Because he believes that Adam, the first man, has been thoughtlessly neglected by the human race. Mr. John P. Brady, of 517 East Twenty-second street, Baltimore, has had erected at Hickory Grounds, his country home near Gardenville, a monument to the memory of the man who preceded all others on earth. Mr. Brady is a contractor and builder. The monument is in the form of a plain square shaft of concrete on the top of which a sun dial site sides of the shaft read as follows: 'This, the First Shaft in America, is Dedicated" and "To the Memory of Adam, the First Man."

Contracts will be let this year by the State Roads Commission for 137 miles of thoroughfares in the 23 counties of Maryland, ranging from six to eight miles in each, except Baltimore county, in which contracts will be let for miles. Bids were asked last Saturday for 40 miles of road in the counties. Roads were selected that were then ready for the contractor. These roads will be extended in most cases and all the other counties will get an allotment as the surveys are completed. It is the purpose of the Commission to start work in all the counties and an effort will be made to apportion the mileage in each as nearly even as possible.

James Boyle was sentenced, on Monday, to life imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary, at Pittsburg, for the kid-napping of "Billy" Whitla. Mrs. Boyle, indicted as Mary Doe, received a se tence of 25 years, with a fine of $5000 and the costs of the prosecution. Boyle did not create the scene in court he had threatened, and did not utter a word prior to his sentence. The business depression of the past year had much to do with the closing of saloons, but the rule of the Baltimore and Ohio management that employees must not drink caused the decrease in business. It is stated that the temperance agitation in the mining region is responsible for several saloons closing in the vicinity of

Spare the Birds.

One of the most important National resources-insectivorous birds-was unfortunately left out of the conservation plan of the last administration, hence, the Audubon Society begs all the people to spare the birds, for the sake good they do to Agriculture and Horticulture.

Proceedings of the School Board.

From five localities in the county, requests, and in some cases urgent demands, have come to the School Board for new school houses, or for an additional room to the present house. The Board has no money with which to undertake the work, and for that reason at the regular meeting held May 3rd. instant, the School Commissioners passed a resolution that they would not build any house, or addition, the coming summer.

During the last nine years the Board has built twelve new school houses, and Mrs. Augusta J. Evans-Wilson, the has added rooms to four more at a cost of $25,340.00. During this time we have paid out $13,470.00 in principal and interest on the school debt of the county. The Board has placed hot water heaters in the school buildings of Hampstead, Manchester, Union Bridge and Taneytown; globes and maps of Maryland have been placed in every school house in the county, and other supplies and in the county, and other supplies and equipments have been provided as far as our money would admit.

There are about 140 schools; to keep this property from wreck, several houses have to be roofed, floored or painted, every year. Not only is this a constant trouble, but it makes the repair bill quite considerable.

In the year 1900, the teachers' pay roll in the county amounted to $39,902.95; the present year the teachers will receive at least $58,353.68. This shows that we are paying the teachers $18,451.

I supposed you would be interested in the welfare of one of the home boys, but since my letter was misapprehended, I will have to be more reticent in the future. I wish you and the RECORD another successful year. I close with another verse of my favorite poem.

FRED'K POLITICIANS PROTEST.

The Governor Will send Detectives to Watch the Republican Primaries.

Both Republican and Democratic leaders, of Frederick, are indignant over the announcement that Governor Crothers had decided to send detectives to the county, on Saturday, to watch the conduct of the Republican primaries. The request to the Executive is said to have a corner from some propriment Bourdhillore. come from some prominent Republicans, but the leaders of the opposing elements deny having done anything of the kind.

The excuse is made that there are fears of a violation of the Corrupt Practices Act, and as this is the first primary held under the new law prominent party men interested in the result sought the protection of the state authorities. No one in authority and no Republican of any prominence is willing to assume the responsibility of having called upon the Governor to guard against a violation of

This is not the first time detectives have been sent to Frederick to keep watch over Republicans. Last fall Baltimore sleuths were dispatched to the city, and the presumption then was that the object was to intimidate the Republican voters. At any rate, the detectives accomplished nothing, the election being fairly conducted. Just why the Democratic Governor should again single out a Republican county, which is amply protected by its local administration, and make it appear that the voters need watching, is inex-plicable to Democrats as well as Re-publicans. Not a few of the former regard such action as a reflection on the county. The large number of negro votes in the city is no doubt responsible for the action.

The primary fight is along the old Motter and Haffner lines, with Dr. Haffner fighting this time to retain his office of clerk of the Circuit Court, for which he is seeking a renomination after a six-year term. The Motter, or regular, wing of the party is backing for this nomina-tion Harry W. Bowers, who has twice been defeated for it, 12 years ago by the late Douglass H. Hargett, and six years ago by Dr. Haffner. The regulars claim that they have all the best of the fight in Frederick district, where the contest centers, and that Dr. Haffner will be

Death of Mrs. Cornelius Haugh.

Mrs. Mary Katharine Haugh, wife of Cornelius Haugh, died at her home in Waynesboro, Pa., Thursday, May 6, of a complication of diseases after an illness of four weeks duration. Her death came as a sudden shock to the members of her family as well as her many friends. Her illness was considered serious but it was thought that she would recover.

Mrs. Haugh was born in Carroll county, Md., and was a daughter of William and Mary Birely. She was born in 1846 and was aged 74 years. As a young girl W. Shorb and T. Kolb; Medford, Jesse Baile in place of Ephraim Haines.
Taneytown, Chestnut Grove, Mahlon and New Windsor, are left in the hands Haugh, of Frederick county.

After her marriage, Mrs. Haugh, with her husband, resided in Frederick county and vicinity until 1882. In that year she and Mr. Haugh removed to Waynesboro, and have been residents there since. Beside her husband these children survive: Mrs. Robert G. Arnett, South Broad street; Claude, North Po-tomac Avenue, and R. C., at home.

One sister and two brothers are living: Mrs. Samuel Haugh, Ladiesburg, Md.; Jacob M. Birely, Frederick, and Thomas Birely, Middleburg, Md. The funeral took place Saturday at 12 o'clock from

Death of Mrs Louisa Morelock.

Mrs. Louisa Morelock, widow of David E. Morelock, died on Wednesday night, at her home, in Westminster, in her eighty-first year. Mrs. Morelock was the mother of Prof. George F. Morelock, principal of the Westminster High School, and Prof. A. Bailey Morelock, a member of Westminster Common Council and leader of the First Regiment band. She also leaves one daughter, Mrs. A. L. Williams, of Westminster. Her maiden name was Fleagle. One sister, Mrs. Levi Myers, of Pleasant Vallev, and three brothers, Noah H. At the Sunday communion service the sermon was delivered by the president, Rev. D. J. Wolf, of Taneytown, and in the evening Rev. J. Spangler Keiffer, of Hagerstown preached.

Classis adjourned on Monday night, after being in session five days. The classis will meet next year at Boonsboro, Md. The following ministers were elected as delegates to the Synod: Revs. E. L. Coblentz, D. J. Wolf, J. M. Schick, B. R. Carnahan, Gustav Hoetter, C. H. Ranck, S. C. Hoover, M. L. Firor, L. E. Coblentz, J. S. Kieffer and Atvill Conner.

Fraudulent Advertising.

Your article on "Advertisements" struck the keynote of a moral paper. Would that all papers had the proper conception of their mission. It must be confessed that avarice has induced Editors generally to accept ads which they knew were inducements to the unwary to invest in enterprises that rob them. So many of the ads are written ally, as heretofore, as it is no uncommon thing to hear expressions derogatory to their truthfulness, and well may it be said, as they bear falsehood on every line as to values. Respectable houses with plenty of means, tell the public they sell $25. articles for $15., $5. for $2.50, and so on, and, while many have "caught on," still enough are induced to believe, that the unscrupulous cantinue. Having read up the matter in papers from the North, East, West and Middle States, for a purpose, it worked itself out in the following.

I wrote to the Post-master General, last Winter, giving him my reasons why some papers should be excluded from the mails as well as others which published other matter. My position was to require every ad to be sworn to before a Notary Public, or Magistrate, that it was a bona fide ad., otherwise it could not be circulated in the mails. The P. M. G. turned my letter over to the Assistant Attorney General who answered me very kindly, stating if I gave him any information regarding the ads that would come under the law, they would be investigated.

