Ex-Speaker Cannon has declined an offer of $500.00 a night for 100 nights on the lecture platform, giving as his reason that he is "to busy."

The Union Bridge Pilot has moved into new enlarged quarters, more conveniently located. We congratulate our neighbor on this evidence of progress and prosperity, and also on the fact that hereafter, with more roomy and desir-able surroundings, work will be easier and more agreeable.

The wheat and grass fields are said to be very promising, notwithstanding the drcuth of last fall, and the severity and changeable character of the winter. All Spring work is well in hand, and when the weather finally settles, farmers will be in shape to push farm work ahead rapidly, and on time.

Representative Champ Clark, of Missouri, will be the loser of a good portion of $9000., on account of the extra session of Congress. He had signed contracts for a Chautauqua circuit of 10 weeks at $900.00 a week and expenses. His plan was to start in Philadelphia, March 6, and talk his way to the Pacific coast and

Mr. Ballinger, Secretary of the Interior, who first tendered his resignation on Jan. 19, renewed it on March 6, and it was accepted. The President appoint ed Walter L. Fisher, of Chicago, to succeed him, and proclaimed that the retiring Secretary was a man of the purest otives, and that he has been maliciously defamed.

The Pennsylvania legislature, this week, practically killed local option legislation for the session by voting, 121 to 76 against placing the Boyd local option bill on the calendar. This bill made wards and townships the unit for voting on the liquor question. It is thought that a bill providing for a county unit would have a better chance of passage, at least for certain counties.

Fifteen separate ton loads of coal were weighed in Philadelphia, on Monday, by inspectors. The loads were ordered by regular customers, from different yards, and it was not known by the dealers that they were to be officially weighed. Of the 15 loads, all were short of a ton from 19 to as high as 393 pounds, except one load which was 141 pounds over-weight about half of the loads averaged about 200 pounds short.

The Rev. B. F. Alleman, D. D., pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, Lancaster, has been elected president of the Board of Church Extension of the Lutheran General Synod. He succeeds the Rev. Dr. William S. Freas, D. D., who died in Baltimore recently. Dr. Alleman is the father of Dr. Herbert C. Alleman who will succeed Dr. T. C. Billheimerat the Gettysburg Theological Seminary in September.

The New York legislature adjourned, on Saturday, without electing a U. S. Senator. New York, therefore, will have but one representative in the extra session. Governor Dix sent to the Democratic members a letter advocating the abandoment of Mr. Sheehan, the candidate of Tammany, but it had no result other than the cause the hope that another caucus may be held, at which Sheehan may not win, but there is little chance of any such result.

J. Hollin Kefauver, a prominent citizen of Middletown, Frederick county, was arrested, on Wednesday, charged with setting fire to a warehouse in Middletown which contained 70 lime spreaders, the property of the accused and his brother, Daniel Kefauver, on which there was insurance of about $3,500. At a hearing before Justice Eckstein, Kefauver was placed under $2500, bail for his appearance before the Grand Jury. The case was worked up by State Fire Marshal, Thomas J. Ewell.

Court each saloon keeper and hotel proprietor was furnished with a printed list of thirty men who have been put in the habitually intemperate class, and were warned not to sell liquor to any member of that fraternity under penalty of revocation of their liquor selling privilege. The blacklist contains the names of some of the county's best-known characters and is said to have originated by prominent citizens who are seeking to improve conditions in Lehigh county so far as the sale of liquor is concerned.

Death of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Feeser.

A most unusual occurrence was the death, on Monday afternoon, within a half hour of each other, of an aged man and wife—Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah D. Feeser, who lived on the Gettysburg road, north of Harney. Both died of pneumonia, with which they had suffered for about a week. Mr. and Mrs. Feeser had resided in Taneytown district and vicinity all their lives, and were well known and highly respected.

Mr. Feeser's age was 76 years and ten days, and that of Mrs. Feeser, 75 years.
Both were born in Adams county, Pa., the latter being a daughter of Samuel Arentz. They leave the following children: Messrs. Harry L. and William G. Feeser, of Tareytown district; Theodore H., of near Harney, and Mrs. Quincy Shoemaker, of Emmitsburg.

The double funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon, at the Harney Lutheran church, the services being in charge of Rev. P. T. Stockslager.

Exit Congressman Goulden.

A letter from Ex-Congressman Goulden, of New York, to the Editor of the RECORD says:

'I am home, after witnessing the close of the 61st. Congress, as well as that of my public life, I am heartily glad to be relieved of the cares and responsibilities, and especially in view of the extra session. The census gave my district (the 18th. N. Y.) a population of 524,000, the largest by fully 150,000 in the country, altogether too much for one man to

The above raises the thought—why should not Mr. Goulden go back to Congress again, as representative of one of the new districts which will be credited to N. Y. City? Perhaps after taking a good rest on the European trip, he will return finding the inclination, as well as the open way, for a return to the position wherein he has served so splendidly during the past eight years. The daily North Side News, published in his district, contains the following on his re-

"His four terms in the House have been of great value to the North Side. Although throughout his entire period of service he has been on the minority side of the Chamber, he has exercised great influence and thus has been able to secure the passage of many bills of exceptional importance to his constituents.

Had he not chosen to decline a fifth nomination and election, Colonel Goulden would undoubtedly have been named by the next Speaker to the chairmanship of one of the most important House Committees, and in this way the Bronx would have secured unprecedented rec-ognition in Congress. No new man, however able he may be, can obtain at the outset that distinction that is accorded to a veteran of several terms, and especially to a veteran in the high position occupied by Congressman

Goulden. It is to be regretted that in retiring from Congress, Colonel Goulden quits public life, feeling that he has resched an age when he is entitled to a release from the arduous duties of a Congressman, and can give himself a vacation. While a man of his active spirit dislikes leisure, and is ill fitted to enjoy it, there comes a time when relaxation from work is more or less a physicial necessi-Although Colonel Goulden is still in the full possession of his powers, yet he thinks that a period of rest and recreation will secure him a paid up insurance policy for a green old age.

Directors Dine and Deliberate.

[For the RECORD.] Last evening, at the Central Hotel, the Directors of the Taneytown Baseball Club sat down to a "Dutch treat" dinner-every man paying for his own enjoyment. Mr. Robert Stott, Secretary and Treasurer of the Athletic Association, personally presented each member of the Board, and Captain Mehring and Manager Otto, with a neat Taneytown souvenir stickpin.

Ex-Gov. Frank Brown has been ill since Sunday night, under the care of two physicians. The Governor went to the Maryland Club, Sunday evening, but returned to his apartment at the Stafford hotel early, complaining that he did not feel well. 'SQUATTING" IN MONTANA.

What it Means to Locate in a New Town on Uncle Sam's Domain.

Several readers of the RECORD have asked me to write for publication, giving information regarding townsites, squatters rights, and the requirements of "squatters," etc. I much prefer to correspond with my friends, personally, but as it is apparently impossible to correspond with them otherwise, I ask for elemency from those to whom my letters are uninteresting.

The townsite of Big Arm, to the casual observer, was nothing but a big, naked field, but to him who looked closer it revealed about 210 acres surveyed into building lots, blocks, streets and alleys. The plats of the town have not as yet been issued, hence we have no guide except the surveyor's stakes. If the stakes were removed, broken off, or driven in the ground out of sight, you did your best without them, locating. To the inexperienced, the stakes represented a veritable puzzle.

