-------Frederick county commissioners are strongly opposed to the proposed laws of the Farmers' Association providing for a dog tax, road engineer and reduction of the Board of county commissioners from five to three members. One of the commissioners said they were willing to be placed on a salary basis, but objected to the reduction of the membership of the board. The tax from dogs, he declared, would not pay the salary of the collector, while the commissioners are doing the same work a road engineer would do at a high salary.

Billy Sunday and Sunday Ball.

Billy Sunday, himself an ex-baseball expert, should give Baltimore his opinions on the playing of baseball on Sunday, an ordinance in favor of which will again be brought before the Baltimore City Council, next week. An old ordinance prohibits ball playing on Sunday, is in force, and it is to get rid of this that several efforts, without success, have been previously made.

It appears to us that Billy Sunday is in liarly advantageous position to aid the Sabbath day observance forces in Baltimore, and that one of the chief needs of Baltimore is a wakening up along this line. The tendency, in recent years, has been toward disgraceful uses of the suburban sections, on Sunday—another specimen of what "personal liberty" is held to stand for—and "Billy" ought to stand for the best possible use of his own name, even in this connection. .0.63.0.-

The Sunday Campaign in Baltimore.

(For the RECORD.)

If you have never heard Rev. William Sunday, you should not miss this chance to hear him, for no matter what your opinion of him has been, you will likely hear the plainest, most cutting remarks you ever heard in your life, and no doubt many would fit you, just as they fit all who put themselves under the sound of his voice. His manner of reaching peo-ple is such that the vast crowds who throng the Tabernacle go time and again; and do not think that they are just going for curiosity.

The great solemnity, at times, is appalling, and when you are about ready to cry, some of Sunday's witty sallies brings you to the laughing point. It was my pleasure to attend the service Tuesday afternoon, when the W. C. T. U. had their gathering, and marched from the Waverly M. E. Church to the Tabernacle singing their Prohibition songs, and it Henry Ford, the automobile manufacturer, is said to have spent $400,000 on his peace party excursion to Europe, that has so far failed to accomplish even that has so far failed to accomplish to accomplish that has so failed to accomplish th onstration of these valiant women from all over the State, doing the work that has counted for much in both the moral and spiritual growth of the people of our State and Union.

I am glad that old Carroll sent such a fine delegation, and to know that many efforts are put forth to prevent the breaking of the local option laws there. Fully 2000 women were in line, and their entrance made quite an attraction for the people by singing, and the banners they

As usual, Mr. Homer A. Rodeheaver opened the service of song and also paid the W. C. T. U. a fine compliment for their good showing, and he sang "De Brewer's Big Horses Can't Run Over Me," for the first time during the campaign, in honor of the organization. Rev. Sunday also paid a high tribute of respect to the whole audience, but especially to the White Ribbon Army, for their work in the past as well as the present. With such a delegation and many thousands who were not there, it looks like the cause represented is surely growing immensely here.

Rev. Sunday scored the churches for their coldness and indifference, and hit us all at some time in his sermon which followed. There were about 12,000 present, and a very attentive audience at that. His subject was "The Need of Revivals," and the flaying he gave us would fill too much space in your paper, but it was true that anyone could understand what he meant us to do: "Get awake to our responsibility.

He said, "You can scare up a crowd He said, "You can scare up a crowd any time for a minstrel show, but announce a prayer-meeting and you can't get a corporal's guard. It is as much the duty of the church to awaken and labor for the men and women of Baltimore, as it is the duty of the fire department to arouse when the alarm sounds. What would you think of the fire department if it played cards, or hit the booze, or slept it played cards, or hit the booze, or slept while the town burned?"

Surely there is a great revival needed. and we see the signs of it coming.

FLORA A. MYERS.

Baltimore, Md. -----Letter from H. Clay Englar.

The following is a portion of a letter from H. Clay Englar, a field office employee of the Pacific Telephone Company, who is now at Vancouver, Wash., to his home folks, and we give it thinking it may be of some general interest:

"This is the first Sunday I have not worked, this month. Portland and vicinity was visited early this month by a very costly and destructive sleet storm. Wires and poles were snapped off like toothpicks, and telephones, power and light, and street railways were paralyzed.

Three feet and more of snow, and drifts and landslides tied up the railroads for several days. Out of a total distance of 20 consecutive miles of telephone line, with an average of 40 poles to the mile we had but 18 poles left standing. This was our worst piece of destruction, while in Portland and Vancouver about 40,000 telephones were put out of service.

We were ordered on the 2nd to leave

Pendleton on the first train for Portland. The first train we could get was on the following Friday night, arriving in Portland on Saturday night-ordinarily 10-hour run required 20 hours. All day Sunday, 6th, we put in service telephones in Portland, and were transferred to Vancouver, on the 7th. Vancouver fared worse than Portland, and of course we have the toughest proposition of all to

My Company has added about 1000 working from daylight until dark to restore service. Expenses have been immense. For the first 15 days of this month hundreds of men have drawn over $100.00 salary. Two men in my crowd will draw about $150.00 each, for two weeks work. We have discontinued working overtime now, and conditions are rapidly becoming normal. We are rebuilding Van-couver and will be here several weeks longer if permitted to finish the job. Have not received any mail since leaving Pendleton, and as we had not finished our work there, suppose we will be ordered to return some day.' The Taneytown-Emmitsburg Road.

Leading business men and property owners of the State, on Wednesday, made a simultaneous demand for the improve-ment of nine miles of State road from Taneytown to Emmitsburg, when a delegation went to Annapolis to participate in a committee meeting. The construction of this highway will probably mean the expenditure of nearly $100,000, yet it will make an improved road connection between Emmitsburg and Baltimore and intervening cities. Not only are property owners of the cicinity of Emmitsburg back of this highway improvement movement but many of the leading business men of Baltimore. The route from Baltimore to the summer resorts in the vicinity of Emmitsburg is much shorter than via Frederick. The

PARCEL POST WEIGHT LIMIT FIFTY POUNDS

Mr. Lewis Loses, and some of the Remarks Become Personal.

The House of Representatives, on Monday, added an amendment to the Post-office appropriation bill, limiting the weight of parcel post packages to 50 pounds. The amendment caused a great deal of debate and wrangling, mixed up with parliamentary expedients, to the ex-tent that the Speaker and old members had a difficult time straightening things out.

It is charged that one selfish interest was pitted against another—the Express Companies against the mail order houses, Companies against the mail order houses, and to some extent the farmers of the country. Representative Lewis fought the amendment, but lost out, especially as many are of the opinion that the parcel post system of the country is a very cumbersome and profitless business, and is amply large for all present just needs. The Postofice appropriation bill was passed with numerous 'riders' in the passed with numerous 'riders' in the way of new legislation, but most of them were defeated on points of order. The minority members protested bitterly that postoffice matters were handled by 'gag rule,' the bill finally being passed by special resolution from the Committee on Rules, which cut out amendments and debate.

The pay of the railroads for carrying the mails was placed on a space basis, in-stead of the present weight system, the action being vigorously opposed by the railroads.

