

BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

A central Pennsylvania farmer, who refuses to let his name be made public, has given Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, a donation of $4000., and does not specify the purpose for which it is to be used.

Rev. Dr. S. W. Owen, of Hagerstown, is seriously ill, and has been for several weeks. It is said that he is suffering from arterio sclerosis and gangrene of the foot. Dr. Owen has been for many years pastor of St. John's Lutheran church.

E. Gov. Hadley, of Missouri, announced to the Republican State Convention that he was not a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency, and asked that he be not endorsed. He was elected delegate to the National Convention, and is a "dark horse" possibility.

A Republican Senator who claims to know, says: "Justice Hughes will accept the Republican Presidential nomination if it comes to him without protest and is tendered on the ground that his party considers him the most likely man to wrest control of the government from the Democrats."

Ninety-four of the 592 persons killed on the steam railroads of the State in the last six months of 1915 lost their lives at grade crossings and of this number 34 were occupants of automobiles, according to the report on accidents on the railroads and electric lines of the State issued by John P. Dohoney, investigator of accidents of the Public Service Commission.

C. O. Melvin, for the past 15 years editor and publisher of the Ledger-Enterprise, Pocomoke City, has announced the sale of the paper, and his retirement in order to devote full time to his law practice. Mr. Melvin always conducted his paper on a high plane, as a conscientious responsibility, and the fraternity loses one of its best and most popular members.

Both Goldsborough and France are making an energetic campaign for the Republican nomination for the Senate, and the contest will not be a walkover for either. Goldsborough, especially, is developing a much greater strength than it was first thought he would have, and is a good campaigner. The Democratic candidates, Lee, Lewis and Bruce, are also on the war-path for votes, and the triangular battle makes it difficult to pick the winner.

So great is the demand for loans this year that some of the local banking institutions are finding no little difficulty in supplying their regular customers with the funds they need for carrying on their farming or fruit raising operations, for making improvements to their properties, or conducting one or other of their various lines of business. The conditions which prevail in Gettysburg are experienced generally throughout the county. Individuals with money to "put out" are finding little difficulty securing desirable places and they do much to relieve the situation.—Gettysburg News.

We have just been advised by our paper people that the price of paper similar to that used for the Pilot is now 7c for immediate acceptance and that they are sure the price will be 10c within the coming week. This is an advance of 150 per cent. within the past six weeks and means that a week's run will cost us $2.40, instead of $8.56 as formerly, or $667.68 increase for a year. Naturally, subscribers too far in arrears, occasional correspondents, and the like, will be taken from the subscription lists, as well as the adoption of a cheaper grade of newspaper stock.—Union Bridge Pilot.

Senator John Walter Smith introduced a bill in the Senate on Wednesday, providing for an appropriation by Congress of $250,000 to be used in building a Government highway between Washington and the Naval Academy, at Annapolis. The Maryland Legislature appropriated $125,000 to become available if the Government appropriated an equal amount. This fact was set forth in Senator Smith's bill. The purpose of the proposed legislation is to connect the capital with the Naval Academy, at Annapolis, by a road that could be used to advantage in time of war and which at all times would give Washington and the academy direct highway communication.

Fire at Hoffman Orphanage.

Early last Sunday morning, Rev. J. Stewart Hartman, Superintendent of the Hoffman Orphanage and his son, Ezra Hartman, discovered a fire that destroyed a barn at the orphanage near Littlestown. Three head of horses, five calves, several chickens, a quantity of grain and two hogs which were in a pen beside the barn were burned. At the time the fire was discovered, the building was so far destroyed that nothing could be removed from the barn and efforts were directed to saving the surrounding buildings. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

The barn is not the one on the farm in connection with the orphanage, but that located at the school and used by Rev. Mr. Hartman for driving horses and vehicles in daily use. The large wagon in which the pupils are conveyed to Sunday School was located.

The barn is situated about fifty yards from the administration building but fortunately the wind carried the flames in the opposite direction and onto a large wagon shed. This was saved after considerable effort. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Christian Endeavor Notes.

A business meeting of the Carroll County Christian Endeavor Union, convened on Saturday afternoon, March 25, at the home of Mrs. John Belt, Westminister. The program was arranged for the County Convention to be held at Uniontown, May 24, 25 and 26.

This will be the twenty-fifth anniversary of the Carroll County Union, and will be celebrated in a fitting manner. The Union was organized in Uniontown by a young man from the Lutheran church, who is now a minister. It is hoped he will be able to preach the anniversary sermon. Good attendance is desired at this Convention and all are requested to come prepared to take part in the conferences, and help make it a success, and be much benefited by it. The program and other information will be published later.

St. Paul's Lutheran Society, of Uniontown, organized an orchestra recently, which made the first appearance on Sunday night, March 19. It added so much to the service, was very inspiring and enjoyable. Can not other societies organize orchestras?

St. Paul's Lutheran C. E. Society celebrated St. Patrick's Day by holding a social at the home of John E. Heck, in the evening. Green was the prevailing color in the decorations, refreshments, etc. A large company was present, and enjoyed the program for the evening.

Sandy Mount C. E. Society held a most enjoyable Leap Year social at the home of Denton Leister, on Thursday night, March 23. One hundred and twenty-five were present. A program was rendered consisting of hymns, solos, recitations, dialogues and an address by the pastor, Rev. Maddox. Hearts and arrows were matched by the young people, and the ladies escorted the gentlemen to the table where refreshments were served. A pleasant evening was spent.

Sandy Mount Society is about to take up the "Peace Union" work. The pledge is thus: "As a follower of the Prince of Peace, I will seek to promote good will among men and peace on earth; I will work as I have opportunity toward the abolition of war, and will endeavor to cement the fellowship of people of all nations and denominations throughout the world." Will not other C. E. Societies start this work?

Finksburg Society has very interesting meetings at present, and are so well attended. A number of persons who are employed at the "Asbestos Plant," attend.

Bethel Society, at Carrollton, held a special Missionary Service, Sunday night, March 26. A good program. This Society has a special Missionary Service one evening each month, and have an offering for missions.

Mrs. Garrett Corrected.

(For the Record.)
It has been so generally conceded, that the Brewers and Distillers have all been arrayed against Woman Suffrage, that I was greatly surprised to find in your paper, Mrs. Garrett's contradiction. She evidently needs to be correctly informed. I have personal friends in three western states, where Suffrage has been the issue, in recent years, and in every state they have found the liquor men solidly against them.

Recently, we had the pleasure of a call from a Kansas cousin, and in discussing the West generally, he laughingly remarked, "I'll tell you cousin, who love the Suffragists—the western Brewers, and Distillers."

Yours for truth and justice,
MAGGIE MEHRING,
Keymar, Md.

The Old-Time Pike

Is the only substantial road that we know has been used for the last 100 years. To put down a good road bed of large stone and crushed stone on top, this is what will make a pike for all kinds of use and horses will not slip and fall, and everybody will be pleased and happy.

Now don't be "close." We want the good people to chip in and help to put this 7 miles pike down from Frederick county line to old Taneytown. I know if we had back the good old men that were in old Taneytown 50 years ago, they would chip in and say "go ahead boys, we want one of the best roads that ever went through the county." They had the money and would give to every good cause, and today we can't put a dollar to better use than to help put up good roads. The last three weeks was "hell on earth" in the road line. TRAVELER.

State to Purchase Ely Farm.

An item of the Senate Appropriation bill, was the following:
"To Springfield State Hospital, for the purchase in fee simple of the farm of E. Frank Ely and Nannie F. Ely, his wife, adjacent to the said hospital in Carroll county, upon the release and settlement, in such form as may be satisfactory to the Attorney General, of all suits and claims for damages or otherwise, which said E. Frank Ely and Nannie F. Ely, his wife, have or might have against said hospital, or the managers or superintendent, or any state officials or the state, the sum of $16,500.

Mr. Ely, for some time, has had a claim for damages against this institution on account of alleged pollution of a stream, or streams, running through the farm, due to sewage from the Hospital buildings.

The Paper Borrowing Habit.

The Record lost a subscriber, this week, because of disgust for "borrowers." In this particular case the subscriber was poor, and hardly able to take a paper, while the borrowers were in good circumstances. We wonder whether there are many such cases, and to what extent newspapers suffer from the borrowing habit? Should this reach the eyes of confirmed borrowers, we hope that they will discontinue the practice, and balance up by becoming subscribers on their own account.

RAPHAEL TANEY FOUNDER OF TANEYTOWN

An Interesting Contribution to the History of the Town.

The Record is indebted to Mr. L. H. Diehlman, of Peabody Institute, Baltimore, for a copy of the Maryland Historical Magazine, for March, containing an article written by G. A. Tawney, University of Cincinnati, Ohio, under the caption "The Founder of Taneytown." We especially thank Mr. Diehlman for his interest and thoughtfulness, and gladly publish the article referred to, as it very likely clears up the somewhat disputed question as to the Taney who gave Taneytown its birth and name. The article contains this footnote, which we give here: "This date is engraved on a stone beneath a second story window of the Elliot Hotel in Taneytown, where it is visible from the street (1762)." The article is given in full, as follows:

"In the History of Western Maryland, Scharf states that Taneytown was laid out about 1755 by one Frederick Taney, who came from Calvert County. But I am convinced that both the date and the person are wrongly given, while the only Frederick Taney living at this time, of whom I find traces, spent most of his life and died in Frederick County. Among the land records of Frederick County, liber H, folio 151, under date 1st May, 1762, is an agreement between Raphael Taney (of St. Mary's County) and the Province of Maryland, according to which the former 'has laid out a parcel of lots of ground to the number of Forty-Six Lots containing half an acre to each Lot on his part of a Tract of Land Commonly known by the name of the Resurvey on Brothers' Agreement.' He obligates himself to make over to each purchaser (or lessee) his lot or lots by deeds of conveyance by 1st May, 1765, or else forfeit $500 to each purchaser, provided the purchaser improves his lot by that date with a good dwelling house well 'detailed' and shingled, in size at least 24 ft. by 20 ft. and possessing a stone or brick chimney. The purchaser, moreover, is to pay a yearly ground rent of two shillings six pence. Raphael Taney of St. Mary's County gives bond in the sum of £1000 for the faithful discharge of his obligations under the agreement. This became Taney's town.

In liber H and liber J are records of the sales of these lots (or leases). In Taneytown, on the main road that leads from Frederick to York (but the place is also referred to as Taney's Town). By the next year the number of lots had increased from 46 to 76; Raphael Taney was charging a bonus of 35 shillings on each lot leased; and the ground rent had increased to three shillings and six pence per annum on each lot. Some of the persons to whom these lots were leased were Jacob Kooz, George Seagler, Joseph Groves, George Hockersmith, Christian Bowers, Thomas Kenard, Abraham King, Christian Hemper, Henry Brothers, Ulrich Hoover, John Hoover, Augustus Sharer, John Weaver, Benrick Potts, Richard Vandeker, John Oliver, Michael Kumer, George Clarke, John H. Rosenfelt, Conrad Hockersmith, William Mumford, Jacob Richards, John Shrier and N. Huber, John Weiner, Francis Hammon, Michael Lavelly, Michael Taner, Philip Smith, Samuel Emmett, Stuffle Lewis, Andrew Sharron, Conrad Bonnor, Jacob Good, Simon Snyder, Peter Hoffman, George Sexton, George Sigler, John Stevenson, Archibald Crawford, John Fletcher, Mark Alexander, Henry Obelman, Caleb Wilson, and Catherine Tane. In several instances more than one lot was disposed of at once to a single party, while several persons bought more than once.

