New Parcel Post Stamps.

The design of a new and smaller parcel post stamp to replace those now in use has been approved by Postmaster General Burleson. Numerous complaints that the present stamp, all denominations of which are the same color, is hard to dis-tinguish as to value and easily "raised," caused the change. The new design will possesss no artistic merit, but bear only a large numeral. The various denominations will be in different colors. Approximately $50,000 yearly will be saved by the smaller stamps, it is estimated.

THE OHIO FLOODS

First Reported.

General news from the Ohio flood continued up until the middle of this week, with the exasperating omission of exact facts relative to the loss of life and property. From the first claim of 5000 drowned in Dayton, the number soon dropped to about 200, and although persistent reports of buildings destroyed, continued, names and facts were conspicuously absent, which added to the uncertainty and fears of eastern friends and relatives. Apparently, the first reports were great-ly exaggerated, not only as to loss of life but as to destruction of buildings; but the loss to personal effects has been very general throughout a very wide section, in-cluding not only Dayton, but a large number of other cities and villages, and farm property. Business concerns, and the railroads, were among the heaviest losers. While the loss to private families will reach the highest aggregate. Following the first great loss in the interior of the states, the Ohio river section down as far as the Mississippi river, be-came involved as the waters centred in the Ohio. As the waters subsided, the care of the thousands rendered at least temporarily homeless became the object of all sorts of relief efforts, organized and otherwise, and the "cleaning up" of the cities, in order to prevent disease, was prosecuted as energetically as possible, even visitors and sight-seers being forcibly compelled to help. Danger from shortage of food supplies was early set at rest, as trainload after trainload came to Dayton and other points in need. The response to the needs of the situation, both from the state and the whole country, was splendid and prompt, but some of the too optimistic newspaper reports had the effect of di-minishing cash contributions. The Red Cross, and other agencies, still have need for cash, as thousands must be cared for, at least for several weeks yet, until conditions become somewhat normal.

The need for cash in Dayton alone, is great. After the meeting of urgent calls for food and temporary shelter, thousands will be unable to do anything toward rehabilitating their homes, as there is no insurance money to apply. The needs of the people, therefore, are much greater than if their homes had been destroyed by fire and grade hoeds the state official by fire, and such needs the state officials and the Red Cross are working together to remedy in a business-like and systematic manner. Other towns in Ohio-Columbus, Marietta, Portsmouth, Ironton, and other river towns—are in urgent need of cash and supplies, and will be for a month, notwithstanding a number of rosy news-paper reports which have interfered omewhat with the continuance of the generosity of the country at large. There is no likelihood of too much money being turned in to the Red Cross organization, as all of it will be properly used. The best information relative to the number dead seems to be that the total

The County Spelling Contest.

The series of spelling contests arranged for the public schools of the county has been completed, and two representatives for each election district have been chosen to take part in the general contest to be held in the High School building at The Situation Summarized by At-

Westminster, on April 11. A great deal of interest and enthusiasm has been manifested in all the district contests, and from the efficiency shown by the pupils in these contests, there is every reason to believe that the final contest will be unusually interesting, and the result will doubtless be anxiously awaited by the teachers and pupils of the schools throughout the county.

The following is a list of those who will take part in the general contest: Taneytown district—Ernest Ecker and

The County Superintendent of Schools has arranged for a luncheon to be given to the contestants and their teachers by the Teacher of Domestic Science at the High School, assisted by the young ladies of the Third and Fourth Year Classes. The luncheon will be served promptly at 12 o'clock and the contest will begin at 1 o'clock. Admission to the contest will be only by ticket. The tickets have been placed in the hands of Chas. H. Kolb, Principal of the High School, to whom those desiring to attend are requested to apply either in person or by letter. Persons desiring tickets sent by mail should enclose postage.

THE MARYLAND SENATORSHIP PROBLEM.

torney Alonzo L. Miles.

That the various senatorial candidates who are now campaigning on the Eastern Shore are wasting their powder is the opinion of leading lawyers who have made a study of the law governing the situation. They regard as certain the ratification of the seventeenth amend-ment to the federal Constitution, which provides for the election of United States senators by direct vote of the people. Thirty-five states have already taken affirmative action and only one more is needed to make the amendment part of the Constitution. The Rhode Island and Connecticut General Assemblies are now in session and that of Florida will con-vene on April 8. The impression is all

Immediately after the State Depart-ment has been officially notified all state laws governing senatorial elections are automatically wiped out. Maryland, among others, would be without any law, except the one which provides for the appointment of a senator to a vacancy caused by death or resignation until the next General Assembly convenes. There is naught else either in the organic law of the state or in the statues that does not conflict with the federal provision. In commenting on the effect in the senatorial contest in the state, Alonzo L. Miles stated that he had spoken with Mr. Marbury on the uselessness of a contest vision for the nomination and election of senators, the act being predicated on their election by the legislature. As they must now be chosen by direct vote, this law becomes inoperative. In other words, it is wiped out. There can therefore be no senator nominated or elected this year unless the necessary machinery is pro-vided, and this can be furnished only by the General Assembly, convened in special session.

As there does not appear to be any occasion for haste, I doubt whether the Governor will take such action. The term of John Walter, Smith does not expire until March, 1915. Hence he will be undisturbed until that time. The legisla-tion which meets in 1914 can enact the Mary's College, Emmitsburg, was drowned as a result of the high water, following Thursday's torrential rains. Hoke lives

The annual tide of immigration at the port of New York is again approaching the flood mark reached in years preced-ing the financial panic of 1907, according to the figures of Health Officer Joseph J. It was declared that the companies have suffered a loss approximating 25 per-cent. in small package business-a loss which amounts to about 6 per-cent. of the gross revenues of the companies.

Postmaster-General Burleson has ordered annulled the parcel post regulation which requires double postage stamps collected from addresses when ordinary postage stamps have been affixed to parcels. Mr. Burleson holds that the people ought not to suffer from negligence of postmasters in not seeing that parcels bear proper stamps. In the future all parcel post packages mailed with ordinary postage stamps and other mail bearing parcel post stamps will be returned to the sender before the stamps are canceled. \frown

Here is the prize story of how one fam-ily protected itself against starvation when the flood came up. It comes from the home of George Roller, 79 Dakota Ave. in the heart of the flooded West side at Columbus. New Building for Blue Ridge College.

Directors of Blue Ridge College, at a meeting held in New Windsor, mapped out plans for enlarging the institution and will proceed to put the institution in ex-cellent shape for the opening of the school year next September. The decision was reached to erect on the grounds another large building, which will contain the chapel, certain class rooms and dormitories for girls. The building will be of brick and three stories in heighth, and in keeping with the other buildings. The dimensions of the building have not been determined.

