BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

The Bible Term now in progress in the Brethren Church, Westminster, is exceedingly well attended, and the speakers are interesting and inspiring. Sunday morning and night will be the last sessions of this term.

Chairman O. E. Weller of the State Roads Commission, has tendered his resignation to Gov. Harrington, with the request that it go into effect on March 1, but is willing to serve the Governor's convenience in the matter.

A three-column news article in Mon-A three-column news article in Monday's Baltimore Sun, tells how well Charlotte, N. C., a city of 50,000, likes prohibition. The evidence is apparently all one-sided, that the law is almost unanimously satisfactory, and the city is prosperous handsome and happy. .....

Two safes in the Postoffice at Thur-mont were blown open with nitro-glycerine, early Sunday morning. Nothing of value was secured, as the inner door of the larger safe, which contained money and stamps, was not opened. The interior of the building was considerably damaged.

Records of the exports of horses to Europe show that more than 500,000 horses, valued at $125,000,000, have been shipped there from this country since the beginning of the war. The prices show a declining tendency. The average price in 1914 was $240, but the horses were selling at an average of $207 in November, the last month for which complete reports were received.

The Sisters Aid Society of the Church of the Brethren, in Westminster, had an all-day quilting on Feb. 23, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. David M. Young, on W. Main St. There was an unusually large attendance of the Society members and others, who did a great amount of work that will be credited to the large list of charities already done by this very com-mendable organization.

...Q.o. Lester Crum, aged 18 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Crum, near Mt. Pleasant, Frederick county, was instantly killed, on Monday about noon, on his father's farm. Cardinal Gibbons, in a published interview in the Baltimore papers, has strongly declared against state-wide prohibition. This is not a new, or unknown, position of the Cardinal, and will not likely help the anti-Prohibition cause. He has al-ways been known to be a local optionist, but not a prohibitionist—which after all is only a difference over what constitutes a "local" unit—a state is "local," so far as the whole country is concerned. -----

The combined musical clubs of Gettysburg College left on Wednesday, for their annual trip. They will be gone ten days and their itinerary includes the following places: Frederick, Waynesboro, Chambersburg, Martinsburg, W. Proprietors of passenger motor buses are much stirred by the bill, now in the State Legislature, which places a tax up-on motor vehicles traveling over State or State-aid roads for hire, and an organized fight will be made against the measure. It is stated that the operators would not object to a reasonable tax for the use of the State or State-aid roads in addition tend that the provisions of the proposed law would about drive this new service out of existence.

Showing an utter disregard for the feelings of the Hanover police, Thomas Troup, Baltimore, who was in jail in that own charged with stealing an overcoat belonging to Jesse Kahlbach, not only escaped Monday night, but carried with him the lock from the outer door of the jail. ### Prof. Heaps may be a Candidate.

It is rumored that Prof. William James Heaps, of Baltimore, may again be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Congress in this district. It is said that he accepted the nomination in 1914, in the "off year," largely with the understanding that he would have a clear field this year, and put up a good losing fight, carrying this county against Talbott.

Prof. Heaps is almost a Carroll-countian, having for a number of years lived in Winfield, where he conducted a private school, and has since kept in close touch with a large following of friends. He has also appeared so often, in nearly every section of the county, as a public speaker, that his ability in that direction s well known, all of which gives him a strong following of friends in the county, who would welcome him again as a can-....

MORTGAGE TAX REPEAL FOR DORCHESTER.

The Law Not Asked for by Public Sentiment in County.

Some capital has been made of the bill asking for the repeal of the Mortgage tax law for Dorchester county, using the fact as a reason for defeating the proposition to tax mortgages in Carroll, and urging the argument that the taxation of mortgages again, would be a step backward. We present, as evidence that the repeal law for Dorchester was not backed by law for Dorchester was not backed by public sentiment in that county, the fol-lowing article by J. Watson Thompson, published in this week's issue of the Cambridge Record, and commend the reading of it to our own Carroll county representatives;

"I noticed some time ago that Delegate Byrn introduced in the House a bill to repeal the tax on mortgages, and that this bill has passed the House and gone to the Senate. It seems to me that it is time the people of Dorchester were fully informed what the repeal of this bill will mean to the taxpayers. The mortgage tax brings into the treasury of the county a little over $5,000 per year, and the repeal of this law means a loss of that amount and an increase in the tax rate of five cents on the hundred dollars.

on the hundred dollars.

Who is asking for the repeal of this mortgage tax? Can any one connected with this bill answer this question? Two years ago Delegate Byrn, who introduced this bill, formed part of a committee to protest against its repeal at that time, and informed one of the Dorchester county delegation that if he (Mr. An-drews) voted for the repeal of this tax, he need expect nothing else from the people of Dorchester county. One is often, these days, reminded of the saying, "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

Is the repeal of this tax fair to the people? Let us see. Suppose a person has his wealth, it may be a million dollars, invested in mortgages, on which he pays no tax. The sheriff and the police protect his person and his family, his children receive all the benefits of our schools, and who pays for all this. Does the owner of the protect his product of the protect his product. er of the million mortgage, or his poor neighbor? Le'ts go further, and suppose that the owner of a mortgage asks for his money and the debtor refuses to pay; what does the mortgage owner do? Of course, he applies to a court to enforce

But what fight has such a man to ask the help of a court, to whose maintenance he does not contribute one cent? What would you think of a man who wants to ride out and goes to a garage and gets an automobile and rides, and expects the dozen men whom he has passed walking along the road to pay his auto hire? Yet the man with an untaxed mortgage is doing this very thing. He expects his neighbor, who has no rights to enforce, to maintain a court by which he can enforce

The Democratic candidates in their preambulations through the different sections of the State, talked "economy, but I have not seen a single reference to the taxation of mortgages. schemes to tax the small fellow, who nev er gets a hearing, have been advanced but not one word in regard to the taxation of mortgages, which would reduce the tax rate of the State and county from one-third to one-fourth.

Paying the Bill.

(To the RECORD.) We believe that a very small percentage of our citizens have carefully studied the full after-effects of the present war. All fears of what the victor may attempt to do to America grow out of failure to take this matter fully into account. For those who entertain such tears, as well as for those who would imitate Europe in military courses, we submit the following editorial from The N. Y. Independent, of February 21: "The great world war is now half through its second year, and it is neces-sary that financiers as well as statesmen should begin to think very seriously how long the expenditure of men and money can be carried on. "The courage never can be carried on. "The courage never to submit or yield" may seem boundless, but the end must come. And what then?

President Van Hise, of the University of Wisconsin, sums up the national debts of Great Britain, France, and Germany at the end of 1915. That of Great Britain he estimates as $10,419,000,000; that of France $10,314,000,000, and that of of France $10,514,000,000; and that of Germany $7,275,000,000; and the war has lasted only a year and a half. We can hardly expect peace in less than a year, at which time these national debts will have amounted to half as much more. How will they ever be paid? How will even the interest be paid? even the interest be paid

Of course it is assumed that the interest will be paid. At four per cent it would amount to $400,000,000 a year for either Great Britain or France, and for Germany to about $300,000,000, and half as much more if the war continues another year. Meanwhile the people have been fearfully impoverished. The whole principal of these loans has been destroyed. Many millions of wealth-producers have been killed or disabled.
Business has been disorganized. There will be poverty everywhere, and taxation will be intolerable.

Already the question is asked by far-seeing men, Will it be possible for these countries to pay even the interest on these enormous debts? Repudiation is a very evil word, but we cannot avoid thinking of it. Great Britain and France are very wealthy nations and they have great recuperative power, and yet there is a limit to what can be squeezed out of a people. Germany is also a rich nation and unlike Great Britain and France her national debt is almost wholly held by her own citizens. She could scale it down ner own citizens. She could scale it down or reduce interest and other nations could not complain while the debt of the allied nations is largely foreign, and can in no way be repudiated without national

We have said nothing about the likelihood of billions of indemnity being imposed by the victors on the conquered. It seems to be assumed that indemnity will be demanded, and if so, while some burdens will be lightened, others will be made more intolerable. It is difficult to see how the fearful burden of taxation on all these nations, and on Austria and Italy as well, can be borne and these national obligations met except by a general concerted disarmament. The nations will not be able while paying for the old wars to add unlimited and interminable taxation to prepare for new wars, so we shall come to what all good citizens must desire as the one happy effect of this disastrous war, compulsory disarmament.

But disarmament can hardly take place vithout an agreement of the nations to establish the international machinery for the doing of the international business that must be done and which is now done in the last analysis by the cruel and stupid resort to armaments. The nations must also feel that their integrity and vital interests are as fully conserved and guaranteed after the reduction of armaments as they were when each nation was the sole guardian of its liberty and sovereignty. The requirements can only be brought about by substituting for our present system of competitive armaments, system of collective armaments under a League to Enforce Peace. Then and then only will a plan be devised for the creaion, adjudication and execution of international law and the universal limitation of armaments. This we may hope for and even expect whether with or without

--·--For a Keymar--Taneytown Road.

