PROHIBITION NOW

Senate and House Give Amendment Strong Votes.

The House, on Friday, passed the "dry" amendment, without debate, by a vote of 58 to 36. The friends of the measure were so pronouncedly in control, that the opposition made lit-tle effort to obstruct final passage.

A large number of resolutions were received, this week, against race track gambling, and in favor of prohibition and increased teachers' sal-

A large number of bills were introduced, many of a local character. One was to make the registration of voters compulsory, and another was one to make the law relating to the examination of stationary engineers apply to the whole state.

Mr. Phoebus, of Somerset, introduced a state-wide "bone-dry" bill for Maryland, which would abolish all saloons in the state, on Nov. 1. There is doubt of the passage of this bill, at this time, as it would greatly interfere with the state's revenue and expense budget, already made up.

A bill has been presented authorizing baseball in Baltimore, on Sundays, after 2 o'clock; also such other games as tennis, crouquet, football,

On Wednesday, the Senate finished up the National Prohibition amendment, passing it by a vote of 18 to 7. Senator Bennett made the argument for the amendment, and Senators Norris and Frick against it. A formal protest was also read, signed by the seven opposing Senators.

Baltimore city and nearly every county in the state were represented at a hearing held in the Senate chamber Thursday morning before the joint Committees on Education in oppostion to the bill introduced by Senator Speicher, which repeals the law passed two years ago which provided for the appointment of school supervisors and truant officers. The point made that it should be suspended dur-ing the period of the war was ridiculed, and the argument advanced that this would be shifting the burden from the men to the children. Superintendent Stephens, of the State Board, who introduced the speakers, also made a vigorous address, in which he demonstrated that the repeal of this law would be a step back-

A popular Commercial Course, with adequate equipment, has been installed. Successful courses have been given in the French and German languages, Chemistry and Biology.

Public Sales Advertised.

From this time on, The Record will be additionally interesting because of many Public Sales advertised. This means that readers, in their homes, can look over many sale lists, for several weeks in advance.

This year, the type we are using is a little larger and clearer than former years, making the reading easier. is also noticeable that most of the sales will be large ones. The Record, as usual, will maintain its reputation for being a great sale paper, advertising, in full, more sales than any other paper in the county.

Purchase Farm Tools Early.

It is more urgent this year than ever for farm implements and repair parts to be ordered early. Because of prevailing high prices dealers are likely to maintain smaller stocks. To insure having necessary equipment in time for farm operations this season, farmers are advised by specialists of the Department of Agriculture to order at the earliest possible moment. Excessive delays in getting machinery and machine parts from the factory are costly and should be avoided | readily exchanged a machine gun for in so far as possible.

Carroll County Council of Defense.

We have received a very lengthy report for the month of January from the Carroll County Division Maryland Council of Defense, Womens Section, as rendered by Mrs. Robert Sargent Shriver at the monthly meeting in Baltimore, on the 7th. The report shows commendable activity on the part of the local division. We have space only for the following extracts:

A short course in Farming and Food Conservation, was given in Westminster by the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company. The arrangements were made by a most able committee, interests stimulated by the Council of Defense. The course given was well worth the effort of preparation. The lecturers were able men and women, most interesting pictures were shown, demonstrations were well conducted with excellent charts and in spite of intense weather, the attendance was large. The different sections attracted not only persons in Westminster, but all farmers, who were not com-pletely cut off by the snow. We feel certain that had the conditions permitted, a very large percentage of farmers and their wives from all over the county would have been present. Another demonstration of the preparation of war foods was given by Miss Ericson, of the Maryland Agricultural College, in the Domestic Science room of the Westminster High School. This was also most interesting and helpful. The Women teresting and helpful. The Woman County Agent has formed several Thrift Clubs and reports a most enthusiastic response and real interest among the women.

The Superintendent of Schools for Carroll County, has taken up with the County Commissioners the subject "Increased compensation for the Teachers," and obtained their support. They have agreed to pay the increase if the state can complete the fund and are awaiting a reply from the Legislature.

Plans are being formulated for a tour of each District, as soon as the weather conditions are favorable, for the purpose of stimulating interests in the war. We hope to obtain interesting war pictures and a motion picture machine and to hold a meeting in the local school houses, having speakers to make addresses along patriotic and educational lines.

Fourteen young women volunteered to do clerical work for the draft board, and were constantly active for nearly a month doing splendid work. Four of this number were loaned by their employers. An active campaign is being organized for the sale of thrift stamps. Arrangments have been made with the chairman of the four minute men of Carroll County, to make a short address in each room of every school High School Principal Resigns.

The Public Welfare League of Myers District.

The Public Welfare League of Myers District held its regular meet ing at the A. O. K. of M. C. hall, Silver Run, on Monday evening, at 7:30 o'clock. This was called to consider ways and means of improving road onditions on this link of the Lincoln Highway (unimproved) between Westminster and the Mason & Dixon line—twelve miles. A committee recently waited upon Excellency, the Governor Maryland, and was assured by that official that his support will be given to the matter. The Governor stated that special legislation is being enacted relative to the purpose. Another matter considered by the League, is "The High School Proposition. Senator Warfield is backing up a plan whereby High Schools may be enabled to be established in the county, through special legislation. We are asking the Senator, through committee composed of A. J. niller and G. W. Yeiser, to include Myers District in his special work, when such work is launched. We feel that we are entitled to the same (or equal) consideration as Sykes ville, or any other point where High Schools are being asked for.