I quote, as follows, the Act relative to the townsites in what was known as the Flathead Indian Reservation, in the state of Montana: "That any person who, at the date when the appraisers commence their work upon the land, shall be an actual resident upon any one such lot and the owner of substantial and permanent improvements thereon, and who shall maintain his or her residence and improvements on such lot to the date of his or her application to enter, shall be entitled to enter, at any time prior to the day fixed for the public sale, and at the appraised value there-of, such lot and any one additional lot of which he or she may also be in possession and upon which he or she may have substantial and permanent improve-

Here you are; if you know what to do, get busy. The townsite of Big Arm is under the supervision of the Indian Agent, generally speaking. The proper method of procedure is to select the lot, or lots, you want, and then apply to the Indian Agent for permission to squat upon and build upon selected lots. you conduct legitimate business you experience no difficulty in securing your permits. You will notice, the Act regarding townsites makes no mention of 'permits'' hence the value of a permit has been questioned, many holding that the building would hold the lot or lots.

Maj. Morgan, the Indian Agent, paid us a brief visit the other day and clearly stated the value of permits issued from his agency. The first permit issued has prior right over everything, and since this decision has come to hand, the situation with a few people here is somewhat uncomfortable. There are cases where a man has entered his building on a lot and another man holds the permit for the same lot.

Since we know that the first permit holds, one does not know where he stands, because each permit reads "providing permission has not heretofore been given to other parties for the same lots." When you get your permit to occupy the lots you have selected, you do not know whether or not someone else holds a prior date permit, and has not yet begun to build.

Each person, (except man and wife and minor children) is allowed to occuby two lots in any section of the townsite, on one of which you reside, the other is your place of business. You will notice that the Act does not specify what constitutes "substantial and per-manent improvements." This matter is in the discretion of the board of appraisers, who appraise every lot and note the character of buildings and the occupant. If the buildings are considered "permanent and substantial" the owner and occupant has the right to purchase the lots at the price appraised. All lots not purchased at the appraised price by the parties having such right, are sold to the highest bidder at the public sale along with the unoccupied lots. The minimum appraised price of any lot s $10.00; the maximum price is unlim-

For the Starving in China.

Seattle, Wash., March 7.—The United States Army Transport Buford, loaded with provisions for the famine sufferers in North China, has sailed for Chinkiang, flying the penants of the National Red Cross, the Christian Herald, of New York, and the Seattle Commercial Club. The last available cargo space was filled late Sunday night when of rice, purchased with a contribution of $1,000 telegraphed from Reading, Pa., were stowed away by longshoremen, who loaded the relief ship free of charge. The cargo of the Buford, valued at

There was a regular meeting of the Board of School Commissioners, on Monday, the 6th, instant.

Whereas under the present law governing High Schools in the State, Domestic Science is required, and unless this Department is added, High Schools of Group one will not be eligible to receive the extra appropriation from the State, an order was passed to open a Department of Domestic science in the Westminster High School, in order to comply with the school law.

The young ladies of the 10th, and 11th, grades will be able to study cooking, with practical lessons, next year, in this most widely appreciated art. The State Superintendent suggests that the former Manual Training room be fitted up with concrete basement as a suitable room in which to install this Department. More than a score of High Schools in the State have already added cooking, sewing and other practical accomplishments for young ladies.

The Commissioners discussed the outlook of public education in the County, and listened to some earnest requests for increased accommodations, where the present houses are thought to be small and otherwise unsatisfactory.

A letter was read to the Board setting forth the plans of the committee who have under consideration the question of moving the State Normal School out of the city of Baltimore, and erecting more commodious buildings in some rural section adjacent to the city.

This Woman a Dead Shot.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 3.—"Sis" Rader, the best rifle and pistol shot in West Virginia, and probably the best woman shot in the world, has arrived at the state penitentary at Moundsville to serve a ten-year sentence for the murder of a man named Starbuck in Fayette county several months ago. The two had some trouble and both are said to have reached for their weapons at the same time, but "Sis" was quicker "on the draw" and had fired before her male antagonist had got his gun from his

The woman is a product of the mountains in the southern part of the state, and learned to be a "gun-fighter" when she was a child. When a girl of tender years she "shot her man" on a lonely mountain road. It is said that the man insulted her. At any rate, although, he was badly wounded, the girl was exonerated. After this she figured in a number of shooting scrapes, always being the first to fire.

During her lurid career she has never been wounded, although several times she has had very narrow escapes. Enemies have fired at her from ambush, but so far she has escaped uninjured. It is said that up to 1,000 yards her aim is deadly with the rifle and that she shoots with a revolver from the shoulder or the hip, never missing. At turkey shoots back in the mountains, in which the very best shots among the mountain people take part, she has always carried away first prize.

Announcements of Candidacy.

Candidates for County offices, this year, must make themselves known to the people, instead of to a County Convention. In other words, they must announce themselves, in advance of the primaries, in order that their desires may be known to the voters throughout the County-they must advertise, in order to receive votes. The RECORD is open for this class of business, from both parties. As the circulation of this paper is both large, and of a bi-partism character, it will be especially desirable for the use of both Democratic and Re-our sixteen years.

EXTRA SESSION APRIL 4.

Closing House of Congress very Disorderly. Democratic Insurgency.

Scenes of the wildest disorder marked the closing hours of both Senate and House, when the 61st. Congress adjourn-ed, last Saturday. Not in the memory of the oldest attendants about the Capitol have such disgraceful scenes been enacted; dignity, and even common decency, having been largely cast aside. Col. Goulden says that while the scenes were turbulent, they were not anything like as bad as the newspapers reports indicate.

The Tariff Commission bill was withdrawn in the House, after it had passed the Senate, consequently it died. The Sulloway pension bill also failed of passage, as did Reciprocity with Canada. The joint bill for the approval of the constitutions of New Mexico and Arizona, and their admission as states, failed to and their admission as states, failed to pass the Senate, but it is claimed that as the President had approved the con stitution of the former, it will be admitted, which will apparently mean two new Republican Senators, without two offsetting Democratic senators from Arizona. The real status likely is, that both will have to wait a while.

Following the debate on the statehood question, Senator Bailey, of Texas, resigned his seat, during a fit of bad temper over the failure of his leadership. He withdrew his resignation, later, but his act practically serves notice on the Democratic party that he will be an "insurgent" in the next Congress, as he is known to be out of harmony with the majority of his party on the tariff ques-

As was definitely known, President Taft at once called an extra session of Congress, which will convene April 4. The important questions now are, will the Republican majority in the Senate be able to get together; will the House be able to pass such a tariff bill as will be passed by the Senate, and will the Democratic majority in the House be rent with "insurgency?"

Troops Sent to Mexican Border.

This country was treated to a big surprise, on Tuesday, when it was officially announced that the President had directed the War Department to send 20,-000 troops to the Mexican border, and that a number of battle ships co-operate with them. It was at first thought that the order was merely an object lesson, showing what our War Department could do, on short notice, but developments show that there is real need for the movement, or at least a combination of practice with a situation which may call for our armed invention.

Revolution has been in progress in Mexico for several months, and reports are to the effect that the Mexican government is in bad shape, especially as President Diaz is ill. Should there be an overturning of the government by insurrectos, there are great American and other foreign interests—especially English—to be protected.

All government officials are keeping quiet as to the real status of the situa-tion, but a statement is likely to be forth coming at any time. It is said that American interests alone, in Mexico, amount to one billion dollars, and that argent demands have been made by these interests for the protection of their property. It is also rumored that the Mexican government itself has asked for intervention. The latest report is that the President has admitted that the object of sending the troops is, that they may completely patrol the Mexican border and thus put an end to the revolution by cutting off the supplies from the insurgent forces.

Already the enemies of President Taft are trying to find some political object in the movement of troops which may be used to "boom" the President's popularity, and they are talking of the expence that will be incurred, and will be glad to turn the affair into a blunder of the executive.

IN LOVING REMEMBRANCE Of our dear father, Otho Augustus Shank, who died March 15, six years ago.