This Raphael Taney, who died 1791, married Eleanor, the sister of William Digges. To the brothers-in-law was patented in 1754 the tract of land embracing some 7900 acres and known as Brothers' Agreement. The Michael Taney, who died 1743 and was the grandfather of Chief Justice Roger Brooke Taney, was the brother of the Thomas Taney who was the father of Raphael. This Michael and Thomas were grandsons of the Michael Taney who died 1692 after being sheriff of Calvert County during the stormy period of 1687-89.

If further evidence were needed to determine who laid out Taneytown and gave the place its name, there is in the land records of Carroll County at Westminster a plan of the town described, "Raphael Taney to Joseph Good. Received May 12, 1762, to be recorded and the same day recorded in Liber N, folios 83, one of the Land Records of St. Mary's County and Examined per Timothy Bowses, Clerk."

No Envelopes at the Primaries.

The envelope system will not be used at the Spring primaries, as the law abolishing the envelope was passed as an "emergency" measure, and went into effect at once—providing the Governor signs it.

The use of the envelopes was popular, as a rule, with the voters, for they could mark their ballots at home, or outside of the poll booths, at their leisure; but the politicians objected to the feature, claiming that it was advantageous to anti-organization voting, and encouraged the "fixing" of ballots for the illiterate.

Legislation Affecting Carroll.

The House bill relating to the taxation of mortgages in Carroll county was passed in the Senate on Monday afternoon, under suspension of the rules. A strong effort was made to have the bill amended in the Senate, to exempt banks, but without effect, the plea being made that banks are already very heavily taxed, as compared with the individual investor, and that apparently the law would affect only the mortgage holdings of Trust Companies and Savings Banks, and not those of National Banks. It is probable that a test case will be made by the banks.

The effort to tax Bank Certificates of Deposit, of an interest bearing character, was abandoned, consequently they will remain untaxed, as heretofore.

The bill—or rather bills—for the appointment of one tax collector in Carroll county, failed of passage. Two bills were introduced, one in the House and one in the Senate, aiming at largely the same end but differing in details. These bills each passed in the body in which they originated but failed in the other, and no compromise could be agreed upon. It is understood, however, that the present law gives the County Commissioners authority to appoint "one or more" tax collectors, and that but one will be appointed this year.

The bill taxing judgments in the county, passed, on the same basis as the tax on mortgages—8 per cent on the annual income.

The part of the election law relating to declaration of intention, was amended to the end that the declaration of intention to become a citizen of the county can be made before the Board of Registrars of any district, instead of before the County Clerk.

There was also some amendment with reference to the provisions of the roadside tree law, but we do not know exactly what they were. We think that all county roads are exempt, but that the present law still applies to state roads, with the exception of certain kinds of trees, such as locust and cedar, that can be cut without permission.

The Local Option law of the county was also amended, making its provisions more stringent with reference to bringing liquors into the county, and soliciting orders for shipment into the county.

Going to the Front.

William Euehler Seabrook, of Atlanta, Georgia, son of State's Attorney Seabrook, spent a few hours with his father and grandfather on Tuesday evening, en route to New York, from which city he will sail on Saturday next on the Liner L'Espagne, for France, where he will join the corps of the American Ambulance Hospital.

The Atlanta Journal in a recent issue, gave a column sketch of the life of Mr. Seabrook, stating among others the following facts: That he is an accomplished French and Italian linguist, and as an ambulance driver, the position to which he has been appointed will be able to render helpful service in many directions. He is a skilled chauffeur, and will be sent to the front to drive an ambulance car. He made a walking trip through France and Italy several years ago, covering much of the territory which is now a battleground. Before going to Europe he was City Editor of the Augusta Chronicle, and after his return a member of the Atlanta Journal staff, until he resigned to form a partnership in the publicity and advertising firm the Lewis-Seabrook Company. His business will continue in his absence, conducted by his partner. He is a member of the Rotary Club, the Capital City Club and the Atlanta Athletic Club, in all of which he will retain his membership. He goes to the front alone but may be joined later in the Summer by Mrs. Seabrook as a volunteer Red Cross Nurse.

Among recent American appointees to this humanitarian service are graduates of Harvard, Yale, Princeton, Columbia and other Maryland Universities, among whom are several Rhodes graduates. Mr. Seabrook considers himself fortunate in receiving his appointment. In it there is no financial emolument. Each appointee pays his own way from his home in America to France, and while there every member of the service from scrub woman to chief surgeon receives only bare expenses.

Warning Against Sunday Selling.

States Attorney Anders, of Frederick county, has issued a warning that further violations of the Sunday laws in Frederick county will be reported to the Grand Jury, and the offenders prosecuted. He says only food and drugs are permitted to be sold on Sunday. Cigars and tobacco, confectionary, ice cream, soda water and in fact everything except food and drugs are prohibited. He explained that ice cream may be served to those who purchased meals, but it cannot be sold otherwise.

Complaint was made to the State's Attorney through sources that the law is being violated. It was pointed out that stores are selling goods on Sunday prohibited by the statute. It was also rumored that the next move will be to open the picture shows on Sunday. In order to prevent anyone from getting into trouble the State's Attorney decided to issue a general warning so that violators will have only themselves to blame in consequence of a further infraction of the law.

Candidates For Congress.

The outlook is that the primary lists will close with two candidates on each side for the nomination to Congress: Hon. J. F. C. Talbott, and Lloyd Wilkinson, Democrats; and William James Heaps and Albert A. Blakeney, Republicans. For the first time in many years Talbott has an opponent in Mr. Wilkinson, who is a member of the present House of Delegates. Mr. Blakeney was once elected to Congress in the district, over Talbott, while Wm. James Heaps was Talbott's opponent two years ago, entering the campaign late and making a good vote, especially in Carroll, which he carried.

THE LEGISLATURE ADJOURNED ON MONDAY.

Some of the Late Accomplishments of the Session.

The closing of the legislature, on Monday night, was marked by the usual disorderly proceedings and confusion. In fact much of the important work of the session was held back until the last few days and was rushed through, in some cases apparently without that care and deliberation essential to the best legislation, and it may have been that had time permitted some of the proceedings would have been very different. At present it is difficult to give a clear review of just what was accomplished that was meritorious, and what was the opposite.

Among the important defeats were the following: The Baltimore annexation bill, the Anti-racing bill, the Home Rule bill, the Initiative bill, the Fourth Regiment Armory, and others.

Among the important measures recently passed were the Omnibus appropriation bill, the $3,000,000 loan bill for roads and buildings, bills consolidating various offices, abolishing the office of State Fire Marshal, etc.

The state tax rate was again increased. The present rate is 32½, while for 1917 it will be 36 5/12, and for 1918 36½. Each cent on the state levy raises approximately $100,000 revenue. The state tax is now the highest during the past 70 years.

New armories, at a cost of $100,000 each, are provided for Westminster, Cambridge and Hyattsville, but Baltimore failed to get $200,000 for one for the Fourth Regiment.

One of the queer stunts of the close was the passage of the Mothers' pension bill, to which the Senate, and possibly the House, was opposed. Senator Jones, of Montgomery, who sponsored the bill made an appeal to the Senate not to "humiliate" him by sending him home with his bill defeated, and at the same time end his political career. The speech appealed to the good nature of the Senate, and in a spirit of falling in line with the humorous side of it, passed the bill unanimously, feeling that it could not possibly get through the House. That body, however, at the last minute compounded the joke by suspending the rules and putting it over, one, two, three, with a whoop.

The state time plant bill, carrying an appropriation of $12,000, also passed as a late hour measure, notwithstanding strong protests. It was the last bill passed.

The LeGore bridge bill, as amended to meet the compromise agreement between the County Commissioners and James V. LeGore passed and now goes to the Governor for his signature. According to the provisions of the bill Frederick county pays $20,000 for the bridge and $30,000 more to come from the county's share of the State Aid road fund, making a total purchase price of $50,000. The road fund money is to be paid in three annual installments.

Just what the legislature accomplished in the direction of economy is difficult to figure out. Apparently, it saved itself the disgrace of the last and some preceding sessions by cutting out useless hangers-on, and this is supposed to have saved about $75,000. It abolished some offices and combined others, but appears to have created new ones and made new places to about counter-balance the changes. Very little, if any, reduction has been made in appropriations to institutions. While "continuing" appropriations have all been cut off, most of the beneficiaries seem to have been taken care of in new legislation.

It is also difficult to figure any great amount of new revenue. The direct inheritance tax law is supposed to yield several hundred thousands a year, and the increased cost of liquor licenses and traders' licenses will hit these classes for a snug sum, but there was no legislation of a widely comprehensive character for an increase in the basis of state taxation, which means that the state tax is very likely to be raised to 40 cents two years hence.

Father Shoots His Son.

In a fit of anger following a trivial argument, last Friday afternoon, Albert Gibson, a farmer at Smallwood, Carroll county, pursued his nineteen year old son, Earl, for some distance and finally shot him with a gun. The boy's mother witnessed the tragedy and with great presence of mind probably saved him from death by deflecting the aim of the gun. The shot which was aimed at the lad's head entered his legs and a further shooting was prevented by the wife.

The tragedy is blamed on a too free imbibing of hard cider which the father procured while on a visit to a neighbor. The elder Gibson was arrested by Sheriff Stoner and taken to Westminster and locked up.

He will be given a hearing on the charge of shooting his son and becoming intoxicated. Young Gibson was taken home and a physician summoned. He is in a serious condition.

Holland Under Arms.

The arming of Holland, this week, adds to the complications of the European war, as the act appears not to be fully understood by either side. Holland says it is for the purpose of preserving her neutrality, but there is strong suspicion that the country is tired of having her vessels sunk and her commerce more or less interfered with by both Germany and England, and may be preparing for active retaliation.

The English blockade is said to be interfering very seriously with food supplies for Holland, while there is said to be an equally popular feeling against Germany. The government is clearing the nearby waters of mines, and is apparently preparing to patrol the coast of Holland to repel a possible sea attack.

Troops have also been fully equipped in large numbers, and stationed both along the German and Belgian borders, as though preparing to resist invasion.

MARRIED.

HECK—HYMILLER.—On April 3rd., at 2.45 p. m., a very pretty but quiet wedding took place at the home of John E. Heck, of Uniontown, Md., when Miss Reine, became the bride of Mr. Howard Hymiller, of Tyrone. While the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march were played by the Misses Frances and Marian Heck, sisters of the bride, the couple entered the room. Rev. W. E. Saltzger, of Uniontown, performed the ceremony. The bride was handsomely attired in a blue traveling suit and carried a bouquet of bridal roses, while the groom wore a blue serge suit.

Mr. Hymiller is a merchant of Tyrone. Miss Heck is a very successful teacher in the public schools of Carroll County. A wedding dinner was served, after which the newly weds left for a week's honeymoon to Baltimore and Washington. We all join in wishing the happy couple, a long and prosperous life.

DIED.

Obituaries, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The registrar death notices published free.

STORM.—Miss Annie Storm, daughter of Mr. Jerome Storm, died at her home near Taneytown, on Thursday night, after a long illness from Bright's disease, aged 46 years, 9 months, 15 days. Funeral services will be held at St. Joseph's Catholic church, Taneytown, on Monday, meeting at the house at 9.30 a. m.

BASEHORN.—Mrs. Catharine Sheely Basehorn, died at her home in Taneytown, early last Sunday morning, aged 78 years, 5 months and 16 days. She had been in failing health for some time, consequently her death was not unexpected. She leaves the following children: Mrs. Daniel W. Garner, Mrs. David M. Mehring and Mrs. C. M. Benner, of Taneytown; Charles H. Basehorn, of Littlestown; H. Calvin, of Gettysburg; Elmer T., of Canton, Pa.; Dr. Curtis S., of Carlisle, and Augustus, at home.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday morning, in the Littlestown, Pa., Lutheran church, in charge of her pastor, Rev. John J. Hill, and Rev. L. B. Hafer. Four of her sons acted as pall-bearers.