I then wrote our Congressman, who I know personally, telling what I had done, asking him to get up a bill, the purport of which I have stated, as to the way ads should be printed. He wrote me, "if I understand you rightly, you want me to get up a bill, as stated; send me your correspondence with the P. M. G," which I did not do, but dropped the matter.

When Mr Coudrey, of Missouri, introduced his bill H. R. 5470, a bill to regulate advertisements, Mr. Pearre sent me late advertisements, Mr. Pearre sent me the printed bill, telling me by letter if the bill came out of Committee he would vote for it. I intend to write to Mr. Coudrey to amend his bill, if it comes out of Committee, by adding the oath I speak of, as protection for the printers, the readers, the buyers. It is the only safe position. It is due the people to be protected from this lying horde of business men as well as from bucket shops ness men as well as from bucket shops and lotteries. A truthful merchant cannot afford to advertise as he has no glaring colors to offer and deceive the people. I write you this letter to show you that such a bill would be popular with the people, as they realize the fraud underlying the ads of today.

An Automobile Accident.

caused by an automobile, from the Gettysburg Times, is but one of a large number appearing in the papers every week: The Baltimore Pike at Ward Bercaw's home, Two Taverns, was the scene Sunday afternoon of a thrilling driving ac-cident. The services at the Church were just over, persons in little groups were here and there exchanging greetings, others were already on their way home. George Patterson and his cousin, George Patterson, were among the latter. They were driving quietly along when suddenly over the crest of a little rise, mediately in front an automobile plunged into view. Mr. Patterson had barely time to tighten his hold upon the lines when his horse reared and swung around off the pike. As the horse whirled, Mr. Patterson sprang to grab him, caught his foot in the curl of the lines and fell, but in falling grabbed the reins, and with the assistance of others succeeded finally in stopping the frantic horse. But they had no time to relax for upon them came the second auto. driver did not stop his car until almost opposite the horse, and refused to stop his engine. The continued roar of the engine together with the strong odor of gasoline, caused the horse to rear and pitch until he got out of the shafts after having broken the shafts and bent other parts of the buggy. The buggy was an entirely new one of Littlestown make. Fortunately no one was seriously hurt.

Uncle Sam to Economize.

Washington, D. C., May 11 -The heads of the several executive departments are now at work on plans for economy of their respective divisions of the government, and good results are expected when the estimates for the next fiscal year are sent to Congress. President Taft has assured congressional leaders that he will assist them to the greatest possible extent in keeping down the expenses of the government. In most of the executive departments the bureau and division chiefs are at work on their estimates, under instructions to cut everything down as much as possi-

As soon as the estimates are made a new scheme of cabinet inspection will be tried. There will be sub-committees composed of members of the cabinet to and 42 originals. Appeal case disposed scrutinize the department estimates be- of: fore they are sent to the Secretary of the Treasury for submission to Congress. There will probably be three cabinet members to go over the estimates of each department.

President Taft believes that the War Department expenses can be cut down by $10,000,000. The cost of the Navy will also be materially reduced, and Secretary Meyer is now working on plans to this end. During his recent trip to Annapolis and Norfolk he constantly had in mind the necessity of cutting the cost of maintenance. Secretary of War Dickinson is now in Panama and will doubtless return home with a good many ideas for reduction in expenses on the isthmus.

NEW LIGHT ON THE TARIFF.

Wholesalers and Retailers make the big Profits, not the Manufacturers.

The tariff discussion, this week, brought out the evidence, that, in a great many instances, tariff reductions have nothing whatever to do with reducing prices to consumers; that the wholesale and re-tailers are the ones who are making excessive profits, not the manufacturers. Senator Scott, of West Va., in discussing the glass schedule, exhibited a glass pitcher which the manufacturer sells at 90 cents per dozen, but which retails at from 40% to 50% each. Senator Flint, of California, showed that a French china set, costing the wholesaler $10.89, is selling at retail in Washington at $36,00.

He also stated that Japanese china cups are selling at a profit of over 1000 per cent; that tea sets costing 41¢, are being retailed $3.50. Tea and coffee were shown to be sold, at retail, at from 300 to 500 per cent above the import price; tea costing 16% to import, retails, in some cases, at 60% per pound.

These facts were brought out to sustain the argument that neither slight additions, or reductions, to the tariff schedules, affected the retail price to the con-sumer, but that such changes did very materially benefit, or injure, the American manufacture, and consequently the laborers employed by them.

Statements were made, substantiated by evidence, that in very many lines of trade, the manufacturer was making but from 6 to 10 per cent, while the dealers were becoming wealthy; that the manufacturers, as a class, take by far the largest amount of risk, and that they and their employees are the ones who need protection.

This new line of argument is attracting considerable attention, and is putting a new face on the whole tariff question. Those who argue that the consumer pays the tariff tax are completely blocked in such argument, in a good many cases, when the exact facts are brought out. Many articles, admitted free of duty, have been shown to sell at enormous percentages of profit by the time they reach the consumer, and the whole discussion has shown that an investigation, and perhaps regulation, of wholesale and retail profits, is of much more im-portance to the people of the country than the tariff rates.

Three days were spent in the Senate in an effort to reduce the rate on lead ore five-eights of a cent a pound, the in-sistent argument being that such a reduction would reduce the price of white lead to the man with a house to paint, while it was as insistently claimed that by the time the reduction reached the paint purchaser, he would not get any of it. The same line of argument is being applied to lumber, wool and cotton manufactures, and most other articles. Illustrations are given by the hundreds that the wholesalers and retailers, and in certain instances the importers, prevent the people from getting the benefit of tariff reductions, and the evidence produced is such that it is carrying con-The following account of an accident viction. As a rule, the tariff rate on articles of large general consumption carry very small tariff rates—so small as not to affect the retail price to the sumer—but large enough to affect the business prosperity of the manu-

Senator Gore, of Oklahoma, in defense of the retailers, facetiously declared, This Senate has turned itself into a grand jury and is here ready to return a verdict against the retail dealers. The manufacturers and trusts are undertaking to hold up the middlemen and retailers as a shield to protect themselves against the outraged consumers. I stand here to enter a plea of not guilty for the retailers of this country." Mr. Gore named shoes, hats, shirts, clothing and other articles of particular manufactures as being sold to retailers under contract that they should be sold at an agreed price. Mr. Hale said he agreed with what the Senator from Oklahoma was declaring. Trade conditions fixed the retail price and he did not charge the retailer with any extortion. "I am not arraigning the retailer," said Mr. Hale. I am only saying that such is our habit of trade that a price entirely disproportionate to the manufacturer's price is asked." Mr. Gore said that some woolen and cotton manufacturers of New England are declaring dividends of 66 per cent., which was greater than the profit of retailers. Mr. Aldrich contended that the duty on glass had no relation to the price at which it is sold in this country.

As an illustration of how the two parties are divided over the tariff question, the vote in the Senate, on Thursday, placing 25c a ton duty on iron ore, abundantly shows. The vote was as follows; For the duty, 43 Republicans, 18 Democrats; against the duty 14 Repub-

The Gardening Cure.

Have you pain in the back of your shins? Have you that tired feeling in the back of your eyes? Have you lost your appetite—for work? Are you sick of your job? Does your head feel as wooden as your enemies say it is? Does your mouth taste like the bottom of an old tin bird cage? Would you rather loaf than hustle?

If you have any or all of these symptoms you are in bad shape, but take heart—we can cure you.

We have a sure remedy—it has cured thousands, it will cure you.

Whether you live in Albuquerque or

Zanzibar, or any other place in the alphabet or on the map, we can cure you.

This wonderful cure, one of the marvels of science, was discovered by the much-advertised and widely known old opium nor dangerous mineral substances; it is purely vegetable.

Dr. Adam. It contains no booze, no opium nor dangerous mineral substances;

Send no money. You pay only when cured, and then you don't pay us.