Dear loved one, thou art gone to the home of thy rest Where suffering no longer can harm thee, Where the songs of the good, where the hymns of the blest, Through an endless existence shall charm thee,

To those who for your loss are grieved, This consolation is given, That from a world of woe relieved, You bloom a saint in heaven.

What is death but parting breath To all must come the same, We know that thou art dead, But the righteous live again.

When on earth joys are fleeting, And heaven alone is one bright day. Prepare us Saviour for that meeting With loved ones that have passed away. Changeless world where we may ever Live with those we loved whilst here, May we so pass our earthly sojourn, That we may dwell in that bright sphere. By the Family.

Those who called Mr. Taft "jelly fish" and bewailed his lack of "back bone," ought to be honest enough to publicly revise their opinions.

IF THE REPUBLICANS in Baltimore can dodge a family quarrel, this fall, they extent of their adopting the same methhave an excellent opportunity of carrying the city, for the reason that the Democrats are divided into two hostile camps; the Mahon organization supporting Mr. Preston, for Mayor, while Ex-Gov. Brown, the newspapers-and anti-Manool for renomination. At present, it looks very much as though no matter by the defeated side. It is important, therefore, for the Republicans to be on men in the shop.

Nominations this Year.

This year, for the first time, candidates for public office in this county must present their claims before the people, instead of before a nominating convention. Voters will be called on to nominate and elect a Governor, Comptroller and Attorney-General, in the state, and in the county a State Senator, four members of the House of Delegates, State's Attorney, County Commissioner, three Judges of the Orphans' Court, Sheriff, County Treasurer and Surveyor.

All nominations are to be made by a direct vote of the people. Whether this plan will result in better nominations, remains to be seen; in this county, we think that chances are that convention nominations would be fully as good as those directly named by the people, and at a great saving of expense. However, the experiment is before us, and it must be carried out, hit or miss. Unquestionably, there will be many disappointed ones, while some of the best men who could have been quietly sought out by a convention, will not be available as contestants before the people. The contest ought to be a fair and friendly one, and those who fail should not sulk. This was the result in the Sixth District Republican Congressional primary, and the candidate (Mr. Warner) applies to Carroll county.

The above, is a gem; the only fault to be found with it is that the writer did not apply the same thoughts to other transactions than vote selling. The thoughts are there, however, and tersely stated. Speaking of the somewhat doubtful outlook for Democratic harmony in the next Congress, the Baltimore Sun says:

Senatorial Deadlocks.

The letter of Governor Dix to the Democrats in the New York Legislature, in which he deplores the fact that the Senatorial deadlock has been blocking the course of legislation, and says: "Owing to the present situation, we are not redeeming in full the pledges we made to the people. The progressive and constructive legislation which we promised is not being advanced with sufficient force and energy," emphasizes the fact that the present system of choosing United States Senators is a hindrance to careful and thorough legislative work. Deadlocks such as the one which has existed in the New York Legislature since the beginning of the year are not uncommon, and always their effect is similar to the one which Governor Dix deplores in this instance. If there were no other reason for it, the adoption of a constitutional amendment providing for the direct election of Senators by the lessly sacrifices the American farmer to people would be fully justified for this

THE FARM HEN.

Mr. Bryan surely knows a good hen when he sees her. Listen to his flight: "I went out to the barnyard and took off my hat to the American hen, for her product is all over the world."

"That's what!" cackles Biddy. "You're not like those city farmers at Washington who have hatched the fake that we rural cluckers lay but sixty eggs a year, sit most the time and don't know an egg from a doorknob." Hats off, gentlemen, to the farm hen. She is Uncle Sam's chief poultry asset, does the most to make him a billion richer a year and would do even better if Farmer Corntossel didn't let her forage in the corncrib, visit the grain mow, stuff on the thrashing floor and raid the granary.

She thus often gets too fat, doesn't lay so well because her egg machine is crowded with fat and doesn't lay so many winter eggs because fat makes her molt late, and she spends most of the winter growing a new gown. Most farm flocks are pure bred and well cared for notwithstanding certain cushion pressing poultry editors put the farm flock in the bum class and call the farmer a bughouse poultry-

We advise such a city farmer to get the kink out of his think by a tour of the farms, to tickle his palate and astonish his inner man with chicken as only a farmer's wife can mature it

Then, with his constitution full of bully bird, let him take the platform and pose as a poultry star at a farmers' institute, tell what he knows about poultry science and be cross examined by the "Rubes" present. Will his think machine get a hotbox? Will he be knocked into the middle of next week? Yea, verily. He shall finally return to his cushion a sadder but a wiser man.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

When a Mount Holly (N. J.) judge gave a chicken thief seven years he was certainly handing down some law to those false hair splitting judges who make a distinction between stealing a brass watch and a pure Silver Wyandotte rooster.

When roasting a goose the cook need not add fat, as they furnish their own grease for baking. The man who carves an old gander must furnish his own elbow grease also, and lots of it.

Since meat products have gone so high much of the so called pure protein beef scrap has dropped down low in quality. Real beef scrap is brown in color, mealy and has little odor, and that like roast beef.

During the past year Pennsylvania produced 75,000,000 dozen of eggs. As she now stands second in population in the Union it is time for her to move up on poultry products. Think of all those people only raising 2,000,000 fowls!

On the first day of the Philadelphia show, where 5.000 birds were exhibited, there were 1,500 paid admissions. A lecture was delivered on "The Gentle Art of Being Honest." The roosters with false tails and painted plumage clapped and crowed approval when the speaker rapped the fakers.

When your fowls have an epidemic of bowel trouble and you find they are very lousy don't be profuse in the use of louse powder at such a time, as it may aggravate the trouble. Some powders cause like conditions.

Much of the so called alfalfa sold in the east as first grade western product smells about as much like the original as the odor of a skunk cabbage resembles that of a rose.

In feeding cut clover sift out the coarse stems, as these are apt to cause hard crop. If hens do not have clover, alfalfa or greens they will eat straw. leaves, long hay or even excelsior to offset the hard grain fed. Such filler is killer. It is quite interesting to read the descriptions of alfalfa and its easy culture in certain seed catalogues. Some of our eastern farmers who bought seed and sowed it on wornout hillsides have found its growth a decidedly upbill job. Sprouted oats is excellent green food. but it should not be allowed to grow too long. If not crisp and tender when fed it mats in the crop, and the fowl can only be saved by an operation.

Little ducks do love lettuce and tender sprouted oats, which make them that lively that we have never been able to snap them with a camera.

Tommy-Oh, yes, you are, for heard mamma saying to Ethel that everything depended on the way in which she played her cards tonight.

WARD

He Was Very Much Surprised When He Saw Her

By Ella B. Barker

 Mr. Willard Lane, bachelor, returned to his house after business, sat down in the library and took up a newspaper. He turned over the sheets three or four times, vainly endeavoring to become interested in something, and finally fell to reading the advertisements. Then he threw down the paper and. leaning back in his chair with a bored expression, mused:

"This house is comfortable, but it isn't home. I have a mind to give it buy a helpmeet. I'd give one-half of or fifteen years and meet again the girls I used to associate with. I'd propose to every one of them successively till I got one for a wife. There's Molly B., married and four children; Matilda B., gone, I don't know where; Edith Jenks is still unclaimed, but she was always sour as vinegar, and she hasn't improved with age. As for me, I'm altogether too old to get a wife from among young women, and I'm sure none but a youthful one could ever get on with me, and she would have a hard time of it. I'll sell this tomb"-

'A letter for you, sir." Mrs. Parker, the housekeeper, handed him a missive that the postman

and read it: Willard Lane, Esq.: Dear Sir-We have to announce to you that by the will of the late Hamilton Bingham, which has this day been admitted to probate, you are appointed ex-ecutor of his estate and guardian of his daughter, Marie Southworth Bingham. Your ward has no relatives, and it is incumbent upon you to provide a home for ner. Very respectfully, your obedient servants, KINGSLEY & KINGSLEY,

"Well, well! Poor Bingham's gone! And left his child to me! Why didn't these musty attorneys say something about her age? Will she need a nurse, or is she old enough to go to school by herself? Let me see. I have had no knowledge of Bingham for a dozen years. I can't figure out how old the child is. But, any way, it will liven up this tomb to have any living thing in it. I mustn't sell it. I'll need it for her home. By Jove, that's what I'll do! I'll make a home for her right here!