If this route is to be known as a Postal Route, we are seeking advice as to how the present mail truck, passing through here enroute from Baltimore, to Gettysburg, may serve us to the best advantage. To that end, G. W. Yeiser and Calvin E. Bankert, of Union Mills, are appointed to take up this matter with the Fourth Assistant Postmaster, at Washington, D. C. The chairman, Rev. S. C. Hoover, explained the War Saving Stamps in all its merits, which elicited considerable interest from his hearers.

The plan is to have these meetings every two weeks, and at the coming meeting, Feb. 25, have two speakers from the Agricultural College, Colege Park, to enlighten us upon matters of the farm, as well as matters incident to social life.

The correspondent of the London Morning Post reports that German traders took advantage of the situation in Russia and erected 400 booths at convenient spots along and close to the Russian front. It appears that the Russian soldiers are most anxious to obtain playing cards and that they

This act is pretty generally considered as one that will compel the general tracks a handle in fix. the government to take a hand in fixing wages, and enforcing work. It is said that men demand as high as $6.60 a day for skilled carpenters, and want what is known as the "closed shop"—none employed but members of unions.

Chairman Hurley, of the Shipbuilding Board, has addressed a telegram to the strikers, as follows: "While the people of this country are mourning the loss of brave young Americans in the Tuscania horror, while thousands of American homes are anxiously watching the lists of survivors slowly coming in, to make crtain that another precious life has been snatched from the Atlantic Ocean, a telegram comes—and with it the grim announcement that the carpenters in shipyards are now on

"Do you realize that you are adding to the fearful dangers our soldiers already face—the danger of starvation and the danger of slaughter if food and ammunition are not sent over in ships and in many ships at once? Do you think the fathers and mothers whose sons are making this sacrifice will sit patiently by and permit this paralyzing of the life-line between us and the Western front to go on?

"Will you take my friendly suggestion and go back to work at once? The machinery for dealing with all your demands and with the right of labor is at hand. You will be welladvised to follow the methods of managed and patriotic labor organizations, at least until you have test-ed whether or not your Government,

"I advise you to end the paralyzig of the shipyard work now. I am sure you will not deliberately imperil the lives and safety of brave fellowcitizens. I am sure you believe with me that those whose sons are now giving their blood that you and I and our children may be safe and free will not permit either you or me to invite destruction of heroic lives and disaster to a great world cause.

Our Government Must Have Ships.

The United States Shipping Board through Chairman Edward N. Burley, has sent to the Council of Defense in each State and County, an urgent call for speed in enrolling the patriotic men of the country who are willing to come to the aid of their country in this hour of need. The Eastern sea ports are packed with goods waiting transportation to our soldier boys and to our allies in Europe, and we must have ships to carry need twice as much shipping as we now have. The Shipping Board has the money, it has the yards, the housing question is being rapidly cleared up and we must have the men, clear-cut American citizens, who are willing to enroll for duty. The wages will be the highest, the duty is the highest patriotic call. Men beyond the draft age, here is your chance to show that you are not slackers! The boys are drafted and put on uniforms, and go into trenches. Are grown-ups so indifferent that they will not heed their country's call? If ships are not built soon, more enforced holidays will have to be ordered. Come up and enroll now. Get a bronze button and an engraved card of registration.

Already 25 patriots in Carroll Co. have enrolled, but Carroll's quota is At this time, Carroll county leads the counties of Maryland in number of men enrolled. Come, men, let's put Carroll county over the top, first of this week.

The work is in charge of Charles O. Clemson, Attorney, Westminster, with assistants in each district, so that applicants may apply to the nearest enrolling station. This is the most important work that the country asks its citizens to do, and too, the wages to be paid will be the highest.

Heatless Mondays Suspended.

Fuel Administrator Garfield suspended the heatless Monday order, this week ,but at the same time gave the state fuel administrators authority to extend the closing order in their territory, if they think it necessary. The order may again be put back in force if there is a return of severe cold weather, or a break-down in railroad transportation.

The War Situation.

Germany is generally credited with getting ready for a big battle in France, thousands of troops having been transferred from the Russian front, which now needs very little attention, though no formal peace treaty has been entered into by Russia.

While the German reinforcements In spite of their agreement with have been coming up, the Entente commanders have not been lying idle and waiting for the offensive to beyond the war, 1000 men walked out at the Baltimore, Sparwhere have strengthened their posiing Plants, on Thursday morning, on orders received from Indianapolis.

The men who have walked out have British and French sources that should the Germans strike-no matter how early the moment—they will meet with most stubborn resistance from gun and man power.

President Wilson to Farmers.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Delegates to the Federal Board of Farm Organiza-tions in session here, called on Presdent Wilson today and urged that he appoint a commission of nine from their number to serve as an intermediate between the Government and the farmers in solving agricultural labor and other problems.

The delegation presented a memorial making various suggestions con-cerning the handling of farm problems and the exemption of farm labor from military service. The President replied:

"I cannot, of course, offhand answer so important a memorial as this, and I need not tell you that it will receive my most careful, respectful attention. Many of the questions that are raised ave been matters of very deep months past, and I believe that many of them are approaching as successful a solution as we can work out for them, but just what those steps are I cannot now detail to you. You are probably familiar with some of them.

