BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST.

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

Sixteen graduates will receive diplomas at the commencement exercises of the Gettysburg Theological Seminary on the evening of Thursday, May 18. This is one of the largest classes in recent years. ------

Governor Brumbaugh is ill in Washington, D. C., suffering from gall stones. It is the third or fourth attack he has had, the last previous one having been last fall. The Governor's condition is not

The Presbytery of Baltimore met in Baltimore, this week, the roll call showing full attendance. The following ministers were admitted during the year: Rev. W. H. Wilcox, Rev. Arthur Ashton, Rev. James Cattanach and Rev. Andrew M. Brown.

------Among the bills constituting about 200 Maryland Laws recently signed by Governor Emerson G. Harrington, was the bill providing for the payment of $2,000 to George Edward Myers, Frederick, ex-Fire Marshall, for the loss of an eye in a raid on an alleged arson ring.

The water rates in Listlestown have been increased. The rate to out of town renters will be $5.00 instead of $2.00, the farmer rate. The meter rental of factories is increased from 15 cents to 18 cents per 1000 gallons, and that of the citizens homes from 18 cents to 20 cents.

Congressman C. Wm. Beales (Rep.), of the Adams-York (Pa.) district, instead of seeking renomination to Congress, has declined to be a candidate for re-election, but instead announces him-self as a candidate for nomination as State Senator, at the primaries to be held

-.... Co--Claims amounting to over $37,000 have been filed against the Grangers' Mutual Fire and Storm Insurance Co., of Carroll County. These claims, with the cost of receivership, etc., will amount to $40,000, for which a general assessment on all outstanding policy holders will likely be levied.

Mrs. Laura A. Smeak, aged 48 years, wife of George M. Smeak, died Sunday near Mount Pleasant. She was a daughter of David Boose. Her husband and the following children survive: Clarence, Hagerstown; Carroll, Robert, Pauline, LeRoy, Mary, Paul and Helen Smeak, at home.

Magruder, Frederick, and her father would have drowned. The child was playing about the pond when Mr. Magruder arrived. He saw her as she was swept from an embankment and went to her rescue.

Alarm obtains among publishers of religious books and periodicals over the advances in prices of paper, ink, leather and glue. Purchasing Agent Jennings, of the Methodist Book Concern, says its bills for white paper alone will advance this year by $130,000, and that ink, leather and glue will increase the sum to $150,000. ----leather and glue will increase the sum to $150,000. An immediate effect is the decrease in the grants of pensions to aged ministers, who receive profits from the concern's business.

John T. Smith, of Mt. Airy, has been granted a patent for moulding concrete for practical purposes. The patent was applied for about six months ago and was granted to its inventor on his sixtieth birthday, March 21. Mr. Smith stated that it was his first invention and that he had it in mind for ten or twelve years. It is called the Reversible Concrete Gutter and Drain Block, and is a device for making an improved system of gutters

Grace Marshall, the Talbott county girl who was imprisoned for many years by her father, and who was rescued in a deplorable condition and taken to Baltimore for medical treatment, has been turned over to her aunt, in Easton, until the case against the father has been tried. Miss Marshall is now about 28 years of age, now weighs 91 pounds, having gained 34 pounds under treatment. She has not gained her power of speech to any extent, but is otherwise greatly improved. She is yet a child in all of her actions.

Mrs. K. A. Smyser, 45, of York, was killed on Monday, and four narrowly escaped death when a Pennsylvania Railroad passenger train plowed through their automobile at a grade crossing four miles south of York. The auto had just ascended a steep hill and stopped in the middle of the railroad tracks while the driver shifted the gears. A passenger train was approaching, and the occupants of the automobile with the exception of Mrs. Smyser, jumped. Mrs. Smyser was unable to get clear of the machine before

------As to Opposition to Suffrage.

(Editor Carroll Record.)
In your issue of Friday, April 7, Miss Maggie Mehring seeks to correct Mrs. Robert Garrett's recent statement concerning the character of the opposition to Woman Suffrage. Mrs. Garrett, in reponse to the assertion of Billy Sunday "that the opposition to Woman Suffrage crawls out of the saloon," replied that the organized opposition to suffrage, that is the Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage has no sort of connection how-Suffrage, has no sort of connection, how-ever remote, with the liquor interests; has never cooperated with those interests in any way, has never received any funds from them, or indeed been offered any. The women who are opposing suffrage are doing so because they conscientiously believe that to plunge women into politics will injure the sex, the state and the race. Any number of anti-suffragists are prohibitionists, just as any number of suffragists are not. In proof of the latter contention I append an advertisement inserted in the Humboldt (Nev.) Star on Mostly and 1914 designs the suffrage March 2nd, 1914, during the suffrage campaign in that state, and signed by the president and secretary of the Winnemucca Equal Franchise society.

..... The Mexican Situation.

The report has been going the rounds, this week, somewhat in detail, that the Mexican bandit, Francisco Villa, had died from gangrene, and that his body had been exhumed and positively identified. fied. This report, however, has not been verified, and is doubted by War Department officials. It is said that General

Funston will not discontinue the advance into Mexico, without orders to do so, unless Villa's body is brought to headquarters and properly identified.

The general Mexican situation is very much involved, owing to difficulty in getting exact reports from the front, the lines of communication being very poor at best, and now largely cut off. The general opinion is that General Carranza's government is not playing an open hand with us, and that he is not even able to control his own followers.

THE NEW AUTO LAWS IN EFFECT JUNE 1

Changes Mostly in the Interest of the Autoists.

The new law of the last session of the Legislature regulating the operations of motor vehicles in this State becomes effective on June 1. Many changes were made in the old law, and the measure which was passed was agreed upon by representatives of the Automobile Club of Maryland, the State roads commission and the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles. The revised law is State wide in its effect. This means there will no longer be a speed limit of six miles an hour in one village and twelve miles in another, but it means that if autoists can go 18 miles an hour in the outlying portions of one city in the State, they can travel at the same rate in the outlying portions of another city of the State. It also means that if they can go 25 miles an hour in the open country in one county, they can go at that speed in every county in the open country.

Pecuniarily the law means that if autoists pay their taxes on their motor vehicles as personal property in the county or city in which they reside and then pay their operator's fees and registration fees to the State that is the end of all forms of taxes and charges for the privileges of operating cars anywhere in the State.

operating cars anywhere in the State.

In reference to the registration fees changes were also made. At present the motor vehicle of 10 h. p. pays $10 a year and that of 19 h. p. pays the same. The motor vehicle of 20 h. p. pays $15 a year and that of 29 h. p. pays the same. The owner of a light weight 23 h. p. car pays the same now for using the roads as the owner of a 29 h. p. car weighing nearly owner of a 29 h. p. car weighing nearly twice as much. Following the lead of a number of other States, the horsepower basis was determined upon as the method of fixing the registration charges, and the rate was accordingly fixed at 50 cents per horse power. Five dollars is the minimum charge for any car, no matter how low its horsepower.