SLAGENHAUP.—Mrs. Annie E. Slagenhaup, widow of Albert L. Slagenhaup, died on Tuesday at 2.30 o'clock, a. m., at the home of her son, Norman A. Slagenhaup, 806 N. Market St., Frederick. She was aged 66 years, 5 months and 2 days. Death resulted after a long illness of carcinoma of the liver. Mrs. Slagenhaup was a native of Littlestown, Pa., where she had lived until last January, where she removed to Frederick.

She is survived by three sons, Howard E. and Raymond S., at Lancaster, Pa., and Norman A. Slagenhaup, of Frederick. She also leaves two brothers, one in New Windsor, the other in Baltimore. Mrs. Slagenhaup was a member of the Reformed church, at Littlestown, Rev. Milton Whitmer, pastor. The remains were taken to Littlestown, on Thursday, and services were held at her late home, at 11.30 a. m., with interment in the family lot in the Littlestown cemetery.

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a fixed rule with this office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

AUTOMOBILE dealers are apparently not greatly alarmed over the high price of gasoline, but expect the biggest business ever, during 1916. The economy will likely be in the running end, rather than in the buying end—the machines are cheaper, even if the power is higher.

IT SEEMS QUEER, but just when the country is almost bare of apples, and there is a good local demand at a high price, the cities are rather over-full of them—cold storage, of course, explains it, as it explains a good many other things connected with the price of eatables.

ONE OF OUR exchanges, in commenting on the close of the legislature, says, "There have been long hours, longer debates, and since the annexation bills have been defeated, more or less biters." Very likely. But even supposing that the compositor unintentionally bungled the last word, we are of the opinion that there was "more or less biters" at other times during the session.

ACCORDING to the Baltimore Sun, Carroll county has paid into the state road fund, so far, $385,000 and received from it $516,000. The same article claims that Baltimore city has paid into the fund $8,998,000, and received from it $3,304,560. In other words, Baltimore city has paid for a portion of the state roads in Carroll, and other counties, which leads the Sun to say, "So any one with half an eye can see why the counties are willing to vote bond issues for roads and other internal improvements, including armories, but not armories for Baltimore."

The Greatest Of All Public Questions.

Good roads are becoming, as never before, a wanted part of our public service. Such roads, as everybody knows, must be paid for. The State Highway Commission plan of building concrete, or macadam roads, is not the right plan for general widespread use—the roads are too expensive, and they are not satisfactory for hauling and driving purposes—both serious objections. After the main roads under construction are completed, further extension must evidently be with hard and serviceable, as well as less expensive, hard stone roads.

What the country needs now is a workable, and equitably fair plan, for much wider good roads making. The subscription plan, largely from property owners living along the roads is not the right plan. The benefits are much more widely distributed than that, and so should the cost be. Toll roads are not much thought of now, but it appears to us that the toll plan has its very decided advantages, especially in the matter of repair; indeed, we do not see why toll should not be paid for the use of good roads, as a gradual and widely distributed plan for securing them and maintaining them.

No plan can be worked out by which these wanted roads can be had by any small expenditure of money. Perhaps no plan can be devised that it will pay road users and citizens generally, to adopt. It may be that universal good roads is a wanted thing that is impossible, on good business grounds, to obtain. But, there must be some one plan that is the best plan possible, and that is what ought to be worked out, and placed before us for pleased acceptance, or regretful rejection.

The question is not only one of the desirable extension of good roads, but it is essentially one of finance. It is not a proposition for undue motor travel influence—we have already had too much of that—but it is one of straight general utility and business importance, as it applies to all of our taxpayers as a great body. Some sort of long-time bonded debt proposition, we think, resting upon all of the taxpayers of the state, rather than on separate counties, with aid from the National government, is the best plan to adopt, but the details of it are not at all clear.

It is a tremendously big and important question, and is entitled to the exercise of the very best and most unselfish judgment obtainable. It is a bigger and more important practical question than "Preparedness." It involves the cutting out of political luxuries and superfluities, and that class of public expenditures commonly called "pork." Good roads are not unattainable, nor above our financial reach, in our judgment, providing we are sure to demand, and willing to accept the outcome of, a preliminary clearing of the way.

The Wrangle is Over.

The legislature of Maryland, with its sins of omission and commission, is over at last, and as usual, its work will be variously estimated. It is very much easier to plan legislation, in community assemblies, than it is to secure it in the larger state assembly, and while this seems a pity, it is likely best for the whole state that it is true; and yet, we are forced to believe that the arrived at results are often so maliciously and selfishly interfered with as to not represent even a fair summary of what ought to be.

Our legislatures are too much a mixture. There is a small element of genuine judicial fair-mindedness and ability, another element largely political with "axes to grind," and a still larger portion, honest but mediocre—and practically helpless because of lack of parliamentary and legal know-how. And even when all hands try to do their best, they are so beset with antagonistic and radically differing influences "back home," that results are often a sort of toss-up as to whether they represent improvement.

If it were possible to have a small body—or two of them—made up solely of "men who know," and who are unimpeachably honest; and if it were possible to compel the fog-makers to stay away from Annapolis during sessions, no doubt the net results of legislation would be far more genuinely wise than we are accustomed to. And another thing is sure—we have entirely too much merely local legislation, and not enough of the statewide.

"ANNEXATION."

FOR about four solid weeks, the Baltimore papers were full of the name of one of the city's pets—"Annexation." We heard about it regularly, morning and evening, and the dose became quite exciting. First "Annexation" appeared with a little tripitation, then it went through a course enlisting more or less solicitous care for its "health." It got whipped around in the Senate, and lost its shape. Some liked "Annexation" one way, and some another, until its sponsors were quite willing to take it any old way, just so "Annexation" was left in a recognizable shape.

Dear "Annexation" had cruel enemies—everybody is "cruel" who disagrees with Baltimore's choice of pets. The poor child finally became quite disrespectfully handled, and actual fears arose that it might be cast into the garbage can. The inner sanctums as well as the special bugles of the press played their most alluring tunes, occasionally turning on the tremolo, and then the heavy thunder. "Annexation" must be saved, for how could Baltimore be "greater" without it, and why should anything stand in the way of her greatness.

The whole state, and parts of the Eastern and Western Shores, were interested. The people divided their time between reading the fate of "Annexation," and Billy Sunday—which was wise, for there was little else to divide it between. The story went from the confident to the surprised, then to the indignant and finally to the alarmed. "Annexation" advanced backwards from the "outlook promising" to "not so bright," then to the fear that it "might be killed." Once it became "practically dead," but the next chapter said "not yet dead," and this was followed by "strong hopes."

It was like a "continued in our next" story, always ending at critical point enlisting the deepest interest in the headlines of tomorrow. Once it was plain down "dead, without hope," but the next days developments apparently gave it another "ray of hope," and the anxious populace waited with bated breath for the concluding chapter, the very latest word being that poor "annexation" was almost "smothered."

The last chapter was headed, "Annexation done to death;" it was "left to die" by those pledged to be its friends—and so ended the story. Let it R. I. P. Seriously, we suspect that the deceased possessed many good qualities and deserved a better fate. There may have been some faults in its "bringing up," and no doubt some of that "haughty spirit" that "goeth before a fall," but on the whole we are inclined to sit with the mourners.

Sunday Knocks Baltimore.

Poor Baltimore was given a "ripping up" by Billy Sunday, last Friday. As compared with some of the recent defenses of the city we have read, Billy must either be wrong, or have entered the ranks of the conspirators "to make Baltimore the goat." Here is news a report of what he said, taken from the Sun; "Sunday's hardest raps so far at the worldliness of Baltimore came when he was calling for trail-bitters in the afternoon. His audience of 9,000 people consisted for the most part of women, and these fairly gasped when he threw his verbal hooks into the Monumental City, declaring that its church members had better either cast out the sins that were holding them away from true lives of Christianity or else 'quit.' "If the church of God isn't willing to take its stand for the things that are right, we'll just about have to quit and be done with this campaign," he said with bitterness. "I'm not going to stand here and wear myself out pleading with you. I'm not going to nag you, not going to beg you. If I were you, I'd either get right with God or quit; that's all.

"There's something wrong with Baltimore somewhere. Preachers tell me they've never been in a city where the church was so tangled up with the things of the world; that they often try to get transferred to other charges. Either get right with God or let's quit. I want to know what you're going to do. If you're not willing to purify the church, to cast out those things that are worldly and that are holding the church back—why, then, I'm through."

A little before he had flared up in a criticism of the tardiness of Baltimoreans in coming forward with larger collections at the Tabernacle.

"We've had nearly 1,000,000 people at the Tabernacle meetings here," he said, "and in the five weeks we haven't raised $35,000. And yet in New York 12,000 people paid the other night just $151,000 for the privilege of seeing two pigs stand up in the prize ring and pound each other for 40 minutes."

Baltimore the Goat.

The State loan of $3,000,000 for roads and other purposes arranged by Governor Harrington, some Eastern Shore Senators and others illustrates the treatment which Baltimore receives when it comes to handing out legislative favors. Baltimore is to get but 20 per cent. of the $2,500,000 to be expended for roads, though this city pays 70 per cent. of the taxes of the State. Armories are to be built for the militia organizations in Cambridge, Hyattsville and Westminster, but not a cent is allowed to Baltimore for its Fourth Regiment Armory.

The appropriation for those at Westminster, Hyattsville and Cambridge is justified, but on what theory is that granted and the more important one for this city's regiment denied? Only on the theory that Baltimore is a very amiable goat and will stand for anything the counties choose to put over on it. It cannot have room to grow because the counties object; it cannot have an armory because the counties do not see fit to let it have it, though the city would pay nearly three-fourths of the money required to erect it. All that our country masters will grant us is the privilege of paying 70 per cent. of the State taxes. If we are not to get either annexation or our armory, why not hold up this loan bill in the House? Why should the city delegation not make a fight for the city's interests? Annexation and the Fourth Regiment Armory are very important matters to Baltimore. Why should this city always be sacrificed to county politics and county selfishness?—Sun.

Safe Medicine for Children.

"Is it safe?" is the first question to be considered when buying cough medicine for children. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has long been a favorite with mothers of young children as it contains no opium or other narcotic, and may be given to a child as confidently as to an adult. It is pleasant to take, too, which is of great importance when a medicine must be given to young children. This remedy is most effective in relieving coughs, colds and croup. Obtainable everywhere. Giving to Tramps.

What shall be done with the vagrant who comes to your back door asking for food? This is a question that bothers many kind people. It is much easier to give than to withhold from the seedy and pathetic creature who asks so little compared with your abundance. Yet the assistance is commonly undeserved. The New York Salvation Army has studied this beggar life pretty closely, having maintained a "bread line" for many years. The other day an employment agency man offered work to 200 of these beggars. In only five cases was it accepted, in even a half-hearted way. Many of these men also patronized other bread lines, on which they depended for a living. The Army on this showing decided to give up this form of charity.

The easier it is to get food at back door handouts, the more pleasant and profitable the life of the tramp becomes. It acquires the character of a regular business, and is organized and systematized. Places where good feeds can be had become widely known through the mysterious telegraphy of the underworld. Yet it seems as if there should be some human contact with these pathetic wayfarers. Locking them up in jail and kicking them out of town the next day does no good. They are used to it and regard it as all in the day's work.

Some people combining generosity with intelligence make it a practice to stop and talk with all who ask alms. They are ready to help if the story seems hopeful, but the man with the strong breath gets no assistance. In the hearts of many vagrants there must be some desire for a more settled life. Sometimes the sense of shame can be roused. The mere gift of food or money without inquiry does more harm than good. But if a man really seems to have some good motives and a disposition to work, a little friendly advice while he bolts down his sandwich may set him to thinking about the futility of his life.—Frederick News.

