NEWS NOTES HERE AND THERE The Old Baptist Grave Yard.

Condensed Items of Interest from County, State and Our Exchanges.

The Mayberry Sunday School will organize for the summer, this Sunday mording, at 9 o'clock.

Manager Dunn, of the Baltimore baseball club, will test public sentiment, as well as Maryland law, by attempting to play the first game of Sunday baseball, his coming Sunday, in Baltimore.

Dr. J. McPherson Scott, Republican, was elected Mayor of Hagerstown, on Monday, by a majority of 655, the largest majority ever given a Mayoralty candi-date in the city. Two years ago the city went Democratic by 136.

We have received a copy of the 18th annual report of the Bureau of Statistics, and Information, of Maryland, for 1909. The work is an improvement over preceding issues, in appearance, though it is doubtful whether the statistical infor-mation contained in it is of much general practical value.

Hotel Main Court, East Main street. Westminster, was reopened on Thursday, after having been closed since last year. It was recently purchased at trus-tee's sale by Harry Gosnell, who is its proprietor. It has been reopened under the management of Mrs. M. E. Crout, widow of the late Harry E. Crout, who at the time of his death, several years ago, was manager of the Club Hotel, Baltimore.

Mrs. Margaret Van Buren Stem, 73 years old, who became ill while on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. George E. Matthews, of Westminster, died on Tuesday. Her husband, Mr. David E. Stem, of Sams Creek, one of the most promi-nent citizens of Carroll county and president of the Westminster Deposit and Trust Company, survives her, together with three children—J. Ezra Stem, Mrs. George E. Matthews and Miss Margaret A. Stem.

At a regular meeting of Prosperity At a regular meeting of Prosperity Lodge No. 58, Independent Order Odd Fellows, of Mt. Airy, Carroll county, held Friday, March 25th., a resolution was passed endorsing Mr. Frank G. Dorsey for the position of Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Maryland, Inde-pendent Order Odd Fellows, and this lodge will place him in nomination at In Baltimore, April 18th and 19th. This position leads up to that of Grand Master.

What is known as the "old Baptist" grave yard, is located on the Emmitsburg road, about 11 miles from Taneytown. It has been used as a burying ground since 1802, and the last interment was in 1908, a period of 106 years being covered. We give, below, the names of those buried there with the year of their death, and age. There are nineteen graves marked with field stones, and there are evidences of more graves, from some of which the bodies have no doubt been removed for interment elsewhere. Age

The first interment, according to the head stones, was M. Jane Clingan, wife of Rev. W. Clingan, who died in 1802. The following inscription, in quaint lettering, appears on the stone: "Beneath, repose all that Heaven could lend, The best of wives, the mother and the friend In sickness patient, and to death resigned, She left the world, a pattern to mankind." On the stone of William R. Gillelen, who died in 1834, appears the following: "My flesh shall slumber in the ground Till the last trumpets joyful sound: Then burst the chains with sweet surprise, And in my Saviour's image rise."

The church, which was torn down in 1885, had been standing since perhaps 1790. About fifty years ago, the congregation was fairly strong and prosper-ous, and regular services were held

STATE TAXES INCREASED. Six Cents Higher in 1911, and Still Higher the Year Following.

The Senate Finance Committee, on Tuesday, fixed the state tax rate at 22^{μ} for 1911, and at 23^{μ} for 1912, or 6 cents higher than the present rate, for next year, and 7^{μ} cents higher for the following year. This action will no doubt be variously regarded, especially as it was confidently stated, two years ago, that the roads loan would not cause an increase in taxes, and that by a system of economy, and by cutting out appropriations to certain institutions, there would be no need for an increased rate. An increase of over one-third, there-fore, is somewhat of a surprise, and will add very materially to the tax burden. Considering the wasteful extravagance of the present legislative session, and the apparent forgetfulness of the appropriations that were to be cut out, no amount of plausible explanation will satisfy the general public, that such an increase is justifiable. The apportionment for 1911 is 16¹/₅ cents for public schools; 41 cents to meet interest and create a sinking fund for the redemption of the State roads' loan; one cent for the State Insane Hospital loan; one-quarter of a cent for the public high-ways loan of 1910, and one-eighth of a cent for the sanatorium loan. For 1912 the items are similar, except that the tax for the State roads loan is increased to 5½ cents and that for the public high-ways loan of 1910 is increased to onehalf cent.

Accompanying the tax rate bill came the general appropriation bill and the omnibus bill making appropriations to various institutions and schools. In-cluded in the latter measure is an appropriation of \$25,000 to the Johns Hopkins University for each of the years 1911 and 1912, and \$15,600 annually to Western Maryland College, and about the usual string of appropriations here-tofore made, with very few reductions or eliminations. The bill for the support of the State government contains the usual amounts for the salaries of judiciary, executive and other State officials and for the support of the public schools. The new loan for the State sanitorium adds one-eighth of a cent; for the State care of insane one cent; for the new high-ways loan-that for a Baltimore-Annapolis boulevard and bridges-one-quarter of a cent, and for the State road loan of 1908, $4\frac{1}{2}$ cents.

Denies That Farmers Cause High Prices

Columbus, N. J., March 30.—Address-ing five hundred Burlington County farmers at the dedication of the hand-some new hall erected by Columbus Grange, No. 58, Patrons of Husbandry, this atternoon, State Senator George W. F. Gauntt, masier of the State Grange, vehemently refuted the charge that farm-ers have created the high-priced food situation, but declared it lays within the power of the agriculturists to prevent such rates by co-operation. "If the farmers can be educated to "If the farmers can be educated to the wonderfu possibilities of farming, they could quickly solve any high price food problem that might arise," said the Senator. "Too many farmers don't stop to learn how to get the most out of their farms, and they cry hard times while the concurring mobile graphs about while the consuming public groans about high prices.

"The Grange is seeking to elevate the farmer and encourage him to seek the possibilities. In this action the Grange is really protecting the public from high prices. But for the wonderful advance-ment we have made in the science of farming the producers could not have kept step with increased consumption and we should have a food problem beside which the present trouble would be as azephyr to a cyclone. The average American farmer has not yet begun to conceive what wonderful value he can get out of his farm."

Senator Gauntt cited as an illustration the fact that farmers bad learned the fact that failures how to through their Grange meetings how to grow potatoes to the best advantage, with the result that potatoes are cheap with the result that potatoes are cheap for the consumer when other foodstuffs

WORK OF THE LEGISLATURE, Fate of Many Bills yet in Doubt.

Primary Election Law Defeated.

Up to Thursday night, the legislature still has most of the important bills yet to dispose of, notwithstanding the fact that the session closes, by limitation, on Monday night. Many measures will be jammed through, without the majority of members knowing what is going on, or what they are voting for. The gen-eral appropriation bills, appropriating hundreds of thousands of dollars, are yet unacted on, as well as various elec-tion bills and other legislation of vast importance to the state.

Among the measures yet to dispose of are various Local Option bills; the Sen-ate bill applying to the Counties, the Carroll county bill, and the bill amend-ing the Corrupt Practices act with reference to questioning candidates as to their position on public questions.

their position on public questions. If the pending state loan bills are passed there will be added to the debt of the state $2,400,000. This will mean the addition of four cents to the present state tax rate, which, with the two cents, and possibly more, to be added for the state road loan of $5,000,000, created two years ago, will make the total rate 22 cents, if not more. The following are the several loan bills.

For bridges and other connections of state road system, $1,000,000. For Bal-timore-Annapolis boulevard, $300,000. For hospital for colored insane and for new building at Springfield, $600,000. For state tuberculosis sanitarium at Saare soaring. Co-operation he named as the solu-tion of successful farming and he said the fewer middlemen between the pro-ducer and the consumer, the better for both. "Star, on the farm. No other

Senator Beasman introduced a Local Option bill for Carroll county, last Fri-day. Senator Beasman says the people of his county have become deeply in-terested in the subject. Advocates of license believe that the majority of the voters oppose prohibition, while the prohibitionists are equally confident that they will have a majority if the question be submitted to the people. Under the circumstances, Senator Beasman thinks it only right to present the bill permitting a vote on local option in the county to permit a fair rest of strength and allow the voters to settle the question for themselves.

The Governor found it necessary, the first of this week, to issue an interview, for effect's sake, in which be defined Democracy and demanded that platform pledges be kept. His words were hot, and back of them were thinly veiled threats, hinting at the use of his power to even things up, unless the legislature passes the Public utilities, and Primary Election bills. The latter, especially, is unpopular with a large element in both parties, even if it is a pet measure of the Governor's.

The Road Commission in general, and Mr. Crosby, in particular, received sharp Senator Lee declared that he did not want to see the wasteful methods em-ployed in Montgomery county extended to the whole state, and that two new and useful members of the Commission should be mender so the commission should be named, as two of the ornamental commissio ers had not do the work that seemed to devolve on them. The Senate amended the present law by providing for one additional Commissioner to be appointed by the Governor.

