BRIEF NEWS NOTES OF GENERAL INTEREST

Gleaned from the County and State and our Exchanges.

Both Republican and Democratic candidates for Governor of Arizona took the oath of office, on Monday, as Governor. The Democrat is the former Governor, and has the present advantage of possession. Court proceedings are under way for straightening the tangle.

There are strong indications that Germany is prepared to violate the neutrality of both Holland and Switzerland, if necessary, and that both countries offer advantages to Germany in prolonging the war, and perhaps as avenues of attacking France and England.

Breaking all its coinage records, the Philadelphia mint during 1916 produced 238,469,769 domestic coins in denominations ranging from one cent up to half dollars and valued at $9,344,266. An unprecedented demand for dimes, nickels and pennies has kept the plant running day and night since early summer. Gold, silver and nickel coins totaling 31,376,328 pieces were minted for Central and South American governments.

At midnight Dec. 31, the whole island of Newfoundland went "dry." This is based on a summary of estimates of crop production and prices for the states of Maryland, and Delaware and for the United States, compiled by the Bureau of Crop Estimates, Washington, and transmitted through the Weather Bureau, U. ----Prohibition at Christmas Time.

(For the RECORD).
We have been told, apparently as a joke, that about Christmas time the Probeen a case of chicken stealing, the thief might be brought into play. Yet the chicken theft would only have meant a loss of a few dollars while the whisky jubilee represented a loss of character and morality to those engaged in it that cannot be estimated in dollars and dimes. The incident and the joking way of exposing it are a good example of the low estimate of morality that will obtain among many who live in a community where intoxicants have been traded in and used freely for generations. We cannot legislate sobriety into the confirmed user of intoxicants, but we can prevent the rising generation from obtaining the rum habit and to accomplish this the law should be firmly and determinedly en-Let no useless leniency be used. Christmas at the County Home.

Thanks to the prompt and liberal contributions of the good people of Carroll County. Christmas was made very bright and happy for the inmates of our County Home. On Christmas Day, a bountiful dinner was given them by Steward and Stewardess Barnes, and each one was remembered with a little gift. The dining membered with a little gift. The dining room and rooms of the sick were decorated by the Misses Barnes with Christmas greens and red bells, giving a festive appearance which was very attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes entertained at dinner the County Commissioners and Treasurer, and a large party of friends, including a number from New Windsor and other parts of the county. At 2 p. m., all assembled in the dining room, where all the inmates had preceded them and were patiently waiting to enjoy the services and to receive the gifts provided for them.

Rev. Tolly Marsh, of New Windsor, kindly took charge of the program which consisted in singing Christmas Carols led by Mrs. H. M. Kimmey, followed by prayer by Rev. E. G. Mowbray, pastor of Centenary M. E. church; an address by Rev. Charles E. Shaw, Rector of Ascension Episcopal church; a short talk on the County Home now, as compared with the County Home now, as compared with years ago, by States Attorney Seabrook; and the distribution of gifts by Miss Mary B. Shellman, closing with the song, "Brighten the corner where you are," which was sung with much spirit by all present, including the inmates, with whom it is a great favorite. The usual gifts of gloves, socks and tobacco for the men, and wrappers, slip-pers, white aprons, and little things to brighten and make home like their rooms were given to the women. The liberal contributions this year, made it possible to gratify all their little wishes and to make for them a very happy Christmas.

In addition to the cash contributions which came from all parts of the country, and which have all been acknowledged by card, contributions were received from Babylon & Lippy, Nusbaum & Jordon, Albaugh & Babylon, T. W. Mather & Sons, Thomas Boylan, Dinst Grocery Co., Charles V. Wantz & Son, Aprons and a lot of pretty card booklets from two invalid ladies; stockings and other things sent anonymously and for which I return sent anonymously and for which I return sincere thanks through the press, to which we are greatly indebted for kindness in publishing notices, and in sending the papers every week to the inmates. The Girls' Club of New Windsor, the Primary Department of the New Windsor Public School, the Presbyterian and Lutheran Christian Endeavor Societies of Taneytown, the Western Maryland College Sunday School, and the Aid Society of the Church of the Brethren of New Windsor, all sent liberal contributions for

If in the great rush of the Christmas mail any of the written thanks which were sent by postal card, failed to reach their destination, I take this means of expressing the thanks of all who were benefitted by the help and expressions of interest and kindness which makes them feel they are not forgotten by the outside world. With wishes for a Happy New

Change in "Make-up" Hereafter. Beginning with this issue, the make-up of the RECORD will be changed in one respect, at least experimentally, by placing all marriages, deaths, cards of thanks, resolutions and verses in memoriam, on our fourth, or correspondence page. The reason for this is that this department, at times, interferes with properly presenting news articles of general interest, and the change is in line with the prevailing custom of most modern six-column weekly

We do not, by this change, aim to give these very important announcements an obscure position, for the correspondence page is at least second in importance in the RECORD, but rather think that the change will lead to an improvement, and that when our readers become accustomed to it, they will like it just as well, especially as it will represent a gain of practically as much reading matter as the space now taken by the department on first page.

The Public Sale Season.

Our Sale Register begins with this issue, and we advise all who want to advertise in the RECORD, or have bills printed at licity given by it.

We especially call the attention of those outside our immediate territory, to the great value of the RECORD as a sale advertiser. This office has made a specialty of Spring sale work, for years, and the publicity we give is worth having.

Our sale bills, this year, will be yellow, or green, with border, in four sizes, from $1.50 to $3.50 per set of 30 bills. We also print the small cards that are very popular with some—in fact, we can fit all customers' needs in first-class style.

We make no charge for the use of the Register, when regular advertising is made in the RECORD, or when this office prints hibition law was openly violated by both men and women in our town. Had this done elsewhere, we charge $1.00 for the done elsewhere, we charge $1.00 for the season for use of Register, or 50¢ for four would have been sternly warned not to repeat the performance, or a shot gun notices, special arrangement must be weeks, for a three line notice. FARMERS INSTITUTES IN CARROLL COUNTY Events of Interest to Agriculturists Everywhere.

Farmers' Institutes will be held at Middleburg, Mt. Airy, and Sykesville the week of January 15. Dr. R. S. Hill and his usual staff of good speakers, who and his usual staff of good speakers, who know what they are talking about, will be at Middleburg January 15, at Mt. Airy the 16, and at Sykesville the 17. Meetings will be held in the forenoon and in the afternoon, and, if the attendance justifies, in the evening also. Just whom Dr. Hill will have with him will be announced in next week's papers. Especial attention will be given to dairying. Poultry raising and orcharding will be discussed thoroughly and corn and soil fertility will not be neglected.

Dairying deserves much consideration in the milk producing sections. Every good farmer knows that farm crops can be more profitably marketed as milk than in any other form. And nothing is lost or sold from the farm except water and just a little plant food. The water is of no consequence and the plant food can be more than replaced by buying and feeding a little bran or cottonseed meal. When the last census was taken this county ranked third in the state in dairy-This shows that the people of this county are awake to the profits and benefits of marketing crops through cows. Dr. Hill wants to help and encourage the dairymen and so will provide a real dairyman to discuss with them the cheapest and most efficient feeds at this time when everything except the price of milk is so high, how to breed up the herd, the best time to feed and water, and all such practical subjects of common interest to dairymen. Poultry will be a subject of discussion because Dr. Hill has borrowed an egg which he is anxious to show lest we forget. Poultry are neglected by the men on the average farm and left for the wife and mother to take care of for "she has time for such little things." In the Spring while cleaning house and making garden, besides attending to her usual household duties, she sets the hens in old boxes or barrels she finds or nails to-gether and of a morning while the bis-cuits are baking she sees that the hers are on the nests and feeds the young chickens. Before or during thunder storms she gets herself into a raging pers-piration trying to get the chickens in the coops and piling boards and old carpet on to the coops to keep the chicks dry on to the coops to keep the chicks dry and after the rain she wades through the weeds and grass hunting up those that have drowned. Nevertheless, when the census man last came round she and the other women of the county had 435,000 hinds and they aged they and birds and they and the eggs they had produced that year were valued at $560,000. Pretty good? Yes, but with a little help and direction the women of the county will have $1,000,000 worth when the next census is taken. Come out ladies and hear the talk on poultry and go home and get the man to fix up things so you will have some chance to show what you really can do. Dr. Hill knows that few farmers in this county or state keep many hogs. He also knows that he has eaten mors pork in the last few years than he ate in a good many previous to that. Why? Because beef is almost out of sight. Why should pork be cheaper than beef? cause it takes much longer to produce beef than pork, and a few years ago too many calves were sold and now there is not the usual supply of beet but a much greater demand. Pork can be produced in from six to eight months so the supply pretty well keeps pace with the demand Should this county and the state in general raise more hogs? Come to the Institute, maybe Dr. Hill will tell you.

Corn and soil fertility are subjects always of interest to a farmer. Corn is especially interesting to Carroll countians this year because Carroll is going to have the largest exhibit and the best ten ears at the Baltimore show this Fall. Why do we want to do that? Because we want other counties to know that we are busy as well as on the map and because if one goes to that show—one of the best in the United States—he comes home feeling so glad he is a farmer. Let us start now. Come to the Institute and talk corn. See the County Agent and let him sign you up as a corn demonstrator. All you have to do is to grow a little corn the way he wants you to. That is not much; you have all the rest of the farm, and for years have had all of it, to grow corn the way you wanted to.

Mr. Farmer, you know you want an can see a thing best if you do not hold it too close to your eyes. You know you can tell better what is going on if you are standing off looking on. You have been busy working your own farm, take a day off and-come let Dr. Hill and his men tell you what they have soon. Mrs. men tell you what they have seen. Mrs. Farmer, when your husband tells you he is going you tell him you guess you will go along. Mr. Business man, come out and get in closer touch with these farmers for their problems are your problems.

Your are dependent upon them. sections. But, if any communities feel that they have not been served let them get busy on a moying school. Why a moving school is like an institute only more thorough. The College sends instructors who take up two or three of American assistance to the Belgians was the more important subjects and teach and demonstrate them in regular classes for two to four days. It enables you to get college instruction right at home and there are no limits as to age. Can just any town have it? Well our share will be two or three and it would be best to scatter them over the county as much as we can and an attendance of about twenty has to be guaranteed and the instructors have to be entertained either at a hotel or in your homes. Death of T. Herbert Shriver.

T. Herbert Shriver, of Union Mills, one of the most prominent citizens of Carroll county, died on Monday night at his home at Union Mills, from a stroke of paralysis, in his 71st year. He had been in failing health for several years. Mr. Shriver was a prominent member of the Catholic church, and an intimate friend of Cardinal Gibbons who was a frequent visitor at the Shriver home. In politics he was an ardent Democrat. He was a delegate to the Democratic National Convention in 1908. He served as a member of the Maryland House of Delegates in 1878 and 1880, and was elected State Senator in 1884. In 1888 he became the Deputy Collector of the Port of Baltimore, and had been frequently spoken of as a possible candidate for Governor.