"I want to say that I fully recognize that you gentlemen do not mean that your utmost effort will depend upon the acceptance of these suggestions. I know you are going to do your level best in any circumstances, and I count on you with the utmost confidence in that. There has never been a time, gentlemen, which tested the real quality of folks as this time is going to test it; because we are fighting for something bigger than any man's imagination can grant. 'This is a final tackle between the things that America has always been opposed to and was organized to fight and the things that she stands for. It is the final contest, and to lose it would set the world back, not a hundred, perhaps several hundred, years in the development of human life. The thing cannot be exaggerated in its importance and I know that you men are ready, as I am, to spend every ounce of energy you have got in solving this thing. If we cannot solve it in the best way, we will solve it in the next best way, and if the next best way is not available, we will solve it in the way next best to that, but we will tackle it in some way and do it as well as we can."

Naval Recruits Still Wanted.

The decision of the Bureau of Navgation to allow enlistments in the Navy for duration of the war only, has created a considerable stimulus o Navy recruiting in the Maryland District. The recruiting authorities for the District, however, would like to see a quicker response to the call for men for the Aviation Branch of the Naval Service. This is one of the most attractive branches of the military service, and every young man with the necessary qualifications to enter it, should give t serious consideration before he deides to enter some other branch. Maryland has been assigned a small quota of quarter-masters and carpenters' mates, also one coppersmith for the Aviation Branch, and the Navy Recruiting authorities at Baltimore hope to fill this quota in due

Men enlisted in the Aviation Branch are sent to Pensacola, Fla., for training. Full particulars of Navy enlistments can be obtained from the nearest postmaster; directly from the Navy Recruiting Station, Calvert and Lexington Streets, Baltimore, or from the Navy Re-cruiting Substations at Cumberland and Hagerstown.

U. S. PEACE TERMS AGAIN ANNOUNCED.

President Wilson is Friendly to Austrian Advances.

President Wilson delivered an address to Congress, on Monday, rather unexpectedly, again covering the position of the U.S. with reference to peace. It was perhaps an effort in diplomacy, coming at a time when peace sentiments may be cultivated with Austria, and at a time when Russia's final withdrawal from the war is an actual fact. The address seems to carry with it an undercurrent of desire on our part to try to "get together," and to make it more clear that peace may be arrived at through earnest compromise efforts, rather than through fighting to a decisive conclusion by armed force.

If this is the President's object, it gregates 2,340,000 men. Recent is one that the allies, as well as the statements from the British military authorities in Great Britain have ously, if they want to stop the war. been to the effect that the prepond- At least, it gives Austria an excellent opportunity to show how far it is willing to go toward peace, inde-pendently of German dictation, and encourages the belief that the allies Plainly the President warned the German military autocracy that there was to be no pausing in the mobilibe on a basis of sincerity. Otherwise, the President made it plain, there was to be no turning back until military autocracy was crushed by force of arms. All the way through he drew a parallel between the pro-nouncements of German Chancellor Hertling and Austrian Foreign Minister Czernin, and his hearers drew the conclusion that the President de-cidedly considered Czernin's utterances as being more favorable than Hertling's.

Count Czernin's speech the President openly regarded sympathetically but he considered the Austrian Foreign Minister restrained by the embarrassment of Austria's alliance and her dependence on Germany. "Count Czernin," said the President, "seems to see the fundamental elements of peace with clear eyes and does not seek to obscure them.'

Chancellor Hertling's speech, however, the President characterized as "very vague and confusing" and "full of equivocal phrases" leading nowhere clearly. The aim of the Ger-man Chancellor, as judged from his speech, the President thought evidenly was to secure a peace advantageous to the aims of the German military autocracy and then sub-scribe to an international covenant to ake it secure. President declared, evidently seeking such a peace as was made at the congress of Vienna.

"What is at stake now," said the President, "is the peace of the world. What we are striving for is a new interantional order based upon broad and universal principles of right and justice-no mere peace of shreds and patches.' To what extent Austria and Germany will act upon this invitation re nains to be seen. Washington is of the opinion that Austria will take it with the utmost seriousness, but there is little confidence here that Germany will pay any attention to it The whole Wilson address is another castigation of the autocratic power of the German military regime, and t is not believed here that the pres ent ruling class will respond to the President's suggestions.

Daily Food for Present Army.

Boston, Mass., Feb. 12.—The magnitude of the canning industry, its relative importance to the country in rationing the army and navy and the patriotic purpose actuating the canners in pushing this industry were stated in clear terms to 2000 men and women attending today's sessions of the National Canners' Association. The principal address was by Col.

W. R. Grove, of the quartermaster general's office, before 1000 canners attending the tomato section. said that it takes 6,750,000 pounds of food, or 3375 tons—enough to fill 100 freight cars-to furnish the three rations required daily by the United States army of 1,500,000 men, part of whom are abroad and the remainder at home stations and in cantonments. In supplying the present army the

Colonel enumerated the principal food-stuffs required for one day as follows: 1,500,000 pounds of beef, equal to 3000 cattle; 225,000 pounds of bacon, 750 tons of potatoes, 40,000 pounds of prunes, 1500 bottles of lemon extract, 2750 bags of salt, 275,000 cans of condensed and evaporated milk, 36,000 cans of corn, 24,000 cans of green peas, 2500 cans of stringless beans, 1800 cans of cabbage, cans of peaches, 3000 cans of pineapples, 1000 cans of pumpkin, 2200 cans of apricots, 100 cans of clam juice, 125 cans of lobsters, 225,000 cans of jam and preserves and 3000 bottles

To secure the enormous amount of supplies needed without upsetting the civilian market, said Colonel Grove, is a great problem. Inspection of foods is rigid, even extending to goods before they are canned.