The cure we advertise is the Gardening Cure. It is a better cure than Fletcherism, Ralstonism or any other "ism" we know of. The Gardening Cure cures we have your garden and you stay cured.

you in your garden, and you stay cured for a long time. There is but one condition—you must do the work.

Do not sniff at this cure. Perhaps you think that gardens are only good for raising greens, but you are wrong; they are even better for raising guention.

are even better for raising gumption.

The Gardening Cure is unlike the Kneip Cure. You don't take off your shoes and your socks and rustle through the wet grass in your bare feet at 5 a. m. You take the cure at any old time. Get into your old clothes and out in the dirt. Stir up the earth with a hoe, then smoothe it down with a rake; paw around the roots of things; the stray angleworm here and there won't hurt you-your garden's its castle; besides, if you live where there is fishing it may be good for bait.

Get out your wheelbarrow, put in an ax and a spade and trundle it off to the woods; there you will find ferns and all kinds of greenery. It will break your back to get it out, but when planted in the back of your lot will rest your eyes when the days are hot and a bit too bright.

Hard work? All this is mighty hard work. You will sweat (perspire is not the word) and sweat till all the poisons you have acquired from lobster suppers, too much smoking, had air and all the evil remnants of winter sail out through your pores. When taking the Gardening Cure count that day lost when you don't sweat at least a quart. That bay window of yours which has robbed you of your straight front and which you think makes you look prosperous is really a sign that your are growing old.

Sweat it off and grow young.
You cannot make half so good a garden as some old John or old Tom in your neighborhood can make for you, but let him do the work and you raise only vegetables. Do the work yourself and you raise vegetables (perhaps) and you et your cure. Don't try to whip your sluggish system into activity by the cocktail cure. That's sweeping the dirt under the bed. Get out in the garden. Take the Gardening Cure. If there isn't any dirt where you live, better move. You need the Gardening

Cure. The sooner man is convinced that health cannot be handed out over a counter, poured from a bottle or swallowed in a capsule the sooner will the great human family emerge from the realm of freedom of mind, body and soul. -Newspaperdom.

..... Maryland's Wheat Crop.

Maryland's farmers will be richer by many millions at the end of the present summer than ever before, for Maryland's wheat crop according to official reports today, is a record-breaker, and with the present high prices Maryland's income from the wheat will break all records.

While the cry of short crops is going up from the States west of the Alle ghanies the Maryland farmer is laying low and watching his wheat fields blossoming forth into dollars that will not only pay off the mortgage, but will also allow him to buy automobiles and still have a surplus in the bank to carry him over several bad years should Nature turn her beaming countenance away from the Old Line State.

To come more directly to the point, the wheat crop in Maryland this year is said to be one of the best in years, and unless unfavorable conditions arise between now and harvest time the yield will be such as to test the granaries of the State to the limit of their capacity. Reports from all sections show that growing wheat is in a most flourishing condition.

The May term of court convened on Monday, May 10, 1909, at 10 o'clock, a. m. Present, Chief Judge Wm. H. Thomas; J. Belt Townshend, sheriff, David P. Specific Court in Session.

According to figures recently furnished by Secretary Wroth of the Chamber of Commerce the average wheat crop produced by the farms of Maryland is about 16,000,000 bushels, but that the indications of the court in Session.

cent. of being a full crop. This short-age is made up principally of the fail-ure of the crops in the States west of the Ohio river—the great wheat-raising country-to measure up to the standard. This shortage, it is argued, will do much to enrich the Maryland farmer, as it is said, it will practically mean present high price of wheat will be maintained. July delivery today was quoted on the floor of the Chamber of Commerce at $1.16½ and if this price holds out the wheat crop will net the farmers of the State away over $20,000,000. In former vears the slogan of the wheat farmers was "Dollar wheat." Last year most of them got that price for their crops. With wheat at $1.16½ the growers are the most prosperous class in Maryland.

LET THE disfranchising amendment rest a while. The voters of the state will be too busy, for several months, to be influenced by argument, one way or the other, and most of them already have linger, that they do not mean to contheir minds made up. #### Pay Debts Now.

The farmer who is not saving every cent possible and applying it to his indebtedness is missing literally a golden opportunity. It is a period of inflation of prices, although farm products may never again be as low as they were a few years ago, and while the quotations for corn, wheat, poultry, beef and pork are soaring, the price of money remains the tors, we think, is much deeper than that same. The legal-interest rate is but 6 per cent, the same as it was ten years ago and has been for many years.

To illustrate: The man who borrowed one thousand dollars on mortgage twelve years ago would have had to sell about sixteen hundred bushels of wheat or twenty-five hundred bushels of corn to pay his debt, at the prices these cereals were then bringing. At present quotations a little over seven hundred bushels of wheat or eleven hundred bushels of corn will foot the bill. If, then, the borrower had any reasonable expectation of repaying the loan at that time but has not done it, he should do so now or never. This applies particularly to loans made some years ago, when products were low and land was also cheap. Of course, the man who has borrowed money recently has done so on an inflated basis, and he is not a gainer to the same extent, but all the more Some automobilists are now arguing should he endeavor to pay off whatever are for a revenue tariff which affords that the streets and roads are for vehicles indebtedness he may have, if any, for if and automobiles, and that pedestrians prices should go down his experience are trespassers and should keep off, or | will be that of the man who buys dear

Work for Mr. Roosevelt.

The Big Gun is still at work. This time a rhinoceros, charging upon Colodead almost at the feet of our former President. The native Africans in Mr. Roosevelt's expedition were ecstatic with delight. They had named him "Bwana Tumbo" because of his slaughter of the minion. The Colonel has given the Afrito wear without fear or reproach the grand old title of "Bwana Tumbo."

Mr. Rockefeller's Pastor.

Charles F. Aked is pastor of the richst man in the country. Just what John D. Rockefeller thinks of some of his utterances has not been published. Sometimes it is understood that pulpit and magazine deliverances are not to apply to certain privileged characters. We have no reason to think this is the case in Mr. Aked's article on "The Gospel for the Rich," published in a recent number of Appleton's magazine though a man up a tree can scarcely ayoid seeing a collision of minds or the condoning of offences. Mr. Aked lays down three principles which should govern the attitude of Christians in this matter: That money is owned honorably only when it is the equivalent of services rendered; that it is owned dishonestly when men and women have been used merely as instruments for producing weath; and that no amount of moneygiving can atone for money-stealing. This follows closely the utterances of Jesus touching justice and right.

American people of the medium and poorer classes must refrain from indiscriminate charges of rascality against a man simply because he has money. The possession of wealth is not a mark of injustice and oppression. A poor man's heart may be just as black as that of the millionaire, though he is unable to do as much damage. A rich man's character may be just as pure as the poor man's, and in that case he has opportunity to do far more good. The raillery and denunciation sometimes heard against a man, simply because through frugality, application, and business sense he has accumulated money are a revelation of the man who is doing the talking, and an index of what sort of an oppressor he would be if he had the opportunity of greater financial strength.-Lutheran Evangelist.

Won't Slight a Good Friend "If ever I need a cough medicine again I know what to get," declares Mrs. A. L. Alley, of Beals, Md., "for after using ten bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery, and seeing its excellent results in my own family and others, I am convinced it is the best medicine made for Coughs, Colds and lung trouble." Every one who tries it feels just that way. Relief is felt at once and its quick cure sur-prises you. For Bronchitis, Asthma, Hemorrhage, Croup, LaGrippe, Sore Throat, pain in chest or lungs its supreme.

Who Is The Wise Giver? ,

There is a growing tendency among rich men to give their money to institutions, rather than to leave it to their sons or grandsons. In America, money is seldom handed down from generation to generation in large estates. The highest type of individual is he who can see farthest into the future and direct his actions so that they will be operative for good fifty or one hundred years hence. For this reason wise givers, wise and loving parents, are learning not to leave all of their fortunes to their children. Why? Because there is a surer way of investing it, so that it will yield interest to their children and grandchildren, than tunes with the accompanying evils.

