BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

The Bulgarians have at last taken Adrianople, the Turkish city which has been besieged for months. The fighting was terrific for three days, and the capture was made by a well planned and brilliant executive.

A steadily increasing sentiment against the use of feathers, as millinery ornaments, has caused manufacturers to search for substitutes for birds' plumage. The Daughters of the American Revolution are especially vigorous in their antagonism to the use of feathers. ---

A small-pox scare in Washington resulted in the vaccination of the White House force, from the President down, numbering about 150 in all. The immediate cause of the scare was knowledge of the fact that the parents of one of domestics employed, had become afflicted with the disease.

--The deadlock in the Illinois legislature was broken, on Wednesday, by the election of J. Hamilton Lewis, Democrat, and Lawrence Y. Sherman, Republican, to the U. S. Senate. Mr. Lewis is noted for his eccentricities and pride in his whiskers, while Mr. Sherman bears striking resemblance, both in features and manner, to Abraham Lincoln. --- daily. Brother Seabrook and his force are getting out a very good paper; one noticeably improved in its editorial department, and well balanced throughout. ---

Mrs. Drusilla Smith, an aged woman, living at Brownsville, Washington county, had the experience of picking up a live snake in mistake for an apron string. She was so unnerved that she fell and was injured. Observing what she thought was injured. Observing what she thought was an apron string on the floor, she picked it up. The ''string'' had a cold and clammy feeling and she dropped the snake, which began to wriggle. The sight of the live reptile nearly paralyzed Mrs. Smith with fright.

-000 The Progressive convention in Baltimore, on Wednesday, was conspicuous from its number of celebrated "Colonels." Colonel Baldwin, Colonel Gaither, Colonel Pearre, Colonel Carrington, a letter from Colonel Roosevelt; then there was Ex-Attorney-General Charles Jerome Bonapare. The papers say there was "considerable wrangling," but we think this must be a false report, designed to be-little the gathering. The constitution adopted includes the "initiative, referen-dum and recall" and provides for party machinery in the state.

Through its Washington headquarters the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage announced on Monday that it would give $100 to the city girl or woman, and $100 to the country girl or woman, who wrote the best argument against woman suffrage. Each paper must not contain more than 500 words, The essays must be sent to the Essay Committee, the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage, 35 West Thirty-ninth street, New York city. Three well-known literary women of New York will be the judges in the con-

--At least one slight rift appears in the high cost of living. Uncle Sam will not be obliged to pay as much for the coffee his family drinks as he has been paying hitherto. hitherto. The breaking up of the Bra-zilian coffee valorization scheme has already reduced the price of coffee in this country. Quotations show it has dropped about two and three-quarter cents pound, or approximately $3 per bag. This has happened within the last two months. Inasmuch as this country consumes about 6,500,000 bags of coffee an nually this means a saving of about $20, 000,000 a year to consumers.

--The Maryland State Bureau of Immigration, with offices at 11 E. Lexington street, Baltimore, in its efforts to induce settlers to this state, has met with remarkable success. At present the state bureau is working toward the realization of several colonization projects. Farmers who left this country to go to Canada, are coming to Maryland to escape the hardships of the severe climate there. Settlers from the West seeking cheap land and good conditions in the East have found, in a good many instances The only obstacle now confronting the bureau is the small number of properties listed in its office to make suitable offers to prospective settles.

-----Determined to put a stop to pistol-toting by persons attending the United Brethren church, at Pleasant Valley, near Wolfsville, Frederick County, Rev. Jay Yohe, the pastor, had a constable come into the church, lock the door and search every male member of the congregation. Seven pistols were taken from young men in the church. For some weeks the pastor has been compelled to run a gauntlet of fire from revolver when on his way home. It is said that while the handlers of the weapons were careful not to shoot the pastor, yet they sometimes let the bullets go too close for comfort, and the winister was in fear of his life. "PAY UP" ON APRIL 1!

Business men, throughout the country, would welcome a return of the old-time would welcome a return of the old-time April 1st., which used to be a general "settling up" day, either by cash or note. The day has fallen into disuse for that purpose, likely due to the fact that "hard times" came along as a discourager, and debtors presumed on the good nature, or necessity, of creditors carrying them along, and after a time it became a fixed habit to ignore April 1st as a day of making settlements.

But, "times" are no longer "hard," and honest reciprocity demands that the day shall again be observed. Business men of all kinds, tradesmen, professional men, mechanics—even the printer—need this return. It is likely wholly true that everybody has prospered, in the last ten years, to a greater degree than the class we call "business men."

As a rule, they are spoken of rather unfeelingly, and slightingly, as being required to do the best they can, with as little encouragement as possible. They seem to be singled out by almost everybody, as being needed and required to carry the debtors of a community when-ever they choose, or are required, to be so carried. This is only right, with proper limitations.

When merchants are required to do a banking business, without the banker's percent profit, they are mistreated. Accommodation credits should be favors, and not business burdens. No dealer would just as soon sell on credit as for cash, and no dealer cheerfully carries long credits. Let there be no mistake about this. Half of the business men of this country are worried, and put to their wit's end, over the accounts on their books. They do not want to compel settlements, but they do want them

The American Sentinel returned to weekly form, last week, and we think it a wise move. It is poor judgment on the part of readers, we think, but semiweekly papers do not seem to "take"; readers either want a good weekly, or a daily. Brother Sentred and his forms you also have the cash with which to buy high-priced horses and cattle and house-furnishings you also have the cash with furnishings, you also have the cash with which to pay your accounts at the ware-houses, stores and offices. "Owe no man beyond a reasonable time" - which is a very short time—should be everybody's motto. Pay up, and get in the right class! Pay up old bills before spending your money for something you could do

> --Rev. B. J. Lennon Transferred to Baltimore.

The citizens of Taneytown, Catholics and Protestants alike, were both sur-prised and regretful to hear of the transfer of Father Lennon, to St. Joseph's, Baltimore, and that the change would take place immediately. The announcement was made known by the Cardinal on Tuesday night. He succeeds Rev. Denis McCormick, who died last week, in Washington. in Washington.

Father Lennon has been in charge of St. Joseph's, Taneytown, since 1899 when he succeeded Rev. Theodore D. Mead, this being his first charge following his ordination. He has greatly endeared himself to his congregation, and has been generally popular with all denominations. His purchase of a large farm in this district, almost led to the belief that he might remain here many years yet, not-

GETTYSBURG BATTLE

50TH. ANNIVERSARY.

Plans May Include Program Covering a Whole Week.

The Gettysburg Compiler, this week, contains the following information relative to the big anniversary celebration to be held in Gettysburg, in July.

"Governor John K. Tener, Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, General J. M. Schoonmaker, chairman of Anniversary Commission, Captains George F. Baer and William E. Miller, members of the commission with their secretary, Lewis E. Beitler, visited Gettysburg on last Friday. The Governor and party arrived Friday morning on the Reading and Gen. Schoonmaker the same morning by the Western Maylord. President Fire the Western Maryland. President Fitz-gerald of the latter road arrived Thursday evening.

Mr. Baer, as president of the Reading,
General Schoonmaker and President Fitzgerald of the Western Maryland, went thoroughly over the transportation prob-lems. Many phases of the difficulties were canvassed and the work necessary

It has been said unofficially that the time to be devoted to the celebration will be lengthened and will probably be a week instead of four days. Gettysburg was unjustly criticised as desiring to have the celebration lengthened for purpose of commercial gain. The congressional committee was told that Gettysburg asked for no more time than the problems of the anniversary would demand. Capt. Hartman in studying the physical problems said that a four days' celebration might be pulled off but that the event would lengthen itself sufficiently to cover the demands. The demands upon the rail-roads will be enormous and the opinion has always been entertained here that it would be simply impossible to get the crowd here for a four day event. It will likely take four or more to get a portion of the people here and after the celebration is over it will take days to get the crowd away and no matter what time may be finally determined upon for the celebration ceremonies, the event with the coming and going will cover all of two weeks or more. The wise visitor to Gettysburg this summer will make his or her preparations accordingly."

We have received a request for a further

We have received a request for a further notice of the marriage of Joseph Six, of Warrensburg, Mo., and Mrs. Sarah Adelsperger, of near Taneytown, the fact having been published locally, last week. The couple were lovers in youth, parted, and each married another, and both were finally left free to marry again. Mr. Six is 76 years of age, and Mrs. Adelsperger 70 years. The groom was formerly a constable in Frederick county for six years, but for a number of years has lived in the west where he amassed has lived in the west where he amassed considerable means.