Railway trainmen are again making demands for increased pay.

New Flour Rule Announced.

Washington, Feb. 12.-Mixed flours containing less than 50 per cent. of wheat flour may be sold without accompanying substitutes, the Food Administration announced tonight in special rules governing the sales of mixed flour.

Where a retailer sells mixed flour containing more than 50 per cent of wheat flour sufficient other substitutes must be sold to bring the sale to a basis of one pound of substitute for each pound of wheat flour. Graham and whole wheat flour, however, may be sold at a ratio of three pounds to five pounds of wheat flour.

A special exception may be granted upon application showing necessity in the case of specially prepared infants' and invalids' food containing flour.

As we have often stated, the solution to the farm labor situation, in a large measure, is smaller farms. Just how this is to be brought about, we do not know, as splitting up large tracts and erecting extra sets of necessary buildings, is an expensive process now, but if this can be done, within a reasonable investment, it is the thing that ought to be done.

The country very evidently needs less tenanted farms, and more small individually owned farms. The large farms, as a rule, are not very profitable to either landlord or tenant, except in unusually fortunate circumstances; therefore, the best thought of the government, as well as of land owners, should be directed toward making more owner-operated farms.

DISEASES OF

Most Common Trouble of Young Animals Is Diarrhea.

CONDITION HINDERS GROWTH

Allment Is Result of Disturbance of Digestive Apparatus-Number of Preparations Are Used for Its Treatment.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Diarrhea, or scours, is probably the most common disease of calves. Great care must be taken at all times to prevent this condition, as it always hinders the growth and development of the animal and in addition is often hard to cure. This disease is the result of disturbance of the digestive apparatus of the calf and may be caused in a number of ways, the more important of which are the following: Irregular feeding, overfeeding, sudden change of feed, fermented feeds, feeding dirty or sour milk or milk of diseased cows, the use of dirty milk pails or feed boxes, and damp, dirty stables, As soon as scours is discovered it is best to separate the affected calf from the others and carefully disinfect the pen. The feed should be reduced immediately at least one-half, milk pails cleaned and sterilized, feed boxes cleaned and disinfected, and any other causes mentioned above eliminated.

Treating Disease. A number of preparations are used to treat this disease, a few of the more common of which are blood meal, a teaspoonful at a feed; white of egg; limewater, etc. A dose of four drops of formalin to each quart of milk has been used to advantage, and a drench of three ounces of castor oil followed by a teaspoonful of a mixture of one part salol and two of subnitrate of bismuth also is recommended. Ordinary white clay, mixed with water to the consistency of thick cream, and given in doses of a quarter or even half a pint, three times a day, has been used recently, with excellent effect.

White Scours. White scours, or infectious dysen tery of the ealf, generally affects a number of calves in a lot, and first appears shortly after birth as a diarrhea with light-colored, offensive droppings. During the course of this disease the calf wants to sleep all the time and cannot be induced to suck or drink. It is also very much weakened by the disease and usually dies within three or four days. As far as the department knows, there is no specific method of curing the disease. Ordinary white clay, mixed with water to the consistency of thick cream, and given in doses of a quarter or even half a pint, three times a day, has been found to be very valuable. Manufacturers of biological products, however, are now selling a potent serum which they claim to be effective in both prevention and cure. dry, and disinfected pens for calving, and careful disinfection of the navel of the calf at birth, painting the cord with tincture of iodine, and tying it with silk thread. As this disease is of so serious a character that it may cause the loss of a season's crop of calves, the details for the control of an outbreak should be referred to the state live-stock official or to a qualified veterinarian in the community.

RANKING OF GRAIN STRAWS

Oats Comes First, With Barley, Wheat and Rye Following-Alsike Leads Cloyer Straws.

Of the grain straws, oats comes first, barley second, wheat third, rye fourth. It is doubtful if the latter should be ased for anything but bedding. Alsike clover is the best of the clover straws, followed by red clover, with white clover straw last. Of the other legume straws, pea straw takes first rank, followed by alfalfa, and then bean straw.

***************** SELECT WINTER LAYERS

Recent poultry selection demonstrations in Lawrence county, Pennsylvania, have developed iateresting results. In one case a two-week record kept by one farmer shows that 41 good hens laid 241 eggs as compared with four eggs laid by 41 poor hens; in another case a record of 19 days shows that 28 good hens laid 111 eggs as compared with 27 eggs laid by 47 poor heng.

In the latter case the college representative selected the hens September 22 and no eggs were laid by the poor hens until September 29. During a two-week period 19 good hens in one flock laid 152 eggs, while 13 poor hens in the same flock laid two eggs.

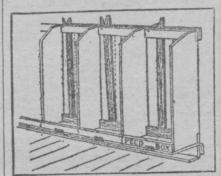

Practice poultry selection and increase your returns. The good winter layer has bright eyes, legs set well apart, pale beak and shanks in late fall and early winter. She also has a strong, broad back, a deep and full abdomen, a deep rounded chest and is vigorous and active.

BALANCED RATIONS FOR HEN

Fowls Cannot Produce Eggs Unless They Have Lime to Make Shells-Grit Also Needed.

Hens fed an unbalanced ration pro-Prevention consists in the use of duce only one-third to one-half as many sanitary precautions, such as clean, eggs as hens fed a balanced ration during the same time. An unbalance ration wastes from one-half to two thirds of the feed. Be sure the ration is balanced.

