The question of a constitutional con-vention to act quickly against polyga-mous practices is placed squarely before the House committee on Judiciary in a Washington State concurrent resolution by the House on Monday. The resolu-tion declares that polygamy still exists in certain places in the United States and asks Congress to call a convention to propose a constitutional amendment prohibiting polygamy and to empower full enforcement of the law.

ually advertising for pastors. Higher up in the councils of Method-ism there may possibly befound the real cause of the present hitch, as occurred when the Methodists failed to co-operate in the Christian Endeavor Society. The following, which I forwarded to the Baltimore Methodist, will express what I mean:

I mean: "In this day when we are seeking closer affilation of Christians of various denomina-tions, the reason for a separate Young Peo-ple's Society in the Methodist Episcopal churches from that of other religious bodies, haunts us-church loyalty. Denominational loyalty may have seemed important enough to the higher officials of Methodism twenty years ago, but a survey of the field now will convince us that the Christian Endeavorer is as loyal as the Epworth Leaguer. In the Ma-ryland churches there are hosts of Methodists who wish the Methodist young people were a part of the Christian Endeavor; and they are quite sensible, in that there is no loss of loy-alty through the Endeavor, and such federa-tion of young people is in harmony with pres-ent ideas of mutual relationship."

Upon the general subject of Church Unity the letter subjoined indicates a conviction reached after most careful observation, the occasion of my letter being the appointment by the Ministerial Union of Baltimore of the committee mentioned:

A company to operate an ice plant is being formed in Sykesville, and opera-tions will commence as soon as the machinery can be installed. A Cream-formed for the manufacture of dairy products. Col. Theodore Roosevelt was presented with one thousand acres of valuable timber land by a former admirer, whose will was probated in South Bend, Indi-ana, on last Friday, but this man just before his death changed his mind, and in a codicil he bequeaths the entire property to his brother. Union Bridge Farmers' Club. FARMERS AT MT. AIRY.

An Interesting Meeting. An Old Farmer asks Important Ouestion.

The correspondent of the American, at Mt. Airy, gives the following account of a Farmers' meeting held there on Thurs-

During the morning addresses the pub-lic schools of the town closed their doors that the pupils might have a chance to hear the lectures on subjects which are of interest to the farmer, his wife and their children. They heard E. L. Oswald, of Washington county, explain how an owner of an old orchard can renew that orchard. W. T. L. Taliaferro, of the Maryland Agricultural College, told the audience how to grow the proper feed for live stock. He dwelt briefly on the profits to be made on the sending of ef to market.

It was at this point that old Mr. Smith-ers arose and told the speaker that no one hereabouts is troubling himself so much about profits in cattle as about raising money enough for Christmas expenses, and the entertainment of their sons, who return to the farm from Balti-more, Washington and other large cities about this time of the year.

Mr. Taliaferro replied that the audi-ence could make money on cattle and other farm products during the rest of the year and have a good supply of cur-rency on hand for Christmas, or any day for that matter. Director H. J. Patterson, of the Maryland Experiment Station at College Park, interested everyone with his dis-course on "Dairying and the Dairy Cow." He emphasized the point that those who conduct a dairy must follow the laws of hygiene closely in order to as that of the cattle. He spoke briefly on the various diseases common to cattle and gave the audience several valuable hints on how to prevent and cure such diseases. The importance of good breeding in a dairy cow was made a point on which the speaker dwelt at great length. He said that the better the breed of a cow the better the milk will be.

The speakers at night were, C. R. The speakers at hight were, C. R. Wagner, of Ohio, who owns one of the best paying farms in that state, and E. I. Oswald. Mr. Wagner spoke at the afternoon session on beef cattle, hogs and sheep. He advised the farmers in this region to pay more attention to the raising of this kind of live stock, and told them of the large profits made by farmers of the West in sending their cattle, sheep and hogs to market either already dressed or on the hoof

At night Mr. Wagner and Mr. Oswald addressed a large crowd of children and their parents on poultry, its care, main-tenance and feed, and also on the profits to be made by sending fresh eggs to the city market. Mr. Wagner also spoke on "The Home, the School and the choosing of a Life Profession." Mr. Wagner said that the Christian home should be a good one where discipline is its first meeting since September, at the home of Mrs. W. Cora Stouffer, in New Windsor, Dec. 10th. 1910, with the fol-lowing members present: Mrs. Stouffer, D. Wolfe and wife, W. H. Flickinger and daughter, Sadie, Jennie E. Fuss daughter and son, Edna and Paul, Misses Anna and Bessie Wolfe, M. F. Haines and wife, Miss Bessie Haines, Wm. Ebbert and wife, J. Smith and wife. The visitors at this meeting were Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Smelser, Dr. and James Frazer, Miss Julia Cornell, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Smelser, Paul and Marie Smelser, Miss Eva Stouffer, Dr. Geo. H. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross Galt, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Fuss, Mr. Merton Engel.

At a suitable time the meeting was called to order. Mrs. Stouffer had pre-pared a short auxiliary program which was given in advance of the regular com-mittee reports. Paul Smelser recited in is easy and natural style "Pigs is Pigs. In this case they were guinea pigs. While an extended dispute was being settled with a railroad company as to the carrying charges for the orignal pair of these tailless little pets, they had multi-plied to the extent that they could be ounted by thousands, showing the prolificacy of the guinea pig tribe. Piano music by Misses Stouffer and Fuss with singing by Mrs. A. C. Smelser and daughter and Dr. and Mrs. Frazer, were greatly appreciated. Also a Scotch song Annie Laurie" and a song in Spanish by Dr. Frazer.

The report of Committee "E," was next called for. Wm. Flickinger read "Headwork on the Farm." This told ow a farmer convinced a merchant that the necessity for headwork is not limited to the profession, but is just as essential for the success of an agricultural calling. Mrs. Smith recited "Thanksgiving Morn-ing," which elicited the closest attention. J. Smith read an article by B. E. Evans on the subject of "The Parcels Post," written from the standpoint of one who favors the adoption of the system by our government, believing that it will be of great benefit to country people in general and not work an injury to the ocal merchant.