After the death of his wife he returned to Maryland on a visit and found that the sweetheart of his youth had lost her husband, and an engagement followed, and on Thursday, March 20, the marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Jesse R. Kline, of Frederick county.

The bride and groom will make their future home in Warrensburg, Mo., in the home of the groom and enjoy a quiet life together and be an assistance to one another. Mr. Six and his wife have both been long-time subscribers to the RECORD, and we extend our best wishes for their future happiness.

----An Editorial Commended.

"Allow me to congratulate you on the editorial, "Wanted! Final Authority" in your issue of March 21. I've thought the identical thing many and many a time, but to you (alas for me) comes the honor of putting it into words. Send it to the Baltimore Sun.

The above is from a lady reader of the Record—the author of several books—and one whose favorable comment is worth while; but who would have thought that editorials are read by the ladies? Thanks, for the approval, but we must demur, as to the advice in last sentence. -000-

Our Spring Sale Business.

The RECORD has had the greatest public sale business in its experience of 19 years, having printed bills for, or advertised, 55 sales since February 1. Some of these sales were small, but most of them were average farm sales, and some far above the average; therefore, considering the general high prices for stock this year, we are of the opinion that the receipts of the sales advertised must have been about $2000 each, or $110,000 representing the total of items sold.

This section of Maryland has not, until the last few years, taken to advertising sales in full, in any general sense. The Record emphasized the value of so doing, for several years, adding to the number each year, until this past season it advertised 40 sales at length. This is still not as great as the number should be, but it is a mark that has not, to our knowledge, ever been equaled by any other paper published in this county.

Newspaper advertising of sales is vindicating itself. It has been a demonstrated fact, everywhere, this season, that the best advertised sales have been those at which the best prices were realized. The RECORD, therefore, has no excuses to make for "boosting" the sale business in Carroll county, for it has been largely through our initiative that farmers, other papers, too, have increased their business in this line.

These sales have been attracted by a special price during the sale season from February 1 to April 1. At all other times of the year, and for all deceased estate, mortgagee's or trustee's sales, our rates are appreciably higher, but it has paid us, as

-Church Trouble at Middletown.

A factional fight of 25 years standing in the Lutheran church at Middletown, Frederick county, added another chapter to its history at the election for church council, on Monday. The Maryland Synod, through a special committee, has been trying for the past year to get the been trying, for the past year, to get the warring factions together, and on Mon-day this committee conducted the election strictly according to the rules of the Synod, none being allowed to participate who had not met all of their financial and other obligations, and this disqualified about 50 voters, on Monday, and aggravated the trouble rather than helped to allay it.

Rev. Dr. S. W. Owen, of Hagerstown,
Rev. John Weidley, of Washington, D.
C., and L. Russell Alden, Secretary of Synod, conducted the election. The church was crowded, and when the list of disqualified ones was read, great confusion prevailed. Some of the nominees were prevaled. Some of the nominees were themselves declared ineligible, which added to the confusion. The following, representing the Doub faction, were elected: Elders for two years, Joshua D. Ahalt and Daniel C. Kepler; for one year, Charles M. Brane, William W. Doub; deacons for two years, H. E. Mock and William H. Gaver; one year, P. E. Flock and Roy A. Huffer.

P. E. Flook and Roy A. Huffer.
The congregation is the largest and wealthiest in the country. Its members include the leading citizens of Middletown Valley. The trouble has found its way into social and business life and on one occasion nearly precipitated disorder at a church meeting. As a rule what one side indorsed was fought to the limit by the other faction. Two ministers have resigned, being unable to cope with the

A division of the congregation into two, appears to be the only way to solve the split, but neither side seems willing to retire and leave the property to the other. As there are nearly 900 confirmed members in the congregation, there would be ample strength to support two pastors, especially as there is considerable wealth on both sides.

The Federal Aid Good Roads Conven tion, which met in Washington, March 6th and 7th., did considerable work along the line of developing plans for continuing the building of good roads, with the aid of the general government. Terrible Destruction Visits Many Western States.

A terrific cyclone, which centred in Omaha, Neb., devastated portions of Nebraska, Iowa, Illinois and Indiana, on Sunday night. The city of Omaha suffered most, there being about 150 killed and 500 seriously injured, and over 500 buildings destroyed, causing a loss of many millions of dollars.

Details of the horror would require too much space, as the city underwent all sorts of terrible experiences, including fire destruction following the collapse of buildings. As soon as possible, the authorities of both city and state placed the city under milities covernment and tree in the collapse of the city and state placed the city and complete and tree city and complete and tree city and complete and tree city and complete a city under militia government and prevented many of the horrors and crimes which follow such disasters.

People were killed in Ralston, Craig and Yutan, Nebraska; Council Bluffs and Woodbine, Iowa; Perth and Terre Haute Indiana, while loss of property was widespread.

Passengers on a C. B. & Q. train to Omaha had a view of the storm as it swept along, apparently in pursuit of the train. William Coon, president of an automobile company of Lincoln, Neb., gave a graphic description as he viewed it from the platform of observation car. "For miles," he said, "it seemed as if the train were being pursued by the storm. We were approaching Ralston, Neb., when I first noticed a strange, copper-colored cloud mounting toward the sky. Before that it had been clear. The cloud grew rapidly and was traveling at tre-mendous speed. It assumed the form of a funnel and the air was filled with a curious noise, very piercing.

"Then the funnel seemed to grow black and the smaller end—that near the ground—was about half a mile in diameter. The tail of the funnel swished across the railroad track and swept toward the little town.

"When it struck the town, houses collapsed as though they were of paper. The roofs went sailing away and the sides fell in. The passengers sat as though glued to their seats when the cloud struck. Then as they comprehended the desolation wrought, a cry of horror went up from everyone. It was a terrible sight. Then the engineer brought the engine to a stop and the passengers ran over to the wreckage of the houses.

Many are the freaks reported in the path of the tornado. Houses were left unscathed while their neighbors were literally torn to pieces. Splinters were driven through trees, and in one place the lower story of a house was torn out while the upper story settled in its place. Shade trees were uprooted and driven entirely through brick buildings. Wires were torn down and wrapped about poles as if wound by the hand of an artisan. Telegraphic communication with the stricken section has been so much interfered with, that smaller losses have largely been unreported, and these alone, in the aggregate, will likely amount to several millions of dollars, as the section covered practically included several states. There are also scattering instances of loss of life, which will add to the true death Mary V. Shoemaker, administratrix of total when it becomes known. Estimates of the loss to property vary from $5,000,-000 to $10,000,000.

Following the cyclonic disaster, came the still greater devastation by floods in Ohio and Indiana, with Dayton as the chief loss centre, on Tuesday night. The whole middle and southern sections of Ohio and Indiana were devastated to the extent of many millions of dollars, while loss of life entered the thousands.

Reports as to loss by death in Dayton and other places are very conflicting, and will not likely be known with any cer-tainty until next week. This is also true of the property loss, which will require a longer time to estimate. Loss of life occurred in Dayton, Piqua, Columbus, Delaware, Middletown, Sidney, Hamilton, Tiffin, and in smaller places in Ohio the total estimated at from 1800 to 2500. In Indiana, at Peru, Indianapolis, La-fayette, and smaller places, the total estimated at from 200 to 300.

dozen buildings were destroyed in the business section.

The National Cash Register Co., the plant of which was outside of the flooded area, was not only an asylum for refugees, but employees manufactured boats and aided materially in saving life. Company also did splendid work in the way of bringing members of separated families together. Fully 3000 people found shelter in the buildings of the Company.

Hundreds who were on house-tops and other places of safety, were not only exposed to a cold rain, but suffered greatly or want of food and water to drink Many deaths will result from nervous shock and exposure, as hundreds were without food or shelter for two days.

Relief trains containing food, physicians, medicines, boats and other essentials were hurried into Dayton as rapidly as possible, but as the railroads were badly washed out, relief work was slow. Nearby places used automobiles and all sorts of conveyances. Farmers are said to have also lost heavily in cattle.