What can we do toward getting a hard road from Keymar to Taneytown, a distance of about 6 miles? Can we not get the good people to help, and pike it Think how much is spent on the road, each year, and then it seems to get worse each year. It would enhance the value of farms greatly to have a nice pike, with trees on each side of the road.

This would be far better than to paddle through the mud, and see all kinds of scrubby trees and broken fences along the way. No wonder the state has passed a Forrestry law to look after the trees that have stood and given shade and shelter for hundreds of years. I for one will give rock to pike the road for two miles. What will you do! Let us hear through the columns of the RECORD. OLD TRAVELLER.

GETTING DOWN TO WORK IN THE LEGISLATURE.

Carroll County Local Bills Now in the Legislative Mill.

New automobile bills were presented in both House and Senate, last Friday, by delegate Bryant and Senator Warfield which, if passed, will produce additional revenue, estimated at $150,000 a year. All pneumatic tired machines are placed on a horsepower basis, and all solid tire machines on a tonnage basis, the latter applying particularly to the big automobile trucks which use the state roads and now pay but $3 a year. The new bill provides a charge of $8 for the first ton and $6 for each additional ton.

Charges for the annual licenses for chauffeurs are cut down from $5 to $2. Licenses for motor-cycles are increased from $1.80 to $3 a year. The new bill provides a statewide law which cannot be amended by any town or municipality. The abolition of roadside speed traps and roadside courts is provided.

Baltimore city will make a strong effort to defeat the repeal of the furniture exemption bill, as it will also try to defeat the Prohibition bill—largely for the selfish interests of the city, at the expense of the rest of the state. Baltimore representatives argued strongly against repeal, in a hearing before the Ways and Means Committee of the House.

The Statewide Prohibition Bill came from the Senate Committee on Temperance last Friday with a favorable report, but the majority incorporated an amendment which excepts Baltimore city from the provisions of the bill. Chairman Archer and Senators Mudd and Norris were willing to leave out Baltimore, but Senators Zihlman and Warfield refused to support such a report. Action on the bill was set for Thursday, 24th.

The McCusker bill, provide providing that physicians be prohibited from compounding or dispensing medicines and drugs unless they are also registered pharma-cists and making regulations aimed at homeopathists and physicians who have the name of a druggist printed on their prescription blanks and with other provisions, was summarily killed in the Senator Warfield, on Tuesday, introduced a bill authorizing the State Road Commission to construct a highway from Taneytown to the Pennsylvania state line. We have no information as to whether this means the "state line" north of Harney, or of Emmitsburg, as both routes have their partisans.

The Senate passed the equal suffrage bill to its third reading on Tuesday, over the unfavorable report of the committee having the bill in charge. Senator Warfield voted for the substitution of the bill for the report. On Wednesday, the House killed the bill, for this session, which nullifies the progress it made in Delegate Kephart presented a bill to amend the law providing for a tax on mortgages in certain counties—presumably the bill reinstating the mortgage tax in Carroll.

Another bill with reference to the collection of taxes in Carroll, has been prepared, if not actually presented, which provides for a Treasurer and Tax Collector, at a salary of $2000, a year, who does not act as clerk to the Commissioners, that being a separate office with pay on the perdiem basis. The bill, in the main, is said to be along the lines of the bill offered in the House, but is more in detail, fixing the compensation for district assessing, provides for a day in each district for collecting taxes, etc.

Delegate Ely presented a bill providing for the assessment, valuation and taxation of judgments and certificates of deposit, in Carroll county.

Delegate Shartzer presented a bill to make the payment of a poll tax of $1.00 a prerequisite to an electoral franchise. A bill has been introduced in the Senate authorizing the Supervisors of Elections when requested by the commissioners in the counties, or the Board of Estimates in Baltimore city to use the public schools as places for registration and general

The House Committee on Temperance, on Wednesday, reported the Prohibition bill favorably, without amendments. The four city members opposed the favorable report, and made a separate minority report. The bill was made the special order for next Tuesday.

Speaker Laird, on Thursday, introduced a bill making uniform the tion of state taxes, and abolishing the discount now allowed for prompt It is provided that taxes shall be due July 1, that interest shall be charged after Sept. 1, and that they shall be in arrears on Jan. 1, following. All collectors are required to make monthly returns to the Comptroller.

The Senate, on Thursday, took up the Prohibition bill, and after discussing it-finally postponed further consideration of the bill until next Tuesday. Senator Warfield made a speech in favor of the bill. The advocates of the bill think they have votes enough to pass it through the

----Taneytown Grange Meeting.

A special meeting of the Taneytown Grange was held on Tuesday, Feb. 22, with sessions morning and afternoon. At the morning session ten new members were admitted, two by reinstatement, and eight by initiation. The Grange recently secured new regalia, and the full form of initiation is now being used, which added much to the interest of the occasion. Between the sessions a feast of oysters was served to all present, under the management of the ladies of the Grange and a special committee.

The afternoon session was an open meeting, any person interested being admitted. Prof. C. L. Opperman, of Ridgely, Md., the sub-station of the Maryland Experimental farm, was present and occupied the principal part of the time with a lecture on poultry and poultry raising.

Public School Books from Japan.

Under present tariff laws, school books under present tariff laws, school books are admitted into this country, free of duty. Apparently, this would be a fine thing if the law applied only to foreign published books, needed in this country in teaching the higher branches, and especially books protected by international copyright. As a matter of fact, in the actual operation of the law, many of our common school books are now being printed and bound in Japan where the wages of printers is about fifteen cents a day. This is not only hard on the printing business of this country, but it is a fact pretty hard for the patriotically inclined to accept, especially when we boast of our "free schools" as being the very foundation of our National eminence It is given as a fact that Japan sends us certain books at 7 cents apiece, that would cost, if made in this country, about 30 cents. Can we afford to save the 23 cents a book, and at the same time maintain our self-respect, and the consistency of our teachings?

Legislators Better Spenders Than Providers.

Are our legislators only expected to spend money, and not to provide it? It begins to look that way. Most of the financial bills so far presented have been of the "spending" kind, and few for an increased revenue.

The State is about $2,000,000 in debt; the State Road Commission wants $2,500,-000; the Fourth Regiment wants $500,-000; the Agricultural College $400,000; various towns are asking for armories costing from $25,000 to $50,000; road bills have been presented calling for from $50,000 to $100,000; the private and semiprivate institutions are asking for their customary many thousands, or more; the Widows' Pension bill will require a big slice, while the usual "omnibus bill" will call for-nobody knows how much.

The revenue measures are yet to come, but nobody is willing to commit himself to details. Whenever a certain interest is "touched," that interest raises the howl-"don't tax me, put it on somebody else." Our legislators promised their efforts for equal and well distributed taxation, but there seems to be a feeling now that revenue will be raised from the direction of the least resistance-from those who can't put up a dangerous fight.

Mortgages, judgments and interestbearing bank deposits, will almost surely not be taxed, because the general financial and investing interests do not want them taxed, and as long as men are elected to the legislature who are specially responsive to such interests, there will be no change. It is too soon yet to reach positive conclusions, but we believe now that those who pay the bulk of the taxes save their boys from the city saloon, the will continue to do so, and that the

.... Why Advertise Crime?

The bill providing that all hangings be held in Baltimore, is a good one, though it may not be desirable that such events be held at the city jail, or at the penitentiary; at least not in any such manner as to give the inmates of these institutions either knowledge, or sight, of executions. Wherever these legal "killings" take place, they should be strictly private, and without publicity of the "horrible details," which some people have the bad taste to appear to enjoy.

Executions, in recent years, have devious ways. usually been private, almost everywhere, excluding the morbidly curious; and even newspaper reports of the "falling of the drop," the manner of the victim, the contortians of his body, and whether his "neck was broken," have largely disappeared, for which, humanity in general is devoutly thankful. There was a time rest of Maryland it must go from Baltiwhen "hanging days" were harvests for more saloon-keepers, when getting "tanked up" was a usual finale, and those who were sober enough to remember and tell "all about it," felt themselves envied

May we not hope, in the near future, to advance the status of our civilization a little further, by having murder, and other criminal cases, tried with very much less publicity? Why should every scene of such trials, and every scrap of testimony, be seen and heard like a play on a stage? ### Baltimore Boosting Booze.

