PROHIBITION WRECKED Claims Against Grangers' Fire and

Acting under an order of the Circuit Court for Carroll County, Messrs. Francis Neal Parke and Charles O. Clemson, at-torneys, Westminster, Md., receivers of the Grangers' Mutual Fire and Storm In-surgues Company of Carroll County are surance Company of Carroll County, are making every effort to reach the policyholders of the Insurance Company to ad-vise them that, under the Court's order, it is necessary that their claims, with affidavit attached, be filed with the Clerk of the Circuit Court at Westminster, on or before April 3rd, 1916. This means those persons who had filed their claims with the officers of the Insurance Company before the receivers were appointed in July, 1915, must again file their claims with the Clerk of the Circuit Court at Westminster. Claimants can understand the necessity for this pro-cedure when they stop to think that it might be that, between the time they filed their claim with the Company, say in 1913 or 1914, and the present time some payment might have been made to them on account of their claim, about which the receivers have no information.

Many persons who had met with losses and had filed their claims with the Company, seem to be under the impression that it is not necessary for them to file claims now with the Clerk of the Court. This is a mistake, and the receivers are anxious to make it clear to the policy-holders, so that before April 3rd, next, they may file their claims in the proper manner. After April 3rd, when it is known what claims there are against the Company, the receivers will obtain an order of Court, authorizing them to make an assessment against the policy-holders and afterwards a distribution will be ganizer for Maryland and Virginia Grand Lodge Good Templars, will lecture in Sil-ver Run Hall, at 7.30 p. m., on Friday evening, March 17th. All are invited. Ladies and young people especially are in-vited. made to those persons whose claims for losses have been filed.

A mistaken impression exists with many of the policy-holders in thinking that they are not liable for the losses incurred and this may account for the reluctance to file their claims. This was a Mutual Company and the policy-holders are in the same position of a number of persons who had signed a note; they are each liable for their pro rata share of the liable for their pro rata share of the hable for their pro rata share of the losses, based upon the amount of their insurance. Up to this date, the only claims that have been filed with the re-ceivers are those of certain persons in Carroll and Frederick counties, but not one-third of the claims proper to be filed one-third of the claims proper to be filed according to the claims heretofore made of the Company, have been filed with the receivers. In Baltimore, Howard and Montgomery counties there are hundreds of policy-holders and many of them suffered losses, the Germans may be getting more gains than they are credited with. The loss of but none of these policy-holders have so far filed their claims with the receivers. All of these persons are liable to lose Millard F. Geasey, 58 years old, died Sunday at Walkersville. Quite unexpectedly, the prohibition bill, as amended, was put through the House, Thursday afternoon, on a vote of 92 to 4 and at once sent to the Senate. That Baltimore should have a separate vote on the question, seems more fair than it really is, for the reason that it is their right to recover for their losses and not at all sure that an honest vote and count will be had in the city, on the question. That, of course, remains to be demonstrated, later on, but there is a very strong suspicion that Baltimore will be able to "take care" of the bill when it

Mr. Sunday is quoted as expressing chagrin and disappointment in the size of the collections on Thursday in Baltimore. The total, $3259, he is said to have declared, was only 9.30 more than the amount on the same day in Trenton, and, he added, since Baltimore is six times as large, Baltimore should have given six times as much. It is a little unfortunate that immediately after Mr. Sunday's glowing tribute to the generous hospitality of Baltimore he should feel compelled to deliver a reprimand show-ing how accurately he "keeps tab" on every dollar put into the collection pans. Would it not be well for the evangelist to devote his attention to the spiritual aspects of his efforts for sinsick souls, leaving to professional money changers the execution of his desire to increase the amount of the voluntary thank-offerings? -Phlia. While removing steel rails from a pile that stood untouched for many moous, near Hanock Station, members of the B. & O. Section gang, last Thursday, discovered what has no doubt been the hiding place of hundreds of gallons of booze, placed there by West Virginians, who seem determined to outwit Commis-sioner Blue and his stringent "dry laws." On this particular occasion four beautiful and costly suitcases were hauled. out from underneath the pile to the astonishment of the bystanders, whose curiosity as to what they might contain was soon satisfied by a hurried investigation, which disclosed no less than one hundred and eighty-one pints of whiskey, all labeled, but nothing to indicate from where it was purchased. A phone message to Sheriff Ruppenthal brought the officer on the scene, who confiscated the liquor and is anxiously awaiting the arrival of the owners of the suitcases which he still holds in his possession.

A Boost for the Keymar Road.

(For the RECORD.) Business is improving, and it is time for every man in Taneytown, and all along the road from Taneytown to Keymar, to wake up and get together, and lay plans for making a stone road to Keymar, second to none in the state. It can be done. I am sure the county will do its share to build the road. The stone can be had, free, for 21 miles, and I am sure the money for the balance can be raised

The President Sustained.

By the majority of 134 votes the House of Representatives on Tuesday rejected the effort to interfere with President Wilson's insistence that American citizens must be protected in traversing the seas on merchant vessels, belligerent or neutral armed or unarmed. The Representatives emphasized the action of the Senate last week in sustaining the President on this important issue. The President is now free to resume negotiations with Germany and Austria on the whole submarine question, with the full knowledge that the representatives of the American people approve his stand.

Party lines on the vote were broken. The vote by parties was as follows: For the President, Democrats 182, Republicans 93, Progressive 1; total 276. Against the President, Democrats 33, Republicans 102, Progressives and Independents total 142.

The vote, however, was largely a patriotic one, as many who voted with the President did it as the lesser evil, and left it be clearly understood that they did not approve his methods of handling various questions relative to the diplo matic service of the country during the past two pears.

...... Alcohol and Pneumonia.

The United States Public Health Service brands strong drink as the most efficient ally of pneumonia. It declares that alcohol is the handmaiden of the disease which produces ten per-cent. of the deaths which produces ten per-cent. of the deaths in the United States. This is no exag-geration. We have known for a long time that indulgence in alcoholic liquors lowers the individual vitality, and that the man who drinks is peculiarly sus-ceptible to pneumonia. The United States Public Health Service is a conservative header. It does not engage in alarmist body. It does not engage in alarmist propaganda. In following out the line of its official duties it has brought forcefully to the general public a fact which will bear endless repetition. The liberal and continuous user of alcoholic drinks will do well to heed this warning, particular-ly at this season of the year when the gruesome death toll from pneumonia is being doubled.