By request Dr. Frazer gave us an interesting and scholarly talk on this and other subjects of interest to us all. The committee on hydrated lime was continued to report when ready. The committee on farm inspection re-ported as follows: "We find this little farm covered with snow. Our hostess led us to the greenhouse where she has quantity of thrifty plants, principally carnations, yet primroses and palms are in abundant supply and all give evidence of good care and attention by one who understands her business." For the very successful efforts made for our entertainment, a very enjoyable feature of which was a bountiful feast of all desirable good things, a vote of thanks was tendered our hostess and her assistants.

Committee A., Daniel Wolfe and wife, and Reuben Sayler and wife will report at our next meeting to be held at Reuben Sayler's, January 14th., 1911, at 10 a.m. Then adjourned.

REASSESSMENT GOING SLOWLY

Complaints Pouring in on the Governor. Commissioners Urged to Hurry.

Reassessment of property is progress-ing so slowly that even the people are beginning to not only take notice, but protest. The remarks of many are more pointed than complimentary over the slow way in which the work has been dragging along, and "nursing the job" is a very common expression heard. The Governor is hearing these complaints through letters, and otherwise, and he is reported to have written the commissioners of the counties, urging them to push the work.

"The reassessment is progressing very satisfactorily in some sections," says the Governor, "and the increases in val-uations are very marked. In other sections the work is being unnecessarily delayed. In still other sections the assessments are not as high as on similar property in other localities. The Governor said he will seek information in all shortcomings, and will hold the commissioners strictly responsible if the reassessment is not up to the standard. The act providing for the reassess-ment required that the work should be completed within 90 days. The Governor was, however, given authority to extend the time and, he has done so.

"The county commissioners are re-sponsible," continued the Governor, "for the reassessments and the costs.and whether the properties are assessed for its full value."

A comparison of the work of the asses sors with that of the census enumerators, is largely in favor of the latter. There is, of course, great difference in the character of the work, but the fact remains that in seeing all of the people, getting over the country, and in expediting the work, there is enough similar ity between the two jobs for a comparison. That the Governor places the responsibility for the basis of the reassessment, and the costs of the same, on the county commissioners, is probably right, and et the opinion is not likely to be agreed to fully by the commissioners. In any case, there is a strong suspicion that the work is costing vastly more than it should cost, and somebody is responsible.

The "Religious Garb" Case.

The famous "garb" case which has een in the courts of Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, for a year or more, again attracts attention. The case, it will be remembered, was a prosecution of cer-tain school directors for employing a teacher wearing the garb of one of the many "plain" sects found in that coun-ty. The question of constitutionality was raised. The law, which prohibits any school teacher from wearing any garb or insignia, to indicate membership in any religious denomination, and makes it a misdemeanor on the part of school directors if, when notified that an objection is filed against any teacher wearing such garb or insignia, they fail to remove such teacher, was pronounced by Judge Landis to be unconstitutional. The Supreme Court reversed the decision and ordered the trial by jury of the directors. The directors pleaded no defense and placed themselves at the mercy of the court. Judge Landis, before whom the case came for final settlement, has announced that when the directors are brought before him for sentence he will indefinitely suspend sentence, so that while the principle involved has been settled and the consti tutionality of the law been established, the men whose action forced the test will not suffer further for the part which

Southern Commercial Congress.

Washington, Dec. 14th. President Taft will address the greatest gathering of business men ever held in this country, on March 10th., at Atlanta, Georgia, where the Southern Commercial Congress will be in session for three days beginning March 8th., 1911. The Gover-nors of the other fifteen Southern States united with Governor Brown of Georgia in extending this invitation to President Taft, which was delivered to him to-day through the Executive Committee of the Southern Commercial Congress and a Committee from Georgia.

The programme of the three days will be the most important in the history of the commercial South, and invitations will be issued to the most prominent men of the nation to participate. In ad-dition to the address by the President, who has chosen for his subject, "A Greater Nation through a Greater South," addresses will be made by ex-President Roosevelt, Gov-Elect Woodrow Wilson of New Jersey, Hon. T. V. Powderly, Surgeon Walter Wyman, the Governors of the Southern States, and other dis-tinguished men throughout the entire country.

This vast rally is intended to typify in a vivid manner to the people of the na-tion that the South regards itself as an integral portion of our great country, and has set itself to the task of building a still greater nation through the growth and development of a still greater South. Final arrangements of the programme are now being completed by the Executive Committee of the Southern Commercial Congress at Washington, who expects to annouunce the full list of speakers within a few days.

Not Much Wine This Year.

Washington, December 12.-Temper-ance advocates will receive support from an unlooked-for quarter this winter, as the European wine production has not been more than half the average yield, according to Consul Roberts. Not in the hundred years has there been so dis-astrous a failure in the vintage of Europe. Lack of sunshine during the spring and early summer, coupled with the ex-cessive humidity throughout the season, which engendered various forms of insect life, blighting the grapes and destroying the harvest are the causes for the seaon's failure.

This was especially true in the more northernly wine-producing districts of Europe, including France, Germany, Switzerland and portions of Italy. The failure of the grape crop is little short of a national misfortune to France, which is not only the largest producer, but the largest consumer, the annual consumption being reckoned at 100 bottles per capita, as it affects not only the large and small manufacturers, but a great many people dependent on the industry.

Growing Debt of Maryland.

While the incomplete returns from the reassessment of property in Maryland, Baltimore City, Worcester and Somerset counties excepted, indicates a general increase of 25 per cent., there is not much prospect of a reduction in the state tax rate because of the growing debt of the state. For the year 1911 the state tax rate will be 22 cents and for 1912

 $3\frac{1}{2}$ cents on the \$100. On January 2 there will be an increase of \$650,000 in the state debt. In this crease there will be three items, as follows \$300,000 for State Hospital loan at 4

$250,000 for public highway improvement at 4 per-cent.