Going out to a telegraph office, he sent the following message to the attorneys: "Send Marie Bingham here." During the evening Mr. Lane received a reply that his ward would be with him at 5 o'clock the next evening, and it was suggested that he meet her at the station. Calling for Mrs. Parker, he gave her minute instructions as to the preparations be desired made.

"Put in order," he said, "the two rooms adjoining on the west, second story-the one for a nurse, the other for a child. In the garret is a crib that has been there for years. Get it down, and I'll order a new mattress."

"How old is the child, sir?" asked the housekeeper.

"How old? I don't know. The stupid attorneys didn't say anything about her age, but I figure it out that she can't be over, say, ten years old. If she is I've been getting old mighty fast. I hope she's between six and twelve. We'll assume that she's seven, not too old for dolls, sets of dishes and all that. At any rate, I'll provide these when I go downtown tomorrow. Poor little thing! I wish her to feel at home. She's just lost her father."

"I'll see that everything is done, sir." So Lane the next day sent home all that was required, including such toys as would please a child seven years old. There were three dolls and a playhouse big enough for the little girl to get into-that is, if she wasn't large for her age. By 4 o'clock in the afternoon the two rooms were in prime order and looked both comfortable and cozy.

At 5 o'clock Mr. Lane was at the station and watched the people pour from the train when it came in, looking for a woman with a little girl, but there was none such-at least none that did not go away at once. Lane was disappointed. He had made up his mind to have his little companion by him at the table for dinner. He was turning away when a girl about seventeen accosted him:

"I beg pardon, sir. Have you seen an elderly gentleman who appeared to be waiting for some one?"

"No; I have not." "He was to have met me here, but I don't see him." "I was to have met a little girl myself. She hasn't come, or if she has

I've missed her." "I don't know what I'm going to do."

"I have a carriage outside and will be happy to drive you wherever you wish to go."

"Thank you ever so much. I'm to go to my guardian, Mr. Willard Lane,

"What!" "Mr. Lane."

"I thought you said he is an elderly gentleman. "Why, I suppose he is. He and my

"Are you Marie Bingham?"

Lane looked at her for a moment as if dazed, then said: "I'm the elderly gentleman you're looking for, and you're the child I'm looking for. I'm your guardian. Come right along." Seizing a bag she carried, he led her up and take bachelor apartments. I out of the station, put her into a carcan buy anything I want, but I can't riage and drove her home. The housekeeper received them at the front door all I'm worth if I could go back ten and looked surprised at seeing instead of a child a tall, willowy girl who might have passed for twenty. "Just wait here a few moments," said Lane to his ward. "I wish to be sure your room is all right. Mrs. Parker, we'll go and see." The two hurried upstairs. "We must get this out first," he said, taking hold of one end of the playhouse. "She'd never get in it in the world," remarked Mrs. Parker dryly.

"Run it up into the garret." The crib was next removed, after which the dolls, sets of dishes and other toys. Then Lane went down and told Miss Marie Bingham that her rooms were ready for her. Mrs. Parker had been in the Lane family long enough to have taken care of Willard Lane when he was a kid. She was the only woman upon whom he could rely for advice, and as soon as she came downstairs he said to her: "What am I to do? Will it be proper for me to keep her here?" "In the first place, Mr. Willard, I understand she has no other home. Some people will think it right for you to give her a home here with me for chaperon, while some will talk. But if we're going to listen to what people say of us we'll be hearing omething disagreeable all the while. If she's happy here I see no reason why she shouldn't stay." "That settles it; she remains." Marie Bingham was of an age to be treated either as a woman or one just emerging from childhood, especially by her father's old friend. The tomb, as he had called his house, seemed to have thrown off its sepulchral atmosphere from the day she came into it. For some time after her arrival she felt deeply the loss of her father. But youth is quick to throw off sorrows, and even during this period she was cheerful. Beyond this was the presence of a young girl. It seemed that the very atmosphere had been changed. The servants were better contented and easier to manage. Mrs. Parker's heart, that had been supposed to have congealed with age, came out to the motherless girl. and she was happy in having some one to care for. As for Lane, it seemed to him that he walked lighter, breathed freer-indeed, that the whole world had taken on a brighter hue. Three years passed, years that Lane afterward referred to as the happiest of his life. From the first be was interested at having the direction of a young girl's education, the same as if she were his own daughter. Her income was a slender one, entirely inadequate to give her special advantages. He supplied the deficiency, keeping her in ignorance of the fact. "I must find some young fellows for her," he said to Mrs. Parker. "She needs to associate with young men of her own age.'

Mrs. Parker looked up at the ceiling and said nothing. So Lane hunted up some of the younger members of his club and took them to call upon his ward. She appeared to enjoy their society, but it was not to be expected that she would fulfill the purpose for which he had brought them-that is, that she should marry one of them. Her twenty-first birthday was near at hand, when by the terms of her father's will her inheritance was to be turned over to her, and, though her guardian had trotted up a number of attractive young men, she had shown none of them any pref-

The day she was twenty-one Lane handed in to the chancery court an account of his stewardship. His ward surprised him by asking for a copy of it. He gave it to her, and she perused it carefully.

"I can't make this out," she said to her guardiau. "What has been the average income from the estate since father's death?"

"About $700." "How much have you charged me for board?"

"There hasn't been any income for board. It has all been needed for Bchooling."

"And how much has been drawn for schooling?" "Nothing has been drawn for schooling. It was all needed for board." She looked up from the paper. There was a revelation for him in that look.

She put out her hand and rested it on his. He drew her to him and kissed The next morning Lane said to Mrs. Parker, "I have a surprise for you."

"What is it?" "Marie is going to turn down all the boys to marry the old man." "Tut! That's no surprise."

The entertainment held here last Saturday night attracted an audience that excelled any that ever assembled in the hall. The house was uncomfortably tull, and standing space was even at a premium. A royal good time was had, last Mouday night, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Flickinger, on Meadow Branch. This was given in honor of his wife, who celebrated the 55th. anniversary of her birth. More than a score of relatives and friends gathered there to enliven the nome with their presence and have a few hours of fun. The men occupied the kitchen and amused themselves with games, while the women chattered most eagerly in a room above. The hostess received a shower of cards and some presents. About 11 o'clock we were hustled from our games, but we did not resist for we knew the best was yet to come. Very soon we were called upon to partake of refreshments, and on going we found a table groaning under the weight of good things. This comprised ice cream, coffee, cake, candies, apples, cider, cigars, etc., in abundance, and was cheerfully recognized by all. None seemed to be concerned about going home and the associations were hard to sever. The wee small hours arrived before exit began, and then it was with a Mackley, and daughter, Miss Clara, also look of regret. Eventually good-byes were exchanged and the hostess was

GATHERING RUBBER.