We can readily understand why Baltimore raises such an awful howl over the possibility of prohibition, because all of the liquor interests there are great, due to the great population, but no more than that. There is not, so far as we have observed, any special new reason advanced why the liquor business should live in Baltimore, even though it might safely be done away with in smaller places. It is the same old question of right, or wrong. If the business is wrong anywhere, it is wrong in Baltimore.

We note that the business men of the city are disposed to imagine ruin to the business of the city, and that the citizens would be overwhelmed with taxation, due to loss of license revenue. This is, of course, very familiar argument everywhere that prohibition is agitated, but the fears of Baltimore-even if genuine-are groundless. Baltimore would not be injured more than any town in Carroll county where local option is in force-no more in proportion, or per capita-and Carroll county is not suffer-

The plea that the liquor revenue is needed, is not more true in Baltimore than any other place. It is a cowardly argument to use, at best, that wrong must be licensed in order that the people as a whole may be benefitted; moreover, it isn't true. It would be just as true that murderers, and burglars, and 'fire-bugs' ought to be licensed, in order to produce revenue

It isn't true, either, that the sale of iquors could not be prevented in Baltimore, even if the prohibitory law was passed; nor is it true that conditions would be worse after than before. These are arguments that have been so often proven false, that it is remarkable that any intelligent person will continue to

Baltimore may fight off the present law, but it is almost inevitable that so doing will be merely postponement. Baltimore will exist, and so will the whole country in a few years, without the liquor business, and the people will not be bankrupt because of it, either. The handwriting is on the wall-the liquor business has been "tried and found wanting."

The Hampstead Enterprise, commenting editorially on the same subject, truly

It reaches out further after the boys and it 000 a year, but for the sake of the arguto the city. You can not dr counties while booze is free in Baltimore.

Another thing. Baltimore has abso lutely no regard for the counties-absolutely no respect for their prohibition laws. No sooner were the saloons voted out of Carroll county than the whiskey law, and they kept it up until they saw that it was leading to more trouble for them. Then they took to soliciting orders by mail and promised to make deliveries by auto. When the citizens declared that they would give these autos a warm reception, deliveries were abandoned, but the liquor interests have shown their utter contempt for the local law and are

The Real Liquor Interest.

Believing in extending personal liberty to the fullest possible degree consistent with the general welfare, and feeling concourt rooms, but only those admitted fident that the people of Baltimore county are fully competent to decide for themselves whether they want liquor sold or not, the Union News has had but little to say on the abstract question of license or no license, only demanding that if the traffic is to continue it be surrounded by all proper restrictions and that these restrictions be enforced. Of course we know that the mere admission that restrictions are needed involves the concession that the business is a dangerous one at best, but we do not expect to see the millenium come all at once. A good many people are not ready for it.

But the hysterical appeal of a "half page'' of heavy and near-heavy taxpayers printed in the Baltimore daily papers on Thursday is so specious, so misleading and absurd, that it should not be allowed to go unchallenged. These men beg the members of the Legislature not to abolish liquor licenses, because taxes would thereby be raised. As the only measure before the Legislature which could possibly tend to such a result is the State-wide Local engineer, the minister or the teacher. Option bill, it is to be presumed the said taxpayers mean that they do not want local option, that is, they do not wish the people of the State to be allowed to say he had won prizes in the International, by a majority vote whether they want | that he had never been in another man's

$1,000,000 a year; that the loss of this pert's spirit. Most farmers who deny cents in the city tax rate and the loss to the State in the failure of the State's share of the licenses in the city and those counties where license is now permitted would from 321 cents, which it now is, to 50 learned, except through books and papers. cents. The argument is made that this increase in taxes would be made necessary because of the loss of revenue which is not now paid by the taxpayers but comes from the "Liquor Interests."

Who comprise the "Liquor Interest?" It is usually erroneously assumed that it is made up of the distillers and brewers and the wholesale and retail liquor dealers. The real liquor interest is composed of every man, woman or child who takes a drink of whiskey or beer. They are the people who pay the bills. The manufacturer get his money back again, the dealer gets his back again, and both with profits added. But the ultimate consumer, the man who pays his dime or his nickle, is the foundation and cornerstone of the whole business. He parts with his money and gets nothing in return but a headache. Now this man is the real iquor interest, in the financial sense, for he pays all the bills. He is the man easier for the city saloon to take its toll these heavy and near-heavy taxpayers want to saddle the extra load upon.

The amount of money paid for liquor

We the counties after them and in order to have no figures to show the amount of counties propose to make it impossible to tempt and debauch them when they go to the city You can not dry you the counties propose to make it impossible to the retail drink bill in Baltimore, but it must necessarily be many times $1,000,up the 000. When a man pays $1,000 a year for a license, and in addition pays his rent, his living expenses, including silks, furs, diamonds, etc., for his wife, and automobile, which most saloon keepers seem to think necessary, and in addition pays to break down the law. They sent agents out to solicit orders, in violation of the bills for supplies and expenses of his business, it will be seen that the patrons of even the humblest saloon pay many thousands of dollars in order that the proprietor may make profits enough to pay his running expenses and contribute $1,000 a year to the relief of the other taxpayers. Is it better for Baltimore city and the State of Maryland that its citinow getting liquor into dry territory by zens should pay $20,000,000 a year for something which injures them in order

> Such arguments will not do, Messrs. Bondholders. Talk all you please about "blind tigers," "speak-easies," "prohibition does not prohibit," "personal liberty of the individual," or other wellworn phrases, but for goodness' sake don't attempt to defend the liquor business on financial grounds. All of them confess their dependence upon the literature of their professions to supplement the things they learn from experience.

It is only among farmers that we find any large number of successful men who declare that they learn altogether by experience. Among farmers there are still to be found numerous individuals who seem ashamed to confess their indebtness to the farm press for helpful articles. Yet these men are engaged in a business that has a literature as extensive and important as the literature of the lawyer, the

Mortgaged Farms Prosperous.

People are discovering that the farmer carrying a mortgage is generally the pros-perous one, while the man without a mortgage is apt not to be prosperous. The most prosperous farming States are those with the most mortgage debt; the least prosperous farming States have the smallest mortgage burdens.

Congressman Helvering, of Kansas, a speech recently made this very plain From census figures he showed that the four Southern States of Georgia, Alabama, Louisiana, and Mississippi have a total of only $43,000,000 of farm mortgages; Wismuch. Yet Wisconsin is an ideally prosperous farming State; the Southern States

These four Southern States have an average of three tenant farmers to two proprietor farmers, while in Wisconsin there are six proprietors to one tenant.

It's the same all through. The best agricultural States have the most mortgages and the most proprietor farms; the poorest States have fewest mortgages and fewest proprietor farmers. The mortgage is the poor man's stepping stone to ownership. A poor man can't hope to buy a farm unless he can mortgage it. The South's trouble has been that there is no money to loan there on farm mortgages. Iowa owes more on farm mortgages than any other State—about $204,000,000. Nobody doubts that Iowa is quite an agricultural State, and yet Iowa's farm mortgage debt is just about twice the combined mortgage debts of these eleven Southern States: Alabama, Arkansas, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, Tennessee, and Virginia.

The explanation is perfectly easy, but it isn't generally understood. It isn't the mortgage that hurts farming: it's the inability to get capital. Northern farmers can get working capital; Southern farm-

But the argument that is having more effect on Congress than any other, in favor of a scientific system of helping the farmer to cheap capital, is tenantry. In 1880 the percentage of tenant farmers in the country was 25; in 1890, 28; in 1900, 35; in 1910, 37. That's a might bad showing, and it gives worry. The country needs more mortgages and fewer ten ant farmers; a system of rural credits that will help in this direction will be useful. A system intended to "help the farmer pay his mortgage" is all buncombe. A lot of city Congressmen still think that's what we want. It isn't.

Here's a pointer from the Post-Office
Department. The farmers are not selling so much by mail as they ought to. They are using parcel post more and more liberally in buying; but they are not patronizing it much in selling. A great effort has been made to popularize farm-to-table marketing by post. The cities and towns are full of people who want to buy way, but they can't find the farmers who want to take their orders and give good, regular service. - Farm and Fireside.

CARE OF BROOD MARES.

Precautions Should Be Taken That

They Receive No Strains. My brood mares, of which I have ven at the present time, are never worked in winter, but are given plenty of exercise, writes a correspondent of the Rural New Yorker. Care is taken to see that they receive no strains or twists, which in some cases cause mares to abort. The mares are fed during the winter about a gallon of oats to a quart of bran to a feed mornings and evenings. The noonday ration consists of a feed of corn. The only hay they receive during winter is nicely cured clover. A boiled feed

Poor horses are a help to poor farmers only—they help to keep them poor. Good farmers must them poor. Good farmers must have good horses, and the best way to get them is to breed them way to get them is to breed them. Plowing with light horses costs $2.40 an acre, with draft horses $1.50. Big drafters are more efficient for all work, while their upkeep in proportion to the work they do is much less. And the profits from raising colts exceed all other live stock gains. The demand insures ready sale at profitable prices. Use ready sale at profitable prices. Use only pure bred draft stallions. The animal pictured is a grade Percheron gelding.

at every week end will guard against week end diseases which result from standing. After my mares become somewhat heavy in foal they are not allowed to run with the other horses until after foaling.