Newspaper reports of both great disasters have been very indefinite and in such general terms as to in many inapproximately, that were in existence in stances cause doubt of correctness. The 1879 on tobacco be restored and used for probability is that much of the story of the disasters was "made up," to fill the demand, as owing to the wires being out Mr. Shackleford moved to amend by of order, a great amount of accurate news was absolutely impossible.

raised by this taxation be set apart as a fund to be applied to the construction or maintenance, or both, of such roads as buildings known to be destroyed. This is no doubt partly due to the fact that the railroads are first putting their own lines into order for use before establishing telegraphic communication, and to the fact that the main offices in Dayton were constable has put an end to the practice, the practice, the pistols being confiscated. Millions of dollars will be required, even in the way of charitable assistance, and it is wanted NOW. We already have several subscriptions, and would like to send all that may be handed in, not later than April 4th. All donations will be acknowledged in next week's issue. THE RECORD CO.

Now II is confidently urged that the secret for the reduced cost of living, is for farmers in the East to raise more hogs, and ten hogs more sold by every farmer, is announced as the number required to do the trick. As our good farmers have such an easy chance to come to the relief of suffering humanity, through the hogkilling route, we naturally look to them to meet the requirement.

-000 THE DIRECT election of Senators seems to be popularized by the fact that so often legislatures "dead-lock" over such elections. But, sufficient as this reason seems to be for direct elections, we doubt whether the latter plan, after trial, will not develop objections even greater than the former. Because a plan works badly is not, after all, full and sufficient grounds for discarding it for a new one, notwithstanding the fact that such expedients are now enjoying a wonderful season of popularity.

AN EXPOSURE has been made of the fact that many magazine and newspaper articles, purporting to have been written by "star" baseball players, are not written by them at all, but by certain writing experts, and that for a financial consideration the "stars" have simply loaned their names for the purpose of making said articles more popular with baseball "fans." It is quite a shock to learn that famous captains and twirlers are not also literary artists, and the exposure is also a blow at enterprising pub-

THE PRESS of the country is gradually getting tired of saying that Mr. Taft was a very good President and that he was a very poor President; that he was very able and honest, and very ordinary and selfish; that he was good natured, but weak; that he was the tool of the special interests, and that he was very sympathetic for the best interests of the whole people, and so on indefinitely. Evidently, Mr. Taft was a very accommodating character, depending on the point of view, or on the preferences and necessities of his critics.

How Subscribers Vary in Their Preferences.

A subscriber remarked, the other day, that he "never paid for a thing until he got it," which was the reason why he paid his subscription at the end of the year, and not in advance. We suggested to him that he was not, therefore, a subscriber to any city paper, and our conclusion was acknowledged to be correct. We mention this incident simply to show the variation of the human mind, as we have subscribers who become angry when we do not promptly discontinue the RECORD at the time to which it has been paid. One class wants a year's credit-another does not want even a single week. It is hardly worth while to mention, again, our plan, as it is almost generally known. We do not have on our list a single subscriber over one year in arrears. Perhaps three-fourths of them are paid in advance. As we send out monthly statements to those whose year's credit is expiring, we know accurately how many take the year, and it is comparatively few; a larger number, of course, pay irregularly during the year and never get automobile pleasure riders. We realize, back very far, so, on the whole, our list of course, that the city pays about half of

> ---Public Sentiment is Kind.

Public sentiment is patient and kind as o the new administration. It necessarily follows that it would be so, after the sort of politics the country has been having for several years, for after all there is a very considerable number of people who do not admire sky-rocket politics, and there is a feeling of relief that President Wilson won, even if the country is not exactly sure that he will be able to manage the job successfully.

The whole country is calming down, for 'it realizes that what we most need is harmony, and cessation from further political quarreling beyond that which has already been commenced, and which has left problems to be worked out. There is a feeling that Mr. Wilson has a perfect right—as well as abundant power -to work out, if he can, the redemption (?) of the country from the evils (?) into which it had fallen, or at least from those into which "they say" it had fallen, and the job is not an easy one, for the administration must not only keep things going as prosperously as they are, but they must be noticeably bettered.

It will not be enough merely to prevent business depression and financial panics, and hold general prosperity where it now is. The country has had that, for a long time, and the "progressivites" have characterized old conditions as all wrong, and little better than robbery. Mr. Bryan has been in the front ranks of the malcontents, and it will be up to him to make the best of his chance to prove his claims, through helping, and not embarrassing, the administration.

President Wilson seems to have a clear field to work the wonders this big country needs, and the people are patient and waiting. He must work them, or the masses will after a while make up their minds that the "preachers" have all along been talking "politics" and not the gospel of better government. A change that is no better than the old, is no improvement, but a failure to "make good" the argument and promises which led to the change.

If all this familiar skylarking with public men and policies, which has been going on in Congress, and through the press, for the last four years, has been worth while; if the new prophets are wise and worth following, they must now deliver their treasures. If they do not, they must stand before the country as mere wind-mills and falsifiers. The pursuit has been pleasurable; now we will look for possession to be even more so. The country is very kind to you, just now, President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, and wishes you well, but on your 'fruits' you will be judged, finally. Back of professions and charges, memory still exists.

Road Legislation.

The question of a further big road loan will undoubtedly come before our next legislature, and now is the time for taxpayers to begin speaking their minds about it. The automobile interests will be active, and certain other interests will urge the building of more macadamized roads, without much regard for where the money is to come from. There is nothing more catching than the building and use of good roads; nothing more generally desirable for any country community, but the question whether the taxpayers can afford to have them, must be first considered.

If any plan can be devised by which good stone roads can be built, within the means and desires of the people, by all means let us have them. Our own opinion always has been that the state can save hundreds of thousands of dollars, appropriated at every legislature, and apply the sum to roadbuilding, with decidedly more good to everybody. There is always an unnecessary army of employees at every session-merely political gifts to hangers-on-and there are dozens of institutions which have received state aid for so long that they should be cut off and made stand alone.

We think that perhaps road building can be continued without any further increase in the tax rate, providing the powers are willing to take the necessary steps to do so; and we also not only think, but know, that any further big debt for roads, is not wanted even by country tax-payers who are most interested in good roads for their actual nee-

It would be a wise plan for road matters to be submitted to real country residents and users of roads, rather than to the road tax of the state, but the bulk of We long ago set out to gain a list of city taxpayers are not represented by sent country taxpayers. False Teachers and Teaching.

There is a big lot of both silly and danerous talk going, these days, by men of a certain class in high authority, much of which appeals to the selfish and covetous and the worst elements in mankind-a sort of gilded, intellectual socialismwhich has for its purpose the creation of the sentiment that "the people" are not being dealt fairly with in the distribution of wealth, and that most accumulations of wealth and property represent robbery, either in the matter of wages, length of work days, or responsibility for condiions of life among the poorer classes.

These pronouncements deal in generalities and are of course accompanied by disclaimers of anything like trying to injure business, or to create the impression that wealth in itself is a crime, or that all who have succeeded have done so more or less dishonestly. But there is nevertheless the insidious wrong impression being spread abroad, for absorption by receptive minds, whether by those inclined towards morbid humanitarianism, or towards the more or less prevalent belief among the weaklings, unfortunates and shiftless, that they are not getting 'their share.'

The doctrine, that because superior minds and superior natural advantages come to a comparatively few, the few ought to 'divide up," is silly nonsense. It conflicts with all the natural laws of the universe since the creation. It is a bad enough doctrine coming from the mentally and morally oblique masses, but when it comes from pofessors of righteousness and real leaders of men and thought, it is indescribably rank and

There never will be any such thing as an approximately equal distribution of wordly goods, on any basis. Perhaps it is equally true to say that there never ought to be. Certainly, all preachments on the subject should be along lines of calm moderation, and never for the purpose of securing personal political following; and without the latter the gospel being spread abroad would never be given birth. Those who devote their best thought to the complex subject of human existence, and to its many ills and inequalities, and who do so without personal ends in view, are chiefly conspicuous by their absence, at least so far as the general public has daily newspaper information. There are such men, but they do not, as a rule, speak to large audiences and try to publicly turn their unselfishness into political capital.

Trying to Fool Democats.

If Mrs. Geo, R. Ash, "Editress and Proprietress' of the Cecil Democrat, wrote the following editorial in last week's issue, she is certainly something of a "stand-patter," as well as a liberal user of somewhat emphatic personal opin-

"The supporters of William L. Marbury, (nearly all of whom are those who can be led around by the Baltimore Sun) are attempting to make DEMOURATS believe that he is a Progressive—a very fascinating term. What do you think about it Mr. Democratic voter

It is true that Marbury has, twice since he has been a voter, been a Rebublican NOMINEE for office. It is absolutely true that he twice openly fought one of the greatest Democrats that has ever trod this land since the days of Thomas Jefferson-William Jennings Bryan.