$100,000 for Tuberculosis Sanitarium at 31 per-cent.

This total of $650,000 will be augmented later by an additional loan of $300, 000 for the care of the insane and by $2,000,000 for state roads.

When the total loans already authorized shall have been issued, including $2,250,000 for state roads, $600,000 for care of insane and $100,000 for sanitarium, the total debt of the state will be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. ducting the sinking fund, the total net debt will be about $3,000,000.

Governor Crothers is already on record in favor of another loan of $5,000,000 for public road improvement.

It will cost $600 to fire a single shot from the new 14-inch guns which are to be introduced in the two new battle-ships New York and Texas. There will be 10 such guns on the New York. They are to be mounted along the centre line of the ship, so they can be trained on either broadside. A single broadside will cost $6,000. The cost of the 10 guns and their mounts for one battleship will be $1,122,680. Each gun will weigh a fraction more than 63 tons. When the guns are given an elevation of Crothers and the members of the State 15 degrees their range will be 21,700 yard,s or, approximately, 12 miles. As a SPECIMEN of pure "snap judgment" the following, from the Baltimore County Union, is hard to top: "In the obituary columns of The Union-News this week we chronicle the deaths of many worthy men and estimable most interested. Much of the evidence women, whose places will be impossible to fill, yet a glance from the windows of our office at almost any hour will reveal tions of trade and manufacture differ men who are of no use whatever in the community and yet are permitted to live.'

THE APPLICATION of the eight hour law to government work in general, and to the naval ship-building plant in particular, brings to light the fact that war vessels can be built by ship-building firms about 20 per cent. cheaper than by the government. This shows conclusively that "playing politics" to catch the union labor vote is expensive business, as it makes war vessels of the first class cost something like $2,000,000 more than when built by contract under the ten hour day system.

More Tariff Coming

The tariff question is sure to be opened up again, but whether it will be at the present session, or a special one, or whether it will be postponed until the next Congress meets a year hence, only the progress of time will show. The Payne-Aldrich tariff did not fully satisfy either the President, or a large number of the Republicans in Congress, and the result of the election makes it clear that revision is not only probable, but necessarv. It is not likely, however, that very radical changes can be put through, all along the line, as the Senate will likely continue to hold to the Republican policy of protection, and there is the Presidential veto to be considered.

The protection principle has been unquestionably misused. Under its cloak, special interests have profited, and deals and arrangements have been made between Congressmen, on both sides, by which schedules have been put through that are entirely foreign to honest protection to capital and labor. It is but a matter of record that Democrats voted for the interests of their own section, and helped to put through schedules in the interest of other sections; though of course the Republicans, in most instances, had enough votes of their own to do without help.

If the tariff commission operates as expected, it is altogether probable that the next handling of the tariff will be under a much better and truer light than ever before. The difficulty in fixing rates has been largely due to difficulty in getting exact truths from those was conflicting, because it was sometimes prejuliced, and because condimaterially at different localities.

The tariff question, as a whole, bas been much magnified as to its actual effect on our people as a whole. It has been blamed and misconstrued to an extent outside of all reason, for the sake of political effect, and the time seems coming when it will at last be settled on a sensible business basis, for the reason that the people are getting tired of it, and losing interest in it. When it no longer serves to turn political tricks, the politicians will drop the agitation.

Taft and the Chief Justice.

That President Taft can be so eminently broad minded as to appoint a southern Democrat, and Ex-Confederate, THE ERUDITE Baltimore Sun, last as Chief Justice of the United States, is Friday, contained this illuminating somewhat bewildering, and must show headline, "Patient Poisons." As an bis critics that he has, at times. flashes eye-catcher, this is startling, to say the of sanity. There is nothing plainer in the field of politics than that when an of the opinion that poisons were neither opponent does a thing for the opposing party that pleases it, he is endurable, but when he does those things which other meaning of the word was intended, are in line with the wishes of his own

Many of the papers who are now one looks for on the first page of such a praising the President for his "wisdom" and saving that the appointment "reflects great credit," are doing so for no its own department, "Press of Three other reason under the Sun than that he States," take the headline writer through has picked one of their own stripe. But, many among his political opponents do give Mr. Taft credit for judicial fairness, and for an open honesty of purpose, though when it seems to suit their purpose best they invariably qualify their praise by saying that he is too weak-too easily influenced. Considering the nature of things political and practical, those who either praise, or condemn, a public official, are only as honest in their opinions as their partisan bias will allow them to be; which means that under given circumstances and for certain ends. "all men are liars," and in this particular instance there are no doubt some, at least in the President's party, who condemn him for so forgetting the issues of the war as to oppoint to so conspicous a by the Senate. The executive should be , at a local commission house, left to exercise a free choice, qualified only by the power of the Senate to reject an appointee whose elevation to office would be a grave mistake on the grounds of moral or intellectual unfitness. The progressive members of the Senate could not do a greater injury to their cause than to permit the impression to get abroad that they will reject the name of any man whom President Taft may appoint to the Supreme Court bench unless he squares with their ideas of progressive reforms. Insurgent activity in the past has been of great service, and it can serve a useful purpose now by keeping alive popular interest as to the character of the men who may be named for office.

We are not ready to believe that Senator La Follette himself will take an extreme position in applying the progressive vardstick to the Supreme Court appointments. By doing so he would choose a most inopportune time to emphasize such an issue, and would bring insurgency into disrepute. The people believe in the essentially judicial mind of President Taft. He has a peculiar knowledge of the kind of ability necessary in a Supreme Court justice, and the opinion prevails that he will make a dispassionate, judicious selection in every instance. Partisan obstruction, designed to impose a Supreme Court of insurgent bias on the country, would be resented.