The best inheritance any man can have is an environment that promises health, that gives opportunity to be selfsupporting and to make his own fortune, in whatever way seems to him most worth while. Not the man who leaves money for his grandchildren's education, but he who gives money to make the school system provide good education for all children, is the wise giver. Not the man who builds a model tenement, but he who enables his town to enforce the tenement-house law that protects all tenements for all time; not the man who gives a home to convalescent mothers and babies, but he who gives a fund to teach the public to educate all mothers to save their babies.

Our interest is no longer in the maintenance of a particular family, but in a better race of Americans-i. e., in a better environment.

The money of Americans is their conscience, the use of it, if not the getting of it, expresses an ideal-now a health ideal, now beauty, now government, now social welfare. May it not be that one hundred years hence the man, not known today as philanthropist or benefactor, but who uses his money, his table Man ?- Editorial in The Delineator

PRUNING THE PEAR TREE.

What to Cut, How to Cut and Why the Cut.

It may be safely assumed that all modern farmers are interested in fruit. Next to the apple, there is no fruit in such general demand as the pear. How to make a pear tree most productive is a subject that must interest every fruit raiser. Success begins with proper pruning.

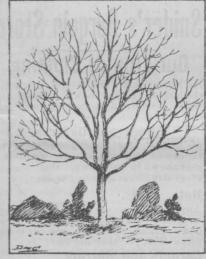

In pruning the pear orchard a symmetrical shape should be given the trees, according to the form that the

The person who trims should be able to tell what to cut, how to cut, why he cuts and the probable effect of the pruning upon the tree. If he cannot give a reason for everything he does he is an unsafe man to trust in trimming a pear orchard.

Little Things Worth Knowing. No shoes should be left on a farm horse's feet longer than two months and on a road horse not more than six weeks.

Barrel salt is too coarse and dissolves too slowly to make good butter salt. Fine table salt is always the most economical to use.

During the last twelve years the yearly average agricultural balance of international trade in favor of this country increased from $234,000,000 to $411,000,000, or 76 per cent.

HOW TO SET A BROODY HEN.

What to Do When She Ruffles Up Her Feathers.

The season has arrived when the hen is apt to show signs of broodiness. The average beginner in poultry culture is pretty sure to imagine that because the hen stays on the nest for some time after she has laid an egg she is broody, and many a sitting of good eggs has been spoiled by too much haste.

When a hen is real broody she will not only show it by "clucking" when off the nest, but when on the nest she will ruffle up her feathers and squeal and sometimes pick at you the moment you approach her. When in that condition she is to be trusted.

The average beginner does not know how to set a hen and much less how to take care of her. He is apt to tack up boxes about the house or allow her a regular laying nest and in order to keep the rest of the flock from worrying her will inclose her with a cage or something. About once a day he will take the hen off the nest to allow her to eat and dust herself. It is a wrong move to make. No man is so wise that he knows just when a hen wants to get off her eggs or when she must return to them.

The best plan is to use a barrel outdoors. Place the barrel on its side and fasten it so it will not move. A good plan is to dig away a few inches of earth and have the barrel fit in the excavation. Then throw in several inches of earth and on top of this make a nest. Cover the barrel with some heavy waterproof paper to keep out

In front of this place an A shaped run, made of lath. Provide water, whole corn and grit and then allow the hen to get off and on her nest at will. Never tamper with her nor disturb her nest. She knows her business, and you cannot help her. At night close up the front of the nest so as to protect

Hedge Trimming Made Easy.

Hedge trimming has been made easy by the ingenuity of an Oregon man who has devised a machine that will cut as many branches as a dozen men working by hand at once, will cut them straight and will cut them without any difficulty. The machine consists of a large number of teeth set in a row and all operated by the same shaft, which is turned by a handle. Their effect is that of so many pairs of s working in the same line side will overbear and, becoming exhaust. by side. Chinaware of the Big Hotels. The only china used at private dinners at the Knickerbocker in New York is the bleue de sevres, which was made in France especially for this hotel, with blue and gold pattern and the monogram of the hotel on the rim of each piece. There are seventy-two pieces to a set, and each piece cost $6. At the Plaza and Astor the cost of each piece is $4 and $5 respectively, and designs are white and gold and plain white with border of asters. Great care has been taken and large expense incurred in obtaining the choicest china for the Waldorf-Astoria. For select private dinners the "crown" set is used, consisting of specimens from the sets of royalty dating from the time o' Napoleon to the present. The pattern is a blue and gold border with a picture in the center of each piece of the king and queen to whom that particular piece belonged. The set could not be auplicated for $1,000, 000.-Good Housekeeping.

A Dangerous Subject. Professor Henry Drummond when a boy discovered that he could hypnotize people. At a birthday party a little girl declined to play the piano. Drummond happened to catch her eye and said, "Play." To his surprise she rose at once, went to the piano and played At another time he hypnotized a boy and gave him a poker for a gun "Now," said Drummond, "I'm a pheasant. Shoot me." The boy did so, and Drummond fell to keep up the illusion, whereupon the boy, seeing the "bird" move, was about to hit it over the head with the poker. THE GRANGE MASTER.

Characteristics Required to Make Successful Officer.

[Synopsis of a paper read by C. S. Lockwood of North Hannibal (N. Y.) grange.] The master of a grange should feel the responsibility of his position. While he should not think he is the whole grange, yet he will certainly be held responsible for decline in interest or in membership, and if so the rule of fair play should entitle him to credit If the grange is successful.

First.-Although the grange is a school, it cannot be governed by fixed rules. It has been my experience that It is not always best to call to order at a stated time, but to be governed by the number present, and at the same time do not delay the meeting too long so as to tire those present.

Second.-The master should be reasonably familiar with parliamentary

Third.-He should be prompt and fair with his decisions and courteous

Fourth.-Owing to the prominent part which he is of necessity compelled to take in all meetings he should be quick to think and act and also very brief so as to avoid the possibility of becoming tiresome

Seventh .- The master should carry out as far as possible in his daily life the noble teachings of our Order 29 laid down in the ritual that the influ ence of the grange may be felt for the good of the community. By increasing the influence of the Order we will induce others to join with us in the spirit of fraternity which is spreading over the entire state and the United States as well.

bers and Owns Its Hall.

Turner grange was organized June 6, 1874, and has reached a membership of nearly 450. This grange is located in the fine farming town of Turner, noted for its excellent farms, thrifty farmers and Turner creamery, which sells over $380,000 worth of dairy products annually, and it is said to be the d largest creamery in New Eng-

The membership of Turner grange is composed solely of the families of this thrifty farming section, and the average attendance is over 160 annually. This large attendance enables the grange to bold interesting meetings at all times of the year. One peculiarity is the fact that no evening meetings are held, all being held in the daytime.

At 10 o'clock on the first and third Saturdays of every month the members assemble and the business commences. At the noon recess a dinner is served. At the close of the afternoon meeting the labors of the day are completed, and all get home in time for the evening chores.

This grange owns the hall in which the meetings are held, which is a commodious structure, containing the lodge room, dining room and kitchen completely equipped for serving large numbers and a library with over 700 carefully selected volumes. The latter is installed in a very attractive library room, nicely carpeted and containing reading facilities. A librarian is in charge during each meeting, and books are taken and returned by members. Over $100 is annually expended in purchasing new books.

A State Master on Good Roads. State Master Creasy of Pennsylvania at a meeting at Selinsgrove, Snyder county, said that the "good roads" built by the highway department were "miserable and expensive failures. During the years of its existence no definite plan has been established except a religiously carried out method of squandering money. There is too much mahogany desk business about building the so called state roads. Every time a strip of such highway is to be made or repaired an office attache from Harrisburg is sent to the scene. Generally he looks wise, and that is all. Although not cognizant of locality peculiarities of the roadbed, he disregards the suggestion of the ruralites. FORTUNE CAME IN AUTO.

How One Farm Was Freed From & Mortgage by a Wife.

"My method of adding to our income is by keeping an inn for automobile travelers," a farmer's wife who recently paid a visit of several weeks to New York city told the reporter. "Our farm is ten miles away from the nearest railroad station, and it was next to impossible to get summer boarders. It was so difficult for me to market my butter and eggs and chickens that it didn't seem worth while.

