ROUTES STILL IN DOUBT.

As was to have been expected, the meeting of the State Road Commission, in Baltimore, last Friday, was a rather unsatisfactory affair to the many delegawere too many opinions, too many 'kicks,' for the time alloted. Carroll County had just one hour to divide started in St. Mary's. It is the intention among a dozen speakers representing of the Commission, however, to do some half as many routes, and even that little time was interfered with by all sorts of confusion which amounted practically to inattention on the part of the Commission itself. One present, and competent better than they had at home.

From there to the grass field, which seemed a good stand. The wheat was unusually fine for this time of year; from there to the better than they had at home.

Soon itself. One present, and competent to judge, says the whole affair was practically a "sham," as being a real hearing of protest against the tentative routes.

Just what effect, if any, was made on the Commission, remains to be seen, as no indications were given out at the meeting, and perhaps none will be given to accomplish certain final results, is also a present mystery. What everybody would now like to know, is, how to "get next" to the members of the Commission, who has been "next," and how they got there ?

routes may have been, they have not been greatly weakened. There are reports that financial and other considerations have been offered in connection with certain routes, and it is openly stated that if such tactics are to have weight, all sections should be given an

C. Birnie made a strong presentation of the claims of the Westminster-Taneytown road, and its great importance as a road serving the convenience of a wide scope of county on both sides.

County Commissioner Benson opposed the Middleburg road. Mr. Michael Walsh, of Westminster, advocated a road through the county to Pennsylvania line through Westminstor and Taneytown. He said that at the Pennsylvania line the state of Pennsyl-vania will begin a highway to extend to Gettysburg.

Congressman Goulden, of New York, native of Carroll County, spoke in favor of the road from Westminster to Taneytown. He said this road could be made the link of a road from Washington to Gettysburg, the distance from the National Capital to the battlefield via Westminster being 73 miles. He said that a century will elapse before the government builds the Lincoln memorial habitants. He invited members of the Road Commission to visit Taneytown and inspect the road. Charles O. Clemson stood for the road to Frederick County via Uniontown and Middleburg.

Mr. Frank I Lewis, of Mount Airy spoke in favor of a road from Washing ton to Westminster to pass about three miles south of Mount Airy. He said residents of Mount Airy and neighborhood would aid in the building a Shoemaker road from Damascus to the Montgomery County line. Mr. Humphrey D. Wolfe said that while the good roads bill was pending before the legis lature the understanding was that the roads desired by Mount Airy would be provided. He asked for the mile and a half of the road in Howard County, between Mount Airy and Damascus.

Mr. Frank Mercer spoke in favor of the road from North Branch to Washington road and thence to Westminster. He also favored the improvement of the Liberty road.

Mr. Guy W. Steele filed a brief with the Commissioners favoring the con-struction of a road northward from He said this road was within easy reach of several villages with which connection can be made by spurs. Mr. Steele opposed the road from West-

Road Engineer Crosby says that specifications for road improvement under the $5,000,000 loan will be ready for Snow Storm Interferes with the several of the counties by April 1, others by May 1, and all the routes in the proposed system would be ready for the contractors by June 1.

Prominent speakers from the Dairy Department in Washington and from other parts of the country willaddress the meeting, and every farmer, dairyman, creameryman, city distributor or other party interested in the Association is cordially invited to attend the meeting.

This meeting will be a very important and interesting one and should be of value to any one engaged in dairying in any of its branches. Since a great number of farmers will attend from all over road. #### The New Lincoln Cent.

In the U.S. Mint at Philadelphia last week the dies from which the old onepieces were made were destroyed and the first new Abraham Lincoln cent was made. The familiar Indian head on the old cent was made many years ago from a portrait of Mary Cunping-bam, a little Philadelphia girl whose father was employed in the mint. Offimost habitually lost coins in all Uncle Sam's fractional currency. While none of them are retired because of loss of weight through wear, nearly all which come into the people's possession are from the mintage of comparatively recent years. They disappear modities of small value. With the retirement of the present coin the Indian head cent will, in fewer years than one would ordinarily think, be in the possession solely of coin collectors.

JUDGE TAFT INAUGURATED.

Ceremony. Big Parade through Slush.

Washington, March 4.—The first Chief Executive to take the oath of office in the chamber of the Senate in seventy-six years, William Howard Taft, to-day became President of the United States. Accompanied to the Capitol by President Roosevelt and a guard of honor through a swirl of binding snow, Mr. Taft returned to the White House just as the sun began to force its way through the thinning clouds of gray.

A sudden blizzard sweeping in from the northwest last night, to set away the Weather Bureau's optimistic promise of over the different routes selected by the Commission. It was the middle of last September before he could get his men in the field, much of the time previous to this having been taken up by the geant of the afternoon.

What would have been the greatest inauguration in the history of the country was ruined, so far as the grand parade was concerned. The decorations along the line of parade were festooned with snow, draggled and streaked with all the colors of the rainbow. Street railway traffic was almost at a stand-till, while the blanket of wet snow on the asphalt pavement made a treacherous footing for man and horse.

The program could not be halted, however, and the Committee on Arrangements started to carry it out as best it could. The President-elect, Vice-President and Vice-President elect and escort left the White House on time at 10 o'clock. The officials rode in closed carriages, however, and their progress up Pennsylvania Avenue was not the interesting spectacle that had been an-

The troops and civic bodies composing the notable parade of the afternoon mobilized in snow and slush which in places was deeper than their legging tops. Down Pennsylvania Avenue, walled in with spectators, they found dry footing but faced a gale which swept directly down the thoroughfare with a velocity undiminished from the morning hours The snow had ceased, however, and faint streaks of blue were appearing through the banks of gray clouds.

The parade was replete with interest. he three thousand bluejackets from the recently returned Atlantic fleet shared honors among the military with the Cu-ban army of pacification just back from the Southern island and appearing today in all the paraphernalia of active service in the field.