As somewhat counteracting the saving to the motorist from this reduction the present monthly schedule of registration fees and refunds was abolished and a quarterly schedule adopted. This was partly for the convenience of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles and partly to counteract the loss of revenues from the above reduction in charges. Under this charge anyone registering his car this charge, anyone registering his car during January, February or March would pay the fee for the entire year. If during April, May or June, the fee for the three-fourths of the year, and so on by quarterly instead of monthly periods. The same rule would hold as to the registration certificates surrendered before the expiration of the year.

The annual registration fee in the case of motorcycles has been raised from $1.80 to $3 per year. For dealers licenses the tion, but the strange new money is hoarded by the public, who want to keep the "iron nickels" as war relics.

The strange new money is is the truth. Give us a square deal. We have no quarrel with the saloons."

We trust that in the interests of truth latter contained a number of restrictions tags for other than clearly business purposes, and these restrictions have all been abolished under the proposed law.

The only change made in the law relative to operators' licenses is a reduction in the charge for chauffer's licenses from $5 to $3 per year.

The speed limits remain as they are in clearer. Speed must be reduced in rounding curves and approaching tops of hills, and certain rules of the road are established, notably one giving a driver the right of way over a vehicle approaching him on the left and requiring him to give

The constable's fee where the arrest is made on the spot will be 25 cents, this covering his fees as a witness. When the arrest is made on warrant the fee of the constable will be

Senate Plans 1,000,000 Army.

A new army bill passed the Senate, more. Tuesday night, without a record vote, a very unusual performance in our National legislation. It provides for an army of 250,000 on peace footing, instead of 140,000 in the House bill, and the production of military reserves aggregating 1,000,000 men. The bill will now go into oint committee, where it is believed it vill be acted on promptly.

The increased danger of a break with Germany, had considerable influence on the passage of the Senate bill; and especially the notice from the President that he would lay the whole situation before Congress and ask for a verdict.

There Will be a Vote on the Prohibition Law.

An effort is reported to have been made, on the part of some, to have the Gover-nor veto the recently passed Prohibition law, on the ground of its being unconsti-tutional, but the Attorney General says the vote will be held. The question arose over making the prohibition law fit the general election law, a plan of doing which will evidently have to be worked out, for the following reasons.

The Prohibition law provides that the question shall be submitted to the people of the respective units therein mornioned. the vote will be held. The question arose of the respective units therein mentioned (Baltimore, Baltimore county, Ellicott City, Havre de Grace, etc.) at the next general election and that the question for or against prohibition shall be printed upon the same ballot to be voted in the general election in 1916. Now the question which presented itself to those who read the law and were familiar with the general election law was this. All the units mentioned in the prohibition law are also voting units the prohibition law are also voting thits in the coming general election, with the exception of Ellicott City and perhaps Havre de Grace, Annapolis and Hagerstown. Ellicott City, for instance, is not a distinguishable voting unit, the distinguishable voting unit being the Second

The spirit and letter of the prohibition aw demands that the prohibition question be submitted like any question to come before the people of the particular voting unit in the general election to be held in 1916. The general election law does not provide any manner in which the voters living within the corporate limits of the places mentioned could be furnished with ballots in any way differ-ent from those furnished all the other voters of the districts in which the places are located.

The registration books, showing who are entitled to vote, will be the registra-tion books of the district, which books make no distinction between those living in the towns and those living without, so that it will be seen that it is apparently impossible to carry out the provisions of the Prohibition law in those particular localities which are not by themselves separate voting units.

He detailed the series of disasters, beginning with the Lusitania and extending to the Sussex, and pointed out that whatever may have been the disposition and the intention of the German government (and he did not doubt its sincerity and good faith) that government has shown that it was manifestly impossible after the part of the part shown that it was manifestly impossible for it to keep its submarine methods within the bounds set by either the reason or the heart of mankind, permitting its captains to disregard its instructions with impunity. "No limit of any kind," said the President, "has in fact been set to the indiscriminate pursuit and destruction of merchantmen of all kinds and nationalities, constantly extending in area, and the roll of Americans who have each class. Schools of more than one many enter one contestant in each area, and the roll of Americans who have lost their lives on ships thus attacked and destroyed has grown month by month, until the ominous toll has mouned into the hundreds.

It had become his duty, therefore, to notify the German government that if it is still its purpose to prosecute relentless and indiscriminate warfare against vessels and indiscriminate warfare against vessels. of commerce by the use of submarines, this government would be forced to the conclusion that there is one course to pursue. Here the President stopped for a moment that the members of the Senate and of the House might the more ate and of the House might the more firmly fix their attention upon the climax of his message. He held the sheet of paper from which he had been reading in his hand for a moment and then continued, reading each word slowly and distinctly that its full significance might sink into the minds of hearers.

"Unless the imperial German government should now immediately declare ment should now immediately declare and effect an abandonment of its present methods of warfare against passenger and freight-carrying vessels this government can have no choice but to sever diplo-matic relations with the government of the German Empire altogether."

When President Wilson retired from the Capitol it became known among the members of Congress that President Wil-son had not waited with sending the note until after consulting Congress, but that it had been sent several hours before. There was considerable resentment, particularly in the House, when this became known, as Mr. Wilson's pledge to consult Congress had been generally interpreted as meaning that he would lay all smith, convey 2 acres and 115 square perches, for $215.

We have some complaints against Great Britain, but the President does not care about that. Where Germany has injured one ship carrying American commerce, England has seized a dozen. The truth is, the President is a Scotch Presbyterian and he hates the Dutch.

The tone of Mr. Mann's comment does not meet general approval, but it is clearly evident that Mr. Wilson's course in ignoring Congress until after he had taken final action does not meet approval.

The arrest, in New York, of Wolf von

Igel, former secretary to Franz von Papen, recalled German military attache, on a charge of conspiring to blow up the Welland Canal, Canada, in 1914, has further complicated the situation. The German embassy has asked for Igel's re lease, claiming that he is connected with the embassy's staff.

The great question now is, what will the answer of Germany be? In the meantime, there is considerable activity in army and naval circles, and the National Guard, in several states is preparing for service. Only a back-down by Germany, apparently, can avoid an open rupture

Bishop Scores Evangelists.

Pittsburgh, April 17.—Bishop J. F. Berry, of Philadelphia, before the meeting of the Methodist Episcopal ministers today voiced a vitriolic attack upon what he termed commercialized evangelism. The ministers were startled by the Bishop's vigorous speech, but applauded him warmly.

The Bishop did not name the Rev.

Billy Sunday, though he said after the meeting Sunday was only one of the many who conducted evangelism along the lines he had referred to in his talk.
"I am opposed to this form of evangelism," declared the Bishop; "to this highly organized tabernacle form of evangelism. I would like to take away this temptation to commercialism, which is sapping the very essence of religion out of the Gospel. I can give inside facts to show you that I know what I am talking about. The Spring Primary.

