there was nothing doing. The colonel held to it that the boy, fool though he was, had become frightened. Then the grand climax came, and it was a hair raiser. There was a private bank in town, and the owner had quietly put on a watchman. One night this watchman heard suspicious sounds at the back door and raised an alarm and heard some one running away. Fifteen minutes later there was the awfulest kind of a row in the rear of the hotel. None of those who rushed out were prepared for the sights that greeted them. Colonel Bliss, without his crutches, had been caught by a leg in a bear trap, the town fool was rolling on the ground in laughter, a man's trail over the roofs could be traced in the thin snow, and there were tracks leading from the trap back to the bank. Jimmy Landon had suspected the man that whacked him with a crutch and set a trap for and caught him. There was no getting out of it for the colonel. First, it was shown that he was no more a cripple than any one else, and, sec ond, the plunder of his various robberies was right there in his trunk. He simply stood on his dignity and went to prison for ten years, and the town fool is still today welcome to make his home with any family in the community. The doctors say that his mind will never be any brighter, and other folks say there is no need for it

Elsewhere in the Flowery Kingdom, in the province of Honan, there is a city called U. and in France there is a river and in Sweden a town rejoicing in the name of A.

Proper names of this brief nature are not, however, monopolized by places. Instances are on record where individuals have been similarly named. Some years ago there was a shop kept on the Rue de Louvan, Brussels, by Theresa O, and there is a Mme. O in Paris, who is well known as the proprietor of a popular cafe.

An amusing incident is recounted in conection with the impressment into 9-19-tf FREDERICK, MD. the military service of the son of this Mme. O. Golf Stories Outshine "Fish Tales." Holing in one is so common that the feat is apt to pass without comment. To arouse our enthusiasm a golfer must kill something. A big fish was killed on the South Herts course at Totteridge, but not with a golf ball. About a year ago at Newark, however, a golf ball, driven into the river, killed a trout of two pounds in weight. This is not a fishing story, but a golf story, and I should be the last to throw suspicion on its truth. During a tournament at Hawick a gull and a weasel were killed. It only required a brace or two of grouse and some ground game to complete a sporting bag.-London M. A. P.

The loss to the two lodges in Harney, due to the fire of last week, was considerably greater than indicated in our report. It is probable that they sustained an actual loss of about $500.00 or $600.00. The P.O.S. of A. was not a tenant of the burned building.

Many Sleepless Nights, Owing to a Persistent Cough. Relief Found at Last.

"For several winters past my wife has een troubled with a most persistent and disagreeable cough, which invariably extended over a period of several weeks and caused her many sleepless nights,' writes Will J. Hayner, editor of the Burley, Colo., Bulletin. 'Various rem-edies were tried each year, with no beneficial results. In November last the cough again put in an appearance and my wife, acting on the suggestion of a friend, purchased a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. The result was, indeed, marvelous. After three doses the cough entirely disappeared and has not manifested itself since." and has not manifested itself since."

Many Discharged Sailors.

Fort Monroe, Va., Feb. 23.—All during the day discharged parties of sailors were coming ashore. From the Illinois 31 were landed, from the Connecticut another party, and in fact from almost every ship in the fleet the honorably discharged seamen were delivered with their baggage at Old Point. These men have served their period of enlistment. They are either discharged permanently or else they are given four months' leave of absence with pay and are allowed to reenlist for another period of service.

Some of the sailors who were discharged today openly announced their purpose of returning. They like the Navy. They have had their training, and some of them have found that they could even save money by working aboard ship for their government. Others have had enough of it. They have seen the world, touched foot on every continent on the globe and are now content to settle down to civilian pursuits. There was much baggage among the retiring sea-fighters. In addition to the grips and suit cases, there were bundles upon bundles. In Burglars entered the Railroad office, in Taneytown, on Monday night, by using a 'jimmy' on one of the windows. No about at many a fireside in the weeks and months, and even years, to come.

Officers and enlisted men say that they had the time of their lives in Australia. Without intending to reflect on the entertainment provided for them in other foreign countries they make it plain that the Australian government and people were foremost in displaying hospitality. There was not anything too good for the Americans down in that big island. The enlisted men particularly had a rattling stay of it with something to amuse Burns and Squires, at Melbourne. #### BLACK FOX PELTS.

Only About Five Skins Are Secured Each Year.

In the estimation of trappers of the Canadian northland as well as in the eyes of the nobility of Russia there is only one king of beasts, the highly prized black fox. On an average five perfect pelts of this rare fur bearer are brought down from the northland each year and in rare years as many as ten or twelve, though each year thousands of men make a living trapping and the yearly catch of foxskins amounts to over 100,000 from Canada

In no way except in color does the black fox differ from the red fox, whose pelt sells for about $2, or from the gray fox, whose winter coat is valued at from $150 to $400, but whenever a hunter can secure a black fox and remove its skin without marring the fur he is sure of receiving from $800 to $1,500 for his trophy. Not only is every black fox pelt bought as soon as taken, but a dozen Russian noblemen have paid agents traveling in North America all through the winter seeking out remote hillside farms and abandoned logging camps where it is possible that a shy and elusive black fox may have been seen.

Within the last twenty years a number of wealthy men who have owned fenced game preserves have spent vast sums of money in buying foxes alive and turning them loose within private inclosures. By and by it may be that some skilled or fortunate breeder will produce a black pup or perhaps a pair of black foxes may be captured alive, and from these a new breed of black foxes will arise and cause a great panic among the men who hunt for black foxes. He who can wrest the secret of breeding black foxes from nature is assured of riches past counting and can command the worshipful homage of the Russian nobility and aristocracy, who seem willing to sacrifice untold wealth for the pleasure of wearing overcoats made from the pelts of American black foxes.-Edmonton Cor. Toronto Globe.

Mixed Metaphor.

The late Mr. Ritchie when chancellor of the exchequer once asserted that "the question of moisture in tobacco is a thorny subject and has long been a bone of contention." His immediate successor in office, Austen Chamberlain, remarked at the Liberal Union club's dinner that the harvest which the present government had sown was already coming home to roost.

Sir William Hart-Dyke has two conspicuous "howlers" to his credit—the description of James Lowther as having gone to the very top of the tree and landed a big fish and the comforting assurance that his government had got rid of the barbed wire entanglements and was now in smooth water. Among other political examples of mixed metaphor are the prediction ascribed to a labor member that if we give the house of lords rope enough they will soon fill up the cup of their iniquity and an Irish member's complaint that a certain government department is iron bound in red tape .-London Standard.