The first winter is a critical period in the life of a colt. If he has good blood and is got through the winter in good condition he will be most certain to make a valuable animal. If he is permitted to gorge himself on roughage he is apt to develop what is termed "pot belly." When this is developed the colt stands a fine chance to become a scrub horse. His hair will become long, his legs wobbly and his color will have a deadness about it showing a lack of vitality.

To prevent this and bring the youngondition his ration should be largely | pend on the size of the ewes, the pergrain. Oats are especially good for the colt. Corn should be shelled and then crushed. Musty food ought never to be given. It is practically devoid of nourishment and is a breeder of disease. Good sweet clover hay is excellent for colts as it furnishes muscle and bone making material. The colt should not be confined in a stall, but allowed a good sized lot or paddock in which to run and play Exercise is of paramount importance. He may be allowed to run in the pasture fields during the pleasant days. but should always have as a refuge from the storms a good shelter freely accessible. The water he drinks should be of the purest and cleanest.

FEEDER STEERS.

Points That Indicate the Animal Which Will Make Best Gains.

The sort of a feeder steer that will show the best gains will have a short neck, short legs, straight back and deep body. The legs should be short and straight, but should not stand far apart. Deepness of the body is one thing that must be found in the steer, as you are picking an animal with the ability to eat and digest a large amount of feed. This means that the body should be deep in front to give plenty of room for the vital organs. and it must be roomy at the hind flank.

Other points that should be watched are these: Pick the steer with the heavy muscled forearm, as this indicates a thickness of lean meat all through the carcass. An indication of early maturity is the shortness of the cannon bones. See that the loin is wide, the hook bones far apart and the rump long and wide. The muscles of the thigh should come well down toward the hock. While the handling quality of steers when fattened is important as an indication of the quality of the meat, it is necessary in the selection of feeders to get a loose, pliable and "mellow" skin with a heavy covering of fine, vigorous hair. All of this indicates thrift, health, vigor and the ability to turn feed into a good grade of beef at a comparatively small

Turn Silage Into Beef.

At one time the word "silage" suggested only brimming milk pails and big milk checks. According to Profes-For J. L. Tormey of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture silage is nowadays an important factor in putting on the finishing touches on choice sirloin beef. Silage is a great contributor to economy of production. It cannot be considered as a substitute for other necessary materials in the ration, but if fed intelligently is a great food saver.

HANDLING BREEDING EWES IN GOLD WEATHER

It is very important that the ewes of the flock be put in proper condition before lambing time, as otherwise the farmer or breeder can expect only a small percentage of lambs. There are two conditions that may result in the raising of a small percentage of lambs. First, many people have the impression that the ewes can be kept throughout the year on coarse, rough feeds with no grain except perhaps a small with no grain except perhaps a small amount after lambing. The result is that the ewes, being thin at lambing time, produce weak lambs and do not produce enough milk to keep the lamb alive for the first few days. The second condition, in which the ewes are too fat, is far less common, but does occur. If the ewes have had the run of a good pasture during the summer they may be in very high condition in early winter. Then if rather heavy grain feeding is started early the ewes may become too fat for best results. In any flock of great size there is always much individual variation in the tendency of the ewes to put on fat. For this reason it is often advisable to divide the flock, putting the fatter ewes together and feeding them rather light until near lambing time. The ewes thin in condition should be fed enough to bring them to good breeding condition before lambing. If the ewes are in good breeding condition in the fall and a good quality of roughage is fed no grain need be given until about three or four weeks before the beginning of the lambing season. The grain then given should consist of feeds that favor a good milk flow, as oats or bran. A mixture of the two should prove very satisfactory. Up to the time of lambing only about onehalf to three-quarters of a pound per day need be fed.

After the lambing period the amount should be increased somewhat. The ster through the winter in first class | proper amount to feed then would decentage of lambs and other factors. The question of roughage for ewes is a very important one. Alfalfa and clover hay are almost essential if the very best results are to be obtained. Very coarse fibrous hays, especially timothy, have been shown to be very objectionable as a roughage for pregnant ewes. Some form of succulent feed, as roots or corn silage, can be used to very great advantage if the cost is not prohibitive.

The feeding should not be the only consideration in the management of the flock, but the question of shelter and exercise are equally important. Close housing not only is not essential, but should be guarded against, and instead a more open house or shed should be provided. Warmth of the house is not an important consideration, for if kept dry the sheep's fleece will serve to keep the body warm. Care should be taken that the sheep do not have to stand around in damp, muddy places .-C. V. Singleton, Idaho Experiment Sta-

Tankage For Pigs.

Tankage affords a splendid feed in connection with corn and when fed at the rate of one pound of tankage to eight to twelve pounds of corn will produce gains more economically than when corn is fed without the tankage. If tankage is not available shorts with a little oil meal will be a splendid fattening ration. Farmers feeding herds of forty to fifty shotes should remember to feed proportionately. A herd of fifty pigs will consume ten times as much as a litter of five, and feed should be given accordingly. Many farmers fail to realize this fact and do not give the hogs a sufficient amount to produce the gains that should be desired. When hogs attain a weight of 150 to 175 pounds they should be given all they will eat, for the faster they gain at this age the more profitable will be the gains.

Parasites In Sheep.

Sheep should have access to medi cated salt in winter just as methodical ly as in summer, for in this way the breeding parasites that winter in the stomachs of mature sheep are largely destroyed. The source of drinking water for sheep is under the entire control of the feeder while the sheep are in dry lot, thus making it impossible for them to imbibe parasites with water, which in summer is very common. It is supposed that the parasite known as stomach worm survives the winter in the open field to some extent. Therefore the farmer who would keep his farm as free as possible from parasites should by all means use the winter season in systematically eradicating the parasites in the flock itself.

POTATOES AT THEIR BEST

Universally Popular Vegetable Will Well Repay All the Care That Can Be Given to It.

There are many varieties of pota toes. Tastes differ as to the most desirable kind. In this country the white potato, when light and dry, is preferred. It is especially suited for boiling, steaming and baking, also for soups and purees. The yellow potatoes are more suitable for salads, ragouts, hash and frying, because they keep their shape when cooked. The sweet potato makes a pleasant and healthful addition to the table. It is rich in starch and sugar and somewhat laxative.

The white and yellow varieties contain a large percentage of water, a fair percentage of starch, a very small percentage of sugar and about one per cent mineral matter. It is to this mineral matter that the potato owes its antiscorbutic properties.

Potatoes cooked in dry heat, as by baking in the oven, roasting in ashes, frying in deep fat, or steaming with out peeling are more pronounced and savory than when cooked in water. But the vegetables so cooked must be served just as soon as they are done, or else they will become soggy. On the contrary, boiled potatoes may be kept warm for an hour or more after cooking without ill results.

Potatoes should cook in half an hour if ordinary size. Large potatoes should be given five minutes more, and small ones two minutes less. These rules apply to peeled, partly peeled or unpeeled.

The potatoes should be covered with boiling water and brought quickly to a boil. After fifteen minutes add one tablespoonful of salt to every twelve potatoes. At the end of thirty minutes drain off. To make them very white and mealy, after draining off the water, put the cover on, hold it down firmly and give the pot a shake. Next open the window and hold the uncovered pot outside for a few seconds, to let the steam escape. Place the vessel where it will keep warm for a few minutes, covering with a folded cloth, not the lid.

When boiling potatoes in their skins a narrow band of the skin should be removed from the center of the vegetable and small bits from either end. Steamed potatoes will require forty minutes to cook, the water boiling hard all the time.

The oven should be very hot, as a number of cold potatoes will lower the temperature. One hour should be allowed. Small sweet potatoes will bake in half an hour, large ones an hour or more. Those who like them moist and sweet may bake them two hours.

Economical War Cake.

A fruit cake without eggs was much used in England during the holidays and further popularized by being called a "war cake." It is really very good and undoubtedly economical. It requires one-half pound of flour, two ounces of sultana raisins, one ounce of currants, one ounce of butter, one-half pound of brown sugar, one teaspoonful of carbonate of soda, one tablespoonful molasses, one-fourth teaspoonful cinnamon or mixed spices, one-fourth teaspoonful of ground ginger, one teaspoonful vinegar. Mix the ingredients after creaming the sugar and butter, in a half-cup of milk. Put the vinegar in last and very carefully a drop at a time lest it curdle the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven for an hour and do not cut for a week.