The Spring Primary is an especially ansatisfactory exhibition of the workings of one of our modern laws, labeled "progressive." It is a thing that we have to pay for, and act under, though the large majority of voters never asked for it, and do not now use it. Coming at a time when the majority of country voters are busily engaged with their work, and not greatly interested in nominations for Senate and Congress, the politicians and their lieutenants will have an easy time of it-making statemen.

... Farm Land Values.

It is interesting, almost surprising, to note the rise in the value of farm lands comparison by the most of those who during the past 16 years. In general it may be stated that farm land has increased in value at the rate of $2 per acre per year. Part of the exceptional increase of the past year may be attributed to the stimulus given by the war, and partly in the south to the improved cotton situation over two years ago. Two very natural questions for the farmer to consider are, first, do farm returns warrant the increase; and second, if so how long may such rate of increase be legitimate? The final arbitor in the valuation of farm lands is the open market. The natural tendency is to reach the maximum figure at which men can work, the busier political specialists can make, or think they can make, 'a profit be at their work; so, the "voice of the in farming. Panama Canal Open.

The Panama Canal is again open for the passage of ships. For seven months the channel has been closed by a slide along a narrow stretch in the Gaillard Cut. Since the waterway was opened to navigation on August 14, 1914, it has been barred by debris to vessels of commerce and war during a third of the time.

The loss to commerce because of the blockade has been very great. Just as trade had adjusted itself to the use of the shorter route to the Pacific the treacherous banks gave way, and the great shortage of shipping and the longer haul caused an almost prohibitory advance in freight rates. To the Navy the closing of the canal was equivalent to a serious weakening of the national defense. - N.

Crab Locomotives.

The queerest locomotives are the types used in mining and called "crabs." Gliding into the black galleries of coal mines and halting at a crevice in the wall from which issues the distant ring of pick and shovel, the crab lets out a flexible tentacle (a steel cable) for perhaps 200 or 300 feet, drawing it back presently with a car of coal in tow. Feeling into the holes, first on one side, then on the other, it moves along and never fails to secure its prey. Finally, with a dozen or more cars in its wake, it proceeds to the shaft or outlet and delivers its booty to the crusher.

These crabs operate by trolley conductors. They run through the main passages of the mine. Each crab is furnished with an electrically operated drum, on which are carried 200 or 300 feet of steel cable. This is hauled into the side passages or drifts by a man, who couples the end to a loaded car. then gives a signal, and the crab does the rest.-George Frederick Stratton in St. Nicholas Eccentric Paving.

It is related that when Maximilian Emanuel succeeded to the throne of Bavaria he celebrated the event by causing one of the roads leading to his palace to be paved with plates of burnished copper. This, gleaming in the sunshine, gave all the effect of the more precious metal-gold.

We are told also that Louis XIV. paved one of the courts at Versailles with squares of silver, each of which had recorded upon it some triumph of the French arms. In the center of the court stood a large tablet of gold in representation of the luxurious monarch's favorite emblem-the sun. Memoirs of the time of Louis make mention of a lodge erected to the love of his youth, the fair Louise de la Valliere. The approach was paved with mirrors, wherein was painted an allegory setting forth the undying devotion of the king to Louise.

A Test of Youth.

You often see a woman at the market pinching the end of a chicken's breastbone to find out how tender-in other words, how young-the fowl is Oddly enough, the same test with human beings is one of the most reliable known. If in advanced life the lower end of your breastbone feels elastic when pushed inward, you may assume that no important changes have yet taken place in your arteries or otherwise in your anatomical makeup.

The human breastbone is shaped like an ancient Roman sword, and the upper part of it is like the sword handle Its point is a piece of cartilage, which anatomists call the "xiphoid" cartilage. The early hardening and stiffening of it indicate that the changes that accompany old age have prematurely begun.-Youth's Companion.

Insect Sits on Its Eggs.

Family matters in the case of insects usually mean only the depositing of eggs in suitable situations for the independent development of the offspring, the parent insects often dying before the young appear. The earwig, however, provides a remarkable exception to the general rule, for it sits upon its fifty or more eggs until they are hatched, just as a bird would do, and, moreover, if the eggs get scattered it carefully collects them together again. In the early months of the year, when digging the soil, female earwigs may frequently be found together with their batch of eggs. At the slightest sign of danger the young ones huddle close to their mother, hiding beneath her body so far as it will cover so large a family.—Strand Magazine.

Insect Wonders.

Nothing can exceed the perfection of the minutest parts of the insect organization in general. The finest strand in a spider's web, which can scarcely be seen, is said to be composed of no less than 4,000 threads. On a single wing of a butterfly have been found 100,000 scales and on that of a silkworm moth 400,000, each of these minutes scales being a marvel of beauty and completeness in itself. So thin are the wings of many insects that 50,000 placed over each other would only be a quarter of an inch thick, and yet, thin as they are, each is double.

Elephants In Uganda.

"Elephants in Uganda have a peculiar aspect that I have not noticed else where," writes a traveler. "They cov er their bodies, as a protection against flies, with the bright red volcanic dust contained in the soil. This gives them a remarkable appearance, as instead of being a slaty gray, as in the Nile val ley, their color when thus covered with dust resembles that of a chestrut horse."

MONEY IN DUCK RAISING.

When Properly Cared For Quacks Return a Good Profit.

Duck raising on the farm can be made very profitable if rightly handled. There are two branches of duck culture-meat and eggs.

The former has not been given the attention it justifies, for ducks can be raised more cheaply than any other

Ducks are very easy to raise, as they are not susceptible to many of the ailments of chickens and turkeys, nor do they require expensive houses. A low shed with tight roof and walls on three sides opening toward the south

Aylesburys are the most popular breed of market ducks in England. The breed originated in France, but has been much improved. The English Aylesbury is an Albino. Its feathers are white as snow to the skin. The flesh is pink and of fine flavor. The bird shown is an Aylesbury drake.

makes an ideal duck house. The floor must be kept dry to prevent leg weak-

If it is not agreeable to have them ranging over the entire farm a very low, hog tight fence will turn them, and they will live on the cheapest kind of food. Green grass and a little cornmeal, with some kind of insect ration or meat scraps, will keep them growing rapidly.

After corn is two feet high they can be pastured in the cornfield, where they will help to keep down the weeds without injuring the growing corn. This is better than keeping them yarded near the house without range. Plenty of drinking water in receptacles deep enough for them to immerse their heads is a necessity, but they do not require water for bathing purposes at any season of the year. However, they will have a higher percentage of fertility in eggs if allowed a swimming place during the mating season. One of the largest and most success ful duck growers uses the following formulas for feeding ducklings: For first feeds equal parts of cornmeal. middlings, crackers or stale bread and green stuff, chopped with a small handful of sand to each quart of feed; after a week, two parts cornmeal, one part each of meat, bran and middlings with a third as much green stuff as all the rest together. After six weeks the ducks to be fattened are penned and the mash is made of two-thirds cornmeal, with bran, greens and 12 per cent of beef scraps.