The trim cadets from West Point, attracted the usual interest and made a characteristically fine showing. The midshipmen from Annapolis, snow-bound within twenty miles of Washington, shared the fate of thousands of sightseers, who were unable to reach the city on account of the storm and demoralized conditions of the railroads.

The Philippine constabulary which arrived vesterday from Manila, was given the place of honor in the es cort of President Roosevelt and Mr. Taft to the Capitol, and attracted much attention. The Filipinos saw to-day their first fall of snow.

Mr. Taft's day was one of continuing cheers and plaudits from the moment he first appeared on the White House portico to go to his inauguration until he returned late to-night, an unwilling leavetaker from the inaugural ball.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft were the guests of the Roosevelts at the White House last night, setting a new precedent in the courtesies of the executive mansion, as they did again today, when Mrs. Taft accompanied the newly-made President and Mr. Sherman, the new Vice-President, from the Capitol at the head of the imposing parade to the White House.

Congress Still Spending Money.

Washington, March 1.-William H. Taft will inherit from the Republican administration and Congress a bond issue in time of peace to pay the expenses of the Government.

The authorities for this statement are Representative Sereno E. Payne, of New York, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee and leader of the House of Representatives, and Representative James A. Tawney, chairman of the Committee on Appropriations. They said so today on the floor of the House, but no warnings could influence Congress to practice economy. The Appalachian Forest Reserve bill favored by the Administration, which will eventually take $20,000,000 out of the Treasury, was under discussion and it was passed with the organization of the House, headed by Speaker Cannon, straining every nerve and muscle to beat it.

foot, in Maryland, to secure the highest | Face the question fairly ! possible class of nominees for the legislature, deserves to meet with success. While, as a rule, very good average men receive such nominations, the very best equipped men do not, largely because they are engaged in important private business which they could not afford to drop for the meagre pay of a member of the House of Delegates. In a large measure, those who accept such nominations are those to whom the pay is an object, and, while this does not mean that unfit men go to Annapolis, it does mean that the situation does, in a large measure, prevent our very best men from going.

Very few men, after all, are responsible for the great bulk of legislation, and, while the legislature is a delegated body it is not always a truly representative body, for the reason that the few, who lead, exercise too great a power over the whole body because of their superior mental equipment. It is believed, therefore, that the more closely the rank and file of the body measures up to that of the few leaders, the better the legislation is likely to be, because it is less likely to represent bossism, lobbying and private influences.

There is another reason in favor of the movement, and that is that when the mental qualifications of the member are high, and financial consideration's not likely to influence, it would necessarily follow that the "boodlers" could not so easily ply their trade with members. But, the movement needs no explanation. Surely, we naturally look for the best legislation from the best class of people, and, as the former cannot be too good, neither can the latter. We would t however like to have the standard of fitness rest too strongly on position, or financial standing, as many of our most intelligent and honest men are those in very moderate circumstances. By all means, let us send our very best

In line with this sentiment, men are mentioned who are not active partisans, and already a number of such have been approached. In recent years, the socalled independent element has largely grown, and now contains many of the very best men of the state, but it is somewhat difficult to see how such men can get the pominations, and more difficult still to see how they could be elected as independents, for partyism controls both, and is not likely to let even such a desirable result as the selection of our best men for the legislature, iterfere. Besides, the political bosses do not relish rivalry to their influence, but prefer to have such men elected as can be easily handled, as heretofore.

.... Mr. Gaither's Opinion.

Mr. George R. Gaither has given the "disfranchisers" a lot of encouragement, apparently, by his announcement indorsing white supremacy and "white man's government." Of course he does. So does practically every intelligent white man, in all parties! Mr. Gaither is also opposed to the rule of ignorance, through voters, whether white or black, native or foreign. He is in favor of restricting participation in government to only those with sufficient intelligence to be trusted with the ballot, and in this position he is generally indorsed by most Republicans as well as Democrats. He has not, therefore, said anything either new or startling. But, Mr.

"The white man is, by nature, by gifts, by education and by instinct the representative of government. If at any time enough negroes should get together in any State to dominate and if they should seek control to the extent of holding office and directing government, then I think legal measures ought to be taken, and in a legal way they should be disfranchised. But this contingency will never arise, for the very reason that I have stated-that within a generation or so the negro will have advanced so far in intelligence that he will vote for men and measures, and his opinion and ballot will be divided just as the opinion and ballot of the white voters are divided

Gaither, in his speech, also said this:

When our political brethren in the saddle in Maryland enter into a "square deal" ignorance disfranchising scheme, not directed solely against negroes, there will be thousands of Republican Gaithers | dweller fall in line, and help them to accomplish the trick. But, the present scheme is not one of that kind.

It is also argued that the illiterate white vote is equally divided between parties, therefore not a menace. How is this? Would they be a menace if highways they were not "equally" divided? Is one of the parties in the state a greater menace to good government than the other? Is this a settled fact? If so, perhaps it is the Republican party? But suppose the "equal division" is or yours true; then, why not disfranchise them The movement which seems to be on be equal? Is this not sound logic?

Our National Expenditures.

The great increase in the army and soon force itself on the general attention of the people. It is perhaps the surest way of calling a halt in our warlike it preparations to have the people realize the enormous cost, not alone of building war ships and fortifications, but of the cost of their maintenance after we have them. It was not the sums appropriated for new vessels, at the present session, which called for the millions of dollars, but it was absolutely necessary to caring for our naval and military property, al-

Every state with a Navy yard, or extensive government war plant, naturally expects its representatives, irrespective of party, to vote for big appropriations. For this reason we find Democratic Virginia, South Carolina and Louisana voting for them, along with Republican Massachusetts, New Hampshire and New York, and the same is true relative to smaller inland Military posts.

The situation, therefore, is peculiar. Both great parties are apparently soundly in favor of tariff revision downwards, but the exigencies of the National financial situation are distinctly against any and in political life. The only two memsome think they see in this situation the in order that the tariff schedules may not be reduced. #### DOOR LATCH FOR THE HOME.

A Simple Design Which Can Be Economically Constructed.