In the discussion, Mr. Finley, of South Carolina, became rather personal in his remarks with reference to Mr. Lewis, when he said:

"The gentleman seems to think that the weight of the package is the criterion, and that if you fix or limit it at all you necessarily stab the parcel post to the heart. I do not agree with the gentleman. I remember when the gentleman have been and started from Maryland came here and started out on a parcel-post propaganda. His proposition was that the Government proposition was that the Government should buy out the express companies, buy their equipment, good will, and so on. I believe he proposed to give them thirty or thirty-five million dollars-something utterly ridiculous. What use has the Government for the equipment of express companies? It would be worth nothing at all to it. Let me say to the gentleman from Maryland that he is not the father of the parcel-post idea in this country. The grangers of this country. country. The grangers of this country, long before the gentleman was born, long before the gentleman was born, passed resolutions at their national council or convention indorsing the parcel post and demanding it for the American people. From that day to this it has gone on. So far as I know, the gentleman from Maryland had about as much to do with the formation of the bill which passed Congress as any other Member of the House. The gentleman from Maryland wants the bridle taken off entirely, and let it go without limit, only to be fixed by the Postmaster General and the Interstate ion. If the weight was fixed at 1,000 pounds I think it would suit the gentleman from Maryland. The gentleman comes here and complains that he could not be here on Saturday. I had a conversation with the gentleman from Maryland Thursday evening, when he told me he had an appointment and could not be here. I told him that very important propositions were coming up, that we had been on the bill for nearly three weeks, and we wished to conclude it and get through some time. He said that he had an appointment."

-0.00 Autobus is spelled B-u-s.

The word "bus," as now commonly used to represent autobus, or omnibus, is often improperly spelled, "b-u-s-s." The latter spelling, Webster says, means "to kiss with a smack, or rudely;" also to refer to "a vessel of burden; a small strong vessel with two masts and two spelling vessel with two spelling vessel wit cabins, used chiefly in Dutch and English herring fishery." The "b-u-s" spelling, means omnibus, only. However, the spelling of the latter with ss is given as an allowable variation, which barely saves it from being wholly incorrect.

The proper spelling of the word might become very important. If one wanted to write that "a buss was given in a bus" or that "two loaded buses passed by," it would be quite desirable that one's meaning be made very clear. "Autobus" should be spelled b-u-s-"ought to buss, in an entirely different proposition.

----Read The Sale Advertisements.

We call attention to the large number of public sales advertised in this week's issue, and to those that will appear in later issues. Newspaper advertising of farm personal property sales is increasing each year, as it is now the exception for such sales not to be so advertised. The advantage is that the paper carries, right into the home, many sales in widely sepdistance from Emmitsburg by the new route is about 55 miles, while through Frederick it is about 70 miles.—Frederick wide circulation of the Record, makes such advertising valuable.

An Attempt to Blow up an Apartment House in Union Bridge with Dynamite.

An attempt was made at 1.00 o'clock, Thursday morning to blow up the Tide-water Company's apartment house, corner of Farquhar and Elgar streets, with dyn-amite. The house faces on Elgar street and runs from Farquhar east to an alley that is parallel with the street. The apartments are numbered from the street apartments are numbered from the street to the alley, No. 6, in which the explosive was placed, being next to the alley. The lower story of this and No. 5 adjoining, were badly wrecked, doors and windows being blown out and badly broken; window glass in adjoining houses were badly broken. The writer of this heard the heavy explosion, and his eyes being on the clock at foot of his bed at the time, noted the hour. It was thought to be a blast at the quarry at the Cement Plant, although it was known that blasting was not permitted there at that hour of night.

not permitted there at that hour of night. There were 14 adults in the house at the time, and probably nearly as many children, but no one was injured. Tracks leading from where the fire was thought to have been lighted, were followed to a house, and the man of the house was arrested, but the officers at a hearing later allowed him to go free. It is said he at once left town. He is well known and may be arrested again later, if more evidence is secured.

Since the above was written, a dispatch to the Baltimore Sun says: "State's Attorney Seabrook this evening caused the arrest of Giovanni Bonano, an employe of the company, who was committed to jail by Police Justice Brown for a hearing next Thursday."

The European War.

Terrific fighting has been in progress in France during the week, the Germans making a long sustained attack on Verdun, one of the strongest French positions. It was reported several times that the place had been taken, but later reports seem to be that while the German forces have made advances, French counter attacks were so violent and well sustained that the forts not only remain in charge of the French, but the Germans have lost fearfully, the number being placed at 75,000. The French losses were also very heavy and the exact situation is in doubt. It is reported that the German attack on Verdun was only preliminary to another movement against Paris, and that this movement is about to be made at another point, the attack on Verdun being to cause a centralization there of the French. From other sources it is claimed that the Germans have been foiled in the attack, and that this has caused considerable disorganization in the army.

No decided gains have been recently made by either side, on the other fronts, but the Russians continue to make prog-ress agains the Turks, the latter being reported to be short of war material From present indications Portugal will enter the war on the side of the allies.

The big fight over the state-wide Prohibition bill came up in the Senate and House, on Tuesday. In the former, the bill appeared with an amendment exempting Baltimore city, while in the House the bill was reported clear of amendments. The fight began in the afternoon, and was continued until adjournment at 11 o'clock at night, no progress being made except in the way of debate, which was quite spirited on both sides.

Senators Chesley, Norris and Ogden spoke for the exemption amendment, and Senators Warfield, Bennett, Ogden and Allen against it, the argument entering largely into the merits of the bill in gen-

The House rejected a resolution originating in the Senate calling upon the Ways and Means Committee to first investigate the effect of the losses of revenue derived from liquor license, and to show how the losses are to be met. The debate on the bill itself was not as direct as that in the Senate, and showed some signs of letting the Senate reach its conclusions

An item of interest during the day was the announcement that the Governor would strictly keep "hands off." The "drys" were hoping for his support, while the "wets" hoped that the financial interests of the state would appeal to him, at least to the extent of urging Baltimore's exemption.

The Baltimore exclusion amendment was debated in both houses, on Wednesday, and was defeated. In the Senate the vote was 7 for and 20 against; in the House, 36 for and 61 against. As soon as the amendment was defeated, bills were presented asking that Baltimore first be given a separate, or local vote, on the question.

On Thursday night, the bill was discussed without a vote, the House deciding to take it up for further discussion next Tuesday at 1 o'clock. Friends of Balti-more were afraid to push the bill to a vote, while friends of the state-wide bill seemed to think sentiment for the bill might be stronger next week.

When adjournment took place the question before the Senate was the amendment to permit Baltimore to vote separately from the counties. In the House, the amendment under discussion is to permit Baltimore city, Baltimore county, counties, the Fifth district of Anne Arundel, Annapolis, Ellicott City and Havre Walsh and wife, convey 51 acres of land | de Grace to vote as political units on the saloon question.

A bill that is expected to stir up the large merchants in Baltimore city, came into the House on Wednesday, Mr. Tyinto the House on Wednesday, Mr. Ty-dings being its sponsor. The bill to require the reading of the Bible in the public schools throughout the State failed in the House, on Wednesday, for lack of a constitutional majority. The vote was 51 to 45, or one short of the required number. The bill has been fought whenever it has been before the House.

It makes the local supervisor of assessment in any county the assessor thereof and requires the County Commissioners of the counties, when ordered to do so by the State Tax Commission, to appoint such assistant assess ors as it may direct. These county assessors are to be paid $5 a day and expenses during the time they are employed their compensation to be levied for by the County Commissioners. The uniform plan of assessment to be formulated by the State Tax Commission is to be followed by the County Commissioners and county assessors at all times in the future. Should any board of County Commission ers fail to comply with the orders of the State Tax Commission, the latter is authorized to institute mandamus proceedings to compel them to do so.