He was married February 16, 1880, to Miss Elizabeth R. Lawson, who died some years ago. He leaves the following children: Mrs. Robert S. Shriver, Joseph N. Shriver, William H. Shriver and Robert T. Shriver, all of Westminster. He is also survived by a sister, Miss Mollie O. Shriver, of Union Mills, and four brothers, Francis De Sales Shriver, of Troy, N. Y.; Benjamin F. Shriver, of Union Milis; Mark O. Shriver and C. C.

Shriver, of Baltimore.

The funeral took place Wednesday morning, with services at St. John's church, Westminster, at 10 o'clock.

Cardinal Gibbons conducted the funeral service, at Westminster. The celebrant of the Mass was Very Rev. M. F. Dinneen, president of St. Charles College. Among those in the sanctuary were Bishop Corrigan, Baltimore; Monsignor Fletcher, rector of the Cathedral, Balti-Fletcher, rector of the Cathedral, Baltimore; the Very Rev. E. R. Death of Dr. Bean, Fish Expert.

Dr. Tarleton Hoffman Bean, aged 70 years, well known scientist and fish culturist, died in Albany, N. Y., Dec. 28th, 1916, after a two week's illness following an automobile accident. He is survived by his wife, who was Miss Lauretta H. Van Hook, of Washington, and by one daughter, Mrs. Caroline Bean Blommer, of Pittsfield, the wife of the famous Dutch painter, Blommer.

Dr. Bean was a graduate of the State Dr. Bean was a graduate of the State Normal, of Millersville, Pa., 1866, of George Washington University in 1876 with the degree of M. S., and of the University of Indiana. He was named curator of the Department of Fisheries, U. S. National Museum in 1880, and served fifteen years. He was the first director of the New York aquarium, serving three years. He was also editor serving three years. He was also editor of the reports and bulletins of the U. S. Fish Commission from 1889 to 1892.

He also served in various other honorable positions, among them being U Fish Commission representative at the Chicago, Atlanta, St. Louis and Paris Expositions, and was granted medals of honor by Emperor William of Germany, and by the Japanese and Prench governments.

Mrs. Catharine Gilbert, of Uniontown, and Mrs. Cleveland Anders, of Union Bridge, are first cousins of Dr. Bean, and the Garners of Linwood are also cousins. -0-E3-0·

The January First Bills.

For many people any pleasure that may attach to the New Year season is marred by the shower of bills that usually comes in at any time. It is a period when creditors are unusually active. They look over their books with the beginning of a twelve-month, send out statements for eyery delayed account, and write a great many dunning letters. It is storm and stress for debtors. It is a period of Many persons throw anything that they recognize as a bill into the waste basket unread and unopened. They are naturally sanguine and have little conception of the obligation of a debt. They intend to pay "sometime" but that "sometime" never comes. They always have buoyant hopes that some good fortune will turn up enabling them to satisfy all creditors and start anew.

These strokes of good fortune however do not turn up for happy go lucky peo-ple. They are the logical sequence of hard work and methodical business methods. The preparation for them is laid a long time beforehand by persistent application and industry and by rigid fulfillment of obligations. Debt paying people are the kind that strike unexpected wind-

Therefore let everyone start out this January to make a better record. If one cannot clean up his 1916 accounts, it is a sign that his expenses have been too large. A strict measure of economy may be distasteful, but it is the only honest way. To live under a condition of practical bankruptcy ought to be so hateful a To live under a condition of practhat almost any frugalties would be better.

Many people have had misfortunes and of course can't pay. Others would gladly pay if they could collect what other people owe them. But if everyone would pay who could, a new new wave of business would sweep the town.-Frederick

PRESIDENT WILSON MUST ASK THE SENATE

Endorsement of President's Peace Note, Debated.

The Republicans of the Senate are taking the ground that the President has been too liberal with the plan of acting, then telling Congress about it, rather than first consulting Congress.

Although the resolution introduced by Senator Hitchcock, indorsing President Wilson's efforts to bring about presee in the President.

However, now that Mr. Hitchcock has introduced his resolution and the Democrats have lined up solidly behind him, while the majority of the Republicans are opposing it, Mr. Wilson feels that the administration is committed to the resolution, and that it must pass the Senete of his Republican colleagues.

When Senator Lodge in his speech declared that until the President himself asked the Senate to co-operate with him in the peace movement, the Senate should not thrust itself into the situation, he voiced the sentiment of the great majority of his Republican colleagues.

The majority of the Republicans take the position that they will vote for the Hitchcock resolution only in the event that President Wilson himself shall ask the Senate to indorse his note to the belligerents on the plea that the approval of the Senate formally expressed will of the Senate, formally expressed, will assist him in accomplishing his peace program. Unless Mr. Wilson takes this attitude the majority of the Republican Senators will vote against the Hitchcock War News and Wheat Prices.

Chicago, Ill., Jan. 4. - Export business on a huge scale failed today to offset alto-gether acute weakness that for a brief time seized the market, owing to reports that President Wilson would make a fresh effort to end hostilities in Europe. After an extreme descent of $6\frac{1}{5}$, prices closed nervous at net losses of $1\frac{3}{4}$ to $2\frac{3}{4}$, with May at 184 to 1842c and July at 149 $\frac{3}{4}$ to 150. Corn finished $1\frac{7}{5}$ to $2\frac{1}{2}$ down and oats off $\frac{3}{4}$ to $1\frac{1}{5}$. In provisions the outcome ranged from a setback of 10c to $27\frac{1}{2}$ ad-

It was only for a few minutes that the wheat market gave evidence of semide-moralization and plunged violently down-ward beyond ordinary limits. The ac-companying heavy seliing had been in-duced by the peace news from Washing-ton, but was quickly countered by announcement that export sales of wheat aggregated roughly 2,000,000 bushels. Holders who had been stampeded into the selling movement were rapidly switching back again to the buying side in the last hour, though the confidence of many bulls had been too badly shaken for any new venture until more time was afford-ed to geta more thorough knowledge as to the nature of the move expected to be made to bring the beligerent governments to an understanding.

Before the peace reports came from Washington sentiment in the wheat pit was moderately bearish, owing, in the main, to doubt as to the advisability of following up the 12c advance which had been scored in the preceding 48 hours. Even the enthusiasts whose avowed aim was to lift prices to $2 a bushel admitted that the rise had been overswift and that something of a reaction was due.

----Good Record by the P. R. R.

In 1916 the Pennsylvania Railroad System carried in its trains more people than in any previous year of its history, and did so without losing the life of a single passenger in a train accident of any kind.
Statistics which have just been compiled show that during the year there were transported safely, on the lines East and West of Pittsburgh, 196,294,146 passengers. Figures for the last few weeks of the year are necessarily partly estimated. The heaviest freight traffic ever handled by the Pennsylvania Railroad System was moved over its lines at the same time that these passengers were being carried without loss of life.

The entire Pennsylvania Railroad System, taking into account every affiliated company either east or west of Pittsburgh, new has to its credit three, full, calendar now has to its credit three full calendar years in which no passenger has been killed as a result of a train accident on any portion of the lines. During this period 553,890,063 passengers—equal to period 553,890,063 passengers—equal to five and one-half times the population of the United States—have been safely transported a total distance of approximately fifteen billions of miles, or 150 times as far as the sun is from the earth. The "Near Dry" Virginia Law.

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 30.-Virginia found little cheer in the "local option" brands of whisky imported for Christmas, at least in the neighborhood of Norfolk. When the prohibition law became effective on November 1 liquor establishments moved north to Baltimore in large numbers. One of the largest of them bears the sign "Wet goods for Dry Territory— Mail Orders a Specialty." These trans-planted establishments supplied most of the eastern part of Virginia, and the Southern palates did not take kindly to the mail order firewater.

Through the decision of a Norfolk judge, the mail order business took on a boom for the Yuletide. At first it was thought that only heads of families were permitted to buy a quart of whisky once a month, but by a recent interpretation every man, whether or not he has a family, may get a bottle once in thirty

Another court case on Christmas Day helped to take some of the teeth out of the law, which provides that no man shall be permitted to give another a drink, even at home. When several inebriated persons were seen to come from a certain home the head of the household was arrested and taken into court. Accused of giving whisky to his guests, he denied the charge and said they took it. The judge dismissed him.

WE ARE IN FAVOR of a "greater Baltimore. Not primarily because of the "tone" that proper population rating of the city would give to the state, but because the annexed section would be much better governed, and more respectable. Keeping natural parts of the city, out of the city, is unfair, and calls for more and better justification than we have yet heard-and this is a pretty strong confession to make, considering the fact that on general principles we consider Baltimore a pretty selfish town.

-0-03-0-Is War Inevitable for the United States.

The late Field Marshal, Lord Roberts, familiarly known in the British army as "Bobs," wrote an essay before his death that has attracted wide attention because of his thoughts on the war. He believed that war is as inevitable as death; peace | if not, then why is he called a man at all? begets over-civilization, and that in turn begets degeneracy. In war, if a nation has any health left in it, it revives and gathers itself together and rises like a phoenix. He believed Germany was the greatest friend of France, Russia and England when she declared war; the allied nations were fast falling into decay, he implied. The moment a country be comes over-civilized, there is an outbreak of twisted thoughts. When a country's press becomes full of articles urging vivisection, peace at any price, the criminality of corporeal punishment, etc., it is time for wise men to take stock.

These appeal to us as hard practical thoughts, borne out by facts of history, and if they be such, then, the United States is a fit subject for war at any time, for no one who is a close observer can deny that just now this country is overridden, and in turmoil, because of the greatest mess of fine-spun and largely unhealthy mental theories that have ever beset a Nation.

Call it "over-civilization" or what you please, there is a superabundance of "twisted thoughts" that is fast approaching the danger line in many directions, and it may be that a great war, or National catastrophe of some kind, represents the only thing that will again solidify and centralize the minds of our people--turn them away from the "degeneracy" that Lord Roberts speaks of.

The people of the United States, many of them, have had so much prosperity that they are full of schemes of invention to bring about, by unnatural and unhealthy means, greater prosperity. The people, many of them, have adopted habits of fast living, that old earning capacities can no longer supply. They have had so many privileges of self government, that stimulation and invention in this direction is rampant for new thrills in governmental procedure.

The healthful philosophy of discontent bas passed its safe and sane bounds, until we are on the verge of exaggerated socialism, and universal personal liberty. Fads and fancies are even deciding our Presidential contests. Our actually live. They may think they do, nominations are made on the basis of in- but actually they simply exist in a sort of broken. again a concrete mass-in order that the paramount danger may be averted. Are we approaching a war? is not a pessimistic wail. It has fearfully real evidences backing it.

Never Again.

Never, is a word representing a very long time, but we believe it represents the time when liquors will again be sold in Carroll county; and that it also represents the time when the whole country will again be as wet as it was some years ago. It is, of course, rather presumptuous to deal very extensively in "never again" predictions, but this seems clear to us-that it is foolish to waste our strength in trying to resist forces that in all probability are going to be too strong for us, and especially when they are, in fact, forces that save us from foolish and harmful indulgences.