The Senate's right to confirm is not a right to dictate appointments, but to insure the high character of the membership of the Supreme Court. With a man of President Taft's experience and temperament in the White House it is not the time for the Senate to attempt a partisan domination of the executive branch of the Government.-Balt. Spouting Nuisance in Congress.

Encouraged by the manner in which the House at Washington has responded to their appeals for promptness, the Republican leaders are now said to contemplate the passage of the Legislative, Executive and Judicial, the District of Columbia, the River and Harbor, and possibly the Pension appropriation bills before the holiday recess. Of course, it is highly doubtful whether this extremely ambitious program can be carried out. but even if one-half of it should be, the present session would set a speed standard for future Congresses to go by.

There is ordinarily little or no occasion for debate on routine appropriation bills, or rather what is called debate, and the delay in passing them is almost invariably due to the practice of members who use such measures merely as a pretext to get off speeches on other topics for political effect in their home districts. If the leaders succeed in muzzling these long-winded and prosy spouters they will not only suppress a nuisance, but, what is much more important, will gain time for some deliberate consideration of that class of important bills which are usually allowed to hang fire until the final week and are then Keep Close to Public Sentiment.

He who keeps in close touch with majority sentiment, is pretty sure not only to be right, but to avoid getting into serious trouble, and this rule applies to private and semi-public, as well as to wholly public, or political, affairs. Sometimes, public sentiment needs a director, or originator, and in such cases one is temporarily in the minority, but continnously trying to create new public sentiments is a pretty dangerous, as well as uncalled- for, business. The safer plan, by far, is to follow, or size-up and shape, sentiment, and leave its origination to the very few qualified ones.

Chronic objectors pursue a very dangerous calling. They not only attempt to create a public sentiment based on poorly digested facts, but act as a disturbing and doubting influence among those already satisfied. Fortunately, such people are usually known in a community, and their influence is thereby weakened accordingly, for the "knocker" is never gone to for safe advice. By all odds, and should be generally applied, for the the man who is more apt to agree, than to disagree, with the trend of public sentiment, is not only wise, but popular as well, and when the time comes for him to exert real influence, he is in a position to do so.

Perhaps as dangerous a course as any other is that which places all questions on a "shopping" basis-one which fails to discriminate between matters as to their relative importance; and the influence of their results. Some questions can be criticised and speculated with without barm, while others must be handled soberly and conscientiously. The niceties of discrimination, therefore, are regarded by those who are wise, and disregarded by those who are selfish, or who disagree largely for the sake of disagreement, and without caring particularly for what may follow after.

It is a splendid trait, therefore, for even those recognized as leaders, to sound the depths and observe the trend. of sentiment, and in most cases fall in line with it. It is not always an evidence of superior judgment to object, or to advise something different; rather, it wisdom to work for harmony and content, for even then the future is likely to

The Superintendent of Public Schools in Philadelphia has issued an order against pupils giving Christmas presents to teachers, as well as against teachers giving presents to pupils, post cards being excepted. This is a very wise order,practice, on both sides, has many objectionable features.

Pupils who can afford to give teachers expensive presents, not only make the less fortunate pupils keenly feel their poverty, but the former are apt, by their gifts, to be favored by the teacher; while the giving of gifts by the teacher to. pupils is an expensive proposition, and one which the teacher can ill afford on account of his or her limited salary. Besides, when such gifts are in the form of very cheap candy, the gift is an injury rather than of benefit, to the recipient. The best gift pupils can make their teachers is absolute obedience and close application to their studies; while the best gift the teacher can give to pupils is his very best and conscientious service. without favoritism. When these two obligations are fully met, there is no debt due from one to the other, even at Christmas-unless it be an appropriate card containing the season's greetings.

Snails Hard to Kill.

"Do you know," said an eminent naturalist, "I consider a snail the greatest curiosity in the animal kingdom. Here is a snail which you can see is alive, yet I have had it packed away for fifteen years under the impression that it was dead. This is even more astonishing than that of the Egyptian desert snail which came to life upon being immersed in warm water after it had passed four years glued to a card in the British museum.

"Nothing seems to kill a snail except piercing its vitals or burning it. A snail may be frozen for weeks in a solid block of ice and be thawed out alive. The eggs of this creature are as hard to destroy as itself. They seem perfectly indifferent to freezing and have been known to prove productive after having been shriveled up in an oven to the semblance of grains of sand."

Who First Made Ice Cream?

The first ice cream maker is said to have been a French confectioner, who prepared the dainty for the Duc de Chartres in 1774. Lord Bacon was aware of the process of congelation by means of snow and salt, but to him it was a scientific fact of greater or less interest, and he had no idea of the delightful possibilities of this process on various eatables. Iced drinks and water ices were known to the Parisian epicures a century and a half earlier, the dainties having probably come from the far east by the hand of some traveler who had tasted sherbet.

The special services by Rev. J. A. Garber, of Washington, closed on Sunday evening. Mr. Garber was agree-ably entertained during the week by the members of the faculty On Wednesday, Dec. 21, at 8 p. m., the students of our musical department will give a Christmas recital. The concert will be free. The friends of the in-stitution and the public cordially invited. Don't forget the lectures, on Friday and Saturday night, Dec. 16 and 17, by Dr. W. J. McNight, who hails from the Mohawk Valley, in New York. He is a Deformed Dechatering minister and Reformed Presbyterian minister and comes highly recommended. The lectures will te free and all will be welcome, Sleighing parties are all the rage now. On the closing days of last week many happy couples from the college were out. As the shades of night were fall-ing, on Monday evening, about fifty students were comfortably seated in three large sleds. Two of the parties had been invited to go to New Windsor, while the other was invited to go to Uniontown and Middleburg. The New Windsor party was entertained at the home of Mr. A. P. Snader, where many enter-taining footness was indeled in Attack taining features were indulged in. At a late hour all were invited to the diningroom to partake of the many delicious refreshments. The Uniontown and Middeburg party was entertained at the residences of Elder W. P. Englar and Fred Littlefield. Miss Edith Pfoutz, a popular member of the '12 class, royally entertained the 1911 juniors, otherwise known as the "big twelve," at her home, on Wednes-day evening. Sleighs and sleds were provided for the happy members. After a pleasant ride they arrived at her home and noisely helped to surprise her parents, who were surely taken unawares. The evening was spent in having a good time. Various games, recitations and music was indulged in until a summons to appear in the dining room was heeded. If this first banquet to the '12 class is a forerunner of what is to come later, surely they will all have to "make way, make way for the big juniors." Many of us had never before seen so many "good eats" of every description, much less having a chance to eat to our heart's content. After theapling the heart's content. An Effort to End all War.