Two things among my notes from Dr. Sunday worthy of more than a passing notice: "Go home, write down your secret sins on paper, and see if it helps you to confess them." "The Holy Spirit will flee from dissension." The cam-paign is the best organized and collossal money scheme of the twentieth century. Dr. Sunday is the charming athlete.

The music casts a spell over all; two baby-grand pianos, with syncopated time, and the trained voices. The sol-emnity is that which you carry with you in your heart. The continued applause at the front, prevents those in the rear from catching the climax of Dr. Sunday's witticisms. The cottage prayer-meetings are the nucleus on which the fruit of the spirit will grow. Dr. Sunday's continual exe-cration of "go to hell" when one is sup-posed to differ with him, is profaning the temple of God—his body. The indul-gence of unrestraint in the imagery of his brain to the point of physical exhaustion, is abusing the finest work of God-his brain. The following is the best I have ever seen from his originality. 'Twenty-two years ago, with the Holy Spirit as my guide, I entered the wonderful temple of Christianity. I entered at the portico of Genesis, walked down through the Old Testament art galleries where pictures of Noah, Abraham, Moses, Joseph, Issaac, Jacob and Daniel hung on the wall. I passed into the music room of Psalms, where the Spirit swept the keyboard of nature until it seemed that every reed and pipe in God's great organ responded to the tuneful harp of David, the sweet singer of Israel. I entered the chamber of Ecclesiastes, where the voice of the preacher was heard; and into the conservatory of Sharon, and the Lily of Valley's sweet scented spices filled and perfumed my life. I entered the business office of Proverbs and then into the observatory room of the prophets, when I saw telescopes of various sizes, pointed to far off events, but all concentrated upon the Bright and Morning Star. I entered the audience room of the King of Kings, and caught a vision of His glory from the standpoint of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John, passed into the Acts of the Apostles, where the Holy Spirit was do-ing his work in the formation of the infant church. Then into the correspond-ence room, where sat Paul, Peter, and James, and John penning their epistles. I stepped into the throne room of Revela-

The colossal 42-centimetre 161-ineh) howitzer, used by the Germans in the ef-fort to batter down the defenses of Verdun, is one of the most formidable machines demolition ever devised. The gun weighs nearly 100 tons. From a barrel more than 16 feet long it throws a shell weighing nearly half a ton a distance of 14 miles and more. It requires the serv-ices of 200 men to handle the weapon, and it is discharged from a distance of 900 feet

The members of the gun crew wear protectors, and throw themselves flat to avoid injury from a shock which breaks all windows within a radius of two and a half miles. The foundations, 26 feet in depth are mined throughout, so that the engineer in charge, when there is risk of capture may fulfil his solenin oath and blow up the monster.

That a creature of men's hands should have such diabolic power for the destruction of human life is a mournful com-mentary on the misapplication of modern science to the ends of warfare. When the average fort can endure but one shot, and a town is a rubbish heap after the gun is fired twice, what hope has mere flesh and blood against such cannonading ? Yet the spirit of France, against which this German gun is directed, is undaunted, and no terror can drive her soldiers from their posts until they die. -Phila. Ledger.

County Tax Legislation.

At this writing, before action has been taken on either of the special tax bills or Carroll county, it is possible that the bill taxing mortgages might be defeated, and the one taxing judgments and bank certificates passed, as these propositions, for some reason, were offered in separate bills, and on separate plans of furnishing a basis of taxation.

On the basis of a $1000 investment at 6 percent, a mortgage would produce $4.80 tax, while a judgment of the same face would produce only $4.00. The former levies a tax of 8 percent on the income, while the latter is assessed at 50 percent of its face, and on that would cents

We do not see why one bill was not prepared to cover the three classes of investments, and place all on the same basis, preferably the basis accorded to judgments. As the facts are, the probability is that both bills will meet defeat, as it would hardly be fair to tax judgments and certificates, and let mortgages go clear-as now seems likely to be the result by an adequate and capable reserve it should give to the nation that sense of security and to the Government that material backing that are requisite for the maintenance of the national honor and the upholding of its diplomacy.

It should be perfectly understood that without a practical system for building up a reserve of trained men the army provisions in the bills now pending in Congress would be wholly inadequate to meet the immediate needs of the nation. The provisions for a reserve represent the unknown quantity in the equation. Secretary Garrison pinned his faith in the creation of a force of volunteers subject directly to national control at all times and under all circumstances, but it appears to be the intention of both Senate and House Committees to attempt that which the majority of the military experts pronounce to be impossible; namely, the "federalization" of the militia.

The Senate bill has this defect, but as if in recognition of the doubtful characofficials elected and sworn to enforce the ter of the experiment, it contains also a provision for a regular army reserve, the liquor laws relative to their prohibiting creation of an officers' reserve, and offers effect should be transferred to those re- liberal encouragement to yolunteer training camps of the Plattsburg type and to those advocated so ably by the Military Training Camps Association. keeping the world at peace, sounds good, but who would keep the police force straight? It would be made up, necessarily, of mere human beings, with their preferences and prejudices, and could not escape partiality. There would be just as much politics played to control this power, as any other great political machine, and there would be just the same contention and dissatisfaction with its control as there is now with, for instance, the control of the U. S. Government.

The Kaiser would want the international police power to favor Germany; England, France, Russia, the United States and other countries, would want it to favor their cases. It would be necessary to have a supreme, governing power; and although this power might be made up of the representatives of all nations, when a sufficiently strong incentive would arise, this power would be ignored, and war follow.

There could be no stronger agreement framed than some of our international treaties; yet, we have had the experience of finding these treaties ignored, as mere bits of paper, and their provisions trampled upon. Any power, or agreement, devised by man or governments, can be broken by man or governments. There is no escaping this.

If it were possible to have some supreme power, not under man control; or some great court from which there could be no appeal; or some great armed force placed into operation by sublime justice that could not be diverted, a police agreement between nations would be a fine thing. But such a scheme is purely visionary, although a good many, arguing from the standpoint of idealism, prefer to think differently. The day has long since passed when it was regarded simply as in line with its professional interest for a newspaper to urge the value of advertising. The best advertising for the use of newspaper space in promoting business has always come from those outside of the profession, who speak from experience with gains made by advertising in the newspapers. President Matthias Ludlow, of the Pennsylvania and Atlantic Seaboard Hardware Men's Association, says:

"Advertise ! The local field is yours. All you need to do is to avail yourself of the opportunity offered. All advertisements in your local papers will carry your message into thousands of homes. Let the people of the community know what you have for sale in your store. This can be done only by advertising. You do not count for much unless people know about you. Advertise !