Hens cannot make eggs unless they have lime to make the shells. Feet and water usually contain only enough lime to shell one egg for each ten egg the feed would produce. The number of eggs produced from high-priced feed should not be limited because of a lack of lime. Keep crushed lime rock o oyster shell before the hens at al times. Supply hard, sharp grit also.

PROPER ATTENTION TO EWES

Little Attention Given at Weaning Time Will Be Well Repaid-Should Be Dried Off Carefully.

At weaning time the ability of a ewe to produce a good lamb often is ruined because the necessary care is not taken to see that she is dried off properly. A little care at this time will be well repaid. Two or three days after the separation the ewes should be milked out. All of the milk need not be drawn from the udder, but enough should be taken to leave the udder soft and pliable. Mark with colored chalk ewes needing no further attention. In about three days the ewes should be milked out again and the drys marked. Further attention should be given four or five days later to those not dry.

STORY TOLD IN AN EPITAPH

Farmer Gives in One Sentence His Opinion as to What Caused Fatal Automobile Accident.

An automobile accident resulted in the death of the driver and the injury of two passengers.

The coroner summoned several witnesses, among them a farmer living near the scene of the accident. There was voluminous testimony regarding the high speed at which the car traveled. Witnesses said, too, that the road was in bad repair. The coroner finally reached the farmer, who lived near the scene.

"What would you say about this accident, Mr. Swiggert?" the coroner Dentist Useful in Army.

At the beginning of the war, the dental surgeon, so far as the allies were concerned, was not officially recognized in army circles, says Popular Science Monthly. Indeed, it was not until the Germans marched into Brussels, with a dental post every ten kilometers, that the allies appreciated the importance of oral hygiene.

Today there are 11 American dental field ambulances in France alone. Men who were formerly sent home on sick leave, whose only trouble was their molars, are now kept at the front. Soldiers to the number of a division and a half have thus been spared to the army. Furthermore, the surgeons insist that a wounded man with bad teeth makes slow recovery. And then, too, army rations are hard to masticate, so that the man with poor teeth "bolts" his food and loses strength and endurance. In our new acquaintance of mine and he has a National army there will be a dentist

Advance Models Show Straight-Line Sleeveless Coatee Intended to Be Simplicity Is Likely to Be Keynote of Next Season's Apparel.

Clever little vests are features of a great many of the smartest dresses now shown, especially the latest numbers that indicate to some extent the style trend for spring. It is interesting also to note that advance spring models that have as yet made their appearance lean strongly to straight-line effects. Some sort of belt or girdle is often noted; but the waistline is merely indicated, not defined, and straightline simplicity promises to be the keynote of next season's apparel. The sketch illustrates a good-looking little utility dress that might be developed now and worn throughout the winter and coming spring. With navy blue serge as the fabric for the dress proper, white satin or white broadcloth may be used for the vest and girdle, with narrow black soutache braid criss-crossing the girdle. el, which was designed by Premet, was velours de laine in a warm shade of "shrapnel-gray." The coatee was rather short and of "sac" outline, with large gun-metal buttons down the front, and trimmings of civet-cat fur: The fact that there were no sleeves permitted the smart blouse underneath to be seen to advantage.

A special point connected with this little garment was its lining, which was made of printed silk which showed dark blue and black designs on an orange ground. Nowadays linings are of the utmost importance, and since the happenings of this most terrible war have made silken goods cheaper than serge or cloth, at least in France, brocades and printed silks are being freely used for linings, even in the case of simple tailored suits.

Lost on Tuscania, 276.

Washington, Feb. 13.—With 164 American soldiers of the Tuscania known to be dead and buried on the Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Olinger were Scottish coast, an official estimate tovisitors of B. Mort and family, on day places the total loss of American troops at 267. After eliminating from the passenger list the names of the survivors and the identified dead and accounting for 33 unidentified 136 soldiers still are not accounted for, and it is believed they were lost. Of the 164 Americans buried in Scotland, it was not possible to identify 33 who were disfigured beyond recognition. Praise for efficient co-operation by the British War Office in the rescue f survivors is given by General Pershing in a cablegram received to-day at the War Department. The Young Men's Christian Association and the Red Cross also are cited for valuable assistance.

To Stop Loss of 150,000,000 Eggs.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.-Over 150,000,000 eggs will be lost to the food supply of the United States if the old practice of sending hens to market at this season is continued. Figures compiled by the poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture show that more than 5,000,000 laying hens, each capable of producing 30 eggs, are sent to market from the Southern States in the winter and early spring.

Every effort, therefore, is being made to encourage farmers to keep their hens until after the spring laying season, thereby getting a divi-dend for keeping the hen through the winter. The specialists point out that when a hen is sold for meat early in the spring, the farmer gets no egg return for feeding and keeping her through the worst months of the year. Moreover, the hen is marketable as poultry after she has produced her bring 2 cents a pound less than it spring eggs. Poultry in May may does in February, but, they point out, the 30 eggs produced by the hen, largely from wastes, more than offset any reduction in the price offered for live poultry.