Washington, Dec. 14 .- Surrounded by 27 trustees of his choosing, comprising former Cabinet members, former ambassadors, college presidents, lawyers and educators, Andrew Carnegie today transferred $10,000,000 in 5 per cent first mortgage bonds, value $11,500,000, to be devoted primarily to the establishment of universal peace by the abolition of war between nations and such friction as may impair "the progress and happiness of man." When wars between nations shall have ceased the fund is to be applied to such altruistic purposes as "will best help man in his glorious ascent onward and upward" by the banishment of the "most degrading evil or evils then harassing mankind. As Mr. Carnegie read an informal deed of trust, announcing at length the general purpose of the gift, there was prolonged applause. He then explained the incidents which inspired the giving of the money at this time. He declared with emphasis that if the Englishspeaking race in the United States and Great Britain once consolidated in the movement for international peace, the success of the measure in the rest of the world would be assured. That Great Britain stood ready to co-operate with this country, Mr. Carnegie said he felt certain, and all that was now needed, he added, was that concurrence of the President and the Senate in promul gating the movement on behalt of the United States. A resolution of thanks was presented by Joseph H. Choate, former United States Ambassador to Great Britain, which was adopted. John L. Cadwallader, of New York, proposed that a committee of seven be appointed to con-sider the subject of the organization of the body of trustees, the form of charter to be obtained and other details of organization. Stood For Wrong Song.

The growing custom of acknowledging the national anthem when it is played in theatres and concert halls receives a setback and opens the patriotically inclined to attacks of the cynical through the ignorance of many as to what the national anthem is. Recently, at one of the Baltimore theatres the orchestra was playing a medley of patriotic airs. It broke forth into 'Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue," a favorite of schoolboy days, and a tall, bewhiskered old gentleman sitting down front, evidently a veteran of the Civil War, rose and stood at at tention.

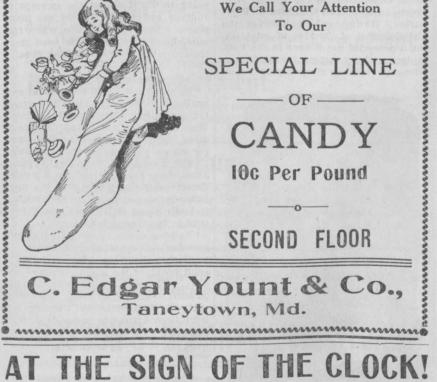

Two or three youths near him caught the fever and rose to their feet. Others in the audience, feeling the call of their patriotism and desiring to appear well in the eyes of their fellows, followed suit, and in a short time all save a few were standing. When the piece was over and the tune changed all sat down. Suddenly, however, there was a bustle in the orchestra, and at a sign from the leader every man rose to his feet, and the strains of the much-maligned but undeniably inspiring "Star-Spangled Banner" welled forth. The audience realized its mistake and rose again, while those who had sat their ground in Aviator Cord and Wire.

The arrival of the aeroplane has given us a new industry, or rather a modification of an old one-namely, that of manufacturing aviator cord and aviator wire. The Roeblings have devised a special kind of wire aviator cord to be used for stays on aeroplanes. The cord consists of a number of fine wires of great strength stranded together. The strength of the different sizes runs approximately from 2.000 to 2.300 pounds. For steering gear a more flexible cord is provided, composed of six strands of seven wires each, with a center of either cotton or wire. The aviator wire differs from aviator cord in that it consists of a single wire instead of a number of wires twisted together. The wire is made in twelve sizes, with a breaking strength that varies from 2,000 pounds to 175.-Scientific Ameri-

A Land of Hotels.

Those who know Switzerland best will be least astonished at the figures which M. A. Danzat publishes in his work on Switzerland, recently issued in Paris, for since there is a hotel on nearly every hilltop and scores round every one of the larger lakes it is more than credible that there are 2,000 hotels in the twenty-two cantons. In the Grisons, the most sparsely inhabited canton, in which even the larger towns rarely have a population of more than 1,500, there are no less than 358 hotels and boarding houses, while the canton of Berne, which includes such favorite places as Interlaken, Thun and Grindelwald, has more than 400. There are 135,000 beds in the 2,000 hotels, but these are by no means sufficient during the "haute saison," when many a tired tourist is glad to get a bed made up on the billiard table.-Dundee Advertiser.

The fact that he is a Democrat demonstrates that the President in naming him to succeed Chief Justice Fuller dismissed political considerations entirely and had in view public estimation as a jurist of profound learning and as a constitutional lawyer of high attainments, while his long service as an associate justice averts the uneasiness that would have followed the naming of a new and an untried man. Church Bows to the Rich.

A call for a new kind of church was sounded by Rev. Dr. George Chalmers Richmond last Sunday evening when in his sermon in St. John's Church, Philadelphia, he answered the criticism of the Episcopal Church recently made by Rev. Dr. Rainsford. After teiling what Dr. Rainsford had done for religion and declaring that the church today is called upon to show forth its powers of moral and spiritual adventure, Dr. Richmond said:-

A Firelight Party.