This is true from the beginning of history. Before the newspapers there was "crying of wares," as is still resorted to by hucksters. Then, with the invention of printing, came the cards and pamphlets, and finally the realization that the newspaper is the best medium.

This is referred to as "an advertising age" only because the art and means of advertising have been brought to such high standards. Every age of humanity has been an advertising age to the extent of its means, showing the practice to be on a natural principle. No person has or can count for much in any line depending upon the patronage of the public without letting the public know about his wares."-Frederick Post.

Congress and the Army.

Everybody who has the slightest familiarity with the processes of national legislation must be aware that in such an intricate question as the increase of the army there must be conference and compromise between the two branches of Congress. The Senate and the House approach the work of framing an army bill from different standpoints and with differing traditions and methods, but it is rather encouraging to find that as their work progresses the leaven of a sane preparedness has penetrated deeper and deeper into the minds of Senators and Representatives. This is reflected in the outline of the bill that has been prepared by the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, a measure which not only goes farther than the corresponding bill being drafted at the other end of the Capitol, but even goes beyond the recommendations in the President's message.

In providing for a larger permanent military establisment, and especially for the material strengthening of the coast and field artillery arms, the Senate Committee shows that the lessons of the great far as they can the members are determined that the nation shall be provided with an efficient and well-equipped mcbile defensive army, to hold in check an United States are the only ones in the invading force until the volunteer and vineyards of Western France which this reserve contingents can be assembled and | year have escaped the worst mildew in into service.

Mr. McLennan. For, while he transgressed his legal rights, he upheld his moral and ethical rights and the traditions of the profession, as every reporter and other gentleman should.

But that the stand taken by the editor of the Denver Times is recognized by the authorities to be a correct one is evidenced by the comment of Governor Carlson, of Colorado, when he commuted the sentence to a fine of $1 and costs. He said: "It is true that it has long been a custom among newspaper editors upon request not to reveal the names of those who come with important information for the public good. This, while affording no legal excuse, is an element to be considered when executive clemency is petitioned for.'

The Governor might have added that Mr. McLennan performed a valuable service to the community and that instead of having been fined he should have been thanked. But this may be one of the cases where virtue is its own reward. -The American Press.

PREPAREDNESS IN FARM PRACTICE MOST NECESSARY

New Bulletin Offers Timely Suggestions In Farm Management.

During the month of March continue plowing. Harrow and reharrow until a perfect seed bed is secured. An ounce of preparation is worth a pound of cultivation. Apply lime to the corn land as the seed bed is prepared. Where grass lands have not had a sufficient amount of stable manure applied previously there should now be an application of commercial fertilizers. As the grass becomes green is the proper time to make the application.

Go over your drainage systems and see that they are working properly. Often earth from the sides is thrown into the bottom of open ditches by the freezing and thawing of winter. This may so choke up the ditch as to interfere with the outflow of water or the earth slide may cause the flow to cut into and undermine the opposite bank. Where there is under-drainage, see that the outlets are open. Examine the fields of winter wheat, rye and other winter grains and see if the crop has been killed, injured in spots by "heaving" or "spewing" or has been drowned out by water standing on the surface during the winter. If any such spots are found plan to give them better drainage.

Mend Your Fences.

The time will soon come for turning stock on pasture. Trouble may be saved if the fences are gone over at this time and loose wires tightened up and defective posts or rails replaced.

Continue hauling manure on the fields intended for corn. Fresh manure spread on the top of plowed land and worked in with the harrow will give better results than if spread before plowing at this season unless the manure be very coarse.

The too common practice of burning over old fields at this season preparatory to plowing is strongly to be reprobated. It is much better practice to go over such fields with the disk harrow once or twice to chop up the dry vegetable matter and mix it with the soil and then plow, rather than to burn the vegetable matter, which is the life of the soil .- From Maryland Agricultural College Bulle tin, "Elementary Vocational Agriculture for Maryland Schools."

DISCING LAND BEFORE PLOWING DESIRABLE.

NICKOLAS SCHMITZ,

Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Discing a sod before plowing makes the plowing easier and greatly facilitates the preparation of a good seedbed. It is as important to have the bottom of the seedbed finely pulverized as it is to have the surface well worked.

before plowing. It may seem that this is an extra operation, but land that is well disced before plowing will not need as much working after plowing in order to get it in first class condition, and there is no question of the bottom of the seedbed being as well worked as the surface.

It is also a good plan to disc rye or rye and clover before plowing under. This aids the complete turning under and at the same time helps to mix it with the soil, which is necessary in order to get the most rapid decomposition. It also insures against the difficulty of preventing the clover from being turned under in a mat, in which case it simply acts as a blanket in preventing the upward movement of moisture.

CANADA FIELD PEAS SHOULD BE SOWN EARLY.

Canada field peas are especially well adapted to the climate of Canada and the northern tier of states where there is sufficient moisture. In Maryland they will succeed much better in the northern and mountainous sections of the State than elsewhere.

Like the garden pea, they will not make much growth after hot, muggy weather sets in, along about harvest time or a little before, and for that reason should not be considered in the light of a grain crop with a mixture of oats as they are in the northern states and Canada.

Where oats is sown in the spring for soiling or for hay the feeding value may be greatly increased by mixing Canada field peas with the oats. The quantity of seed per acre varies from 1½ bushels of oats and 1½ bushels of peas to 2 bushels of each. It is very important that the crop should be sown in early spring, for the earlier the crop is planted the greater will be the likelihood of the maximum returns, as both oats and peas suffer in the hot days of late spring and early summer. Although some growers recommend that the peas be planted much deeper than the oats and a few days before planting the oats, there is, however, no good reason for this practice, as experiments have shown that even distribution and as large yields can be secured when the oats and peas are mixed together with the grain drill and seeded together.

Where land has never grown garden or field peas it is usually advisable to inoculate, otherwise the growth will not be sufficient to pay for the seed and the extra labor.

Proceedings of the Legislature.

The sale of intoxicating liquors at the Frederick county fair or any other agri-cultural exhibit in Frederick county, will be eliminated if the bill which Delegate Edward S. Delaplaine has introduced at the Maryland Assembly becomes a law. The measure provides that it shall be un-lawful to sell intoxicating liquors within one-half mile of any agricultural fair or live stock exhibit in Frederick county. This measure was introduced by Mr. Delaplaine at the request of the Freder-ick County Ministerial Association and ick County Ministerial Association, and would affect the Fair of this year.