The Baltimore Sun, which has been ardently urging the passage of the Pub-lic Utilities bill, very pointedly calls at-tention to the record of Hon. J. F. C. Talbott in connection with the work of the legislature, in language from which clear inferences may be drawn. It says People are beginning to ask whether Mr. J. F. C. Talbott proposes to go before the voters of his county next fall for re-election to Congress with a record in the Legislature which he cannot justify. It is true that Mr. Talbott will say that be is not a member of the Legislature and that the Baltimore county members do their own voting. But the people will not accept this theory. If the Baltimore county delegation, under the leadership of Mr. Benson, defeats the Pablic Utilities bill, that is, the bill that honestly and fairly redeems the Democratic pledge, Mr. Talbott cannot escape responsibility before the people.

No county in the State is as deeply interested in proper public utilities regula-tion as Baltimore county. In fact, it is more interested than all the other counties in the State. It has the largest towns, it uses gas and electricity more than any other, and it has more electric roads than any other. The people of Balti-more county want a commission that will see to it that the railroad, electric and gas companies give proper service at reasonable rates.

No man in the whole State, with per-haps one exception, had so large a part in shaping and adopting the excellent platform of the Democratic party as Mr. Talbott. He is personally committed to the promises made in that platform to the promises made in that platform to the people and he cannot escape his responsibility to see them kept in spirit and in letter. And when the promise was made that a utilities commission would be created it was understood that would be created it was different there would be created a commission with real powers and not a sham com-mission, and that the law creating it should be a real law and not a pretense. Mr. Talbott had a large part in making the promises and the people expect him to have a large part in seeing that they are kept. He cannot escape his obli-gation by leaving to others the fulfilment of the pledges he made to the people. The people are going to hold him personally responsible.

Drinking Cups on Trains.

The Pennsylvania Railroad, it has been learned, will shortly begin to fur-nish individual drinking cups in all its waiting-rooms in Pennsylvania. Officials of the road for some months have been preparing to conform with the recom-mendations of the State Board of Health to abolish the public drinking cup. "The public drinking cup is as truly a poisoned cup as though it contained arsenic or strychnine," is the statement with which Dr. Dixon, Secretary of the State Board of Health, has gone on record.

"There is scarcely a person," he says, "so ignorant as not to be aware that germs lurk in the mouth and on the lips of the consumptive and thence is consequently communicated to any drinking vessel that the consumptive puts to his lips. The same is true of diphtheria other infectious diseases."

The Pennsylvania Railroad has for me time been experi

While running their automobile on State Street, Delmar, Del., Drs. S. H. Wayland and F. E. Hatch caused an accident which no doubt will prove a puzzle for the authorities unless it is compromised. The automobile was running in Delaware and a farmer on the Maryland side was driving a mule to Dearborn, with seventeen dozen eggs on the wagon. The auto scared the mule, which ran away and the eggs were thrown across the street, all being broken in Delaware. It is understood the farmer will bring suit for the loss of the eggs. The question now is, in what state will he bring suit, as he was not in Delaware, but all of his loss was.

While removing the debris from the scene of the recent city hall fire, in Cumberland. workmen uncovered the large Bible belonging to Chosen Friends lodge, I. O. O. F. The binding of the book was badly smoked and dirty, but the pages within were clean and bright, while along the edges the gilt still appeared bright. On the leather cover the name of the lodge was legible in gold letters. Shortly after finding the Bible the case of rituals was uncovered in splendid condition. The find is considered remarkable decause the fire was hottest in this part of the building and many swords, knives and forks taken from the ruins were badly burned.

Washington, March 30.-The warmest and dryest month of March on record at the United States. Weather Bureau for thirty-five years, will be immediately followed by cold and rain, according to Prof. Edward B. Garriott, official forecaster. The average rainfall for March is between two and three inches. In the present month the fall was inconsiderable, being between sixty and seventy hundredths of an inch.

A Wet April Predicted.

Both the dry spell and the unseasonal warmth in this part of the country will be broken after April 1, Prof. Garriott said. There will be showers followed by cooler conditions by Friday. Preceding the showers the atmosphere will warm up some. The cool conditions will follow the rain, but it will not be cold. The conditions will just return to the average for the season and the present unusual weather will be dissipated.

Another Disfranchising Scheme.

Democrats and Republicans alike, in Congress, who have expressed them-selves on the Digges proposition to prohibit negroes from voting by specifically providing that they cannot register and vote at state and county elections, say that it is a foolish movement which may result in bringing the country face to face with the most dangerous situation since the Civil War. The tendency of it is to raise sectionalism, and to reopen, again, questions affecting the race issue which have been left lie dormant, by sufferance of Northern sentiment. Should such a scheme pass, the legislature will only have made a fool of itself for its pains, for the Supreme Court would almost surely declare such action clearly in conflict with Articles XIV and XV of the Constitution. Referring to the favorable accion of the Democratic caucus, Senator Money, of Mississippi, said:

'The whole proceeding of the caucus is foolish, and the advice given at the caucus is stupid. One state is as much bound as any other state by the Constitution, whether or not the state ratified the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments. Every intelligent lawyer knows, or ought to know, that the Supreme Court will never sustain a position such as that taken by the Maryland legislature, The South Carolina Nullification Act is no precedent at all. Mississippi has the best disfranchisement law, and its provisions are not as stringent as tho tably Massachusetts.'

Some take the view of the matter that it would not be out of place for the question to be taken to the Supreme curt, and settled once and for all, while others, (especially prominent Democrats) fear that the agitation of the question, now, would give the Republicans a new campaign issue which would result in re-uniting the party, and defeat Democratic success in close districts.

Owing to the muddled condition of business, and the delay of important legislation, the sum total of what has been done will not be known until after the State House doors are closed, and the Solons return to their homes. "Keeping track" of the proceedings has been very difficult-almost impossible-which of course gave the leaders all the more power. "Railroading" legislation has been a more pronounced characteristic of this session, than of any other in the history of the state.

The Public utilities measure, one of Gov. Crothers' pets, passed the House, on Wednesday, under the lash-as Mr. Benson said, because of "certain outside influences." In line with this, it was currently rumored that unless the primary election bill was passed, the Governor would veto the proposed (Digges) negro disfranchis-ing bill, a bill which proposes to disfranchise negroes by refusing them regis-tration. This sort of legislative force can be justified only on the ground that the. "end justifies the means," for it is distinctly in opposition to majority rule through representatives of the people.

The delay in passing bills has given the Governor extensive veto power, as there is not sufficient time to pass bills over his veto, should he care to pocket them. Many bills will have to be passed under "suspension of the rules," which is almost always an evidence of arbitrary power, rather than proper government.

The Straus Primary Election bill was defeated in the House, on Thursday, by a combination of Democratic "insurgents" and Republicans, and a substitute bill, less drastic in its provisions, passed instead. The Governor and his following will make an effort to pass the Straus bill as an amendment to some election bill.

Once more, and probably for the last time this session, the vexing question of curtailing the expenses of the Legislature came up in the Senate Thursday afterhand a straight of the state of end of the State Government.

Senator Harper has procured the reconsideration of the vote by which the General Appropriation bill had been passed to its third reading and offered an amendment providing that only $125,-000 be appropriated for the expenses of the next Legislature. His amendment specifies the number of employes, which he limited to about 40 for the Senate and 50 for the House.

"The following picture from actual life can be duplicated on almost train." says the State Board of Health Monthly Bulletin:

"The father of a family, well gone in consumption, after a fit of coughing and its necessary result, hastens to cool his burning throat, his sweeping mustache spreading well over the sides of the glass and into the water. The glass, with no pretense of cleansing, is gallantly brought back to the wife, with the innocent baby in her arms, both of whom partake, and then the other children, seized with imitative thirst, go to the cooler and drink from the same glass.'

Methodists Press Local Option Bill.

As a climax to an ovation accorded William H. Anderson, superintendent of the Maryland Anti-Saloon League when he addressed the one hundredth and twenty-sixth annual Baltimore Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church in the Harlem Avenue Methodist Epis-copal edifice Wednesday morning, two resolutions were adopted authorizing the sending of telegrams to Governor Crothers urging him to petition the Legisature to take immediate action on the local.option bill and of a similar message to Senator Arthur P. Gorman, presiding officer of the Senate, asking him to do likewise.

When he made his plea to the ministers to take such action Mr. Anderson said he had every reason to believe that the Legislature was going to ignore the

> > -0-0-0 Let the Law Alone.

Speaking of Mr. Gorman's election bill and exculpating Mr. Gorman from any intent to do a wrong thing with the election law, Governor Crothers, nevertheless, condemns the proposed changes in the law. He says, among other things:

"I doubt whether any improvement can be made in the present method of selecting election judges and clerks. It is fair, equal and honest and ought not to be changed. It was put upon the statute books by the concurrence of a Democratic Senate and the people are content with it." That is exactly the point, Governor. And in the absence of any good reason or any good argument in favor of a change a great many people have been able to see nothing in the new law except a desire to give the dominant party an unfair advantage. What other reason can there be for doing away with a law that is "fair, equal and honest ?"