Flour Made From Wood.

Washington, March 31.—More than twenty thousand tons of wood flour, valued at $300,000, are used annually in the United States in two widely different industries, the manufacture of dynamite, and the manufacture of inlaid linoleum.

Wood flour is also used in making composition flooring, oatmeal paper, and in several other industries. It forms one of the means by which the huge waste product of our lumber mills is beginning to find some better means of disposal than the burner. Since a total of 36,000,000 cords of such waste is produced each year at sawmills in the United States, of which about one-half goes into the furnaces as fuel, while the rest is burned as refuse to get rid of it, there is no lack of raw material for industries which can develop ways of turning this waste to account.

All wood flour-using industries require a white or very light cream-colored flour having good absorptive powers. The wood species that may be used are confined to the light, non-resinous conifers, and the white broadleaved woods like poplar, Spruce, white pine and poplar are the species most used. Mill waste, free from bark, furnishes much of the raw material for making wood flour.

For use in dynamite, the trade demands are said to require a white wood flour, since the freshness of dynamite stock is indicated by a light color. Dynamite flour must also be very absorptive, so there will be no leakage of nitroglycerine from the finished product. Wheat flour mill refuse and infusorial earth have also been used in dynamite making, but wood flour has practically replaced them in this country.

In the manufacture of linoleum, either wood or cork flour is used. The flour is mixed with a cementing material, spread out on burlap and rolled or pressed to a uniform thickness. The cement is the expensive constituent. Cork linoleum is the cheaper because less cement is necessary. The patterns are printed on, leaving a dark base. For inlaid or straight-lined linoleum, wood flour is used exclusively. Cork linoleum is always dark, and slightly more elastic than that produced from wood flour. The wearing qualities are about the same.

Two methods of producing wood flour are practiced; one using millstones, the other steel burr rollers to pulverize the wood. The latter requires only one-fourth as much power to operate as the former and was developed on the Pacific Coast to handle sawdust as a raw material. The mills of Norway which produce much of the European wood flour are of the stone type.

Wood flour mills are scattered over the country from Maine to California wherever the proper combination of wood and water power is available, and the domestic wood flour competes with the Norwegian product which, before the European war, was delivered at Atlantic ports for $12.50 to $15 per ton.—U. S. Forest Service.

Watch Child's Cough.

Colds, running of nose, continued irritation of the mucous membrane if neglected may mean Catarrh later. Don't take the chances—do something for your child. Children will not take every medicine, but they will take Dr. King's New Discovery and without bribing or teasing. Its sweet pleasant Tar Syrup and so effective. Factories Are Replacing Parents.

In the April Woman's Home Companion Ida Tarbell describes how the modern factory is taking the place of parents in training girls and how it drives home certain ideas that are essential to good housekeeping.

"It demonstrates that order is not an external, artificial condition," she says, "cultivated because of a fear of what people will think if you are disorderly, but that it is a law on which results depend, and without which neither utility nor beauty is possible. It drives home the reasons for promptness, exactness, consideration of others. A girl who has become a desirable operator under our new industrial code has had a training which will serve her in anything she undertakes, and without which nothing she would ever undertake could properly succeed. But what a reflection on the trainers of the young in and out of school that a girl must go into a factory or shop to learn to be prompt, exact, attentive, how to become interested in the thing to be done and to sense its relation to other things!"

INFLAMED UDDERS.

Cause and Treatment of the Two Forms of This Disease.

Garget makes an appearance every once in a while in cows which apparently are in perfect health, says Professor F. B. Hadley of the Wisconsin experiment station. The milk in severe cases is either stringy or otherwise altered in character when drawn and collects a yellowish colored sediment on standing. In less pronounced cases there may be little visible change in the milk, but an examination would reveal a large number of germs.

Noninfectious garget is caused by bruises or other injuries or by a sud-

An admirer of the breed says the Guernsey cow of true type shows a ruggedness of constitution and vigor that indicate a profitable dairy cow. She is an animal of great dairy capacity, economically producing a large quantity of yellow colored and fine flavored milk and butter fat. The cow pictured is a pure bred Guernsey.

den congestion of blood in the udder, as frequently occurs in heavy milkers and in heifers at first calving. Affected animals usually make a complete recovery if given one and one-half pounds of epsom salts and their feed is restricted to that of a succulent nature.

The cause of infectious garget is a germ or germs. When many of them are present in the udder not only is the milk changed, as mentioned above, but the udder itself becomes hot and sensitive to the touch.

The importance of the infectious form of garget rests in the fact that it is usually not easily cured and has a tendency to recur. Furthermore, the disease is easily conveyed to healthy cows through the medium of the milker's hands or contaminated material of any kind unless precautions are taken to avoid the transfer of the germs.

Temporary relief may be given by bathing the udder in hot water for one-half hour each morning and evening. After thoroughly drying the surface of the udder warm cottonseed oil should be rubbed in with the palm of the hand.

A complete cure is possible in most cases only by drying the cow off at once, so that her system may be free to fight the disease producing germs that are present in the udder.

FEEDING A DRY COW.

Ration Suitable For an Animal That Is About to Freshen.

A ration suitable for a cow closely approaching freshening is not suitable for a cow giving milk or well advanced in her period of lactation because the purpose for which each cow is fed is different, says Kimball's Dairy Farmer.

The purpose of feeding the cow due to freshen is to rest her digestive apparatus, store up flesh and stamina in and on her body so she will be in the best of condition to freshen and start on the year's work before her as well as to nourish the unborn calf.

To accomplish these things feeds of a laxative nature should be used as well as those which will furnish protein to nourish the calf and carbohydrates to give flesh to the cow. Therefore an excellent ration for the pregnant cow is clover hay and corn silage all she will eat up clean. Some of the oat hay will also be valuable, but there is little value in timothy and red top for dairy cows at any time.

Cottonseed meal and gluten should not be fed heavily to a cow just prior to freshening, and cornmeal should be used only in limited amounts. An excellent ration consists of two parts wheat bran, two parts ground oats or distillers' grain, from one to two parts of cornmeal, according to the condition of the cow, and one part oil-meal.

She should be fed well of this ration for at least six weeks prior to freshening, during which time she should be dry and resting. The cow in question will eat to advantage from eight to fourteen pounds of this mixture daily up to within seven days of freshening, when the ration should be gradually decreased, and two or three days prior to freshening the cow should be placed on a bran mash and fed this until three days after freshening, when she should again be started on a grain ration, which should be gradually increased as she increases in milk flow.

Milk Secretion.

Milk is secreted in the udder from blood serum. A big yield of milk is dependent upon good health and rich blood. The udder is both a factory and a storehouse. It consists of many hollow spaces or cavities of varying sizes, muscular tissue, cells, veins, arteries, nerves, lymphatics and connecting canals. The blood is the raw material, the cells the manufacturing agents, the nerves the power or stimulating forces and the canals the tracts of delivery.

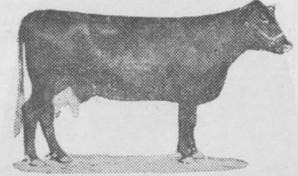

THE DAIRYMAN.

- ◆ Give the young bull more wheat bran than cornmeal if you want to develop him as a good sire. Feed more for muscular development than for fat.
- ◆ Get the box stalls ready for the cows that are to calve in the early spring.
- ◆ Remember that the cow needs some extra protection in cold weather. Feed plenty of succulent fodder.
- ◆ If the cow produces only enough cream to pay for her feed she still shows a profit.
- ◆ Remember the calves, the manure for the soil and the skim-milk for the hogs.
- ◆ When we see the cows racing from the pasture with a dog hanging to the tail of one of the herd it is a sure sign of bad luck.

WHAT IS PROFITABLE MILK PRODUCTION?

The amount of milk or butter fat a cow should give in a year in order to prove profitable cannot be answered unless the cost of production and the selling price are known, says Hoard's Dairyman. On the whole, however, a cow that produces an average of 200 pounds of fat in a year will yield a modest profit if properly cared for and if the prices for her product are not below normal. The amount of milk a cow should give in order to produce 200 pounds of fat will be found by dividing this fat production by the average fat per cent of her milk. For instance, a cow producing 5 per cent milk should give 4,000 pounds of milk in order to produce 200 pounds of fat.

In giving this average production of 200 pounds of fat, however, we would

Red Poll cattle are considered as belonging to the dual purpose breeds. An admirer of the Red Poll cow says that she requires little more feed than the Jersey, will keep in condition on as cheap and rough rations as the Holstein and gives more milk than the Jersey. The milk is much richer in butter fat than Holstein milk, and in addition the Red Poll from calfhood to old age is always ready for the butcher. The cow shown is a Red Poll.

add that this is perhaps the low limit and does not offer the opportunity for a large measure of profit. The ideal should be to have the herd average 250 pounds of fat, and as this ideal becomes realized the ideal of a higher production should be set.

According to all experimental work that has been done, fat cannot be fed into milk. This accords with the experience of observing and careful dairymen. It is, of course, possible to increase or decrease the fat per cent of the milk for a short time by creating some disturbance in the animal's digestion by improper feeding or by some other method, either intentional or otherwise. However, this change in fat per cent will continue for a short time only, and the cow will later return to her normal. It is also possible to bring cows up to freshening time in a somewhat fat condition, and they will for a time maintain a high fat percentage in their milk. As in the previous case, this fat percentage will not be maintained, and the cow will drop back to what is her normal percentage of fat.

The milk of each individual cow seems to possess a fixed composition that is natural to her, and under normal conditions the richness of the milk is in no way dependent upon the care or amount of feed fed, except that cows that are starved or greatly underfed may produce milk somewhat lower in fat percentage than normal. One is quite safe in saying that the kind of feed fed will not either raise or lower the average fat per cent of a cow, neither will it bring, in and of itself, temporary fluctuation in the fat per cent.

Practical Dairy Rations.

From the standpoint of economy and efficiency two kinds of roughage foods should enter into ration making for dairy cows. One of these should be of a leguminous nature, such as alfalfa, clover or cowpeas, to furnish crude protein and mineral matter. The other, richer in the starch or carbohydrates, should be succulent in character, as, for instance, corn silage or roots. These classes of roughage should provide from 70 to 80 per cent of the necessary carbohydrates and from 50 to 60 per cent of the protein. The remaining portion of the ration should be supplied by the addition of grain concentrates, two or more kinds being preferable and ranging in quantity from three pounds to ten or twelve pounds daily, depending upon the quantity of milk yielded and the stage of the lactation period.

Keep a Few Cows.

A few good dairy cows on the farm will relieve a man from much anxiety and much worry as to where the money is coming from to meet the regular bills that are inevitable.

has to say about cream separators this week

YOU will find the De Laval is the easiest and most satisfactory to use and keep in good running order. There is nothing about the operation, cleaning, adjustment or care of a modern De Laval which requires expert knowledge or special tools.

Only tool required

There are no parts which require frequent adjustment in order to keep the machine running smoothly or to conform to varying conditions in the every day use of a cream separator.

There is nothing about this machine that cannot be taken apart, removed or replaced by any one who can use a wrench or screw driver. In fact, the only tool which is needed for the operation of a De Laval Cream Separator is the combination wrench and screw driver illustrated above, furnished free with the machine.

We will be glad to have you examine a De Laval and see for yourself the simplicity and convenience of its construction.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

IN THE SCHOOL LUNCH

SANDWICHES NECESSARILY PLAY AN IMPORTANT PART.

So Great a Variety Is Possible That the Children Will Not Soon Tire of Them—Some Substitutes for Meat.

Well-prepared sandwiches should form an important part of every school lunch. They are easily made and should be very wholesome and palatable. Variety is the spice of life here as elsewhere, and there should be at least two kinds of sandwiches in each lunch. The number and kind may be varied from day to day.