The Sap Is Coagulated by the Action of Pungent Smoke. The industry of collecting and preparing rubber is carried on extensively in the valley of the Amazon. There are districts of many square miles owned and operated by one person. The rubber trees are scattered more or less plentifully among other trees that yield no profit as yet. When one has secured a large tract of forest land for the industry he puts up a rough shelter upon it and engages Indian natives of the neighborhood to aid him in the work. Early in the morning they start out to make the rounds of the estate, for they must get back to the riverside before the heat of the day becomes too great. They tap the trees, attach little tin cups to catch the sap and take home whatever sap may be collected. The sap of the rubber tree is a white liquid of the consistency of goat's milk. It is necessary that it be converted into a solid. This is effected by the action of a pungent smoke that coagulates or curdles the milky fluid. For this use the seeds of two different kinds of palm are employed. The seeds are put in an earthen jar which has a narrow neck, the bottom of which is perforated with a number of square holes. In this the palm nuts are burned. The holes in the bottom of the jar admit a draft and cause a dense smoke to issue from the neck, The operator takes a paddle similar cup by cup, all the time turning the customers for past favors and a continblade so as to bring all parts of it into uance of same. the smoke. The fluid is instantly fixed and adheres to the wood or to the rubber already formed. This process is continued until a solid lump is formed that will perhaps weigh sixteen in it and the blade is drawn out. A mass of rubber is left ready for exportation. It is the smoke used in coagulating the sap that gives crude rubber the dark appearance familiar to every one. Natives who collect rubber have, curiously enough, little use for the article. They do, however, devise play- 40 Boys' Overcoats, at half price. the sap into clay molds of birds, fishes, etc., and then crushing the clay and

For the Children

Little Pu Yi, Baby Emperor of China.

While Pu Yi is the emperor of China, he does not rule over that great nation yet. He is too young for that. Some day, if he lives to grow up, he will sit on the throne. At present his father, Prince Chun, is the real ruler. acting for his son. Prince Chun is the brother of the late emperor, who died a couple of years ago.

Pu Yi was born in February, 1906, and is therefore nearly five years old. When he becomes emperor he will be able to exercise but a small part of the autocratic power by which his predecessor ruled. China is advancing and has already decided to have a constitutional government. So Pu Yi must reign according to the written law and not as the emperor would decree under the old system.

A Wonderful Person.

With what amazement would you regard a person who had a million ancestors? Yet by looking into a mirror you can behold the very individual-yourself.

Now, we each had two parents, a father and a mother, both of whom had two parents. Thus, on this principle and assuming there has been no intermarriage of relations, a person who has had four grandparents has had eight great-grandparents. And our lineal ancestors during twenty generations number 1,048,576. So if these ancestors were all living they would be sufficient to populate Wales.

In most of these nests the hole is simply made through the thick upper part or the structure, but sometimes this is so molded that it looks like a ring. This wasp is named chartergus, a name derived from two Greek words meaning papermaker. The average nest is about a foot long and wide in propor-

For Woman Suffrage.

The article in advocacy of Woman Suffrage published in the RECORD of Feb. 24, and signed "Alpha," is a clear and forcible statement of facts, and should impress thinking men and women with the importance of emancipating women from the bondage she has so long endured. Holy Writ informs us that woman was created to be a helpmate unto man; then, if that be her mission, how can she fulfill the requirements of that station unless she is allowed the same privilege of thought and action, and is given the same powers to enforce the dictates of conscience and reason that are enjoyed by her companion, man?

That woman is the equal of man, mentally, does not appear to admit of denial. For in all the avenues of intellectual endeavor, to which she has been admitted. she has easily held her own, and in many instances eclipsed man, in accomplishment. That woman is superior to man, morally, can easily be proven if we admit that the churches are schools of pure morality. For in them we will find the attendance to be in about the ratio of two to one, in favor of woman. Then, being man's appointed helpmeet, his equal mentally, and probably his superior morally, by what reasoning can we deny the right of Suffrage to Woman? A right which man considers so valuable that he will risk his life to defend it.

In discussing the question involved, the opposition usually considers the expediency of it, and not the right. Probably at this time the former is more appropriate than the latter, for man has gotten things political enveloped in such a tangled maze that it appears expedient to quickly have the assistance of a superior intelligence to aid in untangling them.

In the constitutions of our nation and State, class legislation is especially forbidden. Now, if according unto one portion of the human family, rights which are denied unto the other portion is not class legislation, pray gentle reader, tell us what class legislation is?

The article taken from the Harford Democrat, in the portion where it speaks of the failure of women to accomplish anything in Colorado, since their enfranchisment, and of their determined opposition to Judge Lindsay, must be branded as incorrect, if we credit the statement of Judge Lindsay himself, made at a mass-meeting of suffragists held in the assembly chamber at Albany, N. Y. Feb. 24, and published in the Baltimore American, Feb. 25, and in the RECORD last week. It is hoped that the writer of the article mentioned in the beginning of this short essay will continue to enlighten us on the question of "Woman Suffrage" from Alpna to Omega. U. B.

"My own dear quiet home, The Eden of my heart."

We chatted with a friend who had boarded the train at F. 'Twas pleasant to run back to other years when one of us taught "young ideas how to shoot." The friend proved to be one of the "ideas." He left us at W. We then fell to ruminating-ah, yes-'twas memory. The picture gallery of long ago needed no lamp of memory to unfold the scenes of our youth; the portieres were drawn and the high-lights stood out boldly. There was still time before our arrival to pace the silent ailes of memory, and to view the pictures sketched and painted in our childhood.

Of the girls and boys whose faces gleamed from the canvas, most of them have turned toward the sunset of life; others smiled back in dream-their forms have been lost to us for years. Memory had awakened, the visions were all our own; we would have gladly turned away from the thought of missing links among our friends, but the golden web floated before us reflecting memories of joy and pain. The many changes which we were prepared to meet began to unfold; like an open book they lay before us, and in burning type we read the changed records.

Now we were nearing our destination. We must count our rosary, whose beads of love bind us to the friends awaiting As we emerged from a bend, "Antrim" seemed hanging against the lowering clouds. It was here, beneath this feathery willow that "Mary Joe" and I read and made tatting.

As a surprise, our hostess had gathered a number of old friends under her hospitable roof, and, after a sumptuous dinner we gathered where the firelight reflected its glory, and reveled in reminiscences; of these, the episode of the rain barrel and Eudora's play-house with improvised electric bells, provoked the most laughter. Time forbade going back to the time of painting valentines. We knew nothing then of the expensive and sentimental creations of today. We were blissfully happy to paint a rose, in water colors, on a sheet of papersupremely happy if the recipient recognized it to be a rose. "Tob," who was twelve, painted a "red, red rose" for his best girl, who was two years his junior. His sister, to whom he entrusted the sending of this "jacqueminot," was possessed of a great vein of fun. Consequently, before sending, she added this line, unknown to her brother: "You are as sweet as pumpkins mashed with peaches." The recipient was very indignant and treated her youthful fiance with disdain. The sister poured oil on the troubled waters and the small boy wrote his sweetheart a letter which ended thus-

"One line may tell that we have met, And one that we have parted. I won't apologize; and yet— I'm almost broken hearted."

We have no doubts about the sister having written these lines.

Restoring Eden's Garden.

By far the most interesting of all coming events, so far as international relationships are concerned, is the projected resurrecting, by plans already defined and organized, of the glories not only of Mesopotamia, wherein the Paradise of Genesis was located, but of Parapotamia. Mesopotamia is a term meaning "between the rivers," the streams embracing the territory being the Euphrates and the Tigris. Parapotamia is the equally important region outside each of the rivers. Mesopotamia and Parapotamia (the latter term of course signifies "beyond the rivers") together cover the whole area of what is often denominated 'Abraham's Land." This is the cradle of the human race.