If the measure arouses this apprehension-and the Governor admits it does-and there is no occasion for altering the law as it now stands, there must does not appear on the surface. Those commodities that are manufactured by the largest combinations of capital, or so-called "trusts," do not show anything like the increase in price that is shown by the products of agriculture. To illustrate: from the formation of the United States Steel Corporation in 1901, until the present time, the prices of steel rail, Bessemer pig, steel billets, bar iron, and wire nails show a decrease, of 4.6 per cent. There is a demand for the biggest and most powerful vessels which can be constructed with safety out of the materials now employed, and propelled by the power now available. It has been inevitable, but is greatly to be regretted, that this country should be drawn to some extent into the competition for naval supremacy. Connecticut Farmer Tells How to Utilize Bowlders That Are In the Way. One of the most picturesque sights in New England is the stone wall fence. The utilization of loose stones, which otherwise incumber the ground, for the construction of barriers necessary to farm life used to be a leading industry in New England before the advent of the barb wire fence. Even now many farmers extend their stone fences just to get rid of the rocks. And there are plenty of rocks in other parts of the country that can be used to the same useful purpose

Here, however, is a brave farmer, F. H. Plumb of Tolland county, Conn., who goes further than picking up and piling stones. He believes in breaking up bowlders and using the fragments for fence material. Says Mr. Plumb:

An occasional bowlder here and there in a level, fertile field ought not to dishearten any robust, enthusiastic farmer from breaking them up and clearing them away. Dynamite, a sledge, a few chains and a steady yoke of oxen or team of horses will work wonders in a short time in many a field.

A knowledge of rocks, however, will prove of great assistance before work of any kind with them is undertaken. Some are apparently as hard as flint: others so soft they can almost be crushed between the fingers. Some have a grain similar to a log so they may be split by wedges and half rounds quite straight and true. Others will hammer or split into all sorts of forms and sizes. But there are few stones a stone mason cannot trim into any form he desires.

If we closely examine a bowlder, say, three to six feet long, we may notice it has a grain its entire length and all the way through.

I noticed my stonemason would take a drill twelve inches long and threequarters of an inch in diameter and, with a two or three pound hammer mounted on a twenty inch handle, drill a hole six inches deep in the bowlder in a few minutes, depending on the hardness of the stone. Then along the same seam of the rock another hole was drilled, and perhaps another and

WHEN PLANTS ARE FROZEN.

Hints on Restoring Window Garden Flowers to Health.

During the winter the amateur in gardening has much to contend with, and not the least of the evils is frost. especially where an endeavor is made to keep more or less tender plants through the cold, dull months in a poorly heated greenhouse or frame. Fortunately science has come to our aid and taught us a few things concerning the effects of frost on tender plants, and with these principles fully grasped we are in a position to combat frost. Plants which are kept as dry as possible during a spell of frosty weather without being allowed to suffer from this cause will withstand successfully far more frost than the same kind of plants whose tissues are gorged with liquid, and science has also taught us that the greatest mischief is caused by rapid thawing.

To grasp the above facts it may be as well before proceeding further to just consider briefly what really happens when a plant gets frozen. It is now generally known that a plant, like the human body, is made up of tiny cells, each of which, of course, has its own walls. Under ordinary conditions and when a plant has abundance of moisture at its disposal these cells are turgid with liquid. Now, when liquid becomes frozen it is one of the laws of nature that expansion takes place. and in the case of that in the plant cells no exception to this law is made. This expansion, then, results in a rupture of the plant cell walls, which under ordinary conditions of thawing causes the plant to collapse.

It has been proved that when a plant is thawed very slowly the plant cells are able to absorb the moisture which has been forced by expansion through the cell walls, and the rupture is to a great extent made good.

Assuming that the plants have not been watered more often than is absolutely necessary and that one morning we visit the greenhouse or frames to find that frost has reached them, we know that if they are to be saved thawing must be done very slowly. First of all, we must take care that the heating apparatus, if any is used, does not get into working order again, and if there is any likelihood of a burst of sunshine shade the structure with thick mats or anything else that can be quickly secured. Then procure an abundant supply of ice cold water and syringe or otherwise drench the plants with this until frost is gradually removed from the tissues. This will probably mean very cold hands and chattering teeth, but it is either this or losing the plants. For several days subsequently the plants should be kept as cool as possible without allowing frost to reach them again.

The Poet's Retort.

Joaquin Miller was once overtaken by a countryman, who gave him a long ride. Tired at length of conversation. the poet took a novel from his pocket. "What are you reading?" said the countryman.

"Well, now, I don't see how an immortal being wants to be wasting his time with such stuff." "Are you quite sure," said the poet,

"that I am an immortal being?" "Of course you are."

"If that is the case," responded Miller, "I don't see why I need be so very economical of my time." - Christian Register.

Pigeon Whistles of Pekin.

The smallest musical instruments in the world are the pigeon whistles of Pekin. They are made of thinnest bamboo and tiny gourds scraped to paper-like delicacy and fastened beneath the tail feathers of the carrier pigeons. As the birds fly through the air these instruments emit a weird aeolian melody like the harps of fairyland. Every morning and afternoon the vault of Pekin's sky is swept by these sweet, mournful notes as the birds fly to and fro, carrying messages to the bankers, the merchants, the lawyers, invitations, letters, stock quotations, a system older than the telegraph or telephone or the oldest letter service, as old as time itself. There are some twenty different kinds of pigeon whistles, some of them simple bamboo tubes with but one top and some as elaborately constructed as miniature organ pipes. They are all of featherweight lightness and when held in the hand and swept through the air emit the same delicate whistling notes as when borne through the upper atmosphere by the carrier pigeons.

A Diplomatic Official.

During the reign of Emperor Napoleon III. he and the empress visited Normandy and had arranged to spend a couple of days at Evreux. M. Janvier de la Monte, who was the prefect, learned that the revolutionaries intended to hiss the sovereigns as they passed, and so he summoned the leaders of the movement and told them that he knew of their plot. "If you carry out your plan," said he to them, "you will get six months in prison. If you do not your friends will accuse you of cowardice and treason. As a way out of the difficulty I propose to lock you up at once until the emperor has gone." The conspirators accepted the terms offered them, and so the emperor was greeted only by cheers, as the revolutionaries, frightened at the arrest of their chiefs, had not dared to utter a sound. After the emperor and empress had gone the prefect went in person to release his prisoners, who had had such a pleasant time that they greeted him with cries of "Long live the prefect!" to which M. Janvier de la Monte, who was a man of wit, replied, "My friends, do not overdo it."

Settling a Matrimonial Dispute. Mme. Sada Yacco, the famous Japanese actress, who had been a friend of the assassinated Prince Ito from her childhood, told the following amusing anecdote:

"In my frequent quarrels with my husband we sometimes asked Prince Ito to judge between us. One day when we had had a more than usually violent dispute at Chigasaki the prince came in unexpectedly, and I asked him to decide the question. But he declined, while proposing the following solution:

"'Go down into the garden, both of you, and fight it out like sumo tori (wrestlers). The one that wins will naturally be the one who is in the right.'

"No sooner said than done! In a trice Kawakami and I were in wrestling trim. By good luck my husband was just recovering from a serious illness, and as he was very weak I soon threw him to the ground. This amused the prince enormously, who, of course, another, these holes being about six inches apart.

Half rounds and a wedge were then inserted in each hole, the wedges gently started, and then the entire length of wedges driven home evenly by means of a twelve pound sledge. With this treatment the big hard rocks seemed to generally split evenly and straight through. If they did not, after the rock was split a few heavy blows with the big sledge would knock off any protruding pieces.

But there is a knack in knocking a stone to pieces or trimming the stone with the side of a sledge hammer or of its cutting edge that takes time, thought and observation to acquire.

My job was this: Extending easterly along the roadway from my house was an old tumble down wall that was the most unsightly place to my family on the entire farm. The land inside the wall is about ideal for a rank growth of timothy, and plenty of stones of all sizes, from a pebble to enormous bowlders, were there.

The smaller bowlders, such as a yoke of cattle could draw on a stone boat, and all the smaller stones the boys and myself had picked off after the plowing of the past three springs and hauled along the wall. Of course this made the old wall look even worse than before, and all sorts of weeds and brush began to grow up among it. As the wall lay, it was made up of stones of all sizes, many so big they had to be split or broken and used as foundation pieces before work could be begun.

Ordinarily for a new wall a strip is plowed and dug out just below the frost line. As my wall was only to be rebuilt this was unnecessary, for I had a good foundation.

My wall was laid with a straight face on the road side, while on the field side rough cobbles without a straight face were set up at a slant of about one foot to the four foot wall.

In no part of the wall were the stones just thrown or dumped in. Every stone was placed one at a time, no matter how small, and so placed that it rested firmly on its base, with as little tipping or looseness as possible.

A wall put up in this careful manner ought to last several generations.

Record Corn Yield.