"A pleasant little holiday entertainment that could be readily copied in any locality was one for which the invitation cards were decorated with tiny pen-andink sketches of hearthstones with burning logs thereon," says Mary Dawson in Woman's Home Companion, for December. "The gathering was named as 'A Firelight Party,' and the guests were urged in the text to come and read the pictures in the fire' on a certain day and date.

"The company arrived on the occasion appointed to find the living-hall lighted by a genial hickory blaze which formed the principal illumination, other lumineries in the form of gas and lamps being turned low or extinguished. The fireplace itself was prettily set off with a background of green pine boughs and garlands of hemlock and evergreen.

"After an exchange of greetings all gathered around the fireplace while the entertainer read aloud the touching passages from 'Our Mutual Friend' where Lizzie Hexam reads the pictures in the glowing firelight for her younger brother. Afterward paper and pencils were there were fully 1,200 men in the Bread distributed and each was asked to write a short description of the picture seen ia the fire on the present occasion. Lesson XIII.-Fourth Quarter, For Dec. 25, 1910.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Luke ii, 6-20. Memory Verses, 13, 14-Golden Text, Luke ii, 11-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

As the review suggested for today is wholly concerning some events in the last week of His earthly sojourn. His death and His resurrection, we cannot do better than to take the Christmas lesson suggested, as He was made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, (Gal. iv, 4, 5). This was all in the fullness of time, and when another fullness of time shall have come He will come again to fulfill all that is written of His kingdom and glory as literally as at His first coming He fulfilled all that was written of His humiliation. All nations will be moved as far as need be to bring about the events connected with His return, as at the first Caesar was moved, he knew not why, to decree that all the world should be enrolled. A Jewish decree would require only the men to go (Ex. xxiii, 17), but it is evident that the Roman decree required women as well as men. Had He been put to death by the Jews it would have been by stoning, but the prediction required crucifixion (Ps. xxii, 16), and the Romans were in power at His death as well as at His birth, that all Scripture might be fulfiled. Dr. Pierson says that "all history is His story," and it must be true that all events in all nations are working out the eternal purpose which has been purposed in Christ Jesus.

Doubtless many a Jewish woman coveted to be the one of whom Isa. vii. 14, spake, but it was reserved for this humble maiden of Nazareth to be thus honored. It had to be some one of the tribe of Judah, and the birth had to be in Bethlehem (Gen. xlix, 10; Mic. v, 2). This had been decreed centuries before-yea, before the world was. So they came to Bethlehem, to the same city to which Ruth came with Naomi and where David afterward kept his father's sheep. But the guest chamber was not ready; there was no room for them in the inn. These words "inn" and "guest chamber" (verse 7 and xxii, 11) are the same words and. I think, used only in these two places. (Look it up. I have no Greek concordance at hand.) Can you truly say "There is room in my 'heart, Lord Jesus, room for Thee?"

From the story of Hagar in Gen. xvi all the way to Rev. xxii, 16, how fascinating is the record of heavenly ministry by those who hearken unto the voice of His word and do His pleasure (Ps. ciii, 20-21). How comforting the assurance of Heb. i, 14, that they are still ministering to us and have constant access to our Father in heaven thing. Of course His physical body (Matt. xviii, 10). So here the angels come, not to any great ones of earth. away, for if I go not away the Combut to those who as to their occupation followed in the steps of Abel, Jacob. Moses, David and others. I often think of Zeph. iii, 12, "I will also leave in the midst of thee an afflicted and poor people, and they shall trust in the name of the Lord," and also of Matt. v, 3. "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." How precious are the "fear nots" of angels and of the Lord from Genesis to Revelation! But they are only precious as we appropriate them and in them hear His voice to us individually. Does the saying "good tidings of great joy" still hold good? If so, where are the joyful people who rejoice with joy unspeakable and live to make the tidings known to all people. Then hear the multitude of the heav. enly host as they praise God and say, ["Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men' (verse 14). Note that "glory to God" must be first always, whether it be church or missionary work or individual service. The Lord alone must be exalted. We must cry, as the seraphim and cherubim do, "Holy, holy, holy is the Lord of Hosts!" "Holy, holy, holy, Lord God Almighty" (Isa. vi, 3; Rev. iv. 8). That will sink our society, denomination or church completely out of sight if only the earth may be filled with His glory. All offerings, like those of the wise men. will then be unto Him rather than unto any particular work for the work's sake. All our service and even our eating and drinking should be to the end that God may in all things be glorified through Jesus Christ (I Pet. iv, 11; I Cor. x. 31). The angels went away into heaven (verse 15). It sounds easy, but who can do it? Men are being honored by nations today if they can stay a few hours in the air and move from place to place. The shepherds unquestioningly believed the angels' message, went and found as they had said and then made it known abroad, glorifying and praising God for all the things they had heard and seen. The people wondered as they heard, but Mary kept all in her heart and pondered them. It is only as we keep in our hearts and ponder the things of God that we will be in any degree benefited. It is only as we muse that the fire will burn, and we will speak that we may be refreshed (Ps. xxxix, 3; Job xxxii, 20).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning Dec. 25, 1910. Topic.—"Be born in us today."—Eph. iii, 14-21. (Christmas meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D.

Today is the birthday of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. But Christ was not only born of the Virgin Mary by the power of the Holy Ghost, but He is also capable of being born into the human heart or of coming by faith into the hearts and lives of men and dwelling there and directing the motives and aspirations of the heart and the external acts of the life, which are the fruits or results of Christ "dwelling in us by faith."