Frederick county has asked, in a bill, to be exempt from the provisions of the State Forestry law. Why not add Carroll county—at least, the incorporated towns? Senator Warfield introduced a bill amending the act relative to the publica-tion of laws. We have no knowledge of it beyond the title, but we trust that it represents a step toward eliminating the represents a step toward eliminating the excessive charges for such publication.

Senator Ogden has introduced bills re-lieving Baltimore city from paying any of the cost of salaries of the Public Ser-vice Commission, or the State Industrial Accident Commission.

The bills taxing mortgages, judgments and Bank certificates, in Carroll county, on recommendation of the Ways and Means Committee, were referred to the Carroli county delegation. We under-stand that they will be reported favorably to the Senate, with the recommendation that taxation of Bank certificates be omitted.

In the Senate, the "gallon a month" liquor shipment law was repealed for Talbot county, as it was shown that thousands of gallons of liquor came into the county under it.

Senator Bennett offered a bill under which no "declined" or "independent" voter will be permitted to vote in any primary election unless previously he shall have appeared before the proper board of registry and affiliated with the party in whose primary he desires to vote. Senator Ogden introduced a bill making it a misdemeaner for any adult person of sufficient financial ability to neglect or refuse to support his or her destitute parent or parents. The penalty attached to the bill is a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment in the House of Correction for not more than one year or both. The court may direct the payment of the fine in whole or in part to the parent or parents of the guilty person or it may, in-stead of imposing the penalty, direct the payment by the defendant of a certain sum weekly for the space of two years to his or her parent or parents. In the House Mr. Wooden introduced a bill, by request, authorizing the State Road Commission to build a road in Carroll and Frederick counties, presumably the road from Taneytown to Emmitsburg

Mr. Leatherwood introduced a bill authorizing Manchester, Carroll county, to levy a tax of not exceeding 30 cents on the $100, for town improvements. Mr. Wooden's bill providing for the payment for cattle slaughtered because of the hoof and mouth disease, passed in the House

Mr. Wooden presented a bill, as an amendment to the Local Option Law of Carroll county, to repeal and re-enact section 13, 14 and 20 of the present law, which we understand to be an effort to further perfect the law. That feature of the original measure preventing a private citizen from giving away liquor in his private home, which was found to be unconstitutional in that it interfered with the sanctity of the home, is eliminated. It is provided, however, that persons to whom liquor is given must be more than 21 years oid, not habitual drunk-ards or persons of intemperate habits. Another amendment prevents the taking or soliciting of orders, either in person⁴ or by letter or printed circulars through the mails or otherwise, within the limits of the County.

An 8-foot Spread From a 45-inch Box

IN the Low Corn King catalogue it takes pages to tell about the good construction that backs up the "8-foot-wide spread from a narrow 45-inch box." Here the space is limited.

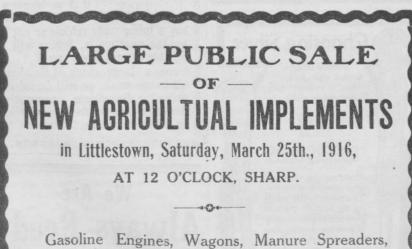

See the spreader and study these things: The simple worm and worm gear which drive the apron can be reversed, doubling the wear qualities. The gear is entirely enclosed, away from dust and dirt. The relation of beater and apron is just right to do the best work on the manure with the least power. Low Corn King is a steel spreader - frame, beater axles, wheels, driving parts - all of light, strong, compact steel. You return the apron by a convenient foot lever - no hand cranking, no getting down from seat.

These things-remember-back up the even, satisfactory 8-foot-or-better wide spread. Get acquainted with the Low Corn King spreader. See the local dealer who sells it.

SUNDAY SAYINGS

When it comes to the divorce question. I am a Roman Catholic from the top of my head to the soles of my feet.

The fellow who has been divorced may go to the cheesey-looking church around the corner, where the minister is anxious for a ten-spot, but when he comes to your Uncle Fuller, I say: 'Get out, you lobster!"

There are some people who are so sensible that when a hungry tramp panhandles them for a flapjack they will offer him a tract on The Bread of Life.

Other people are so stingy that they talk through their noses to save their false teeth.

Some people don't care whether Baltimore goes to hell or not so long as they can walk the streets and sing "Jesus Paid It All."

God does not care whether you hoof ed it up here or came in a limousine. If you should decree that there should be no church within 25 miles of Baltimore, the real estate men of this city would not be worth 25 cents on a dollar.

If I was some men's wives I would refuse to clean their spittoons. Let every hog clean his own trough.

Let me tell you, sister, when I see you smoking a cigarette I don't want to know anything more about you. I've got your number.

You admire anybody who preaches the Word of God, though he shoots your old carcass full of holes.

I haven't any quarrel against the bed bug, but I don't like the way he makes his living.

People are afraid to launch out into the ocean of God. They stand on the borderland shivering, with religious goose pimples all over them.

Some fellows wouldn't be called men if they didn't wear whiskers and breeches.

The Girl Who Drove the Cows to Pasture A Story For St. Valentine's Day By SARAH BAXTER

"Grandpa, won't you tell us a valenline story?" said a miss of fourteen. "You told us a story for Christmas, and I think you might do the same how that St. Valentine's day has come bround.'

The old gentleman cleared his throat, he children gathered about him, and be acceded to their request.

"St. Valentine's day has changed from what it was when I was a youngster. It is now a day for little chilfiren to send and receive valentines.

"I see no reason why the sending of valentines when they are in good taste should not be observed today among hose of the mating age. The only bjection is the abuse of the custom, but I admit that it is a serious objection. There are special cases where valentine may bring two persons together in a happy marriage. For instance, suppose a young man admires a girl he does not know and has no means of knowing.

"Never mind all that, grandpa. We want the story."

"I would not consider 'all that' essential had it not been for the change that has come over the custom of sending valentines, warping it from its original purity. However, I have no more to say by way of preface and will begin:

"There was once upon a time a young fellow-we'll call him Jimwho lived in the country. He had never had anything to do with girls and knew nothing about them. He was red headed and freckled, and when he looked in the glass it seemed to him he was so homely that he would have to live all his life without a wife or children to love him, for no girl would have him. So he said to himself, 'I'll always keep away from girls, because I might fall in love with one of them, and in that case I might die of a broken heart.' It seemed hardly necessary to make such a resolution, for Jim was never thrown in with girls, and if he had been he was too bashful to become at all companionable with any of them.