As yet the deed to the New Windsor Express companies of the country have been hit hard by the operations of the Bue Ridge College. This is due to the fact that in years past the institution was a stock company and difficulty has been encountered in finding the holders of a few shares. It is now claimed that all technicalties, in the way of the title, will be cleared within a few weeks, and by April 5, the Blue Ridge College is expected to have title to the property.

At the meeting, President John J. John, Walter Englar and A. P. Snader were named upon a building committee. This ommittee will employ an architect and will look after the construction of the new building, decided upon at the meet-

Roosevelt and Booze.

Washington, D. C., April 2.—Did any-one ever see Theodore Roosevelt take a drink? If so, were these drinks taken in the privacy of his own home, during his seven years' occupancy of the White House, or were they taken in public, where they would be likely to provoke criticism? Incidentally, did anyone ever see Calonel Roosevelt under the influence see Colonel Roosevelt under the influence of liquor while Chief Executive of the nation?

These are some of the questions which have been up for settlement before an ex-aminer, who is preparing the record in the case of Theodore Roosevelt against A. W. Referring to his tenure as chairman, Mr. Hanna said he was prepared to sur-render this office, but it had been deemed wise to defer action for the present in view of the fact that while the party constitution provides for an election, the state law makes other provisions for election of a governing body. Until the situation had cleared it was thought best that the committee make no election of officers at present.

Thereupon Senator McCullough moved the deferment of the election of a chairman and other officials until some future meeting to be called by the chairman This was adopted unanimously.

THE CASH REGISTER Co., of Dayton, Ohio, may be a "monopoly in restraint of trade," and its President, John H. Patterson, may be a criminal in the eyes of the Sherman law, but the recent actions of both Patterson and his manufacturing plant, in extending material and extensive relief to thousands of flood sufferers, will place both in such a popular light before the people that neither would likely be convicted for wrongdoing by any jury.

A GOOD THING for Democratic leaders and newspapers to encourage, and to say nice things about, is the new Progressive party. It is the God-send of the age to Democracy. It elected a President for them, and as long as it can be kept going, is likely to give them about everything else worth having. If there was ever a "good thing" worth feeding taffy to by Democrats generally, it is the very much "Coloneled" new party. Help to keep 'er alive brethren, its your fortune as long as you do ! ____���

ONE ATTITUDE of the new administration is rather amusing: the warning served that a financial panic will not be tolerated. Neither President Wilson, nor Vice-President Marshall, will accomplish any good by addressing a spook in the dark, in order to reassure timid ones that the act will scare capital into "being

The Home Paper.

Editor Galt, of the Emmitsburg Chronicle, reviewed the above topic, last week, in a manner which should impress his readers with various truths. The article is written by a man conscientiously interested in "his job," and with the very apparent desire to exert a helpful influence in his town and neighborhood. Those who imagine that all country newspapers are in business simply for the sake of "making money," often guess very wide of the mark, and this applies to Mr. Galt, as well as to other editors of the conscientious class.

Occasionally, men drop out of the busy places, where money is made, and elect to conduct a country newspaper. They do so because they see, or think they see, the opportunity for being a guiding force, a constructive force, in a particular field. They are willing to spend themselves in a personal effort to "do things," with the help of a receptive and interested following. They enlist in a "home mission" effort, just as surely and practically as any other organized force on earth, and notwithstanding discouragement and failure, are accomplishing a vast amount of good. We fear it to be the rule that the average editor grows somewhat pessimistic, in private, even if he does not show it in public; for the man who has the courage to tackle the job of trying to be a real editor, and knows how much of conscienpossible to get it or not, and it is this tious effort and valuable time he puts unreasonable urgency on the part of the into the process, naturally looks for fair results; and the time is apt to come when perseverance ceases to be a virtue, and his conceived failure may cause him to overlook, or to be dissatisfied with, the very little impress he has made as the net result of his labors. There is no > greater discourager of enterprise and offered help, than public indifference. If the editor is merely a business convenience in a neighborhood, that is another matter. Anybody who can write 'news items,'' has a fair knowledge of business transactions and gets together a > lot of machinery and help, can be that sort of an editor. In fact, he is not an editor at all. He is merely a part of the necessary force of a print shop, and there is not enough in such a prospect to attract anybody who has the real ability and desire to have part in adding his mite to the sum total of the world's betterment.

Mr. Galt very properly appeals for cooperation. He asks his share of the public to "take advantage of the many opportunities offered them by the home paper." Why? Simply because the editor of a paper needs sympathetic, interested help, as much so as the pastor of a church. The plant of a church, and the plant of a newspaper, are merely existing opportunities, and the work of the latter is second only in importance and value to that of the former-both are outfits for publishing good to mankind, and both need to be put to work not only by the master mind, but by his co-workers.

One, without the other, represents waste of opportunities. If the conscientious editor, after fair

An Old Diary of Washington.

The Washington correspondent of the Public Ledger, Philadelphia, recently sent his paper a very interesting account of a pocket cash book, personally kept by George Washington, now in the ownership of Maj. Robert W. Hunter, who was Gen. Gordon's chief of staff in the army of Northern Virginia. The little book is 139 years old, and in a good state of preservation, and has been by will directed to go into the possession of the Ladies' Memorial Association of Mt. Vernon. The article says:

The day-book is particularly interesting, because it brings out in the most striking way the human side of Washington, and while the country is waiting for the extra session of Congress and many of the officeseekers have gone home for reinforcements, there may be some inter-est in it and in some of the things it contains. It shows that, in addition to being a very careful and methodical man of affairs, Washington was also what would now be described "an all-round good fellow.