Every citizen of Carroll county will be a lot better off, and at the same time more rapidly overcome his latent appetites, if he will accept the present prohibitory laws of the county as here to stay, and that it is a good thing if they do. Evading the law, slipping away for the purpose of indulging a discredited habit, and complaining about the fate of dryness, is time mighty unprofitably wasted.

Much better it will be to accept the present situation as a hard and fast fact. Not only that, but to stop fooling with a thing that is out oi sight, and should be placed out of mind as well. Acceptance of the inevitable, soon cures the desire for the return of an impossible thing. When men know they can't have a thing, they are quite apt to grow unconsciously into a condition of not wanting it; so, begin right now to regard indulgence in liquors in this light, and soon the mental attitude will change, and desire will change with it.

Those who play with fire, are apt to be burned; so, those who resist laws and strong moral movements can keep themselves in a constant state of unrest and danger. After all, craving for drink is largely a disease of the imaginationthat, rather than an appetite. If a confirmed boozer was shipwrecked on a desert island, with no alcohol within a thousand miles, his "appetite" would not last long because his mind would tell him the folly of indulging the desire for stimulants. So, in the present state in Carroll, it is only the mind of man that will keep him longing for "snops" and no real demand of the body.

Then, let the mind accept the situation, stop worrying, regard booze as a thing of the past, not invite it back by any devious process, and soon everybody will stay sober-and "never again" be otherwise. A man ought to be man enough to adopt just this quality of determination; self, too largely, and in doing so, spoil the whole job. We also cut out too much of the "play time" that makes life worth while, and too closely watch the 'other fellow'' for fear he may prosper a little ahead of us, by working a little harder.

And then, instead of helping those about us, we are apt to prey on them, much like our four legged near relatives cometimes do with each other. What a fine thing it would be if all of us could get the right view of life; that it is a time in which to live righteously, justly and fraternally, and that it is nether a treadmill nor a slaughter-house. The Pennsylvania Farmer, last week, contained a nice little editorial bearing on just about the ideal that we have in mind. It said;

"A man who was asked the other day what he considered to be the essentials for a happy, successful life replied: "Good health, plenty to do, a clear conscience, and a lively interest in humanity." That is a foundation that is hard to beat. It is four-square and rests on solid rock. life built upon it is able to withstand almost any shock or disappointment. All four are essential. No one of them may be omitted. Good health is a prime requisite from childhood to old age. To have it and keep it, it is necessary to thoughtfully avoid many harmful things. The intelligent, normal man or woman seeks and enjoys work. Instead of considering it as something to be avoided, or performed under a feeling of compulsion that they may live, it is regarded as a necessity if physical and moral worth are to be attained. The other three qualities cannot be maintained by the idler. The metaphysical element in the above definition—a "conscience void of offence" men have learned by bitter experience long ago to be a necessity.

They who have tried to succeed in disregard of it have always had their success turn to ashes sooner or later. It has taken a long time for mankind to begin to realize a "lively interest in humanity" is necessary for everyone. Men used to act (and too many yet do) as if all other men were enemies. We are beginning to learn that the welfare and happiness of each is bound up in the welfare and happiness of the whole; that "man cannot live to himself alone.

.0. What Is In Store?

What will 1917 bring forth? There was never a time when men were more anxious to peer into the future than now, and there was never a time when the range of vision was more limited. There was hardly a branch of business or production that did not yield handsome profits last year, although some of them, because of greatly increased ex. penses, found the net profit small. Our own little section, being largely agricultural, is feeling very comfortable over the fatness which comes from fairly good crops and very good prices. There were but few crops that failed to give a generous yield the past year, and prices are higher than ever before, for it must be remembered that all quotations now are

How to Fight the Liquor Habit.

Do you honestly want to stop drinking? Then read an article on liquor by Booth Tarkington in the January American Magazine in which he writes about a man

"They tell me there are dipsomaniacs, and there may be some abnormal people who can't turn the trick; but I almost doubt it. And I don't believe there's the slightest question of will power. Never for one second did I consciously exert my will, there wasn't anything real to exert it against. I didn't say to myself, 'I will,' or 'I won't.' I said, 'I've had my last,' and knew that it was true. It didn't take the will power, or the strength, of a caterpillar. It didn't take any. I just rested a little, got my head clear, and saw that I preferred a real life, however little comedy I found in it, to a drugged one. And, also, I preferred not to be a soggy thing, myself. Finding out that preference was important.

"After all, a miracle is only Nature doing something we've learned to expect her not to do; and my miracle is one that will happen to any other man who'll rest a while and consult himself. My recommendation is two weeks in bed with nobody about except a servant to bring beef-tea and toast. Simple enough, isn't

"'I didn't plan to do it. I didn't even attempt to do it. I just did it-or something did it for me. I woke up one morning, after an unusually fierce night, and when I crawled out of my bedroom tor some brandy I found I couldn't lift a glass to my lips. That didn't alarm me, I'd been that shaky often, but I decided to go back to bed and sleep until my nerves were somewhat quieted. I did go back to bed, and I decided to stay there until I got "up to normall" without alcohol. I stayed there all that day and the next —when I began to care a little about real food-and the next, and the next. I stayed there ten days, and when I got up I was feeble enough in body, but I'd given my mind or soul, or "something," enough rest for it to get a quiet and true vision couldn't "drink moderately."

I am a country merchant making my living out of the farmers, not by treating them as prey, but by fair dealing with a living profit. For instance. I make only one profit on what produce I buy of them. If I can sell eggs for 30 cents per dozen in cash I pay the farmer 30 cents per dozen in goods and have only one price for my goods. Well, how do the farmers -or at least many of them-reciprocate?

To illustrate: A man with a large family sold me his eggs and butter in exchange for sugar, salt pork, etc. Finally this family's stomach required more sugar and pork than their eggs and butter would buy, and they began to run up an account and got some distance behind and the hens stopped laying and the pastures aried. In the meantime I noticed they all wore shoes. So one day I asked, "Mr. where do you buy 'From Chicago,' said he. I then asked him why he did not send his butter and eggs to Chicago and run up an account for groceries, and if he could not sell me his produce in exchange for some goods, except such as there was no profit in, I would have to call a halt; and the halt is

I had another customer whose name is John, and John's hens laid such musical eggs they would sometimes explode prematurely, and his butter was never free of buttermilk. However, John was a hard-working young man with a growing family, and I put up with him a long time. Finally he brought me a pair of small shoes to exchange for a larger pair. "John, where did you get these shoes?" 'Chicago.'' What did you pay ?'' "1.85." I showed him as good a shoe for $1.75. I am glad to say I exchanged shoes, but I told John he must settle up and send his rotten eggs to Chicago.

MADE MONEY WITH SHEEP.

Experience of a Kansas Farmer In Handling a Flock of Ewes.

We have from time to time called attention to the opportunities for profit in handling a few sheep on the farm, says the Kansas Farmer. A few farmers are seizing this opportunity. We were much interested in the story told us by a recent visitor from Brown county. This man bought a single

The Cheviot is one of the English Down breeds and is a dual purpose sheep—that is, it is grown for both mutton and wool. It is good in both products, its wool being fairly dense, while as a mutton animal it ranks among the best. The sheep pictured is a Cheviot wether.

deck car of western ewes last fall, paying $4.90 a hundred for them. They were not very good ewes, many of them being old. He bred them to good Hampshire rams and they dropped him an average of one lamb to each ewe. On Aug. 1 he sold on the Kansas City market 180 lambs at 11 cents a pound, the top price of the season. They had run on bluegrass pasture and had been fed some grain in

Our visitor told us of one of his neighbors who produced and sold the finest lambs seen on the market this season. This man bought ewes of a somewhat better quality. They sheared an average of nine pounds of wool to the ewe, and it sold at home for 29 cents a pound. They began lambing in March, and on July 1 a hundred head averaging seventy-two pounds in weight were sold for $10.65 a hundred and were pronounced by Kansas City buyers to be the best lambs that had come in.

These lambs had been fed some bran and oats in creeps, and for the last month shelled corn. The bunch of 125 head were given a bushel of corn morning and night. There are some fine points in feeding grain to lambs. This man made a cutting chute, and his little girls cut out the lambs from the ewes at feeding time. It took about fifteen minutes to do this.

The grain was fed in troughs having lids and was put in before the lambs were turned into the yard. The lids were not raised until the lambs were all in. If this is not done some of the lambs will get more than they should and be "off feed" for a few days. The care used in handling these lambs was largely responsible for the results secured. Nothing difficult was done, however. It was simply a matter of paying attention to little details.

NAIL IN THE HOOF.

When a Horse Limps Cause of Lameness Should Be Investigated.

It is better to be safe than sorry When a horse steps on a nail take no chances. Remove the nail as soon as possible and thoroughly cleanse the wound. When a horse limps investigate the cause. This is the advice of David Gray, assistant in animal husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

The removal of the nail can easily be accomplished with an ordinary claw hammer, a small block of wood being used as a fulcrum over which to pry. If the nail is not too large a pair of pliers is suitable for this work.

If not cared for immediately the wound may cause lockjaw or permanent lameness. For cleansing the wound a syringe and warm water may be used if care is taken to cleanse thoroughly. The best method is to apply liberally any coal tar product, such as creolin, as it is effective in breaking up the infection. If a nail wound is given immediate and careful attention the life of a horse is usually safe.

Diet For Brood Sows.

Brood sows as often suffer from overfeeding as from underfeeding. An abundance of fat is the worst enemy of the litter. Sows that are to raise pigs should be taken away from the rest of the hogs and be fed a different ration. Three excellent rations: (1) One part high grade tankage, twelve parts corn; (2) skimmilk or buttermilk and corn, using three parts of milk to one part of corn; (3) wheat and shorts Whichever one of these rations is used a rack containing alfalfa should be se placed that the sows have free access to the hay at all times. In addition, the sows should be supplied with minerals. It is a good plan to dump the wood and ceal ashes in the lot where the sows run. A mixture composed of a basket of charcoal or fine coal, five pounds of salt, five pounds of air siaked lime and two pounds of sulphur will give good returns if kept easily available.-Iowa Homestead.

NEED OF GOOD MARES IN HORSE RAISING

We have had enough of the average kind of horse production in this country-in fact, too much of it-says W. L. Blizzard of the department of animal husbandry of Oklahoma A. and M. college. Not more than half of the horses produced are of the right type, conformation and quality, says Mr. Blizzard. Most horse raisers seem to lose sight of the fact that to make a paying proposition of the business they must produce what the market demands and not what they can handle easiest.

It pays much better to keep a few extra good mares and raise carefully a few good foals than it does to keep a lot of cheap horses, without feed enough to give any of them a fair chance. A good mare is worth a barn full of ordinary ones. Invest your money in fewer mares, give the feals

Many of the agricultural colleges are advising farmers to raise horses. Raise good ones is the advice. There is money in good horses, but very little in small and inferior animals. Big drafters are what the worker demands. Percherons, Belmarket demands. Percherons, Belgians, Clydes and Shires are all in this class. The stallion shown is a the best of feed and care and you will make more money than you will by raising ten or twelve average foals in the average way.