A homemade door latch may be constructed of three pieces of oak or other good hard wood. For the handle use a piece of 8 by 2 by 1 inches. Shape a flattish knob on one end three inches long. Work down the rest 80 as to pass through a one inch auger hole. Shape a knob on the other end by flattening the sides. The latch is made of a piece 5 by 1 by three eighths inches. The catch is 8 by 2 by three-eighths inches.

Bore a one inch hole for the handle the door. Then bore in the handle a three-eighths inch hole for the latch. Then assemble the parts according to the finished figure, which shows the latch thrown back. A little peg may be used to keep the latch from falling down when the door is open.

The design is very simple, and, besides being serviceable, such a latch can be made very economically.

Soil For Spring Vegetables.

The manure for the early spring vegetables, such as peas, potatoes, onions, beets, cabbage and corn, should be hauled and put into large, compact heaps. Put ten to twelve two-horse Wagon loads in each pile. This quantity horse loads, enough to spread in three spring and a half foot drills for one acre of ground. This is the usual quantity to spread to the acre when used in the drill. If manure is broadcasted it will take double this quantity. The manure should be mixed as it is piled-that is. spreading horse manure over the cattle manure. Each foot layer of manure should be plastered. The plaster helps to rot the straw in the manure. It Will also prevent the loss of ammonia and make compact, square heaps. After the heap is finished cover the sides and tops with six inches of nut. earth. The earth covering will prevent the gases from escaping. It will also prevent the top layer from drying This is the method followed by the florists and nurserymen who require fine, rich, well rotted manure.

There is a good demand for manure from the city truck stables, as the horses, being heavily fed on grain and a good quality of hay and well bedded with rye straw, make the best kind of manure, suitable for all crops. The usual price for this manure is $7.20 for all the manure made by each horse when in the stable for one year. Pick-up manure is of doubtful value. The usual price is 75 cents to $1 per load in the winter and about half this during the summer. Practical truckers buy the high priced stable manure, as it contains all the elements needed for the growing of both truck and

Success In Co-operation.

What a purely farmers' enterprise in co-operation may accomplish has been exemplified by a canning com-pany in New Jersey. There were put out by the farmers of the canning company in 1908 a hundred acres of tomatoes, of which about eighty-five acres produced a crop, wet weather in the spring having caused the failure of the remaining either through poor cultivation or late planting.

The harvest, however, showed a total yield of 679 tons of tomatoes, for which the company paid $9 a ton, or to the farmers the big sum of $6.011 The average yield to the acre was tw and a half tons and the largest yield something over thirteen tons. A fairly good number of acres ran from ten to twelve tons. The wages paid out, not including salaries, was $4,050. Of course this was the company's expense and went for labor in putting up the Product; 248,000 cans were filled and 109 persons employed, the majority of by farmers exclusively.

SOIL FERTILITY.

How to Build Up Land That Has Been Overworked.

The only way to build up and hold the fertility of the soil is to feed a large part of the crop and return the manure to the land. If manure cannot be had, the next best thing is to plow under crops grown for the purpose. There should be deep plowing, but no subsoiling. Leguminous crops should be grown for the nitrogen they bestow upon the soil.

Most soils, even when very poor, as a general thing, contain plenty of plant food except nitrogen, though sometimes other elements are lacking. The texture must be improved in order to increase fertility and plant food and humus added. Tillage goes a great way toward improving texture, but this alone is not enough. Humus must be added, and in doing so plant food is added, making the soil more permeable to air and water.

Humus is supplied to the soil, first, by the addition of stable manure, and this is probably the best method, calling for more forage crops and more stock; second, by planting crops for the purpose of turning them under (plowing under green crops is called green manuring); third, by growing clover and timothy, which are usually left down for several years, during which time their roots thoroughly penetrate the soil. Old roots decay and new roots grow. After the sod is plowed up considerable vegetable matthree inches from the edge of the ter is turned under. With the mass of door. Push the handle through the roots in the soil, this adds considerhole and mark on it the thickness of able humus. The advantage from the cultivation of clovers and alfalfa is found in the fact that they are deep rooted plants, and when their roots decay they have channels deep into the earth, thus aiding in the absorption of rains and letting in air to sweeten the soil.

Probably the most rapid way to build up a wornout soil when barnyard manure is not plentiful is to give it a course of treatment such as described, then grow only forage crops, buy grain to feed with them and return all the manure thus produced to the land. Dairy farming permits such a system to be followed, and no other type of farming builds up land so quickly.

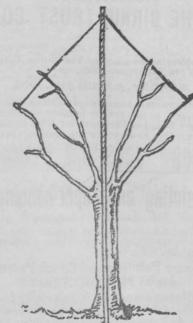

Professor W. J. Spillman, agriculturist, in charge of farm management investigations, United States bureau of plant industry, says another type that gives quick results is to grow a succession of pasture crops for hogs, keep the hogs on these pastures and feed them a fourth to a half ration of grain. In middle latitudes the following system is adapted to this type of farming: Grow corn enough for the pigs on part of the farm, sowing either cowpeas or crimson clover or rye in the corn yearly to keep up fertility. The two latter crops furnish winter pasture for the pigs. On the remainder of the farm run the following three year rotation: Sow oats in 'early spring, follow by rye sown early in August, follow this by sorghum the following spring, in September or October sow rye again after the sorghum, late the next spring sow either sorghum or cowpeas and begin when rotted will make six large two over again with oats the succeeding

Tree Planting.

For extensive planting white pine at present is the only tree which can be obtained in large numbers. It is also a tree which is adapted to almost any kind of soil and which makes a quick growth of valuable timber. The blight which has attacked the pines during the past few years is somewhat of a drawback to the growth, and more or less attention is being directed to other trees, including spruce and chest-

Handling a Vicious Bull.