The first entry in the book is of March 24, 1774, of "memorandum of sundry's sent out by Gilbert Simpson for the use of & towards building my Mile on Yougheoga, N. Y.," etc; and the last legible entries in it are about the last of October (the date line is obliterated), 1774: "By a cloak for my Mother, which charge to her, $\pounds 10:2:1\frac{1}{2}$," and "To cash won at cards, £2:5." One of the first of the entries is this: "March 25.—Credit Colonel Mason by cash paid Zach Bond, putting Pews in my Pew at Pohick, 10 shillings In balancing accounts on March 29. Washington noted that he had "Cash upon hand," £291:8:0; in gold, £35:3:9, in depreciated dollars, in "pistoreens," in "cut bitts," and in paper money to make the balance as stated. On the same day Washington bought four horses, among them "is correl more with white among them "a sorrel mare, with white main and tail," and all for about £80 gold value. A number of entries taken at random show the broad range of his activities, as, for example: April 3—"By charity, 6 shillings." April 4—"By charity, 12." April 23—"By cash sent my Mother, April 26-"To cash rec'd of Mr. Craven Peyton for & on acct. of Col. Fairfax to hom ye amount is to be remitted for 4 firkins of Butter, weight 401 lbs., $\pounds 15:12:9.$

On April 28 Washington had £525:6:5 cash on hand, and in the "cash" was counted in Virginia paper, Maryland's dollars and Pennsylvania currency. the latter there was 6 shillings and 8

May 1 was opened "By cash given away, £3." On May 7 "the Hon'ble Rich'd Lee, Esqr., of Maryl'd," was charged with 4 barrels of superfine flour. May 13 the entry was "By cash paid my Mother, £10," and on the same day this entry was made: "To cash won at cards, £1." Three days later the "Club at Mrs. Campbells" got 5 shillings, and some gentleman won 15 shillings at cards from the Father of his Country, who eems to have come out a little ahead of the game, however, as witness this entry on May 16: "To Ditto received from Doct'r James Carter for a yr., £10:16.'' May 16 seems to have been largely de-voted by George Washington to relaxa-voted by George Washington to relaxa-tion, as these entries show: "By club at Southall's, 4 shillings"; "By cash lost at cards, £1:13"; "By club at Southall's, 3 shillings and 9"; "To cash won at cards, £2:10"; "By barber, 6 shillings"; "To cash won at cards, £1:10"; "By cash to Mrs. Wash-ington, £10." On May 27 there was this entry; "By Colonel Richard Lee, duties on 4 pipes of mine, £6:13:4," and this "By about £2"."

Our Brother's Keeper.

When it was originally remarked that one-half the world did not know how the other half lived it might with equal truth have been said that one-half the world did not care how the other half lived. But that has long since ceased to be true. For twenty or thirty years the curiosity of the more fortunate half of humanity regarding the condition of the other half has been persistent. Not always very wisely directed, and often, and almost inevitably, impertinent in its invasion of the homes of the poor, it has been animated by the noblest emotions, and with the disclosures of social workers there has been a rapidly-growing volume of public sentiment that demands that conditions shall be improved. It is inevitable that a good many impracticable remedies should be proposed. Poverty is not a new condition. Vice is as old as mankind. As it used to be the fashion to attribute all economic ills to vice, so now there is a disposition to attribute all vice to economic conditions. Neither is true, but there is a closer relation between vice and poverty than the present race of rather immature sociologists recognize. The man who is intemperate dooms his wife and children to poverty in spite of anything that society can do.

But of course, there is a great deal of suffering that is not attributable to vicenot even to the vice of others. The community is busily searching for remedies, and the most hopeful fact about this is that sound economics is on the side of philanthropy. It is not true that the labor of little children is profitable. It is not true that men and women can produce 50 per cent. more in 15 hours than they can in 10; they can produce less. Fatigue and illness are economic liabilities, not alone of the individual, but of the employer himself, and of the community. We are never likely to realize the dreams of the more extreme of the social reformers, but we are certain to make the world a better place for working men and women, and a place where children will work less and play more and grow up healthier, since the world has ceased to ask the question of Cain Of and frankly acknowledges that it is its Bryan and the Tariff.

How wide a swath will William Jennings Bryan cut in the Tariff legislation about to be enacted ? He is probably the most uncompromising Free-Trader in the cabinet. No secret was made of his hostility to both Clark and Underwood, because the Wool bill of a year ago did not provide for free wool. A very large proportion of the House and Senate Democrats are Bryanites. He can have his way in the House beyond question. Whether he can swing the Senate for free wool, free sugar, free raw materials and an allround cut of Tariff duties below the Protective point, remains to be seen. The extent to which Bryanism is to control party action on the Tariff is one of the most interesting among present problems and

Anna Boberg Braves Rigorous

Winters of North to Paint.

ARCTIC

Artist Took Pot Luck With the Humble Fisher Folk in Pursuit of Her Adopted Profession-Woman Was Tenderly Reared.

A tiny hut on a wind swept knoll of the Lofoton islands is where Anna Boberg lives and paints. She draws her inspiration from the Arctic sea. For several months of each year this delicately nurtured woman of gay Stockholm braves such hardships as men endure in order to put a new dot on the map or to plant the flag of their country where flag never waved before. She has made herself the little sister of the fisherman, living their lives of privation and listening to their tales of draugs and elves and all the hostile forces of nature. She has faced the lashing of the winter storms and dreamed in the glory of the summer nights.

Anna Boberg's father was a distinguished architect, says the Chaftsman. Her husband, Ferdinand Boberg, is also an architect and one of the foremost in Europe.

In the beginning she took pot luck with the fishermen. She slept whenever a bed was to be had and did not inquire too squeamishly. At some posts the local trader is required by law to furnish beds for travelers; in other places she was met by a curt denial, caused not so much by unkindness as by awe of her supposed fine ladyism. But it needed only a pleasant word to the old man at the fireside-or a baby dandled in her lap -or a kind word to the mother-and the house was hers, with all that it contained. There was her spoon to dip in the common porringer and her share of the potatoes and salted herring. There was a bench, if nothing better, where she could roll herself in a blanket and sleep as well as possible in a room with mother, father and various sizes of children.

To give her as much of a home as possible, under the circumstances and save her from unnecessary hardships. Mr. Boberg has built her a studio near the fishing station at Svolvar.

When there is a good haul before the fishermen of Lofoten, necessitating long hours of night work, Mrs. Boberg allows no consideration for her own comfort to interfere with the being med "EHIBITS NOS. 2 and 3," respective-ly. Then she is glad to escape with nothing more serious than frosted fingers or face. The fishermen laugh at her uniform and never tire of their joke: "Are you man or woman?" Sometimes they venture criticisms such as: "The number of that boat isn't right-it should be a six instead of a seven," or "that ship's too red." Mrs. Boberg enjoys the criticisms and culls from them whatever is of value, for she aims to reproduce with absolute faithfulness the implements and methods that are passing with the older generations. During the last ten or twelve years she has made more than 400 small sketches, which are carefully preserved in Stockholm, not only for their artistic value, but for the accuracy of detail which make them historically valuable. She has also set herself to the task of gathering all the weird, wild tales that will soon have faded even from the minds of the old salts in Nordland.

"And how is John today?" was her "Chocolate, four layers "Deg biscuit!"-National Monthly. "Justice is blind;" but she sees lime, and then hustle in new earth and renew that floor just as deep as it was tainted.