In selecting breeding stock keep in mind the principle of breeding that "like produces like." The principle applies to the brood mare as well as the stallion. Bad qualities in the mare are as likely to appear in the colt as are bad qualities possessed by the stallion. The influence of the mare in the transmission of qualities to the foal is, as a rule, very much underestimated and sometimes entirely ignored. The farmer who keeps worthless mares for breeding will not be able to compete with his neighbor who keeps only the best brood mares, even though they both use the same stallion. The mare has as much influence upon the colt as the sire. Once in awhile you may get a very fine colt from an inferior mare, but this is very rarely the case, and no one can afford to breed horses for this exceptional chance of getting a good

The main burden of the improvement of the horse breeding industry rests upon the mare owner. As long as these owners will patronize inferior, unsound and ill bred stallions because their services are a few dollars less than the well bred, well nurtured stallion with good individuality and with greater capabilities of transmitting good qualities to their offspring little progress can be made in horse breed-

Farmers raising colts do not realize that the return to them will be five or ten fold or even greater when the colt reaches maturity or is put upon the market if it is sired by a good, pure bred stallion. Prolificacy is inherited just as much in horses as in other kinds of stock. Select the prolific strain.

Barn Itch or Ringworm.

For barn itch, which usually appears about the eyes, along the neck and back, scrub well with strong soapsuds and after drying off apply the following: Creolin one ounce, oil of tar one ounce, flowers of sulphur one ounce and lard or vaseline eight ounces. The above should be well mixed together. Treatment should be repeated three times in three weeks. If the eruption is in circular form it may be ringworm, in which case it should be well scrubbed as with itch and when dry painted with tincture of iodine. In either case the infection will be carried by the brushes, blankets, etc., and all such should be disinfected with boiling water or strong disinfectart.-Orange Judd Farmer.

Thrift Is Preparedness

Financial strength is to nations as important as military strength. No nation can survive a war if it cannot finance itself.

The man who fortifies himself with an account in a savings bank does more than prepare himself-he contributes to the preparedness of the country.

Germany, unable to borrow from other countries, has been financed by the thrift of her people, as this thrift was expressed in accounts in savings banks.

A savings bank deposit helps the nation and is indispensable to the individual.

TO PURIFY WATER

BLEACHING POWDER WILL KILL UNPLEASANT ODOR.

Not a Hard Task, Nor Expensive, to Remove Disagreeable Smell From the Contents of Cistern, Says Prof. Newman.

If the cistern water has a disagreeable odor it can be made sweet and usable by treating with bleaching powder, according to P. J. Newman, assistant professor of chemistry in the Kansas State Agricultural college.

"The rain water as it comes from the roof is laden with micro-organisms, which under the right temperature conditions, grow and multiply," said Professor Newman. "When summer rains are allowed to run into the cistern this ideal temperature is soon reached and the development of these organisms proceeds rapidly. The unpleasant odor is due mainly to the life processes and decay of the bacteria."

Bleaching powder, or calcium hypochlorite, can be purchased in any drug store at from 20 to 30 cents a pound. One-third to one-fourth of a pound is sufficient to treat 50 to 100 barrels of

The powder as it comes from the store is placed in a pail or any convenient receptacle, which is then filled with water. The mixture is stirred for a few minutes until no more of the powder will dissolve, and is allowed to settle. The mixture is then poured into the cistern.

Some of the powder will remain undissolved in the bottom of the pail. Pour in more water and repeat the process as many times as may be necessary to dissolve all the powder. Where possible it is preferable to agitate the water in the cistern while the bleaching mixture is being poured in. When used in the proportion indicated the powder is not in sufficient quantity to make the water unfit for use, nor is it dangerous in any way. It acts simply as a deodorizer and a Jellied Veal.

One of the most delicate of all meat dishes, and one that could tempt the most dainty appetite, is jellied veal. This calls for a shin of veal. In ordering it stipulate that you want the bone well cracked. Put it all in a large kettle and just cover with water. Let it boil slowly till the meat falls from the bone. Strain off the liquor and set the meat and the liquor aside to cool. When this has occurred chop the meat very fine and add a little pepper, salt and vinegar to the liquor. Now pour this over the chopped meat, mix and pour into a dish that has been lined with slices of hard-boiled eggs. The loaf should be allowed to harden for about twenty-four hours before being served. It should then be turned on a platter and garnished with lemons or six tablespoonfuls of butter or fat from tongue, ground mace, made mustard, one teaspoonful of mushroom catsup, red pepper.

Potted Ox Tongue. One pound of cold cooked ox tongue,

Crop tongue fine and put it in a basin with the butter or the fat from the tongue, if any is left; season to taste. Rub the mixture, after it has been well pounded, through a fine sieve. Press into small pots, cover with clarified butter or lard; keep in a cool place.

Beef and French Beans.

Pepper and salt about three pounds of brisket, put it in a stew pan with two ounces of butter and three sliced onions. Cover the pan and fry gently for 20 minutes. Then add one-half pint of water and two pounds of French beans (cut). Stew gently for four hours. Mix one tablespoonful of flour and one tablespoonful of brown sugar with a small cupful of vinegar and add this to the stew 20 minutes before serving.

Boiled Dressing for Cabbage.

Beat the yolks of three eggs, onehalf teaspoonful of mustard, two tablespoonfuls of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of salt. Add three tablespoonfuls of butter and five tablespoonfuls of vinegar. Stir all together and cook in a double boiler until it is thick and creamy. Cool before putting it on the cabbage. Have the cabbage shredded very fine, with an onion and red or green pepper.

Sour Cream Cocoa Cake.

Two eggs, beaten light, cup white sugar, little salt, one-half cupful thick sour cream with one-half teaspoonful soda; stirred in till it foams, two teaspoonfuls of cocoa, one of vanilla, cup and half (large) of pastry flour, and one-half teaspoonful of cream of tartar, in flour. A dessert spoonful of cider vinegar, last thing before putting in pan. Bake in not-too-hot oven about thirty-five minutes.

Squab for the Invalid. A squab cooked according to these directions won't harm the sick stomach. Clean the squab, split it open, lay on a thickly buttered pan and sprinkle over with salt and pepper. Cover with another buttered pan and steam until tender. Serve plain or with hot brown

To Improve Mustard.

Add a little drop of salad oil to mustard when it is being made. Not only will it improve the taste, but it will keep it fresh for days.

RECORD LIKELY TO BE HELD

George Washington the Only Candidate for President Who Received a Solid Electoral Vote.

The first election of Washington as president was held on the first Wednesday of January, 1789, the Constitution having been ratified on the twenty-first of June preceding. There was no popular election, the electors of all the states that participated being chosen by the state legislatures, as the Constitution permitted. Rhode Island and North Carolina had not yet ratified the Constitution and did not choose electors. In New York a contest arose that prevented a choice of electors, and the three states of Rhode Island, North Carolina and New York took no part in the first presidential election. At that time the electors did not vote separately for president and vice president, but each one voted for two men for president and the one receiving the highest number of electoral votes became president and the next highest vice president. Only ten states took part in the election; viz.: New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, South Carolina and Georgia. These ten states then had 69 electoral votes, of which Washington received 69, John Adams 34, and 35 were scattering. By this vote Washington became president and Adams vice president. In the second election (1792) 15 states had 132 electoral votes and Washington received all, Adams 77 and 55 were scattering. The case of a nearly solid electoral vote for president was in 1820, when James Monroe was elected for a second term. At that time there were 24 states, with 232 electoral votes. The vote of the electoral college was: James Monroe, 231; John Quincy Adams, 1. The eight electors from New Hampshire, like all those from other states, had been chosen as Monroe men, but one elector voted for John Quincy Adams, because, as he said, he was unwilling that any other president than Washington should receive a unanimous electoral vote. By casting one vote against Monroe out of a total of 231 he made the solid electoral vote for Washington historically unique.

FINDS SUCKERS IN PLENTY

New York Faker Makes Easy Money Selling False Mustaches to the Credulous Public.

Every now and then a faker appears on Broadway with false mustaches for sale. The one he sports himself is rather a nobby hunk of hair and looks quite natural as a result of the way it is pasted to his lip. He soon gathers a crowd by offering a similar mustache for a nickel. Scores of people buy, planning a joke of some sort. But the purchaser who does not then and there open the little envelope con taining the mustache will find later on that he has been nicely gulled. All that the envelope contains is a wisp of coarse hair similar to that used in upholstering furniture. There is not even the semblance of mustache form-just a tangled wisp. If it were usable at all it would make about enough mustache to cover one side of a lip. Does the buyer seek out the faker and demand his money back? He does not, for he feels like a fool for having wasted his money on material for a third-rate piker's joke. And besides, if the faker is not hunted up immediately he never will be located. He doesn't care, for he has no pride in his occupation nor permanent standing. The inner circle of fakers scorn such coarse work .- New York Letter.

New Federal Game Preserve.

By a proclamation just issued President Wilson has made the Pisgah national forest, in western North Carolina, a federal game preserve.

This is the first federal game preserve of its kind to be created east of the Mississippi river. Deer, wild turkey and pheasants are said to be plentiful, and a herd of elk and one of buffalo will be added this Camping and fishing privileges will be arranged, but no gunning allowed in the forest, the idea being to permit the game to increase, drift out and restock adjacent lands.

This is a good move, and will reflect credit on the administration if the provisions are carried out and the preserve put under efficient guardianship. -New York Telegram.

Not Exactly Bad.

E. V. Lucas, the versatile English writer, whose "Cloud and Silver" is a delightful collection of graceful essays and clever humorous fables, has the following little story among the short sketches which conclude the book:

Progress.-Once upon a time there was a little boy who asked his father if Nero was a bad man.

"Thoroughly bad," said his father. Once upon a time, many years later, there was another little boy who asked his father if Nero was a bad man.

"I don't know that one should exactly say that," replied his father. "We ought not to be quite so sweeping. But he certainly had his less felicitous moments."

Absurd Idea.

"I'm going to smash that dude," declared the bad man of the camp. "Whaffor?" demanded the sheriff. "He's looking fer trouble." "Gwan! Quit trying to pick a fight. A feller never looks for trouble with a no 10cle."-Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year were enjoyments that but few realized during the late Holiday season in our town. Sickness was prevalent at warious homes in the village, and on Monday evening a series of accidents commenced that cast a pall of sadness over the entire community. H. H. Bond fell on that evening at the W. M. R. R. Station and broke both bones of his left leg near the ankle. On Wednesday evening, four of our popular young men while autoing to a pleasure resort, met with a serious accident in a collision with a locomotive on the Pennsylvania Railroad Two of them are still at the hospital. Earle Eichelberger and Harold Keefer, Bennett Pittinger and Melvin Palmer have returned home. On New Year's morning, three men at the Tidewater Quarries while trying to shelter themselves from a blast, under the steam shovel, were struck by flying stones, one man having his leg badly broken and splintered, the others suffering with cuts about their heads.