Cut the bread for sandwiches into thin slices of uniform thickness with a sharp knife, and spread the butter evenly over both slices of bread in order to keep it moist and prevent any fruit filling that may be used from making the sandwiches soggy or indigestible. Sandwiches made several hours before they are to be eaten should be wrapped in a moist cloth and kept in a cool place, or wrapped in wax paper, to prevent them from drying or absorbing odors.

In giving these directions for making sandwiches, Miss Bab Bell of the University of Missouri, college of agriculture, says little about meat sandwiches because most people are familiar with the ordinary ham sandwich, and in many cases such meat substitutes as peanut butter, eggs or cheese should be used instead of the more expensive meats.

Here are some good sandwich materials:

Bread and Butter.—Cut the bread in thin slices. Spread the butter evenly on both slices and press together.

Lettuce.—Make a bread-and-butter sandwich and place a leaf of crisp lettuce, washed and thoroughly dried, between the two slices. Put a teaspoonful of mayonnaise dressing on the lettuce leaf.

Nuts.—Make a lettuce sandwich, spread one side with nuts, chopped fine, and mixed with good dressing.

Chicken.—Chop cold boiled chicken and moisten with mayonnaise dressing. Spread between bread. Add a lettuce leaf.

Eggs.—Chop the whites of hard boiled eggs very fine. Mix the yolks with mayonnaise dressing and season with pepper and salt. Add the whites and spread between bread. Lettuce may be used also.

Dates.—Make a filling of one-half cupful of stoned dates, one-half cupful of sweet cream; spread between slices of buttered bread.

Pimento and Cheese.—Make a filling of one-half cupful of cream cheese and one-fourth cupful of chopped pimento, two tablespoonfuls salad dressing, salt and pepper. Spread on butter evenly. Cottage cheese may be used or the pimento may be left out.

Peanut Butter.—Peanuts ground and mixed with a salad dressing make an excellent filling. The commercial peanut butter may also be used. Spread evenly between buttered bread. A crisp lettuce leaf adds to the attractiveness of this sandwich.

Beef Patties.

Take thick slices of bread—a week old if it can be obtained—make them the desired form and size with a tin cutter; scoop out the middle to receive the mince; dip each piece of bread into cream and when drained brush them with the white of egg; dredge bread crumbs or bread raspings over them; fry in good fresh butter, then fill them with the following mince, made hot: Shred one pound undercooked beef, a little fat and lean together; season with pepper or cayenne, salt and a little onion or shallot.

Cocoonut Custard Pudding.

One-half cupful prepared cocoonut, two cupfuls milk, one-quarter cupful sugar, one cupful breadcrumbs, yolk one egg, a little nutmeg, one teaspoonful butter. Soak cocoonut and breadcrumbs in milk an hour. Bake about an hour. Frost with white of one egg beaten, two tablespoonfuls powdered sugar and one tablespoonful cocoonut. Brown slightly in oven.

Orange Trifle.

One teaspoonful gelatin, one-fourth cupful boiling water, one-fourth cupful cold water and three-fourths cupful of cream whipped, one-half teaspoonful lemon juice, grated rind of one-half orange. Soak gelatin in cold water, add sugar and fruit juices, strain in chilled bowl, cool, beat until it begins to thicken, fold in beaten cream and mold.

Keeping Yeast.

Where convenient purchase yeast cakes just before using. However, the yeast will remain fresh and sweet for a week or ten days if kept in a cool, dry place, preferably a refrigerator. A slight discoloration has no effect on the quality of yeast. If it is firm, it is suitable for use—if too soft to handle, it must be used.

Macaroon Pudding.

Yolks of four eggs, add two-thirds quart of cold milk, one cupful sugar and two tablespoonfuls gelatin dissolved; stir the mixture over the fire until it boils, beat the whites of eggs until stiff and flavor with vanilla. Put all in a mold and throw macaroons in the mixture.

When Baking Potatoes.

Butter potatoes when putting them into the oven to bake, as the fat softens the skin and makes a more attractive vegetable to serve.

GUIDE TO TEACHING

AGRICULTURAL IS ISSUED

Agricultural College Bulletin Contains Many Suggestions Helpful to Both Young And Old.

"Elementary Vocational Agriculture for Maryland Schools," the first textbook of its nature ever issued by an agricultural college, has been prepared by the States Relations Service of the United States Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Maryland Agricultural College and the Maryland State Department of Public Education. It is designed to interest the children of rural Maryland in the things that are going on around them, and the Maryland Agricultural College has arranged to furnish it to the schools of the State at cost.

The lessons in vocational agriculture were outlined by E. A. Miller, specialist in agricultural education with the States Relations Service, under the direction of C. H. Lane, chief specialist in agricultural education with the service. The technical contents, which have special reference to Maryland conditions, were furnished by the following professors of the Maryland Agricultural College: W. T. L. Talliaferro, S. S. Buckley, J. B. S. Norton, Herman Beckenstrater, J. E. Metzger, R. H. Ruffner, E. N. Cory, B. W. Ansporn, C. O. Bruce, Nicholas Schmitz, G. E. Wolcott, Roy H. Waite, W. R. Ballard and Thomas H. White.

Lessons Are Timely.

The lessons are outlined after a monthly sequence plan and adapted to the seasonal, agricultural and school conditions of Maryland. By presenting lessons in the subject of agriculture at the time the principles in these lessons should be practiced on the farms of the community, two objects were in view: the vitalizing of classroom work by having timely material at hand for practical work, and the teaching of what is best to do at the time it should be done.

Recognizing that the school conditions of the State make impracticable the giving of more than two, and at the most three, lessons in agriculture each week, the book has been adapted to these conditions. The work is arranged to cover the nine months of the school year, although suggestions for actual management are also provided for the months of June, July and August.

Brings Farm And School Together.

The practical exercises suggested in the book take the direction very largely of club activities and home projects. It is urged by the author that the teachers emphasize this phase of the work. "Teaching agriculture and correlating it with other subjects," Mr. Miller says, "cannot be made effective unless the pupil demonstrates the principles taught in some kind of farm project and utilizes the project experiences in vitalizing the other subjects in the school course."

The correlation exercises set forth in connection with each lesson are largely suggestive. These are intended to indicate how the teacher may take advantage of the experiences and problems the pupils meet in their club and project work to give vitality to the subjects of English, arithmetic, geography, history, drawing and the like.

Although "Elementary Vocational Agriculture for Maryland Schools" is primarily an outline—to guide the teacher, and secondarily as a textbook for pupils, it has a wealth of information of a very practical nature of value and interest to the men and women on the farms as well.

LITTLE CHICKS SHOULD BE PROTECTED FROM VERMIN.

R. H. WAITE,
Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

One of the worst things to contend with in the brooding of young chicks, with hens, is lice. Most hens have lice, and if the old brood hen has them, nothing is more certain than that she will very quickly pass them on to the chicks. Lice do not trouble the old hen so much, because they are so much smaller than she is, but with the little chick it is different. It does not take many lice on a young chick to kill it.

The "best treatment" for lice on little chicks is to kill the lice on the old hen before she hatches the chicks. Chicks are so delicate they do not withstand much doping, but, of course, if you have been so careless as to let them get infested, you will have to do something. Lice do most damage on the young chick's head, hence this is the part usually treated. A very small amount of lard or vaseline spread over the top of the head will kill the head lice.

Chicks must be carefully protected from enemies. There are no rules for this, each brooding place being a problem in itself and each requiring a different solution. The principle thing is to anticipate the trouble if possible and take precautions early enough to prevent the enemies from getting a start. Prevention, aside from saving some of the chicks, is much easier than trying to cure. Be on the lookout for rats, crows, hawks, weasels, etc., about the place and take measures that will keep them away from the chicks or keep the chicks away from the enemies. Enemies to poultry will be more fully discussed in another lesson.

Wet grass is fatal to chicks if the old hen is allowed to "drag" them through it. While the grass is wet in the morning or after rains, the hen should be confined, that is if she is in the habit of roaming around in grass tall enough to wet the chicks.

TYRONE.

Samuel Kauffman and wife, spent Thursday evening with Levi Maus and family.

A quilting was held at the home of Ira Rodkey on March 30, 1916. At an early hour the neighbors and friends began to arrive, and commenced to work at once. At 12 o'clock all were invited to the dining room to partake of a sumptuous dinner, consisting of roasted chicken, oysters and many of the good things that go to make a good meal. At 4 o'clock the ladies announced their work finished, when we were again invited to the dining room to partake of the following dainties: ice cream, cake, candies and apples. With regret the time had arrived that we must depart and go to our respective homes and trust that more of such happy events may occur in our community.

Those present were, Ira Rodkey and wife, Wm. Flickinger and wife, Raymond Rodkey and wife, Mrs. Eva Humbert, Mrs. Howard Rodkey, Mrs. George Nabebaum, Mrs. Margaret Utermahlen, Mrs. Wm. Flohr, Mrs. Charles Humbert, Mrs. Samuel Kauffman, Mrs. Noah Babylon and Mrs. Charles Lutz; Misses Bessie Yingling, Sadie and Anna Flickinger, Naomi, Grace, Ruthanna and Alice Rodkey, Mary Utermahlen and Annie Lutz; Messrs Jacob Rodkey, Geary Bankard, Luther and Martin Rodkey and Stanley Lutz.

A large number of their friends accompanied them to their new home.

Spring.

Spring is looked upon by many as the most delightful season of the year, but this cannot be said of the rheumatic. The cold and damp weather brings on rheumatic pains which are anything but pleasant. They can be relieved, however, by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. Obtainable everywhere.

A Very Enjoyable Moving.

Theodore Cummings moved his family from Martin Buffington's farm, near Mt. Union, to the late Calvin Ander's farm, near Clemsonville, on Tuesday, April 4. Mr. Cummings thanks his few neighbors, for they certainly did work faithfully, as they know what a good dinner they were prepared for, they got there by 11 o'clock and the women soon made haste and had a large table in the dining room laden with all good things that could be wished for. The ladies served ice cream and cakes of all kinds. Mrs. Cummings and her daughters know how to make good things. Mr. Cummings had only a couple of his neighbors to come along, and he is very glad he moved into a neighborhood where he has friends and neighbors.

Those present were, Theodore Cummings and wife, Charles Earnest and wife, Ezra Horton and wife, Roy Fringer and wife, Wm. K. William James Heaps. Republican Candidate for Congress. To All Republicans Voters. At the urgent and insistent requests of many political friends throughout the Second Congressional District I hereby announce my candidacy for the nomination for Congress at the Primaries to be held on May 1, and pledge my friends and supporters if nominated to make the same vigorous campaign on Republican Principles and Doctrines that has characterized my public addresses and campaign utterances in the recent campaigns. My claim for support of the Republicans in my district is based upon the fact that in 1914 at a late hour (but one month before election) I entered the campaign as candidate with the understanding that if I made a fair run I would receive the backing of the party for the coming election. The excellent run of 1914 is a matter of history. My claim is founded furthermore on the strenuous work done for the party in the mayoralty campaign last spring, and in the gubernatorial campaign last fall. If nominated I will enter the coming campaign with the same vigor for Protection, Preparedness and Prosperity that has characterized all former campaigns. I shall make my fight if nominated on straight Republican doctrines as laid down by the Chicago platform, and consider myself bound if elected to work for their fulfillment. As I cannot in the short time between now and the primaries see all the voters I hereby solicit their support. WILLIAM JAMES HEAPS. Political Advertisement. 3-31-16

Senator Lodge on Preparedness.