"What was Jim's surprise one day to receive a valentine. It came in an envelope-the same as you children use now-covered with Cupids and arrows piercing hearts and was addressed to him in a girl's handwriting. He stared at the outside, for a time not realizing that it was for him and wondering if there was not some mistake about it. Since he did not know a girl how could a girl send him a valentine? But there was his name written out in full, with his usual address at the village, a mile away from the farm. Still doubting, he opened the envelope and took out the prettiest valentine you ever saw. In its center was a colored picture of a young man and a girl sitting in a bower, and the very sight of it made Jim's finger tips tingle. In each of the four corners was a Cupid with a bow and arrow, and every arrow was aimed at the couple in the bower. Jim has seen many a valentine since, but they have no such effect as this first and only valentine he ever received when he was young and was conscious that with all his red hair and freckles and ungainly farm walk there was a girl in the world who thought enough of him to send him a valentine. Today valentines are to him nothing more than cheap stamped pieces of paper with colored pictures."

would probably show indifference the hext.

"There was a girl who lived half a mile up the road from Jim who drove her father's cows to pasture every morning and back to the barn every evening. One evening Jim was up that way and passed her on the road while the was driving the cows. She was about fifteen years old, straight as an prrow and wore her dress to the tops If her boots. Her hair and eyes were black. There was something about the way she carried herself that took Jim's fancy, and he hoped that when she tame near him she would take enough Interest in him at least to look at him. What was his disappointment to see her while he was passing her look up at the sky. 'Well,' said Jim to himself, 'she can't be the girl who sent me the valentine, sure. She didn't take enough interest in me to see what kind of a feller I am.'

"But somehow Jim after that frequently found it convenient to be up that way in the morning, sometimes in the evening, but always about the hour that the girl was driving the cows to or from pasture. Every time he passed her she looked up at the sky. Gradually Jim from meeting her so often came to cease to be afraid of her, and one morning while passing he said:

"''Mornin', Miss Look-in-the-Air.' "The girl turned her big black eyes full upon him and made a face at him. After that for awhile when Jim passed her he looked up at the sky himself. but one day, suddenly dropping his eye, he caught the girl looking straight at him. She at once switched her eyes sidewise.

"This was the first time in his life Jim got on to the fact that you can't always tell how a girl feels by what she does. From that time forward he became brave when he saw a girl coming and ceased to feel a desire to climb a fence to get out of the way. He took pains to meet the girl who drove the cows, and one evening when one of the animals broke away and galloped up a side road Jim ran after her and brought her back. This kindly act seemed to placate the girl. and she unbent so far as to thank him. The ice was broken, and an ac quaintance was formed.

"Jim hadn't forgotten his valentine. but the imaginary girl with golden hair and blue eyes gradually faded away, her place being taken by the brunette who drove the cows to pasture. He was seized with a desire to do something for her. When idle he dreamed day dreams of finding her chased by a furious bull and his receiving the animal's charge with a pitchfork. Another scene attractive to him was the girl swirling around in the river while he was swimming for her and finally carrying her to shore. "Well, Jim gradually forgot his red hair and his freckles and his other deficiencies and sidled up to his new found friend. A year passed, and when another St. Valentine's day came around he wondered if the girl who had sent him a valentine before would send him another, but he didn't care much whether she did or not, for by this time he was engrossed with a girl he knew, and she was much preferable

OFFERED HEADS TO SULTAN TO TAKE THE PLACE OF SOUP

Unusual Infraction of Mohammedan Etiquette Explained to Satisfaction of Russian Ambassador.

The importance of Adrianople for the Turks has largely been a strategic one-mingled with the sentiment they feel for it as the first city of any size they captured in Europe, and the seat of one of the most famous of their mosques. The author of "The Revolt of a City" was probably an Oriental forerunner of our own western town boosters. Still, the fact remains that even after the fall of Constantinople the place continued to be a favorite resort of the sultans. Adrianople had something besides war to talk about in 1567, for instance, when the ambassadors of Austria, France, Persia, Poland and Ragusa came to present the respects of their governments to the newly succeeded son of Suleiman the Magnificent. The Persian was the last to arrive. When he made his state entrance into the city he was met by the Turkish authorities and by the other ambassadors and their suites. He was astounded by the fact that these last took off their hats as he passed, it being a serious breach of etiquette for a Mohammedan to uncover his head in public, and he demanded an explanation of the extraordinary gesture. The master of ceremonies, a famous poet and wit of his time called Shemsi Pasha, told him that the Christian ambassadors thereby signified their willingness to leave their heads at the feet of Sultan Selim II.-H. G. Dwight, in Harper's Magazine.

HIS AUDIENCE WELL IN HAND

Member of British Parliament, With "Gift of Gab," All His Own, Reigned Supreme.

When Mr. Gibson Bowles was in the British house of commons he was never pedantic or dull, despite the fact that he was reputed to breakfast off Blue-books. If anyone started a point in connection with naval matters, there was "Cap'n Bowles" ready to make him look foolish. Mr. Mundella once tried his hand and got more than he expected. "Suppose," thundered Mr. Bowles across the house at the astonished Mr. Mundella, "the right honorable gentleman were at sea in heavy weather close hauled"-then followed a complicated problem of naval tactics. What Mr. Mundella would have done under the circum stances remained a mystery. What he did under Mr. Bowles' interrogations was to sit silent and look gloomy. Sir William Harcourt once solemn. ly complained that Mr. Bowles had called him a political Mr. Stiggins. "The right honorable gentleman will pardon me," replied Mr. Bowles. "He is not correct. I called him an inflated Mr. Stiggins!"-Manchester Guardian.

Pictures for Passports. "Quick deliveries made for passport purposes" is the sign which is likely to appear in every photographer's window, a New York correspondent of the Pittsburgh Dispatch writes. Several large firms in this city report that during the last year they nice sums of money from this special department. If you contemplate traveling abroad it is well to know that before you can get a passport you must provide three unmounted photographs of yourself on thin paper, with light backgrounds. These have to be affixed to the passport and the duplicates. New York's first passport office is located near Trinity church. The office is almost large enough to accommodate half a dozen persons at one time. The waiting line sometimes extends down the corridor to the ele-

Some Appetizers Which Will Prove Acceptable If It Should Be Only for a Change. Nowadays in many households an appetizer or an entree is served for dinner instead of soup. A fruit appetizer is often tempting. Grapefruit in any form, in its own shell, garnished with a maraschino cherry, or cut in dice, and served in cups or mixed with a little orange or pineapple, is always good. Diced pineapple, with sugar and a little lemon juice sprinkled over it, is also good.