Bills were offered simultaneously in the House and Senate on Thursday, calling for an appropriation of $1,000,000 to be used in carrying out the plan that has been agreed upon for the re-organization of the Maryland Agricultural College. Delegate Metzerott introduced one of the bills and Senator Harrison the other. Immediately thereafter other bills were offered which call for an appropriation of any tax. Almost every day, the papers have talked of tremendous taxation increase, and have prominently staged some form of this question, as though it was a new one. The same sort of arguments and claims might have been brought out and discussed many months ago, but it seems to have been the plan to hold them back for the sake of "eleventh hour" influence, and to save Baltimore, at least, from the peril of the state-wide law. OUR OWN OPINION about the Presidency of the United States, is, that there are fully 1000 men in this country, capable of filling the office with proper intelligence and credit. This opinion does not belittle the duties, and needed ability, connected with the office, but recognizes the abundance of high-class, brainy men, this country contains.

-0-53-0 THE REMARKABLE THING about the European war is, that the people consent so easily to be killed, and to place financial burdens on themselves, largely on the direction of a few. We hear so much about "personal liberty," and "ingividual rights," these days, that it is a wonder such a general war of destruction and suffering can be carried on.

-----Mutual Insurance.

The closing up of the business of the "Farmers' Mutual Fire and Storm Insurance Co., of Carroll County," and the strong probability of the collection of the claims against the Company from the policy holders, brings to the front, in a very practical way, the exact status of firm, and are individually responsible for its debts.

The objections to giving "premium notes" are well founded; at least, that these notes may be collected, in whole or in part, whenever necessity requires, should be a clearly understood fact. It is held, indeed, that as Mutual Companies are made up of individual partners, their notes showing the basis of their partnership, even the collection of the full amount of the note does not cover the full amount of individual responsibility, but that if need be, to pay the debts of the Company, its members can be required to furnish the whole amount of the debt, even if it be greater than that represented by the total face value of the insurance, binds the insured to the rules of the Company, and the note, to its obligations; the two together furnishing the safety and capital back of the promises and agreements of the policy contract, and this constitutes the whole safety of Mutual insurance.

There is nothing clearer in mutual insurance than that the word "Mutual" means mutual responsibility, as well as mutual advantage. It means that every policyholder is a partner in the business of the Company, with a partner's responsibilities as they apply to any other appropriation bill, now before Congress, partnership business

There has been greatly too much of land cultivation, merely as a temporary means of making money, and not enough of the object of making the farm a home of comfort and beauty, as well as a means of making a living. Many of our farms show the fact that they are but temporary working places, and that no more than is absolutely necessary is spent on buildings, or fences, or on general appearances. Every dollar of profit that can be taken from the farm, is taken.

Necessarily, there JUSTICE HUGHES, who is kept busy must be homes for rent, and tenants for them, but the smaller this percentage is, the better it always is for the life and prosperity of a community.

Notwithstanding the heavy shipments of horses to Europe, on account of the war, the selling price of horses has greatly fallen. The best reason for this seems to be, the automobile business. There is now practically no city demand for either driving or dray horses; so at last, the machine is displacing them, consequently making them cheap, and this may be a more serious situation than at first appears, for if it interferes with the raising of horses, the supply of leather will be further reduced, as has already followed in the case of cattle and sheep.

The closing of free pasture ranges in the west, with free trade in hides and wool, has resulted in a scarcity of both cattle and hides, as the animals are no longer raised in former quantities, and this means the higher cost of meat and leather. It is pretty clear, therefore, that in furthering desired efforts in some directions, we bring evil consequences in others-an exemplification of the law of cause and effect.

The farmer who buys an automobile, in addition to adding another item of expense, at the same time lowers the value of his horses. When we go to Europe, policy holders in Mutual Companies-that to get the advantage of cheap labor and they are members of the Company, or lower priced manufactured products, we the detriment of the service in every posmake the cost of meat products and sible way, it seems that the time has shoes higher, and do not buy cloting any come when we are justified in saying that we can not longer trust the department cheaper because the American supply of to carry out the wishes and intentions of wool is reduced by the operation. Therefore, it is becoming clearer, in the final analysis, that the protection of home products and home industries is the safest and best policy, after all. We "can't have a cake, and eat it too." If the "buy at home" policy is the best anywhere, it is the best everywhere, as general prosperity depends, sooner or later, on local prosperity—on the prosperity of the greatest number of local units.

The war, and other recent new conditions, will give great additional light on future discussions and regulations of the The signing of the "application" for tariff question, and unless we are greatly mistaken it will result in a greater extension of the protective idea in business, and to American interests generally. The "preparedness" idea does not, by any means, begin and end with the desirability of an equipment of guns and soldiers for defense, but it means as well the defense of our peaceful pursuits.

It will not do to say that the department should have this discretion and may be presumed to use it wisely, because we snow that the department does not yield to the opinion of the patrons of the routes and the desires of the people who are to to be served. We know now that the department holds a different view with regard to this service from that which is held generally by the people. We know now that the department believes that these routes ought to be let out to the owest bidder instead of a regular salary being paid to the rural carrier.

We know now that the department withheld for a year the salaries that we intended should be given the carriers and that we fixed as the pay of rural carriers, and that, although the department had no authority for so doing except their own arbitrary determination, they did so because they thought the carriers ought not to have such salary. Gentlenen talk about this service only requiring the time of the carriers for four hours a day. This statement rests upon no other foundation except that the Fourth Assistant Postmaster General selected certain routes in the United States, and during the month of July, the only month in all the year when roads are universally good throughout the United States, the only month, practically, in which it is possible to use motor vehicle routes everywhere on dirt roads, and, basing his statement on such a showing, he says that these men are only engaged four hours a day. Between Congress and the President it will not take the country long to choose. If the majority party in either house succeeds in the attempt to tie his hands, if resolutions denying American rights never before questioned are passed, if the Powers whose controversy with the United States has now reached an acute stage get the impression that popular sentiment is not with him in his demands, the responsibility will be quickly placed. You occasionally see it stated that colds do not result from cold weather. That is rank foolishness. Were it true colds would be as prevalent in midsummer as in midwinter. The microbe that causes colds flourishes in damp, cold weather. To get rid of a cold take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. •--Country Improvement.

If the people of the farms should hear and believe all that is said about country "conditions" -the drudgery of the farm, the lack of conveniences, the narrowness of life, the back-breaking, nerve-racking toil, the long hours, the absence of opportunity for pleasure, the repression that crushes out ambition and hope-we say if the people of the country did not know that much of what is said is simply exaggeration based upon ignorance of conditions, no one would stay in the country longer than it took them to get away. The fact is that a great many who have much to say about these things have only the city dweller's point of view and lack the development that enables them to understand that,

"Who lives to nature rarely can be poor; Who lives to fancy, never can be rich." We know there are those who will say that country people cannot see and feel such sentiments because of the penury of soul and overwork, but they say what is not true. Sometime ago we published a symposium compiled from the personal letters of over a hundred farm women and it is significant that only three of them expressed dissatisfaction with farm life as such. They almost invariably find joy in the work of building and develop ing the home; in living close to nature and enjoying the contact with, and the association of, the things of home and farm. Almost without exception they voiced sentiments that showed they understood with Street that.