Then go for the runs. If they are sick dig them up, time them, sow them, for tainted yards mean tuberrulosis, cholera, intestinal troubles, and hens running into a clean house from such a microbial mess soon pollute the building. It's an inspiration to hens to do their best when they are kept right. It means hen health and profit, and any one skeptical of this should change fowls kept in fine surroundings to bughouse conditions and note how quickly they go to pieces.

Then it helps the poultryman. We can always command a better price for our poultry products because trade knows our hens are kept in clean environment and fed the best feeds.

eggs. Q. A friend of mine claims he has a hen that lays every day in the year.

What do you think of that? A, When your friend says his hen lays 365 eggs per year he isn't lying, of course; just awfully twisted.

FEATHERS AND EGGSHELLS.

The parcel post will be a distinct benefit to the poultry fancier if conducted as in England. In that country eggs, live chicks and show birds are shipped by this means at low cost, and the professional baggage smasher gets no chance at them.

There are few bachelors that are successful with poultry or farming. In these lines of work it just seems impossible for a man to make good without a woman around to lean on. Own up, old man. You're a failure and a fizzle without a female manager. Uncle Sam's great poultry plants and tremendous poultry returns are the wonder of the old world. Foreign countries are awfully slow to wake up to the importance of the hen. Even England imports most of her eggs and poultry and does not give as much encouragement to the advance of poultry as the single state of New York.

Ostrich farming in this country is a success. The census shows 5,472, eight times as many birds as in 1900. Pennsylvania is the latest addition to the ostrich raising states, and they seem to enjoy a roll in our snow drifts as much as the sunny sand baths of California.

To clean out the buttercups and other weeds that affect the flavor of milk and butter turn geese into the pasture. They will eradicate the pests and change noxious weeds and green grass into greenbacks.

Stir up the litter often. That helps to keep it dry. Besides, you may be feeding too much or the hens may be eating only the part of the ration they prefer. and a turn of the straw will tell the story.

Those who dip hens for red mites do as much execution as a board of health that dips a bughouse family for bedbugs. The red mites breed and harbor in the cracks of roost, nest and buildings, and unless they are extremely multitudinous you seldom see one on a chicken in the daytime. They bleed the hens at night and digest their meal through the day, and a thorough spraying of their haunts with

To Break in New Shoes.

A simple, although effective, way of "breaking in" shoes is that employed in the United States army. After the shoes have been fitted to their feet the soldiers stand in water up to the shoe tops, until the leather is thoroughly soaked. Then the soldiers are put on a march. and this "hike" is kept up until the shoes are thoroughly dried on the feet. Forever afterward the shoes are perfectly comfortable, for they conform in shape to every little peculiarity of the wearer's feet. This method of breaking in shoes, while not new in itself, is one result of the recent investigation of the foot trouble of the army, which the specially appointed board of army officers has been conducting .- Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Germany is Prepared Even Down to Railroad Time Tables. In these days, when we read of mobilization methods in the "near east," it is interesting to note the continual preparedness of Germany in all matters pertaining to railway transit. She holds with the maxim that "he who strikes first strikes twice."

At all times, even when there is no talk of war in the air, there is locked up in every German station master's desk a set of war time tables-a separate time table for every country with which a war is possible, including France, Britain and Russia, while even Austria-Hungary is not exempt.

Whenever war is declared every station master picks out the particular time table required, and at once all the trains run automatically on "war time" and for war purposes. Each time table is revised once a year, in order to fit in with any alteration that may have been made in the plans of campaign.

Each man liable to serve in the reserve is in the possession at all times of a warrant for travel and when war breaks out does not require to wait on instructions, but must report himself at once to his particular territorial depot or, at latest, by 10 o'clock on the morning following the declaration of war; otherwise he is liable for a heavy penalty .- Philadelphia Ledger.

JOLTED THE CAR CONDUCTOR.

This Appears to Be a Crime of Some Magnitude In Vienna.

An American physician, Dr. George Alexander, had a narrow escape from getting into serious trouble in Vienna over a charge of "amtsehrenbeleidigung," which is about the worst thing you can do to a street car conductor or to any one else in official employ. It seems that Dr. Alexander, finding he had passed the point where he intended to alight, wanted to jump off the car in a hurry and in so doing pushed Conductor Rosegger, who stumbled on to the step and would have fallen off the car-so the conductor said-if he hadn't clung for dear life to the handle bar.

The conductor told a thrilling story how the American seized him by the shoulder, how he pushed him with his knee in the chest and how he ground his teeth (!) at him. Two witnesses, however, declared that it wasn't so bad as all that-that Dr. Alexander had merely shoved the conductor aside because he was in the way.

The question before the court was, Had Dr. Alexander pushed the conductor as a conductor or as a man? In the first case it was "amtsehrenbeleidigung" and jail; in the second case it would be a matter of "endangering bodilv safety" and a ten dollar fine.

The judge gravely decided that Dr. Alexander, being a foreigner, hadn't evidently realized that the conductor was an "amtsperson"-an official-and that therefore justice would be tempered with mercy. Ten dollars fine .-Vienna Cor. New York Sun.

The right eye sees one image and the left eye the other, vision being cut off while the tube is changing its position. The result is that the image appears solid. MISUNDERSTOOD.

The English Salesman and the American Printer Have It Out.

Here's one about an American printer whose vicissitudes took him across the ocean last year and landed him in the town of London.

This printer bethought him of starting a little paper in the heart of England. So he rented a little building and then went to purchase his type and presses. For the type he stopped at a typefounders' place and explained his needs.

"I want some type," he said.

"We don't sell type here," answered the clerk, blankly. "You might get it at the draper's shop over the wye." "How should I get type at a draper's shop?" "How should you get it anywhere else, may I awsk, thenk you, sir?" "Well, in my country type is sold at a typefounder's, not at a dry goods

So Sudden, But-

"Miss Cruppington-Sybil-I love you," he said.

"Oh. George," she sighed, "this is so sudden! Speak to father, will you. dear? He'll be in soon.'

And ten minutes later the nervous young man was facing his adored one's father

"Rather sudden, isn't it?" interrupted the old man, with a twinkle in his eye. "Love refuses to be checked by time, sir," declared the youth. "It was sud-

Then the old man laughed.

Hint to the Bishop.