For about five years the eminent British surveyor, Sir William Willcocks, has been engaged in the difficult work of examining Mesopotamian and Parapotamian conditions. He now proposes to supply the Sakhlawa with two powerful sluices at the place where it leaves the Euphrates so as to regulate the quantity of water. On the Euphrates itself, below the divarication, would be a dam to control the river itself. These two great works would be sufficient for the regulation of the Euphrates. On the other historic stream, the Tigris, it is proposed to construct an enormous dam at Eeled above the rapids, and below the dam to cut a canal which shall irrigate the rich plains north of Bagdad and empty itself into the lake. To the southeast of this lake, near Bagdad, another canal would start, following the right bank of the Tigris and ending in the Chatt el Hai a tributary of the old Tigris. This canal alone would efficiently irrigate six million acres of ground. The extra oozy mud, which for a fortnight is very considerable, and is sufficient to ruin everything, would be deposited in the lake; the latter would regulate not only the efflux of waters, but also their muddy contents. The execution of the entire project will occupy six years .- Rev. William Durban, London, in The Christian Herald.

A Window-Washing Hint.

Do not put soap into the water with which windows are to be washed. A little borax or household ammonia may be added. Use very little water. Wipe off the window-casing with a dry cloth and rub it over the glass as well before you begin to wash. This removes the dust which would otherwise streak the pane. The cloth should be well rung out before it is applied to the glass and this should be rubbed dry at once. A small quantity of kerosene added to the water gives a polish to the glass and in winter a little alcohol in the water keeps it from freezing on the pane. Old newspapers rubbed soft in the hands are admirable for giving the glass a final polish.—From Women's Home panion for March.

Points Mothers

We mothers get so tired, says Frances Ingersoll in a recent article. We wonder if life is all to be like this, if we must always worry over Johnny's shoes, or father's coat, or the winter's coal, or where the rent money is coming from-and then the wrinkles and toil worn hands and care furrows hurt so much wirse when we are tired. Life seems so notle worth while when we look back upon those things we meant to do and to be and we think how far we have "failed" in the realization. Life to us seems such a sordid thing beside the

But when twilight comes, when the restless boyish feet are still, when mischievous little hands are quiet, when baby lips drowsily murmur "dood night, muvver," as little arms slip from about our neck-then, then we know that the other woman whose life is all ease and silken luxury would give it all for just one such twilight hour, would give all her priceless jewels for-just once-to feel encircling baby arms about her neck, and we know we are rich beyond com-

And we think of the time when the lads and lassies will grow, because of us, good men and women, God willing. Then we know, too, that life can hold no greater possibilities, no greater opportunities, than are ours.

And as we put away the little muddy shoes and fold up the mussed little garments the care and worry and fret are all forgot, and we lie down in peace, thanking God for the humble golden harvest on the "by and by."

Lesson XII.—First Quarter, For March 19, 1911.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Kings xx, 12-21. Memory Verse, 13-Golden Text, Prov. xxxi, 4—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

When godly people seek the help of and rely on the ungodly it is not only a testimony against God on the part of those who bear His name, but it encourages the ungodly in their ungodliness. In II Chron. xvi we read that Asa, king of Judah, was rebuked by the Lord through Hanani the seer because he relied upon Benhadad, king of Syria.

It may have been that this fellowship of Asa with him afterward encouraged Benhadad to ill treat Ahab, king of Israel, as he did, first demanding of him his silver and his gold and his wives and children and then threatening to send his servants to search the houses of the king and his servants and take away all their desirable things (verses 5, 6). Ahab seems to have borne the first demand with wondrous submission, but the second was too much, and Ahab by the advice of his elders so returned answer to Benhadad. This drew from him a great threat, to which Ahab replied in these words: "Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off" (verse 11).

We cannot but be impressed with the pains which God takes to win people to Him and to deliver them from the wrath to come, and we are amazed to see Him working even on behalf of such a one as Ahab. But it was all for His great namesake that Ahab might know Him as Jehovah (verses 13, 28). Compare Job xxxiii, 27-30, and remember always II Pet. iii, 9. What He has done for Israel in the past and will yet do for them in the future was and will be wholly for His name's sake that He may be known and trusted (Ezek. xxxvi, 22; xxxvii, 28; xxxviii, 23; xxxix, 27-29). Even to this day He is wont to show Himself strong on behalf of very unworthy representatives if only He may be known through them as the living and true God, who loves to save and is not willing that any should perish.

The great hindrance to His saving and blessing people and showing Himself strong on their behalf is their unwillingness and unbelief. How often He has had to say: "And ye would not" (Isa xxviii, 12; xxx, 15; Matt. xxiii, 37; John v, 40). "My people would not hearken to My voice, and Israel would none of Me." "They believed not in God and trusted not in His salvation" (Ps. xxxi, 11; lxxviii, Ahab's record is, "There was none like unto Ahab, who did sell himself to work wickedness in the sight of the Lord" (chapters xxi, xxv). The only good thing written of him is his penitence, which caused the Lord to delay judgment on him (xxi, 27-29). And yet in this lesson the Lord gave the Syrians into his hand twice, though his people were but few and the Syrians a great host. He even caused a wall to fall upon 27,000 of the Syrians. Such a manifestation of the power of God on behalf of such as Ahab is most unusual. We must think not of Ahab. but of Israel as the people of God. though in rebellion against Him. concerning whom He said: "How shall I give thee up, Ephraim? How shall I deliver thee, Israel?" (Hos. xi, 8.) "O Israel, thou hast destroyed thyself, but in me is thine help!" "O Israel, return unto the Lord thy God!" (Hos. xiii. 9: xiv. 1.)

As to the Syrians, who were at this time overthrown, it is plain that drunkenness was one of the sins of their leaders, for Benhadad and his thirty-two royal comrades were drinking themselves drunken (verses xii, 16) even while they were boasting against the God of Israel. It was not sinful Israel that they were talking against, but the wonder working God of Israel, who counts all that is done to His people, however unworthy they may be, as done to Himself (Zech. ii, 8). After the first defeat of the Syrians they said that the God of Israel was a God of the hills, but not of the valleys, and for this they suffered their second defeat, though the children of Israel were like two little flocks of kids, while the Syrians filled the country (verses 23, 27). The Lord loves to show Himself strong on behalf of all who trust in Him (II Chron. xvi, 9.)

But proud, haughty, self sufficient people will always be overthrown. There is nothing that develops the self in man like wine or strong drink, and self or the carnal mind is that part of us that is incorrigibly bad and can never be improved (Rom. viii, 7). As to the way in which wine or strong drink works-and some instances of it in the Scriptures-the cases of Noah, David and Uriah, Nabal, Elah and others might be studied with profît (Gen. ix, 20, 21; II Sam. xi, 13; I Sam. xxv. 36; I Kings xvi, 9). The record stands that drunkards shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

And even such guilty ones have been and may still be saved. Then there is that staggering and drunkenness of unbelief always to be considered in which neither wine nor strong drink is at all in evidence (Isa xxix, 9-13). Sinners of all grades and kinds are all about us, whom God is ready to save, and we do well to consider whether while we are busy here and there they get beyond our reach (verse 40).

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For the Week Beginning March 19, 1911. Topic.-The danger and uses of money.

Prov. xiv, 24; I Tim. vi. 17-19. Edited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D. Life is a trust from God. As we have nothing that we have not received from a loving Heavenly Father, so of everything that we possess each one of us is our Father's steward. No man is wise in the Scriptural meaning of the word who does not accept this fact of stewardship. No man can live as a Christian who does not recognize God's ownership of Himself and of all that he has and freely acknowledge God's right to require that in the use of all that he has he shall be found faithful. While this is true of every man and of every talent, it is peculiarly true of that man to whom God has intrusted riches. Only as the rich man accepts his possessions as from God, to be used for the purposes of God and to be accounted for unto God, will his riches prove to him a blessing and not a curse and in his hands prove to be a blessing and not a curse to his fellow men. As Christians we sometimes wonder whether it is right for any man to be rich. More than one man feels that the teaching and the example of our Lord make the possession of wealth inconsistent with an honest profession of Christian faith. We cannot believe that such an idea is true. It is not in the possession of wealth, but in the abuses of wealth, that the evil lies. Prosperity is certainly one of the blessings of God. True faith enriches, for a true faith produces a morally superior man. It makes a man honest, industrious, temperate in every way. It improves his lot. The profits of godliness are earthly as well as heavenly. Jesus recognizes this fact. He commands us to give, enlists us in every good cause, teaches us to be good Samaritans. We must have money if we are going to do these things. Instead of teaching that the possession of riches is wrong Jesus emphasizes the responsibilities of riches, blesses the man who uses them as God's faithful steward and condemns the man who, being rich, is indifferent to his brother's need.