It is true that he has worked hand in hand with the Republicans in various campaigns to defeat such Democrats as Hon. William Pinkney White, Hon. Isidor Rayner, Robert M. McLane, Sr., ex-Governor E. E. Jackson, ex-Governor Frank Brown, Hon. John P. Poe and

It is true that he was brought out as a candidate a few weeks ago for the United States Senate to oppose Hon. John Walter Smith by Charles Grasty, the proprietor of the Baltimore Sun, and Grasty, it will be remembered by everyone familiar with Maryland politics, up to about three years was the owner of the Baltimore News, one of the dirtiest political sheets in Maryland. During his regime there he left nothing undone or unsaid that would do harm to the Democratic party and its candidates Now, Democrats are asked and urged to fall in line under such leadership as Grasty, and to vote for William L. Marbury, and to turn down for them such a stalwart and tried-and-true Democrat as John Walter Smith. Think this matter over from a common-sense view Mr.

> ---The Perpetual Agitator.

We read in Colonel Roosevelt's address delivered at Philadelphia that the Progressive party is to go on striving for the great principle of judicial reconstruction, to which the Colonel committed it last

Well, we have no quarrel with the Colonel's intention to go forward to still greater defeats, for he must go forward to something large and impressive, and defeat is only a little less spectacular than victory. Defeated or victorious, he will always be the hope of social and political salvation of a considerable number of Americans of a certain type. In perpetual agitation of one thing or another is profit to him, solace for them and enter-tainment for all the rest of us.

As to the issues, the revolutionary re-construction of a judicial system that has served this country so well that it is the envy of practically every other great nation on earth, will do, for the present, as well as another. As to making it the permanent basis of Progressive hope and purposes, that is another question entire-What the Progressive party, with the Colonel as its perpetual and absolute dictator, will be for 1916, no man now knows. The Colonel's irrevocable belief that third presidential terms were con-trary to the wise usage and sound government principles of this republic, were easily reversed. Perhaps the paramount issue of judicial reform will give way in a year or so to something paramounter.Rochester Herald.

NO. 4710 EQUITY.

In the Circuit Court for Carroll County, in Equity. Clarence I. Shank, and Luther F. Shank, com-

Orpha Anders, Phoebe A. Garner, Laura R. Newcomer, John D. Shank, and Fred-erick A. Shank, defendants.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree, appointing some suitable person or persons Trustee or Trustees, with power and authority to make sale of the Real Estate in Carroll and Frederick counties, in the State of Maryland, of which Otho A. Shank, died siezed and possessed, and not disposed of by Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, his wife, in her lifetime; and distribution of the proceeds thereof among the parties according to the Last Will and Testament of the said Otha A. Shank.

As twill and Testament of the said Otia A, Shank.

The Biil states that Otha A, Shank departed this life, in Carroll County, Maryland, on or about the 12th day of March, 1905, leaving a Last Will and Testament, duly executed to pass Real Estate, dated December 20th, 1904, which said Will was duly admitted to probate by the Orphans' Court of Carroll County, on the 10th day of July, 1905, and is duly recorded among the Records of Wills, in the Office of the Register of Wills for Carroll County, in Liber J. D. B., No. 9, folio 495, etc.; and that Letters Testamentary thereon were, by said Orphans' Court, on the 25th day of July, 1905, duly committed and granted unto Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix therein named, as appears by a duly Certified Copy of said Will and Exemplification of said Letters Testamentary, therewith filed as part thereof, and marked "EXHIBIT NO.1."

That, by said Will, the said Testator devised That, by said Will, the said Testator devised and bequeathed his estate, real and personal, after the payment of his just debts and fu-neral charges, as follows:

"First Item. I devise and bequeath to my dear wife, Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, all my Real and personal property, of every kind and nature, to do with as she may see fit during her lifetime, and after her death, it is my desire and will that all the Real and personal property to which I may be entitled to at the time thereof shall be sold at Public Sale, and the proceeds arising therefrom shall be equally divided share and share alike between J. Clarence Shank, Luther F. Shank, Ortha Shank, Phoeba A. Crouse, Laura R. Shank and John D. Shank, and Frederick A. Shank."

And therein also appointed his said wife

Shank."
And therein also appointed his said wife, Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix thereof, and the Plaintiffs, Clarence I. Shank and Luther L. Shank, the Executors of her estate. That the said Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, the Executrix named in said Will, administered the estate of her Testator in said Orphans' Court of Carroll County, and therein stated her First Account on or about the 12th day of February, 1906.

That the said Otha A. Shank was, at the time of his death, siezed and possessed of four separate parcels of land, two of them situate in Carroll County, in the State of Maryland, and the other two in Frederick County, in said State.

and the other two in Frederick County, in said State.

That the said Elizabeth Rebecca Shank departed this life, intestate, in Carroll County, Maryland, on or about the 24th day of November, 1912, having conveyed by deed, in her lifetime, one of the parcels of land in Frederick County, and one of said parcels in Carroll County, but without having disposed of his farm, situate in Carroll County, in the State of Maryland, and containing two hundred and two (202) acres of land more or less, and the same land that was conveyed to said Testator, in his lifetime, by Peter G. Sauble and wife, by deed dated March 24rd, 1901, and recorded among the Land Records of Carroll County, in Liber J. H. B., No. 12, folio 306, etc; and also, a wood-lot, or parcel of land, situate in Frederick County, in said State, containing Twenty-four (21) Acres, One (1) Rood and Seventeen and One half (17½) Perches more ress, that was conveyed to said Testator, in his lifetime, by John W. Shank and Palmer Lee Feiser, Executors of Phoebe E. Feiser, deceased, by deed dated October 27th, 1900, and recorded in Liber D. H. H., No. 7, folio 646, etc., one af the Land Records of Frederick County, Certified Copies of which said Deeds being filled therewith as parts thereof, and marhed "EHIBITS NOS. 2 and 3," respectively.

marked "EHIBITS NOS. 2 and 3," respectively.

That the parties to this cause are all children of the said Otho A. Shank, and his wife, Elizabeth Rebecca Shank, and are all adults, above the age of Twenty-one Years, to-witclarence I. Shank, who is the same person named in said Will as J. Clarence Shank, and who resides in Carroll County, Maryland, Luther F. BAND YOUR BIRDS.

Leg bands on fowls, whether of gold, silver, aluminium, celluloid, linenoid, enameled, colored or plain, seamless or adjustable, are not for ornament, but are a convenient, useful article of poultry apparel.

That punch mark in the foot web is a private mark. It's an identifier, a proof of ownership. You keep a record of it and can thus trace the pedi-

The bands are required on all show birds for record, and we find them a special convenience for marking birds selected for breeding pens. The bird's age, pen, owner's initials will find every bird banded, from "squeaker" to breeder, the bands showing age, sex, mating, and many a racing homer has been recovered by advertising its leg band number.

While bands may be secured to band voung and old poultry of all kinds, it hardly pays to band the whole flock. It isn't necessary, and then bands must be changed to fit the growing leg, and that runs into money.

It is the practice to mark all pigeons in up to date lofts, but with chickens, turkeys and other large fowls it is only customary to mark breeders and show birds, aluminium bands being most popular.

Grandma clipped the turk's tail to mark him. Note our turk marker. Rather a difference.

DON'TS.

Don't blame it on the hens when the egg record drops. A sudden change of leed is good knockout drops.

Don't forget that you are manager. Whether a gun shoots straight depends on the man behind the gun. Whether a hen lays and pays depends on the man behind the hen.

Don't feed a certain grain because it is plentiful and cheap. Such false economy neither works with hens nor

Don't sell an egg with a question behind it, for the law against rots is behind the customer, and you may be ordered before the judge and be put be hind the bars.

Don't pride yourself on your soft bands. They are often a sign of soft SELECTING THE TURKEY HENS. It is strange that many turkey raisers think the gobblers the whole "shebang" and any little turkey hen will do. Milady in the picture doesn't think so

She is just saying, "This is a beautiful turkey pullet, but I'll not use her for a breeder until she is two years old; then she will be fully matured and her eggs will hatch strong poults." Pity more turkey raisers aren't like milady! Many of them mate good gobblers to any old hen or little pullet; then they blame their failure on the weather, the blackhead disease or the general cussedness of the turkey constitution.