The safest way to handle an ugly bull is to first blindfold him. Nothing takes the conceit out of a bull so quick as to deprive him of sight. It is a question whether a man is justified in keeping a bull that is known to be ugly, but sometimes animals that are otherwise very valuable get cross, and it is not always policy to turn them over to the butcher. By building a strong bull pen with convenience for handling such an animal he may be kept for two or three years in compar-

$14,500 and the year ended with about $15,000 in the treasury and $40,000 in invested funds. The committee will renew its efforts to secure more just and equitablerepresentation in the national grange. It proooses that the representation be accorded to grange membership in each state. The grange favors the New York system of tax on mortgages, amendatory primary law for all parties and for all offices, Torrens system of land transfer, direct legislation and referendum and tax on copper and iron. The resolution favoring the New York tax on mortgage called forth a very earnest discussion and was adopted only after a long debate. The grange also favored the regulation of all public utilities and, if such regulation fail, then government ownership. The grange also recommended a tax on automobiles, the in come from which was to be applied to road improvement. A resolution condemning the extravagance in state funds was passed and also another resolution protesting against granting state funds to any county or state fair which permitted the sale of liquor on the grounds. The resolution to limit years did not pass.

One hundred and twenty candidates took the sixth degree. Past Master committee and was presented with a gold watch. Mrs. F. D. Saunders, who has been an efficient lecturer for several years, resigned, and Miss Jennie Buell of Ann Arbor will succeed her.

NEW JERSEY STATE GRANGE.

The Little State Has a Grange Membership of 24,000.

The good roads question was very New Jersey state grange, which met at Atlantic City in December. Stat Master Gaunt set the ball rolling is his annual address when he said o this point: "In view of the fact that the means in the farming sections are inadequate to provide for the proper road systems, the farmers are now rea izing that the question is not only le cal, but national, in its bearing There is a growing demand for us tional aid for road building, and the farmers are preparing to demand their fair share of the immense sums app priated every year by congress for be tering the rural highways." He al believed that a federal commission good roads was demanded. He ful ther called attention to the fact the the state grange of New Jersey w: becoming a powerful influence in th state legislature in fostering agricu tural pursuits so that the farmers products in that state have increased in value from $24,000,000 in 1900 to $56,000,000 in 1907.

Nothing but the united efforts of 24 000 grangers in the state, he said, had secured the appropriation for the state board of agriculture and the state commission of tuberculosis in animals. He criticised the custom of tinkering with the game laws. He said that they were such that even the law abiding citizen would be liable to break them because they were constantly changing them for the purpose of pleasing the wealthy sportsman.

Among the resolutions adopted at the meeting were the following: Demanding that the use of highways for automobiles be made secondary to their use by the farmers for their farm products and that the speed of motor cars be regulated by stringen statutes. Another resolution demanded that the standard weight of 165 pounds to a barrel be set for all tubers bought and sold in the state. It ar pears that some buyers are now de manding 180 pounds to a barrel. An other resolution called for a change In the curriculum of rural schools t provide for nature study. Mr. Gaunt was re-elected state master.

Death of First Grange Master. The death of Ulysses E. Dodge of Fredonia, N. Y., occurred Jan. 5. was not only one of the most distinguished residents of Chautauqua county, N. #### CHIMNEY OF CONCRETE.

Advantages Claimed For New System of Block Construction.

A Brussels inventor has devised a novel system of construction of concrete chimneys, in which, although the concrete is in blocks, re-enforcement is used, says Popular Mechanics. One of the most interesting features of the method is the fact that the chimney can be built without the use of scaf-

The concrete blocks are of large size, in the Union is Michigan. Under the excellent leadership of George B. Horchimney construction is particularly ingenious. The cast iron sides of the molds in which the blocks are made are in three pieces only, and the ends of the molds are formed by wooden stop blocks. By adjusting the position of these stop blocks the length of the concrete block can be altered to suit that the contract system of purchas- the course in which it is placed, thus securing the taper of the chimney without multiplying the number of molds. The chimney is polygonal in cross section and may be built with six, eight, ten, twelve or more sides, according to the size of the structure.

The diagram, which shows a partial cross section of the chimney, illustrates how, by varying the circular lap of the shank of the block past the the term of office in the grange to two semicircular lip of the adjacent block, the diameter of the circle is drawn in at each successive course. The blocks are reversed in each successive course. Horton was elected to the executive so that the joints are properly broken. The largest blocks used are nearly three feet in length, and the distance across the semicircular opening is six to eight inches.

The vertical re-enforcing rods are placed in the semicircular openings and may be seen projecting in the illustration, showing the chimney under construction. To provide for circumferential re-enforcement, there is placed on the bottom board, on which prominent in the discussions of the of triangular cross section. This leaves a V shaped groove in the block in which a rod or wire may be placed It is claimed that there is no difficulty in proportioning the re-enforcement to the stresses to be sustained, and it is obvious that the vertical rods are so placed as to be less exposed to the interior heat than is ordinarily the case.

Electric Sparks For Cancer.

"Fulguration" is the name proposed for the method of dealing with cancer that has been worked out by Dr. de Keating-Hart of Marseilles. Lack of results with X rays and other light radiations decided him to try high frequency electric currents of very high tension, and the spark rays generated prove active in destroying the tumor mass and stimulating the surrounding tissues to absorb the dead tissue and to form firm scars. Quite weak currents are used, with a tension as high as 250,000 to 300,000 volts. As much of the tumor is removed b practicable, and the sparks are applied where malignant tissue seems to be left, the application lasting about forty-five minutes. The process being painful, anaesthetics of noninflamma ble kind are necessary. Some medical experts who have investigated report that this method is a real advance. several apparent cures of cancer having resulted, while undoubted palliative and temporary effects have been

Origin of Ozone.

According to Messrs. Henriet and Bonyssy, ozone is produced by the ultra violet rays of the sun in the upper atmosphere, and the amount contained in the air near the ground increases when air currents descend from the upper regions. Sometimes also it increases during rains. It has been observed that there is a reduction of the proportion of carbonic acid in the air when the amount of ozone increases. This is regarded as an indirect effect due to dilution of the lower air by the purer air descending from above.

Will Fight Automobile Bill.