"Nature is man's best teacher. She unfolds Her treasure to his search, unseals his eye, Illumes his mind, and purifies his heart, An influence breathes from all the sights and sounds Of her existence; she is nature's self."

These letters bear out our own experiences and observation. Unhappiness is not found in the country as a general thing, or even frequently. Work is not considered drudgery. One of the unfortunate tendencies in much that passes for education today is to leave the impression that physical labor is to be avoided if possible. Contradictory to this, we find that the healthiest and therefore the happiest people are those who work, and work hard. An editorial in a daily paper recently referred to modern developments as tending to "relieve farm life of its dead and uneventful routine, and the inaccessible home of an unending drudgery."

We approve of and welcome everything that tends to make life better and happier everywhere, in country as well as in city, but we deny the allegation that country people as a whole ever looked upon farming as a life of "unending drudgery," or that it has tended to make him "brother to the ox." Let it be understood that rural life is developing more and more into a fuller experience, chiefly through the efforts and purposes of country people themselves. This work will go on and anything that others can do that is really helpful will be appreciated, but let the harping criticism and the patronizing

FEED COWS LIBERALLY.

Milk Flow Cannot Be Maintained on Meager Rations.

It is easier to lose than to gain a milk flow. Near the close of winter a great many farmers and dairymen run short of feed, and as a consequence the cows suffer and the milk flow is checked. Some think they can carry their producing cows along on half rations when home grown feeds are scarce and then bring the cows up again when grass comes. This is very poor policy with the cows, for if they once drop off in their milk flow it is a very difficult matter to bring them back to heavy production.

Keeping cows up with a high standard of feeding is the only way to maintain a large yield. A cow that is worth Garclough May Mischief, the Ayrshire cow here pictured, has just broken the world's record for her broken the world's record for her breed in milk production. In 365 days she yielded 25,328.7 pounds of milk containing 897.87 pounds of but-ter fat. She is owned by Percival Roberts, Jr., Penhurst farm, Nar-keeping is worth keeping on full feed, whether it be home grown or purchased. If it does not pay to buy feed for the cows the fault lies with the quality of the cows. Find out which cows are the unprofitable ones and dispose of them, allowing more feed and better care for the remaining ones. The really good cow will not be profitable if she is not given a variety of wholesome and nutritious feeds, with good shelter and regular milking.

Never keep cows and allow them to go hungry through the last part of winter. When the cow is placed on low rations before pastures are ready for use they become weak and lose in flesh. If in this weakened condition they go on new pasture it will be many weeks before they will recover. Don't let up on the heavy winter feeding, for pasture should only be looked upon as a supplementary feed for dairy cows. and at no season should the stall feeding be omitted. If the cows have been allowed to shift for themselves try feeding some grain through the sum mer season and see if you are not amply repaid for the extra feed. They should have good shelter and abun dance of good, fresh water where they can get at it at all times.

BAD ODORS IN MILK.

Certain Feeds When Injudiciously Fed Will Produce Bad Results.

It is possible to increase the milk flow of a cow by good feeding and care before it is firmly established, says Hoard's Dairyman. No system of feeding has yet been brought forth that will increase the quality of milkthat is, in the percentage of fat. It would seem from practical experience that it is possible to ascertain systems of feeding to at least temporarily increase the percentage of fat in milk, but to sustain it throughout the period of lactation we know of no particular kind of feeds to advocate for this pur-

Where increased flows of milk are desirable, it is very important that the feeder watch his cows closely at the time of freshening and gradually increase their feed so long as they will respond to the increase. When the animal has reached her limit of production it is well then to drop back a little in the amount of meal fed, as it is not feasible under average conditions to feed all the grain a cow will eat in order that her maximum flow of milk may be sustained.

Most any good farm grown products produce a good flavored milk. There are a few feeds that affect the flavorthat is, what we term an off flavor. The feeding of a large amount of rutabagas or turnips just before milking will invariably give the milk an objectionable odor. Permitting cows to graze on rape pasture will also cause them to produce a strong flavored milk. Even clover pasture will have its effect and so will grass.

Butter Fat Record Broken.

The Holstein cow, Ormsby Jane Se gis Aaggie 150934, has broken the record for fat production in the senior four year class of the seven day division by producing in seven consecu tive days 703.6 pounds milk contain ing 34,306 pounds fat. She freshened at the age of four years eleven month nineteen days. Her sire is Ormsby Jane Paul 49641 and her dam is Segis Aaggie Netherland 82613. She was bred by Ernest M. Johnson of New York and is now owned by Oliver Ca bana, Jr., of New York.

PRODUCTIVENESS IN AGED COWS IMPORTANT

It is of paramount importance to the dairyman that a dairy cow should not only be a large producer in her prime, but that she should possess the constitution to continue to be a profitable cow and a regular breeder to a ripe old age. A cow that is still lucrative when she is sixteen or eighteen years old is worth far more to her owner than a cow whose productive life ceases when she is about nine or ten years old, for in the latter instance the depreciation is so great that the profits are seriously curtailed. The official records made by the cows of each breed ten years of age or over give perhaps the best idea of productiveness of the different breeds in old age. The Holstein cow, Valdessa Scott II., who made at the age of eight years two months one day, 33.50 pounds fat from 694.6 pounds milk in seven days, came back at the age of ten years two months sixteen days and made 29.99 pounds fat from 611.4 pounds milk in seven days, and 113.96 pounds fat from 2,475.7 pounds milk in thirty days. These butter records for seven and thirty days are unequaled by any tenyear-old cow in the world, says a correspondent of Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

Among the most striking records made by the oldest cows in the advanced registries of the different breed associations is that of the Holstein cow Hark, who made 13.61 pounds fat cow Hark, who made 13.61 pounds fat from 418.4 pounds milk in seven days. Martin D. and Norman Hess, Clerks. 2-18-3t freshening at eighteen years ter months twenty-one days. With these same factors go unusual digestive powers, making her the greatest of machines for the conversion of the coarse feeds of the farm into ney value. The bull shown is a 16.83 pounds fat from 581 pounds milk in seven days, beginning her record seventy-two days after freshening.

The oldest Guernsey cow in their advanced registry, Belle Brandon, made 428.43 pounds fat from 8,061.3 pounds milk in a year, calving at the age of fifteen years.

Pogis Irene II., a Jersey who holds all yearly records for her breed for cows over twelve years of age, made 15.75 pounds fat from 262.3 pounds milk in seven days and 590.4 pounds fat from 9,930 pounds milk in 365 days. calving at eighteen years of age.

The average profitable productive life of a cow is being greatly prolonged by the official test, and it will probably not be long until instances of great records made by cows eighteen and twenty years old will be as common as the large records made by cows eleven and twelve years of age that are being reported at the present time

Skim a Fairly Thick Cream. Farmers will make more money by separating a reasonably thick cream than a thin cream. Skimming high test cream leaves more skimmilk on the farm to feed to hogs, calves and chickens. Skimmilk utilized in this way has a feeding value of about 35 cents per hundred, while if the milk is left in the cream nothing is realized. The buttermaker usually wants a cream testing around 35 or 40 per cent butter fat. In the winter if the cream is above 40 per cent it is rather difficult to get the cream all out of one can into another or into a vat. Cream test. ing about 35 per cent in the winter and 40 per cent in the summer is right for butter making.

Oilmeal Better Than Cottonseed.