The woods are "jist" full of "sich" turkey pessimists. But, mind you, tame turkeys don't mature in a year, and two years or over is the correct age to mate hens, and these should come from fresh blooded stock raised a la nature. The pullet pictured weighs twelve pounds. The standard weights for adult hens are: Bronze, 20 pounds; Narragansett, Holland, Black Buff, Bourbon and Slate, 18 pounds.

by setting them on the adult turkey hen's eggs and let them mother the poults. That will give them practice and beats the suicidal policy of putting nature fake, lousy, scabby legged chicken clucks on the job.

A good turkey breeder should have length, breadth, depth and plumpness of body, and these points must be kept in view in choosing breeders.

A good hen, while more refined than the gobbler, has a bright eye, good sized head, "middlin'" long, strong, graceful neck, good sized throat wattle, abundant caruncles, broad rounded back, curving gracefully toward long tail; breast, round, deep, full, carrying much breast meat; good, strong frame; body, large, long, deep through middle, egg shaped with round end front; plump thighs, shanks thick and of good length, feet large and set wide apart.

A New York poultry plant advertises 10,000 pullets and 500 surplus yearling heus for sale. The day was when 1.000 chickens a year was considered a great capacity. This big plant can ship an order of 10,000 Peking ducks and not make a dent in its vast flocks.

One reason for poor results in the spring is delay in mating up breeders. The fancier who sends his best birds to the last shows nearly always gets left, for his birds are not only mated late, but are generally out of condition from the exposure, excitement and slose confinement that attend showing.

If your state is not sending out poultry lecturers to the farmers' institutes ask for them. 'The orchard, the dairy. the field crops, all have their experts who are sent out to give up to date information on these subjects, and the billion dollar hen, that beats all the farm crops but corn, should be given due importance on the institute program also.

The English are stuck on brown eggs. white shelled eggs selling lower. Some English dealers dye the white eggs brown to catch the higher price. While brown is the call in Boston, New York and San Francisco prefer them white. The people in general in this country nren't so particular about the shell, but the smell. A fancier of Gompton, Cal., boasts a Rhode Island Red pullet without wings. She should be mated to the crowless rooster invented in Maine, and a race of fowls would be evolved that would surely not dig up neighbors' gardens nor disturb the late snores of the nigh ball bridge society.

ELABORATE PRECAUTIONS TAK. EN AT GOVERNMENT POSTS.

Uncle Sam Furnishes an Excellent Example to the Country in This Respect-Few Losses by Conflagrations in the Army.

Perhaps the low percentage of fires in the army is directly due to the fact that guard duty is never suspended.

In daylight and dark, during peace or in time of war, armed sentries walk their posts scattered everywhere over the garrisons. Falling asleep while on guard is a serious offence. Therefore the guards are always alert. Never is a sentry mounted on a post without a caution to look out for fires.

One of the first charges in a guard's general orders is one in which he is cautioned to keep a sharp watch for fire. His first duty, in case a building is occupied by numanity, is to warn the occupants. Next he turns in a general alarm. And when fire call is blown by the trumpeter at the main guard house every male member of the garrison, except the guard, is compelled to hurry to the scene of the fire, no matter where he is, and no matter how he is dressed.

It is not necessary that a man should be in regulation uniform to respond to a fire call. Military fires do not wait for antagonists in full dress parade costumes, any more than city fires procrastinate while the members of the department make careful

Once a week, sometimes oftener, in every military garrison, large or throughout the country, and there are several hundred at home and in our possessions, a fire drill is held. Not a soul save the commanding officer is advised of what hour of the day or night or on what day of the week a fire call will be blown. As fires do not give warning of their coming, writes Monroe Woolley in Insurance Engineering, it is obviously advantageous that a fire drill should be as uncertain.

When the fire call goes, either for drill or for a fight for life and property, the soldiers rush out of their quarters, leave their posts in the company kitchens, and on the drill grounds, picking up fire buckets and fire axes as they go in the race for the fire station. Some may be hatless, some coatless and others shirtless. But it is an honor to be among the first to take hold of the fire equip-

All the officers dash for the fire house, too, and the highest ranking officer present assumes the duties of fire chief. A run is made with chemical engines and hand drawn hose carts and hook and ladder trucks for a building designated as the scene ef the fire. When the equipment is out for a fire drill the men take advantage of the occasion and play water on the windows of buildings, giving them a good cleaning. The amount of fire fighting apparatus furnished the posts by the government for their protection is regulated, of course, entirely by the size and needs of each post.

Confirmed for Rheumatism. Rev. Joshua Kimber, in his "Rem-Iniscences," tells the following anecdote of the late Bishop Horatio Pot-

He had been journeying up the east bank of the Hudson river, stopping for confirmation each day at adjoining parishes. When he reached Poughkeepsie he saw a woman at the rail waiting for confirmation whose face he was sure he recognized and was somewhat familiar with. He was also certain that she had been confirmed within the week at another place. The bishop whispered to her to remain after service, and said:

"My dear madam, what do you mean by coming for confirmation? I am sure I confirmed you on Monday at such a place. Did I not?"

She said: "You certainly did. I have been following you up the river and have been confirmed every day this week." He, astonished, said: "Why do you do that?" Whereupon she replied: "Because I heard it was good for rheumatism."

Prussian War Centennial.

The year 1913 marks a notable passage in the history of Prussia. A hundred years ago Prussia rose against Napoleon, who was already weakened by the retreat from Moscow, and, with the help of Austrians, and also a very large body of Russians, they managed to drive the French army over the frontier, after defeating it in the tremendous two days struggle at Leip-

Many are the centennial celebrations that are arranged for this year, and, as a conclusion, it is hoped that the czar will visit the battlefield of Leipzig at the end of the year in company with the kaiser. The Russian cooperation at Leipzig, it should be explained, was particularly strong, and at least 22,000 Russian troops were killed in the fight.

Writers Have Stretched Truth in Tales of Elephants.

Really the Intelligence of the Animal, So Widely Believed In, Has Strong Limitations, as Observers Can Testify.

English writers who have dwelt in India assert that the many curious tales with reference to the superior intelligence of the elephant are apt to produce a distinctly incorrect impression. Like that of the horse, the intelligence of the elephant is said to have strange limitations. There is an instance of authentic record in which the populace of a small town near Madras were frightened out of their wits by a runaway elephant which broke from its mahout's control and ran through the town, smashing everything that lay in its path—all because it had been frightened by the pattering of raindrops on its rider's umbrella.

An English official in Burma, on a tour of inspection, became tired of riding his elephant and procured a pony in one of the villages. He was careful to make sure that the pony was not afraid of elephants, but it never occurred to him to ascertain whether or not the elephant might be afraid of his ponies. Early the next morning he sent his baggage and servants off on the elephant with orders to halt for lunch at a village ten miles away, and when he had finished some work he followed on the pony. When a mile or so from the halting place he saw the elephant "hunching along" in advance. The Englishman trotted up to hasten the mahout's pace. As he approached, the mahout began to gesticulate. The Englishmaan and his servants, who were Bengali, knew no Burmese, and the Burman knew no tongue but his own. The Britisher guessed, of course, that something was the matter, and, breaking into a gallop to see what it might be, he was astonished to see the elephant start off at a run. Three times the excited and angry mahout succeeded in stopping the beast after a run of a mile or so, and three times did the Englishman ride up to see what was the matter, only to observe with astonishment that the elephant rushed off each time. Finally the unhappy mahout steered the animal off the road into swampy ground, and thus shaking off the pursuit, plowed his way back on foot to the halting place, where he found an interpreter to explain that the elephant had been terrified by the pony's approach.—Harper's Weekly.

Ruled Sultan by His Love. Uskaub, the capital of the old Servian empire, now for the moment restored to the new Servia, is associated with one of the few real love affairs of a Turkish sultan. It was here, after the fatal field of Kossovo, that Bajaze, arranged terms of peace with the Servian king Stephen. One of the most important stipulations was that Stephen should hand over his sister, the Lady Desnina as wife to the sutan. It was a lucky deal for the Servians. for it is written that "of all his wives the sultan held the Lady Despina dearest, and for her sake restored to her brother the city and castle of Semendria and Columbarium, in Servia. E. C. Johnson, who rescued the captain and crew from the wrecked barkentine Klikiztat, on the coast of Hawaii island, has reached here after an experience he will not soon forget, a Honolulu letter to the New York Tribune states. Johnson was climbing down a cliff 125 feet high, with the aid of creepers and jutting rocks. As he swung out, holding to a creeper, a large centipede crawled from the vine to his arm and toward his face. He dared not let go the vine with his other hand to try to knock it off, but as the insect reached his shoulder he brushed at it with his head. The centipede hit him, and in desperation Johnson swung from the vine by one hand and with the other killed the insect. Then he climbed the rest of the way down as best he could.