Then there are the various sorts of canapes-tiny strips of toast spread with some fruit titbit. Any of the fish pastes can be used and garnished with sliced hard-boiled egg or sliced olives. Hashed leftover meat can be moistened with a little mayonnaise and spread on a strip of hot buttered toast, or meat minced and heated in a little cream or stock. Use olives or hard-boiled eggs or a little minced parsley for garnish. Various vegetables can be used for canapes. A slice of ripe tomato, topped by a spoonful of mayonnaise and placed on a round of buttered toast of the same size, is delicious. A long strip of toast an inch wide can have thin slices of cucumber lapped one over the other its entire length, each dotted with a bit of mayonnaise. Or a few diced beets moistened with melted butter, very hot, can be piled in neat little mounds on rounds of buttered toast and garnished with minced hardboiled egg.

How It Looked to Him. "Ah, do tell me something about the play last night. They say that climax at the close of the third act was simply grand," she said.

"Yes, I am inclined to think it was very good." he replied without any marked degree of enthusiasm.

"Can't you describe it to me?" she continued, beaming radiantly.

"Why." explained he, "the heroine came stealthily on the stage and knelt, dagger in hand, behind a clump of blue ribbons. The hero emerged from a large bunch of lilacs, and as soon as she perceived him she fell upon, stab bed him twice and sank, half con scious, into a very handsome aigret This may sound a trifle queer, but the lady in front of me came in late for the performance and became so intensely interested that she forgot to remove her hat, and that's how it looked to me." - Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

Folk Songs of Servia.

The folk songs of Servia are less known outside the borders of that country than the songs of any other nation, but some day a great musician C. &. P. Telephone. is expected to arise and make the Servian music known throughout the world, just as the composers of Austria, Vienna and Russia have made their folk songs known.

It is in these folk songs that the Servians express chiefly their devotion to their country and their intense patriotism. There are, of course, love sougs, death songs and harvest songs. but it is in these wild patriotic outbursts that the Servian spirit is best shown.

For the Servian is intensely patriotic. As a nation it is home loving. The

"How do you know how he feels about the valentines, grandpa?" asked a little girl.

"How do I know it? Because- If you care to hear the end of the story you mustn't interrupt me.'

The old gentleman chuckled and proceeded with his narrative:

'Jim, who had made a resolution that he would have nothing to do with any girl for fear he might fall in love and die of a broken heart, found himself all of a sudden dwelling continually on a girl he had never seen. He formed a great many mental pictures of her, which gradually settled down to one that remained always the samea girl with golden hair, blue eyes, rosy cheeks, a dimple in each, and a sweet smile. If he was following the plow this girl walked beside him. If he was milking she was milking another cow near him. When he ate his meals she sat opposite him at table. Indeed, wherever he was, whatever he was doing, she was with him.

"One thing Jim couldn't understand. If there was a girl in the world who fancied him, with all his red hair and freckles, why didn't she put something on the valentine to give him a clew to whom she was? Not knowing anything about girls, he was ignorant of the fact that a girl's great delight is to bother any young fellow she happens to fancy, and the more she fancies him the more she likes to tease him.

"Of course there were girls in that part of the country, though Jim didn't know any of them, else how could he have received a valentine? After its receipt every girl he met he looked at to see if she showed any preference for him. He was too unused to them to understand their tricks and their manners and did not know that the girl who fancied him would be sure to by to make him think she didn't or if she showed a preference one day the courage Jim had gained he hadn't enough to say to his cow driver what he wished to say-that 'his heart was just bustin' for her.'

to one he didn't know. But with all

"Happily St. Valentine's day let him out of that, at least he took it for granted it would, and he sent his real flame a valentine. Unfortunately Jim hadn't one handy and was too busy to go to the village to buy one, so he sent her the one he had received the year before "The next day he met his flame on the road, and to his chagrin she looked straight ahead without taking the slightest notice of him. Jim supposed that she had in some way learned that he had sent her a valentine, and this was her answer. He took his medicine bravely at first, but his courage didn't last. When he was not at work he used to go into the barn and up in the hayloft and sit down and mope. It seemed to him that the bottom had dropped out of the universe. He didn't go up the road where he had been used to meeting the girl. Instead of wishing an explanation he was afraid to receive one. If her cutting him dead was so terrible to bear what would he suffer if she told him in plain words that he had offended her by offering her his love? And yet why should she know that the valentine he had sent her was from him?

"However, he suffered so that at last he mustered up courage to face the music and find out what he didn't understand. So he walked up the road in the evening at the exact time she was driving in the cows. He met her and said:

"'I'm sorry you didn't like my sendin' you a valentine."

"'It wasn't your sending me a valentine I didn't like; it was the valentine I sent you last year.'

"You could have knocked him down with a feather. He was the most astonished fellow you ever saw.

"'Did you send me that valentine?' he asked.

"'Didn't you know I sent it?' " 'No.

"She blushed, and Jim went right up to her and said:

" 'Hazel'

"Hazel"' exclaimed several of the children at once.

"Yes. Didn't I say her name was Hazel?

"No. Why, that's grandma's name." "So it is. That's funny, isn't it?" "Are you sure Hazel wasn't grandma?" "Well, to tell the truth, I don't know but that she was."

Off ran the children to find grandma to tell her all about the story of the girl who drove the cows to pasture.

A strange fact, and one of the greatest scientific significance, is that all the mollusks of the western mountain regions of the United States show in a most marked degree a closer relationship to the mollusca of Asia than that of the eastern portion of the United States, which, coupled with the fact that this is also true of some of the mammals of the Western states, gives great weight to the theory that there once existed a land bridge between Asia and the continent of North America, and that the Eastern and Western United States were divided by a large inland sea.

Scarcity Becoming Felt.

Prior to this year all the paris green sold in this country was produced early in January and February. No manufacturing operations of any kind have been undertaken since, as manufacturers have been unable to secure sufficient quantities of blue vitriol, or sulphate of copper, as well as white arsenic, for its manufacture. Where a manufacturer was accustomed to buy upward of 200,000 pounds of blue vitriol a few months ago as low as 3@4 cents a pound, he is today paying 16@ 17 cents a pound, and is unable to secure as much as 10,000 or 15,000 pounds with any degree of certainty.

Robin Hood Tradition.

The part of the English coast which recently suffered from German bombardment was connected with Robin Hood. Tradition says that from Whitney towers he and Little John used to shoot at long range with their English bows, and a bay a little south of this town bears to this day the name of Robin Hood's bay. This would seem to bear out the belief of Louis Rhead. author and illustrator of "Bold Robin Hood," that Robin Hood was an actual living personage and that his words and deeds continue to be a familiar part of the Anglo-Saxon heritage.