We consider oilmeal a little better feed, on the whole, than cottonseed meal, says Hoard's Dairyman. Oilmeal is not as rich in protein as cottonseed meal, but it contains other properties which give it a preference. This is especially true if there are no silage or roots to feed. Oilmeal has a good dietetic effect upon the animal's digestion. In other words, it tends to overcome the constipating effect of dry feed. It helps to keep the animal's digestion in good condition.

SHORT TERM LOANS FOR THE FARMER

Rural Credit Associations Provide Working Capital For German Farmers At Low Rates Of Interest.

> F. B. BOMBERGER, Maryland Agricultural College.

Just as the Landschaften or Land Mortgage Associations are designed to provide for the German land owners long-time loans of capital upon the security of their land, so the Raiffeisen or Rural Credit Associations or Banks are designed to provide short term loans of working capital to enable the German farmers to plant, cultivate, harvest and market their crops. These institutions derive their name from William Raiffeisen who established in 1862 at Anhausen a co-operative union or association of farmers for the purpose of commanding credit for the individual members upon their combined credit. In 1890 the number of Rural Banks in Germany was 1,729; in 1900, they had increased to 9,793; while in 1910 they numbered 15,517. Moreover, they have spread over the whole Continental Europe and are in operation in Asia, Australia, South America and even in Canada.

Is A Neighborhood Bank.

The Raiffeisen type of Rural Credit Bank is a very unimposing affair. Its operations are confined to a very limited area usually a district in which the members are personally known to the others, the average membership in the province of Saxony being ninety two per bank. Usually the only paid officer is a treasurer, while the office may be a centrally located farmhouse, a postoffice, a store or often the rest dence of the parish priest. The average cost of management is only onefifth of one per cent.

The management of the bank is in the hands of a committee of five, with another committee of five to audit the accounts, both committees being elected by the members of the association at its annual meeting in which every member has a vote. Loans which are made only to members are usually small, averaging about $25.00 and are always secured for some specific productive purpose, specified in the application. To secure a loan the borrower must give his note to the association, endorsed by a fellow member or supported by collateral of approved type. The advisability of making the loan in each case is passed upon by the managing committee, and the use to which the proceeds of the loan are put is under the scrutiny of the members of the association who are the neighbors of the borrower.

Low Interest Rates.

The terms for which loans are made range from six months to three years, the average being about one year. In case of failure of a crop, in bad seasons, the loans are extended for additional periods. A very common form of loan is that made on current account. In this case the loan is approved up to a certain amount, but the money is drawn out only as need. ed, interest being charged only on the amount used. If the money is misused the loan can be called at any time. Funds for the use of members are derived from the sale of capital stock, one-half per cent.; from reserve funds accumulated from previous years, 2.6 per cent: from savings deposits and current accounts, 85 per cent; from central associations, referred to later, 11.2 per cent. Deposits are accepted from anyone, but only members are allowed to keep current accounts. The rates at which loans are made to members are very low, averaging from 4 1-2 to 5 1-2 per cent. This con dition is made possible from the fact that these banks are co-operative in fact as well as in name. Usually no dividends are paid on capital stock, all earnings being carried to the reserve funds. The more successful the bank the lower are the rates of interest charged to members. The profit sharing-policy, together with the exceedingly low cost of administration, gives to the farmer exactly what he needs, abundant working capital, at a very low rate of interest, for periods of time that will enable him to plant a crop and await its maturity before being called upon to repay the loan.

A National System.

Each of these local Rural Banks is combined into a provincial union, at the head of which is the provincial bank which serves as a clearing house for the local banks. These provincial banks tend to equalize the surplus funds of the several banks and furnish capital to the local banks for loans to their members at a cost of about one-half per cent more than is paid on deposits. The provincial banks are in turn united with the National Feder ation of Darmstadt which is an association of practically all of the agricultural co-operative societies of Germany.

The Rural Banks of each province are united to form a Central Co-operative Association for the purchase and sale for members of agricultural products on a wholesale basis or for carry. ing on co-operative enterprises of any kind.

Thus the Raiffeisen Rural Credit Banks provide their members with abundant capital at low rates of interest for periods suited to their needs and enable them to co-operate on a scale scarcely dreamed of in America. They enable the German farmers to cultivate better, fertilize better, take better care of their land and harvest and market their crops to better advantage. Above all they furnish the machinery for effective and efficient co-operation.

The booze interests of Baltimore City seeing the wave of Prohibition sentiment that is relentlessly sweeping onward, and will probably sweep them from the city and state, are begging piteously to be let alone in their iniquity, and are making the most they can of the ridiculous plea of loss of revenue, with which to scare the timid tax-payer. To remedy this, let the consumers who use the article take a very small portion of their savings, when booze shall be no more and pay up the deficit shall be no more, and pay up the deficit in revenue from the loss of license, and after doing so, they will be surprised at the wealth which remains to invest in things far more valuable than the booze of which they had been deprived.

"Be A Booster."

'Do you know there's lots o' people Settin' round in every town, Growlin' like a broody chicken, Knockin' every good thing down Don't you be that kind of cattle, 'Cause they ain't no use on earth, You just be a booster rooster, Crow and boost for all you're worth.

If your town needs boostin', boost 'er, Don't hold back, an' wait to see If some other feller's willing— Sail right in, this country's free; No one's got a mortgage on it, It's yours as much as his; If your town is short on boosters, You get in the boostin' biz.

If you see some fellow trying For to make some project go, You can boost it up a trifle, That's your cue to let him know That you're not a spin't knowle That you're not a goin' to knock it, Just because it ain't your 'shout,' But you're goin' to boost a little, 'Cause he's got 'the best thing out.

If you know some feller's tailin's, Just forget 'em, 'cause you know That same feller's got good points, Them's the ones you want to show; Cast your loaves out on the waters, They'll come back, 's a sayin' true; Mebbe they will come back, 'buttered, When some fellow boosts for you.'' Lost and Found

Story of a Bridegroom With Dramatic Tastes

By CLARISSA MACKIE

When Robert Dwight married Mildred Corson every one said that they would be happy if Dwight did not go on the stage, for which he had a strong leaning. Mildred was very much in love with him, and it was feared that If he was separated from her, to be rounded by actresses, not only would she be jealous, but he might be tempted to leave her in the lurch.

They were married early in February, intending to go south to meet the summer coming north. A large number of friends saw them joined, pelted them with rice and old shoes, and they were driven to the dock from which they were to sail. On boarding the ship they found their stateroom a mass of flowers sent to them by their friends. In two or three days they found themselves in Jacksonville, Fla.

To Mildred Dwight, who had been a lonely little stenographer when Robert fell in love with and married her, this leisurely life of the well to do was a delightful experience.

Robert Dwight was far from poor, his business was a prosperous one. and there was no economizing during this wedding trip. And, best of all, there was waiting for them in New York a luxuriously furnished apartment which was to be home.

No wonder the Dwights were blissfully happy, and it is not surprising that on this winter morning Mildred looked from her hotel window into a summer land of tropical flowers and singing birds and decided that this was heaven indeed. Robert had gone out to buy some cigars at a queer little tobacco shop at the end of a crooked street, and when he returned they were going for a long drive under the palms.

Mildren glanced at the clock. Robert had been gone over an hour, and the motorcar was waiting below.

Another hour ticked away and thirty minutes more.