The evidence shows that you drove the deceased about the city in your taxicab for two hours, then took him to a secluded place and strangled him and stole his watch. Have you anything to say before sentence is pronounced?"

Three men were injured last Friday night when engine No. 706 of the Western Maryland Railroad turned turtle and four freight cars derailed near Carrollton station. The injured were H. E. Tayler, fireman, badly scalded; W. V. Bunkley engineer, injured by all; and another man who was learning the grade. It is supposed that a rail turned and threw the engine from the track. Traffic was at a standstill for several hours. Early Sunday morning another wreck occurred on the road at or near Hagerstown, resulting in the delay of the passenger

A Republican Harmony Meeting.

A large number of the members of the Republican Advisory Committee responded to a call issued by Gen. J. Kemp Bartlett, and met on Monday afternoon at the Belvedere Hotel, Baltimore, to consider ways and means of securing a reunion of the Republican forces of the General Bartlett explained the purpose of the gathering after he had called the meeting to order, and in an extended address directed attention to the importance of Republicans getting together if they hoped to make any showing against the common enemy. He said that a great majority of the Republicans who had supported the Progressive ticket at the last election were prepared to re-turn to the fold. The reasons that has induced them to forsake the party no longer existed, and there was no reason why both wings should not again come

Addresses along similar lines were made by former State Senator Putzel, ex-Sen-ator Harry M. McCullough, Jonathan K. Taylor and others, but different views were presented bearing on the manner of procedure. It was at first proposed to appoint a committee to take immediate action, the idea being to have a big mass meeting in the near future. Other members, however, thought it a wise course to proceed with great deliberation before adopting this proposition. The discussion took a wide range, during which it was stated that while men like Messrs. Bonaparte and Gaither were determined to quit the party, the rank and file would respond to the call when the situation was made known. Divided the opponents of Democracy could make no headway, but again united the Republicans could repeat the performance of the fall of 1911 and retain control of the state dministration.

The members who had supported the Progressive ticket and who were well represented were as earnest in their desire to restore harmony as those who had supported the Republican nominees, the only difference of opinion being as to the course to be pursued It was finally agreed to appoint a committee to draft resolutions along the lines indicated by the speakers, with the understanding that there is to be a conference or mass-meeting some time in May or June, to which all Republicans and Progressives should be invited, who, willing to sink past differences, would unite in restoring the party to its former power

The Mutton Under the Wool.

The coming revision of the tariff, which will likely place wool on the free list, or approaching it, will have the effect of further advancing meat prices by practically eliminating mutton as a food product, if the reduction acts as it is feared that it will-destroy the wool business of this country, and stop our production of sheep skins for leather.

The elimination of the tariff from wool, would amount to not over 90% on a pure all wool suit of clothes. As there are comparatively few pure wool suits made, the average reduction by the tariff (if all taken off) would lower the cost of the average suit perhaps about 60 cents, assuming that the manufacturers would give the final consumer the full benefit of the reduction, which hardly anybody be-lieves would be the case, as it never has been so in like cases. Shoes, for instance, are higher now than before hides were made free. The American Economist, ommenting on his subject, says:

Take away the profit represented in the duty on wool, a very small thing in a suit of clothes, but a big thing in a flock of five hundred or a thousand sheep-take away that Protection which you give the farmer, and the farmer will not whine or weep. He will simply stop raising sheep, and soon increase the price

The American farmer, fortunately, can do pretty well anything that he likes with his land. He can change from sheep to something else quickly, give up sheep entirely, and forget about the mutton supply, if you force him to it.

The agricultural, commercial and industrial system of the country is a complicated proposition. One thing depends upon the other. And that which makes a very little difference to the man who buys a suit of clothes, or an automobile runabout, or a pair of shoes, may make a very great difference to all the farmers of the country, or all the automobile manufacturers, or all the tens of thousands of men employed in the shoe industry.

Balkan Ballads.

In the Balkan countries the ballad makers have certainly been at least as important as the makers of laws. Servia's national ballads, commemorating the glories of the Servian Emperor Dushan, the fatal battle of Kossovo and the legendary exploits of the hero Marko Kralyevich and his horse Sharats, are of Homeric proportions and, sung to the accompaniment of a guitar with cords of horsehair tails, have kept national feeling warm for centuries. In recent years the Servian government published a popular edi tion. In Macedonia Sir Charles Elioi heard a schoolboy recite a Bulgarian poem which took an hour and a quarter, with a simple but significant plot. The pasha of Sofia summons a Bulgarian hero who is his friend and tells him he has orders to execute him. The Bulgarian asks why. The pasha says he does not know, but he must do it, and he does.-London Chronicle.

Floral Death Legends.

By the Mexicans marigolds are known as death flowers from an exceedingly appropriate legend that they sprang up on the ground stained by the life blood of those who fell victims to the love of gold and cruelty of the early Spanish settlers. Among the Virginian tribes, too, red clover was supposed to have sprung from and to be colored by the blood of the red man slain in battle with the white invaders. In a similar manner the red poppies which followed the plowing of the field of Waterloo were said to have sprung from the blood of the killed and wounded in that famous battle. According to tradition, the Danish invasion is the cause of the daneweed, a coarse, asteraceous plant common in England, as it sprang from the blood of Danes slain in battle, and if cut on a certain day in the year it bleeds. The dwarf elder, for the same reason, is called danewort and daneblood.—Suburban Life.

WORKMAN in an IHC wagon factory was explaining the various stages of wagon construction to an interested visitor. He picked up two pieces of long leaf yellow pine, and asked the visitor to notice the difference in the weight of the two pieces. The lighter piece, he explained, was kiln-dried. The heavier piece was air-dried. It had retained the resinous sap which adds strength and toughness, while in the kiln-dried piece of lumber this sap had been drawn out by the too rapid application of heat.

Every Stick of Lumber Used in IHC Wagons Is Carefully Selected, Air-Dried Stock

Here was something to think about. The visitor asked for a test as to the relative strength of the two pieces of wood. The airdried piece held up under nearly double the weight under which the kiln-dried piece of lumber broke.

To the eye there was no difference between these two pieces of lumber, but when put to the test there was a vast difference. So it is throughout the construction of IHC wagons -Weber, Columbus, New Bettendorf, Steel King. They are built for real strength, light draft, and satisfactory service.

Paul Alger looked firmly into Mrs. Elliott's face.

"You don't realize what you're asking, Aunt Ruth," irritatedly.

"I'm not asking," calmly. "I'm simply telling you what I expect of you. The girl will be here tomorrow. My will is made with these plans in view. If you don't fall in with them you're disinherited absolutely; that's all." Alger rose

"Aunt Ruth, you've been more than a mother to me, and I'd like to do everything I can to please you, but this is expecting too much. I must reserve the right to select my own wife." Mrs. Elliott was stubbornly silent. and after a moment the young fellow said earnestly, "Aunt Ruth, give the money to the girl if you want to, but don't let her come between you and

"Don't talk to me, Paul," impatiently. "I shall give it to you two-together or not at all!"

"Who is this girl," Alger demanded with heat, "that she should be thrust upon me in this style?"

"She is the daughter of my husband's brother. When this girl and my Frederick were little children the brothers promised each other that the children should marry when they were old enough. Frederick died, and after your mother's death I adopted you. You have taken Frederick's place in everything else. You must in this. Promise, Paul!"

"It is utterly impossible!" firmly. "Paul," temptingly, "she is very pretty." Alger smiled and shook his head. "And, Paul," playing her trump card.

"she is musical." Music was Alger's passion.

"Yes?" indifferently. "Yes," emphatically. "She plays the violin.'

"What insuperable presumption!" impatiently. "A girl from the wild west, brought up on a cattle ranch, you said Doubtless she can ride a broncho or lasso a steer, but she shouldn't meddle with the violin. She probably never heard of Bach or Mendelssohn and wouldn't know a sonata from a sand wich. Aunt. I can fancy her bringing her violin in her arms and playing for the delectation of the other passengers in the Pullman. Ugh!"

"You refuse, then?" "Most decidedly."

"Very well," icily. "I accept your decision as final." The next day Alger from his desk in the library saw the girl as she entered the adjoining room, where Mrs. Elliott waited to greet her. She was tall and graceful, with a high bred air of ease that surprised him. Her voice was clear and well modulated.