"I used to be always wishing we could get nearer the station. It seemed to me that if we could only get where city people would be willing to come in the summer our fortune would be made. I have always been a good housekeeper, and my husband is known all through our part of the country as a good provider. Some people used to say that was the reason we never could get rid of the mortgage on the farm.

"The children and I had all but persuaded him to sell out and move to the village when our eldest daughter suggested opening an inn for the automobilists, who were continually stopping at our place for water and other little things. My two daughters set at work and brightened up the house and yards. Then they put out a sign at the crossroads and another on the front gatepost stating that we were prepared to furnish meals and lodgings for small parties.

"Then small parties soon began to come in, and they have been increasing Fifth.-In conferring the degrees the in size and number ever since. They were very bare when intermissions and especially to those we began to take in automobilists, but who are new members or not regular now, thanks to the money that they have left with us, there are not many farmhouses in this part of the country where you would find more books and more comfortable furnishings.

"We don't pretend to give our visitors anything fancy to eat-just the things raised on the farm well cooked and served. My niece has studied domestic science, so she knows how to cook by the new methods, while I can do about as well as the next one with my old recipes.

"You mustn't think we have had things all our own way. Several farmers who live near the road have put out the inn sign, and some of them have a good business, but as we began first and have kept our place up to the standard the visitors have continued to stop with us instead of going to neighboring inns. Besides, we haven't tried to change our house very much, only to freshen it up and make it more comfortable.

"I have found that what folks want when they come to the country is good country eating. That is what we give them at our inn-a plenty of it and with fresh, clean linen and china that is washed and polished until it shines. We no longer have a mortgage on the farm, and we have money in bank."

The Auctioneer's Hourglass. An auctioneer of Philadelphia collects all sorts of objects pertaining to his ancient calling. He has, among other things, an interesting set of auctioneers' hourglasses. The auctioneer a century or so ago concluded a sale not by saying "Going, going, gone!" and rapping the counter with his hammer, but it was his better method to turn up a free running glass toward the end of the bidding and to end the sale irrevecably when the sand ran out. This saved confusion and dispute. The auctioneers' glasses in the Philadelphia collection are picturesque One is of tortoise shell and mother-ofpearl. Called the Deal Off.

A lad attending school craved a lfttle holiday one morning when he started out to wrestle once again with the trials incident to getting an education. As he entered the schoolroom he hatched a plot to get the coveted holiday. He went up to the teacher's desk and told his story. "My mother wants to know if you won't excuse me for today?" he began. "She wants me to do some work at home and thought if I'd study at home this evening and make up what I'd missed mebby you'd let me off."

Something about the lad's manner kept the words from carrying conviction. The teacher bluffed back as follows: "Tommy," said she, "you won't need to go home at all. Since you started to school your mother called me on the phone to tell me that she had changed her mind and for you to stay here.

The lad looked at her, startled. "Aw, well," he said, "as long as both of us are lyin' about it let's just call it quits. I'll stay here."-Cleveland Plain

A Wealthy Soldier's Idea.

Australians still tell stories of the colonial volunteers, although the war is a far memory. One, a member of the Stock Exchange, was left one wet and miserable night to guard a wagon load of goods. He shivered in the unsheltered place for some hours pondering many things, and then a bright thought struck him just as the colonel came around on his tour of inspection. "Colonel," he asked, "how much is this wagon worth?" "I don't know," was the answer. "Much or little, we can't afford to lose it.' "Well, but, colonel," persisted the amateur soldier, "you might give me a rough idea of the value."

"About £200," said the colonel testily "Very well," was the answer; "I will come down to the camp and give you a check for the amount. Then I'll turn in. I wouldn't catch my death of cold for twice that much."

In this abode of bliss you receive your friends, male and female, and, if the gentleman, sitting himself rashly on the bed-sofa, vanishes into the planc or the lady throws herself wearily into the hip bath amnchair and it falls off the packing case with her inside it, no one will turn a hair. You will invite them to lunch or tea or dinner, which ever is approaching, and the gentleman will offer to go and buy chops or kippers and fetch the milk and when he returns, will help you cook, and you'll sit together and eat it on the washing stand, which also in Tombstone when Red Face was captured. A dozen men were hustled Into the poker room of the Lone Dog agement of the Breslau garden an and commanded to consider themselves a jury and to pass a verdict on the notorious thief.

"The men went into the accusations pretty thoroughly. There was no evidence against Red Face in this case. He was a villain, but in strict justice they must pronounce him innocent at this time

"At this a murmur of relief passed around the bar, and the judge said contentedly:

"'Guilty, eh? Well, that's more like it. Gentlemen of the jury, you can now disperse. We hanged the prisoner two hours ago."

A Discussion on the Fly.

Ian Maclaren used to tell a story of two Scots worthies, donce elders of the kirk, who found themselves alone in the compartment of a railway carriage traveling in Perthshire, and, thrown upon each other for company. they fastened on a knotty point in theology to beguile the time. The subject of controversy was whether a man is saved by faith or works. The discussion became heated, and the train drew up at the destination of one of the debaters not a moment too soon. Loath to give up the argument, they continued to wrangle until the train began to move out of the station, and the discharged passenger had to zette. run along the platform to eke out the precious moments left for a last word. The subject seemed to hang fire for a perilous moment-the train was accelerating its speed-when back from the figure leaning far out of the carriage window came the cry, "Hebrews -ten-thirty-eight!" ("The just shall live by faith.") Quick as lightning the other flung after the receding antinomian, "James - first-twenty-four!" ("By works a man is justified and not by faith only.")

HOW TO CAGE A BEAR.

Show Him Carrots and Bread and Lead, the Way to His Den.

Escapes of animals from their cages in zoological gardens and menageries are fortunately rare. When they do occur the work of recapture is set ed me of the trial of 'Red Face' Leary, | about in a businesslike fashion, and the prison breaker is generally cap-"There was tremendous excitement tured before anything is known out-

In the periodical issued by the manamusing story is told of an incident of this kind. Some years ago, on a fine autumn morning, just after the gates were opened there was a loud knocking at the pay window, and, in reply to the inquiry of the money taker who presented himself, a man in a state of great excitement said that as he was walking on the Oder bank h ad seen through the palisading a large bear loose in the grounds. "Greatly obliged to you, sir," was the reply. "We know that already; that bear goes for a walk every morning and returns to its cage before the visitors come in."

The man went away quite satisfied. The official, who knew the real state of the case, at once ordered the gates to be closed, and the director was at once informed that the bear was loose. It was a serious matter, for the bear had killed the keeper in a traveling menagerie and for that reason was sold to the zoological garden. Moreover, when a mate had been put in with him she soon fell a victim to his bad temper. While the authorities were considering the best steps to take to recapture the bear-for they were loath to shoot such a fine animal-the keeper whose negligence in leaving a door unfastened had caused the trouble made his appear. ance. His only reply to the reproaches of the director for allowing the bear to escape was, "Well, we shall have to get him in again." He went off to the storeroom, filled his apron with carrots and bread and then sought the bear. When he saw the animal he called out to attract its attention and by throwing down food enticed it to the back of the bear dens. Here the man entered through a small door by which new arrivals were put into the cages. He was closely followed by the bear, but reached the middle of the cage before it had scrambled through the small opening. Then he dropped on the floor the rest of the food he had in his apron and made his way out of the cage, which was at once securely fastened in front and at the rear. Thus the incident, which might have had serious consequences, ended happily for those on whom the responsibility rested.-London Field.

Warned In a Dream.

On the occasion of a fatal accident to a lift in a Paris hotel some years ago a lady who was just going up in it started back, saying, "Oh, there is that dreadful man again!" and tried to induce her husband to come off it, too, but he refused and was among the killed. The "dreadful man" to whom she referred she had seen in a dream, which the niece of the friend who told me the story had heard her relate a day or two before the accident. It was of a funeral drawn up at her door, so pompous as to produce and declared that they found Red a great impression on her, presided over by a big dark man in a strange sombrero hat. This man she saw, or believed she saw, in the lift, and the coincidence terrified her from going up in it.-London Notes and Queries.

Ladies and Gents.