Our Lord warned us against the dangers of riches-warned us repeatedly. He painted the picture of the rich fool. He taught the parable of the rich man and Lazarus. He condemns both these men not because they were rich, but the "one for his selfish indulgence and forgetfulness of God, the other for his selfish disregard of men." That is always our peril. While men are putting gold into their hands the gold may be stripped from their hearts; while men are enjoying their fine houses and sumptuous feasts their brothers may be starving at their very gates; while men are laying up earthly treasures their hearts may not be rich toward God. Riches are an awful responsibility. No man needs more of the grace of God than the rich man. To be rich and to keep a spirit which is pure and humble, sincere and generous-what man has a harder task than that? To be rich and to meet the obligations of riches as a man of God, to be rich and to let the spirit of God control in the use of our riches-that is to achieve a splendid moral victory.

Beloved, I wish above all things that thou mayest prosper and be in health, even as thy soul prospereth.

JEWELED DOG COLLARS.

Worn by Pampered Pets of Society Folk.

DOGGIES' EXPENSIVE COLLARS.

The fashion changes in dog collars not quite as often perhaps as in the clothes of the mistresses, but there are sharply defined rules concerning what is correct in canine collar adornment. The latest mode for these collars next spring is a bright green leather, and on the right shade of dog the effect is remarkably striking. Red collars are again in vogue for black coated doggies, and there is a model in silver beads that is much approved. A favorite collar of a dog in the toy class owned by a belle living at the national capital is of brown leather headed with silver nails. On the bangle which dangles from the collar are described the canine's name and address.

But the most curious dog collar on record was ordered by a Baltimore man to celebrate the eleventh birthday of his favorite black and tan terrier Dixie. The collar is of diamonds, of which no fewer than 700 were used. According to the illustration given of this collar, it was fashioned somewhat in the form of a tiara, with a pendant consisting of two graduated pieces higher in the center and narrowing at the back.

Wouldn't You Like This Costume? Burton Holmes, the popular lecturer, seems to be quite as appreciative of the picturesque in costumes as in scenery. Behold him in the illustration arrayed in his latest sartorial find-a Moravian costume which in Moravia is worn by the men of this Austro-Hungary province.

not have purchased it, as did Mr. Holmes, for $9.48 of our money? This same woman would not allow her husband or brother to appear in it at a fancy dress party. Oh, no! Her motives would be less altruistic, much more selfish. This is what would happen: She would pick off, as it were, the leading motifs of this costume-for instance, the fascinating embroidered girdle with its long fringed ends. This loot she would wear about the waist of her new spring house frock of pale gray chiffon cloth. And the bolero, if this smart adornment answers to such a name in the Moravian tongue, she would incorporate into her smartest lingerie blouse of sheer marquisette. And the accordion plaited sleeves, each plait of which is said to be three inches deep-well, these manches would make several summer gowns.

GRAND OPENING! MARCH 21st., 1911,

Beginning at 9 o'clock, a. m.

When I will open the doors of my New Repository, where I have opened up three car loads of pleasure vehicles consisting of Surreys, Buggies, Runabouts, Spring Wagons and Carts. Harness, Farm Machinery and Dairy Supplies.

If this advertisement seems plain and blunt, it is because I have the "Goods" to hand over, and I have no time for idle words or hot air.

INVITATION.

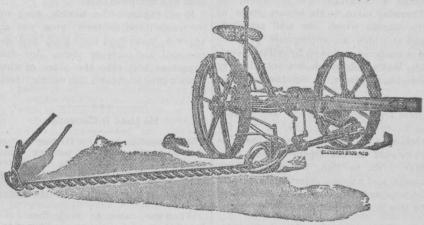

An invitation is extended to the public to attend this opening and see some of the latest improvements in Vehicles and Machinery. I will have with me, representatives from the different factories, who will show you many new "stunts."

If you are a shrewd, sharp farmer—out for the dollar's worth, notonly in buying, but saving in repairs after the purchase-you cannot possibly miss this opening. You have heard such talk before, but not from me, and not on this kind of Vehicles and Machinery.

I want to repeat, with all the emphasis at my command, that you ought to see these most DOWN to date improvements on Vehicles and Machinery; no difference if you are in need of anything or not, it will make you just that much more intelligent about machinery,

COME EARLY! Those interested and who wish to have personal attention in specially investigating anything, I would request to come early, as all indications are that there will be a large crowd of people about the middle of the day. But if you are caught in the rush, wait, and we will be pleased to extend you every courtesy. These representatives are sent here to be at your command, so it is up to you to push to the front and get all the information desired.

Did You Ever Run a Mower?

Did You Ever, when quitting time came, fold up the cutter bar in a hurry and start your team without throwing the machine out of gear, resulting in a broken pitman or a strain that caused you to make some repairs when you should have been making hay?

You Can't Do That with the New Standard.

When you fold up the cutter bar the machine is thrown out of gear. This is just one little feature of the

Emerson New Standard Mower A Machine that is designed and built by men who make mower building a specialty; men who have for twenty-seven years held an undisputed record for building the best mower on the market, and Why the Best? Because it is the easiest to handle: the lightest draft; the most durable.

We Can Prove to you that these statements are facts.

COME AND SEE US. IT'S A PLEASURE TO SHOW THESE GOODS.

The Standard Mower is not controlled by any Trust or Combine. Why? Because it has no equal. It is the only 8-ft Mower made in the world. When having time comes the greatest number of acres cut with the least labor and expense in the shortest time is the prime object. Do you know the distance a team must travel to cut 12 acres? With a 4-ft Mower the team must travel 24\frac{3}{4} miles; with an 8-ft Mower the team must travel 12³ miles. See this 8-ft "Giant" Mower at my opening. Mr. S. R. Conrey will have charge of this Mower.

REASONS WHY

U. S. Cream Separators

ARE THE BEST IN THE WORLD

The United States Separator employs a feeding device to deliver the whole milk beyond the cream zone-preventing any remixing of cream and skimmilk and any conflict of currents. No other device of any other separator will do this work so well, as the records show. This device is patented, and can be used on no other separator. The United States uses non-aligned channel for the currents of milk through the separator bowl. This is covered by strong patents. No discs or other construction can equal its perfection in separation. It holds the world's record for closest skimming. The United States skims cleaner, runs easier, washes easier, and lasts longer than any other separator.

Ask the man who runs one. Ask us to prove it.

Mr. James T. Austin will demonstrate the merits of this Separator. I will give one 600-lb capacity Separator to some farmer, at his own price. Investigate the proposition. Write, or call, for full particulars.

Mrs. Granville Reinecker, of Littlestown, Pa., pieced a quilt, this winter, that has 5184 patches in it.

Some people are wondering whether there will be any snow left for "next" winter. Perhaps we are getting, this March, the amount that we didn't get, last March.

Dr. George B. Scholl, of Baltimore, a brother of Mrs. James Cattanach, was recently operated on for acute appendicitis. He is making rapid progress toward recovery.

Between twenty-five and thirty of Taneytown's young men walked to Littlestown, last Sunday afternoon, and returned in the evening by train. Some of them said "they didn't do nothin' but wont do it again."