Beef Essence.

Remove the fat from a slice of steak from the top of the round, cut three quarters inch thick, broil over a clear fire three or four minutes, turning often; heat the broiler to prevent the steak from adhering, as any suggestion of grease must be avoided; re move to a warm plate, cut into 11/2. inch squares, gash on both sides, and with a lemon squeezer extract the juices; season with salt. This is nutritious and extremely palatable. Often desirable, given in small quantities, where a condensed form of food is desired.

Cottage Savory of Ham. Place in a chopping bowl three ounces of cooked, lean ham and chop for ten minutes until it is a smooth pulp. Then add half a tablespoonful of good butter, two tablespoonfuls of Worcestershire sauce, half a saltspoonful of cayenne pepper and half a teaspoonful of mustard. Chop the whole well together for five minutes more and place this paste on a plate. Prepare six small round pieces of toast.

Divide the ham preparation evenly on the toast and serve immediately.

Spanish Eggs. To six eggs and three-eighths cupall strained tomato, one tablespoonful lemon juice, two dozen ripe olives (cut in rings), one small onion, grated; one teaspoonful salt, one teaspoonful celery salt. Cook in double boiler and stir constantly until slightly thick-When Roasting a Turkey. The turkey need not be sewed after the dressing has been put in. Insert toothpicks on either side and string back and forth over the picks. This is easily removed after the bird is

USE LIME FREELY IN SOIL BUILDING

The Kind To Use And How To Apply It Economically.

H. J. PATTERSON, Maryland Agricultural College.

The kind of lime to apply will depend almost entirely upon the relative cost of the different forms. The main function of lime is to correct acidity; any form will do this but it requires practically twice as much Ground Limestone or Shells, and 11/4 times as much Hydrated Lime as Burned Lime to do the same amount of good. The fineness to which the raw material is ground determines to a great extent its effectiveness. The finer the

We cannot say that either source of lime is decidedely better than the

How To Apply Lime.

The method of spreading lime will depend upon the kind used. If we use Lump Lime we may slack it in a large pile and spread it with a manure spreader, or it may be placed in small piles over the field and after slacking, spread with shovels. If the latter method is used, 20 pound heaps (1 peck) placed 20 feet apart each way, or one bushel 40 feet each way, will provide about one ton per acre. The small piles have the advantage over the larger ones in slacking more readily, and on account of being close together, will not necessitate it being thrown so far with the shovels when spreading. Mixing this Slacked Lime with fine earth before spreading will make it less disagreeable to handle.

If the ground Stone or Hydrated Lime be used, the most convenient way to distribute it will be with a lime spreader. Caustic Lime should never be mixed with manure or commercial fertilizers. It is better to plow the manure under and put the lime on top of the soil after plowing. If commercial fertilizer is to be used the lime should be applied a few weeks before the application of the fertilizer is

Amounts Of Lime To Apply.

It is generally the best practice to apply not less than one ton of Burnt Lime or two tons of Ground Lime or Stone Oyster Shells per acre. Hydrated Lime should be used at the rate of 11/4 tons per acre. Such an application need not be given oftener than once in five years, which makes the cost not more than 50c to $1.00 per acre per year.

When To Apply Lime.

There is no doubt a best time to apply lime and for many reasons that time is just after the land is plowed for the corn crop. The processes required in securing a good seed bed and the cultivation of the corn will mix the lime thoroughly with the top layers of the soil where it will be most effective in performing its main function; correcting acidity.

If clover has not been doing well on the land and an application of lime be given as suggested we may expect a vigorous growth of that crop when it is again sown to clover. Probably on no other crop will lime have so decided effect as on the clovers. If for any reason we do not get to make an application of lime for corn we should not hesitate to use it in the fall when preparing the land for wheat.

GET SOUND BREEDING STOCK TO PRODUCE WINTER LAYERS.

ROY H. WAITE. Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

Let us begin now to prepare for a flock that will produce eggs for us next winter. To many people a chicken is just a chicken. Little do they stop to realize that the way a chicken is made or build up determines to a large extent its usefulness as a layer. Most persons realize pretty fully the general requirements of a strong building. They know that it is necessary to have a solid foundation and then that it is essential to make each step or section of the construction just as strong. They know that it does not do any good to put a lot of time, energy, and expense into making the top part of a building substantial if the foundation or lower part is weak. But these same people, many of them, seem to forget these things when they start building a flock of chickens, which they expect will be strong enough, and healthy enough to withstand a severe winter and have enough energy left to produce eggs.

The foundation of the poultry flock is the breeding stock. If it is ill matured, poor, sickly or improperly nourished it will be a waste of time to try to breed from it. The resulting flock will hardly pay for its keep. If on the other hand your stock is well matured, in good flesh, healthy and properly nourished you have the proper foundation for a good flock for egg production next winter.

It will pay most any one to take a little trouble to select out a few of the strongest and healthiest, most vigorous birds and save only eggs from these for hatching. Sometimes it may be best to cull out the poor birds from the flock and keep them separated for a time or what is probably better sell them for market or eat them.

The matrons and maids of the Lend-a-Hand Book Club, of Statewood, gave a novel entertainment, Feb. 17, at Mt. Pleasant parsonage, the home of the president, Mrs. Pardew. The whole home thrown open for the guests, gave an allurring invitation for a time to be remembered with lingering pleasure.

The members of the Club came dressed with appropriate emblems, and badges to represent some book. It was in perfect good taste to gaze at each other until the solution of the problem was solved. The one having the most correct answers re-ceiving a prize. Severteen books were personated. Two, which proved the most baffling were, "The Scarlet Letter," and "The Newcomes," "The Scarlet Let-ter" was represented. "The Newcomes." "The Scarlet Letter" was represented by a white card worn on the breast of Mrs. John Spencer, on which was printed "The Lend-A-Hand Book Club"—the "A" was done with red ink—the card tied on with scarlet ribbon to form an "A." The very simplicity was eluding. No one guessed it. The major part occupying attention was The major part occupying attention was the name of the Club, how that could represent a book—and what book? The president had two dolls dressed as infants n her arms. Everyone guessed the charmbook "Water-babies" -but it proved to be "The Newcomes."

Mrs. Leister was arrayed as "The Witch," by Mary Johnson. She proved to be the most bewitching witch; and no one solved it. All were good, and deserve mention, especially 'Mother Carey's Chickens.' Mrs. Knox was the typical picture of a mother in fine plumage, arrayed all over with pictures of the barn-yard fowl-some as large as dinner plates, cocks that had taken prizes. Everyone guessed "The Spreckled Bird." Miss Eurith Zentz won the prize for the largest number of correct answers, which was a dainty hand-made doylie by the presi-

The meeting proved to have spice and ginger in it from the first; after the business session of the finances and a letter from the president of the State Federation of Woman's Club, Mrs. Frances Sander-son, of Baltimore, was read, the dues of membership were increased quite amicably. The vice-president then took the chair, while the president called attention to one article in the collect she though mis-leading. She asserted the world needed preaching. Sne asserted the world needed preaching. Mrs. Wailes was on her feet in an instant. "Every editor knows that the highest praise he can expect is silence," but if a "jot or title" is wrong typographically, "he must be prepared to have quarts of ink squirted at him forthwith." Armed with climpings from both with." Armed with clippings from both papers, the Record and the Times, the fact was pointed out the word was "want" and not "need. Dr. Meilyar Hamilton Lichliter, who is the author of "The Challenge for the Daily Life," adopted by the Club, to be used in the meetings, does not need an expositor, but not even in the time of Jesus did the world want His advice. When He disturbed the prevailing sentiments of the day, the world said "away with him." The church may desire preaching from pulpit and from pew, but the world does not. Apropos, let a preaching service and a good circus be scheduled for the same hour in a village! The secret of success has been discovered by one modern preacher-combining the two-Dr. Sunday.

The president again took the chair. The program was opened by a duet on the piano by the Misses Zentz. Mrs. Knox read a paper on "Environment, the Character Builder." Mrs. Wailes followed with: "Resolved, that books are a greater factor, than environment, in building character." It proved to be a lively and spirited debate; the issue was lost in the refreshments. The cooling water-ice and ice cream melted the warmest assertions of the combatants, while sweets not only graced the table, but the hearts of the ladies gave forth an exhaling perfume of kindliness. The hostess' table was unique; the china was decorated by a daughter of the home—the blending of design and coloring, particularly artistic. Two new members were received into the Club, Mrs. Geo. Beaseman and Miss Isaac. The next meeting will have a debate. "Resolved, it is wise for women to have the ballot." A number of new A number of new books were received for distribution. In-

The New Army Plan.

KOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOOO

Washington, Feb. 21.-The fundamental features of the army reorganiza-tion bill—one of the two major measures tion bill—one of the two major ineasures of the national defense program—were agreed upon today by the House Committee on Military Affairs. The big outstanding feature of the committee's plan is the fact that it provides for a total peace strength of 575,000 men in the standing army and National Guard combined, with reserve systems to more than double the force in war time.

Other big points resulting from the committee's deliberations are a standing army of 147,000 men, the complete Federalization of the National Guard, doubling of the number of cadets at West ling of the number of cadets at West Point, the construction of a Government ammunition plant and the creation of a large army reserve.

The committee will be unanimous in recommending the bill for passage, and Chairman Hay has been authorized to prepare the measure, which is looked upon as a compromise for the continental army plan advocated by ex-Secretary of provides a standing army of 200,000 men. A compromise between the bills of the two houses will be the decision of Congress as to the regular army. It is understood that the House Committee will accept the larger regular army plan if the Senate provides for its scheme for Federalizing the National Guard.

The House measure will authorize a maximum strength for the National Guard of 425,000, on a basis of 800 men for each member of Congress; will specifically prohibit the disbanding of any organization by the State authorities and remove present limitations on the use of the force outside the country. -----

A Story of a Reformed Card Sharp

By ELEANOR MARSH

A man rode up to a settler's cabin in the far west, threw himself from his horse and asked for something to eat. The settler was not at home, but his wife received the stranger, and her daughter, a child of twelve, looked up at the man with a pair of big black eyes wonderingly.

The mother was evidently troubled at his coming, but children are not aware of the differences in persons. and the daughter, who seldom saw any one except her parents, did not seem III disposed toward him. On the contrary, his arrival was something out of the common in her life. The man was young, not over twenty-one, and not bad looking, but there was something in his appearance to make the elder woman shudder. She set out some bread and meat for him. It was not very tempting, and he asked if it was the best she could do.

"Mother," said the girl, "you have forgotten that you made pies yester-

The mother cast a quick reproving glance at her daughter and, going to a cupboard, took out a pie and placed It on the table before the stranger. "Wouldn't you like a cup of coffee?" asked the child.

"Reckon I would," replied the man. The woman frowned, but her back was turned toward the man, and he did not see her face. Besides, his attention was fixed on the child, who was instrumental in bringing forth what there was in the larder. He was fight ing his way through the world. His hand was against every man, and every man's hand was against him. He was touched by the only kindness he had received in a long while.

The woman made the stranger a cup of coffee, and, having eaten and drunk.

"I've had a square meal, thanks to you, sissy. Now I'm going to have a sleep. In case you hear or see any one coming, little girl, wake me at

"If you're sleepy," said the child. "why do you want to be wakened?"

"See here, younker; if some men come along they're probably hunting for me, and the sooner you awaken me the better it will be for me."

"Why are they hunting you?" "To hang me."

The girl paled, but asked no further questions. The man stretched himself on a bunk fixed to the wall in the liv ing, dining and bedroom in one, while the woman went to the other room, the kitchen, and washed the dishes. The stranger must have been long without sleep, for no sooner had he stretched himself on the bunk than he fell into a deep slumber.

There is something so inoffensive, so powerless, about a sleeper as always to attract sympathy. In this case sleep seemed to relax the man's features so that the animosity against mankind so marked upon it when he was awake disappeared. Twenty-one is the very beginning of manhood, and the young ster, his face being in repose, was singularly handsome. Perhaps the girl was old enough to feel drawn to one of the opposite sex. At any rate, she looked upon him sympathetically out of her great black eyes and presently got a blanket and threw it over him. Then, remembering what he had said to her, she went outside and scanned the country roundabout. Far in the distance she saw several men on horseback galloping toward the cabin.

The sleeper was conscious of hearing

"Mother, some men are coming. I'm going to wake him up." "Do no such thing. He's a desperado. quite likely a horse thief. Let him alone, and they'll get him." "I won't; they'll hang him." Then the man felt himself shaken.

He started up. "They're coming," said the girl.

The man sprang to the door, shaded his eyes with his hand against the sun. caught the child in his arms, kissed her, vaulted on to his horse and dashed play cards? You play cards sometimes, don't you?"

Not long after his departure a posse rode up to the house.

No response was made to the ques tion. The father's besetting sin was the gambling table.

During five years following this episode the country round about the settler's cabin was filling up, but with that rough element which seeks new countries. Silver was what attracted the crowd, and many were growing rich from the mines. Scarborough, the settler, was in a position to avail himself of opportunities; but, being subject to a passion for gambling, whenever he got a good thing he gambled it away. In vain his wife pleaded with him to keep away from the gaming tables. It is singular how credulous are those who are afflicted with this passion. And yet is not the passion so strong that they are swept away by it, knowing that the chances are all against them?

Meanwhile the little girl who had saved the card sharp was growing to be a woman. She was a serious character, for she lived in a country where she saw a great deal to indicate to her that the world is not a bed of roses. Then, too, she experienced trouble at home. Her father was a bright man, but they say "death loves a shining mark," and it is hard to find a person with a superior intellect who is not handicapped by some glaring defect. Just as soon as Scarborough made a deal by which he pocketed a handsome profit he would go to a gambling den and lose it, and that. too, to men who were his inferiors.

One evening Scarborough, who had just sold a piece of property for $3,000, was being relieved of it by a gang of sharpers. While he was playing a young man of clerical cut and wearing a white cravat entered the den and, taking position in the center of the room, began to speak against the gambling passion. The proprietor looked at him as though uncertain whether to stop him or let him proceed. Seeing that no one in the room paid any attention to the speaker, he chose the latter

While the young clergyman was in veighing against the sin of gambling a girl of seventeen entered and, moving straight to Scarborough, put her arms about his neck and begged him to come

"Mother says that you will lose all the money received for the sale of the property," she pleaded.

"I've lost it already, but I'll get it back again, and more too." "Oh, father!"

"Just you go home and tell your mother not to worry. I'll come out all pudding and could hardly believe it When the girl entered the gambling house the clergyman ceased his remarks on the sin of gambling and fixed his eyes upon her intently. He heard what she said to her father, and when he refused to go away with her the clergyman went over to the table where her father was playing and looked over the game.

"Gents," he said presently, "would you mind a man of the church taking a hand in this game?" There was a burst of laughter and much chaffing of the clergyman at hav- my family enjoy this dessert as much ing preached against gambling and going back on all he had said. But the men at the table, except Scarborough, were all card sharps and thought what a fine thing it would be to fleece a parson. He was admitted to the game with a welcome and, taking $100 from his wallet, invested the amount in chips.

Never at that board had such hands been held as by the parson. If the best hand against him was a full of nines he held a full of tens. When he dealt the cards it seemed that he was enabled to give the others such hands as would draw them out, and he always way, and before long he had a pile before him that filled the others with of a cupboard in the wall between din-

Since he was winner, there could be no objection to this, and the game proceeded on a money basis. When the parson had won more than $2,500 he suggested a jack pot. The betting was opened with a pair of queens. The parson bet so high that he drove all the rest out except one man. When he was called and showed his hand he was found to hold four kings and an ace. He won $500 on that hand alone. Turning to Scarborough, he said:

DESSERTS OF MERIT STILL THE LAND OF GOLD

HOW ONE CLEVER HOUSEKEEPER UTILIZED CAKE.

Prevented Waste and at the Same Time Furnished Most Delicious Preparations for the Delectation of the Family.

For the holidays I had made a largesized fruit cake and some small fancy cakes of various kinds. In addition to this supply a friend sent in a huge fig layer cake, so it was inevitable there should be a surplus in the tin box.

My economical spirit rebelled at the idea of wasting good cake, so I donned my thinking cap, and the result was several desserts much enjoyed by the family, writes Jeannette Ross in the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The remains of the layer cake required my first attention as it had become quite dry. I softened it with a little warm milk, just enough to moisten it somewhat; then I poured over the cake an ice-cold custard made of the yolks of two eggs, one cupful of milk, two large tablespoonfuls of sugar and half a tablespoonful of cornstarch rubbed smooth with a little milk. Judging from the family's clamorous de mands for a second helping of this dessert, it met with their approval.

I hardly knew how to make use of the small cakes I had left, but a few days later I solved the problem. I poured warm milk over them, as I had the layer cake—then put one cake on the bottom of each plate, with three or four upright around it; on the center cake I put half a preserved peach and covered the whole with sirup from the jar of peaches, then added a meringue, made from one egg and pow dered sugar. This dessert met with as cordial a reception as the first.