The birth of Christ into the human heart is a mystery. This cannot be denied. No more can it be denied that it is a fact. This is the important phase of this tremendous claim. What matters the mystery if the glorious fact be true? The blind man could not explain how he was healed, but that was of little importance to him since he could say, "Whereas I was blind, now I see." His concern was not about the method of his being made to see, but it was concerned only with the fact that he could see. He knew he had been blind. But whereas he had been blind he knew that he could see. That was all sufficient for him. Hence if we know that Christ does dwell in our hearts, has been born in us by the power of the Spirit, why should we worry about the mystery in connection with the event itself? His own birth is mysterious, and many doubt or deny the virgin birth of Christ, but if we believe it, accept it and act upon it there need be no sleepless nights spent in considering how it could have been. "With God all things are possible." So it should be with Christ's indwelling in us.

The Scriptures declare the fact of Christ's indwelling presence. The topical inference consists of Paul's prayer for the Ephesians. It follows in form the Lord's Prayer, having (1) a preface, (2) petitions, (3) a benediction or doxology. This entire prayer is well worth our close and prayerful study. In one of the petitions Paul prays "that Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith." Paul had had a deep religious experience. He spoke from experience. Christ lived or dwelt in Him by faith. To the Galatians he writes, "It is no longer I that live, but Christ liveth in me, and the life which I now live I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave Himself for me" (Gal. ii, 20). If in Paul and in the Ephesians Christ lived He can and will also dwell in all who accept Him by faith.

The character of Christ demonstrates His indwelling presence. Christ is divine; He is deity-not divine merely in the sense that we are all divine or possess the image of God. He is "very God of my God." Hence He is omnipotent, all powerful and can do anydoes not dwell in our bodies. No one It is spiritually that He abides with "It is expedient for you that I go forter [the Holy Spirit] will not come unto you." He also says to His disciples, "Abide in me and I in you." "I in you!" This is His own declaration, and, being God, He can and will fulfill Personal experience proves the indwelling presence of Christ. Millions can testify by experience of the presence of Christ in them. What more do we want? The question of great importance now is, Does Christ dwell in me? If not, let Him come in newthis Christmas time-today! Today is the only day we are assured of. Yesterday is past, and tomorrow will never come. On a Christmas Sabbath evening a pastor closed his Christmas sermon by saying: "This is the day of giving gifts. Why not give to Him whose birthday we commemorate, the best of all gifts-yourself? He invites you to come. Will you accept His invitation?" A youth about seventeen years of age accepted, made a Christmas gift of himself to Christ and is now a successful minister of the gos-"Let the dear Saviour come inpel. today."

Didn't Expect.

By FRITZ KORSMEYER.

When the maid opened the door a gust of December wind, carrying with it a few flakes of snow, followed the tall, stiff form of Crancer through the vestibule and into the hall As the maid had spent years in the service of the Garrisons, she ventured a restrained "Good evening," but Crancer calmly stalked by her over to the hall tree. When he had put aside his things and turned to her again she said: "Mr. Robert is in his room, sir. Shall

I tell him you are here or will you"-"I'll go up. He's expecting me."

At the head of the stairs he knocked at his friend's room and entered. "Sorry to keep you waiting, old man; ready in a few minutes. Sit down and make yourself comfortable, won't you?

Crancer took the proffered cigar and smoked in silence a few minutes while his friend worked at his cravat.

"I had a rather peculiar talk with Miles today," began Crancer in a tone that led Garrison to stop whistling and mumble an encouraging monosyllable; "happened to meet him on the street, you know, just as I was going into Hope's to look at a few Christmas things. He had such a long face on that I thought he needed jollying up a bit. Not like him to need cheering, is it?"

"Scarcely," assented Garrison, with an uneasy laugh. "But of course you know that Charlie has had some occasion to look glum lately."

"Oh, yes; I've heard the family fortunes have been rather going to pot. Well, as I said, I started in to chaff him about Christmas gifts. I bought a few trifles, but most of the time I was showing Miles things that I said a man with a fiancee ought to be interested in, and he was. Several times I thought he was in the point of buying something worth giving, but he finally said he couldn't decide. We walked up the street together, and Miles fell to speculating in a general way as to what girls expected of their fiances at Christmas time. He seemed to want my opinion. Queer of him to come to me with that sort of talk, wasn't it, Bob?"

"Yes, but I suppose he thought you didn't know enough about his affairs to suspect that he was talking of his own case. Men who are in love always talk glittering generalities, while they haven't a thing in mind but their own particular affair, supposing other people won't know it. What did you tell him?"

"Well, I said it depended largely upon what girls had been taught to expect. From that we drifted into a discussion as to what a man should do when his prospects changed during his engagement. Miles said that to the man was looking into the fire. She moved the stand nearer him. "I want these close to us this evening. Don't you think they should be?

Why don't you reprove me for being sentimental, as you always do? Or are you already under the influence of tomorrow and kindly disposed toward every one, even me?"

"Even you. Now, Martha"-"Oh, well, I'll take it back if you don't like it," she hastened to say, laughing, then in a tone of almost bantering tenderness: "My dear, I wanted to tell you about some plans for tomorrow, but how can I talk Christmas when you are in such a solemn state? You'd dishearten Santa Claus himself."

"I've been thinking," answered Miles slowly, "that perhaps you may have thought the roses-may have taken them in a way-may perhaps have misunderstood them a little." He rose, took a few steps around the room and "It occurred to me after I had sent them that as they would arrive this evening you might not take them asas my gift. I must tell you something that has been troubling me for a long time. Things are not quite the same with father and me as they were when I first met you. Perhaps you knew There was a questioning inflection in his last words. The girl's face had paled a little, but just the faintest smile curved her lips. She was gazing steadfastly at the rose jar, on which her hand rested, and she made no answer. "Until Christmas came I did not re alize the change in our prospects," he went on steadily. "Perhaps I did not want to think of that, but if it does make a difference, why, then". Martha was looking straight into his eyes with an expression of infinite tenderness.