When I was younger kids were kids in Kansas or in Cadiz. Now all the boys are gentlemen and all the girls ladies. Where are the kids who climbed the trees, the tousled young carousers who got their faces black with dirt and tore their little trousers? Where are the lads who scrapped by rounds while other lads kept tallies. the maids who made their pies of mud and danced in dirty alleys? They're making calf love somewhere now, exchanging cards and kisses. They're all fixed up in Sunday togs, and they are sirs and misses. Real kids have vanished from the world, which fact is surely hades, and all the boys are gentlemen, and all the girls are ladies.-Walt Mason in Emporia Ga-

QUENTIN METYS.

How Love Changed a Great Blacksmith Into a Great Painter.

Love made Quentin Metys a painter. This great Floming, whom both Antwerp and Louvain claim to have given birth, though the palm now rests with Louvain, was the son of an able blacksmith. Trained in his father's craft, the younger Quentin soon distinguished himself by his work in this base metal and among other matters turned out the wonderfully delicate ironwork that surmounts the well outside the Cathedral of Antwerp. Already an acknowledged master of his guild, it came about, writes Helen Zimmern in the Metropolitan Magazine, that the young artisan fell in love with the daughter of a rich Antwerp burgher. When asked to consent to a marriage, however, the father would not hear of turers provided themselves with a it, saying he could not let his daughter wed a blacksmith. Quentin next inquired if he would feel the same objection to a painter? The good burgher, who anticipated no change of craft on the questioner's part, replied that there, indeed, was a more refined profession. What was his surprise and perhaps secret dismay when some months later rusty old poker in place of marrow .-Quentin Metys reappeared and asked | London Globe. for the fulfillment of the old burgher's promise. #### "Humble Pie."

Originally the term "humble pie" earried no opprobrious meaning. The pie was one made out of the "humbles" or "numbles," from the Norman French "nombrils"-i. e., the entrails of a deer. To this day it is highly esteemed in Scotland and in northern parts of England. So late as the time of Pepys "umble pie" was served as part of the menu of a gentleman's table on an extraordinary occasion. Some writers derive the contumelious use of the phrase "to eat humble pie" from an alleged custom of serving "umble pie" below the salt, or at the second table. But this is not supported by authority. It more probably came into use simply through the similarity of

"Troilus and Cressida," act 4, scene 2, makes one of his characters say: Do to this body what extremity you can,

But the strong base and building of my love
Is as the very center of the earth, Drawing all things to it.

This would seem to look very like the announcement of the law of gravity, and yet nothing can possibly be truer than the fact that the great poet did not in any substantial sense anticipate the philosopher. Between Shakespeare's fancy and the scientific triumph of Newton there is an infinite difference.-New York American.

Moral Courage. A schoolteacher once told her class

that the courage which makes us do what we think right, regardless of the sneers of others, was moral courage, the best kind.

"Then if a boy has a box of candy, like me yesterday," said a lad, "and if he eats it all himself, without giving any to people that have no right to it, say what you mean? I'm no mind no matter how much they call him reader. He-No; if you were, you'd mean and stingy, that there's moral courage, ain't it, teacher?"

The Magnet as a Detective. In America the magnet has come rather extensively into use in the handling of iron and steel castings. Suspended from a locomotive crane, it can also be used for collecting scraps of metal from floors and yards. Large amounts are said to be saved in this way. And as the magnet moves over the ground it may bring to light pieces which have mysteriously disappeared -concealed, it may be, by employees to hide blunders in their work. Some years ago in England the magnet was found useful in a somewhat similar way in the detection of fraud. Manufacturers of bone manure found that they were buying old iron along with the bones. Collectors found that it was profitable to insert bits of old metal in the larger bones and thus increase the weight. So the manufacpowerful magnetic apparatus under which all the bones were passed before being weighed. An error was unfortunately made in setting the piece of poetry, "Memories," by Mrs. Hélen Root Lilly, of Frederick, which appeared in our issue of May 1. #### Hates Big Hats, But What Can a Girl Do?

"I do hate to wear a hat so large that it almost amounts to a caricature," said Belinda, sinking down wearily into her chair at the tearoom whither we had repaired after a strenuous afternoon of shopping, "but what is a poor girl going to do? It you don't wear one of the new styles, and all the smartest ones are too large-if they are not too high they're too wide-if you don't wear the new styles you're thought old-fashioned and frumpy, and if you do people are not satisfied,

"If all the women wore small hats I wouldn't mind doing it, but I'm not going to appear in one of last year's shapes when every other girl is bedizened with peach baskets and coal scuttles and things, especially," and she surveyed herself steathily in a little mirror on the wall, "when the peach basket is absolately the most becoming shape I ever had.'

"Then you would approve," I ventured, "of the bill introduced the other day in the Illinois House of Representatives, making it unlawful to sell or expose for sale any hat more than 18 inches in diameter ?"

"I should have approved of such a bill before the new hats had been introduced or before we had become accustomed to them. I was perfectly satisfied with the hat I had last year, but now that I have worn this larger one I should feel it almost criminal to appear in one of the meager dimensions of the Merry Widow. And yet the Merry Widow was considered a large hat last year.

"But that's the trouble with these lawmakers. They always lock the stable door after the horse has been stolen. First they allow us poor, unsuspecting omed to and fall in love with big hats, and then they cruelly say we must stop wearing them. I'm not a very strong advocate of woman suffrage usually, but when such outrages'as these are inflicted upon us I am as anxious for the ballot as Rev. Anna Howard Shaw herself.

"But really, in all seriousness, this hat gives me no end of trouble. In the wind it acts like a perfect sail, and I have to frantically hold it on with both hands when there is just the slightest suggestion of a breeze, while I notice, or imagine I notice, which is really just as bad, cynical smiles on the faces of all the men I meet.

"Then it has such an awful effect on hair. Eyen with the assistance of long hatpins it will become wabbly after I have had it a little while, or it tilts over toward my ear, because the mass of trimming is all bunched on one side, and the result is my hair is thinning out in front from the friction.

"But I have the greatest qualms of conscience when I go to church. I am not the only woman in our church who wears a large hat, by any means, and I am considerate enough of other people's feelings not to sit on the front row. I also take pains to remain in the same position, not daring to move to the right or to the left, all through the sermon. But last Sunday I moved over just the my hymn book, which had fallen from my hands, when I noticed such a rustling and swishing and moving behind Cures Fever-Sores, Boils, Felons, me as would suggest that every person ma, Salt Rheum. Melissa actually had the nerve to ask why I bought such a big hat, when I knew I would make all my friends and even strangers uncomfortable by wearing it. I felt very much humiliated, and timidly suggested that they should sit on the front row if they liked it and leave me and my hat in the rear, but Anne, who always was a diplomist, said that it would be just as unenjoyable to hear that lecture without my society as to sit on the back row. So we compromised and sat half way down the church, and as the people behind us did not sit very close together I felt relieved in the thought that they could arrange themselves in such a way that my offending headgear would not entirely hide the lecturer from the view."

But the waitress was serving the tea, and so Belinda's jeremiad was brought to an abrupt termination .- LEONORE CALVERT in Baltimore News.

---Summer Country Boarders.

Place a small advertisement in the city papers offering to give city people a shady lawn, comfortable sleeping quarters, good meals, and quiet surroundings. The well-shaded lawn is necessary in furnishing a summer boarding place for city people. They want shade, rest, and quiet, with good plain food, and if possible, a place for rowing or fishing. Some may not require as much as others. and it will be necessary for the housewife to study the likes and dislikes of each boarder as soon as he arrives. Some may wish to romp with the children and visit every spot on the farm, while another may desire to drop down in the hammock under the shady tree and rest undisturbed.

And right here let us say to make your place popular for summer visitors, you must permit them to choose their daily program, and an occasional opportunity to name the menu for the following meal. The original woman will have no difficulty in planning attractive meals and in serving them in an appetizing manner. Notice we did not say "stylish" manner. Usually the city man or woman desires to throw off all restraint when at a summer abode and no effort at up-todate hostelry should be attempted.

If the farm home is quite a distance from the city, plans should be made for the boarders to make a trip to the city when they choose. If on a rural mail route, this may not be required, as the boarder would then receive his mail every day without the trip to the city.