Thus encouraged, I wondered how I could utilize the small pieces of fruitcake left. In lieu of a steamer, I put the cake in a colander over a pot of boiling water, covered it with a lid, and, when it was thoroughly soft and heated through, served it with sauce made as follows: One small cupful of sugar, two level tablespoonfuls of flour, one tablespoonful of butter, a pinch of salt, one egg, one pint of milk, cooked together until thick and smooth, flavored with a little nutmeg. When the family sampled this dessert they thought I had made another plum was composed of the remnants of the fruitcake. Pieces of stale sponge cake form the foundation for what, as a child, I called "make-believe charlotte russe." Make small cups or holders of stiff paper, pasting the edges together. Line the sides and bottom of the cups with cake which has been soaked in a little sherry. Fill the centers with a stiff meringue made of the white of two eggs and powdered sugar and decorate the tops with a maraschino cherry. Although grown men and women,

Two cupfuls of milk, two eggs, one large cupful of sugar, one cupful of cake crumbs, pinch of salt, small lump of butter. Flavor with a little vanilla and nutmeg and bake. This pudding can be eaten plain or with a sauce made of any thickened fruit juice.

of Prophesied Diminution. Careful estimates place the California gold output for 1915 at fully $2,200,000 more than the previous year, when the total output was $20,-653,496. The yield will easily be the largest in 32 years, and, with one exception, the largest in 51 years. So California still remains the premier gold-producing state in the Union. Placer mining for gold, for years considered a decadent industry in California, has for the past 18 years been growing in importance, until now the placer mines are producing 44 per cent of the total gold yield, the other 56 per cent coming from deep mines. This condition has been entirely brought about by the dredging operations, the gold dredges now producing some 86 per cent of the placer gold. The present tendency is toward extensive yardage in dredging operations, so the new machines are much larger and more powerful than those built formerly. It is considered probable that for this reason the yield of dredge-gold in California will continue about the same for some years, even though the old and smaller machines discontinue operations. A gold dredger is now being built to dig 70 feet below the water line. There was a distinct revival in all kinds of metal mining in the state in 1915, particularly in gold mining. The dredgemen have begun operations on tracts formerly considered too small for this class of work; and numerous quartz

When the history of the present European war is written, the forest of Argonne will be recorded as the place where more blood was shed than in any other spot on the wide fields of conflict. The French made a stand there on the first German drive towards Paris, and, later, when the Germans were forced back, it was the scene of weeks and months of desperate struggle.

Not a bird is left in the forest and practically every tree, which remains standing, bears the mark of battle. It was swept by artillery fire time after time, and was the scene of desperate hand-to-hand fighting.

But it was not the first time, for in the campaign preceding the battle of Sedan, in the Franco-German war of 1870, it was the scene of many sanguinary struggles.

The forest covers a number of wooded heights, 800 or 900 feet high, in the northeastern part of France in French Lorraine and Champagne. It is about thirty miles long, and from one to eight miles wide. It is bounded by the sources of the Aisne, runs along that river to the Meuse and northward to Chene-Populeux, separating a cake can be made into a very good stretch of fertile plains from the barren steppes between Vitry and Se-

Old Waterbury Watch Recalled.

The fakers are selling a new toy. It's a fake watch winder-a cog with a ratchet that makes a loud click. The idea is to take out your watch and attempt to wind it, at the same time working the toy which is concealed in the palm of the hand. The noise it makes sounds like the winding of a town clock. "For the love of Mike," exclaimed an ex-puddler, now a broker, who was attracted by the noise a man was making while winding his timepiece, "what kind of a turnip have you there anyway? That sound reminds me of a rattling of the pinions on a set of muck mill rolls." The stranger showed the toy and the former Pittsburgher said the drinks were on him.

Catless World in 1920?

With the slogan "Song birds forever and a catless world in 1920," R. Sayre, one of the largest individual farm owners in North Dakota, has arrived from Chicago to look after his interests, which surround Devil's Lake, says a Devil's Lake (N. D.) dispatch.

Sayre's campaign against tabby has advanced so far that he is offering prizes to persons killing the most cats. In a leaflet issued by the enemy of the cat the household pet is pictured as the most vicious, disease-carrying, germ-ridden animal in the world.

Samuel Joyner, living near Sandisfield village in the Berkshires, saw a bear crossing a snow-covered swamp When he related the incident the villagers doubted him. Next morning he drove to the swamp, cut out blocks of snow bearing bruin's footprints and, driving back to the village placed the bear's tracks on exhibition.

Lesson X.-First Quarter, For March 5, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts vii, 54, to viii, 3-Memory Verses, 59, 60-Golden Text, Rev. ii, 10-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Stephen seems to have remained si lent before his accusers until the high priest asked, "Are these things so?" Then, beginning with the appearing of the God of glory to Abraham, he traced the history of Israel down to the time of Solomon and the building of the temple, passing from that to Him who spoke of Himself as the Temple, which He said if they destroyed He would raise it up the third day (verses 51-53; John ii, 19, 21). He referred to the delay in the fulfillment of the promise to Abraham, the sufferings and deliverance of Joseph, the people's refusal of Moses, but God's choice of him as deliverer, and then accused them of consummating all the iniquity of their fathers by murdering the Just One, who had been promised to Abraham and Moses and foreshadowed in Isaac and Joseph and Moses and Solomon. Although Joseph and Moses were refused for a time, God used them when the time came, and so He will use the rejected, crucified and risen Christ at the appointed time. As truly as Joseph came to the place of power and Moses delivered Israel, so surely shall Jesus Christ come to the throne of David and be king over a redeemed Israel when the fullness of time shall have come. As usual, the accusation of being the murderers of their Messiah cut them to the heart (chapter v, 33) and made them angry enough to kill Stephen. which they succeeded in doing. As they gnashed on him with their teeth (verse 54) he was seemingly oblivious to it all, for he saw Jesus in glory. The expression "gnashing of teeth" was used just seven different times by our Lord concerning the torment of the lost and always concerning those who were professedly religious, but not really His (Matt. viii, 12; xiii, 42, 50; xxii, 13; xxiv, 51; xxv, 30; Luke xiii, 28). Stephen was filled with the spirit to serve tables, to work miracles, to bear testimony, and now in his great hour of need to see Jesus Christ in glory and die triumphantly (vi, 3, 5, 8, 10; vii, 55, 60). To be filled with and controlled by the Holy Spirit is our great and supreme need for every occasion and all manner of service, for only thus shall we look up steadfastly and see the glory of God and Jesus at His right hand, something which we need to do in order to be steadfast in service and ready to live or die. This upward look and steadfast beholding of Jesus at the right hand of the Father, always so necessary, were never more needful than now in these awful days of the European conflict, and this very morning (May 8, 1915), as the papers announce the sinking of the Lusitania vesterday by tornedoes near Queenstown, with the loss of perhaps 1,000 lives, we surely do need to look up steadfastly. With the earth so full of unrest and the rage of the devil, the destroyer and murderer, so manifest. there can be no peace of mind unless we see heaven opened and the Son of Man on the right hand of God and hear Him say, "Be still and know that I am God: I will be exalted in the earth," and remember that He alone can make wars to cease on earth (Ps. xlvi, 9-11). Stephen's discourse began with "the God of glory" and ended with "the glory of God" (verses 2, 55), and we must see the God of glory and rejoice in the hope of the glory of God if we would be patient in tribulation and run with patience the race set before us (Rom. v. 1-3; Heb. xii, 1-3). I am always helped and enabled to look up better by a study of the passages where heaven is opened and we see visions of Gcd. for there is no rest of soul in things that are seen, but only in the unseen and eternal (Gen. xxviii, 12-15; Ezek. i, 1, 26-28; Matt. iii, 16, 17; margin). He has told us not to be afraid to be killed, for to the believer to die is gain, to depart is to be with Christ, which is very far better; to be absent from the body is to be present with the Lord (Matt. x, 28; II Cor. v, 8; Phil. i, 21-23). Our Golden Text does not tell us that we will be saved if we continue faithful till we die, but that as believers, saved and kept by His faithfulness, we must expect the hatred of the devil, and if we are faithful, even though we die for it, we will receive a crown of life, which is the special reward for patient endurance. The Specter of Pauperism. Do you know that in the United

Do you know that out of the re maining thirty-four only nine leave es tates larger than $5,000 and that the average of the balance of twenty-five is a little less than $1,300? Do you know that at the age of sixty-five nine ty-seven out of every hundred in America are partly or wholly dependent upon relatives, friends or the public for their daily bread, for their cloth ing and a roof under which to sleep! We all know that the one safeguard against pauperism by the countries of Europe has been thrift. France, Ger many, Belgium, Holland and Switzer land have been the leaders in thrift. Do you realize that according to gov ernment statistics 98 per cent of the American people are living from day to day on their wages and that a loss of employment would mean pauperism for all but 2 per cent of us?-S. Curious Shadow Casting.