"Upon my word," he muttered, "I expected her manner of speech to be a cross between a cowboy's yell and an Indian warwhoop."

He saw the servant come in with a violin case.

"Will madam have this in the music room or"-

"Oh, no; here." And Vera held out her hands.

"You brought this yourself, Vera?" Mrs. Elliott's tone held the slightest suggestion of annoyance.

"In my arms literally," laughed Vera.

Alger in his dim corner smiled. Vera gently placed the case on the floor and lifted out the instrument as tenderly as a mother lifts her babe. "Oh, Aunt Ruth," fervently, "when you see it you will understand-my beautiful violin!" She clasped it to her bosom with a gesture of tenderness. The beauty of the girl, the unaffected grace of her pose and her evident artistic appreciation stirred Alger to instant admiration. He met the girl at dinner. She gave him one long, earnest look that he felt at once an inquiry and a challenge. and then she directed her conversation to Mrs. Elliott. Alger was piqued. He was accustomed to more attention from young women. She related some of the incidents of her trip.

"We had a concert each evening. There were three girls in our Pullman coming to Boston to study music. They sang well."

"And you played, I suppose, Miss Elliott?" Alger could not forbear the

Alger felt the rebuff, but he shot a this is the hand owned it for many years. He has also a Guarnerius and an Amati. But this was his 'sweetheart.' He always called it so.'

"A master of the violin does not present the instrument he loves best-a Stradivarius almost beyond price-to a pupil who merely 'scrapes,'" thought

"Did he have many pupils, Miss Elliott?" experimentally.

"No one but myself. He is old and can no longer play. Age has stiffened his fingers. But he played once. Oh, how he could play! He taught me from a little child, and when I could play-to please him-he gave me this.' "Your teacher was a German?" tentatively.

"Bach's D Minor Sonata is not for amateurs," he said gravely to his aunt. "Miss Elliott's gift is beyond question. She would rank with the great violinists of the present day.

"I think John possessed some musical ability," replied Mrs. Elliott serenely. The girl raised her bow with an indescribable gesture of reverence. "My mother," proudly, "was a De Beriot. My master is my grandfather. I did not wish to seem to boast. He is

As the days went by he found himself desperately in love with the girl and unable to win from her anything more than the most chilling courtesy He had not even the satisfaction of confiding in Mrs. Elliott. Once when he tried to speak of Vera, meaning to confess his love for the girl, his aunt interrupted him coldly. "Say no more, Paul. I accepted your decision as final you will remember, and a later will leaves all I possess to the Home For Aged Men.'

She swept angrily from the room. Alger stood for a moment as if stunned; then he laughed aloud. "That's good news! Now there's no money in the way, and I'll move heaven and earth to win the loveliest girl that ever"-

"'Came out of the west," quoted a merry voice, and the portiers parted and Vera stepped from the window seat into the room.

A Famous Pie.

Of all the pastry ever cooked none has attained the magnitude of the pie ordered by Frederick the Great for a feast given in honor of 30,000 soldiers at the end of a campaign. The pie was brought to the table in the most dramatic manner. Toward the conclusion of the meal a strange vehicle drawn by eight horses drove into the camp grounds. The load seemed heavy, and every one was consumed with curiosity to know the nature of his majesty's "surprise." The pie, which completely filled the vehicle, contained a ton of flour, 5,000 eggs and 900 quarts of milk It was cooked in an oven built for the purpose in the woods. After the sol diers had partaken of the pie enough was left over to give a portion to every one in the village near which the army had been quartered.-Harper's.

Cooking and a College Education.

You may have met some academic Hamsel or other who in her zeal over Greek particles or the carbohydrates has no conception of the difficulties of a cook or the tactful management of a parlor maid. But these disabilities are also found among the ignorant. Da vid Copperfield's Dora was no scholar and yet contrived to be a very ineffi cient housekeeper. The practical wisdom of life is neither impaired nor conferred by higher education. Nor con ferred-that is at the moment the im portant point. As a matter of justice it is worth while to insist that the erudite woman is just as likely as her dunce of a cousin to manage private and domestic affairs with success. But do not be deceived. CARLYLE ON BOBBY BURNS

Opinion Expressed by Fellow Countrymen of the Worth of Scotland's Great Poet.

Contemplating this sad end of Burns, and how he sank unaided by any real help, uncheered by any wise sympathy, generous minds have sometimes figured to themselves, with a reproachful sorrow, that much might have been done for him; that by counsel, true affection and friendly ministrations, he might have been saved to himself and the world. We question whether there is not more tenderness of heart than soundness of judgment in these suggestions. It seems dubious to us whether the richest, wisest, most benevolent individual could have lent Burns any effectual help. Counsel, which seldom profits anyone, he did not need; in his understanding he knew the right from the wrong, as well perhaps as any man ever did; but the persuasion which would have availed him lies not so much in the head as in the heart, where no argument or expostulation could have assisted much to implant it. As to money again, we do not believe that this was his essential want, or well see how any private man could, even presupposing Burns' consent, have bestowed on him an independent fortune, with much prospect of decisive advantage. * * * Many a poet has been poorer than Burns; but no one was ever prouder; we may question whether, without great precaution, even a pension from royalty would not have galled and incumbered more than actually assisted him .-From Carlyle's Essay on Burns.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson I.—Second Quarter, For April 6, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxvii, 22-34. Memory Verses, 33, 34-Golden Text, Isa. xxx, 18-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Seven other sons, including Ishmael, are recorded as having been born to Abraham by his secondary wives, but to Isaac he gave all his possessions (xxv, 1, 2, 5) and sent the others away unto the east country. Abraham lived 175 years, and when he died Isaac and Ishmael laid his body beside that of Sarah in the cave of Machpelah (xxv, 7-10). While he lived he looked for the city which hath foundations whose builder and maker is God (Heb. xi, 10, 16), and he is still waiting for it and for the complete fulfillment of the promises made to him as heir of the world (Rom. iv, 13). Time is long to us, but not to Him to whom a thousand years are but as yesterday when it is past (Ps. xc, 4) and as a watch in the

It is restful to see Isaac dwelling by the well Lahai-roi, the well of Him that liveth and seeth me (xxv, 11; xvi, 14, margin). He was forty years old when he married Rebekah, and he was sixty when the twins Jacob and Esau were born. It forebodes trouble to read that Isaac loved Esau, but Rebekah loved Jacob (xxv, 20, 26-28), and the reason given for Isaac's love for Esau does sound very earthly.

Futures were not any more real to Esau than they are to multitudes today. A mess of pottage was more to him as a hungry man than his birthright (xxv, 29-34), and for this he is spoken of as a profane person, or, according to Weymouth, "ungodly" (Heb. xii, 16). Think of the profanity abounding everywhere because the god of this world is blinding so many eyes to the realities of the future kingdom and

In chapter xxvi we read of Isaac's failure on the same line on which his father had failed twice, in calling his wife his sister to save his own life (Gen. xii and xx). In xxvi, 4, we have the star promise confirmed to Isaac. and in verses 12-16 we see how greatly the Lord blessed him and how very rich the blessing of the Lord makes

A beautiful incident is related in verses 17 to 33 as to how yielding instead of strife makes manifest the life of Christ in us. The Philistines had filled up some of Abraham's wells. Isaac reopened one, and then they claimed it as theirs, and he let them have it. He reopened another, and they claimed that one, too, and he let them have it. When he reopened a third for some reason they did not strive for that. Later they came to him to make a covenant with him and gave as their reason for desiring it, "We saw certainly that the Lord was with thee" (verse 28). Had he contended with them and insisted on keeping | exaltation. Through His humiliation the wells, which would have been quite right in the eyes of the world, they would have seen Isaac and not the Lord, but he had learned the lesson of rather taking wrong and suffering himself to be defrauded (I Cor. vi, 7). It is most interesting to note that the same day his servants in digging a well found water (xxvi, 32).

It is indeed sad to have to turn from such a beautiful incident to the lesson for today, which is a record of awful deceit and lying and, worst of all, a mother putting her son up to it and calling down the consequences upon her own head (xxvii, 13). Her aim was to bring the father's blessing upon the son whom she loved, but if she had only believed God and left the matter in His hands He would not have failed to keep His word, for He had told her before the boys were born that the elder should serve the younger (chapter xxv, 23). There is everywhere today a tendency to help the Lord to do what He has no thought of doing, and that is to win the world to Himself in this age, with the devil still doing his devilish work.