In a corn growing contest in North Carolina 227 bushels were grown on one acre. It is believed that this breaks official records in this country. away with the large springs ordinarily in use on such balers and decreased the draft to a minimum. Experiments with models have demonstrated a capacity of fifty or sixty bales an hour. It is constructed with a baling chamber on both ends of the press and compresses the hay by a plunger working on a crank shaft past the feed box on each end. The crank shaft is connected to a beam to which one horse is hitched for power, and at each round of the horse a stroke is made on two different bales, one on each end. It is possible with this model to get a bale of any desired weight, the same being controlled by two springs attached to a movable side of the baler which regulates the compression of bales. Mr. Guidry says he thinks the baler will beat anything on the market for speed and simplicity, and he is now negotiating with manufacturing companies for its construction and sale.

Orchards Worth $1,000 Per Acre.

A feature at a recent fruit show was an exhibit of Nova Scotia apples and a printed statement showing the profits of fruit growing in that province, especially in the Cornwallis and Annapolis provinces. The average estimate of cultivating, fertilizing, spraying and pruning per acre was $25, and the cost of picking and packing the fruit is estimated at 50 cents per barrel. The yield reported from eight to ten orchards shows an average for the past five years of from 100 to 165 barrels of shipping apples per acre, sold at an average price varying from $1.90 to $2.50 per barrel during the five years. The gross returns per acre range from $190 to $304 and the net returns from $117 to $219. The average net returns for all the orchards for the five years were $174 per acre, a sum sufficient to pay 15.75 per cent on $1,000. Accordingly a valuation of $1,000 per acre for these orchards seems not excessive.

Quick Improvement of Sweet Corn. As a result of several years' selection Nelson S. Stone of Massachusetts reported last season sweet corn which matured nearly a week earlier than other early kinds which he had tried, and the ears were almost double the size of other early varieties. The improvement was made by choosing the earliest ears and then using those grains that grew on the middle of the cob and then still further selecting the largest and best shaped grains.

A Word To Our Patrons and Friends.

You've been reading lately some very well worded Vehicle and Harness ads. We've been sitting back, considering the business. We've decided to exclude all cheap goods in our line and to offer you only high-grade serviceable stock. We positively refuse to sell cheap goods, for it is neither satisfactory to buyer nor dealer. We guarantee all our goods to give satisfaction. Cheap goods cannot be guaranteed.

We mean to build up a large business upon honest, straightforward business methods and upon a mass of satisfied customers. It's to the particular people we cater to.

We trust that you will appreciate our policy and let us prove our claims by favoring us with your orders.

Mr. Curtiss' machine weighs only 450 pounds with the operator on board and possesses great steadiness in the air, its double wings affording more stability than the monoplane construction affected by the French aviators. Cemeteries Where Women Gossip. Friday, the Sabbath of the Moslems, when all true believers of the masculine gender make a point of going to church, their wives, sisters and daughters resort to the cemeteries and wail for the dead. But all their time is not spent in weeping, and sorrow is not the only emotion they display, on these occasions. They take with them bunches and garlands of flowers and decorate the graves of their relatives and pray and weep over the dead for a time. Then when this pious duty is performed they gather in little groups and have a good time gossiping about the living. Thus the day of mourning is very popular among the Moslem women. It gives them almost the only opportunity they have of cultivating the acquaintance of their neighbors.

The Lion and the Unicorn.

The unicorn came into the royal arms with James I. It belongs to the royal arms of Scotland. The signet ring of Mary, mother of James, is in existence, having a unicorn on it. In the royal arms, therefore, one supporter represents England, the other Scotland.

The lion and the unicorn occur also in ancient Buddhist scriptures, placed together as supporters. Both of these animals also are seen playing draughts together in the well known Egyptian painting. But the oldest connection of the two is in the blessing of Jacob and of Moses. - London Notes and Queries.

A Subtle Difference. "And so." began the browbeating attorney to the shabby witness, "you live by your wits, do you?"

"No, sir: by other folks' lack of them," corrected the witness modestly.

Where Hypnotism Failed. When Daysey Mayme Appleton returned recently from a party where the influence of several minds over one had been the evening's entertainment and told her mother how six girls, with their minds bent on one thought. had made a man stand on his head, another man at their silent command had tried on a woman's hat and another man had tried to eat water with a fork, it put a suggestion into Mrs. Lysander John Appleton's brain. That evening when Lysander John came home his wife and four daughters sai in a circle with their hands covering their faces and their heads bowed. Te all his inquiries they said nothing, and at last, fearing they had gone mad, he sent for the doctor. "We concentrated our minds on the thought that Lysander John must give us $5 each, and instead of that we have a doctor bill to pay," sobbed Mrs. Appleton, "and they said it would be particularly easy to work if the man's mind was a blank."-Atchison Globe.

To Get His Money's Worth.

In a village near Edinburgh there lived an old baker and his son. Their trade was in a flourishing condition, but unfortunately in the midst of their prosperity the old man, who had once been a great drinker, turned insane. The son, who was renowned for his love of money, was forced to put him in a lunatic asylum and, according to the terms of the establishment, to pay a fee for three months in advance. amounting to £30. The old man was scarcely in a fortnight, however, when he died. The son, thinking to raise an action against the establishment for the recovery of the, as he termed it, unused money, inquired of an old lawyer who was a bit of a wag whether he thought it would be prudent to try to recover the money or not. The chip of the law, putting on a grave face, replied seriously, "D'ye no think it wad be best to gang and put

LEND US YOUR EARS!

We have something to say of Profit and Importance to the Stock and Poultry Raiser.

All Stock and Poultry, at this time of the year, especially, when the vitality is low, need a Stock Food. Heretofore, you have always paid exorbitant prices for the filler in such Foods. Now, we offer you one, better than them all, without filler. (However, if you have become attached to rice hulls, bran, middlings, etc., you can add them, at small cost.)

"Little Giant" Stock Food ' is richer in Protein and fat than all other Stock Foods. In addition to this, it the rener in Frotein and fat than an other stock robots. In addition to this, it contains a plentiful supply of calcium phosphate, which no other Stock Food contains, nor even the grains or grasses supply. It is upon this ingredient that we base the most of our claims for it, for in order to get the most out of the grains and the grasses, Calcium Phosphate is absolutely necessary. The guaranteed has become so well known, that while we need no longer exploit its virtues, we print for the benefit of our customers, the following testimonial:

FAMOUS $500.00 COCKEREL.

FAMOUS $500.00 COCKEREL. York, Pa., January 19th., 1910. I have been feeding "Hen-e-ta" for over a year and many of my prize-winners have been raised on it. My famous 5500 S. C. Buff Orpington Cookerel, which took first prize at this year's Baltimore Show, was fed on "Hen-e-ta" daily; and 1 attribute his wonderful develop-ment entirely to the addition of "Hen-e-ta" to his feed. I would not be without "Hen-e-ta," if I had to psy 5c a pound for it. I used to feed green bone, beef scraps, oyster shells, grit and charcoal; but, have cut them all out for over a year and fed "Hen-e-ta" instead. I am retting bigger and stronger peeps, hardier chicks, fine red combs and more eggs and more fertile eggs than ever before. "Hen-e-ta" has put my birds in "the front row" in the show-room and they are taking the Blue Ribbons wherever I exhibit. All of my birds like "Hen-e-ta" and it makes them feel good the year round; it is also saving me considerable grains. Faithfully Yours, PINE ROSE POULTRY YARDS, Member National S. C. The Curse.

An Irish authority thus defines as an expert the effects of a well delivered curse: "The belief among the ancient Irish was that a curse once pronounced must fall in some direction. If it has been deserved by him on whom it is pronounced it will fall on him sooner or later, but if it has not then it will return upon the person who pronounced it. They compare it to a wedge with which a woodman cleaves timber. If it has room to go it will go and cleave the wood, but if it has not it will fly out and strike the woodman himself who is driving it between the eyes."-London Globe.

Strict Women Who Love.

The strictest women are at times the most loving. When this happens their attachment is as strong as death, their fidelity as resisting as the diamond. They are hungry for devotion and athirst for sacrifice. Their love is a piety, their tenderness a religion, and they triple the energy of love by enshrining it as a duty.-Henri Frederic Amiel.

She Wasn't Superstitious.

Do You Really Love Dogs? Perhaps the final test of anybody's love of dogs is willingness to permit The Newest Fad of the Fashionable them to make a camping ground of the bed. There is no other place in the world that suits the dog quite so well. On the bed he is safe from being stepped upon, he is out of the way of drafts, he has a commanding position from which to survey what goes on in the world, and, above all, the surface is soft and yielding to his outstretched limbs. No mere man can ever be so comfortable as a dog looks. Some persons object to having a dog on the bed at night, and it must be admitted that he lies a little heavily upon one's limbs, but why be so base as to prefer comfort to companionship? To wake up in the dark night and put your hand on that warm, soft body, to feel the beating of that faithful heart-is not this better than undisturbed sloth? The best night's rest I ever had was once when a cocker spaniel puppy, who had just recovered from stomach ache (dose one to two soda mints) and was a little frightened by the strange experience, curled up on my shoulder like a fur tippet, gently pushed his cold, soft nose into my neck and there slept sweetly and soundly until morning .- H. C. Merwin in Atlantic.