A bishop once rose to address the house of lords and began by saying he intended to divide the speech into twelve heads. Lord Durham thereupon got up and begged leave to interpose for a few minutes to tell the house an anecdote. He was returning home, he said, a few nights before and passed St. Paul's cathedral just before midnight. As he did so there was a drunken man trying to see the time. Just then the clock began to strike the hour ters showing no pearls are returned to and slowly tolled out twelve. The drunken man listened, looked hard at the clock and said, "Hang you, why to be nursed, while those whose pearls couldn't you have said that all at are full grown suffer the fate that at- once?" THE CASE FOR WOMAN'S SUFFRAGE IS BASED ON CHANGED CONDITIONS

100 YEARS AGO

Government was principally concerned with war and the protection of property; comparatively few women were wage earners; married women had no property rights; education was denied to girls.

Government concerns itself with the special interests and environment of home and children, and with all the social and industrial problems of life. 96,000 Maryland women are wage earners, the law recognizes women as property owners, the average woman is as well educated as the average man.

TODAY

Women need the Vote because Votes alone decide all questions connected with government.

VOTERS OF MARYLAND!

It is un-American and un-democratic to refuse what a majority of the Peopledemand and it is un-American and un-democratic to withhold from the People the opportunity to make such a decision therefore;

We want the Democratic and Republican parties to endorse, at their conventions, the submission of a constitutional amendment providing for the enfranchisement of women.

Panama Canal Lighthouses. It is announced that a feature of the Panama canal will be lighthouses whose lamps are lit and extinguished by the sun, without the aid of human hands. Briefly, the warmth of the sun at dawn, falling on a rod which rests on a lever, expands that rod and so moves the lever which closes the gas valve. At night the rod, getting cooler, contracts and so opens the valve and lets the gas pass, to be lit by a small jet always left burning. The rod can be adjusted according to the temperature conditions of any country. The sun valve is the invention of Gustaf Dalen, the famous Swedish physicist, recently awarded a Nobel prize. - Illustrated London News.

Paper Collars.

We asked some months ago whether paper collars are still worn. No one vouchsafed to answer. It is our impression that the celluloid drove out the paper. We well remember the paper collar and the paper dicky. Cool Burgess used to sing of Hildebrand Montrose:

He parts his hair with extreme care And chalks his paper collars

But the paper collar once worn was an accomplished fact, something to be forgotten, while the celluloid, like the enameled steel collar of the civil war period, can be cleansed. The steel collar was at regular intervals refreshed by use of a toothbrush.-Boston Herald.

One of the Newest Style Buggies for the season, just arrived. I'm stopping off with D. W. GARNER. Come in and look me over.

The Rev. Calvin Morris was quite annoyed.

He was in anything but a ministerial mood when he tossed his hat on the table amid the confusion of books and papers and sat down in his study to think it over. It was such a ridiculous situation that at first he had been mildly amused at it, but now-pshaw! Why couldn't he ignore it?

But it had passed the stage when it could be ignored. In the past three days he had been told five times that his congregation would like very much to see him married. Nor had these remarks been the half jocular words on his bachelor condition that he had often heard since coming to the church at Littleton, but had been earnest words of advice expressed by the most prominent members of his flock.

He was popular in the parish, and his two years' pastorate had been productive of good results, but there had been one thing lacking.

Accustomed for years before his advent to the service of a most devoted minister and his able wife whose home had been the center for a vigorous church life, the people simply could not get used to a minister in a boarding house. Besides, there stood the fine new parsonage empty. Certainly it was his duty to live up to the demands of his people. When Miss Gilbert, the wealthy maiden lady who had contributed so much to the church, both in money and good deeds, died two years ago the parsonage she was building for the church was not quite finished.

The Rev. Calvin Morris knew he would use it in time. Indeed, all unknown to his people, vague plans had been floating through the minister's head for some months, and he had frequently looked very reflectively at the quiet house beside the church.

But the real vexing, disquieting point of the whole matter was that the congregation had not only decided that he should marry, but apparently had fixed on whom he should marry. This was assured the night he took tea with Mrs. Thorpe, one of the most active ladies in his church, when the chief topic of conversation was Miss Nell Gilbert.

Now, Mr. Morris had taken a most unreasonable and unministerial dislike to Miss Gilbert, a member of his church whom he had never seen. She was the niece of the great Miss Gilbert and had lived with her aunt until the latter's death, when the great house on the hill had been closed. Since then the young lady had traveled, so the minister had never seen her. He had heard a great deal of her. of your work to tell you all about mythough, and had formed an impression of a person of undoubted energy and "But, my dear, why Atwater? It ability, accustomed to have things just was always Miss Nell Gilbert." The as she wanted and inclined to be dom- minister was still bewildered. ineering. "Miss Nell" had ideas of her own on church music. "Miss Nell" had designed this and had attended to that. It seemed to the minister there was a little too much of "Miss Nell" everywhere. Tall and muscular and aggressive himself, accustomed to shouldering burdens and clearing difficulties, the Rev. Calvin had, of course, an ideal of feminine grace very different from his own vigorous personality. Indeed, as he sat thinking in his study that morning a smile rose to the firm lips and softened the austere lines into which he had framed them as he saw in his mind's eye a petite, graceful form, soft, appealing dark eyes and masses of cloudy brown hair. Alas for the plans of the people who had made up their minds that "Miss Nell" and the minister would be an eminently well fitted pair. But the vision faded quickly, and the many hints that had been dropped during the last few days flashed in rapid succession through his mind. "Miss Nell" was coming home next week. He would be thrown at her head and she at his by his well meaning flock until something happened. Already the subject had assumed alarming proportions. He could not, he would not, stay round and be made a football of, to be tossed into any woman's arms. Again came unbidden that alluring vision of brown hair and eloquent eyes. It was preposterous! How could they badger him now, just as his heart was beating more madly every day for some one? Ah, if he were only sure! Did that friendship, formed a few short months ago, that soul satisfying friendship, mean to the girl of the vision what it had come to mean to him? Could he, dare he, offer her his love? He had been living since then in a beautiful dream. Suppose that dream should be fulfilled? He hesitated. Dreaming had been so sweet he feared the awakening. Dare he risk "the last leap?" With a bound he sprang to his feet. He could and he would. He would please himself in the choice of a wife anyway and if fortune favored him give his officious congregation a surprise and a sharp lesson A short phone message to a neighboring town secured a supply for next Sunday's pulpit. "Urgent business out of town" was the message left for tht church officers, and the minister found himself on the train bound for the east and the "vision."

quaintance, begun in Scotland the previous summer, had ripened fast on shipboard on the return passage and been brought to fruition by some months of correspondence. She even consented to a speedy marriage, and as she was living with a married cousin in Boston the minister took his bride from there ten days from the day he left Littleton. But the blissful days of his honeymoon failed to blot out entirely the remembrance of his church and his work and his people. True, in the tumult of happiness that had possessed him since that day when their clumsy interference had driven him-actually driven him-into the joy that was now his he had almost forgotten their plans for him, but now it all came back to him, and he realized that he did owe them something, for who knows how long he would have doubted and feared had not the terror of "Miss Nell" been upon him?