There is also such a lack of confidence in God and His plan for His kingdom that many religious people try to work out their own plan, thinking thus to help God. The devil hates the love of God, the patience of God, the purpose of God, and is as busy with many of the people of God as he was with Rebekah that day, but they are blinded and conceited (II Cor. iv, 3, 4; Rom. xi, 25). This record of Rebekah makes us think of another mother who was her son's counselor to do wickedly (II Chron. xxii, 3), but one would hate to associate Rebekah with such as Athaliah, though it is true of all that the heart is deceitful and desperately wicked and the carnal mind is enmity against God (Jer. xvii, 9; Rom. viii, 7). If some of us have not developed the same degree of iniquity as others it is only the grace of God that has kept us. Note the lie upon lie of this story: "I am Esau, thy firstborn," "The Lord thy God brought it to me," "I am thy very son Esau" (verses 19, 20, 24).

But he as found out even as it is written, "Be sure your sin will find you out" (Num. xxxii, 23). though those words were used in a wholly different sense when uttered or written. We do well to remember that "God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil" (Eccl. xii. 14). This may have been the first but certainly not the last story of kid glove deceit on record.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Prayer Meeting Topic For Week Beginning April 6, 1913.

Topic.—The ideal Christian.—IV. His humility.—Matt. xx, 20-28. (Consecration meeting.) Edited by Rev. Sherman H.

Humility is one of the most beautiful virtues that can adorn the Christian character and must necessarily be possessed by the ideal Christian. At the same time it is in some respects one of the most difficult of the Chriscian graces to cultivate and develop. The ambitious spirit is naturally large within us and written large in all the world about us.

The world usually practices anything else than humility, and it seems more often to bestow its favors upon the proud and self assertive rather than upon the humble in spirit and in life. Being human, it is therefore no easy thing even for Christians to develop the spirit of humility to the extent that they should. This spirit of the world had its effect upon Salome, the mother of James and John, and led her to ask Christ to give them high place in His kingdom, and if she and they as well fell under this spell of the world we need to guard ourselves against the same temptation.

The spirit of humility, although difficult of cultivation, should be prized and sought after. It is most pleasing to God. God loveth the humble, but He knoweth the proud afar off, and He keeps them afar off. Only by humbling ourselves can we ever enter into the kingdom of God. The humble only shall dwell with God, for He says, "I will dwell in the high and holy place with him also that is of a contrite and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble and to revive the heart of the contrite ones." "Blessed," says Christ, "are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

There are several facts the remembrance of which should assist us in developing humility. First, the conse quences of pride and ambition. "Pride goeth before destruction." History is replete with illustrations and proofs of this fact. The angels fell through proud ambition, and the downfall of thousands can be traced to the same cause. Second, the teaching and example of Christ. Christ taught humil-He here declared, "Whosoever will be great among you let him be your minister, and whosoever will be chief among you let him be your servant." Humble service is the badge of Christian greatness and not high posi-

Christ practiced humility. "Even as the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister and to give His life a ransom for many." In these words Christ adduced His own example of profound humility. Though equal with God, He took upon Himself the lowliest life of man and was ever active in ministering to others, and as a crowning example of His humility He gave Himself a ransom for lost and ruined men. Such teaching and example should inspire us to cultivate the same spirit of humble service. Third. Humiliation and not ambition lead to Christ was exalted. So it must be with all Christians.

MEMORABLE SESSION.

Christian Endeavor Meeting at Christiania, Norway, Shows Great Growth.

Undoubtedly one of the most memorable of all Christian Endeavor conventions is the one that recently closed its sessions in Christiania, Norway. Some account of this meeting has already been given by Mr. R. W. Davies, the treasurer of the British Christian Endeavor union, but the following facts are gleaned from a very full and interesting account by Pastor Meyer of Christiania, who, with Pastor Klaeboe. has stood in the forefront of Christian Endeavor leaders of Europe during the last seven years.

To those who have followed from the beginning the story of Christian Endeavor in Europe the account of such a meeting as the convention in Christiania seems nothing short of marvelous. When Dr. Clark first went to Norway, some sixteen years ago, though he was invited by some of the professors of the university, he found little to encourage him as to any future growth of the society in the land of the Vikings. While little interest was manifested, there was much skepticism concerning the society politely veiled under the kindly courtesy of his hosts.

For years after that, though the seed had been sown, there seemed little prospect of a harvest, but seven years ago the two earnest pastors who have already been named saw the possibiliities of Christian Endeavor, its adaptability to Norwegian soil as to the soil of every other country where it is planted and cultivated in the right way, and from that time to this the history of Christian Endeavor among the descendants of the northmen has been one of steady progress

"The Lord opened the doors for us everywhere," writes Pastor Meyer, "and it became evident that our work for the religious wants and training of the youth 'for Christ and the church' had gained a much larger sympathy than we knew before."

The motto of the convention was most appropriate, "Pro Christo Europa" ("Europe for Christ").

VIEW ON PERSONAL LIBERTY

Home Has Its Rights Which Saloon Is Bound to Respect-Each Man Is King Over Himself.

You say, "I will eat, drink, wear, speak, just what I please." But society "Nay, friend, you cannot speak what you please. It will be easy for you to utter words so blasphemous or so unfit for ears polite that you will trench on the sharp circle of the law. It will be easy for you to appear among us in such garb, that we shall hand you over to the courts."

And so we come with the question, What business do you intend to fol-In your contract with society it is important to have an answer to this question before we let you in. "I shall start a gambling house."

'Well, then; I will have a shop to sell vile literature.'

"O, no, you won't; we shall interfere with your personal liberty just at that point in the sacred interest of childhood and of home."

"I will set up a tannery, a slaughter house, a powder mill alongside of your houses."

"No, you will not; for we will declare them a nuisance on the instant. "You may not even build a house of such material as you happen to prefer. We legislate on all these matters in the interest of the majority." "Well, then; I will start an opium

"No, we will have an ordinance against that whenever you attempt such an atrocity.'

"But if you are so hard on me, I will start a saloon instead."

"No, you will not, my friend, and for the self same reason that we will not tolerate the traffic in opium—poison gathered from poppies—we will not let you sell the alcohol poison distilled from friuts and grains. The opening of your saloon would be the opening of Pandora's box. It would light the incendiary's torch, impel the random bullet and the pernicious knife stroke, and descend in heaviest blows on the gentlest and most innocent among us. Thirty-five per cent. of the insanity, eighty per cent. of pauperism and ninety per cent. of crime are caused by strong drink. The personal liberty the dealer really seeks in his own liberty to enslave a class. His practice proves too much against his theory. In proportion as the slavery of the drink appetite enchains his patrons are his own receipts increased. Ours is a country where each man is supposed to be king over one—that one himself—but when the integers in the problem of free go ernment are systematically converted into ciphers by the effects for the self same reason that we will free go ernment are systematically converted into ciphers by the effects of strong drink and the education of the saloon, then is the danger widespread and appalling. The home, too, has its rights which the saloon is bound to respect."

Can't Walk Straight. The Northwestern Christian Advo. cate speaks straight to the point in the following utterance:

"We have known of many influential laymen and some ministers "under the influence of liquor" who never took a drink. How's that? They were afraid to speak out against the saloon or to vote the institution out of their midst because of some prominent brewer or politician. Such people are very much under the influence, so much so they can't walk in a straight path.

Stiff Joints Sprains, Bruises

are relieved at once by an applica-tion of Sloan's Liniment. Don't rub, just lay on lightly.

"Sloan's Liniment has done more good than anything I have ever tried for stiff joints. I got my hand hurt so badly that I had to stop work right in the busiest time of the year. I thought at first that I would have to have my hand taken off, but I got a bottle of Sloan's Liniment and cured my hand." Sloan's Liniment and cured my hand. WILTON WHEELER, Morris, Ala

4'I used Sloan's Liniment for broken sinews above the knee cap caused by a fall and to my great satisfaction was able to resume work in less than three weeks after the accident."

MR. HENRY A. VOEHL, & Somerset St., Plainfield, N. J., writes: — "A friend sprained his ankle so badly that it went black. He laughed when I told him that I would have him out in a week. I applied Sloan's Liniment and in four days he was working and said Sloan's was a right good Liniment."

Packard Piano IS THE BEST

People can talk about which piano is the best, but anyone who wishes to know the truth about the matter, has only to compare the PACKARD, part for part, with the leading makes of the century. We are always glad to have anyone make these comparisons, as the wonderful strides of progress made in the construction of the PACKARD Pianos is a REVELATION to all.