Senator Lodge, who always commands respectful attention to his expressions on public questions, said on Tuesday in an address in the Senate on the armory bill sent over from the House;

"At this moment this country practically is undefended. Our defenses go just far enough if we are invaded by a formidable, modern, well-equipped army to insure the sacrifice of many brave and noble lives, and nothing else. Of the two branches of defense which can most quickly be provided for is the defense by land—the army. If we had a navy competent to meet an attack, the defense by land would be less important. We have no such navy, and there is no use in dwelling in a fool's paradise and telling ourselves that we have.

"What we need is a force sufficient to meet the first attack of an invading foe and to hold that long enough to enable us to call out our resources and train additional men. The lowest estimate of such a force as that is 500,000 men, and the one object that I think ought to be pursued is to see to it that we have that force and more, because we must allow for casualties and for the failure of men to respond in the organization already made.

"The House bill is practically worthless. The Senate committee's bill is a most excellent bill. I regard it as valuable as far as it goes. It does not go nearly far enough, in my opinion. I think we ought to begin with at least 250,000 in the regular army, an actual force of 250,000 regulars. The next most important thing is to have reserves, or what you please to call it—a force that can be quickly mobilized and put into immediate co-operation with the regular army.

"I agree that universal compulsory training is what we ought to have, and that the country must come to it. We have a nominal army of 100,000 regulars. We have a mobile force of but 25,000. We have a militia of infantry which the prescribed strength is 120,000, and there were only 99,000 on the rolls on the date of last inspection. Of these men we can hope to get but a portion.

"If you double the militia, as this bill expects to do, you can count on 150,000. Your mobile force of regulars, I suppose, may be enlarged to 50,000, and this, with the militia, will give us 250,000 men of a mobile force. You must have 300,000 more to meet the first attack of a well-equipped invading army."

Didn't Have Time.

A veterinary surgeon one day prepared a powder for a sick horse and gave it to his young assistant to administer. The assistant asked how it was to be done, and the doctor gave him a large glass tube and told him to put the tube into the horse's mouth and blow the powder down his throat. A short time afterward there was a great commotion, and the doctor rushing out to find his assistant in trouble.

"Where is that medicine?" he shouted. "What's the matter?" "The assistant coughed several times severely, and then spluttered: 'The horse blew first!'"

Playgrounds.

I do not know of any better way to teach a boy to be honorable and straight than to give him a chance to play with his comrades. In the playground he learns without any suggestion of rebellion against instruction and precept and preaching. He learns it because he does not want anybody else to cheat him and is "down" on the boy that does not play fair. And in the long run, because he is "down" on the boy that does not play fair, he will establish standards of conduct which we must maintain in the community and particularly in our great cities. If there is one thing that we need more than another it is the constant emphasis among our citizens of that spirit of fair play, that willingness to give and take, that generosity in defeat and that lack of assertiveness in victory which we identify with true sport and which is learned best of all in childhood upon the playground.—Justice Charles E. Hughes, United States supreme court.

SUNDAY'S APPEAL TO THE MEN

Moves Thousands to Tears By His Earnest Plea.

BIG TABERNACLE THROGGED

Trail Harvest Delights Him—Brass Knuckles Found—Junior Order Has Big Turnout.

NEARLY 1,000 PERSONS HIT THE TRAIL.

Nine hundred and seventy-three hit the trail at the services at the tabernacle and outside meetings Sunday. Eight hundred and forty went forward at the tabernacle, 691 being men and boys, and professed conversion at the meetings of the afternoon and evening. This brought the grand total of trail-hitters to 13,572.

Forty-one thousand people attended the tabernacle services, bringing the total of attendance for the campaign to 926,500.

Baltimore.—"I draw a circle about you now, and if you don't instantly step out, God will take it that you do not intend to step out, and it will be war through eternity!"

Billy Sunday uttered this cry to 27,000 men who made up his afternoon and evening congregations Sunday, following the sermon he preached at both services on the text "Choose ye this day whom you will serve," and up the sawdust trail surged 691 converts. These, with 149 persons who had hit the trail at the forenoon service, made the day's total for the tabernacle 840.

The sermon to men only was one of the most dramatic that Sunday has delivered here, in that it was burdened with a warning as imperative as that which John the Baptist uttered in the wilderness, calling upon unbelievers to repeat, turn from wickedness and seek the true God.

Makes Them Sit Up.

"This may be the funeral sermon for some of you!" Sunday thundered—and men sat bolt upright, eyes wide with emotion whipped to white heat; scores wept openly and turned again to gaze, fairly fascinated, at the man who was flaying their sins as had no other preacher who ever called upon Baltimore to turn to Christ.

When the evangelist saw the effect of his sermon at night, saw the converts pushing forward in numbers that bade fair to set a new record, his face lighted up with joy which he could hardly contain. After the first rush of hand-shaking was over he sprang about the platform in uncontrollable exuberance, took hold the pulpit and swung upon it as though he were practicing in a gymnasium; threw himself face downward on the carpet to reach the hands of some belated trail-hitters, sprang upon the press table, grabbed two outstretched palms at once and said excitedly: "This has been a great day in old Baltimore, boys, a great day!"

Women Not Allowed.

Although there was nothing in the sermon proper for a mixed audience to hear—and in this respect it was vastly different from the much-talked-of "Devil's Boomerang" sermon—women were excluded, Ma Sunday, who attended the evening service, being the sole representative of her sex.

For a few minutes Ma's distinction was disputed by two women who slipped into the tabernacle through one of the back doors. They were accompanied by two men, and were just determined to stick, whether or no. A police sergeant discovered them after a while and hurried to find Captain Hurley. The captain sent him back with orders to eject the intruders. The ejection was accomplished without disturbance.

A little before this one of the ushers thought he caught sight of a woman's head about midway of the first section. He hurried down to make an investigation and discovered that the head belonged to a long-haired boy.

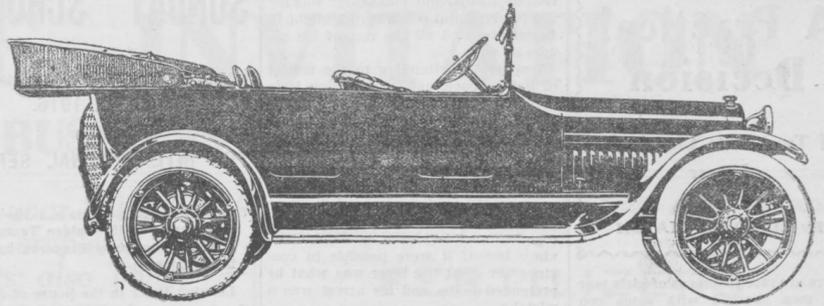

Straight-Out Doctrine.

The most distinctive feature of the sermon of the afternoon and evening was that it was the first straight-out doctrinal talk given at a meeting for men only. It contained no particular exhortation of the liquor traffic, no statistic dealing with the social evil. It flayed not the dance, nor gambling nor politics; was singularly free from what Sunday's critics would call vulgarities. Yet, although it was by no means "Sundayesque," it brought more persons up the sawdust aisles even than did the recently preached sermon on "Amusements," when the congregations were half again as large.

Varying the usual program, the evening service was launched with a call for "sentence" prayers by members of the congregation. A man arose at the general invitation, uttered a brief prayer; two other men stood up when he concluded and launched into prayers simultaneously. Homer Rodeheaver made the last prayer.

Obligated to Conversion.

The keynote of the whole sermon, which was the shortest that Sunday has delivered on any Sunday night in his campaign here, was that men were

POWER

THAT LAUGHS AT THE HEAVIEST ROADS.

NEVER, in the history of the industry has there been a car that offered so much Power at its price as the New Series 17 Studebaker.

Never, has there been offered to the man living in the country, to the man running a farm, to the man driving over muddy roads and trying hills, a car with such masterful, yet economical power as this Series 17 Studebaker possesses.

POWER with economy of gasoline has always been a Studebaker ideal.

It is the ideal car for the man operating a farm—big, light, and sturdy and easily operated. It is handsome in design and finish. It incorporates many new refinements of design, such as the tank in the rear with Stewart Vacuum Feed; DIVIDED and adjustable front seats; over-lapping, storm-proof wind shields; self-starting and lighting control and other instruments conveniently located on dash, illuminated by new indirect lighting system.

AND, taken from any angle, it offers the BIGGEST value, dollar for dollar of the price, that the industry has ever seen.

SUNDAY SAYINGS

Away with the hellish idea that the preacher has to do just so and so and you can live like the devil.

There's too much joining the church and too little joining Jesus Christ. The church doesn't need new members half as much as she needs the old bunch made over. Whosoever will, let him come; whosoever won't, let him go to the devil.

If your culture is in the way of being a Christian it spells hell—H E double L—hell.

I was offered $175,000 to pose for the movies, but I refused. I won't commercialize religion.

Some men remind me of the signs in a butcher shop, "Dressed pork, pressed beef."

Any man can give an excuse for not being a Christian, but no man can give a reason.

The reason many of you men have not hit the trail is because you are not men enough.

You will need the church for a hiding place when the devil forecloses the mortgage on your soul.

The saloon has no right to exist. It has not a leg to stand on.

The stage of today is worse than in the days of paganism.

A good moral show is a financial loss to its backers. An obscene show puts the S. R. O. sign out every performance.

I think it's a shame to see a poor old dame, with skirts above her shoptops and face covered with cosmetics, trying to beat old Father Time.

A leg show makes the most money, especially the ones that have women, who don't wear enough clothes to make a tail for a kite.

Religion in Baltimore is losing its grip. It has taken us five weeks to raise less than $35,000. A prizefight in New York took in $151,000 in 40 minutes.

France's Gift to America.

The French republic presented to the University of California the collection of some 6,000 volumes, assembled to mirror the contributions of France to civilization, which formed a notable feature of the French exhibit at the Panama-Pacific international exposition. These volumes were selected by distinguished French authorities in various fields of science and the humanities, those in philosophy being selected by Henri Bergson; in sociology, by Emile Durkheim; in education, by Paul Lape; in mathematics, by Paul Appell; in astronomy, by B. Baillaud; in physics, by Edmond Bouty; in chemistry, by Andre Job; in mineralogy, by Alfred Lacroix.

Fish Respond to Call.

Splashing is not supposed to be the best thing in the world for a fisherman to do, but in Gatun lake, Panama, fish crowd around in large numbers whenever the surface is disturbed, the explanation being that they find their richest food on the limbs of water-killed trees, which are continually breaking off and falling. "Green" visitors are often convinced that the fish in Gatun lake will come in answer to a call, the call being a splash made with a dough ball at the end of a pole and line.

Feminine Diplomacy.

Young Physician—But isn't seven dollars a week rather high for a room like this?

Landlady—Oh, no; not for a doctor.

Young Physician—And why not for a doctor, pray?

Landlady—Well, you see, this is a very unhealthy house, and there is never a week passes but a dozen or more of my roomers are ill.

THE BABY AND ITS RELATIVES

Inevitable Conflict Between Young Mother and Grandmother—There's Danger of Unhappiness.

Presumably, at the advent of the first new baby, the parents' relatives are invaluable assistants, whether they live in the house or merely come to dinner on Sunday. In plain, cold fact they are often the greatest hindrance a young mother has to contend with in the proper adjustment of her home to the new baby.

The dullest imagination can picture the inevitable conflict of opinion and practice between the daughter or daughter-in-law and the woman whose family has reached maturity. The methods of the latter appear to be fully justified by results. The former has no specific warrant for the stand she endeavors to take, except the printed book of rules which have been urged upon her by doctor and nurse. She has to grope her way toward skillful baby management, watching anxiously, trying each step of the way, buoyed up only by the conviction that science and hospital regime advocate the newer way. Physically she is not quite herself for some months. No matter how strong her will or how unshakable her determination, a persistent mother-in-law will either ultimately succeed in interfering with her schedule or cause her untold irritation and agony of mind in the meantime.