Suddenly the minister laughed aloud. It was all so funny to him now. Mrs. Morris, sitting beside her husband, was astonished at his mirth and looked it.

"Well, dearest, I know you'll think me crazy, but it is really too good to keep. You didn't know that I asked you to marry me so as to prevent my congregation marrying me to some one else, did you?" And out came the whole story, his mental picture of "Miss Nell" and all.

"You know," he concluded, "I never for a moment thought of her side of it. I was concerned for my own safety. What in the world a woman like her, with money and property and the world at her feet, would want with a poor struggling minister I can't conceive. But I had heard so much of her and the people so evidently had set their minds on it I tell you I was in a regular funk over it. It drove me to put my timid hopes to the test for you, sweetheart." There was a peculiar smile hovering around Mrs. Morris' lips, and for a minute or two she said nothing. "What is it, dear?" asked the minister anxiously. "You are not vexed?" 'N-no," hesitatingly, "not exactly, but I am just thinking how beautifully you have played into your congrega tion's hands, for, do you know, Calvin, you have really and truly married that domineering person, 'Miss Nell?'" "Married 'Miss Nell!" " repeated the minister blankly, staring at his wife's flushed, laughing face. "Yes, truly. 1 am Helen Gilbert Atwater, called 'Miss Nell' at the old home in Littleton. Listen, dear. I had no thought of deceiving you at first. 1 did not know you were in the church at Littleton till we reached New York on our voyage home. You know we were pretty well acquainted then, but I-neither of us knew our own heart. 1 often intended to tell you in a letter, but somehow I couldn't. I felt that if you knew i. might make a difference. You were poor, comparatively. I had all that money and property. Andand I loved you, dear, too much then to have you leave me.

"Then at the end you took me by storm. I have been too happy to talk of anything like that, and I had been waiting till you would say something self.

"Yes, my aunt did not like my father.

Working Girl-"It takes half my money to get my waists laundered. I'd do them myself, but I can't get hot water in our boarding house.

Anty Drudge — "Use Fels-Naptha Soap, dear, and you won't need hot water. You can do them in cold or lukewarm water, and you'll save that money.'

A large part of every woman's life is spent in fighting dirt. Water is her chief ally. The other is Fels-Naptha Soap. Fels-Naptha makes dirt disappear.

Fels-Naptha Soap is made especially for washing clothes in cool or lukewarm water. It does away with boiling and hard rubbing, steaming suds, and back- M breaking work.

Clothes washed with Fels-Naptha Soap are cleaner and fresher and last longer. Be sure to follow directions on the Red and Green Wrapper.

The minister's wooing was brief and blunt, but Miss Helen Atwater was not very much taken by surprise. The acthe man whom her young sister married, and never mentioned his name. finished her husband. "Well, the sur-New prise is certainly on me, but I must get even with those people some way.'

The news of the minister's marriage spread like wildfire through the town. He had sent a laconic message to one of his church officers to the effect that he had been married in Boston and would occupy his pulpit the following Sunday, That was all, Married, after all, and none of his congregation knew a word about it. Who was she? Nobody knew. Conjecture was rife on every point, and one version after another of the story of his wedding found quick credence. Some of the older members of his flock were thunderstruck. To think that Mr. Morris should trick them like that and be engaged all the time! They had just set their hearts on his marrying "Miss Nell," whom everybody knew and loved They were accustomed to "Miss Nell' and her ways. But a stranger to steal their beloved minister!

All week long the tongues wagged incessantly over the minister and his bride, but at Saturday midnight no one had seen either of them. The church was packed Sunday morning. The bells had ceased ringing, and only a few late comers saw the Gilbert carriage drive up to the door and the minister and a lady alight from it.

Straight up the middle aisle he led her, sweet and demure looking, while the organ played softly and the silence of the church could be felt. At the Gilbert pew he left her, and the congregation had a good view of the sweet face framed in the masses of soft brown hair. Mrs. Thorpe almost jumped out of her seat. It was none other than "Miss Nell." Glance followed gland all over the church. The minister cer tainly had surprised his congregation,

Lesson II.-Second Quarter, For April 13, 1913.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Gen. xxviii, 10-22. Memory Verses, 20-22-Golden Text, Gen. xxviii, 15-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Isaac, having indorsed the going away of Jacob, blessed him again, and this time truly, and sent him away to his mother's people that he might find a wife among the daughters of Laban, his mother's brother. So Jacob went out from Beersheba, where Isaac seems to have continued to live since the record in chapter xxvi, 32, 33, and went toward Haran.

Haran was the name of Lot's father, and he died in Ur before Abram was called out. It was also the name of the place where Abram tarried until Terah, his father, died (chapter xi, 27-32). It was from thence Rebekah came to be the wife of Isaac. It would have been a long journey for Jacob from Beersheba to Bethel in one day (between forty and fifty miles), so it was perhaps his second night out on which he had this remarkable experience. That matters not, however. It was the dream or vision that counted rather than the time when.

That one who had acted as Jacob had should have such a revelation from the Lord is the wonderful part of the transaction. There are, however, two very prominent facts in all the Scriptures which continually attract our attention. One is the exceeding sinfulness of man, with his deceitful and desperately wicked heart, and the other is the exceeding riches of the grace and love of God.

It does not matter as to the kind of ladder, whether steps of stone or some other kind. But the great fact is that Jacob saw a way of access from earth to heaven, angels ascending and descending, and he heard Jehovah from the top of the ladder talking to him most graciously and in such words as no mortal could expect or by any means deserve.

Because of Jacob's unworthiness and the wondrous grace of God notwithstanding even I have ventured to appropriate and have proved in worldwide journeyings the comfort of verse 15.

The Lord, who stood above the ladder and spoke the words of love and grace, no doubt referred to that night and that event when he said to Nathanael, "Verily, verily, I say unto you, Hereafter ye shall see heaven open and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man" (John i, 51). Some day when the New Jerusalem shall have taken its place over the earth and the elect church glorified and the elect Israel all righteous and the holy angels shall all be in perfect accord with the Lord in administering the affairs of the kingdom we may think of and understand this vision more fully. Meantime let us think of Him who is "the way, the Prayer Meeting Topic For Week Beginning April 13, 1913.