An energetic egg-saving campaign to prevent early slaughter of the hen that "lays the golden egg" is now be-ing conducted throughout the Southern States. North of the Ohio River, farmers have long appreciated the advantage of getting the spring crop of eggs and marketing their hens af ter the laying season or in the fall. They believe that adoption of this plan by southern chicken raisers will be profitable and will materially add to the food supply of the Nation. Col. Roosevelt continues to improve, the past few days. The first of the week it was thought that another and more serious operation might be necessary, due to a set-back, on Sunday.

called the "ship of the desert." This title may also have some reference to the extreme stupidity and passivity of the animal, which submits to great loads, which it will often carry for days at a time without stopping for food or drink, with no more urging than a ship would require from the hands of its pilot, says the Popular Science Monthly. The manner in which the drivers hobble the camels when they stop for a rest is interesting. They do not depend upon stakes driven in the deep, yielding sand, but simply double back and tie one of the forelegs of the animal, so that it can lie down or rise up, but cannot move from

Given under my hands this 8th day of February, 1918. MICHAEL E. WALSH,

Should you imagine that Miss Florence Gale, eighteen years old, was the first girl that ever fell in love with a dancing master because he was a dancing master, then you are mistaken. They have been doing it ever since there was a dancing master to fall in love with.

Miss Florence was the daughter of a merchant, and ranked well up in the social circles of her town. There had been a private dancing class made up of half a dozen girls and young men, and Professor Paul Revillion had been engaged as director at a high honor-

Mind you, he had not been hired, but "engaged." He was not a teacher, but a "director." He wasn't on a salary, like a bookkeeper, but on a honorarium, if you please. His name was not Jim Scott, nor Joe Saunders, but Paul

And the professor was nice - very nice. He was nice all over, like a rare, ripe peach. It was noticed even before the first dance was held that he had white teeth and long eyelashes.

The six young men who were to pay their good money for learning the art of dancing looked the professor over, and each and every one determined to kill him as soon as the term of lessons was finished.

The six young women cast sheep'seyes at him and mentally vowed to fall in love almost at once. It is to the credit of the sex that they kept their word. Yes, within a fortnight it was apparent to themselves and others that they were learning to love as well as to dance. The young men read the signs aright and gritted their teeth. They could and did "spat" with the foolish damsels, but they couldn't kill the professor until they had had the worth of their money.

So far as having a very serious flirtation every girl won out. Each one had reasons to believe that she was the chosen one. Each one under the impulse of romance and girlhood silliness, wrote little pink or violet notes, and they were replied to with an outpouring of the heart. The little notes and replies were pretty much alike, but it happened that Miss Gale was more industrious than the others. She wrote two notes to their one.

It therefore logically followed that when the end of the term drew near and Professor Revillion was ready for business, he possessed a package of pink notes signed "Florence" that numbered way up above the half-century mark. It did his heart good as he ounted them. It did his heart good as he counted the number written to him by the other maidens.

One day Miss Florence Gale received a note from the professor that set her heart to thumping as it hadn't thumped yet. Some flend in human form had broken open his trunk at his boarding-house, and among other things stolen was the package of her love notes. The thief had had the audacity to write that he had them, and that he would return them for $200, and not a cent less. If the professor refused to pay the money the letters were to be offered to Mr. Gale at the same price. Mr. Gale was a stern parent.

It was most unfortunate that the professor didn't happen to have $200 in his vest pocket. He could never forgive himself for his carelessness. What would "Dear Florence" do about it? Would she raise the cash or take the consequences? She would be granted three days' grace, and then she was to meet the dancing master at a certain spot at a certain hour and let him know her decision.

"Believe me, my dear one," he wound up with, "I am thinking of suicide as I pen this. If I was not almost sure that you could get the money of your father I should say farewell to you and send a bullet crashing through my brain."

Miss Florence promptly fainted away, or was going to when her mother asked her who the letter was from. She therefore decided to lie instead of faint. Her first feeling after mastering the contents of the letter was one of pity for the professor. He was thinking of blowing his head off! Her next feeling was of herself. She could no more raise $200 than she could raise $2,000,000. Had she asked her father for 75 cents he would have wanted an explanation a rod long.

Poor Miss Florence cried all one night and got up in the morning to lie again. She said it was the toothache. She had gone back to bed to cry again when - she didn't cry. A sudden thought made her sit up. What sort of a man was Professor Revillion to leave a girl to face such a situation alone? He must have a clew to the thief, as he said he had received a letter, but he had not added that he had set the law at work. He had a diamond ring and a diamond pin worth together far more than the $200, but he had not said anything of selling them to get her letters back.

"He can't be what I thought him," mused the girl; and five minutes later she was saying:

"I don't believe he was robbed at

If she didn't, then what conclusion must she arrive at? No need of spending much time over the question. Love and romance had been scared away, and common sense had taken their

If there had been no robbery-if the professor had the letters—if he meant extortion, then he had a great advantage and meant to use it. What could be done to stop him?

Beverly Dare was a young man of twenty-five, who had graduated as a lawyer and hung out his shingle in the town. Up to date he had had but few clients and created no stir. He was spoken of as a nice young man who would make his way, but was not much given to society. Miss Florence Gale had never met him to be introduced. But she went to him for help. "I want legal advice," she quietly explained. "Please state your case,"

She had been a silly girl. She had been more than that, and as the penalty had found herself at the mercy of a blackmailer. She told all there was to tell, and then handed over the professor's letter.

"Do you want advice as to whether you shall pay the $200 or not?" was asked when the letter had been read.
"I couldn't pay it if I wanted to, and I'm sure I don't want to," she replied.

"Looking at it legally, Professor Revillion can be arrested and punished for extortion."

"And I can be held up to ridicule and scandal."

"Well, your letters would have to be read in court."