AFTER HEARING REAL MUSIC

If One Has True Appreciation Nothing is Finer Than Beethoven Played by Master Pianist.

In that moment I could have sworn the pianist became a little black man with a lion's head and eyes that burned. The brow was ponderous with brooding, and the lips were straight with suffering. The ill-fitting coat was cut as once long ago coats were cut with a high collar. Humpy about the shoulders. Trousers too ample. Then I saw again the wild, tossed hair, the gloomy brows and eyes that burned beneath with strange fires. And as he played the white keys faded and the great black sweep of the concert grand, and the huge-headed man stood quite alone, shaken by blasts of music that were hot as passion, bitter as salt tears, penetrating as the infinite stars. "My God," said someone at my elbow, "that is Beethoven!" Then the music stopped. I tell you, it was still as morning, and a little swarthy man grinned and bowed without a hand to clap him for full ten deep breaths; and when it came, the harsh, long rush of clapping hands, it seemed that great golden things were being smashed and let fall down jarring to the earth.

Onion Once Worshipped.

The gentleman of Shakespeare's play who spoke of the hopelessness of painting the lily may or may not have been a lover of creamed onions, and perhaps did not know that the onion plant is of the lily family. The odor of the flower and of the vegetable is almost of the same horse power, but everyone knows that the onion is never used for perfume. Nevertheless, the use of the onion dates back to the earliest ages of authentic history, the Kansas City Star remarks. It is said that it was worshipped in ancient Egypt before the Christian era, and it was used in the ancient druidic worship in Britain. Its original home, according to Prof. E. H. S. Bailey of the University of Kansas, was in southern Asia or along the Mediterranean. In the United States the onion holds third place among truck crops. In 1908 14,000,000 bushels, valued at $10,000,000, were grown and consumed here. As for garlic, as Kipling might say, "That's another onion."

A Practical Decision

Of Two Evils Choose the Lesser

By ELEANOR MARSH

There are rare instances of girls marrying men charged with some contemptible crime, the evidence of the man's guilt being overwhelming and no explanation whatever being offered. Several such cases have come to light when it has been suspected that the accused was made a scapegoat to screen some royal personage. I have one such case in mind that occurred in England twenty years ago. A baronet played baccarat with the heir to the throne. The baronet was accused of cheating. No defense was offered. At the height of the excitement an American girl married the supposed scapegoat. No explanation has ever been made.

It would be hard to find a case of love sacrifice more pronounced, even if the bride is convinced of the innocence of the husband.

A case something like this happened in my professional life. I was sitting in my office one morning when I received a telephone call that a man who had been arrested and was being held at a police station desired to see me. I went to the station at once and found the prisoner in the garb of an ordained minister. The name offered by the police was Jimmy Whiffler, alias the Rev. Miles Staples, alias Slippery Jim. I learned from the police that he was a sneak thief and confidence man, his last role being that of a three card monte sharp traveling with a circus.

The police had been looking for him for some time, but he must have had a confederate to keep him posted as to their movements, for whenever they proceeded to take him he was not there. The night before I was called for they had received a telephone message that they would find Slippery Jim in canonicals at the Ackley hotel. They went there and learned from the clerk that a man in clerical dress had come to the house during the evening.

Piloted by the clerk, a sergeant and two men went to the reverend gentleman's room and knocked. When he opened the door and saw the police he assumed surprise, which was to have been expected. He was told to put on his clothes and when he took them up for the purpose feigned to be dazed, wondering how they got into his room and declaring that they were not his and asserting that he was Arthur Poindexter and had come to the city late the evening before to visit his fiancée, the daughter of one Hugh MacDonald, a merchant in high repute. His name was on the register as Arthur Poindexter.

Such is a synopsis of the matter from the time of his arrival at the hotel to the moment of my arrival at the police station. He was conducted to a private room, where I was left alone with him. I asked him why he had sent for me, and he told me that he had asked the sergeant for the name of a criminal lawyer and I had been recommended.

Notwithstanding the apparent complicated condition of the case it seemed to me to be very simple. All he had to do was to send for his fiancée or some member of his family for identification. I proposed this to him, but he did not seem to place the reliance on it that I did. He said that during the winter he had made a trip to Florida, where he had met the lady who had become his fiancée. He had not yet met a single member of her family. Indeed, he did not see how the young lady herself could vouch for him. She had accepted him after a couple of months' sojourn at the same winter resort, her acceptance, of course, being conditional upon his presenting satisfactory credentials and the approval of her parents.

This certainly put a more serious phase upon the matter. Whatever faith the girl might put in him, her family would likely take the ground that she had met a scamp, who had fortunately been exposed before any serious harm had been done. I changed my mind about notifying Miss MacDonald or any of her family until I had had time for consideration. Indeed, the prisoner seemed greatly distressed at the idea of her being informed of his plight until he was ready to prove that he was not the man he was accused of being.

The case was puzzling. He claimed to have gone to the hotel in an ordinary business suit. When he was awakened by the police there on the chair on which he had placed his clothes was a suit evidently worn by a clergyman. But the most damning proof against him was that in the rogues' gallery was a photograph of the Rev. Miles Staples, and if it was not a photograph of the prisoner it was certainly very like him. I asked him if he had a brother who had gone to the bad, and he replied that he had no brother whatever nor was any member of his father's family living.

It seemed to me that unless I could find the party who had telephoned the police of his presence at the Ackley House I would have a difficult job to prove he was what he claimed to be. I had no great confidence in the identification of his friends, for once thrown a doubt on a person's identity and one may get evidence against him as well as for him. But the ultimate proving that he was Arthur Poindexter was not the fundamental point, for he might be Poindexter and all the rest of his aliases as well.

I suggested attending to the matter of bail at once, and this having been disposed of, I took my client from the jail, he bought other clothes and we went to my office. What was of immediate concern to him was that he was expected by his fiancée, and his nonappearance would trouble her and count against him. Nevertheless we both agreed that we had better get together such evidence as would convince her—if it were possible to convince her—that her lover was what he pretended to be and his arrest was a mistake.

The only evidence I sought which my client did not furnish was at the hotel. I questioned the clerks there, but none of them had any special memory as to Mr. Poindexter's arrival, and it would not have counted for much if they had.

Having made this investigation I returned to my office, where I found my client, who presented his credentials, which were as follows: Arthur Poindexter was a gentleman of means, given to travel. He suggested my telephoning his bankers, which I did, and they vouched for him. I also telephoned several of his friends in his home city, whose stories all agreed. I became convinced that he was what he purported to be and that some trick had been played upon him, by whom or for what purpose I could only conjecture.

Having made up my mind to this, I proposed to him that I should call upon Miss MacDonald and explain the situation. I could plead her fiancée's cause to better advantage under the circumstances than he could himself. He agreed with me, and I set forth on my quest.

I have pleaded many causes before a jury, but never one requiring such care as this. I was obliged to keep constantly in mind that, with the exception of a season at a winter resort, my client was a stranger to the lady. I proceeded with the utmost caution, stating the case from the reverse of which it had been stated here. I pictured her lover coming to town, buoyed with expectation of seeing her the day after his arrival; his being obliged to spend a night at a strange hotel; his going to bed and being awakened to find that a mistake had been made; his astonishment at seeing a clergyman's clothes where he had placed his own; his horror at being led away to a police station. Then I gave her the information I had elicited concerning her lover's identity and the excellent character that had been given him by his friends.

The young lady heard me through without a word, then astonished me by her marvelous penetration into the intricacies of the case.

"I would not think," she said, "of introducing to my family as my fiancée a man under such a charge. Some one, for some unknown purpose, has turned him over to the police as a criminal. He suffers from a misfortune which is as much mine as his. You may prove that he is Arthur Poindexter, but I don't see how you can prove that Arthur Poindexter is not a confidence man. In other words, I see no hope for him. As to my action in the matter his misfortune only draws me closer to him. What do you propose?"

"What I propose is made much easier for me and for my client and for you by your remarkable appreciation for the conditions. Two courses are open to him: Either to stand trial, pleading not guilty, or to jump his bail, which would be a bagatelle for one of his means, and disappear."

"Which do you recommend?" she asked after some thought.

"The latter course."

She sat thinking. I arose from my seat, went to a window and stood looking out, giving her time to consider. Presently she said:

"Tell him, please, that if he decides to follow your advice I will marry him and go with him. But on no account will I inform my family of what I intend to do. It would only make trouble for all of us without changing my resolution."

I returned to my office, where I found Poindexter and reported with enthusiasm what I considered his fiancée's noble sacrifice. I was some time in convincing him that the best thing he could do for both parties was to accept it. A marriage was arranged for the next day at my office, and immediately after the ceremony the bridal couple went on board a steamer sailing that night for a foreign port.

In due time an article appeared in a newspaper stating that Arthur Digby, alias Jimmie Whiffles, alias the Rev. Miles Staples, sneak thief and confidence man, had jumped his bail, taking with him as his wife a young lady well known in the highest social circles.

Naturally the marriage made a great stir in the social world and, for that matter, among those who did not know the parties.

Two years later Mr. and Mrs. Poindexter returned to America vindicated. The real Jimmie Whiffles, Rev. Miles Staples, etc., was captured and made the following confession: One evening in the Ackley hotel he saw a man who resembled himself. Jimmie was in canonicals at the time, and after the man (Poindexter) had gone to bed he stole up to his room, unlocked the door with a pair of pliers, stole the inmate's clothes, went to a bathroom, took off his canonicals, put on the stolen suit and replaced the former in the sleeper's room without awakening him. Then Jimmie went to a telephone booth and notified the police where they would find their quarry.

Practically the young couple's decision was a wise one. Of two evils they chose the lesser.

SUNDAY SCHOOL

Lesson III.—Second Quarter, April 16, 1916.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, Acts x, 1-16—Memory Verses, 13-15—Golden Text, Rom. x, 12—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

Leaving Peter in the house of Simon the tanner at Joppa (chapter ix, 43), we turn for a little while to the home of Cornelius, the centurion, at Caesarea, where we find a man who, with all his house, feared God, prayed to God always and gave much alms to the people (verses 1, 2). If religiousness and sincerity were all that is necessary we would think that this man was truly a saved man, but when we read that the angel said to Cornelius that Peter would tell him words whereby he and all his house would be saved (chapter xi, 13, 14) we know that they were not saved until after Peter came and preached the gospel to them. Like the treasurer of the queen of Ethiopia, he was an earnest seeker living up to the light he had, and to such God always sends more light, but there is no salvation revealed in Scripture as a result of our good works (Rom. iv, 5; Eph. ii, 8, 9; Tit. iii, 4, 5). It is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul, and without shedding of blood is no remission (Lev. xvii, 11; Heb. ix, 22).

Here, as in the case of the Ethiopian, the principal agencies used by God are an angel, the Holy Spirit, and a man (verses 3, 10). The eyes of the Lord are looking over the whole earth for whole hearts toward Himself, and it is also written "Ye shall seek Me and find Me when ye search for Me with all your heart" (11 Chron. xvi, 9; Jer. xxix, 13). Cornelius was whole hearted, according to the light he had, and was certainly a sincere seeker after God. The same Lord in heaven who saw the desire for light in the heart of the man in the chariot, saw it also in Cornelius, for he searches all hearts. So He sent an angel from heaven to the home of Cornelius, while he was in prayer (verse 30) to assure him that God had heard his prayers and recognized his alms (verses 3, 4). The ministry of the angels is always a most fascinating study. There are millions upon millions of them; they excel in strength, hear His voice, do His pleasure, go and come like lightning, minister to the saints (Rev. v, 11; Ps. ciii, 20, 21; Ezek. i, 14; Hab. i, 14). They seem easily to find any house and any person and need no doors opened for them. We shall be like them in many respects by and by, but higher than they in the glory, for we shall be like Him.