After the manner of brides, Mildred became alarmed over the long absence of her loved one, and, twisting a white chiffon veil over her little hat, she went out to look for him. She know the way to the tobacco shop, and she soon reached the crooked street.

Her heart sank when she saw that down its length were an unusual num-

Had anything happened to Robert? She moved through the crowd, not daring to ask for fear of the answer she might receive, and she had nearly reached the end of the street and the shop when something happened something that shattered her beautiful bubble of happiness and ended that most blissful of honeymoons.

Mildred saw Robert coming out of the tobacco shop. He paused in the light a cigarette. How handsome he looked in his well fitting white flannels, with a white hat set back on his dark hair! He tossed the match away and glanced up the street. His face brightened into radiance; his eyes glowed with excitement and

Mildred thought he saw her, but he was looking at another woman, a woman who was running down the opposite pavement. Nay, she was only a slight young girl, exquisitely lovely and evidently in deep distress.

As she ran toward Robert he advanced to meet her with outstretched hands. The cigarette he had tossed aside performed a blazing parabola and fell at Mildred's feet. But she did

Her anguished eyes saw nothing save the glad look in Robert's face and the joy of the girl as she flew into his waiting arms.

'You!" cried Robert.

Mildred saw no more. She fled back along the crooked street with a wildly beating heart and an insane desire to Did any woman ever have such an odd ending to a honeymoon?

An hour later she left the hotel with her trunks and handbag, and what excuse she made to the clerk I do not know, but there was no message for Robert Dwight when he came home at last to find her gone.

Six months later and it was summer time in New England. Mildred Dwight had resumed her maiden name of Mildred Corson and had obtained a responsible position in one of the large manufacturies of a Connecticut city.

As Miss Corson she acceptably filled her position and won her way into the hearts of her fellow clerks. Not one of them knew of the tragedy which had blighted her honeymoon, nor did one of them guess that Mildred had ever been a bride

She found a pleasant boarding place and congenial friends. In the city were several good theaters and an oc casional concert.

Still Mildred was very unhappy. She loved her husband, and, although the newspapers had told her that Robert was making a worldwide search for his vanished bride, she maintained silence toward those who had known her in the past.

There came a Saturday in August with its customary half holiday from work. Mildred had spent a quiet afternoon in her own room, and after the evening meal one of her new acquaintances, Cora Fields, came with an invitation to attend one of the open air moving picture theaters.

Mildred rather liked the silent drama, so, clad in dainty white gowns, the two girls entered the inclosure and found seats near the front.

Overhead the stars were shining, and outside the inclosure was the hum of city street traffic. The orchestra was unusually good, and Mildred found herself strangely stirred when the violins drifted into McDowell's beautiful "To a Wild Rose.

The orchestra had played the melody during their first meal in that Florida hotel, and it brought back painful memories of her brief spell of happi-

Then the title of the play was flashed on the screen. "Lost and Found."

With the first picture came a realizing sense of looking upon familiar scenes. Surely, surely this was the sunny south and the quaint streets those of Jacksonville.

And the girl! Mildred almost arose from her seat and cried out with surprise as she recognized the lovely face of the heroine as that of the woman who had flown to Robert's arms. So Robert's sweetheart was an actress!

One scene after another flashed before her vision, melting into a whole, which brought her, trembling and incredulous, to the moment when she found herself gazing down the crooked little street of the tobacco shop.

Then she saw her own slender figure and white veiled face looking toward the shop from which her husband, Robert, was emerging, lighting a cigarette. The entire scene was repeated, incident for incident. He tossed away the match, glanced up the street, became eager, alert, tenderly smiling, flung away his cigarette and advanced with outstretched arms to meet the heroine's graceful flying

Robert in the moving picture! Why, how had it happened?

All the way home she was asking herself the question, and through the darkness of her perplexity and doubt came one ray of light. During his college days Robert had been one of the college players and was considered a talented amateur actor.

"I am glad he married the girl," sighed Cora as they reached Mildred's

"Yes," said Mildred absently, "but he was married before that."

"Who was married before?" asked Cora, puzzled. "Why, Robert, of course."

"But there was no Robert. His name was Arthur." "I am stupid tonight," was Mildred's only explanation as she parted from her friend. The next day Mildred obtained leave of absence and in her straightforward way went directly to New York and called at her husband's office. She was trembling like a leaf when she was shown into Robert's private

He stared at her as one looks at the newly risen dead. His face was thin and worn and his brown hair sprinkled with gray.

"Robert!" she said meekly and then promptly fainted away. When she opened her eyes she was lying on the leather couch, and Robert was on his were tender and anxious.

"Can you ever forgive me?" was her

"Yes, dearest," he said generously. "But tell me what happened to send you away from me that day? I have searched land and sea for you, and I had given you up for dead when you appeared before me." In a few broken sentences Mildred told her husband of her surprise and jealousy that day in Jacksonville and how when she was assured of his perfidy she had taken a train for the north and disappeared. Then the motion picture play on the screen had thrown a ray of light on the matter.

Robert's explanation made that ray a brilliant light of understanding which cleared up the mystery which had parted bride and groom for almost

"You remember I told you I always acted in our college theatricals," he reminded her, "and many of my friends had urged me to enter the profession. But I did not seriously consider it and only now and then hankered to tread the stage

"But that morning in Jacksonville 1 started down to the tobacco shop with only one thought in my mind-to get back to you. As I turned into the street I met my old friend of college days, Jack Budlong, president of our Players' club. He was glad to see me and tearing his hair insanely over the fact that his star performer had come down with the measles that very morn-

"Budlong fell upon me like a long lost brother and pleaded with me to take the part of the measled one. So I did, and when I reached the hotel, full of my experiences and with Miss Gray and Budlong accompanying me to meet the only woman in the world. why, my wife had vanished without a word. So you believed that I was false

Mildred's punishment had been great indeed, and she humbly acknowledged her lack of faith. "But how was I to know?" she asked pitifully.

Robert smiled wisely. "In great love there is no faltering of faith." he gently reminded her as he drew her face to his shoulder. "As sweetheart, so I lost my wife and have too hot.

"With a greater love for you and unwavering faith," finished Mildred.

USING THE EGGPLANT

VARIETY OF WAYS IN WHICH IT MAY BE SERVED.

This Favorite Vegetable of Southern France Has Possibilities That Probably Are Not Sufficiently Appreciated Here.

The eggplant, well seasoned and carefully cooked, may give in many disguises many varieties to the menu. Many of the recipes given below are from southern France, where the eggplant is the favorite vegetable. When choosing an eggplant select one of medium size and firm, otherwise it may be too ripe and full of grains inside. However great the virtues of the eggplant may be, remember that by itself it is quite tasteless; so season and season well.

Eggplant Salad .- Put in the oven one eggplant, five green peppers and two tomatoes. You will bake the tomatoes first, then the peppers, and the eggplant last. Gradually skin, grain and drain off the above vegetables. Use a silver knife. Arrange in a dish. On a moderate fire in a half cupful of olive oil fry a small onion cut into small pieces and half a cupful of olives stoned and cut into pieces. When the onion is slightly brown add everything to the dish. Salt and pepper to taste and add two tablespoonfuls of good wine vinegar. To be eaten cold.

Broiled Eggplant.—Cut the eggplant in two lengthwise. Put in a marinate composed of two tablespoonfuls of olive oil, one teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of pepper and some parsley. Leave it to marinate for an hour or more. Broil and serve with the marinate.