Automobilists are up in arms against the Swann Automobile bill, which has been prepared at the suggestion of Gov. Crothers, and which contemplates placing a high tax, or license, on all automobiles, the revenue to be turned over to the state road fund. The Governor says, relative to the protests:

"I think the automobile people are making the mistake of their lives in opposing this bill. They are agitating a matter which they should co-operate in and agitation will react on them if they are not careful.

'Of course they have rights which must be guarded. They own valuable property, they have come to stay and must understand that they owe something to the state.

"It is no argument for them to say that they object to paying taxes. Everybody objects to taxation. If you were to circulate a petition against taxation the whole people would sign it. Neither are we trying to do something unconstitu-tional. This is not a matter of oppressive They greatly stimulate stomach, liver double taxation. The merchants pay a license tax in addition to their tax on the real property they own and the street car company pays its license tax in addition to its general levy on its property.

"It should be understood by the automobilists they are expected only to pay for their part of the damage done to our roads. It is not enough for us to raise money to build these roads; they must be maintained and revenue must be raised with which to do this. There is a return to the carowners in these roads. The tollgates are removed and better

"Then, there is this matter to be considered. The farmers and country people generally have first call upon their own roads, and when they are put to inconvenience, when their teams break and run away, when the wives and children are frightened and sometimes burt by speeding automobiles, it is nec-essary for these machineowners to pay in some way for what they are alone re-

Local Option may be Defeated.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 3.—To kill the Fair local option bill without a direct ote on the bill itself is the program of the anti-local optionists when the fight is taken up in the Legislature on Tuesday night next. It developed to day that after the debate on the bill in the House the opponents plan to offer a motion that the measure be indefinitely postponed. Successful in this, as they privately predict that they will be, the next move planned is a motion to reconsider the action to postpone. This, too, it is planned to promptly vote down, which would dispose of local option in the present Legislature. The Fair bill was passed on first reading in the House to-day.

The anti-local optionists make the flat claim that the Fair bill will not muster more than sixty-five or seventy votes, at the outside. At the same time they contend that on a motion to indefinitely postpone the friends of the bill will not be able to present as much strength as would be the case with a direct vote on the measure. That the plan has been devised in the interest of members of the House, who say that they will vote for the bill to protect themselves among their home constituents is admitted.

Dr. S. E. Nicholson, superintendent of the State Anti-Saloon League, does not concede that this plan will make any serious introd on the strength of the Fair Efficient and exceedingly agreeable.

Saloons are "On the Run."

In the March American Mgauzine, William Allen White, writing of various reforms of the past few years, sums up the progress made by the temperance movement as follows:

"In spite of the Fourteenth Amendment to the Constitution of the United States, persons and corporations having millions of dollars invested in many of the states are being deprived of their property 'without due process of law.' The closing of the race tracks in Missouri and New York, which has been followed by a slump in race-track gambling all over the country, has deprived thousands of people of property which they considered just as sacred as do the railroad holders of coal mines in Pennsylvania, and probably with about as much equity. And when one estimates the growing sentiment against gambling that the Fourteenth Amendment should stand idly by and see all this wrong Lent. done, while it is so active in behalf of the public service corporations! But since 1904 results have been coming regularly. State-wide prohibition now prevails in Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Kansas adopted prohibition in 1880 but did not enforce it rigidly in the larger cities until 1906, and Maine has galvanized her old law into new efficiency. Prohibition now has abolished the saloon in a majority of the counties in Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, Connecticut. Delaware, Florida, Illinois, Indiana Iowa, Kentucky, Louisiana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Ohio, Oregon, South Carolina, Tennessee, Virginia and West Virginia. And in every one of these states excepting New Hampshire and is all the more enjoyed because the solpealed in 1903, there is a strong move- and the diversions of winter. ment for state-wide prohibition, en- The non-religious business man makes ruling parties.

In Minnesota five years have seen the prohibition towns grow from 400 to 1,611. In New Jersey, where there has been a warm contest for four years, the temperance people have secured Sunday closing. And a state-wide campaign for county prohibition is waging in Pennsylvania.

"The movement against the saloon is gaining headway in every American state. And sentiment now differs from sentiment thirty years ago; there is little emotionalism in this movement. It is subject to no reactions. The people seem to feel that the saloon is a lawbreaker; that is a business extravagance, and that it corrupts politics, and keeps the people from accomplishing their ends. Hence capital invested in the liquor business is not restricted, as capital invested in public service corporations, not divided as all capital is divided through the tax-laws of the state, but destroyed without due process of law, and without recourse or damages from the state,"

The Beginning of Lent.

Those churches which observe Lent as | friends.' a matter of ecclesiastic requirement, and the few people who keep the forty days for their own benefit, began their annual

However men's minds may differ about religious beliefs and ceremonies, there is no one so unthoughtful as to assert that it is not well for humanity to have special seasons for mental and bodily rest.

If the average man were a perfectly rational being he would guide his life properly according to the laws science has discovered for the preservation of the body and by what the laws of morals have decreed best for human conduct.

As a sanitary measure, it would be of every faith and no faith to keep the rules of Lent and give up a darling sin or injurious habit for forty days.

The critic says that the observance of Lent is a formalism, and like all enforced through the habit of the human mind to saving grace in itself, without any change of heart in the person of the observer.

There is some truth in this, as we know those countries which pay the most attention to special days and church ceremonies are at heart the least pious and graph on no less than 5,000 photographs most superstitious.

But granting all this, we must take human nature as it is and use the best means possible for man's good, though they may not be perfect.

that portion seen by his fellows. Now than all dirty. More, the man who gets kind. into the habit of cleaning a portion of his plate will so become imbued with the beauty of cleanliness in time as to purify the whole thing.