Rev. Dr. Valentine, who assisted in the installation services at the Lutheran church, last Sunday, was accompanied by his mother. They were entertained by their near relatives, Mrs. Margaret Stott and Miss Anna Galt.

Brush, the Great Magician will be here, Saturday night. He is bringing one thousand pounds of Baggage with him, full of Magnetism, Magic and Mystery. Come one, come all! And be electrified, edified and energized!

Rev. L. B. Hafer and wife were tendered a Congregational reception, on Thursday night, in the lecture room of the church, which was well attended, and at which an appropriate program was rendered, followed by refreshments. Mr. Hafer will preach his introductory sermon, as pastor, on Sunday morning.

Eight days of genuine fun and amusement are promised the old and young, of Taneytown and vicinity, by the Directors of the Base-ball club at the Fair to be held in the Opera House, from Mar. 17th. to 25th. inclusive. Many special and unique entertainments will be provided by home talent, which will be free to the public.

On Tuesday evening, March 7, 1911, at the home of the bride, near Littlestown, Dr. Chandos M. Benner, of Taneytown, and Miss Emma Basehoar, were united in marriage. We have no details of the event, therefore cannot give them. Dr. and Mrs. Benner will reside here, on their return from their wedding trip. Their many friends extend hearty congratulations.

The Congregational Missionary Society of the Reformed church will hold regular meeting, this Sunday evening. A special program has been prepared. The address will be delivered by Rev. George A. Snyder, D. D., of Middletown. Dr. Snyder will speak par ticularly to the men, his subject being "The Church Member and Church Work." The public is cordially invited to be present.

Rev. A. B. Mower for the past three years pastor of the United Brethren Church, of Carlisle, Pa., has resigned, to take effect March 16th., on account of ill-health. On that date, Mr. Mower's 23rd year of ministerial work will have been consummated. He was very successful in his work in Carlisle, having had over 200 accessions to his congregation, and greatly increased the financial offerings. He will remove to York, Pa., where he will cease from work, at least until fall.

Benjamin Fleagle, Sr., of Colonial Park, Baltimore, the father of J. E. Fleagle, Principal of the Taneytown school, met with a serious accident, on last Thursday. A cart which he was driving into the garden was overthrown, where he lay for some time before his him.

When he '''Why, Adam, what's the matter? and Mr. Fleagle was pinned beneath it, was released it was found that he had she cried. sustained a fracture of the right leg. So serious was the fracture that the injured member was placed in a plaster of Paris cast. The latest reports indicate that he is in as good a condition as may be expected, for a man at his age-approaching seventy. Mr. Fleagle was a resident here in the early eighties, and later lived at Mayberry.

William DeLoug's, Wilkesbarre, Pa., execuse, that because his wife was an earnest advocate of woman sufirage he did not have to support her did not prevent his arrest on the charge of non support and his hearing before Justice Barry, of Luzerne. DeLong said that his wife had read so much about the woman suffrage question and had boosted so much about what a woman could do that he was tired of having it forever dinned in his ears and made up his mind that she could look after herself. Mrs. DeLong did not seem ready to do this, and after a long talk with the pair Justice Barry finally effected a reconcilliation, the husband agreeing to support his wife and the wife agreeing not

What She Did.

"Please state to the Court exactly what you did between eight and nine o'clock on Wednesday morning," said a lawyer to a delicate looking little woman on the witness stand.

"Well," she said, after a moment's reflection, "I washed my two children and got them ready for school, and sewed a button on Johnny's coat, and mended Nellie's dress. Then I tidied up my sitting room and made two beds and watered my house plants and glanced over the morning paper. Then I dusted my parlor and set things to rights in it and washed some lamp chimneys and combed my baby's hair and sewed a button on one of her little shoes and then I swept out my front entry and brushed and put away the children's Sunday slothes and wrote a note to Johnny's teacher asking her to excuse him for not being to school on Friday. Then I fed my canary bird and cleaned off the breakiast table and gave the grocery man an order and swept off the back porch, and then I sat down and rested a few minutes before the clock struck nine. That's all."

"Excuse me 'All!" said the lawyer. judge; I must get my breath before the next witness.

CHALLENGE FROM R. S. McKINNEY. Offers to Refund Money if Dr. Howard's Specific Will Not Cure Any Case of

Constipation or Dyspepsia. R. S. McKinney is seeking the worst case of dyspepsia or constipation in Taneytown or vicinity to test Dr. Howard's new specific for the cure of those

So confident is he that this remarkable medicine will effect a lasting cure in a short time, that he offers to refund the money should it not be successful.

In order to secure the quickest possible introduction R. S. McKinney will sell a regular fifty cent package of this medicine at half price, 25 cents.

This specific of Dr. Howard's will cure sick headache, dizzy feelings, constipation, dyspepsia and all forms of malaria and liver trouble. It does not simply give relief for a time; it makes permanent and complete cures.

It will regulate the bowels, tone up the whole intestinal tract, give you an appetite, make food taste good and digest well, and increase vigor. Joy and happiness will take the place of that 'don't care whether I live or die' feel-

He Used It Correctly.

Another Adam Story.

"Little Adam Jones, at church one Sunday morning, showed marked interest in the sermon-a sermon about the creation of Eve.

After church Adam ate heartily of the Sunday dinner of turkey and mincepie, and then he went and sat down in a corner with his hands pressed tight upon his ribs and a look of pain and horror on his face.

"Here, an hour later, his mother found

"'Mamma,' said little Adam, 'I am afraid I'm going to have a wite.' ''

Pumps Versus Baths.

The poor are dirty because they cannot afford to be clean and not from inclination or choice. As the woman in an English town said to the doctor who thoughtlessly suggested that her child of six was old enough to be washed, "It's easy for you to talk of washin', with yer hot and cold taps, but what are the likes of me to do with only the loan of my neighbor's pump?" In the multitude of schemes occupying the attention of public bodies the establishment and maintenance of public wash houses, with due regard to the prevention of the spread of infection, ought to take a foremost place.—Medical Press and Circular.

SPECTER SHIPS.

Legends of Shadowy Craft of the New England Coast. The coast of New England has numerous legends concerning specter ships firmly believed by the rugged fishermen, who assert stoutly that on various occasions glimpses of the shadowy craft have been seen, followed invariably by fatal disaster. The specter of the Palentine is occasionally seen on Long Island sound and is the forerunner of a gale of wind. She was a Dutch trading vessel and was wrecked off Block island in 1752. The wreckers, it is said, made short work of her, stripping her fore and aft and setting fire to the hull.

As she drifted blazing off the coast a human form was visible amid the flames, the form of a female passenger, left to perish on the doomed craft. Since and generally upon the anniversary of the wreck a phantom ship with blazing hull, charred spars and scorched sails and rigging has been seen cruising off Block island.

Whittier recorded the legend in graceful verse as well as that of a ghostly cruiser that sailed from a New England port of her last voyage, which he termed "The Dead Ship of Salem." In the seventeenth century a ship was about to sail from Salem to England. Her cargo was on board, sails bent and passengers on deck, when two passengers came hurriedly off and engaged passage. The couple were a young man and a young woman, who, so tradition records, were remarkable for their bearing and beau-

Who they were or whence they came no one in Salem town could tell. The ship being detained by adverse winds. the mysterious couple excited the suspicions of the townspeople, who viewed them as uncanny and prophesied disaster to the vessel if allowed to sail in her. But the master, a bluff and stern sailor, refused to listen and finally departed on a Friday.

The vessel never reached her destination and was never spoken, but later in the year incoming vessels reported sighting a craft with luminous rigging and sails and shining hull and spars. She was sailing with all canvas set against the wind, with a crew of dead men standing in the shrouds and leaning over the rail, while upon the quarterdeck stood a young and beautiful couple.—New York Herald.