The rest of the angel's message was that Cornelius was to send to Joppa for Simon Peter and learn from him what to do. The last we heard of Philip he was on his way to Caesarea, where he evidently lived (Acts viii, 40; xxi, 8, 9), but perhaps had not reached home at this time. How easy to read that when the angel had delivered his message he departed (verse 7), but do we stop to consider that it meant returned to heaven, from whence he came a few moments before?

Cornelius was not slow to call two of his household servants and a devout soldier who waited on him continually, tell them all that had happened and start them off to Joppa.

Now we return to Peter, whom God had to prepare to go with these men to the home of Cornelius, a gentile. As the three men were approaching Joppa, Peter went on the housetop to pray. He was hungry and would have eaten, but while something was being prepared for him he fell into a trance. He saw heaven opened and something like a great sheet let down to the earth, full of all manner of creatures, and he was told to "Rise, kill and eat." When he objected on the ground that he had never eaten anything unclean, the voice said, "What God hath cleansed that call not thou common." This was repeated three times, and while Peter was wondering what it could mean the three men stood before the gate inquiring for him. The Spirit told him to go with them, for He had sent them. So, when the men had made known to him the cause wherefore they had come, he called them in and lodged them, and on the morrow went away with them, taking also some of the brethren from Joppa. The next day they reached the home of Cornelius and found that he had gathered many to hear the message.

In reply to Peter's inquiry as to why he had been sent for Cornelius rehearsed the story and then said, "Therefore are we all here present before God to hear all things that are commanded thee of God" (verse 33). This is the only correct attitude for any company of people gathered in the name of the Lord. Peter proclaimed unto them Jesus of Nazareth, in His life and death and resurrection, as the one foretold by all the prophets, and that whosoever believeth in Him shall receive remission of sins (verses 34-43). While Peter was speaking the Holy Spirit came upon them all, and they spake with tongues and magnified God and were baptized in the name of the Lord (verses 44-48). Thus the circumcision learned that God had also granted to uncircumcised gentiles repentance unto life (xi, 2, 18). We have combined next week's regular lesson with this one, as we purpose taking the Easter lesson next week. Give special attention to the wonderful words of verses 38-43 and note that Jesus Christ crucified, risen and returning to reign is the one great theme of all the prophets—a real person alive forevermore.

STATEMENT OF Ownership and Management

required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912, of

THE CARROLL RECORD published weekly at Taneytown, Md., for April 1, 1916. State of Maryland) ss County of Carroll)

Before me a Notary Public in and for the State and County aforesaid, personally appeared P. B. Englar, who, being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is the Editor of THE CARROLL RECORD, and that the following is, to the best of his knowledge and belief, a true statement of the ownership and management of the aforesaid publication for the date shown in the above caption, required by the Act of Congress of August 24, 1912, embodied in Section 463, Postal Laws and Regulations.

1. That the names and addresses of the publisher, editor and manager, are: The Carroll Record Printing and Publishing Co., publisher; P. B. Englar, Editor and Business Manager, Taneytown, Md.

2. That the names of the stockholders, and their addresses, are: Taneytown, Md. Preston B. Englar, Edw. E. Heindel, Mrs. Mary L. Motter, Washington, D. C. Joshua Koutz, Taneytown, Md. Mrs. Margaret L. Englar, Taneytown, Md. Dr. F. H. Seiss, Taneytown, Md. Taneytown Savings Bank, Taneytown, Md. Birnie Trust Co., Taneytown, Md. Dr. C. Birnie, Taneytown, Md. James Bullington, Taneytown, Md. Mrs. Anna Cunningham, Philadelphia, Pa. Mrs. Virginia Fawceter, Taneytown, Md. John E. Davidson, Taneytown, Md. Edward Kemper, Taneytown, Md. George A. Arnold, Taneytown, Md. Geo. H. Birnie, Taneytown, Md. H. F. Cover, Westminster, Md. Martin D. Hess, Taneytown, Md. John S. Bower, Taneytown, Md. Miss Margaret Englar, Taneytown, Md.

3. That there are no bondholders, mortgages, or other securities holders.

4. That the two paragraphs next above, giving the names of the owners, stockholders and security holders, if any, contain not only the list of stockholders and security holders as they appear upon the books of the company but also, in cases where the stockholder or security holder appears upon the books of the company as trustee or in any other fiduciary relation, the name of the person or corporation for whom such trustee is acting, is given; also that the said two paragraphs contain statements embracing affiant's full knowledge and belief as to the circumstances and conditions under which stockholders and security holders who do not appear upon the books of the company as trustees, hold stock and securities in a capacity other than that of a bona fide owner; and this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association, or corporation has any interest direct or indirect in the said stock, bonds, or other securities than as so stated by him.

P. B. ENGLAR, Editor and Manager. Sworn and subscribed before me this 7th day of April, 1916. G. WALTER WILT, Notary Public.

The Low Cloverleaf Gives the Manure Two Healthy Beatings

WE used to think that if we threw manure onto the ground any old way and plowed it under, we were doing a good job. But now we know that won't do. To do any real good, the manure must be broken up into small pieces and spread evenly.

The Low Cloverleaf spreader is the one that does this work best. It gives the manure two healthy beatings, one with the regular beater, the other with the wide spread disks. When the manure reaches the ground in that condition your soil gets all the good there is in it, and gets it quickly. The Low Cloverleaf is one spreader it will pay you to see before you buy. See the local dealer who has one set up for you to look at.

ECONOMIC WASTE IN LONG DISTANCE BUYING

THE only road to real economy is the road that leads to the Home Town. This is the first commandment in community development. Whenever we pass up our own

TANEYTOWN LOCAL COLUMN

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

Robert R. Fair, of Baltimore, spent Sunday, with his mother, Mrs. Daniel H. Fair.

Miss Grace Weybright, of Harney, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Hocken-smith.

Miss Mabel Lambert and Mrs. Oliver Lambert, spent the week-end, in New Windsor.

Miss Ellen Long, who has been spending two weeks at home, returned to Irving College, on Thursday.

Two years ago at this time gasoline cost us 15c, last year 14c, and this year 25c, buying it from the wagon.

Frank LeFevre, of Charles Town, West Virginia, spent Saturday and Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Laura Reindollar.

John T. Dutterer and family, moved to their home on Middle St., on Tuesday, accompanied by a large force of helpers.

Chas. O. Fuss has bought the property he occupies as a dwelling and furniture store, from Joseph F. Warner, of Baltimore.

A few adventurous spirits indulged in early garden making, this week, in spite of the warning of no settled weather until after Easter.

Mrs. D. M. Feeser and Miss Mabel Smith, of Littlestown, spent Saturday and Sunday with the former's sister, Mrs. Chas. E. H. Shriver.

We are in receipt of newspapers from Wm. W. Sweigart, Pella, Iowa, one of them being the Weekblad, a Hollandish paper, which we decline to read.

Among the renewals of subscription, this week, was one from Mrs. Fannie Buckwalter (nee Steiner) of Britt, Iowa, who left Taneytown over 35 years ago.

Miss Nannie Diffendal went to Frederick Hospital, on Thursday, and will be operated on today for an internal trouble, from which she has suffered for some time.

The Burgess and Commissioners of Emmitsburg have notified property owners that they will remove all ashes, free, and use same for filling up the alleys of the town.

Jesse Myers, who had been ill from pneumonia for over a week, died this Friday morning. Funeral arrangements were not made at the time of going to press.

A few property owners on Baltimore St., engaged in street cleaning, last week. The whole street, in fact, most of the streets of town, need a thorough cleaning-up of accumulated mud.

We wonder how many are reading the cartoon and sermonette that appear each week in the centre of page 7 of the Record? Some of them may be a little "touching," but so is truth.

Our office is going to be busy on a large College Catalogue, within a week, and we will be glad if those of our local patrons who will need work in the near future, would bring it in now.

It is not likely that Taneytown readers of the Record will overlook the article on the origin of Taneytown, on first page, but we call attention to it anyway, as it is one of special interest to all citizens of "Taney's Town."

Claudius H. Long is improving the appearance of his property by removing the stone wall and fence on the Middle St. side. He will move the front iron fence to the Middle St. side, and put in a concrete curb, all of which, when finished will make a desirable improvement.

John E. Hess's family had a runaway accident, near the old Baptist cemetery, on Wednesday night while returning home from church. Something broke about the harness causing the tongue of the carriage to drop, when the horses took themselves loose and ran home. The occupants of the carriage were not injured, but had a long walk home.

Jacob Buffington and family left for their new home in McSherrystown, on Monday, where Mr. Buffington will operate Hotel Columbus. Every member of this family leaves a lot of warm friends in Taneytown, where all have lived since childhood. We commend them to McSherrystown folks as good citizens, and we will be glad to have them back here at any time.

Since the new road loan has passed, the champions of the Taneytown-Emmitsburg road are reasonably sure that it will be built, and will hold a meeting at Pine Hill school house, next Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, for the purpose of discussing the details of construction, such as width, material, etc., as it is understood that the Road Commission is guided to some extent by the wishes of local users in such matters. Both Frederick and Carroll county will be represented at this meeting, and the conclusions reached will be placed before the Road Commission.

Insomnia.

Indigestion nearly always disturbs the sleep more or less, and is often the cause of insomnia. Eat a light supper with little if any meat, and no milk; also take one of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper, and see if you do not rest much better. Obtainable everywhere. Advertisement.

The Union Services.

The union evangelistic services of Taneytown began according to schedule in the Lutheran church last Sunday evening, with a splendid attendance both of congregation and choir, which resulted in splendid service and good feeling. During the week, excepting the hindrance caused by bad weather, the good attendance has continued and the meetings show a prospect of growing interest.

The meeting each evening opens with a song service, lasting about fifteen minutes. The hymns are scriptural and devotional in character, and yet are spirited, putting the congregation into a good frame of mind for scripture, prayer and sermon.

The service is so arranged that each of the pastors of the co-operating churches has part each evening. The new hymn book made a favorable impression from the start. A few of these books are still for sale and may be secured at any service while the supply lasts.

The meetings will continue throughout next week, except that there will be no service on Monday night. The song service begins promptly at 7.30 o'clock each evening.

School Commissioners.

A regular meeting of the Board of School Commissioners of Carroll County was held on Monday, April 3, 1916, the following members being present: A. N. Zentz, C. G. Devilbiss, M. A. Koons, Dr. W. D. Hopkins and J. H. Allender.

In the absence of the president, the meeting was called to order by Dr. W. D. Hopkins acting as president pro tem. After the reading and approval of the minutes of the last meeting the regular order of business was taken up.

M. A. Koons reported some defect in the drainage from the well at Keyville school. It was decided to have the matter attended to before the opening of school next September.

A delegation of citizens from Hampstead came before the Board in reference to the erection of a new school building at that place. After hearing statements from several members of the delegation it was decided that no definite action be taken at present, but that arrangements be made to visit the premises some time in the month of May for the purpose of giving the individual members of the Board a correct idea of the condition of the present building and surroundings.

It was decided to close the colored schools of the county, outside of Westminster, on Friday, April 14.

Public School Contest and Athletic day was fixed for May 5. The schools throughout the county will be closed on that day, and all the teachers, school children and parents are invited to spend the day in Westminster. The program for the day's exercises will be published later.

After passing a number of bills the Board adjourned at 12.30 p. m.

The Job for Him.

She was one of those little women who are always looking for something that will take up their husband's idle time. "John," she said, "I wish you would mend the front door lock." "Can't!" replied John, quaking like an aspen leaf; "I've g-got t-t-the s-shaking ague." "Oh, well, then, I know the very thing; you can sift the ashes." Advertisement.