The Cornell ration calls for nearly twice as much beef scrap proportionately as the above fattening mash. To fifteen pounds cornmeal are added ten pounds each of wheat middlings, wheat bran, meat scraps and alfalfa meal or chopped green feed. This is fed twice a day, with in addition a quart of corn to about thirty ducks at noon. If skimmilk is available to wet the mash half the named amount of meat scrap is

Duck growers use sand, fine shell and grit, usually in the mash, but often in separate dishes. Many feed the corn under water.

Water For Hens.

The necessity of plenty of pure drinking water for the laying hens should be apparent to everybody, but we are sorry to say that many hens do not get enough water for their necessities during cold weather, says the Kansas Farmer. In many poultry houses the water freezes before the hens can get enough to drink, and they go with out water for most of the day. When we consider that the contents of an while still others feed everything they egg is about 90 per cent water, it should be plain to everybody that with it should never be forgotten that in the out plenty of water a hen cannot manufacture eggs. There are water founcoldest weather, but we do not urge given the hens two or three times a should not freeze in them.

Protein For Hens.

grains are deficient in protein, and it must be supplied in the form of pure beef scraps, meat scraps, milk, green eut bone, blood meal or cooked jack rabbits. All these feeds should be fresh and pure, otherwise they will cause trouble. Do not feed tankage.

POULTRY NOTES.

What the market calls a prime broiler has a good plump breast, broad back, clean yellow legs, yellow skin and small comb.

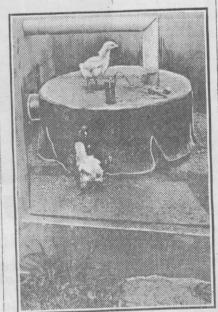

A duck's food must not be too highly concentrated for best results. Bran and green stuff are important factors in duck feed-

KEEP TURKEYS FREE FROM INSECT PESTS

[Prepared by United States department of Turkeys are very sensitive to dampness, and the young poults should always be kept dry. An open coop made of slats or lath, protected on the top from the sun and rain by tar paper, may be placed over the mother turkey just prior to the hatching of her eggs, as this will prevent her from wandering away with her young when they are hatched, the coop, hen and poults to be moved to a proper place soon after the eggs are hatched. This coop should be large enough to allow the hen to stand erect and move about. Of course, this pen or coop for the turkey hen and poults must be clean, not too close or warm and absolutely free from parasitic enemies. The poults are allowed to run from this coop part of every day when the grass is dry, but they are made to stay within at night and during wet days until old enough to wander with the mother hen and roost out on the fences and trees.

The hen turkey should be carefully dusted with insect powder before being placed upon the nest to hatch eggs, and this is followed by dusting twice a week until within two or three days before hatching. It is well to dust her again before placing her in the coop with the young poults. Never use lime or sulphur for this purpose. Nothing is better than Persian insect powder, but any good insect powder will answer the purpose that does not contain ingredients that are injurious to the eyes. If the hen has not been treated lice and mites are very often found on the young poults, and they must be freed from these enemies. Upon taking the poults from the nest, therefore, they also should be carefully examined for lice which may be on the top of the head, under the throat, about the wings or vent. Some of the lice or mites may be gray in color and difficult to see. They may be destroyed by the use of sweet oil, rubbing a very small amount upon the head and throat. Farmers have also found that lard is efficient. Only a small amount of lard or sweet oil, however, is used, as too much is injurious. Kerosene should be strictly avoided. Insect powder is sufficient for other parts of the body. Wide variations in the methods of feeding young poults are found. Some have been successful by feeding bread and milk in a saucer as soon as the poults will eat, while others soak bread in milk and squeeze it dry before feeding. Farmers have also found that an absolute grain diet is sufficient, imagine the poults will eat. However, wild state their food was worms, seeds, bugs, etc., which they could find for tains with a lamp attachment that will themselves and which were hunted keep the water from freezing in the and scrambled after continually. If the keeper wishes to copy nature as these, but that fresh water should be nearly as possible the young poults may be given for their first meal very day. All poultry houses should be fine oatmeal or finely cracked corn, made warm enough so that water with a little fine grit of some kind and a very little granulated meat scrap. Some of the commercial brands of poultry food are also good. Clean wa-Hens require protein. Our common | ter of course should be convenient.

Care of the Incubator.

Keeping the temperature as even as possible is one of the first essentials with the incubator chicks. Sudden changes from heat to cold and overfeeding are causes of bowel trouble.

An 8-foot Spread From a 45-inch Box

IN the Low Corn King catalogue it takes pages to tell about the good construction that backs up the "8-foot-wide spread from a narrow 45-inch box." Here the space is limited. See the spreader and study these things: The simple worm and worm gear which drive the apron can be reversed, doubling the wear qualities. The gear is entirely enclosed, away from dust and dirt. The relation of beater and apron is just right to do the best work on the manure with the least power. Low Corn King is a steel spreader - frame, beater axles, wheels, driving parts-all of light, strong, compact steel. You return the apron by a convenient foot

DAINTIES THAT MAKE APPEAL TO THE PALATE.

Four Delicious Dishes May Be Made From the Juice and Pulp of This Probably Most Popular of All Fruits.

Orange Salad.—Cut off the tops of large oranges. Carefully remove pulp. Mix pulp with an equal quantity of sliced bananas and one-half the quantity of walnut meats. Marinate with French dressing. Place in orange shells. Chill thoroughly and serve with toasted crackers.

Orange Delight.—Soak half a box of gelatin in one gill of cold water fifteen minutes, now add three gills of boiling water, stir until dissolved; put into it half a pint of granulated sugar, three gills of sour orange juice and the strained juice of one lemon, stand in a cool place; harden in the refrig-

Place a couple of rounds of sliced orange in each individual dish, cover with the jelly, then a layer of soft custard or whipped cream as a mask. Serve ice cold with lady fingers.

Orange Icing.-Put one runningover tablespoonful of strained orangs juice in a bowl, one teaspoonful of lemon juice and one teaspoonful of sherry wine or brandy, with a grated yellow rind of one small sour orange; let it stand for twenty minutes, then stir in half a cupful of confectioners' sugar, then the slightly beaten yolk of one egg; stir, now add sufficient confectioners' sugar to make it the consistency to spread easily over the cake; it should not run; spread evenly, then put in a cool, dry place to

This icing will be rich and creamy, never becoming "rocky," like so many people make. If cake is rubbed on the edge with sugar the icing seldom runs off the sides.

Orange Pudding.—Take two eggs, two-thirds cupful of sugar, grated rind and juice of one large orange, one pint of milk, one tablespoonful of butter, four tablespoonfuls of bread crumbs. Beat the eggs until light and add sugar and orange juice. Scald milk and add butter and pour over the crumbs and add to the eggs, sugar and orange juice. Mix well and bake slowly and serve very cold.

Spanish Ham and Eggs.