So it is with Lent. If any one keeps it righteously for forty days, gives up over-indulgence in eating and drinking, retires from social excesses such as the amount of property destroyed by dancing, theatre parties and dinnersin short, cuts off some darling vice, big in every American state during the ten or little, for forty days, he may conclude years now passing, it is hard to realize such a life in the end gives the most happiness and will continue a perpetual

It is better for a man or woman to be real good for 40 days in a year than to be bad all the year round, just as it is better for a man to be in church or at home on Sunday than it would be for Alabama, Georgia, Mississippi, North him to be trying to get the better of his neighbors seven days every week, instead

Certainly anything that makes a man stop and think about himself and his future is not to be lightly held, and Lent performs this office yearly for many millions of human beings, and must therefore be commended by the wise heathen as well as by the wise believer.

Natural instinct compels us to make now and then a Lent of some kind. Pleasure will pall if there is no intermission, and the gayety of the summer Iowa, where prohibitory laws were re- emn days of Lent intervene between it

His awful plight from last spring, rode on the pilot of the engine to observe the game. The railway leads through a zoological paradise. Churchill saw lions from the train. Mr. Prynne, from whom the facts used in this article were obtained, saw four on the same journey. A male and female, pacing side by side, were not three hundred yards from the passengers. The pair merely turned their heads to look at the train. At another point in the panorama he saw a female lion stretching like a cat on the red veldt near the train, and again a male on its haunches in bold relief on an ant-hill. Bands of antelope of all species, the kongoni, water buck, reed buck, wildebeeste, hartebeeste, impala, orax, and countless others, together with thousand hyenas were common sights from the car window.

Boiling Eggs by Melody.

Aunt Peggy was something over fiftyfive. Her skin was like ebony, shining with pristine purity, and her lips were large and full. Her eyes were frank and intelligent and had then such a motherly look, and so respectful, and her turban, her kerchief, and her large, friendly-looking apron, were suggestive of scrupulous neatness. #### A Baked-bean Luncheon.

One of the most effective tables I ever laid for my little danghter's pleasure was for a luncheon planned just one hour before it happened.

One of her chums going through my kitchen as I opened the oven door said, "Oh, I love baked beans, and I always order them whenever we go to Fields." So the "party" started.

Some "left-over" crepe-paper napkins with wreaths of tiny yellow flowers were laid on the polished oak table for centerpiece and plate doilies, in the center stood a low glass bowl filled with small yellow sunflowers, and each place favor was a larger one. The quaint brown bean pot graced one corner, and diagonally across from it was a plate of oldfashioned gingerbread. On another corner was placed the sandwiches of thin slices of Graham and white bread laid together, while the fourth corner held the hot Boston brown bread.

Salted peanuts and tiny cucumber pickles kept within the color scheme, while sliced bananas with whipped cream for dessert made a good ending to the 'Brown and Yellow Luncheon.'

Not an extra thing was needed outside my ordinary supplies, and I may add I nad no maid at the time.

Such a table would be very attractive at a church fair, while for the women who desire to entertain at a small cost it would be a charming luncheon. ### The Doctor's First Question

"How are your bowels?" This is generally the first question the doctor asks. He knows what a sluggish liver means. He knows what a long list of distressing complaints result from constipation. He knows that headaches, bilious attacks, indigestion, impure blood, and general debility are often promptly relieved by a good liver pill. We wish you would talk with your own doctor about this subject. Ask him at the same time if he approves of Ayer's Pills. Do as he says. J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

A Story of Father Mathew.

"Father Mathew was the most loving and lovable of human beings," and in the light of this statement found in a biography of the famous Irish priest by Mrs. Katherine Tynan Hinkson two incidents of his crusade for temperance in the north of Ireland should be read.

At Clones, in Ulster, there were two Orange flags raised when he visited it. Instead of considering it as an insult, he thought it a very great compliment, never having seen one or been honored with one before. When he saw them he called for three cheers for the Orange flag. Commenting on this, an Irish writer says:

A Catholic priest calling for a cordial salutation of the Orange banner and a Catholic assembly heartily responding was something almost inconceivable. It had never occurred before in Ireland. I'm afraid it has never occurred since.'

For the time being there were good will and friendly feeling from one end of Ulster to the other. One recruit who knelt for Father Mathew's blessing said:

"You wouldn't be blessing me if you knew what I am."

"And what are you, my dear?" Father Mathew called men, women and children "my dear." "I am an Orangeman, your rever-

A Lost Fee.

The Right Hon. Augustine Birrell once believed that he had been smitten with a mortal disease and went to consult a distinguished doctor who lived in the neighborhood of Harley street and who was a great expert on the disease of which he thought he was a victim. It was a hot day in July and as he walked from his London home, which was in the neighborhood of Addison road, to Harley street he perspired freely.

He found the great physician's rooms all crowded with patientsprobably, he thought, suffering from a similar complaint to himself.

While waiting he found on the table a book written by the great physician on the subject of the particular disease. He opened the book, and the first words which caught his eye were these: "The patient who is suffering from this disease never perspires."

He had Scotch blood in his veins, so he picked up his hat and gloves and walked out, and he never saw that

He was partly hidden by the grasses, but appeared to be a young, reddish brown setter, pottering along, smelling at this clump and that bunch of weeds and gradually circling behind me. In a few minutes I heard a yell, "There goes a fox." Sure enough, over the top of a neighboring hill a hundred yards away went my "dog." It was a shrewd piece of work on his part to throw me off my guard by seeming indifferent and when behind me and out of sight to streak it for cover. I had probably disturbed him during his afternoon killed, but this one fooled me completely. It forms a very pleasant recollection as an instance of brute sagacity.-Forest and Stream.

Twelth lancers-the playing of the Vesper hymn, the Spanish chant and the Russian national hymn every night of the year after the "last post" has sounded. It is said that the playing of the Vesper hymn originated in one of the officers' wives presenting the regiment with a new set of instruments on condition that the hymn was played every night after the "last post." The playing of the Spanish chant is declared to be a penance for sacking of a convent during the peninsular war. No reason is assigned for the playing of the Russian national anthem.-London Tit-Bits.

But the creation there are fewer thieves and fewer ment till the coming of Christ with his penalties against such crimes. So the earth the full benefit of the indegrace and punishment. ibable sufferings of the Lord Jesus (Rom. viii, 18-23; Phil. iii, 20, 21).