Grant Keeney, of Frederick, expects to move into one of E. A. C. Buckey's houses, on Main street, last of the week. Some very appropriate improvements have been made in the interior of the Brethren church, in town, the past week. A neat platform has been placed where the speakers' table formerly stood; a very nice and useful reading desk, with a Bible rest upon it, is placed at front of plat-form. Three comfortable and attractive arm chairs take the place of the former bench. The walls and ceiling have been painted a pleasant color in oil, and a neat border has been painted around the upper part of the walls. The church was cleaned and renovated by the congregation on Thursday, in readiness for Sunday's services. Sunday school at the usual hour in the morning; preaching services in the evening at the usual hour. Mr. and Mrs. Loy, of Philadelphia, have been spending the holiday season with her parents, Geo. W. Abbott and John D. Hess, of Arlington, has spent paralysis has recovered, but is a cripple. The quarantine has not yet been raise Measles and scarlet fever have added several more patients to their list. A drunken Italian was led along our street today by some of his comrades. He might have deposited his drunk in Italy for safe keeping, before he sailed; we did not want it here in America. He might be classed as one of the undesirable immigrants.

···--UNION MILLS.

About 9.30 o'clock, last Sunday evening, the residents of our village were aroused by the call of fire, which was noticed to be near Shriver's mill. It was soon discovered to be in the chimney of the dwelling now occupied by Louis E. Shriver and his niece, Miss Bessie Shriver. Through the assistance of a large number of neighbors who quickly responded, the house was saved from destruction. The evening being calm, permitted the sparks to fall on the roof which was saved from catching on fire by being kept wet by the bucket brigade.

What a Kiss Cost

A Story of Southern Persons Long Ago

Bu F. A. MITCHEL

My granddaughter Marian was my favorite of all my descendants of her generation. What was the cause of my feeling for her is hard to specify. She was Marian Whitlock, and there was but one Marian Whitlock. It was not that she was a strong character, for she was not. She was not only heedless, but blind to the result of her heedlessness. But she was lovable. Indeed, she was loved through her faults rather than her good qualities. At least I, her grandmother, loved her on that account.

Marian used to tell her grandmother more about what was going on between her and her young men associates than any one else. Why she did this I don't know unless it was because I realized and therefore sympathized with the conditions under which she labored. Candor compels me to admit that she possessed traits which had shown themselves in me when I was her age, and it is more than probable that she inherited them from me. While I endeavored to guide her out of the effects of her indiscretions I never lectured her for having been indiscreet. I realized that indiscretion was a trait born in her and was not likely to be eradicated till she had grown beyond the age when it would lead her into

Marian used to come to me in a light hearted way with her perplexties, but one day she gave evidence that what she had to tell was of a serious nature. "Grandma," she said, "I have gone and done it now and no mistake." "What is it, child?" I asked. "You know Elliot Walker?"

"Well?

"Well, Elliot and I were in the music room, I at the piano, he turning ver the sheets."

She paused. I gave her time. "Elliot bent lower and lower over my shoulder. I suppose I should have moved, but I didn't."

"He kissed me." I refrained from comment on this and waited for the denouement.

"I don't know what it was that prompted me to act as I did. I was certainly not offended. I had expected when I didn't move that he would kiss me and should not have thought much of him if he hadn't. It was not that I was prudish; it was-well, I don't know what it was, unless it was Old Nick got into me. But I arose from the piano, looked daggers at him and, turning, started to leave the room. What was my surprise to see Herbert Kenworthy standing in the door of the music room. Elliot and I had not been aware of his approach, and he had seen the whole performance." "What did you do next?" I asked

"Why, you see, I couldn't very well say that I had encouraged Elliot to kiss me, could I?"

"Go on." "And I couldn't say that I was not really offended."

'What did you do?" "Why, I went on out of the room."

"And didn't go back?" "Yes, after a few minutes." "And what did you say?"

"Nothing about what had happened. I began to chat with Herbert, while Elliot sat looking very much embarrassed."

"Oh, Marian!"

I was aware that these two young men were rivals for Marian's favor. We were southern persons, and in the south our men are hot blooded. Herbert Kenworthy had seen Elliot Walker give Marian what appeared to be an insult, which she could only resent as a woman. If trouble between the young men did not result then I was no judge of human nature. All this flashed through my brain, and I said to Marian:

"Did your two visitors show any animosity toward each other?" "None whatever. But, grandma, I have heard since that which leads me to fear"-"What?"

"I have been told that this morning they were playing billiards together at the club and Elliot charged Herbert with shoving up points that he had not made. Herbert called Elliot a liar, and Elliot struck him."

I did not ask to hear any more. I knew well that the young men would not play billiards together after what had occurred except for a purpose, that purpose being to make it appear that a different cause from the real one had resulted in an animosity which would doubtless lead to a duel, their object being to keep Marian's name from being involved in the affair.

'What have you heard since?" I ask ed anxiously of Marian. "Nothing.

1 doubted if Marian foresaw what would be the probable result of all this, and I dreaded to tell her. Nevertheless if she did not prevent a meeting between these two young men and one of them killed the other, she being responsible for the act, her life would be blighted.

"Marian," I said, "you must go at once to Herbert Kenworthy and tell him that it was your fault that Elliot kissed you." "Oh, grandma, I can't!"

"This quarrel has nothing to do with billiards. It is about you. Herbert has constituted himself your champion, understanding that Elliot insult-

"I have thought that myself," said Marian, paling.

"A duel will surely follow." Marian looked at me with a frightened expression that excited my pity, but I knew that it was no time to indulge in anything but action. I impressed upon her the necessity of her preventing any further trouble between her two suitors. During our conversation it came out that she had made a choice between all her suitors, including the two in question. This she revealed to me, though I was the only person she confided it to. She loved Elliot Walker. Thinking she needed my support, I told her that I would go with her to see Herbert Kenworthy. She made no reply for awhile to this proposition. I could see that a struggle was going on within her, but I was ignorant as to just what it was. Presently she rose. "What are you going to do?" I asked.

"I am going to see Herbert."

"Do you wish me to go with you?" "No, grandma."

This was the first indication of strength I saw in her, and it was some relief. She left me, and later I heard her pony phaeton on the gravel walk. I waited anxiously for her return. When she came I saw by the expression on her face that she had not succeeded in her object.

"Well?" I said interrogatively. "I went to Herbert's house," she said, "called him out and we had a conference on the veranda. I told him I had heard that he and Elliot had had an altercation. I inferred that he had seen Elliot kiss me and me resent the act. I begged that he would not constitute himself my defender. He replied that he had not done so, but admitted that he and Elliot had got into a quarrel from words that had passed between them relative to Elliot's act. I then admitted that I had encouraged Elliot to kiss me.

"He looked very much surprised and pained at this. I knew that his contempt had passed from Elliot to me. I told him that since I had exonerated Elliot I should expect him to apologize to Elliot for anything he might have said under a misunderstanding. After some thought he told me that any woman in such a case, to prevent trouble between two of her men friends, would assume the blame. There was no sin in my doing so. The affair had gone too far to be smoothed over. I argued with him for some time, but could get nothing out of him. Then I came away.'

"You must see Elliot. The one who has given the challenge is the one to offer the olive branch.'

"I have seen Elliot. The challenge had come from Herbert, Elliot having struck him. Elliot apologized to me humbly for having kissed me. He admitted that the scene in the billiard room had been concocted to keep my name out of the quarrel. He would gladly on my account put a stop to it, but could not refuse a challenge without being disgraced."

"And as the matter stands the two men will meet tomorrow morning?"

"I suppose so."

The case was a knotty one. The only way I could see out of it was for Marian to choose between the two men. She might tell Herbert that she loved Elliot, but I doubted if this would prevent a meeting that had become a public matter and with which she was not known to be connected. It would probably save Elliot from injury, but this would not be fair to Herbert.

"The only hope I see to prevent this meeting, Marian," I said, putting my arms about her, "is to tell them both that you love Elliot. That would, I think, dispose of the matter. Herbert would withdraw his challenge."

I could feel her shiver in my arms at this alternative, but she said nothing, though later she told me that Elliot had made her no proposal.

The day was now ended, and nothing had been accomplished. I determined to leave Marian free to act for herself till the last minute; then if she did not act I would endeavor to force her to do so. We remained in the same room through the night without disrobing. After 12 o'clock I fell asleep on a lounge. I was aroused at dawn by Marian.

"Come." she said. Without asking her where we were to go I went with her. I knew. She knew where the meeting would take place, and we proceeded there. Since Elliot had not proposed to her I could not see what she would do. We waited an hour a short distance from the field and finally saw one party come on to it, then the other. The seconds were engaged at the preliminaries when Marian advanced, I following her.

"What will stop this affair?" she asked. There was no reply from either. Marian asked all to withdraw except the principals. "I can think of only one way to stop it," she said. "I love one of you gentleman. Will you both agree to shake hands if I name the one I love?" At this they were all attention. Then Herbert nodded an assent, and Elliot followed.

"The one who kissed me," said Marian and covered her face with her hands. Elliot started for her, but I was too quick for him and carried her away. The duel did not take place. There is a sequel to this story, but it is a long one. Elliot was a long while in gaining Marian's consent to marry him. That kiss kept him from another for more than a year.

NOW THE 'KNICKER'

COSTUMERS URGE TROUSERS FOR THE LITTLE GIRL.

To Be Worn Under Coatlike Frock of Velvet-Makes for Comfort of Small Wearer and May Become Popular.

And now it's trousers for little girls! A book might be written on the "Lure of the Trouser," or a multiple-reel motion-picture scenario, portraying the subtle temptation exerted by the bifurcated garment upon occidental women throughout the centuries of the development of dress, from clothing into clothes. Season after season the attempt to introduce trousers is made and season after season the female who is bold enough to appear on a public thoroughfare in a skirt which has a hem in two sections, instead of one, is sure of a large slice of publicity; and if no U-boat visits America that day, or there does not happen to be a presidential election on, she may even win that coveted distinction of breaking into the news of the day, which it is the dream of every press agent to achieve at least once in his career for a favored client.

A determined effort was made a few seasons ago, in the form of the "Jupe culotte," or trouser skirt, which made a brave struggle for existence against desperate odds. Again the thing was tried in the form of straight satin trousers under a walking skirt to take the place of a petticoat. This had a brief vogue, after having been heavily exploited by some of the leading shops of woman's apparel, but it soon died the death of the unpopular; and then trousers retired to the seclusion of the boudoir in the form of negligees or pajamas. But that they were only checked and not defeated is proved by their tentative recrudescence this year.

An effort "along another front," to use the military language that is such a temptation, is being made to introduce the persistent garments as part of little girls' walking dresses. The sketch shows how this is done. The frock is a coatlike affair of blue velvet-almost everything is velvet just now-which is stitched in the new fashion with canary-colored silk to form the decoration. At the sides there are brass buckles, which seem to be placed there to go with the high leather leggings, buttoned away above the knees. It would almost take a special nursemaid to attend to the fastening of so many buttons! The frock part is so short that it shows the tight little pair of blue velvet trousers, just like a boy's, which are worn with the smart little suit. American mothers would be apt to ask for long sleeves in a frock which was designed for outdoor wear as this one is, but there is no reason why a coat should not be worn over it, after all. The headgear is a tam of the velvet.

Exercise for Beauty.