Absentminded Dyer.

Charles Lamb had a friend named George Dyer who was perhaps the most absentminded man on record. It was Dyer who, leaving Lamb's Islington home at broad noonday, walked straight into the New river. He was known to take up a coal scuttle instead of his hat, to walk home with a footman's cockaded hat on and even to leave one of his shoes under the table and get well on his homeward way before discovering his loss. He called at a friend's one morning, heard that the family was away in the country, left his name in the visitors' book, and a few hours later called again, asked for the book again and was astonished to see his own freshly written name. Once, when Proctor breakfasted with him, Dyer forgot the tea. The omission being noted, he filled the teapot with ginger. Proctor left as soon as he could to get a better breakfast at a coffee tavern, and there Dyer strolled in and asked him how he did, quite unconscious of having seen him earlier.

Lawyers' Wills.

A remarkable specimen of a lawyer's invalid will was that of Sir Joseph Jeckyll, master of the rolls, who died in 1738 and bequeathed his fortune after his wife's death to pay off the national debt. "Sir Joseph was a good man and a good lawyer," was Lord Mansfield's comment, "but his bequest was a very foolish one. He might as well have attempted to stop the middle arch of London bridge with his full bottomed wig." The testator's patriotic intentions were therefore treated as proof of mental weakness, and his will was promptly set aside. Among the many blundering wills that lawyers have made for their clients, if not for themselves, the strangest on record was that of a Dublin gentleman who left all his money to the elder son of his brother and, if he had no elder son, to the second.-London Chronicle.

WOMEN AND CARDS.

Set In New York.

Card playing for money among the fashionable women of New York has become such a craze that they have found it expedient to emulate the example of their husbands and brothers to that extent that there are few games now that "kitty" doesn't play an important part-that is to say, a percentage of the stakes goes to pay for a hired room and refreshments.

The big Broadway and Fifth avenue hotels are the scenes of many quiet little games of bridge these wintry afternocns, and here is how they are arranged: Women who launch upon shopping or calling tours in the morning hours agree to meet for luncheon at some well known hotel. One woman in the party is designated as cashier, and she pays the bills. While the luncheon is in progress orders are given that a room be reserved and the furniture so arranged that one or two tables of bridge can be indulged in.

Play starts, and the cashier of the party "cuts" each hand or pot until a sum sufficient to defray the cost of the luncheon, hire of the room and whatever refreshments might be ordered while the game is on has been provided for.

The Waldorf-Astoria, the Knickerbocker and the New Astor of the Broadway hotels and the Plaza, St. Regis and Gotham are the favorite rendezvous just at present for those women who wish to buck the tiger outside the prosy confines of their homes

"Yes, afternoon bridge parties have become quite the rage," said one of the managers at the Waldorf a few days ago. "It is such an easy matter for women to meet in the restaurant and then adjourn to a private room for a quiet game of bridge.

"Run a 'kitty?' Oh, dear, yes, and there are many lively scenes, I am told, when some grand dame who hap pens to be losing thinks that the kitty is getting more than its share."-New York World.

Alaska's Wealth of Coal.

Alaska contains the only first class bituminous and anthracite coal on the Pacific coast. From the Bering river district railroads can be built to the sea, not more than 110 miles long. over perfectly level country, and, according to a published statement by Alfred H. Brooks, head of the government's geological survey work in Alaska, there are 6,000,000,000 tons of it in both fields-more than one and a half times all the coal that has ever been taken out of Pennsylvania. Twothirds of this has been filed upon by claimants-that is, as much coal as has so far come from the mines of Pennsylvania Mr. Brooks estimates to be worth a dollar a ton as it lies; that is, he estimates the coal in the two fields at $6,000,000,000.-McClure's.

A London Fog. Six thousand tons of coal, it is said, are in suspension in the London atmosphere every day during the winter months-enough to encourage any fog -and 2,000,000 chimneys, all burning soft coal, are throwing off incessant volumes of smut laden smoke. These are the things that scientific people talk about when they try to explain fogs. And then they go on to tell us that fogs are expensive, that they cost London £5,000,000 a year, that a single day's fog causes the metropolis to consume enough gas and electricity in excess of her ordinary requirements to supply a town of 50,000 population for twelve months and that fogs leave behind them a deposit of six tons to the square mile.-London Post.

In writing an advertisement, to realize results, it must be so written as to command attention and create an impression amongst those interested along the line advertised. For 15 consecutive weeks I have been placing my various business propositions before the public in the columns of the RECORD. Permit me to say that the style and tone that was expressed in my ad. were not only commanding to the public, but they have been copied by another competitor, not only along the line of composition, but in the illustration and general make-up and style.

The old saying runs, "Good things, only, are copied; good patents, only are imitated and infringed upon; worthless ones are never imitated.' Taking this general view, I feel complimented and take off my hat and make a business bow. In preparing my ads I endeavor never to make any personal reflection upon my competitors, nor to advertise anything that is not positively correct.

What I have been trying to do was to educate the public in reference to Mail Order Houses, and I have even given them credit for the truthfulness of their ads. I have not told you that $35.00 was the cheapest buggy that could be bought, but I extended you an invitation to bring in your catalogue and I would meet, or beat, their prices. Further, I stand ready to meet any competition on prices in Taneytown, regularly. or specially, quality for quality-except on the 9th of April, until after 3 p. m., or until after Mr. Frank Bowersox's sale. After his sale is over, I will meet, or beat, any price in operation for that day, and I will be more liberal; any price given on that day, on any particular job, will hold good for this buggy season, or until that job is sold.

The reason I won't meet what is represented to be special prices on the 9th of April, before 3 p. m., is, Mr. Bowersox deserves the respect of every business man in Taneytown for annually bringing a large crowd of strangers to our town, which should be appreciated by our citizens, as every business is benefitted by this gathering, at the expense of Mr. Bowersox; and if I would do anything out of the ordinary to interfere with his sale, the citizens should rightfully condemn my actions. I positively will not enter into price-cutting newspaper controversy, as some people disregard the truthfulness of what they place over their signature. I don't know anything about the quality of any of my competitors' goods, but if you call I will talk business on the merits of my goods, and not on the demerits of my competitors, and let you judge the work.

strate the quality of the goods I handle. After the public sale is over, I will be pleased to serve you at the special price.

Makes us laugh! Do not gain the impression that I do not have anything but Cheap John goods, for I have 3 Carloads of the finest Buggies ever shipped into this town, and for all grades of goods, let me figure with you.

Top Buggies.

With each Spring, the question of a new carriage comes up. When you begin to think about a Top Buggy, think of Garner's prices and styles, which are more than all others combined, and I wish to say that these goods are carried right in stock. No samples. Bought outright and sold. Can be seen at my

from the clouds they precipitate their descent till the increasing resistance opposed by the air becomes equal to their weight, when they continue to fall with uniform velocity. This velocity is therefore in a certain ratio to the diameter of the drops; hence thunder and other showers in which the drops are large pour down faster than a drizzling rain. A drop of the twenty-fifth part of an inch in falling through the air would, when it had arrived at its uniform velocity, acquire a celerity of only eleven and a half feet per second, while one of a quarter of an inch would have a velocity of thirty-three and a half feet.

A Peacemaker.

It is a commonly accepted belief that nothing short of being pried loose will induce a bulldog to give up his grip on another dog or on an intruder, but this is a mistake. A little household ammonia poured on him as near his nose as circumstances will allow will make him let go immediately. The fumes of ammonia are so overpowering that a dog cannot possibly maintain his grip and his breath at the same time.-Country Life In America.

The Paris Apaches.

Police of Courbevoie, a suburb of Paris, noticed two burglars climbing into the garden of an uninhabited house one night. They called up their dogs and made for the burglars, but the burglars had brought trained dogs with them, too, and their dogs raised the alarm. A pitched battle between the police and the Apaches and the police dogs and the Apache dogs took place. The two burglars were arrested, but their dogs left one of the police dogs dead on the field and escaped. The police have information that a large number of dogs have recently been trained by malefactors to fight the trained dogs of the police and to help their masters, the Apaches, to break the laws.

He Wouldn't Sue Them.

In a sketch of Admiral Seaton Schroeder the New York Globe says: "The following story rests on no more substantial foundation than fleet gossip. But just before the fleet left for that trip around the world there was some newspaper talk of a possible clash with Japan. The yarn goes that a highly placed person asked Schroeder in the course of a chat what he would do if the Japs fired on his ship. Schroeder sniffed. 'They won't fire on my ship,' said he positively. 'But if they did?' 'Now,' said Schroeder angrily, 'if they did, hey? What the dickens do you think I'd do-sue 'em?' "

Spring Forest Fires.