Cut stale bread into half-inch slices and soak until soft in one cupful milk mixed with one beaten egg. Fry a delicate brown on a well-buttered griddle or spider. Mix one cupful of minced left-over ham and half cupful soft bread crumbs with milk to moisten, or with the remaining egg and milk. Heat it and season with pepper. Spread the mixture on each slice. Cook several eggs in water just below the boiling point until firm enough to keep in shape after removing the shells. Put a whole egg on two slices placed side by side and serve at once.

Delicious Dessert.

Dissolve and set to stiffen, one package of lemon gelatin and cut up two pranges one large banana, one cupful of chopped English walnuts. these all together, sweetening fruit to taste. Fill college ice cups threequarters full of gelatin, the rest with fruit and nut mixture and stir it around, mixing them well in cup. Put tablespoonful of unsweetened whipped cream on top of each cup; serve with small crackers. Is very pretty and delicious.

Scallop Salad.

Soak one pint of scallops for one hour in salted water, drain, cover with boiling water to which one tablespoon of vinegar has been added, let simmer five minutes, drain again, chill and cut into thin slices. Add half the quantity of finely cut celery, mix with mayonnaise or boiled dressing, and sprinkle with one teaspoonful each of finely chopped chives, gherkins and

Baked Squash With Cheese.

The squash should be scraped free from seeds and baked in its shell, after it has first been cut in quarters. When well baked it is scraped from the shell, put in a buttered silver baking dish, spread with butter and seasoned with salt and pepper, after having been mashed. When it is sprinkled with a generous quantity of grated parmesan cheese it is browned very quickly in a hot oven.

Fish Balls.

Cut enough salt fish in small pieces to make one cupful. Pare and cut into small pieces potatoes to make two cupfuls. Cook in water to cover until potatoes are done. (Put the fish in at the same time.) Drain thoroughly the fish and potato and add half tablespoonful of butter and one beaten egg, with pepper and salt. Mash and beat the whole. Drop from a spoon in hot fat.

Cream.

Take half pint of cream, one cupful confectioners' sugar, three dessertspoonfuls of cocoa, half teaspoonful of vanilla. Mix all together, then let stand one hour, and then beat until thick, and spread on cake.

Apricot Pie.

Two pounds evaporated apricots stewed in enough water to cover them and more; add two cupfuls of sugar and proceed as with any other pie; bake with two crusts. This makes three pies.

BOYS' CLUBS AND THE COUNTY AGENT

The Coun'y Agricultural Agent Also Devotes Time To Interesting the Farm Boys.

REUBEN BRIGHAM,

Maryland Agricultural College Extension Service.

Among the varied activities of the county agents of Maryland which are proving of practical helpfulness to the farmer and his family, none are deserving of more appreciation than their Boys' Club work. The aim of this work, in which over 300 boys were enrolled in 1915 in Maryland, is to arouse in the country boy a live interest in farming as a business. To accomplish this purpose the County Agent visits the schools whose teachers are awake to the possibilities of giving to their boys lessons in everyday life and practice. He explains that to belong to the National Corn Club with its thousands of members throughout the South, a boy must get his parents to consent to his renting an acre from them on which he can grow a crop of corn. This crop the boy is to grow himself, doing as much of the actual labor as possible. His eacher, if she is interested, will visit his acre occasionally and explain to him the directions which the County Agent has given him. The County Agent will send letters, also, both to the boy and his teacher, telling what can be done from time to time to improve the crop, what the other boys in the county are doing, why the boy should keep up his interest, and how o form a neighborhood boys' club in which his school mates can join. During the growing season the County Agent will visit a number of the acres calling field meetings to which neighporing boys and their fathers are invited to discuss the growing of the grop and the selection of seed corn. Later the County Agent plans with the teacher for a school exhibit to which her children, including her corn club boys can bring exhibits and where they can submit their accounts and read their essays telling how they grew their crop and followed the directions of their teacher and the County Agent. In this work our county agents are developing a spirit of loyalty to farm life and a ki of farm business among our boys that will show remarkable results in the agricultural production of the future. What better training could the boy have than in attempting to do better than anyone else what thousands of other men and boys are doing? In what better work can the county agent be engaged than in welding together the young life of his county into a united effort to make their neighborhoods and the county itself a leader in agricultural production and the seat of a happy farm life?

CLEAN UP YOUR POULTRY HOUSE BEFORE PUTTING IN YOUR PULLETS.

ROY H. WAITE, Maryland Agricultural Experiment Station.

At this time of the year when the pullets are being put into their winter quarters there should be a thorough house-cleaning. Clean the house by scrubbing it with a broom and water if necessary and then spray it with some good spray mixture. You can use to advantage one of the so-called sheep dips or coal tar products that are on the market. Directions for applying vary somewhat, but are always given on the cans of containers in which the products are sold. If the house is badly infested with mites, which, by the way, are worse than lice, it might be well to use a kerosene emulsion which is made as follows:

Hard soap, 1/2 lb. Boiling soft water, 1 gallon. Kerosene, 2 gallons.

This can be applied with a spray pump or a white wash brush or broom may be used. The important thing is to get the solution well into the cracks and other hiding places of the mites.

Sometimes poultry houses are white washed to free them from lice and mites and this is a very efficient method especially if well done. However several poultrymen have reported cases of eye trouble caused by the lime from the wash getting into the eyes of the fowls. Where the birds run out doors a great deal of the time this trouble probably will not occur. It only seems to appear in housed

White wash containing carbolic acid was once widely recommended for poultry houses, but it is doubtful if the acid does any good for its action as neutralized by the lime.

UNION BRIDGE.

This is Palm Sunday, a beautiful Sabbath Day, the balmy breeze of the Spring-time are circling through the tree tops inviting the swelling buds to burst and set free the tiny leaflets. Like the Spring time of life all is joy and hope; no thought is given to the autumn frosts time on Tuesday evening, and proved that will in due time come alike to both. With this ardent and beautiful hope of the Springtime, let us wish Peace on Earth with good will to all mankind.

STUDEBAKER

Proved on the ROADS of AMERICA

Stock car test that America has ever seen.

To the man who is going to buy a car, the significance of this Studebaker Reliability Run can not be overestimated for the simple reason that this was a test not of a car especially prepared, on a race course—but a Stock car, the kind of car You get, on the very roads You use.

From towns scattered all over the country, a Hundred Studebakers were off on the task of making 1,000 miles each in 48 hours. Weather and roads everywhere were far below normal even for November. Yet over such roads the 100 cars averaged 1,078 miles in 36 hours and 36 minutes. Over such roads they raced along at an average speed of 27½ miles. Over such roads they averaged nearly 12 miles to the gallon of gasoline. Over such roads with 4 to 7 passengers, they distanced many of the country's crack "Limiteds." Over such roads they ran along without one car experiencing the slightest mechanical troubles.

Over the roads of America, the very roads that Studebaker owners use, Studebaker has overwhelmingly proved its Power, its flexibility, its stamina, and speed and economy. Over the roads of America, Studebaker has proved its unfailing reliability and its undeniable superiority of mechanical design.