For Fritters .- Soak the pieces two hours in milk; dry and fry, using the following recipe for fritter batter: One cupful of flour, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-fourth teaspoonful salt, one-fourth cupful of milk, two eggs, one tablespoonful lemon juice. Sift the dry ingredients; add the wellbeaten eggs, lemon juice and milk. Beat well. Prepare a few hours ahead.

Stuffed Eggplant.—Cut the eggplant lengthwise. Make incisions with a knife, salt and let stand for an hour Drain off the water; cut the pulp and fry it for a few minutes in oil. Pound well; add four tablespoonfuls of pounded ham, a teaspoonful of parsley, salt and pepper. Sprinkle with crumbs, to which may be added some parmesan. Put over it a little oil and bake in an oiled pan for an hour. Of course you may use butter instead of oil, but the olive oil blends itself better with the eggplant. If instead of ham you use hashed mutton, cooked rice and a bit of garlic and pimento you may call this dish "eggplant a la Turcque." Eggplant and Tomatoes.—Peel the eggplant; cut lengthwise in pieces onehalf inch thick. Salt, let stand and dry. Put in a pan; cover with a wellseasoned tomato sauce. Cover the pan and cook on a moderate fire for an Hasty Pudding.

This is a Scotch recipe for an economical breakfast dish, and quickly made, as its name indicates. gredients are oatmeal and suet; for the latter butter may be substituted if Graduate of Maryland Universty, Baltipreferred.

Put one pound of minced suet in saucepan, set on the stove and bring slowly to boiling point, then stir in eight handfuls of oatmeal (medium quality). Let this boil for one minute, stirring all the time, then pour in one teacupful of boiling water and continue stirring for another minute, when the pudding will have thickened and be ready. Add salt to taste.

It is quite as nice heated up again, either in saucepan or under the grill. It is usually eaten with oatcake in Home-Made Beef Tea.

Cut half-pound of lean beef into very small pieces; do not have a grain of fat on it; put into a bottle that has a large opening (an olive or horseradish bottle will be nice); put in half-cupful cold water and cork tight: set this in a basin of cold water and place on fire where it will come to a boiling point but not boil; keep at this temperature for two hours, then strain and season with salt.

Clam Water.

Wash thoroughly one quart clams in shells. Cover the bottom of a twoquart stewpan with cold water. Put in the clams, cover and heat gradually until the shells open. Strain the liquor obtained through a fine cloth. The stomach will often retain clam water, given by the half-teaspoonful when other foods fail.

Toasted Corn.

An improvement over boiled corn is toasted corn, which has a much more delicious flavor. After boiling the ears six minutes, so as to cook them partially, remove to a bread-toaster and place over hot coals, turning until they are browned evenly.

Drinks for the Sick. Apple water, barley water, clam water, rice water, toast water, lemonade, flaxseed lemonade (for throat and lung trouble).

Lesson XI.—First Quarter, For March 12, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Heb. xi, 32, to xii, 2-Memory Verses, xii, 1, 2-Golden Text, Heb. xii, 1, 2-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

This lesson on the heroes and martyrs of faith was probably suggested to the committee by the previous lesson on the death of Stephen. If a word or phrase gives the key to a chapter or portion this is certainly the "faith" chapter of the Bible, for the word is found twenty-four times in this chapter. But we must look at chapter x, 38, for the reason why of this chapter, "The just shall live by faith," a sentence quoted three times in the New Testament, the other two places being Rom. i, 17; Gal. iii, 11, and all three quotations of Hab. ii, 4. Before we can live by faith we must be justified by faith, made just or righteous (Rom. v, 1), and that takes us to the first "believe" in the Bible in connection with righteousness (Gen. xv, 6), "He believed in the Lord, and He counted it to him for righteousness." This also is quoted just three times in the New Testament (Rom. iv, 3; Gal. iii, 6; Jas. ii, 23), so these must be very important sayings. Our first great need is righteousness the kind that God requires and has provided fully in Christ and can be obtained only by faith (Rom. x, 3, 4). Then, being saved, we must glorify God by a righteous life, and this also is by faith, for as we have received Christ Jesus the Lord so must we walk in Him (Col. ii, 6). Faith and patience are the two essential things in the daily life of the believer, steadfastly be holding the Lord Jesus, implicitly believing His word and waiting patiently for His return (Heb. vi, 12, 15; x, 35-37; xii, 1-3). Faith is not what we feel or see, but is a simple trust in what the God of Love has said of Jesus as the Just. Unsaved people cannot possibly please God (Rom. viii, 8), and only by faith and obedience can saved people please Him. By believing Gen. i, 1, with Ps. xxxiii, 6, we know how the world was made.

Abel believed that the only way for a sinner to approach God was by sacrifice and shedding of blood as taught to his father in Gen. iii, 21. Cain did not believe God. and therefore his rejection by God. Enoch was fully agreed with God in everything and was willing to bear the scoffing of the ungodly (Amos iii, 3; Jude 14, 16). Noah believed in an approaching judgment and in obedience to God prepared for it. Abraham did not consider himself nor Sarah nor seeming impossibilities, but was fully persuaded that God was able and would do what He promised (Rom. iv, 19-21). The word of God concerning things to come sustained Isaac and Jacob and Joseph and the parents of Moses and Moses himself. The unseen heavenly city and the recompense of the reward were veritable realities to Abraham and to Moses, enabling the one to live as a stranger and a pilgrim here and the other to turn his back upon all the pleasures and treasures and prospect of preferment in Egypt. Daniel feared not the lions' den, nor his friends the fiery furnace, nor David the giant Goliath, because to each the living God was a glorious reality.

While many are mentioned by name in this list of people of God, we cannot but adore the grace which mentions Rahab among such as these and even associates her with Abraham in James ii, 23-25. We wonder as we read of Barak and not of Deborah, but we notice the words "and others" of verse 35 and pray for grace to be willing to be counted among the "others." though not mentioned by name. The mystery of the sufferings of the saints we may not understand, but we can trust the wisdom of a God of love and wait patiently for Him to make it plain. This is our faith and patience. These all "and others" died in faith. not having received the promises, but, having seen them afar off, were persuaded of them and embraced them (verses 30, 39). I believe that the be-Heving ones before the deluge saw more of resurrection and glory in the cherubim within the garden of Eden than many believers now see. (Write L. and K., box 216 Harrisburg, Pa., for booklet on the cherubim.) That they without us should not be made perfect seems to me to indicate that they, with us, are waiting for the manifestation of the Sons of God in our resurrection bodies (verse 40; Rom. wiii, 19-21).

In the opening verses of chapter xii we are told that even our blessed Lord Himself was sustained in His sufferings by the joy set before Him. He ever lived in the love of His Father and in the glory of the kingdom of which He was always speaking and for which He is still waiting, so Paul prays in II Thess. iii, 5, that our hearts may be directed into the love of God and the patience of Christ (margin). As we consider Him at the right hand of the throne of God and remember been permitted. His promise that when He comes to His own throne the overcomers shall be with Him there (Rev. iii, 21) such love and such glory should constrain us to lay aside all weights and beseting sins and live no longer unto ourselves, but unto Him alone, for "every one that hath this hope set on Him purifieth himself even as He is pure' (I John iii, 3, R. V.). Whatever there may be to endure in the conflict, a thought of Him who endured so much for us should keep us from being weary or faint.