The woman who does her own housework is usually worn out at the end of the day. She is apt to conclude, therefore, that exercise is not a word intended for her. She could hardly make a greater mistake, however. A woman needs a half hour's rest near the middle of the day, it is true, but she needs also systematic and stimulating exercise.

One reason why women are so fatigued at the end of the day is that they lack muscle tone. Half an hour of brisk exercise suited to the particular needs of each individual, and taken regularly, followed by a cold dash of water, will serve to keep the whole muscular and nervous system in tone. It also works wonders in keeping eyes bright and color good, something that all women desire.

Beaded Suede Muffs in Paris.

For a stroll in the afternoon through the parks, it is fashionable to wear a small melon-shaped muff made of suede skin, dyed in some shade to match the suit or coat. The muff is embroidered with beads, forming various conventionalized designs. There are also looped strings of beads at each opening of the muff.

How They Are Saluted. Salute to the national flag, the presilent and ex-president of the United States and the presiders or sovereigns of foreign states, twenty-one guns; vice president of the United States and foreign ambassadors, nineteen guns; the president of the senate, speaker of the house of representatives, cabinet officers, chief justice, governors within their respective states or territories, governors general of foreign states, civil governors of the Philippine Islands, general of the army, admiral of the navy and same ranks in foreign armies and navies, seventeen guns; United States and foreign ministers plenipotentiary, vice governor of the Philippine Islands, assistant secretaries of war or navy, lieutenant general or major general commanding the army and corresponding ranks in the navies, fifteen guns; ministers resident, major generals, rear admirals and corresponding ranks in foreign armies and navies, thirteen guns; charge d'affaires, brigadier generals and corresponding ranks in foreign armies and navies, eleven guns; consuls general, nine guns.

Dawn and the Darkest Hour.

"The darkest hour is just before dawn," is an old English proverb which expresses more poetically the homelier adages, "When things are at their worst they soonest mend," "When gale is highest boat is nighest," "The longest day will have an end," "After a storm comes a calm," and finds an equivalent in other languages, as in French, "By dint of going wrong all will come right;" in Italian, "Ill is the eve of well;" in Persian, "It is at the narrowest part of the defile that the valley begins to open," and in Hebrew, "When the tale of bricks is doubled Moses comes.

That the nights, as a rule, are darkest just before dawn is doubtless true, for the moon has then reached far on to the western horizon, while the sun is still below the eastern horizon.

Sound Waves.

Science says that the loudness of sounds varies inversely as the square of the distance. This is merely another way of saying that if you walk three times as far away from the source of the sound as you were before its loudness will not be a third what it was, but a ninth of what it was, for nine is the square of three.

On the other hand, the density of the medium which conveys sound is very important. On a frosty night the air is dense. One consequence of this is that an automobile runs better because the engine gets larger supplies of oxygen. Another result is that sounds are heard more loudly. However, the report of a gun high up in the mountains is like the scund of an exploded firecracker.

Father of English Poetry.

The first English bard to attain lasting fame was Geoffrey Chaucer, who was born in London about 1340. "The father of English poetry" was the son of a vintner named John Chaucer and in his youth served the king as a soldier and was taken prisoner by the French. The English king paid $80 for his ransom, which was quite a high price for a poet. Chaucer's most celebrated work, "The Canterbury Tales," was written between 1373 and 1400. It consists of a series of tales supposed to have been told by a company of pilgrims to the shrine of St. Thomas a Becket at Canterbury, and in its pages we get such pictures of English life and ways of thought as are found nowhere else.

Brevity.

Robert Louis Stevenson was a close student of style and has left more than one interesting discussion of the technique of writing. In a letter to R. A. M. Stevenson, dated October, 1883, he savs: "There is but one art-to omit! Oh, if I knew how to omit I would ask no other knowledge! A man who knew how to omit would make an 'Iliad' of a daily paper."

When Pressing Silk.

Always press silk under a piece of muslin to prevent the silk from becoming hard and crackly. First dampen the muslin and use a moderately hot iron till the muslin is quite dry.

"Is Bronson as forgetful as ever?" "More so. Why, that fellow has to look himself up in the directory every night before he goes home from business. Forgets his address."

Story of an American's Adventure In Russia.

By ALAN HINSDALE **********

Fred Champlin possessed an income of $50,000 a year and was a globe trotter. He was also an amateur sportsman-yachtsman and everything else that affords amusement out of doors.

One winter Champlin was in St. Petersburg (now Petrograd). Russia was then at peace with all of the world except herself. Revolution was brewing. The government knew it was brewing, and the Russian secret police was keeping an eye on all suspected citizens. Revolutions are generally upheavals of the lowest classes. The late Russian movement was participated in by persons of first grade, including the nobles, or at least members of noble families. Champlin was not aware of what was going on-for everything was done secretly-till one night when he attended a ball given at the Winter palace.

The American minister had secured him his invitation and had warned him to exercise the utmost care in avoiding being drawn into a dangerous position toward the government.

The advice was lost on Champlin, who proposed to associate with whom he pleased. Being a free American citizen he demurred at being told by any government who should not be his friend. However, he went to the ball. not dreaming that he would fall into the trap such as he had been warned

He was dancing with a girl, the daughter of a general in the Russian army. Her right hand was in his left and held high. He felt something drop into his coat sleeve. The girl brought the dance to a close, at the same time looking meaningly at the sleeve. Lowering his arm, Champlin caught something in his hand. He put it in his coat pocket without looking at it, but as soon as he could do so unobserved he examined it, finding a powder wrapped in a bit of paper, as medicines are put up by druggists.

As Champlin was leaving for his hotel he saw the girl he had danced with passing out. Two men, one on each side, escorted her. They were evidently not guests. The girl gave Champlin a look which he could not understand, but he inferred that it was an appeal for something. He passed out of the palace behind the two men and the girl and saw them enter a carriage. Jumping into his own con veyance, he directed his coachman to follow the one just driving away.

Champlin saw the two men and the girl alight in front of a police station and go inside. There he lost her. He thought of following her in, but feared to compromise her by doing so. It was well he did not, for the powder remained in his coat pocket, and if he had been searched a deadly poison would have been found on him. This he discovered later on.

It was evident to him that this young lady had been suspected. Doubtless spies were watching her when she slip ped the powder into his sleeve. His theory was that she had prepared to poison some one during the ball Whether she had succeeded or failed, she had taken advantage of dancing with Champlin to get rid of the criminating substance.

Champlin had an overpowering desire to learn what had become of the girl. He made inquiries, but learnec nothing. Persons may disappear ir Russia and never again be heard of. Perhaps their immediate friends or families know where they are, but few inquiries are made, and the responses are not apt to be definite. At the same time, there are breaking hearts. Champlin believed, notwithstanding the girl had got rid of the evidence against her, that she was doomed. To be suspected in Russia is to be pronounced guilty, especially at a time when the government is in danger.

One morning when Champlin was about to open his bedroom door to go down to breakfast he found a note on the floor which had been slipped between the door and the sill. Opening it, he read: Pardon my daughter for having used you to save herself. She failed. She was seen to drop the package in your sleeve You are being watched. Leave Russia. secretly if you can.

There was no address, no signature. Champlin knew the name of the girl he had danced with, and instead of at once leaving Russia he waited until an inquiry had apprised him that she had been sent to Siberia. Then, in stead of leaving secretly, he departed openly, arguing that he was doubtless known to the police as an American who had no interest in the revolution and if he tried to get away secretly he would render himself liable to sus-

There was something in this transi tion from the festivities of the Winter palace to the dreadful Kara prison. with its desperate hunger strikes, that affected Champlin deeply. What mov ed him most was that appealing look Lisa Dmitrievna gave him when being marched away from the hall between two officials. He had supposed it to mean, "If you are questioned do not give me away." but as the episode -rather the tragedy-continued to impress itself upon his soul he could not help feeling that it meant, "For heaven's sake, save me!"

I have said that Fred Champlin was a lover of adventure. So he was. But | FOR BAKED COD OR HADDOCK the idea of a rescue of a woman from the Russian government was so wild so innately near the impossible, that for a time it never entered his head. When it did it was banished, but to return and keep returning till it occurred to him that he possessed one element of success that was not to be despised, especially in Russia. He had plenty of money, and Russian officials were amenable to bribery. No sooner did the fact present itself to him than he gave himself up to concocting a plan by which he might assist Lisa Dmitrievna to escape from Kara.

A prominent American journalist had some years previously obtained permission from the Russian government to inspect the Kara prison and write a report of the tweatment of the prisoners there. It occurred to Champlin that such permission would be of great help to him. Since his efforts were to be entirely dependent upon the use of money he thought he might as well begin at once. But this first move was independent of bribery. He from whom permission must be given was of the imperial blood, and to attempt to bribe him might spoil everything.

Champlin went to England and bought a newspaper. Immediately its columns contained bitter attacks upon the Russian government for the treatment of prisoners at Kara. Champlin saw to it that these articles were largely copied, and he employed persons to send clippings to the czar. It was not long before a protest was sent to his paper by the official charged with the administration of prisons. The editor of the paper wrote that if permission were given a representative to inspect the prisoners of Kara an article would appear in the journal giving a true account of what he saw.

It was a happy day for the American when the desired permit came. He had meanwhile been gathering funds for corrupting prison officials and had all he wanted. Having converted a sufficient amount into Russian money, he started for Siberia.

It is questionable if Champlin would have been able to make even a beginning had he not been favored by for-Lisa's father was a trusted offitune. cer of the czar. His daughter had not been convicted of assassination or intended assassination. She was in league with revolutionists and had been caught in suspicious actions. These facts enabled the general to obtain for his daughter a transfer to what is called the Free Command, which means that those confined there live in huts instead of prisons and are in so far their own masters.

While Champlin was being shown over the prisons-they had been put in the best possible shape for the inspection-he was keeping an eye open for his purpose. When he learned that Lisa had been transferred to the Free Command his heart beat high with hope. He at once expressed a desire to inspect this portion of the institution and was given permission to do so. On his arrival there Lisa's cabin was pointed out to him, and, going to the door, he knocked. A woman keeper answered the summons, and upon his showing an order to inspect any portion of the institution he was admitted. Lisa was sitting at a window sewing. She looked up at the visitor and recognized him at once, but he did not change countenance himself. and she restrained hers.

desire to question this prisoner, he said to the keeper, "she being free to tell me what I wish to know."

The woman read his permit careful ly, then went into the other of the two rooms which composed the cabin and shut the door. Champlin, having satisfied himself, or, rather, Lisa having assured him, that he was not spied upon, spoke freely in a low tone. Lisa, overwhelmed that he should have come to Kara in her interest, seized his hand and kissed it. But that time should not be lost he proceeded at once to question her with a view to laying a plan for her escape. His first query was, "Can your keep er be bribed?" Lisa told him that she could if the bribe were large enough If she permitted Lisa to escape, she remaining, it would go hard with her

She must be paid for that. Presently Champlin went into the room where the woman was, and when he came out he had left with her 40, 900 rubles ($20,000), which she at once buried under the floor of the hut. For this she was to resign her position, stating that she desired to go to her home in Russia.