"Looking at it legally again, Miss Gale, I might try to scare the fellow into giving up your letters. Not too much scare, but just enough,"

"I want something worse than a

"I fail to get your idea," "I want to meet him. I want to be firmly satisfied that he is what I believe him to be. Then I want you to give him a good whaling and take the letters away."

The lawyer turned away to smile, and then turned back to say:

"Miss Gale, looking at it legally, I can't assault and batter a man in the interest of a client."

"Then why not look at it some other way?" she asked. "As for instance?"

"As Mr. Beverly Dare."

"H'm! I think I could do that. I cannot cite a precedent, but we can make one."

Then came details that were not strictly according to Blackstone, but very interesting nevertheless, and that night Miss Florence didn't suffer for a moment with the toothache. It was two nights later that she went to her tryst with the professor. He had been awaiting her a quarter of an hour. His anxious inquiry as he ran forward and seized both her hands was:

"For the love of Heaven, have you got the money?" "Have you got the letters?" she asked. "Yes-yes!" "Professor, I cannot get the money! "What! But you must! Think what it means to you!" "But you have the letters and can hand them to me right here." "But my honor is pledged."

"To a robber!" "See here, you silly kitten, it's $200 for this package or I raise a scandal!" Miss Florence turned her back on the scoundrel just as something lit on him. It rolled him to the ground and toyed and dallied with him. It punched him and it slugged him. It applied epithets to him, and then applied the

It was months and months later when Mr. Beverly Dare said to Miss Florence Gale:

"Looking at it legally, my dear client, I think we ought to be married on Thanksgiving." And he also won that case.

To Give and Take.

Very often one's efforts and good intentions are not appreciated, but even so we should not lose faith in those around us. Season of Clinging Clothes.

Of one thing we are all certain: that our clothes will cling to the figure. Of another thing we are not quite certain: that the silhouette will be straight.

The tendency toward wrapped gowns and toward the oriental movement of fabric around the body is too strong and important to be overlooked. It is quite probable that the designers will offer it as a means of making the straight silhouette look out of fash-

It will be interesting to see whether one silhouette has a marked victory over the other, or whether the battle between the two becomes a stalemate throughout the spring and summer. Today the draped figure is on the making a good defensive. All of which is excellent for the people who sell clothes.

There is little possibility that our clothes will flare, but there is no probability that they will be attenuated. A scarcity of wool does not mean a scarcity of other fabrics.

There is no evidence of a shortage in the common weaves of silk, satin, are a close second. crepe and jersey, and the early spring models shown by the New York shops for the southern season, embody these materials in clothes that cling to the figure, but are scanty.

The materials chosen for the new spring gowns are admirable adjuncts of the new movement. Crepe de chine and tussah are in the lead, whereas satin is somewhat shelved for everything but evening gowns.

The Canteen Coat.

It was not possible for American fashions to avoid the military influence, although there was pressure against it here as in France. Old and half-forgotten wars gave the designers inspiration, but the present war was too vital to influence dress at this hour.

However, there are certain garments that have been taken up by women and put into high fashion, which are distinctly drawn from the battlefront in

More Elaborate Models, Imported From Paris, Show Marked Tendency Toward Collarless Style.

The subject of blouses is one which arouses perennial interest in the minds of the feminine portion of humanity, and the recent importations of French blouses are enough to arouse the enthusiasm of even the merest man, declares a New York fashion letter. The great majority of them, even the more elaborate models, are developed in fine oile, handkerchief linen and batiste. There are, of course, a number of designs in Georgette, crepe de chine and

On the whole, less lace and button trimming is being used on the blouses this season than last; hand embroidery is largely supplanting these. Hand tucking is being extensively featured this fall with very good effect, especially on fine white linen blouses designed for wear under a suit.

The more elaborate models show a marked tendency toward the new collarless style. In some instances the absence of the collar is covered by the introduction of a hemstitched yoke, in others there is a small collar hung from the shoulder seams.

Some of the more extreme styles show sleeves of the full bishop varioffensive. The straight silhouette is ety, which are gathered in to a very tight cuff at the wrist. Sports blouses have rather tight sleeves, with deep cuffs reaching almost to the elbow in some cases. Speaking of sports blouses, a great many novelty materials are being pressed into service in their making. Wash satin in all the popular pastel shades perhaps leads the list, the dark taffetas in brilliant stripes

COLOR LIKED IN NECKWEAR

Surplice, Shawl and Tuxedo Shapes are Favorites Although Sailor Type Has Not Been Discarded.

A bit of color is liked in the neckwear as well as in the new handkerchiefs. Indeed, it may be said that several of the mouchoirs can easily be matched up in color, if not in fabric, with the new collars and cuffs.

The neckwear sometimes comes in net, fine lawn, batiste or organdie and the edging is done in colored net finely plaited. Frequently there is no other ornamentation. The surplice, shawl and Tuxedo shapes are prime favorites, although they have not made the sailor type passe by any means The latter is liked for young girls and for children and frequently it is used to impart a note of youth to frocks of silk or satin. Because it has been found more and more difficult to get fine embroideries the prospects are very promising for a vogue of lace of the better sort. For many years lace has been less fashionable than embroidery, particularly in neckwear development.

Therefore, there is more good lace to be had and some of it will now be used up for the adornment of smart dresses and blouses. This lace use has reference to varieties other than filet and venice, which have been popular for some time.