This is the season of the year when most of the forest fires occur that result from brush burning and the clearing up of old fields. During the past year 20% of the forest fires of which the cause was known started from careless brush burning. These spring fires, are, as a rule, more destructive than those in the autumn, because the trees in the spring have come out of the dormant state of winter and begun the growth activites of another season, when the buds and bark are easily injured.

The state forest fire laws make it a misdemeanor, punishable by fine and imprisonment, for any one to allow a fire to escape from his own lands to those of his neighbor. It is, therefore, of the greatest importance in the burning of brush, the firing of marshes, or in burning off old fields, that every precaution be taken to prevent the spread of the fire beyond the limits marked. The State Forest Wardens are authorized to take all necessary steps to extinguish fires when they occur, and the local warden should be notified in every case when a fire is beyond control, in order that prompt action may be taken. But the best way to deal with forest fires is to prevent them, and that can only be done by co-operating with the state and county officials in the strict | Cope. enforcement of our fire laws, which are ample to deal with any cases that may arise.

The damage from forest fires for 1909, as reported by the forest wardens, shows the seriousness of this matter. There were 84 fires reported, which burned over 23,277, acres of woodland and not include all the fires that occurred, town, Md. nor does it cover the full loss to young growth, which would add considerably more to the above estimate. Thirty of the fires reported were extinguished by the forest wardens and the assistants they employed, at a total cost of $367, which was paid by the several counties in which the fires occurred. It would be difficult to find a greater return for so small an expenditure of public money.

Why Blinds Were Drawn.

The Edinburgh landlady of the seventies who astounded James Payn by her stern determination to have the blinds drawn closely down on the Sabbath was but carrying on the traditions of her great-grandparents. The Scot of the early eighteenth century had a reason for drawing his blinds on Sunday. Mr. Thompson in his "Weaver's Craft" gives it. "Sometimes the minister himself." he wrote, "when he got a colleague to preach for him would make the rounds, accompanied by an elder, to spy with his own eyes the sins of the absentees. Here one man is found romping with his bairns, another as the minister peeped through the window was detected kissing his wife, two men were found drinking ale, and one was found with his coat off, as if he were going to work, and still another was seen eating a hearty dinner. All were pulled up before the session of the kirk and repentance forced upon each."-London Standard.

Bread and Cheese. A couple advanced in years got married lately.

The husband had a room in the house securely locked, the inside of which his wife had never seen, and, being curious of its contents, she begged again and again to see the room.

At last he consented, and, lo and behold, the room was full of whole cheeses!

He explained matters by telling her that for every sweetheart he had in his young days he bought a cheese. His wife began to cry.

"Don't cry, dear," he said. "I've had no sweethearts since 1 met you." "It's not that," she replied, still sob-

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL. Lesson II.-Second Quarter, For D. D. April 10, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Matt. ix, 35, to x, 15, 40-42-Memory Verses, ix, 37, 38. Golden Text, Matt. x, 8-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This is the only lesson we have on the whole of that most important section, chapter x, and we begin with the closing words of chapter ix, telling of omnipresence, His omnipotence-so Jesus going everywhere preaching the gospel of the kingdom and showing the power of the kingdom in mortal bodies, healing every sickness and every disease. The shepherdless condition of the multitudes filled Him with compassion for them, and the plentiful harvest and scarcity of laborers led Him to say to His disciples. "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest. that He will send forth laborers into His harvest." There is something so strangely mysterious about it all to us earthly minded people that we cannot grasp it except the Spirit shall enlighten us. Here is the Lord of the harvest Himself, the King of the kingdom, manifesting His power over the souls and bodies of people and over wind and wave and full of compassion for people, but He wants associates from among men to whom He can intrust His power that they may go forth in His name and do as He had been doing. That is all wonderful, reminding us of Isa. vi. 8, where we hear the one living and true God in the persons of the Trinity saying, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" The wonder on our part is that so few respond to such an honor. But why should He ask us to ask Him or His Father to do this? Is it that in asking Him we may offer ourselves, saying, "Here am I; send me?" Would we be honest in asking Jesus Christ to send forth laborers into the wide world to work for His great cause if we did not first offer Him ourselves?

After an all night of prayer to God He had chosen twelve that they might be with Him and that He might send them forth, and now He gives them all the power that He had been manifesting and sends them forth by two and two to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the sick (Mark iii, 13; Luke vi, 12; ix, 2). When the kingdom comes we shall find the twelve apostles (some one in Judas' place) on twelve thrones ruling the twelve tribes of Israel (Matt. xix, 28), but it will still be His power conferred upon them. It is true now and aiways will be-apart from Him, nothing. All power in heaven and on earth is His. How is it that we know so little of it? Are we not wholly His, fully yielded, simply trusting, willing and obedient? Has He not said, "As the Father sent Me, so send I you?" These twelve were, however, to go only to Israel at this time, not to gentiles or Samaritans (verses 5, 6). And to the woman of Canaan we hear Him saying, "I am not sent but unto the lost sheep of the house of Israel" (Matt. xv, 24). He worketh all things after the counsel of His own will, according to His good pleasure which He hath purposed in Himself, and we must be fully in that purpose and will, whether it refer to the Jew, gentile or the church of God (Eph. i, 9, 11; I Cor. x, 32). Dr. Scofield says in his notes on this chapter that the mission of the twelve was that of heralds, announcing to Israel only the kingdom as at hand, endued with the divine credentials of their office and manifesting kingdom powers. Verses 16 to 23 cover in a general sense the sphere of service during this present age, while verse 23 has in view the preaching of the remnant in the time of the tribulation and Immediately preceding the return of Christ in glory. The remnant then will not have gone over the cities of Israel till the Lord comes division let him lay to heart the gen- is to flee to Him in Jesus Christ. eral principles, remembering that all (need to hear of the grace of God, the This omnipotence is illustrated in our life of service, the enduement of the Spirit for that service and the coming of Jesus Christ to set up His kingdom. In this age we are commanded to go into all the world and give the gospel to every creature (Matt. xxviii, 19, 20; Mark xvi, 15, contrasted with Matt. x, 6), our object being not the conversion of any part of the world, but the gathering out of all nations a people for His name (Acts xv. 14), that He may come again with these called out ones to reign over the earth (Rev. v, 9, 10). We must give more attention to being faithful messengers than to caring for our personal needs. If we are faithful He will see to our need (Matt. vi, 33; Ps. iv. 19). It will help us to remember that He counts all good or ill treatment of His messengers as done to Himself (verses 22-25, 40-42). It is an evil world. We must expect persecution, but we must not fear to die for His sake (16-18, 28-31). He must be more to us than the dearest on earth or than life itself (37-39). Remember the analogy "sheep in the midst of wolves" (16) and that the calling of sheep is to be fleeced and killed and eaten. In special emergencies we can count upon the Spirit to do the talking through us (19, 20), but He should always be allowed to do this. All service shall be rewarded (verse 42; xvi, 27; Rev. xxii, 12). What reward can compare with being one with | at a Junior Christian Endeavor society Him for time and eternity? (Rom. viii, 16; Rev. iii, 2.1.)

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning April 10, 1910. Topic.-God is here.-Ps. cxxxix, 1-12. Comment by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle,

A knowledge of the writings and especially the poetical writings of the world is a part of a literal education. It is necessary to the cultivated mind. But when it comes to religious poetry to be ignorant of the Psalms, the greatest religious poems, is not recompensed by a knowledge of Dante, Milton, Tennyson and Browning. In loftiness of thought and in expressive beauty of language we find nowhere outside of this psalm the great attributes of God-His omniscience, His strikingly set forth. It is not surprising that this magnificent psalm should be pronounced "the crown of the Psalms." The omniscience of God is described in the first six verses. His omnipresence from the seventh to the twelfth verses, and after a denunciation of the wicked (13-18) as the result of meditation upon the Holy God His omnipotence is described in the nineteenth to the twenty-second versse, and the psalm closes with a prayer for God's teaching and leading:

Search me, O God, and know my heart; Try me and know my thoughts, And see if there be any wicked way in

And lead me in the way everlasting ..

One striking feature of this psalm which is a meditation upon the great attributes of God is its individual application. The psalmist speaks not of the greatest attributes of God as related to the people of the world or to the universe in which we live, but as related to himself alone. "Thou hast searched me and known me," etc., God's full knowledge of Himself; "Whither shall I go from thy Spirit," etc., God everywhere present to him; "I am fearfully and wonderfully made," his omnipotence as applied to his own creation, to which he adds, "Wonderful are thy works, and my soul knoweth (it) right well." This characteristic of this psalm could be applied with great force today. Men think too much of their own greatness and not enough of God's. Moreover, medication upon the supreme attributes of God will lead us to see our own insignificance, our own weakness and the absolute need of His perfect knowledge about us, His constant presence with us and His almighty power to keep us. Since there is one who knows all things, who is everywhere, no matter where we may be, who has all power to keep us at all times and in all places, we should not try to tread the pathway of life alone, but put our life in His care and sovereign keeping.

That God possesses the attributes which the psalmist ascribes to Him is not to be doubted.