If one lives just at the edge of the city, or in the city, and wishes to board families who send the servant away on vacation, or those who do their own work in the winter and board in the summer, then the boarding problem is not such a. great one. All the attention then can be given to having the meals good and class of boarders would not expect to take the privileges of the home or lawn.

As to what foods should be served, this all depends upon the appetites to ular science works are being used. It is satisfy. Some nervous dyspeptics would said that this is largely due to the effect not think of changing from their usual of the library on public taste. A nice little income can be had by the original, tactful woman on the farm by taking people for a few weeks' rest and | have grapsed the human interest phase quiet in the country. The farmer's wife of scientific topics and are able to present who can do this without over-burdening herself will find it a very helpful plan of the reader, be he one who reads for in several ways. She can dispose of surplus fruits and vegetables from the farm. If the proper charges are made, she clears a nice little sum. She is put in touch with educated, refined city people, and she also has an opportunity of making herself known as an entertaining country housewife and one giving comfort and pleasure to overworked, tired, and nervous city residents.

But the consensus of opinion of the greatest authorities in this country upon farm conditions is to the effect that probably ten per cent. of the farmers are grasping their opportunities for better living in so far as the home is concerned, and that the condition of but ten per cent. of the women is improved. Strange to say, with the vast majority there has come a worse condition with the development of the farm and the advent of prosperity. The Country Life Commission, appointed by the President, has traveled the country over and found this to be a fact.

Ink Bill $2,000,000.

The ink used in book and periodical printing costs more than $2,000,000 a Perhaps the total output of printers' ink in the United States amounts to $5,000,000 in value. It is said that the American people use 12,000,000 gallons of writing ink every 12 months, or more than 33,000 gallons a day.

The most remarkaale thing about the book trade of the present day is the gain that popular science has been enjoying compared with fiction and other light reading. The number of new books of such a nature nearly doubled in a single wholesome and ready on time. This year, comparing 1907 with 1908, and the record is almost as remarkable in the comparison of 1908 with 1909. #### Josephine's Many Names.

Josephine, empress of the French, was Yeyette to her intimate friends. Her name in reality was Marie Josephe Rose. Napoleon after the marriage exacted that she should be known as Josephine. He had a mania for rebaptizing the women of his entourage. He made his sister Marianne an Elise, of Annonciade a Caroline, of Paulette a Pauline.

Ame g her numerous friends Josephine remained Yeyette. Barras never called her otherwise.

The pope was so unfamiliar with her name that when he sent his benediction the letter borne by his legate was addressed to "Our Sister In Jesus Christ, Victoria Bonaparte."

In 1814, on the departure for Elba. the Debats designated Josephine under the paraphrase "the mother of Prince Eugene."

At Ruell her tomb bears this simple inscription, "A Josephine, Eugene et Hortense, 1825." The restoration did not permit her recognition as empress. -Cri de Paris.

What Was the Matter.

I forgot myself for the moment, and when the words came, What's the matter?' I thought something or other had occurred out of the common. I paused and looked round. Everything seemed normal, and the stage waited. Then came another 'What's the matter?' from the O. P. side. They were all getting anxious behind the scenes, and so was I, for that matter. I looked myself up and down and then scanned my fellow actor, but for the life of me couldn't see anything wrong. At last an audible whisper came: 'Go on with your s von idiot! with you? Then it suddenly dawned on me where I was, but the house had tumbled to the situation and came down in convulsions."-Minneapolis

The Substitution.

Journal.

It is a well known fact that both Sir Arthur Sullivan and Sir W. S. Gilbert had a horror of the titles of their operas becoming known until the very night of their performance. This fear that they might be forestalled created considerable confusion at the initial production of "Iolanthe; or The Peer and the Peri." The opera was rehearsed for weeks under the title of "Perola." It was only at the dress rehearsal that the company was instructed to substitute the name "Iolanthe" for that of "Perola" wherever it occurred in the text or lyrics. It was 'no easy task to replace vocally and in the dialogue a name of three syllables for one of four. Sullivan, however, said (maybe aside) to one or two of the actors who were nervous. "Go ahead and sing the music. Gilbert won't be in front" (Gilbert never attended the first night), "so use any name that you think of first if you are rattled. No one in the audience will be any wiser."-Boston Post.

Young's Impromptu.

To most persons Edward Young is the author of "Night Thoughts" and nothing more, but he was also a man of the world and a shrewd and caustic wit as well as the rector of St. Mary's church at Welwyn.

It was there in the garden of the rectory that he composed some of the best impromptu verses known. He was walking with two ladies when some one summoned him to the house. His companions were agreeable, and he was in no haste to leave them. Turning as he reached the gate, he said: Thus Adam looked when from the garden

"If the window had been eight feet from the ground," pouted the young wife, "instead of eight stories, I'd have thrown myself out when you quarreled with me. Then you'd have had to be sweet to me when you picked me up. A lot of wives attempt suicide, they say, just to be petted when they ome to."

Text of the Lesson, Acts xv, 1-35. Memory Verses 28, 29-Golden Text, Acts xv, 11-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

the wicked one, and to be a friend of us many profitable truths. the world meant to be the enemy of servants, was gathering a people for ple. It is a lesson on divine provi-His name, the church of God which He hath purchased with His own blood (verse 14; chapter xx, 28), a people not of the world whose citizenship is in heaven, strangers and pilgrims here because a part of Him who represents all believers before God. He is the only true center of His church, the heavenly center, but there are many earthly centers, and at the time of our lesson there were two great centers, Jerusalem and Antioch, supposed to be in perfect accord. At the former the apostles still lived, not having been scattered abroad, while the latter became the missionary center from which Paul and the others set forth on their missionary tours. The apostles at Jerusalem were supposed to have the truth on all matters concerning the church, as they had personally known and been intimate with that Lord.

Since the days of Cain there have always been false teachers, perverting the truth, holding down the truth and teaching everything but the truth for various reasons-for self exaltation, to please men, for money, etc.-but sometimes blindly fancying that they were indeed standing for the truth. The following passages show them up quite fully: Isa. xxix, 13; xxx, 9-12; Jer. xxiii, 21, 26; Ezek. xxxiv, 1, 2; Acts xx, 29, 30; II Tim. iv, 3, 4; II Pet. ii. 1-3; Jude 4, 11. The false teachers of our lesson insisted that no one could be saved unless they were circumcised of sin through His blood alone. They vide. did not seem to know that Abraham

Topic. - Lessons from the birds and flowers. - Luke xii, 24-28. (Union meeting with the Juniors.)

There is nothing in all the universe that God has made which does not praise Him and teach us useful lessons about Him. The psalmist says, "The heavens declare the glory of God," and the prophet declares that "He shall be as the dew unto Israel." nature therefore teach us lessons con-[Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.] cerning Him. And between them come nored the tempting flies so persistent-Then, as now, the whole world lay in the birds and the flowers, which teach ly and annoyingly.

The one great lesson that Christ in God, but from the world here and the topical reference teaches us is that of God's watchful care over His peodence taught by the care which God takes of these lower forms of creation, which are as nothing when compared in value and in importance to man, who was created in God's own image and still retains it, though marred more or less by sin.

1. Christ teaches us a lesson on God's providential care over us through the birds: "Consider the ravens, for they neither sow nor reap, which neither have storehouse nor barn, and God feedeth them. How much more are ye better than the fowls?" The ravens! Of all birds in Palestine they were the most undesirable-about as worthless as the English sparrow in our country. Yet God feeds them, and not one of them falleth to the ground without His notice. How can we doubt God's care for us, His provision for our physical needs, when He thus provides for the least desirable of fowls? Convalescing from an attack of sickness some years ago, I was at an ocean resort in the winter. I arose one morning to find that it had snowed during the night and was cold and dreary. What worse than such a day at the seashore? I felt downhearted and depressed. Suddenly I heard the chattering of birds and looking out a window, saw an unusual sight. There were scores of English sparrows eating and chirping on the ground below. I thought of this reference in the Scriptures, pulled myself together, and the blues departed. But according to the law of Moses, thus I wondered at the provision made for teaching that the finished work of them and inquired about it. I was Christ was really not finished or not told that on such days an abundance sufficient in itself for salvation, but of food was thrown out on the snowy needed some goodness or obedience on ground for the sparrows and that they the part of the believer to supplement always came for it on bad days. "Good riddance to it," said the banker lazily. "Let it go. It has given the canoe, way to better things-good horse sense, for instance."