Preserved Marrow.

To each pound of marrow add one pound lump sugar, two ounces of ginger to every five pounds, the rind and juice of three lemons.

Cut the marrow in squares three quarters of an inch, sprinkle very lightly over with salt, let it stand for an hour, drain the salt off, next add a little sugar and stand for the night. Next boil the ginger and peel in sirup, then add the sugar and boil a little longer. Then put in the marrow and add the lemon juice last.

Citron Heart Cakes.

Beat half a pound of butter to a cream, take six eggs, beat the whites to a froth, and the yolks with half a pound of sifted flour, beat these well together, add a wineglassful of brandy and quarter of a pound of citron cut in thin slips, bake it in small heartshaped tins or a square tin pan, rubbed over with a bit of sponge dipped in melted butter; put the mixture in half an inch deep, bake 15 or 20 minutes in a quick oven.

Lesson XII .- First Quarter, For brooding, and the lips were straight March 19, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts viii, 4-17. Memory Verses, 5, 6-Golden Text, Acts viii, 30, l. c.-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The persecution of the saints, which began with the murder of Stephen, continued under Saul as a leader or at least a very active persecutor, for he is said to have entered every house and committed men and women to prison. The persecution was so great that it is said, that all the believers, except the apostles, were scattered abroad through Judea and Samaria, but they went everywhere preaching the word, and thus God made the wrath of man to praise Him (verses 1-4; Ps. lxxvi, 10). Philip, the second of the seven Spirit filled men who were chosen to serve tables, now comes to the front as a preacher and is the prominent worker in the rest of this chapter. First we see him preaching Christ in the city of Samaria and working miracles, the people giving heed with one accord so that there was great joy in that city, many men and women believing the words of Philip concerning Jesus Christ and the kingdom of God and confessing the same by baptism (verses 5-8, 12).

There was a man in Samaria who had been bewitching and deceiving the people by sorcery, drawing people to himself as a great man, but when he saw greater works wrought by Philip he naturally became interested and professed himself a believer and was baptized. But Peter and John, having come from Jerusalem to help in the good work, found him out when he offered them money if they would give him the power of the Holy Spirit (verses 9-25). The gifts of God cannot be bought, nor does a true messenger of Christ ever seek any honor or glory for himself, for the Lord Jesus never sought His own will nor His own glory and told the people that they could not believe unless they sought honor from God only (John v 30, 44; vi, 38; viii, 50). The Holy Spirit never honors any mere man, but through men honors Jesus Christ.

We must cease from men and see no man save Jesus only (Isa. ii, 22; Mark ix, 8). When Peter and John had helped the believers in Samaria they also preached the word of the Lord in many Samaritan villages as they journeyed back to Jerusalem (14 to 17 and 25). The Lord Jesus had said before His ascension that when they received the power of the Holy Spirit they would be His witnesses not only in Jerusalem and Samaria, but unto the uttermost part of the earth (Acts i, 8). The first part was being fulfilled, but some of the ends of the earth have not heard yet after nearly 1,900 years. How great is His patience! In the power of God, manifest in the words and works of the apostles and evangelists, we have seen something of the interest of heaven in the work of giving the good news to men. We have also seen the ministry of angels in taking Peter and John out of prison and sending them to preach in the temple (chapter v, 19, 20), and now, while Philip is busy in the midst of this knowne as lepe yeare, ilk mayden ladye great work in Samaria, a messenger from heaven is sent to him to tell him hae liberte to bespeke ye man she likes; to leave it all and go away down to the desert road from Jerusalem to Gaza, but seemingly without giving any reason as to why he should do this Did ever a busy preacher of the gospel receive such a strange command? There did not seem to be any reason or common sense in it, but rather an interference with a great soul saving work. Might not Philip seem justified in saying, as Nehemiah once did, "I am in and out of the pulpit. As he was doing a great work, so that I cannot come down?" (Neh. vi, 3). It was an evil spirit who was seeking Nehemiah.] me how to find a sheriff's office?" but it was the risen Christ who sent His angel to Philip because he saw a man of Ethiopia returning from Jerusalem with out having heard the gospel, although astonished man gazing after him.the apostles were at Jerusalem. I see two or or three important things here -the necessity of trying the spirits to see whether they are of God (I John iv, 1-3), the necessity of always making plain the way of life in Christ lest some hungry seeking soul may go away without knowing how to be saved and the necessity of prompt obedience when God speaks, no matter how unreasonable it may seem to us. We are glad to read that Philip arose and went (verse 27). If he had any committee to consult he would probably have been hindered; but, like Samuel, he was a man of God and had an ear for God and a willing heart. It is certainly most interesting to see this traveler, this treasurer of the queen of Ethiopia, reading the book of Isaiah as he journeyed and to be just at the place which told of a suffering Messiah, which we call Isa. liii, 7, 8, when a stranger approached the chariot, and, hearing the words being read (for he was evidently reading or being read to aloud), he asked, "Understandest thou what thou readest?" Ther followed the invitation to Philip to ride and to explain the Scripture, and we see a heart opened to receive Jesus Christ as Saviour and Messiah, a desire and readiness to confess Him in baptism. that he enjoyed being alone with himand a truly happy man went on his self."-Judge. way rejoicing, having found in his chariot, by the word of God, what he had not found in Jerusalem. The Spirit of the Lord, who controlled Philip the chief door of a house is never (verses 29, 39), carried him to Azotus, opened except on the occasion of a and he went on preaching everywhere, funeral or of a marriage.

When Beethoven Played. In that moment I could have sworn the pianist became a little black man with a lion's head and eyes that burned. The brow was ponderous with with suffering. The ill fitting coat was cut as once long ago coats were cut with a high collar-humpy about the shoulders; trousers too ample. Then I saw again the wild, tossed hair, the gloomy brows and eyes that burned beneath with strange fires, and as he played the white keys faded and the great black sweep of the concert grand and the huge headed man stood quite alone, shaken by blasts of music that were hot as passion, bitter as salt tears, penetrating as the infinite stars. "Heavens," said some one at my elbow, "that is Beethoven!" Then the music stopped. I tell you it was still as morning, and a little, swarthy man grinned and bowed without a hand to clap him for full ten deep breaths, and when it came, the harsh. long rush of clapping hands, it seemed that great golden things were being smashed and let fall down jarring to the earth.-Exchange.

Spiraeas Awaken Early.