"Did you ever see a waterfall cast & shadow?" asked Stephen T. Mather of the group around the club table. Mr Mather, who is assistant to Secretary Lane in charge of the new development work which the department of the in terior is doing in the national parks had just returned from a strenuous summer among the mountain tops.

"Well, Yosemite falls cast my shadow very distinctly one night last August. I was half a mile or more away, gaz ing, beauty bound, at the effect of the full moon upon these giant falls, which are, by the way, as high as sixteen Niagaras piled one on top of the other. "The moon was behind me, of course.

The double falls, shining like silver, lit brilliantly by reflected light the dense shadows of the trees which hid me from the moon. Turning, I saw my shadow outlined vividly upon the grass."-Our National Parks.

Ring Life Preservers.

"The worst trouble about a life preserver," said an old sailor, "is that few people know what to do with one when it's thrown to them. Many a man would drown in trying to get a life preserver over his head. The average person struggling about in the water would try to lift up the big life ring and put it over his head. That only causes the man to sink deeper and take more water into his lungs.

"The proper way to approach a life preserver in the water is to take hold of the side nearest you and press upon it with all your weight. That causes the other side to fly up in the air and down over your head, 'ringing' you as neatly as a man ringing a cane at a country fair. After that the drowning man can be rescued.

Fulton's Demologas.

On March 14, 1814, the congress of the United States appropriated the sum of $320,000 for the construction of a war vessel in the shape of a "floating battery," designed by Robert Fuiton. This battery was intended to be a deadly affair, for it was planned to shoot scalding water and redhot can non balls at the enemy. This was the first steam war vessel build by the American government. She was Chris tened the Demologas, but after the de signer's death her name was changed to the Fulton in his honor. She was launched Oct. 29, 1814, but her engine was not put in until the following May. By that time the war of 1812 was over. and the terrible battleship never got a chance to squirt hot water at the British navy.—Argonaut.

"You have been married several years," he murmurs after a couple rounds of the floor.

"Not at all," he replies gallantly. "But I knew you were married the moment we started to dance. You at once began doing the leading."-Judge

Somewhat Different.

"This question whether a word should have its adverbial or its adjective form seems to me to have little to do with the sense. Now, what is the difference between talking loud and talking loudly?"

RAVINE TO OF A DEATH

Where Fearful Battles Were Fought on Gallipoli.

More French Blood Was Spilled In Valley of Kereves-Dere Than at Any Other Spot in the Dardanelles.

Berne. Switzerland.-A French correspondent in the Revue Militaire Suisse describes the fearful battles which were fought in the early days of October on the peninsula of Gallipoli between the allied troops and the Turks. One of the chapters of the gruesome report is devoted to the Valley of Kereves-Dere, the "Ravine of Death," where more French blood has been spilled than on any other spot at the Dardanelles.

"We passed a dreary, dull day and sat in our holes, watching the Turkish trenches," the correspondent writes. "At last the evening came and darkness followed quickly. Then the moon rose and cast her silvery light over the landscape. This light was so bright and clear that we could distinguish the color of objects at some distance.

"The Turks kept very quiet and the night promised to be even more dull than the day had been. Towards midnight an officer invited me to accom pany him on a little scouting expedition. Cautiously we crept through some miserable shrubbery. Everywhere we saw dead bodies, singly and in heaps. At last we reached the crest of the height and we were within gunshot distance from the Turkish position on the opposite hills.

"Between the two heights there was a large black hole, Kereves-Dere, the 'Ravine of Death.' I looked down into the valley and shuddered. There, in the bluish light of the moon, I saw the bodies of thousands of French soldiers lying on the gray sand, men of the Foreign Legion, colonials and zouaves

"'They were all heroes,' the officer, my guide, said as he pointed down into the ravine. 'From this spot they went into the gorge under a fearful artillery and machine gun fire. Dozens, hundreds of them fell, but like demons they began to storm the positions of the Turks. Bleeding, wild-eyed and roaring with rage they climbed upward until the fire of twenty machine guns greeted them and mowed them

"'In ten minutes more than one-half of the heroes were dead or wounded. When the survivors fell back into the ravine the Turks counter-attacked and on the sand on the bottom of the gorge the most awful battle of the war was fought.

"'The Turks attacked with knives and our heroes even used their teeth on the enemy. Neither side gave quarters; it was a combat to the death and the slaughter kept up until night came and the darkness made it impossible to distinguish friend from foe.

'Under a heavy shell fire we finally managed to withdraw the remnants of our troops from the ravine and the Turks returned to their trenches in the heights. The next morning we tried to save our wounded, but most of them had to be left to their fate. as the Turks would not consent to an armistice and shelled our ambulance

"'Let us salute the dead heroes down there. They were our bravest men and have sacrificed themselves to save the rest of our army from annihilation. Their heroism will forever live in the memory of the grateful French nation and future generations will mention them in the same breath with the famous Chasseur d'Afrique of Sedan."

Hospitality In Greece.

Hospitality as understood in the west is not characteristic of the Greeks, who in their own country rare ly invite friends to their tables. In her "Greece of the Hellenes" Miss Lucy Garnets relates how on one occasion she and a friend were invited into the suburbs of Greece by a Grecian lady who was giving a birthday tea to her young son and his play mates. "My share of the entertainment," says Miss Garnets, "consisted in watching the little lions feed, for neither a cup of tea nor a slice of the birthday cake came my way or the way of my companion, whose hospitality the hostess berself frequently enjoyed." This apparent niggardliness is, of course, entirely due to the cus tom of the country. The writer adds that the same hostess on coming to England entertained like the average Briton.-London Chronicle.

The First Bomb.

The bomb came into being during the troublous times in France toward the close of the eighteenth century. Its inventor was a French fanatic named Chevalier, who had conceived such an intense hatred of Napoleon that he determined to kill him.

Being employed at a government small arms factory, he had gained some knowledge of explosives, and with this knowledge he managed to construct bomb out of a barrel, which he filled with a mixture of powder, bullets, bro ken glass and white arsenic. Chevalier's idea was for the bomb to explode under Napoleon's carriage as it passed through the streets of Paris A miscalculation, however, caused it to go off a few seconds too soon.

Had Chevalier succeeded in his object the whole history of Europe would of course have been changed .- Pear son's Weekly.

Getting Into a Scrape.

Many years ago the wild deer that roamed through the forests of England used to dig holes in the earth with their forefeet. They pawed it out sometimes to the depth of several inches, sometimes a foot or more. These holes were called "scrapes," and travelers at dusk or night or those who were careless about their footing often tumbled into them. They were laugh ed at for their heedlessness when they came home covered with mud, and as this frequently occurred after they had been imbibing a bit they were said to have "got into a scrape." Some Cam bridge students took up this expression, and thus it came to be applied to people who had got into difficulties of various sorts.

The Sun In Winter.

In winter we are 3,000,000 miles nearer the sun than in summer. Some may think that if this statement is true we ought to have warmer weath er in winter than in summer, but it must be remembered that the heat we receive from the sun depends very much upon the direction of its rays. In summer the sun's rays are more vertical than in winter; hence the days are warmer.

Seeing Around Corners.

There are many insects which have a very much larger field of vision than we have. This is due to the greater concavity of their eyes, enabling them to see around the corner, so to speak, behind and at the sides. This devel opment in man would have its objectionable points, but also its good ones, not the least of which might be the detection of pickpockets.-Chambers' Journal.

WHY PRINCE ALBERT WINS. Patented Process is Responsible for its

International Popularity:

Smokers so much appreciate the flavor and coolness and aroma of Prince Albert pipe and cigarette tobacco that they often marvel that this one brand could be so different from all others.

different from all others.

The answer to this question is to be found on the reverse side of every Prince Albert package, where you will read: "Process Patented July 30th, 1907." That tells the whole story. Prince Albert is made by a patented process that cuts out the bite and parch, which makes the tobacco so mighty agreeable and satisfying to men of every taste of every civilized nation on the globe.

ized nation on the globe. Smokers should realize that this patented process cost three years' continuous work and study and a fortune in money to perfect. But the result has proven to be worth all that was expended upon it, because it has set free men who believed they never could enjoy a pipe or a makin's cigarette.

Prince Albert makes it possible for every man to smoke a pipe or to roll his own cigarettes. And, no matter how tender the tongue, Prince Albert cannot bite or parch. That is cut out by the patented process, leaving for the smoker only the joys of the fragrant tobacco,

It is a fact that since Prince Albert (corriged)? instruments in years ago it.

"arrived," just about six years ago, it has made three men smoke pipes where one smoked a pipe before!