The bishop looked at the purling water. He was a gray haired man, with kindly eyes and the most winning smile. He was smiling now as he turned to the two men. 'You are both wrong," said he, with deep conviction. "Romance is eternal" You can't kill it with a club or with hustle. But, of course, you two would not admit it even if you saw it." The judge bristled. The banker

"What a queer world you see through your black goggles! Romance! Why, that's what makes the world go

The banker and the judge exchanged knowing winks. They looked at the bishop with unconcealed pity.

"Speed up a bit and catch up with the procession," the banker advised. "Perhaps you're the ones that are be hind it." the bishop suggested, with a chuckle. "That reminds me," he continued. "Just twenty-five years ago, on this very spot, when I was a young minister, I was fishing here alone. "Oh, nothing much now, I suppose," laughed the bishop, "only it happens that twenty-five years ago there was a big mmp of city people a few miles from here, and Robert Harding and May Fencion were there with their parents. Those parents most unromantically had arranged unpleasing matches for those two, and they jumped into a canoe one morning and paddled down here and got me to marry them." "Wouldn't have thought it was in him," said the banker. "Hello! Who's this?"

Down the stream came a canoe driven by the powerful strokes of the man at the paddie. In the bow was an attractive-a decidedly attractive-girl, who also essayed to paddle, but whose strokes really counted for little except as "moral support," as the bishop suggested chucklingly.

"Are you Bishop Hale?" he asked excitedly.

"I am," the prelate admitted. The young man turned quickly to the girl, who was flushing so beautifully that the judge and the banker forgot "hustle" and "dollars,"

"What luck!" said the young man, "We were on our way to your camp! Sir, will you marry us?"

"Well, well," said the bishop. "Who are you, and what are you, and where did you come from, my eager young candidate?"

The young man smiled. "We're from the camp at the forks, just above here. This is an elopement, sir. We are running away from cruel parents-at any rate, they're bothering each of us to "Irregular, most irregular," said the bishop. "I have never married an elopever," he went on quickly, as he noted the blank expression of dismay on the two faces, "that doesn't argue that I may not act. Explain, if you please, very briefly, the circumstances that have induced you to-er-to take this step.'

'A man with money and lots of power in his father's business," replied the young man, "which explains the young lady's position. As for mine, a very wealthy young woman whom my obstinate father prefers merely because he has so determined."

"I see," said the bishop. "You didn't tell me your name."

"Robert Harding," said the man in

The judge and the banker both uttered a shout. "Did you speak?" asked the bishop sweetly, turning to them. Then he turned to the girl. "Do you fully realize the import of this step?" asked he.

"Indeed I do," said she. "If you'll please"- She glanced apprehensively over her shoulder in the direction from which they had just come.

The bishop's face was determined. "Land!" he commanded. As the canoe shot to the bank it was the bishop himself who helped the girl out.

"Stand here-so-beneath this fir," he instructed. "Ned, Will," he went on, turning to the judge and the banker, "you two take your places here on the right. I haven't a prayer book with me, but I think I can go through the service with no omissions. You have no ring? Ned, let me have that ring of yours. If it's too large," he told the girl, smiling, "you can wrap it with a bit of string.'

Through the still forest sounded the deep tones of the bishop's splendid voice. And all through that service there was a look of triumph on the bishop's face, and that look was directed at the wondering judge and the equally astonished banker. * * * * *

The bishop, the judge and the banker, in the order named, had each kissed the bride. The canoe, with the young man bending to the paddle and the girl in the bow, had departed downstream, bombarded by pine needles, which the judge and the banker threw prodigally in lieu of rice.

It was only when Pierre, the head der and declared they must certainly recommend. he starting if they wished to get down stream that night that the three men filed silently toward their forgotten canoes.

"Well," laughed the bishop, "for a saintly, cloistered, out of touch with the world dreamer I seem to have made a pretty fair guess about this romance business. Who's behind the procession, Will? Just tell me that, if you

The banker grunted.

"Buck up, Baptiste," urged the judge to the guide in his canoe. "I suppose I must admit that romance got somewhat of a lease of life just now, but I don't care to encounter the irate parents that will be on its trail."

"Not a bad idea to keep in the dark for a bit," the bishop chuckled and added to the guide, "A little more steam, Jean."

The Watch of Wren's Sweetheart.

The betrothed of Sir Christopher Wren, the architect of St. Paul's cathedral, accidentally dropped her watch into a bucket of water. Knowing that her lover was an ingenious man, she sent it to him to be repaired. Wren's reply ran as follows: "Madam-The artificer, having never before mett with a drowned Watch, like an ignorant physician has been soe long about the cure that he hath made me very unquiet that your commands should be soe long deferred. However, I have sent the watch at last and envie the felicity of it, that it should be soe neer your side and soe often enjoy your Eye and be consulted by you how your Time shall pass while you employ your hands in excellent workes, But have a care of it, for I put such a Spell into it that every Beating of the Balance will tell you 'tis the pulse of my Heart which labors as much to serve you and more Trewly than the watch, for the watch I believe will sometimes lie, and sometimes perhaps be idle and unwilling to goe, having received so much injury by being in that bath that I dispair it should ever be a Trew Servant to you more. But as for me-unless you drown me too in my Teares-you may be confident I shall never cease to be your most affectionate, humble servant, Chr. Wren."

The Lesser Evil. "So you believe in the duel?"

"I do," answered the resident in a somewhat impetuous community. "Don't you know that the duel is a relic of barbarism?" "I don't care. It's a heap safer than being shot at from behind a tree box."

Prosperity for Farmers.

Carroll County farmers ought to be happy. The wheat is looking fine, and the price is sure to be considerably over the $1.00 mark, which means that corn, hay, market produce and live stock, ll also bring good prices this year. Unless the unexpected happens, business of all kinds will be prosperous, and there is not much prospect that anything the farmer has to buy will be higher than present prices.

While there will be plenty of work for mechanics and labor in general, at fair wages, the farmer appears to have the advantage in the general situation, and should get into such a financ:al condition that he can easily stand a reaction, should one come by another year or so. #### A Business Parable.

Once a farmer had 1,800 bushels of wheat, which he sold, not to a single grain merchant, but 1,800 different dealers, a bushel each. A few of them paid in cash, but far the greater number said it was not convenient then; they would pay later. A few months passed, and the man's bank account ran low. "How is this?" he said. "My 1,800 bushels of grain should have kept me in affiuence until another crop is raised, but I have parted with the grain and have instead only a vast number of accounts, so small and collect fast enough to pay expenses. So he posted up a public notice and asked all those who owed him to pay quickly. But few came. The rest said, 'Mine is only a small matter, and I will go and pay some of these days," forgetting that, though each account was very small, when all were put together they meant a large sum to the man. Things went on thus. The man got to feeling so bad that he fell out of bed and safe there. He had only been dreaming. #### Immune From Arrest.

In Washington, in the capital of the nation, there reside 200 men who, with their households, have absolute immunity from the laws of the land, even though they commit crimes of the first degree. They may shoot down the man who injures them; they may, if they see fit, paint the equestrian statue of General Phil Sheridan a vivid pea green, yet the hands of Uncle Sam must be kept from their shoulders, and woe unto the unterrified policeman or other servant of the law who undertakes to bring them to justice once they have declared their official connections. These men who are so clothed in immunity are the members of the diplomatic corps, and their shield is international law. #### Old Time Temperance.

The first temperance society is said to have been founded by Margrave Frederick V. in 1600, and it is instructive to learn that the noble members of that society were bound by a pledge good for two years not to drink more than seven bumpers of wine with any meal nor more than fourteen bumpers a day. They were, however, permitted to quench any surplus of thirst with beer and to drink one glass of whisky on the side. By this ideal of abstention may be gauged the ordinary drinking habits of our forefathers in the good old times when knighthood was in flower .- Morris Hillquit in Social-