Topic.—"I can do all things."—Phil. iv, 4-13. (Honorary members' meeting.) Ed-ited by Rev. Sherman H. Doyle, D. D. The words of the Apostle Paul, "I can do all things." were no idle boast, nor was there any presumption in his use of them. They were not uttered at the beginning of his Christian career, but after years of service, during which he had fully demonstrated his right to use them. The element of presumption is eliminated by the fact that his ground of confidence was not in himself, but in Christ.

The Christian should be strong and have confidence in his strength. The weakest and humblest of Christians may say, "My soul will make her boast in the Lord." In ourselves we can do nothing; in Christ we can do all things. The boasting of the braggart in his own ability is despicable, but the confidence of the Christian of his ability in Christ is but a testimony to his faith.

The true Christian should have confidence in his ability to do all things pertaining to the Christian life. God does not remove His children from the trials and difficulties of life, but He is able and willing to sustain and support them amidst all conditions of life. Christ Himself, praying for His disciples, said. "I pray not that Thou shouldest take them out of the world. but that Thou shouldest keep them from the evil." This God has promised to do and does it through the strength that Christ imparts to us. Strength for all things is therefore possible to all Christians, and, this being the case, weakness in a Christian is most blameworthy. If weak, the fault lies in his failure to seek strength at the divine source of strength.

The source of the Christian's ability to do all things is in Christ. "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me." Naturally the Christian is no stronger than any one else. In Christ alone he becomes strong and invincible. The strength of Christ comes through faith in Him. By faith we are united with Christ, and it is no longer we who live, but Christ liveth in us. The teachings and example of Christ impart strength to His followers.

Neglect of the Scriptures leads to weakness. Constant communion with Christ in them imparts strength. Christ's strength is obtained through prayer. In the hour of trial we should flee to Christ, realizing our own weakness. Living faith, study of the Scriptures and communion with Christ in prayer will enable us to do all things. Many demands are made upon the Christian. Paul writes of "all things" as though there were many things to be done in the power of Christ, and such is the case. The Christian is not immune from the burdens and temptations and duties of life. Indeed, these are increased to the one who becomes a Christian. The adversary of the soul tempts the Christian above all others. He is sure of the rest. The Christian assumes a new attitude toward the burdens of others as well as having his own still to bear. Moreover, his duties become more numerous and exacting. But no matter. In Christ he "can do all things" that are required of him, as a child of God and as a disciple of his Divine Lord and Master.

ATTITUDE OF THE W. C. T. U.

President Lillian Stevens Makes Statement Before Portland Convention as to Status.

A statement of the nonpartisan attitude of the Woman's Christian Temperance union was made before the Portland convention by Lillian M. N. Stevens, national president, which is as follows:

The Woman's Christian Temperance union is neither a sectarian nor a partisan organization. Each member is free to choose her own church and her own party. While the Woman's Christian Temperance union women, in some of the northern states, have been using their influence for the election of Republican candidates who stood for state-wide prohibition on a prohibition platform, the W. C. T. U. of some of the southern states, have by the same token, worked for the election of Democratic candidates. A careful study of the national platforms reveals that only one party recognizes the evils of the liquor traffic, and declares that it should be destroyed. While some white ribboners still have hope that the old national parties, and the new national party, will redeem themselves from the onus of favoring the mighty vested interests of the liquor traffic, having a combined capital of a thousand million dollars, others regard the national prohibition party as the party which is to lead the people out of the wilderness of strong drink.

DRINKING MEN NOT WANTED

Official Prefers Man Who Would Steal to Frequenter of Saloons-Cause of Accidents.

We would sooner have a man in the road's employ take money than that he should indulge in intoxicants. The damage that would result from stealing would be trifling compared with the trouble which might result from a conductor, or an engineer, or even a brakesman, partaking too freely of intoxicants .- An Official of the New York Central Railroad.

The American Railroad association's standard code has a rule which reads as follows: "The use of intoxicants by employes while on duty is prohibitetd. Their use or the frefrequenting of places where they are sold is sufficient cause for dismissal." Roughly, I believe that eighty per cent of the accidents to trains, equipment and employes in the train and yard service of the railroads of this country are directly or indirectly traceable to the violations of this rule .- Mr. Mitchell, Chief Agent of the Railroad Terminals Association of St. Louis.

NOTHING OF DIGNITY STRENUOUS HORSE-PLAY A MARK

OF THE HOLI FESTIVAL. Traveler in India Describes Peculiar

Methods of Making Merry in Which Native Ruler and His Suite Indulge.

A curious childish horseplay of the Holi festival, which is celebrated annually by the maharajah of Patiala, is described by Mr. Charles Ber-

Early in the morning I went to the club, where I found many of the guests, who were taking part in the ceremony for the first time. We were provided with a complete new suit of Hindu garments and our dressing was superintended by the maharaja's servants. We had camels, elephants and victorias provided for us. I was on an elephant in a kind of box, and we drove in procession to the palace in the native city.

We were received with great acclaim by the natives, and I was led to believe that it was to be decidedly a dignified occasion; but I was woe fully distaken. The fun had not begun. Certain formalities had to be gone through before the signal was given.

We took our seats in the courtyard of the palace, at a long table that was loaded with large gilt dishes filled with different colored balls as large as oranges and filled with Holi powder. At a signal the brother of the maharaja came to the front of the table and salaamed to the prince, who took one of the balls and threw it gently across the tabile, striking the officer on the breast.

It was no use to expostulate; the moment you opened your mouth somebody filled it with powder. The battle grew fast and furious, when suddenly an enormous stream of water from a fire engine drenched everybody. The colored powder became wet, and mingling together, dyed us all in brilliant variegated hues.

After this sort of thing had gone on for half an hour it ceased by mutual consent, and we returned to the private gardens of the maharajah, where we were most unceremoniously pitched into a tank of running water. I was dyed a deep scarlet all over my body, and it was fully a month before the color entirely disappeared from my face and hands .-- Youth's Companion.

--- THE -Packard Piano IS THE BEST

We are always glad to have anyone make these comparisons, as the wonderful strides of progress made in the construction of the PACKARD Pianos is a REVELATION to all.

truth, the life," who became man for us. The ladder was set up on the earth. It starts from just where you are. You may step on it if you will, but it must be with both feet clean off the earth, actually in Christ.

It reaches heaven; it is not too short. To mount day by day we must look up steadfastly and see Him who is in heaven for us. Run with patience, looking unto Jesus: The angels will be always ministering (Heb. xii, 1, 2; i, 14). Notice the four "beholds" of verses 12, 13, 15. Between the time of Jacob's leaving home and this night's experience it looks as if the Spirit had been working some, true penitence in Jacob's heart, and this special revelation and message was the result of it. When we turn homeward the Father always runs to meet us, according to Luke xv, 20.