Leaving the hut, Champlin visited the officer in charge of the entrance to the Kara establishment.

"Colonel," he said, "one of the keepers in the Free Command has resigned her position and desires to return with me to Russia. I fear you may think that I am taking a prisoner instead. Lest you should feel bound to delay me till the matter can be investigated, I leave with you a little present contained in this package."

The colonel took the package into another room, examined it and found a hundred thousand rubles. His eyes stood out of his head, but when he returned to Champlin he merely said:

"I will not delay you." The next day the journalist completed his inspection, and in the morning, just before break of day, he drove out of the prison yard with Lisa's keeper, thickly veiled. As soon as they were out of sight and hearing the woman's reil was thrown off, and Lisa sprang into her preserver's arms. A few months later Fred Champlin appeared among his friends in America with a Russian wife. But he did not dare tell that he had taken her from the Free Command of the Kara mines. There is no extradition treaty for political prisoners between the United States and Russia. But both Fred and Lisa felt easier at not publishing the fact that she was wanted

Method of Preparation That Has Long Been in Favor With Housewives of New England.

Wash and wipe a small cod or haddock. Now, hold in an upright position and have a needle and string handy. Take the threaded needle and run through the head from side to side, then in the opposite direction through the middle of the body, then reverse and put through tail, then draw up, and it will form a letter S. Tie ends of string together on under side of fish. If fish is to be stuffed it must be done first. For stuffing, one-half cupful bread crumbs and four teaspoonfuls melted butter, four teaspoonfuls of finely chopped parsley or onions, two teaspoonfuls salt and one of pepper. Add milk to moisten, put in fish and sew it up. When fish is put in the pan it is resting on its belly. Cut gashes in back of fish about two inches apart and insert narrow strips of salt pork. Dredge with flour and baste often with the pork drippings. Allow ten minutes to every pound and ten minutes extra. When done remove string, place on platter and pour over it this egg sauce: Three tablespoonfuls flour, two of butter, and one pint boiling water, onehalf teaspoonful salt and a little pepper, and one hard boiled egg. Melt butter in saucepan, add flour and stir in boiling water slowly. Let boil five minutes, stirring constantly. Add the egg chopped fine, and salt and pepper, Garnish with parsley.

Rich Chocolate Cake Suitable for a Birthday Celebration or Any Special Occasion.

Two cupfuls of sugar, three-fourths of a cupful of butter (good measure), one cupful of buttermilk, whites of six eggs, yolks of four eggs, one teaspoonful of soda, one-half cake of good chocolate, three scant cupfuls of flour sifted together with the soda, one teaspoonful of vanila. Cream the butter and sugar, add the yolks of the eggs previously beaten to a cream, then alternating, the buttermilk and the flour. The vanila and chocolate are added last, the chocolate having been melted in a bowl set in a boiling tea kettle. Bake in a moderate oven. Test with a broom straw and when this, thrust in the top, comes out dry the cake is

The frosting, also brown, is made with one cupful cream, two cupfuls sugar, butter size of an egg, three squares of chocolate. Mix together and put on to boil. Let it boil slowly until it balls when thrown into cold water. Remove from stove and let the bubbling subside, then beat until it can be poured on the cake and glazed with a knife.

Berry Pudding.

Beat to a cream one cupful of but ter with two cupfuls of sugar, add four well-beaten eggs, one cupful of sour cream in which one teaspoonful of soda is dissolved, and four cupfuls of flour. Stir all together and add one quart of berries, dredged lightly with flour. Wring a pudding cloth out in boiling water, dredge it with flour and pour the batter in, tying it loosely enough to allow the pudding to swell, Plunge this into boiling water and boil for three hours. This pudding can be steamed, but an hour longer should be allowed for the steaming. Serve with wine or vinegar sauce.

Invalid's Chair.

A chair for an invalid or an elderly person may be made very convenient by placing a drawer beneath the seat, arranging it to pull out at one side. It can be provided with a lock if desired. The drawer can be readily manipulated by anyone occupying the chair, and makes the infirm feel fairly independent, as many useful articles and treasures may be kept there, and he will not have to ask for every little thing he uses, Delicate Cakes.

Buy a nice jelly roll with not too much jelly. Cut in slices an inch thick. Frost with white, pink or chocolate frosting on top and sides and put coconut or chopped nuts on top.

Frosting-Four tablespoonfuls milk: make quite stiff with confectioners' sugar and flavor and color as you like. Chocolate frosting must be a little thinner than plain before chocolate or cocoa is added.

Pickled Red Cabbage.

Slice up the cabbage fine and place it in a colander; sprinkle each layer with common salt. Let the strips drain for two days, then put them in a jar and cover with boiling vinegar. If a spice is used it must be put in with the vinegar in the proportion of one ounce of whole black pepper and one-half ounce of allspice to the quart.

Some Egg Tips.

A tiny pinch of salt added to the whites of eggs makes them beat up quite quickly. A tablespoonful of water added to each white of egg before beating will double the quantity. To prevent eggs from cracking when boiling always dip first in cold water.

For Greasy Woodwork.

Paint or woodwork that has become greasy should be cleaned with a cloth dipped in turpentine. Then wipe with a cloth dipped in water to which a little kerosene has been added.

To Boil Cracked Eggs. An egg that is cracked can be boiled by inclosing it in a piece of soft pa-

SCHOOL. SUNDAY

Lesson II.—First Quarter, For Jan. 14, 1917.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, John i, 19-34. Memory Verses, 32, 33-Golden Text, John i, 29-Commentary Prepared by |

When John the Baptist was questioned as to who he was he said that he was not the Christ, nor Elijah, nor the expected prophet, but simply a voice crying in the wilderness, "Make straight the way of the Lord" (verses 19-23). His commission is found in Isa. xl, 3-8, where it is said that he was to prepare the way of the Lord and make straight in the desert a highway for our God and to cry, "All flesh is grass, and all the goodliness thereof is as the flower of the field; * * * the grass withereth, the flower fadeth, but the Word of our God shall stand for-The Spirit through Malachi said of him, as well as of the real Elijah, yet to come, "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord" (Mal. iv, 5, 6). The angel Gabriel said of him to his father Zacharias, "He shall be great in the sight of the Lord, * * * and he shall be filled with the Holy Ghost even from his mother's womb; he shall go before the Lord in the spirit and power of Elijah * * * to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." His father Zacharias, being filled with the Holy Spirit, said of him, "And thou, child, shalt be called the prophet of the Highest, for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare His ways" (Luke i, 13-17, 67-79). The Lord Jesus said of him, "Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist" (Matt.

When questioned farther by the Pharisees as to why he baptized if he was not some great one, he said that there was one standing among them whom they knew not, the latchet of whose shoes he was not worthy to unloose, and that while he (John) baptized with water the unknown one would baptize with the Holy Ghost (verses 24-27, 33). He is ever the same Jesus. Trust Him to baptize you with the Holy Spirit now and hear Him say, 'Be it unto thee, even as thou wilt;" Whatsoever things ye desire when ye pray, believe that ye receive them and ye shall have them" (Mark xi, 24). The cry of John the next day as he saw Jesus coming unto him, "Behold the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world," was one of the greatest cries that one mortal could make to another.

It would be worth while to go into all lands with that one cry and its associated truths. It takes us not only to the foundation of the world, but before that (Rev. xiii, 8; I Pet. i, 19, 20), for as the Lamb of God He was foreordained before the foundation of the world. It takes us to Gen. iii, 21, where we see Him with His own hand, demption clothing for Adam and Eve. It takes us to Gen. xxii, where we see the lamb dying in the stead of Isaac. It takes us to Ex. xii and all that is said of the Passover Lamb; also to the lambs of the daily morning and evening sacrifice; to Isa. lili and to passages without number concerning His being a sacrifice for our sins; then on to the Revelation, where He is called the Lamb just twenty-eight times, redeeming by His precious blood, enabling us to overcome by the same, conquering all His enemies and ours and finally associated with the Father on the throne (Rev. v, 9, 10; vii, 14; xii, 11; xvii, 14; xxii, 1, 3).

As His redeemed ones we are lambs in the midst of wolves, and when we think of all He has borne for us as the Lamb of God and all the glory that awaits us as His associates we might well be willing to be killed all the day long for His sake, if only He can be glorified in us. John says that it was his commission to manifest Christ to Israel, and it is our commission to manifest Him to the world, that the world may know Him through us. Alway delivered unto death for Jesus' sake, that the life of Jesus may be made manifest in our mortal flesh (John xvii, 21, 23; II Cor. iv, 10, 11). It would seem that John did not know Him personally until the day of the baptism at Jordan, but he had been told, "Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending and remaining on Him the same is He who baptizeth with the Holy Ghost," John bare record saying, "I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove, and it abode upon Him, and I saw and bare record that this is the Son of God" (verses 31-34).

There must have been a knowing of Him in some sense before the baptism, for when He came to John to be baptized that day John said to Him. "I have need to be baptized of thee. and comest thou to me." So there must have been some increased revelation of Him to John after the baptism when the heavens were opened, the Spirit descended like a dove and light ed upon Him, and the Father said from heaven, "This is my beloved Son. In whom I am well pleased" (Matt. iii, 13-17). What a contrast between John who bare record "This is the Son of God" and the devil who said so soon afterward "If thou be the Son of God" (Matt. iii, 17; iv, 3). When we are well pleased with Him in whom the Father is well pleased then the Father is pleased with us, but if we do not receive Him as Son of God we cannot be saved.

Freakish Bequests.

Five thousand pounds for an eques-trian statue of himself! That was the principal item in the will of a Scottish farmer who died some few months ago. The directions explicitly stated that the statue, cast of massive bronze. was to represent the farmer as champion at the Riding Musselburgh marches. A further sum of £20 a year is to be expended on upkeep.

For sheer eccentricity, however, pride of place must be given to the wil! of a former French railway official. Many years before he had made up his mind to quit this life by hanging himself and actually planted a special acacia tree. On the trunk he placed the following inscription:

"Tree, which I straightened and tended in thy young years, sustain me in my old age.'

By his will he left 100 francs for prizes for a bowling match to be played over his grave, and sufficient money was left to provide a banquet for eight of his friends, to be served around his coffin.-London Answers.

Just Money.

"The brick residence on the left," said the spieler of the rubberneck wagon (never mind in what city), "is the home of the famous multimillionaire Mr. Jones. The brown stone across the way was built by Mr. Smith, one of our wealthiest citizens. The magnificent mansion up the street belongs to B. Z. Brown, the richest man in the city. It cost $2,000,000 and includes a gold dining service costing $55,000."

An elderly woman interrupted. "Would you mind telling us," she said, "whether there is anybody of prominence in the city who ever did any thing but make money or who did any thing in a public way with the money he made?"

The driver didn't know what to say, for it wasn't his speech, anyway; it was one the company had prepared for him. Evidently the mere possession of money was the company's idea of what the public would be interested in .-New York World.

Sweetening.

Many people can remember when brown sugar was practically the only kind in use. The pioneers found it to their taste. There are even today places where white or loaf sugar has never been seen on the table or in the kitchen.