A Complete Car in Every Particular And It's a Car You Will Be Proud to Own

It's the first complete car at anywhere near so low a price.

It stands out alone—boldly—unapproached—a powerful five-passenger touring car complete for only $615.

Note that word "complete."

That means Electric Starter, Electric Lights, Electric Horn, Magnetic Speedometer-in fact, every necessary item. Nothing is lacking. There are no extras to buy.

Note that it is not a small car. The wheelbase is 104 inches. The tires are four-inch size-many cars costing more have smaller tires.

And it is a perfect beauty-snappy, stylish, speedy.

In every way it's a car you will be proud to own and

A Story of Medieval Art

By ETHEL HOLMES

Satan, while always sowing, reaps by periods. Every now and again the world is astonished at some new outbreak of evil-not the ordinary criminality that is always with us, confined largely to those who are born to crime, but a harvest of villainy among those who are supposed to stand for moral-

An epidemic of crime settled upon Italy during the middle ages which pertained more especially to the very highest classes. It became the custom to eliminate one's enemy or such as stood it one's way by poison. Scientists instead of devoting themselves to interpreting the secrets of nature with a view to preserving life used their talents to discover means of producing death. Persons in authority instead of trying to benefit those under their sway sought the means of secretly putting out of the way those who opposed

* The city of Florence, then in the province of Tuscany, has always been the home of art. A young man in Pisa, Giovanni Tolci, having shown marvelous artistic talents, removed to Florence to get the benefit of the masters and the works of art to be found in that city. So rapid was his progress and so great became his fame that he received a commission from the pope to paint an altar piece.

During Giovanni Tolci's stay in Florence, while loitering one evening on the banks of the Arno, he saw a girl on one of the bridges looking down into the river. Going on to the bridge, Giovanni stood near her and saw that she was looking at the mild Italian heavens reflected in the water. From her rapt appearance he surmised that she possessed that artistic temperament which was in himself. He was seized with a desire to know her and, inquiring who she was, secured an introduction.

Bianca Cellini was not an artist herself, but art was so natural to her that she was of inestimable benefit to Giovanni. She was able to warn him when he was entering upon false ground and to encourage him when he struck that which promised well. So keen was ber artistic sense that he came to rely upon her entirely and would not trust his work until she had criticised it.

Bianca came to love the man in whose career she was interested. As for Giovanni, he was absorbed in his work. If he loved Bianca he was not aware of it, though there was a vague feeling within him that she was necessary to him as a companion as well as a critic.

When his altar piece was finished he left Florence with it to take it to Rome. On parting with Bianca he said to her:

Whatever success I have made in this picture I owe to you. If it brings me fame you are entitled to share it with me. There is no way by which you can do that so well as becoming my wife. That you shall be whenever vou choose.'

"You owe me nothing, Giovanni," was the reply. "If I have guided you on right artistic paths it has been with the greatest ease. I have had simply to see with my eves and speak with my voice."

Giovanni, not considering that his | cold offer was unlikely to draw any different reply, was much disappointed in it. It is possible that it revealed to him that his heart was in Bianca's possession. At any rate, he went to Rome wishing that she had accepted his offer.

His altar piece was accepted by the pope and when set up in the church for which it had been created was much admired. The new artistic star that had arisen was much courted. At times when he was surrounded by flatterers Bianca was forgotten, but as soon as he was alone she resumed her accustomed place in his mind, and he remembered that it was largely due to her he was enjoying this triumph.

At this time the Borgias were prominent in Rome. Signora Beatrici Borgia, who had married in the celebrated Borgia family, hearing of the fame of the Florentine artist, expressed a desire to see him. She was a very ambitious woman, one who possessed great power over men and who achieved her ends by bringing them under her sway. It occurred to her to make a conquest of this shining light. Why she desired to do so is not clear; but, judging from her character, it is probable that it was simply the eclat the domination of a famous man would give her.

Signora Borgia sent for Giovanni Tolci and commissioned him to paint her portrait. During the sittings she was dressed in the most becoming costumes that could be devised. She was as beautiful as she was unscrupulous and strove to dominate the artist through his senses. While he was at work he kept her talking in order to bring out an anamated expression. She contrived to turn the conversation upon what interested him, for she was desirous to tearn if his heart was preoc-

It was not tong before she got the story of Bianca. Giovanni, who was not yet conscious of the fact that Bianca possessed his whole heart, spoke only of what he owed her as a counselor, but the wily signora knew more about what he really felt than he did himself. Since he dwelt continually on the little Florentine girl and would talk of no one else Signora Borgia was not long in inferring that he loved her.

All the art the temptress possessed, all the flattery, the appeals to the senses, seemed to elicit but little response from the artist. The last named appeal was the strongest, but its effect was only temporary. She prolonged the sittings by requiring him to do over certain features, but even with this advantage she knew before the picture was finished that the Florentine girl was keeping from her the man she wished to conquer.

When nothing more seemed to be done to the portrait Signora Borgia said to the artist:

"This girl to whom you owe so much should share the triumph you are sure to make in this portrait. I am going to send for her to come to Rome to visit me, that she may enjoy your success."

Giovanni, who had arranged with the pope for a mural decoration that would take him at least a year to finish, eager to see again the girl who by this time he realized was necessary to him, gladly fell in with the plan. He sent a letter to Bianca with the one dispatched by the signora, assuring her of the change there was in him since he had left her and begging her to accept the invitation. Indeed, he wrote a genuine love letter.

Bianca, who was desirous to learn more of the woman whose portrait her lover was painting, wrote that she would come to Rome, but would feel bound to visit an aunt living there who had long ago given her a standing invitation. Signora Borgia insisted that when Bianca came she must sup at her palazzo with her and Giovanni.

Bianca went to Rome and a few days after her arrival went with Giovanni in the evening to the palazzo of Signora Beatrici to supper. If the artist had given away his feelings for Bianca in her absence he certainly confirmed the matter in her presence. His love was apparent as the sun in heaven.

There seems to be a sixth sense in women that enables them to discern antagonism from members of their own sex. Signora Borgia made a great ado over Bianca, expressing herself as delighted with her and folding her in an embrace. Giovanni, however, noticed a tremor pass over his beloved, and when released from her hostess' arms she was deadly pale. But she soon recovered herself and seemed to be trying to show her appreciation of her reception. When her wraps had been laid aside supper was announced, and the three went into the room where it was laid.

For an hour they continued to partake of a sumptuous repast. The signora pressed her guest to partake of her wines, of which there was a great variety, saying: "Try this; it came from Sorrento and is considered very Here is some from Frascati. Perhaps you will prefer it to the other. This muscatel is delicious." In this way she endeavored to persuade her guests to drink. Bianca sipped the first glass handed her, and nothing could induce her to touch another. She also gave an appealing glance to her lover, which served its purpose, for when the signora placed a glass before him he simply wet his lips with the

Toward the end of the meal the hostess reached for a dish of figs on the center of the table and handed one to each of her guests. Bianca noticed that when the signora handed her a fig she selected it carefully from the dish. Bianca took it and noticed a tiny mark on it so near the color of the fig as scarcely to be distinguished. She left the fruit on her plate without touch-

"Do you not like figs?" asked the

"I do not care especially for them," was the reply.