Such overwhelming grace made Jacob feel somewhat as Simon Peter did when the Lord filled the ships with fishes and Peter said, "Depart from me, for I am a sinful man, O Lord!" (Luke v, 8.) We do well to remember that the Lord is ever with us and that every place with Him may be to us the house of God and the gate of heaven.

The pillow becoming an anointed pillar and the fact that believers are called stones (I Pet. ii, 5) suggest that instead of being prone upon the earth we may become upright, anointed living stones to the glory of God.

Jacob's vow in verses 20 to 22 may be good or not so good. If he is bargaining with God after all the gracious assurances, as our authorized version would seem to indicate, then his language and his spirit were poor indeed. But if he said, "Since, on seeing that, God will be with me" (verse 20), his words are better. He has been considered by some a very mean man, but if any who read these words do not give the Lord at least a tenth of their income are they not meaner than Jacob?

No further incident of his journey is mentioned, but he certainly had enough to think about and to comfort and sustain him for years to come in that vision. He reached his destination, met his cousin, Rachel, at the well, helped her to water her father's sheep, for she kept them, and was heartily welcomed to Laban's home. He loved Rachel, agreed to serve seven years for her that she might become his wife, and they seemed unto him but a few days for the love he had to her (xxix, 9-20).

In Hos. xii, 12, we find this statement: "Jacob fled into the country of Syria, and Israel served for a wife, and for a wife he kept sheep."

At the annual meeting of the World's Union of Christian Endeavor a report was read from Dr. Clark, written from Beirut, in Syria. Among other things Dr. Clark says:

"I had the pleasure of being present at the inauguration of the first society in Greece, of attending the first convention in Russian Poland, as well as of a number of meetings in Russia. Galicia, Hungary and Croatia.

"In Agram, the capital of Croatia, a faithful worker has been providentially raised up (Professor Schumacher). who has carried the news and methods of our society to Montenegro, Servia. Bosnia and Herzegovina.

"I am now writing from Beirut, in Syria, where yesterday I had the priv-Mege of speaking at four services to 2,000 students and young people in different schools and in the great Syrian Protestant college.

"I have been fortunate in finding a young Syrian, a leading merchant of Beirut, Mr. Aziz Kassab, who will act as superintendent of Christian Endeavor in the Turkish empire, in Asia Minor, as well as in Palestine.

"I am going from here to Egypt to spend a week among the societies of the United Presbyterian mission, whose Christian Endeavor is such an impor tant factor in evangelistic work. and I hope to go up the Nile as far as Siut. After that I shall have four months in Europe, in the course of which I hope to be of some service in Italy, France, Switzerland, Norway. Sweden and Denmark."

Many Aroused by Discovery cohol Is Life Destroyer-Attitude of Scientists.

The discovery of science that alcohol is a life desroyer, is arousing many who heretofore have been uninterested in the temperance problem. Mr. Francis G. Benedict of the Carnegie Institute, after an extended tour in Europe visiting nearly all of the important physiological laboratories, writes that he was continually impressed with the temperance attitude of notable scientists; and Mr. Bene dict further says:

"When these men, whose whole life is engaged in the problem of preserving life, preventive medicine, and patient scientific research, find that they are infinitely better off without alco-'hol than with it, their evidence must be carefully weighed, for what is good for a psychiatrist in the University of Munich, a physiologist in the University of Helsingfors, a chemist in the University of Lyons, and a chemist in the Imperial Military Academy of St. Petersburg, is certainly good for all."

DRINK HABIT FALLING AWAY

People of Los Angeles Awakening to Fact That Liquor Is Harmful-No Sign of Increase.

The secretary of the Los Angeles Liquor Industries, and one of the oldest wholesale liquor dealers in Los Angeles, is authority for the statement that people do not drink as they used to do. He says: "The population of Los Angeles four or five years ago was in the neighborhood of 200,000. It has been more than doubled today. Were conditions now as they used to be there should be a marked increase in the liquor traffic. There has not been a sign of increase. The only logical conclusion for this is that people are awakening to the fact that too much liquor is harmful."

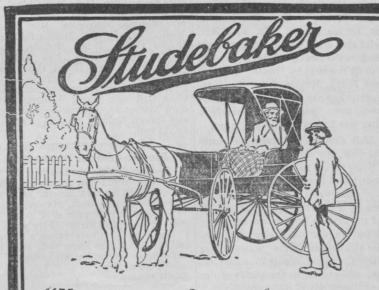

Alcohol Weakens.

Sir Frederick Treves, surgeon of King Edward of England, speaking of alcohol as a work-producer, says: "I was with the relief column that moved on to Ladysmith in the South African war, and of course it was an exceedingly trying time. In that enormous column of thirty thousand men, the first who dropped out were not the tall men or the short men, or the big men, or the little men, they were the drinkers, and they dropped out as clearly as if they had been labeled with a big letter in their back."

nary camera. Or again it may be located upon some rounded surface which cannot be properly focused. Dr. Heindl describes one or two new methods which overcome these difficulties. The first method consists in dusting the impression-which is always more or less greasy-with some colored powder, and then expressing against it a paper treated with a mixture of fifty grams wax, fifty grams paraffin, and twenty drops of glycerin. An excelent inverted copy is thus obtained, and as the paper is entirely flexible any kind of a surface can be thus treated. The second method makes use of photographic gelatine paper in place of that prepared as above.

"Young man, when you buy a buggy, be sure it's a Studebaker''

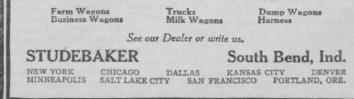

Sound advice from the man who has been driving one for twenty years.

When you buy a Studebaker buggy you are buying all the skill, experience and science in buggy building that half a century can produce. You are protect-ing yourself against the mistakes of younger builders.

You will always be proud of the Studebaker nameplate, for there isn't a buggy on the road that is its equal for style, luxury and good looks.

Flexible bent-reach gear, graceful lines, solid cor-ner, plugless body, double-ironed shafts, are a few of the special Studebaker features.

The new close-fitting shifting rail is enough in itself to make you buy a Studebaker buggy.

Geo. W. Baumgardner was not in Dayton, during the flood, but a few days previous had gone to a sanitarium, in Indiana, for his health. Mr. and Mrs. Friehofer and Miss Margie Baumgardner remained in the attic of their house two days, until rescued by boats. Nothing has been heard, directly, from the Garland's, but they are safe. As a large quantity of water will be used in the manufacture of ice, the Company wants to make no mistake, either as to the purity of the water, or the supply of it,