ALBUMEN BY NEW METHOD

German Scientists, It Is Claimed, Have Discovered Process That Means Much to Future of Humanity.

German scientists have discovered a new method of producing albumen which is likely to have far-reaching results. Its immediate effect in Germany is to increase the consumption of sugar and to make it still more valuable. The story of the discovery is told in the Koelnische Zeitung of Cologne, which says:

"As is known, there are plenty of carbohydrates at hand in Germany, derived from potatoes, sugar and food So far, however, foodstuffs rich in albumen, such as barley, we have had to import. Now the Institute for Fermentation-Industrie, at Berlin, has succeeded in inventing a process by which feeding-yeast, with more than 50 per cent albumen, is produced from sulphate of ammonia and sugar.

"The new process is very simple and existing yeast factories can start immediately the manufacture of the new article without changing their installation.

"By the new process 100 pounds of sugar and 52 pounds of sulphate of ammonia yield 270 pounds of dry feeding-yeast, containing 50 per cent albumen. Being in the position to produce ammonia from the nitrogen of the air, we may say in the future albumen will be made artificially from the air."

Germany imports annually about 6,000,000 tons of feeding stuffs, principally barley for cattle. This amount of provender contains about 10 per cent, or 600,000 tons, of albumen. Accordingly, concludes the Scientific American, it would require about 440,000 tons of sugar to replace by the new process the forage which cannot be imported at present.

MAN IN THE STARCHED BOSOM

Writer Cleverly Points Out How Appearances May Be, as They Usually Are, Deceptive.

By a "man" one probably means a fallible mortal, a bluffer, a hypocrite, an insecure and inexperienced adventurer, a child born naked into the world every morning of his life. Reunited to one's institution, one's infallibility speedily returns, and it is convenient to have it. But it does disguise the limitations that a person knows within himself. At the beginning of a man's life, before he is taken up into an institution, he is aware of all this. But after he dons a uniform of authority the luxury of candor is denied. Conformity is perhaps needed for a smoothly-running world, and by striving to articulate the machinery an approximation to candor may be made. It may even be better to have the machinery in the end, better for truth, than to allow the impulsive will its But there are times when one would like everyone, especially the young, to know the immense deceptions of the whole elaborate contrivance. Under the starched bosom of the world there is a heart very different from the heart that the bosom advertises. We know it, but the man who speaks it is a traitor to the principalities of starch.—Exchange.

What a Library Is For.

Librarian Wheeler of the Reuben McMillan institution says too many persons look upon a library in the wrong light. "Think of it as a great many books scattered about the city, and don't consider it merely a building," he says. This is good advice, well expressed. But a small percentage of us appreciate the library or take advantage of its opportunities. A stranger in a city who has not access to clubs finds two places always open to him-the public library and the saloons. If he is the right kind of man he seeks out the former. He gets education and recreation there. To see the hundreds assembled in the reading rooms of a public library in one of the large cities of the West where there are many transients is an education in the use of the library. It can be made just as useful to a man at home. Don't look upon it as a mere place with four walls outside and furnishings inside. A person who would consider a theater only as a place where there is a stage and a collection of seats would be considered foolish. Yet that's the view often taken of the library that invites your company .-Youngstown Telegram.

Swords for British Soldiers.

Sword manufacturers are very busy, and in Sheffield, England, they use the old method of hand forging which produces a more satisfactory blade, though at a slower rate, than where machinery is employed. Now, however, says a Manchester newspaper, a Sheffield firm of engineers has completed an installation of plant for rolling cavalry swords, the first machinery of its kind in the city. Before the war government factories were equipped with this class of machinery, and the copying of the design for use by manufacturers of swords has now

NAME NATION UPON MOUNTAIN

Tiny Montenegro Has For Centuries Nested in the Shadow of Their Loved Lovcen.

The Black mountain has been taken and the central powers are knocking at the doors of the tiniest royal cap ital in the world. From Lovcen, the culminating peak of Montenegro proper, the realm of King Nicholas takes its name, and at its eastern base nestles Cetinje, a town of 3,000 souls and one broad street, but boasting a palace and a row of "legations"whitewashed cottages sandwiched between the offices of the ministers of state. Because its northern and eastern declivities are in shadow the greater part of the day, the ancient Slavs called Lovcen "the Black mountain" and the hill becoming in time also "the Sacred mountain," the whole country to the north and east known as the "Country of the Black Mountain," or Montenegro. On its pedestallike summit today stands a little chapel containing the body of Peter H, the last Vladika, or prince-bishop of Montenegro, who desired that he might be buried "so his spirit might survey his beloved land."-Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Earliest Coal Mining in Alabama.

The earliest known record of the existence of coal in Alabama was made in 1834, but the first statement of production in the state is contained in the United States census report for 1840, in which the amount mined is given as 946 tons. The mines of Alabama were probably worked to a considerable extent during the Civil war, but there are no specific records until 1870, for which the United States census reports a production of 11,000 tons. The development of the present great industry really began in 1881 and 1882, when attention was directed to the large iron deposits near the city of Birmingham. By 1885 the coal production of the state had increased to nearly 2,500,000 tons. In 1914, according to the United States Geological survey, the production was 15,593,422

Eel Caught in Chimney. While fishing in Kiamesna lake W.

J. Groom caught a big eel incased in a lamp chimney, from which it could not free itself.

Two years ago Mr. Groom had caught the eel in a net at night, and when taken on shore it knocked over a table lamp, ran through the chimney and escaped into the lake, the glass inclosing the head and several inches of the eel. Although the lake is wide, deep and stony, the glass was not even chipped. The chimney had worn a deep groove in the body of the eel, which measured nearly five feet .-Port Jervis (N. Y.) HARD THING IS TO "RETURN"

Many Will Understand the Trials of Congressman in Taking Up His Old Profession.

In the American Magazine is an interview with a member of the United States house of representatives, who tells of the almost impossible barriers between him and his old profession, the law.

"After I had been in congress a couple of terms I decided that I would be happier and that my family would be vastly better off if I were back home practicing my profession," he "So after the adjournment of congress I set out to rebuild my neglected law business. "I was astonished at what a job it was. My practice was not merely run down or temporarily absent. It was gone! Now, I had not yet become a topnatcher in my profession before going to congress. In order to make a comfortable income I had not been able to depend alone on the better grade of legal business, but was still obliged to do some of the more trivial work such as every young lawyer is glad to get. This class of business had gone from me in my absence, along with the rest. And it did not come back, because of a reason that I had not thought of. During my term in congress I had come to be looked upon as an important figure in the community and everybody regarded me as above such things as performing legal services of a trivial or minor character. Thus I did not get the small business and the big business was being taken care of by other lawyers who had been constantly on the job."

Triumph for American Industry.

The superiority of American clays for use in connection with the glass industry has been demonstrated by tests at the Pittsburgh laboratory of the bureau of standards. The bureau announces that American glass manufacturers will hereafter be independent of foreign material for this purpose. The glass refractories (pots in which the glass is melted) prepared of American clays have been found to give better results than those manufactured with the addition of German plastic clays, or of German clays alone.—Scientific American.

Not His Fault.

"Please, mister, will you give me a job shoveling the snow off your sidewalk so I can earn enough money to get a bite to eat?"

"You can see for yourself the snow When it comes to neat is all shoveled off. Why didn't you and effective printing come around yesterday?"