Giovanni had broken his fig open and handed it to his sweetheart, saying:

"Try mine, and I will eat yours." Bianca clapped her hand on the fig on her plate, uttering at the same time a cry. The hostess looked at her as if in astonishment and said:

"Give it to me. I will eat it." Bianca held it in her clinched hand. "No," she said; "I will take it home and eat it there.'

The signora changed from leopardess to lion.

"Give it to me!" she cried imperiously.

Bianca clutched it all the tighter The signora strove to take it from her. Bianca begged Giovanni to take and keep it. He did so, and the three stood surveying one another with blanched faces and flaming eyes.

The signora ran into another room. Bianca made for an exit, followed by her lover, and when their hostess returned to the supper room with a stiletto they had vanished.

"What does it all mean?" asked Giovanni of Bianca.

"The fig is poisoned." And so it proved on applying a test. Signora Borgia was too powerful to warrant an accusation. Giovanni and Bianca returned at once to Florence. He claimed that a swollen wrist would prevent his doing the mural work ordered by the pope and refused to return to Rome. Of course this refusal was not to be maintained if the pope chose to enforce the order. The holy father would not have done so had not Signora Borgia circulated a report that the swollen wrist was a mere pretext to avoid returning to Rome. This report coming to the pope's ears, he ordered Giovanni to return on pain of incurring the displeasure of the head of the church. In Rome he would be examined by a phy. sician and if his wrist was in a condition to prevent his using a brush he would be excused. When Giovanni received this new order he bethought himself how to evade it. Signora Borgia's attempt to poison his sweetheart would not be accepted as a reason for defying the head of the church. He purposely wrenched his wrist so that it would require months to heal. Then he went to Rome, was examined and excused.

FOODS FOR CHILDREN

EXPERTS GIVE ADVICE ON QUES-TIONS OF IMPORTANCE.

Directions for the Bodily Needs of the Small Members of the Household-Pure Milk the One Great Thing to Be Desired.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Simple bills of fare, helpful recipes, and practical directions for the preparation of foods for children between three and six years of age are contained in Farmers' Bulletin 717, "Food for Young Children," issued by the United States Department of Agricul-

The author has carefully avoided the use of all technical dietary terms or systems of grouping and has so classified foods that any mother can meet the following definition of a satisfactory diet for a little child:

"A little child three to six years of age, who is carefully fed in accordance with his bodily needs (as these are now understood) receives everyday at least one food from each of the following groups: 1. Milk and dishes made chiefly of milk (most important of the group as regards children's diet); meat, fish, poultry, eggs, and meat substitutes.

2. Bread and other cereal foods. Butter and other wholesome fats,

4. Vegetables and fuits.

5. Simple sweets.' The relation of food to the condition of the bowels is also an important matter. Grains, particularly those containing the outer or branny layers or coats, are laxative; so, too, are such mildly acid fruits as apples, oranges and grapefruit. So far, therefore, as the important matter of preventing constipation is concerned, coarse grains and mildly acid fruits serve the same purpose. When fruits are to be obtained in abundance, the kind of cereal served is not of great importance. When they are not, the coarser cereals should be used.

The basis of a child's diet should be clean, whole milk-at least a quart a day. Such milk, in addition to water contains about half a cupful of the very best food substances-butterfat, milk, sugar, lime and other materials needed by the child to make muscle, bones, and teefh. In addition, milk contains a substance thought to promote growth by helping the body make good use of other foods. Where good whole milk is not obtainable, clean, fresh skim milk supplies these substances with the exception of the butterfat, and is, of course, preferable to dirty or questionable whole milk. Milk, however, contains very little iron and therefore spinach and other green vegetables and egg yolks, which are rich in iron, combine well with

The child should drink the milk with the chill taken off, or should consume his full quart a day with cereals and in milk toast, cocoa, milk soups and stews, in cereal puddings, egg-andmilk puddings, custards, junkets, or simple ice creams. Milk stews may be made with vegetables or fish, or to vary the diet these can be combined with cream sauce and served on milk toast. The bulletin therefore gives a large number of recipes for the preparation of various milk dishes which will help children consume the requisite amount of milk without growing tired of this valuable food. Those for milk soups will be found particularly useful, as they give the mother an easy means of preparing many vegetables which are essentials in the child's diet. Well-baked bread and thoroughlycooked breakfast cereals are both good for children, and with milk should make up a large part of the diet. Bread and cereal mushes are, to a certain extent, interchangeable, but neither can take the place of milk, meat, eggs, fruits and vegetables. An ordinary slice of bread is equal in food value to about half a cupful of boiled or steamed cereal and about a cupful of flaked or puffed cereal. Different kinds of bread may be used for va-

The yeast-raised bread given to young children should be at least a day old, or should be toasted or twice baked. Hot breads are likely to be swallowed in large pieces, and are whipped cream and sprinkle with therefore not desirable. Hot breads which are almost all crust, like thin tea biscuits or crisp rolls, are best of the hot varieties.

Under the heading "Meat, Fish, Poultry, Eggs and Meat Substitutes," the author states: "In some families children do not get enough meat and eggs; in others they get too much. A good general rule commonly followed is to give a child, two years old or over, an egg every other day and about the same amount (two ounces) of meat, fish, or poultry on the intervening days. Where meat is omitted, care must be taken to see that other suitable foods take its place-preferably an extra amount of milk and eggs." Fried meats should not be given to a child, because they are likely to be overcooked and tough and also because the fat may be scorched and thus changed in composition. Scorched fat is almost certain to be harmful to children.

Meat is best given as broiled chop meat or in simple meat stews combined with vegetables. Poultry may be boiled and served with rice. When roasted, only the tender portions should be fed. Highly-seasoned stuffing or rich gravy should not be given to a young child.

Dried and other fish, and oysters, may be used in milk stews. Well-boiled fish is good for variety. Eggs must not be overcooked or they are likely to cause indigestion. The best way to cook eggs is to poach or coddle them. Scrambled eggs may be served occasionally, provided care is taken not to scorch the fat or to overcook the eggs.

Fat is an important part of the food of children. There is more than an ounce of fat (at least two and a half level tablespoonfuls) in a quart of whole milk. If the healthy child is given a quart of milk, has butter on his bread. and meat or an egg once a day, he gets enough fat, and that which he received is in wholesome form. It is well, therefore, not to give such fatty foods as pastry, fried meats and vegetables, and doughnuts or rich cakes. If the child is constipated, the occasional use of cream or salad oil is desirable, for fat in abundance is laxative.

Bacon or salt pork, cut very thin and carefully cooked, may be given occasionally. It is very important not to burn the fat.