But what about health now? The great thing now is to live in the love of God and the will of God, ceasing all Strife about methods of healing or modes of baptism and whole heartedly Seeking to hasten His kingdom by giving the gospel to every creature, that His church may be completed and that He may come again. Thus wholly oceupied with Him and His affairs we can rely upon Him to include in "all these things" all the health necessary In His service to glorify Him (Matt. vi. 33). The remainder of our lesson refers to a disciple named Tabitha or Dorcas, who lived at Joppa, which was high to Lydda (verse 38). She manifested her faith by her works and by her self denying labors for others. While we are saved wholly through the finished work of the Lord Jesus by faith alone without any works of ours. if it is a living, saving faith there will certainly be manifest in our lives the good works prepared beforehand for us to walk in (Rom. iv. 5; xii, 1, 2; Eph. ii, 8-10; Tit. iii, 5, 8).

This disciple, full of works of faith and labors of love, became sick and which is very far better. She was absent from the body and present with the Lord. She had really gained (Phil. 1, 21, 23; II Cor. v. 8). It would be unscriptural to say that she had gone to her reward, for rewards are not given to the righteous at death, but at the coming of Christ, at the judgment seat of Christ, which is for the redeemed only (Rev. xxii, 12; Luke xiv, 14). She was in good health and rest ing from her labors in the presence of Hlm whom she so loved. Now. consider the conduct of these other disciples. Peter is sent for, and the weeping widows take pains to show him the coats and garments which Dorcas had made. Peter put them all out, and in answer to his prayer Dorcas comes back from the spirit world and reenters the mortal body and is given back to her weeping friends. Well, that certainly proved, as did the healing of Aeneas, that Jesus was still alive, and the very same Jesus as when In His sojourn on earth He healed the Sick and raised the dead. The incident was also the means of leading many to believe in the Lord.

But consider whether these weeping disciples were thinking more of Dorcas' welfare or their own when they so desired to have her back on earth, and is not all mourning for those who are with Christ simply an indicatlon of sorrow for ourselves? If to the eliever "to die is gain." what was it to Doreas or Lazarus to return?

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 14, 1909.

By REV. S. H. DOYLE Topic.—What are our liquor laws, and how are they enforced?—Deu v. 1-2.

> Local option laws are very popular in many states today. The legislatures of such states give to the people of a certain locality, such as county, township or ward, the privilege at stated times of voting for or against the saloons. Up to date this has been the most successful and effective means of fighting this great curse. Hundreds of counties in varies states have voted "dry," and through the various methods over one-half of the United States is under state or local prohibition laws. Local option laws are usually well enforced, for when the people living so closely together favor such a law the executors of it must enforce it. Public opinion is a great factor in enforc-

The temperance question is one of the greatest questions before our country today. Our largest business interests as well as our religion have declared that the saloon must go. If the temperance cause advances for a few years as it has recently the national government will be compelled in some way to take hold dled. She departed to be with Christ. of it. It will be forced into the platforms of the great political parties, and a uniform law for all the states will be put upon our statute books, and the federal government will enforce its laws. It will be impossible to jump from one state to another and from one county to another to get a supply of liquor or to devise methods of smuggling it into prohibition territory from points where it is allowed to be sold. If once the entire nation rises and says, "Liquor must go," it will go. The people do rule.

There were hoarse cries from the hurrying throng, a groan of horror and then a rush toward the spot where a dusty, huddled heap lay in the roadway. The white faced driver reined ening demand of the cooler headed among the spectators. Presently a blue coated figure pressed through the throng, to emerge again and hurry toward the police box. Then an ambulance came, and the crowd gave three cheers for the doctor when it was seen that it was the new woman interne of the Emergency hospital, and they watched with interest her handling of her first case. "Women doctors are more sympathetic than men," commented one man to another as they noted the relief with which the slender white clad woman announced that the man was not badly hurt. "A man doctor would stretcher and lifted into the wagon they departed, to tell that they had seen that new woman doctor the papers were full of and that she was a 'beaut."

"I WISH I COULD STAY HERE FOREVER." SAID DAVID.

In the latter statement they were eminently correct, for Dr. Katherine Roberts was more than good looking. She was one woman in a thousand. of color that betokened perfect health.

In fashionable drawing rooms she could have created a sensation had she elected to become a society bud. But Katherine Roberts had some very decided notions, and one of these was that she wished to be a successful physician.

She had taken the ambulance run that was a part of the duty of every interne, and she welcomed the experience, though she found it rather disconcerting when her first call was to attend the man she had refused to marry only the night before.

They were almost at the hospital be fore Belknap was restored to consciousness and looked up to encounter Katherine's eager glance.

"You are all right," she said reassuringly as his glance turned to a question. "Tou thought you could get across the street in front of a team, but you didn't quite manage it. There are no bones broken, but you have been pretty badly shaken up, and you had better stay in the hospital for a. day or two. You will be better looked after than you can be at your boarding house.

"You bet I'll stay." assented Belknap, and Katherine smiled.

"You will find the house surgeon a charming fellow," she went on. "I think I have introduced you to him-Dr. Santley?'

"I know him," groaned David. "But I thought that I was going to have you for a physician." "I am on the ambulance," she reminded, then, relenting, "I'll try to drop in now and then." The stopping of the ambulance brought the talk to a halt, and a couple of orderlies half carried Belknap to the emergency ward, where his cuts were dressed and bandaged, and then he was put to bed, and an opiate was administered. It was late in the afternoon when he woke up again, and presently Katherine came in to see how he was getting along. With deft fingers she adjusted the bandages, making them easier, and she predicted that by the morrow the patient might leave. "I wish I could stay here forever." said David impatiently. "Now that you are on the ambulance I don't suppose that there will be any chance of seeing you unless I get hurt again."

"Oh, yes, there will be," she insisted. "And if I catch you 'throwing fits' like 'Pete the Fake.' just to get a few days in the hospital, I shall have to give you the most dreadful medicines."