"It has made a difference, Charles, all the difference in the world. I have been wondering for weeks what you would like for a Christmas gift, and what you have said tonight solves the problem." There was a queer little catch in her voice, but she went on bravely. "And I've decided, sweetheart, to give you that which I think you need most of all"-her hand crept tremulously into his-"myself." Miles stared at her in a dazed fashion, and she smiled at him gently.

"I realize now, dear, how selfish I was to insist on being a June bride just because my mother and Nell had been married in June. The family will all be here tomorrow, even Aunt Helen from Toronto. Of course it would be such a quiet wedding-no finery, no gifts-but I thought that now, whenyou were in-trouble, you might need me-and"-

The matter of fact Miles was alive to the whole glorious meaning of words now, and, drawing her to he murmured brokenly:

"If I need you! Oh, you can't u stand how much!"

* * * * * The Christmas chimes were rin as Miles left the house. A few ments later Martha stood before gas log in her own room. A half ful smile settled about her lips.

"And I haven't even a new frock that will pass for a wee dress!" she murmured. Then she crossed to a quaint of drawers and drew forth a Quiet Moments.

In every church there should be a quiet moment after the benediction, when with bowed heads and reverent mien we wait before God for the blessing which has just been invoked upon us all. In this respect the Episcopalians set an admirable example to most denominations in this country, though I have seen the same quiet moment observed in some Presbyterian churches in this country and always in Scotland. Why should not every service, whether preaching, prayer meeting or Christian Endeavor, be closed with a silent moment of meditation and prayer with bowed head and closed eyes?

I commend this heartily as an invariable rule for the close of every Christian Endeavor meeting.

Then when the benediction is pronounced there is another chance to show that God and heavenly things mean something to us by not relapsing into the frivolous small talk which often occupies the first half hour after the service .-- Francis E. Clark, D. D.

I told him a man never knows what kind of girl he is likely to care for or what kind he is caring for, so far as that goes, and I said that if I were engaged to a girl I wouldn't take any chances at Christmas. Now, we men know that nothing remains to be bought as a Christmas gift that we wouldn't just as soon be without, but women don't know it and never will, and so they go on, expecting joyous astonishment every year.

"Still, I don't believe Martha's just like other girls in that respect.'

"Oh, I don't mean that she cares particularly for what Miles may give her, if I may touch on such matters. But wouldn't any girl of the proper spirit expect- By the way," Crancer broke off, interrupting himself and glancing toward the half open door, "I saw a light across the hall when I came up. Is that"-

"Yes, that's Martha's room, but I think she's downstairs." Garrison went to the door and called his sister's name. Receiving no response, he returned.

"Her door was open, but she didn't answer, so she isn't upstairs. Shall we go now?"

At the foot of the stairs they encountered Miles, who had just come in. The three men chatted a moment. Then young Garrison and Crancer went out. Miles thought Martha looked at him more seriously than usual as she gave him her hand, but her eyes were bright, and when she spoke there was a touch of gayety in her voice.

"Sit by the fire, won't you?" she urged. "You must be nearly frozen. I like snow for Christmas, but without this freezing temperature." She pushed a chair nearer the fire and then crossed to a stand where huge roses were nodding over the edge of a cut glass jar and gathered them in her arms.

"How do you always manage to find the most perfect blossoms for me. Charles?" the girl asked indistinctly, her face hidden in the roses. She raised her head for an answer, but the package tied with blue ribbons. From a nest of tissue paper she unwrapped a man's traveling set in richest silver. Piece by piece she laid it forth on her dressing table, breathing an occasional sigh. "In the morning early I shall have Nell exchange it for two scarfpins, just alike, for Bob and Crancer. Really, Crancer ought to be best man, if there was such a personage, tomorrow."

The Tree of Captain Jas.

A curious tree grows in the cemetery of Tanah-Abang, at Weltevreden, Batavia, isle of Java, Dutch East Indies, which is called the tree of "Father (or Captain) Jas." Father Jas, an officer of the old East India company, died in 1795 and was the first man whose remains were buried in the above named cemetery, or, as people in Batavia used to say, he was the first inhabitant of Tanah-Abang. In the course of time a wild fig tree commenced to grow on the grave and is at the present time a large tree with a heavy trunk that embraces in its roots the original tombstone. Only a few portions of this stone are now visible. There is a strange superstition about this tree, people saying that when a lady makes a wish at the grave beneath it the wish is fulfilled, but the wisher ought to hang a garland on the tree. It seems, indeed, that many wishes are fulfilled, as a large number of garlands adorn the tree. At Christmas time especially the tree is decorated with many fresh garlands .- Strand Magazine.

She Was Ticklish.

"Tell us the latest funny story, old man."

"I don't know any funny storiesnever told a funny story in my life." "What was that story you told to your wife last night?"

"I did not tell her a story."

"Then what was she laughing at: She was laughing so that everybody in the house was aroused, and we were all out in the hallway listening."

"Oh, that?"

"Yes, that."

"Why, you see a mosquito had bitten her on the sole of one of her feet, and It itched terribly."

"I fail to see anything funny about that." .

"No, but you see it itched so that she just had to scratch it, and every time she scratched it it tickled. She came very near to having hysterics."-Houston Post.

That Cold Room

on the side of the house where winter blasts strike hardest always has a lower temperature than the rest of the house. There are times when it is necessary to raise the temperature quickly or to keep the temperature up for a long period. That can't be done by the regular method of heating without great trouble and overheating the rest of the house. The only reliable method of heating such a room alone by other means is to use a which can be kept at full or low heat for a short or long time. Four quarts of oil will give a glowing heat for nine hours, without smoke or smell.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. Filler-cap does not screw on; but is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached by a chain and cannot get lost.

An automatic-locking flame spreader prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back so that it can be cleaned in an instant.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, and can be unscrewed in an instant for rewicking. Finished in japan or nickel, strong, durable, well-made, built for service, and yet light and ornamental. Has a cool handle.