1. God knows all things. This the psalmist learned by experience. (a) He knows our thoughts. "O Lord, Thou hast searched me and knoweth me. Thou understandeth my thoughts afar off." No matter how far we may be separated from God, He knows our thoughts, for in His omniscience "He has searched us." (b) God knows our words, "for before a word is yet on my tongue, for O Jehovah, Thou knowest it altogether." Before we speak God knows what we shall speak. (c) He knows our ways "Thou art acquainted with all my ways." He is omniscient, knowing thoughts, words and deeds. This fact should lead us to guard our thoughts, speak only well with our tongues and do only what He would have us do. 2. God is here, everywhere. How strikingly the past sets forth the omnipresence of God. In heaven he can say, "God is here;" in hell, "God is here;" in any part of the earth, "God is here;" in light or darkness, "God is here," for light and darkness are all alike to God. To Him night is as light as day. No one can hide himself from God. and no one need try it. Adam tried it, but failed. Jonah had enough in trying to run away from If any cannot receive this suggested God. The only way to flee from God 3. God is omnipotent, all powerful. present salvation by grace, the daily creation and in all His works-wonderful or marvelous are the works. We need search God far more than He needs us. Let us therefore seek Him in Christ and find safety beneath His wings

A BRILLIANT IDEA.

It Established Mr. Josselyn as a Playwright.

By ELBERT J. BENTLEY. [Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.]

"There's no use in further pleading, Mr. Josselyn. You are altogether too humdrum for me." Mr. Josselyn was a struggling playwright who had never succeeded in getting a play accepted. "Isn't it enough," he replied lugubriously, "that I am trying all the while to conjure up puppets to do romantic stage." and absurd things without them myself? At any rate, I'm honest, and that's more than can be said of Jameson, whom you will doubtless marry if you don't marry me."

"I would prefer that you should have more snap and less honesty." "You would like me to rob some one,

I suppose." "It would be infinitely preferable to spending every day in the same uneventful way." "Then I will turn robber."

"Do so, and I will marry you." The expressions of the two faces at this moment were a study. The girl's

HE WAS MARCHED TO THE FOOTLIGHTS. eye sparkled with mischief; the man's countenance, which had been a picture of melancholy, showed that he had caught on to a possibility. She would marry him if he would rob some one. But robbing some one would necessitate a residence for a while behind bars. He must think out a plan by which he might turn robber without submitting to the imprisonment. He was ingenious and had faith in his own ingenuity.

"Very well," he said. "I will rob some one" "Nonsense!"

I:en when one of the two men ran from the box. The excited audience sat expectant for a few minutes, when another voice cried

"They've got him!" Two policemen in uniform were seen marching a man out of the theater.

Meanwhile the curtain had been rung down.

The stage manager appeared from behind a wing and said:

"Ladies and gentlemen, one of the most daring robberies in the annals of crime has been committed right here in this very theater. Thinking that before the villain is taken to the station you would like to have a look at him. I have requested the police to bring him for a moment on to the

There was a clapping of hands, the curtain was rung up, and in a few minutes two policemen advanced from the right center with a man handcuffed between them. The robber wore a mask and was in evening dress. He was marched to the footlights.

"Take off his mask!" ordered the stage manager.

A policeman removed the mask. For one moment there was silence; then a deafening shout filled the theater.

"It's Josselyn!" cried a voice "Who's Josselyn?" asked a woman. "Why, the man who wrote the play, of course. Meanwhile the shouts continued, while Mr. Josselyn stood between the policemen, each holding him by a handcuff. Miss Sweetland, who was not versed in stagecraft, not dreaming but that her lover had really robbed a man for her sake, was in agony. Not only would he be sent to the penitentiary, but this disgrace at being marched on to the stage in the presence of an audience among whom were nearly all the friends he possessed was horrible and would kill any sensitive man. Josselyn gave one look at the girl; but, seeing that she was suffering inexpressible torture, his face broke into a smile.

so realistically had the scheme been carried out, and for a moment believed that the man before them had committed the robbery in which he had been caught. But Josselyn's smile made it apparent that the crime was a part of the performance. There was a fresh outburst of shouting, this time accompanied by a thunder of applause. "By Jove," exclaimed one of the audience, "that's the best stage gag I ever saw! It's enough to make a success of a dead failure." "Your fortune's made," the stage manager whispered to Josselyn. "This means a 300 night run," muttered the manager, with a chuckle. "Speech" cried the audience with one voice.

"Work, Work."

Martin Luther when once asked by his friends what his plans for the following day were answered: "Work, work, from early until late. In fact, I have so much to do that I shall spend the first three hours in prayer." A 'model Endeavorer" will pray.

"There are two little words in our language which I've always admired," said John Williams, missionary to the south sea islands. "They are 'try' and 'trust.'" They are both in our pledge. Every year the West Point cadets build a pontoon bridge just as if they were in the enemy's country and had no other way of crossing the river. Endeavorers become competent church workers because of their training in church work in the Christian Endeavor society.

The King's Business First.

will not ask you again until I have committed a robbery." "Bravo." she exclaimed, clapping her hands, while he walked away with a theatrical stride.

"Dear me," said Irene to herself, "I hope he isn't going to make a gander of himself. Who would have thought I was so necessary to him? Suppose he robs some one and that some one shoots him! Heavens! I wonder if I hadn't better stop him."

But as she went on thinking over the matter a desire to discover what he would do got the better of her fears, and she concluded to let the matter take its course. Besides, there was something fascinating in his risking a term in prison-indeed, his life-to gain | the curtain was rung down, and when her

A month passed, and she heard nothing from Mr. Josselvn. Then one day he wrote her that he had at last succeeded in securing the acceptance of a play, and he would be happy to have her go with him to the first night performance.

Miss Sweetland was very much pleased at the invitation, but she had been fretting at having been thus let alone and was now disappointed that her lover had no tender word for her. She feared he had accepted his dismissal.

The first night came, and with it came Mr. Josselyn with a carriage to take Miss Sweetland to see his play. Naturally he was very ill at ease. When one struggles for months, perhaps years, with a play and it is to be tested before an audience he is excusable for being agitated.

"You're all of a tremor," said the girl. "Don't worry. I'm sure it will be a success."

Their seats were in one of the proscenium boxes. Of course the house was crowded-theaters are always crowded on first nights-and there were many of Josselyn's friends among the audience.

The play was light comedy. The opening. The second act, which is liable to be dull, was very effective. Just before its close Josselyn asked Miss Sweetland to excuse him and left the box. A few minutes later there was a cry of "Help, help!"

Every eye in the theater was turned to the box opposite the one in which Miss Sweetland sat, where two men were tussling with each other.

"I'm being robbed; he's got my watch!" cried a voice. These words had scarcely been spoobject near to my heart-an object' "A hundred thousand in royalties!" interrupted another voice.

"Shut up!" cried one who wished to hear the speech.

Meanwhile Josselyn stood looking at the girl for whose sake he had made a guy of himself with a look of humorous triumph in his eye. She drew a long breath of relief, and gradually an unwilling though radiant smile forced itself over her features. When silence was restored he concluded his speech by stating that the object of his life had been to write a successful play, and this heart's desire had been accomplished. Then, thanking them for their appreciation, he bowed, retired. it was raised again it was upon the first scene of the third act. Josselvn had "killed two birds with one stone." He had kept his contract with Miss Sweetland and had insured the success of his play. Everybody knows that a play depends upon its start. The first night is immensely important. By his robbery the author had put his audience in good humor for the third act, the crucial point of a play. The consequence was that, while he noticed several defects in it, which he corrected the next day, the audience pronounced it perfect.

Josselyn returned to his box. He found Miss Sweetland sitting behind a curtain and took a seat beside her. Notwithstanding the fact that all eyes were upon him, beneath the balcony that concealed him from his chest downward he felt a soft hand stealing into his. His face broke into a charming smile, and the audience, taking it to itself, gave three hearty cheers for the playwright.

When the curtain went down on the third act if there had been any doubts that the play would be a success they had disappeared. The next morning the dreaded critics all gave favorable notices, and from that time for months the box office was crowded.

While Mr. Josselyn and Miss Sweetaudience were captured at the very | land were riding to her home she said to him

> "I am very sorry that I should have put you to so much trouble. I'm not worth it.'

> "Indeed you are, sweetheart. But, instead of putting me to trouble you gave me a brilliant idea that will insure the success of my play, establish me as a playwright and make my fortune."

"Which, J suppose, I shall share. It isn't every girl that is so well paid for her folly."

Horse Racing Killed In Japan. The anti-gambling crusade which has swept over Japan and caused the closing of sixteen race tracks has left hundreds of high class horses stranded. These facts are given by J. J. Carst, a business man of Yokohama, who arrived in San Francisco recently. He said:

"After the war racing became very popular in Japan and in other oriental countries. In Japan the game was played on a grand scale. At some of the sport meetings $1,000,000 would pass through the hands of the bookmakers. Then came the crusade, followed by the decree forbidding gambling on race tracks. The horse owners were hard hit. Plans have been made to have meetings at Vladivostok, where betting is still permitted."