"I'll take them if you give them to me," declared Belknap, and the pretty doctor frowned.

follow my prescription I can guarantee a complete cure.

"Shall I need treatment after I leave the hospital?" he asked hopefully. "Santley said that the cuts were superficial and that he would put some plaster on them in the morning."

"You are in need of other treatment.

"That's right," admitted David. "It's ******* heart trouble. Kathie, and you are the only physician who can cure me, and you do not seem to understand the

"I think I do," she said gravely, "but it is an affection of the head, not the heart. David. You think that you want me, but it is merely a thought."

"You have the wrong diagnosis," insisted David. "It is heart trouble. I have no head trouble."

"I will be prepared to admit thatand perhaps change my treatmentwhen I have proved my own diagnosis wrong," said Katherine smilingly. "Will you try my treatment for, say, three months, David?"

"If you will admit error at the end and they shook hands over it in the grave fashion that had been theirs ever since they were children together. Katherine felt much relieved.

When David shook hands on a thing it was his promise that it should be done, and, though he scowled over the scrap of blue paper that Katherine thrust into his hand as he left the hos pital in the morning, he determined to try it. It was one of the hospital prescription blanks and read:

"Take Helen Weygant to the theater at least once a week. If she won't go, take some one else'

"It's for Kathie's sake," he told himself as he wrote an invitation to Miss Weygant and a note to Kathie to report his progress. Both girls smiled over their notes, but from wholly different causes.

In the weeks that followed Katherine was busy with the ambulance calls, but not too busy to follow the progress of her special patient, and she was not at all surprised when one day the jubilant announcement of an engage ment was made over the telephone.

"Nell and I are awfully obliged to you for curing me," explained David jubilantly. "Your first cure was quiel and complete, Kathie.'

"I'm a homeopathist," explained the smiling girl. "Like cures like, you

"And causes liking," suggested David as he hung up the receiver and turned to the blushing girl who stood beside him.

Really a Compliment.

Aaron Bancroft, the father of the historian, was a Massachusetts clergy man who revolted against the Calvin ism of the day. The young minister found himself held at arm's length b the surrounding clergy. In "The Life and Letters of George Bancroft" Mr M. A. DeW. Howe quotes the follow ing item from the old minister'. "Memoranda:"

An honest but not very intelligent farmer of my parish some ten years ago accosted me in this manner:

"Well, Mr. Bancroft, what do you think the people of the old parish say of you now?"

"They say: 'If we find fault with him he does not mind it at all, and if w praise him he does not mind it, bu keeps steadily on his own way. We therefore have concluded that it is best to let him alone."

The farme" mentioned the fact as a subject of laughter, but I thought and still think that, taking the declaration in its bearings, it was the prettiest compliment I have received through my whole life.

Life In the Country.

In the country every morning of the year brings with it a new aspect of springing or fading nature, a new duty to be fulfilled upon earth and a new promise or warning in heaven. No day is without its innocent hope, its special prudence, its kindly gift and its sublime danger, and in every process of wise husbandry and every effort of contending or remedial courage the wholesome passions, pride and bodily power of the laborer are excited and exerted in happiest unison. The companionship of domestic and the care of serviceable animals soften and enlarge his life with lowly charities and discipline him in familiar wisdom and unboastful fortitudes, while the divine laws of seedtime, which cannot be recalled; harvest, which cannot be hastened, and winter, in which no man can work, compel the impatience and coveting of his heart into labor too "I think that I shall have to hold submissive to be anxious and rest too you to that," she said, nodding her sweet to be wanton.-John Ruskin.

Characteristics of President Taft.

A close friend of Mr. Taft's states it as his belief that the new President will not make a record for witty sayings during his term as President. He is appraised as humorous rather than witty. It is said that during all his campaign-ing he did not make a single "come back" at any one which had the snap of wit about it. If bluntless characterized Grover Cleveland, snavity William Mc-Kinley, and strenuosity Theodore Roosevelt, bubbling humor without the sting of wit will be characteristic of Taft.

Mr. Taft is the second man who was the son of a jurist to reach the high station of President. John Tyler was from the soil. The two Presidents who were sons of clergymen-Arthur and Cleveland-served the one after the chants for their fathers—Buchanan, Hayes and Roosevelt. Only two of the Presidents had an ancestry which hailed both of Dutch extraction. Mr. Taft adds another to the list of those who have come down from English ancestry. There have been only nine Presidents who have been inaugurated at an age younger than Mr. Taft. The first of these was Tyler. Polk, Fillmore and Pierce were younger than he. Lincoln was the same age. Grant, Garfield, Arthur, Cleveland and Roosevelt are the others who assumed the Presidential chair under fifty-two.

One of the prettiest incidents in the life of the new President occurred just before his departure on his round-theworld trip. His mother was then in ill health and did not expect to live long. Before determining to go the son went to her for counsel; he did not like to go so far away when the days allotted to her seemed all but spent. But she told him the Philippines looked up to him and put their confidence in him; that it was his duty to live up to his promise to attend the opening of their assembly even if it cost him the Presidency itself to go. Taft went. Before he got home the mother was dead. But she found consolation for his absence in the thought that he was away at the call of duty.

Cost of Brooms to be Higher.

Because of the increase in the cost of the corn of which brooms are made, consumers will have to pay more for those indispensable household utensils. The advance in price has already gone into effect with many shopkeepers.

The broom-corn crop is short, it is said, and the scarcity boosted the expense. Brooms will sell wholesale at an increase of about fitty cents a dozen. For each broom the housewife will pay on an average of five cents more than the price she has been accustomed to give.

There are about thirty broom making firms in Philadelphia, and the representatives of twenty-five of these met Mon-day night and agreed to raise the wholesale price. This is the second increase since the first of the year. A jump of fifty cents to the wholesaler was made, it is said, about February 1.

It is asserted that the yield of broom corn in Oklahoma and Illinois has in three years diminished greatly. This year's crop, it is estimated, will fall 22,000 tons short of the supply required.