Just as if it had an alarm clock to awaken it, the spiraea opens its eyes in the morning before its companions are stirring. It's one of the earliest risers among the flowers, and you'll find it often before the moon flower and other night bloomers have gone to bed. It grows in the rich soil of wet valleys, often from three to ten feet high. where it is called goat's beard. Its tiny, creamy flowers are born in gorgeous plumes. Its leaves are strongly veined and grow luxuriantly. Its seeds are very small and shining. The plant bears its plumes of flowers proudly. and well it may, for it is a near relative of the aristocratic rose. But it is through its early rising habits that we know it best. Long before sunrise, between the hours of 3 and 5 o'clock in the morning, it opens its petals Naturally it gets sleepy before the other flowers, which has given the goat's beard the other common name of "go to bed at noon."-Philadelphia North American

Insect Travelers.

Ship cargoes are often responsible for the introduction of quite new species of insects in different lands. Banana bunches often hide poisonous reptiles and insects which travel long distances, only to bite or sting the hand of some receiver of fruit. Often they escape alive and breed their kind. Many venomous snakes have thus been introduced into lands where none existed before.

Strange creatures have been imported on the blooms of orchids, and West Indian insects have traveled in Easter lily blossoms. Destructive moths migrate in fruit ships.

Flying insects often follow ships. One curious case was that of a vessel from the tropics followed by a swarm of butterflies. Out of sight of the shore, they hid in the cabins and holds. emerging forty days later when the ship reached England. Thus originated quite a new species of butterfly in the British isles.

Where Leap Year Is Legal.

othy meadow in Maryland is very far below what it can be made to yield profitably in both quality and yield per acre. The low yields and poor quality are not due so much to poor germination and poor stand in the spring after seeding as to the crowding out of the timothy by weeds. Where weeds are the determining factor the remedy is sowing the timothy, or timothy and clover, alone in the early fall, not with a grain crop, but after the grain crop has been harvested and a fine, firm seedbed prepared. Where the stand of timothy is fair the yield can be profitably increased by the use of commercial fertilizers. Extensive tests at the Maryland Experiment Station with various kinds and combinations of fertilizers have shown beyond question that the best fertilizer for timothy is nitrate of soda a combination of nitrate of soda and acid rock. The proper amount to apply depends of course upon the fertility of the soil, but ordinarily nitrate of soda should be applied at the rate of from 150 to 250 pounds per acre, and if a combination of acid rock and nitrate of soda is used, equal parts, the mixture should be applied at the rate of 200 to 450 pounds per acre. Such an application under ordinary conditions may be expected to give an increase in yield of from 1 to 11/2 tons per acre.

The time of applying the fertilizer is very important. It should be applied as soon as the grass begins to green, which is usually the latter part of ness man, has perfected, after years of study, a device by which he can make vibrations radiated by the flame from a tiny gas get reproduce every note played upon a pipe organ. The device has not yet been named, but it might well be called a pyrophone. It differs little in principle from a pipe organ, except that the vibrant note is caused by a flame instead of a current of air upon a reed.

In recent tests in his laboratory Mr. Pyne proved the practicability of his invention with a single unit, or octave, and is perfecting it for a public demonstration before a party of scientists and musicians. The inventor does not claim that he has discovered anything particularly new to science or that the instrument will in itself become of widespread utility. Like Franklin's experiment with the kite, however, many persons believe that the application of the principle of the invention will lead eventually to the reproduction of sound from a ray of light. Light flashed upon a screen will, they say, be made to give forth tone modulations-music-as well as a diversity of color.

A simple experiment with the "singing gas flame" is not difficult. The flame from the ordinary gas jet is too

March or the first of April. The early application of the fertilizer is absolutely necessary for maximum returns, for the fertilizer can not be made use of by the plant until it has been dissolved and carried down into the soil. The early application makes use of the early rains.

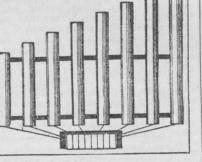

Many farmers have been disappointed when using nitrate of soda because they have applied it too late or at a time when there was not sufficient moisture to dissolve it, so that the timothy would get full use of what was applied before maturing.

WHY NOT TRUE PREPAREDNESS IN RURAL EDUCATION?

"Preparedness" is the present cry. Well, genuine education is true preparation. Teach our youths how to become efficient and economical in their life work and the problem is readily solved. Make the Corn Clubs, the Homemaking Clubs, the Poultry competitions, the Cooking and Sewing contests and all such activities a part of the school system. Let the work on part of the school study. Let the rural school not only teach farm accounting, but have the pupils keep the accounts of their farms and homes.

Seed testing, soil examination, stock judging and selecting, garden planting, and working, household management and routine, canning fruit and vegetables, milk management, egg testing, incubating, brooding, balancing rations and feeding the rations, recording progress, and studying results, learning to reason on homely subjects and to solve personal problems, learning to think and to work efficiently-these are some of the items of real rural education-is this narrow educating? No! It is as broad as the life and the work of the world. Are we leaving out culture? No! The highest and best culture comes through studying intelligently the country, the life about us, nature, human nature, and the work of the world-this we cannot do without knowing something of the thoughts of our poets, our philosophers, our historians, and our writers as well as our scientists and our teachers of practical things. We should have all of the best that we have now, but so applied as to make the life we live brighter ice will cost the much this year and more satisfying to our children. Educate to this end!

small and possesses too little quality of vibration to satisfy the novice. Take instead a burner of brass about two inches wide, like those on gasoline lamps. This is supplied from a quarter-inch pipe.

The supply of gas is registered by an ordinary screw valve, and a key between this valve and the burner controls the length of the note. Beside the aperture of the burner, which is about 1-32 of an inch wide, is a master light, which burns constantly to ignite the gas when the note is struck. The inside measurement of the pipe supplying the master light is about 1-16 of an inch in diameter.

Over the burner and master light a tin tube four feet long and four inches in diameter is suspended in a manner the farm and in the home become a that will allow it to vibrate freely. The adjustment of the tube is similar to that of the pipes of an organ. The burner is placed about one-fourth of the distance from the bottom of the tube, and the perfection of the note is obtained by raising or lowering the tube until the instrument is considered in proper "tune."

To make a single unit capable of playing music in a single octave seven other tubes are required of the same diameter, but graduated in length up to eight feet or down to two feet. In this demonstration Mr. Pyne expects to operate such an instrument with a keyboard.

To obtain the best results he probably will use oxygen from a tank, but in simple experiments the broad burner can be affixed to an ordinary gas pipe after removing the nipple, and the tube can be suspended over it in the manner indicated without the master light.