International Tennis Matches.

American lawn tennis players have secured the international Davis challenge cup ties for this country. The English cup team will meet the Americans, as they did last year, in the month of September. The matches. two singles and one double, will be decided in Philadelphia instead of Boston. From the present arrangements the courts will be those of the Philadelphia Cricket club, at St. Martin's green, Germantown. The securing of these important matches is a signal triumph for American lawn tennis diplomacy.

Ambidextrous Golf Player.

A correspondent at Sydney, Australia, writes that a bogy competition was recently won at Hunter's Hill out there by Robert Smith, whose game is particularly interesting from the fact that he is an ambidextrous play. er. He carries around about an equal number of left and right handed clubs, and it is a matter of supreme indifference to him which he uses. In fact, if a match were to be arranged "Smith right handed against Smith himself left handed" no one could tell which "hand" it would be safer to back.

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN. Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

Mr. and Mrs. Agustus Little sold their personal effects, last Friday, and have gone to Ohio to live.

Mr. A. L. Slagenhaupt, of Littlestown, paid Taneytown his annual brief visit, last Saturday, and afterwards attended Jonas Harner's sale.

Mr. O. J. Stonesifer, of the Union Bridge Pilot, paid Taneytown a visit this week, and swapped "shop talk" for a while, at the RECORD office.

Mrs. Robert L. Annan and two daughters, of Emmitsburg, removed to Taneytown, on Thursday. They will make their home at Dr. C. Birnie's, hereafter.

James B. Galt has been named census enumerator for the first precinct, Taneytown district, and William R. Bricker for the second precinct. The work will commence April 15.

At the meeting of the Fire Company, this Friday evening, at 8.00 o'clock, delegates and alternates will be elected to the meeting of the State Firemens Association. A full attendance of the members is desired.

Harry S. Koons and family have removed to Baltimore. We are sorry to lose such good citizens, and especially such an excellent mechanic as Mr. Koons. When they get tired of city life, we will be glad to welcome them back.

Baseball is starting early in the season, like most other things. A picked-up nine visited Harney, last Friday, and took the locals into camp, quite easily. Whether Taneytown will be represented by a strong team, this year, it is yet too early to determine.

A petition was circulated, this week, asking the town authorities to employ a policeman to patrol our streets, at night, and make arrests without the formality of a warrant. Evidently, the town is growing; if not in population, then in some other ways not so desirable.

Mr. Hesson's bill providing for train connections at Keymar, was reported unfavorably by the Corporations Committee, and the report was adopted, thus killing the bill. Does this mean that the railroads are watching, and influencing, legislation ?

Taneytown is always afflicted with the dust nuisance, and heavy sprinkling is almost as bad. From a number of our exchanges we gather the information that some towns are trying oil; first giving the streets a thorough cleaning, then applying a thick coating of oil which prevents dust, thereafter, for quite a long time.

..... A LARGE CONTRACT.

When Robt. S. McKinney the enterprising druggist, first offered a 50 cent package of Dr. Howard, s specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, and guaranteed to return the money if it did not cure, he thought it probable from his experience with other medicines for these diseases, that he would have a good many packages returned. But although he has sold hundreds of bottles, not one has been brought back.

Robt. S. McKinney wants every person in Tanevtown who has constipation, dyspepsia, headaches, or liver trouble to come to his store or send Robt. S. McKinney 25 cents by mail and get 60 doses of the best medicine ever made at half the regular price, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

To those suffering with dizziness, headache, poor digestion, constipation and straining, Dr. Howard's specific offers quick relief.

-.... (For the RECORD.) APRIL. To Mrs. Oliver Huckel.

Drink in the breath of Spring, Each cloud is chased by light, As April showers bring Sweet flowers through the night.

O soul ! reach up and live, With trembling reverence lowly, The Son of Life shall give The fruit that is most holy.

Let April rain-drops fall, In sweet patter and mirth, Now May flowers grow tall, From dark recesses of earth.

Where dainty blossoms dwell, The peace of God is there, To love, is to worship well, A kindly deed is prayer.

O diamend-month of April! Thy face is maiden coy. We hail thy advent faithful, That brings the flower-joy.

Now heart, still all thy sorrow; The lilies clothed so pure, Shall prove the hopeful morrow Brings courage to endure.

See ! "angels of resurrection" In all plant life and tree, We catch Thy true reflection When hearts respond to Thee. Mrs. Joseph C. Wailes.

Curious Styles of Letter Endings. Any one in the habit of perusing old letters is struck with the tone of great humility and deference which pervades the correspondence of our ancestors. A few specimens of the style of beginning and ending letters may prove interesting as in striking contrast to the laconic "yours obediently," "faithfully" or "truly" of the present day. It would certainly be difficult to match the following subscription of a letter from the Duke of Shrewsbury to Sir Thomas Hanmer, dated September, 1713: "I desire that you will believe that, wherever I am, 1 shall always endeavor to deserve and very much value your friendship, being, with a sincere esteem, sir, your most faithful and obedient servant, Shrewsbury." Frequently one meets with bellicose subscriptions, as in the case of the Earls of Hutly and Errol, who in 1594 threatened "awful consequences to the magistrates of Aberdeen unless they released certain gentlemen imprisoned in their city and inscribed, "Yours as ye will, either present peace or weir."

Arithmetic by Hand.

We shall never be in danger of forgetting that our ancestors did their sums on their fingers so long as arithmetic retains the word "digits." But modern civilization knows nothing of the elaborate developments of this method. It takes a Wallachian peasant to multiply 8 by 9 on his hands. This is how he does it: The fingers of either hand, beginning with the thumb, stand for the numbers from 6 to 10. So the ring finger of one hand and the middle finger of the other are stuck out to represent 8 and 9. Counting the fingers remaining on the side farthest from the thumbs he finds them 1 and 2 respectively, and 1 multiplied by 2 gives him the units of his product-2. Then he counts from the thumbs to the stuck out fingers inclusive, finds them 3 and 4, adds these, and gets 7 for his tens. Answer, 72. All this to avoid knowing the multiplication table beyond 4 times 4!

For the Judge's Information.

The police court judge could not repress a smile when his eyes rested on a card that was lying on his desk during a session of the court. On it were printed two stanzas under the title The Perfect Man," and he could not but look at the motley gang of prisoners who sat before him. And he did not think the card had been dropped accidentally. The verses read:

There is a man who never drinks, Nor smokes, nor chews, nor swears, Who never gambles, never flirts, And shuns all sinful snares-He's paralyzed.

There is a man who never does Anything that is not right. His wife can tell just where he is At morning, noon and night-He's dead.

-Indianapolis News.

Pleaded an Extenuation. An Indiana youth had called with a cab to take the judge's daughter to a dance, scarcely two blocks from her home. The judge entered the room where the youth was waiting. Pacing across the room a couple of times with his head bent and thoughts concentrated, he came short about in front of the youth and declaimed: "Young man, this cab hiring to go two blocks is foolish, unwise, unthoughtful, misguided, unreasonable, lavish-a prodigality-a-a-l am surprised. My daughter is flesh and blood, and she won't melt, and if her gown should be ruined I bought it, and I can buy her"-"That's all right, judge, but my father is paying for that cab."-Woman's Home Companion.

March "came in like a lamb" and went out like a lamb-kin, contrary to the old saying. With the temperature in the 80s, roads as dusty as in July, doors and windows open for cool air, the month has beaten all previous weather records. Wells are again reported to be going dry, as the rain and snow of the winter afforded only temporary relief. Another dry summer would be a calamity.

We will again state that the RECORD office is not open at night, and as the removal of the Editor to his new location makes it inconvenient for him to be seen at night, it will be necessary for all business with the office to be transacted during the day. As heretofore, we will continue to leave packages of finished work at any public place in the town, when so requested. We do not intend to start the practice of going to the office at night.

Speaking of petitions, how about petitioning the authorities to please give us a little more light-more nights and longer hours. On Monday night, for instance, as soon as a little red moon came up-giving almost no light-the lamps were turned out, beginning at 10 o'clock, when the streets were full of people going home from various entertainments. Do our citizens really want the authorities to be so extremely economical?

As You Make It.

To the preacher life's a sermon, To the joker it's a jest; To the miser life is money. To the loafer life is rest.

To the lawyer life's a trial, To the poet life's a song; To the doctor life's a patient That needs treatment right along.

To the soldier life's a battle, To the teacher life's a school; Life's a ''good thing'' to the grafter, It's a failure to the fool.

To the man upon the engine Life's a long and heavy grade; It's a gamble to the gambler, To the merchant life is trade.

Life's a picture to the artist, To the rascal life's a fraud: Life perhaps is but a burden To the man beneath the hod.

Life is lonely to the lover, To the player life's a play; Life may be a load of trouble To the man upon the dray.

Life is but a long vacation To the man who loves his work; Life's an everlasting effort To shun duty to the shirk.