As for sorghum sirup, that thick and sweet product, it was used not only in coffee or tea, but on pancakes and warm biscuit. It was not half as bad as it sounds. Molasses in coffee was also common. We can also remember the widow's advice to the minister who called to take dinner:

"Have some more 'lasses in your cof fee, Mr. Grimes. Have some more 'lasses. 'Twouldn't be none too good for you if 'twas all 'lasses."

It is not a long step backward from sugar to sorghum, from electric lights to candles, from petroleum to whale oil.-Syracuse Post-Standard.

Millepedes.

The little creature which possesses the distinction of having more legs than any other animal is that which belongs to the family of insects known as millepedes or thousand footed.

There are several different species of these, but they all possess the common characteristic of having segmented bodies, each segment of which is pro vided with its own pair of feet. These are set so closely along the body as to resemble hairs, and when they move one after another with perfect regularity the effect is precisely the same on a small scale as that of a field of oats undulating under the influence of the wind. Some species of millepedes have as many as 350 separate and dis tinct legs. They are all perfectly harm

The First Phoenix.

Legend tells us that the first phoenia was born in the garden of Eden and had its nest in a great red rose, the first rose that ever bloomed. When the angel drove Adam and Eve out o: paradise a spark of fire fell from the angel's fiery sword and burned up the phoenix and his nest. Out of the ashes sprang a glorious bird, which also lived 500 years before mysteriously burning itself, at every recurrence of which a new phoenix is said to arise.

Improved Utensils Have Done Much to Lessen Labor in That Part of the Home.

Evolution is at last placing its mark on the household implements. From the pestle of the grandmothers was evolved the wooden rolling pin, but that is going out of use. For some time the glass rolling pin, which could be handled, was in favor; but now the pin is made of heavy crystal glass, with no seams or crevices to hold paste, and by actual test one of these has been cleaned in five seconds. It is very light and so rolls with ease, and when it is desired to have it extra cold, for rolling some kinds of pastry, it may be placed in the refrigerator.

The bread mixer long in use had its leverage extended in a rotary motion over the top; but a new mixer now on the market has the power applied at the side as in an ice cream freezer, making it much easier to use.

There has just come to notice a combined gas range and fireless cooker. It is a complete gas range with an insulated oven comparable to the finest type of fireless cooker. The food is placed in the oven, the heat turned on until cooking is well under way, then the gas is turned off and the food continues to cook as in a fireless cooker. It is compact and efficient and avoids the trouble of moving the cooking dishes from the stove to the fireless re-

DOUGHNUTS THAT WILL KEEP

New England Recipe for Delicacy That Is Popular in All Sections of the Country.

To one egg beaten slightly stir in three-quarters of a cupful sugar, a little cinnamon and nutmeg, two teaspoonfuls of the melted fat you use for frying, one teaspoonful soda in one cupful of sweet milk, two teaspoonfuls cream of tartar in sifted bread flour. Stir stiff enough to handle. I never measure my flour, but can tell when it is right in my hands on the board. Cut out all at once, using little ends for twisted doughnuts so as not to mold over.

Let stand on board half an hour to raise, and fry in hot fat. When my fat begins to smoke it is hot enough. Turn doughnuts as soon as they rise, and keep turning. I find they cook more even, with fewer holes, than when turned only once. I use also a little salt, about one-quarter teaspoonful, and I think the three-quarters cupful of sugar makes them lighter than a full cup. I put mine in colander, and when about half cold put them into a tin pail and cover tightly, which causes them to steam a little and keep moist longer. -Janice in Boston Globe.

Molded Rice.

To cook rice so that the grains will be whole and tender, wash it in cold water until water looks clear, then cook it rapidly in boiling water for 15 minutes, after which drain and place the covered saucepan on the back of the stove to steam until the grains crack open and are tender, which will be about 15 minutes longer.

white calico, three fingers long. Dip in older, uncertain of their power, for hot water, put in your rice and tie bag, leaving room for the rice to swell. Put into pot with cold water, let come to a boil. Put salt in the water and cook from half to three-quarters of an hour. When done it will turn out dry, like a mold. Serve with milk or butter and sugar. It is well to put a saucer in the bottom of pan to prevent its burning.

Compote of Apples.

Pare and core and cut into halves six large, fine apples. To each pound add one pound of sugar, rind of two lemons and a little vinegar. Cook covered for one hour. Add one-half cupful cider and boil for half an hour, then stir in a spoonful of vanilla and let cool, arranged in a dish. Serve with whipped cream and garnish of cherries and citron.

KITCHEN WORK MADE EASIER | WOMAN FARMERS DOING WELL

Thousands Have Won Success in This Country, as They Have in the British Isles.

English women are not the only ones who are hurrying into the farming business, remarks a writer in the Springfield (Mass.) Republican. American women are turning in large numbers every year to stock raising, bee raising and farming of all sorts. When the national beekeepers' association had its last annual meeting in Philadelphia it was noticed that a large number of the members were women and they took a pertinent part in the discussions.

Western women are older hands at the business. The Missouri Woman tells us there are 3,000 woman farmers in that state, and they are women who farm intelligently, scientifically and successfully. They study the bulletins sent out by the state board of agriculture, they compete at the state and country fairs-often they have been quick to realize that co-operation between city and country is of utmost importance to both.

The 3,000 woman farmers of Missouri make good profits in time of peace. In time of war they could, very likely, feed the entire state if all the men farmers should be drafted into military service. Of one example of efficient "farm management," we read that she has been making money annually on 200 acres in wheat and extensive stock raising; another "raises hogs under glass"—that is to say, she attracted wide attention a few years ago, during a blizzard winter, when other farmers were losing live stock by freezing, through resourcefully converting her greenhouses into shelter. Another Missouri woman farmer is widely recognized as an expert in fine hogs. Her Berkshires have taken prizes wherever shown and her corn exhibited at San Francisco carried off the exposition gold medal.

SUPREME IN HIS EGOTISM

Man So Sure of Himself That He Suffers Little From the Desire to Possess.

Men do not, as a rule, suffer very much from the desire to possess, because they are so sure that they do possess, because they find it so difficult to conceive that their wife can find any other man attractive, writes W. L. George in the Atlantic Monthly. They are too well accustomed to being courted, even if they are old and repulsive, because they have power and money; only they think it is because they are men. Beyond a jealous care for their wives' fidelity, which I suspect arises mainly from the feeling that an unfaithful wife is a criticism, they do not ask very much. But women suffer more deeply because they know that man has lavished on them for centuries a condescending admiration: that the king who lays his crown at their feet knows that his is the crown to give. While men possess by right of possession women possess only by right of precarious conquest. They feel it very bitterly, this fugitive empire, and their greatest tragedy is Molded Rice-Make a bag, linen or to find themselves growing a little they are afraid, as age comes, of losing their man, while I have never heard of a husband afraid of losing his wife, or able to repress his surprise if she forsook him.

Begin Seal Killing.

A few years ago when pelagic sealers flourished and seals also were killed on the rookeries, it was the favorite trick of milady to develop a hollow cough which left her better or worse half the alternative of sending her to Florida for the winter or purchasing a sealskin coat. Seals then became scarce through the unceasing demand, and the government stepped in and halted the killing. This, observes the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, brought relief to father, and he, since 1910, when the government took over the herds, has been able to lay up a little money for the coal bill. Comes now H. J. Christoffer, assistant agent for the United States bureau of fisheries, with the depressing information that the seal herds on the Pribilof islands, St. Paul and St. George, have increased to such an extent that the government will start killing and put the hides upon the market. All this means that history, with reference to the sealskin coat, is going to repeat itself.

Russian Enterprise.

The enterprise of the Russian peasants is continually giving evidence of the nation's readiness for progress. The phenomenal success of the consumers' leagues has enabled the establishment of numerous factories and distributing centers on capital owned by the peasants themselves. The mistaken impression of the mujik as a moneyless dweller on the soil is brought into sharp contrast by the realization that the Russian peasant is now thriftily investing his savings the stalks are separated and come in industrial enterprises. Thus, the credit society of Sapojok, government of Riazan, has just bought a factory for the purpose of manufacturing agricultural machinery for 23,000 rubles. Members of the society alone will be employed in making the winnowing and crushing machines.

···*·Delco - Light ···

The Standard Light of the World ELECTRIC LIGHT FOR FARM VILLAGE AND SUBURBAN HOMES,

It Has No Equal. Its ease of operation make it the idol of the children. Its usefulness in lightening the duties of the house-wife, and its many applications on the farm, make it a favorite of the older falls. WHY DELCO-LIGHT CAME ON THE MARKET

The designers of Delco-Light being farmers as well as electrical wizards, saw the poosibilities of electricity in the country years ago. They were desirous of placing in the hands of the farmer something that would put his home and his family on more of an equality with his Banker, Lawyer and Doctor, and in 1911 and 1912 the First Delco-House-Lighting-Plants were built for use. Three or four hundred of these plants were kept constantly in use, in secrecy as far as possible, until the early part of 1916 when Delco-Light had proven its practicability and efficiency and was ready to give to the residents of the rural districts even a cheaper and more sure light than that enjoyed in the average small city.

Application of Delco-Light in the Home

Besides furnishing a perfectly safe light for children and for the aged and the only light, electricity, on which the push-buttom is practical, Delco-Light furnishes power to operate the Vacuum Sweeper, Electric Iron, Sewing Machine, Washing Machine and a operate the Vacuum Sweeper, Electric Iron, Sewing Machine, Washing Machine and Enumer to Furnish running water to bath room, kitchen and to all outbuildings. For Simplicity, Durability and Economy these pumping systems have no equal. The water systems are of the pressure type and will force water to a level of one hundred and ten feet or to any place on the farm—a good fire protection. With them a Fresh Water Spigot at the kitchen sink brings all water for drinking and cooking purposes direct from the well.

The breeze of an electric fan for the tired housewife, for the dining room table or for the bedraom in mid-summer is no more of a luxury for the farmer using Delco-Light than it is for his Banker, Lawyer and Doctor. The pressure of a button in the bedroom may play "Stop Thief" before the robber has accomplished his aim.

If they count he dyndary of the m is and rouse for itself.

Application of Delco-Light on the Farm

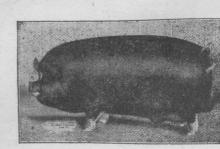

One Hundred and Eight Applications of electricity on the farm are possible and the records of line past six months has proven the assertions of the designers, "That Delco-Light will show a 50 per cent return each year on the investment where all its applications are brought into use "In addition to making the only absolutely safe light for use in ba ns and out buildings where more or less inflamable material is kept, it develops enough power to operate Milking Machines, no air pipes are required, and with the use of the Thirty-five Pound Portable Power Stand, all hand-operated appliances such as of the Thirty-five Pound Portable Power Stand, all hand-operated appliances such as Wheat Cleaning Mill, Shelber, Grinder, Separator, Churn, Horse Clippers, etc., can be op rated in full by one man—IT SAVES TIME—ONE MAN BECOMES TWO. The turning of a switch in the house may chase away the intruder before he has taken the ho se or robbed the tenery.