Vegetables and fruits are grouped together because they are similar in that both supply iron, lime, and other mineral matters, and also mild acids. Vegetables are an important but often a neglected part of the child's diet. They should be served at least once a day, as they help to keep the bowels in good condition. Fruits are important for their flavoring, for their laxative effects and doubtless for other reasons, and should be served in some form at least once a day. Fruit juices and the pulp of cooked fruit, baked apples and pears, and stewed prunes, are the safest. The child should not be allowed to eat the skins unless they have been made very tender by cook-

Sugar is a desirable part of the diet provided it is given in simple sweets and not allowed to take the place of other foods and spoil the child's appetite. Simple sweets are such things as lump sugar, maple sugar, sirups, honey, and plain candy, and those foods in which sugar is combined in simple forms with fruit juices (in lemonade, water ice, jelly, etc.), with flour or starch, as in plain cakes (cup cake, sponge cake, cookies), and with fruit, as in jams, marmalades, and similar

Cinnamon Rice Pudding. Buy four ounces or so of the red cinnamon drops, or perhaps two ounces would do for a large, creamy rice pudding, or for half a dozen of individual size. Allow twelve or eight een drops to each cupful of milk used, and also to each cupful of milk allow one well-washed tablespoonful of rice and about a tablespoonful of sugar. If it is to be served with a sweet sauce do not add any sugar.

Put into buttered baking dish or dishes or into the glass baking molds, and bake from one hour and a half to two hours in a moderate oven, stirring in the top every half hour or even oftener. A meringue may be added and across this strewn some pink sugar or some of the cinnamon drops ground up in a mortar.

Chocolate Cream Pie.

Here is a chocolate cream pie which everybody likes and it has the merit of being cheap. Into your double boiler put one pint of hot water. Blend together one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, four tablespoonfuls of flour, two of cocoa, butter size of small egg, a pinch of salt and stir into the water. Cook until thick. Cover a deep pie plate with rich pastry and set another plate inside and bake a nice brown, fill with cocoa mixture, cover with chopped nuts.

Succotash.

Take the amount of kidney beans desired and soak overnight. In the morning place on stove and add fat salt pork, cut into rather small pieces, to taste. Salt. Let simmer until beans are soft. Do not have too much water. The beauty of it is to cook slowly. Just before serving add one can corn and heat it through. Serve hot. Succotash is also made from lima beans with corn added. Some prefer it that way.

Carrot Stew.

Here is a carrot stew that was sent into the column some years ago by W. D., and I will copy it for you, as I think it is delicious: Cut the carrots in small pieces and cover with milk enough to stew them. Add salt and pepper to taste, and a small piece

The Newest Rolling Pin.

A recent invention in rolling pins is stade of glass, and may be used when making biscuit and cookies, but it is especially satisfactory when working with pastry, as it is fitted with aluminum caps which can be removed for the insertion of ice.

What O. T. Shoemaker

has to say about cream separators this week

In the last ten or fifteen years there have been dozens of cream separators come on the market which claimed to be "world beaters." But they couldn't make good in the hands of the users and one by one they dropped out of sight. Their owners were willing to take a risk and they lost. If you buy a cream separator from us you run no risk of dissatisfaction or loss.

The De Laval is tested and time proved.

Why experiment? What's the use of taking chances with a machine you don't know much about, or an inferior machine, when you know that a De Laval is recognized everywhere as the "World's Standard."

More than thirty-five years of experiment and experience have made the De Laval pre-eminently the best machine on the market for the separation of cream.

If you have no separator now, or an inferior one, we can sell you a De Laval on such terms that it will pay for itself while you are using it.

Sooner or later you will buy a DE LAVAL

The latest and certainly the strangest dictionary of any branch of the human race is that of the American gypsy, compiled by George F. Black. Ph. D., for the New York public library, the first institution in the United States to possess such a vocabulary. The work will be of inestimable assistance to students of gypsy lore and language. It also should be of genuine interest to every man who remembers the fear he had of gypsies long ago when his mother warned him they kidnaped little boys who wouldn't stay at home.

Spanish Fishing Industry.

The annual production of fish in Spain amounts to nearly $20,000,000 yearly in value. There are 586 steam and 15,191 sailing vessels engaged in the industry. The annual production of tinned fish is 3,500,000 cases of ten tins to the case. The pack of Portugal is about 1,500,000 cases, and that of France in normal times about 1,000,000 cases. Large quantities of Spanishpacked fish are sent abroad under French and Italian labels.

SOW SWEET PEAS EARLY.

B. W. ANSPON, Maryland Agricultural College.

This flower will grow in any good garden soil that is well drained, provided it is in a sunny and open location. To secure early flowers and best results, spring sowing is generally used. In order to have the plants strong, they should be sown early. They should be sown just as soon as the ground can be worked. To determine when the ground is dry enough to work, take up some of the soil and form it into a ball with the hand. If it falls apart, the ground is dry enough to work. Some start the plants in paper pots or thumb pots in the hot bed, but especially good results are obtained by sowing outdoors.

Prepare the soil well by spading deeply. Adding well rotted manure will be a great benefit. Then make a shallow trench about 4 inches deep, in the bottom of this, plant the seed two inches apart. Where one uses poultry netting or brush, to serve as trellis, two rows may be sown 6 to 8 inches

Europe's Largest Safe Deposit. The largest safe deposit in Europe is that at Chancery Lane, London. It is a veritable nest of strong rooms and safes, totaling some 4,000 receptacles in all. Some idea of its popularity may be gained when it is stated that since it was opened it has enlarged its area some four or five times. It is used a great deal by the diamond merchants in the district. It is a common thing for a broker to rush down the broad white steps leading to the vaults just before closing time with $100,000 worth of diamonds in his pockets. In one of the strong rooms at this safe deposit there is a collection of books, every one of which is said to be worth $10,000, and in another tanamiles and and at area $350,000.

NE OF THE most persistent advertisers in the history of success was ROBINSON CRUSOE. He knew what he wanted—a ship—and he put up an "ad" for one. He tied a shirt on the end of a pole, stuck the pole in the ground on the highest point of his island—and his "ad" flapped in the ocean breeze. That, in the language of the sea —was very plain to every seafaring man. Despite the fact that he got no inquiries for a long time—R. C. kept at it. In the end, he got what he wanted, was happy, and his name and fame are with us today. We've put up our signal—and intend to keep it flung to your gaze. Shall we call, or will you send, or call? You'll get the best any way you do it, so DO IT NOW!

YOUR NEWSPAPER

THERE is one stronghold in every community that the mail order house has not been able to reach. This is the home town newspaper. In face of all kinds of bribery the Home Newspaper has stood its ground for forty years and steadily refused the advertising patronage of the mail order houses. Right now millions are being spent by the "catalog kings" in a continuous attempt to secure as an ally the Home Town Newspaper. But the country editor is standing solidly by his Home Community. He refuses to "sell out" to the enemy. He turns down all kinds of inducements. Let us think of this the next time we are tempted to dicker with the enemy of our Home Town. Let us take the stand taken by our newspaper. Let us refuse to be bribed by a seeming bargain.