From Capua to Rome was a distance of 125 miles. Paul and his companions probably walked the whole distance, but were met at the Three Taverns, 17 miles from Rome, and at Appli Forum, or the market of Appius, ten miles from Rome, by delegations from the infant church in

PREJUDICE LEADS TO WRONG

Warps Our Judgment and Breeds Injustice, Unkindness and Even Cruelty, Says Writer.

Prejudice is an insidious thing. It creeps into the soul unaware. It leads us to say and do wrong things; it warps our judgment and leads to injustice, unkindness and even cruelty, says a writer in the Milwaukee Journal. It paves the way for hatred and malice. In proportion as we learn to clear our minds of prejudice we become better men and women; we win friends and dissolve enmities; we are more worthy of respect and confidence. No one wants to be judged by false standards that prejudice sets up. Beware of judging others in such light. Prejudice cramps the mind and the heart; it stands in the way of rightful growth of character.

It is wise to search your heart, and if you find prejudice there to set about to root it out wholly. Do not be sure you of all men are unprejudiced. That is the danger; for prejudice is guarded by vanity. Seek to be just in all things, small as well as great. In all the relations of life be sure you are not judging another, not for his error but from your prejudice. For the worst thing about this weakness is that it breeds injustice and unkindness and malice. It hurts innocent folk and makes no one happier.

Cool.

There had just been a railway collision in France—a terrible wreck. It was night-time, but there was light enough to see something of the havoc and the tragedy. The prefect of the department, summoned in haste, was already on the spot organizing the work of rescue. Suddenly from one of the first-class carriages which had stayed on the rails and somehow escaped being telescoped emerged a stout man still about half-asleep. He had as yet only a very misty notion of what had happened. He had, in fact, been so deeply immersed in slumber that he had felt hardly more than a slight shock. The first thing that he saw clearly was the prefect wearing his sash of office and busy attending to the wounded. He gave an exclamation of mild surprise. For the man half-asleep was also a prefect. Almost as if he were passing the time of day with a colleague encountered by chance on the boulevards of Paris, he spoke.

"Well, well," he said, "what are you doing here?"

Looking for Bigger Game. Bobby and his sister, Ruth, were visiting in the country. One morning, accompanied by their nurse, they went for a walk in the fields. Ruth was much afraid of snakes, and Bobby, much to her horror and disapproval, boasted that he wasn't "scared of snakes," and if he saw one he'd kill it. The words were scarcely out of the little fellow's mouth when a small garter snake glided down the path before him. Bobby, as fast as his small feet would carry him, ran in the opposite direction. Ruth and the nurse called after him, reminding him of his boasts. Bobby, without stopping, called back, "Oh, I'm not afraid of that snake, I'm just a-lookin' for a bigger one."

Lesson 8 .- First Quarter, February 24, 1918.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES

Lesson Text, Mark 4:21-34-Memory Verses, Matt. 13:31, 32-Golden Text, Isa. 11:9-Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

The first two verses of our lesson find a similar saying in Matt. 5:13-16, where believers are called the salt of the earth and the light of the world, but the warning is given that salt may lose its savor, and a light may be prevented by circumstances from benefiting others. As we saw in the parable of the sower many things may hinder fruitfulness. In that parable it seems to me that neither wayside nor rocky soil give any evidence of the hearer's salvation, while the thorny soil may indicate a saved but unfruitful life. Therefore the warning about the necessity of the light shining, and the ears hearing.

In lesson verses 24 and 25 there is an admonition so much needed in our day when there is so much false teaching-"Take heed what ye hear"-suggesting that we should be careful to hear only that which is noted in the Scripture of Truth (Dan. 10:21). Our attitude should be, "I will hear what God the Lord will speak" (Ps. 85:8). As to a man losing that which he hath, the meaning is more plain in Luke 8:18: "That which he seemeth to have." We are to him as his mother and brethren only when we hear the word of God and do it (Luke 8:21).

When he speaks of the Kingdom of God in parables, after the Pharisees determined to kill him, thus rejecting him and his Kingdom, we must understand him to be referring to this present age of a rejected and postponed Kingdom which he called "the mystery of the Kingdom" (vs. 11). Some people expect to see the seed spring up as soon as it is sown, and are discouraged if they do not see converts at every service; but, whilst we should always expect results, it does seem to me better to leave the results with him who assures us that his word will always accomplish his pleasure (Isa. 55:11). The farmer who commits the seed to the ground and to God waits patiently upon God for results (James 5:7), and in due time gathers in the results. It is safe to wait till harvest time.

Verses 30-32 give us the parable of the mustard seed, which can be understood only in the light of the other parables of this discourse, which is fully given in Matt. 13. Here is an unnatural growth, for the mustard plant is not a great tree, and the fowls of the air must be understood in the light of his exposition of the parable of the sower.

Compare verses 4 and 15. his return during which his followers are to "Occupy till he come," making diligent use of the pounds and the talents he commits to us, and of which we must give account to him. The first four, the sower and the seed, the wheat and the tares, the mustard seed and the leaven, were spoken publicly, and when they were alone he expounded all things to his disciples (Mark 4:34). The last three of the seven seem to have been spoken privately to his disciples in the house (Matt. 13:36). When taken together as one discourse, as they really were, the teaching seems very plain, and in perfect accord with all Scripture. Our great business as his followers is to preach the word as his messengers with his message, not expecting to find good soil everywhere, but relying upon him who cannot fail nor be discouraged. We must expect that until the end of this age tares, the devil's counterfeit, will grow with the wingat; the children of the devil and the children of God side by side till the end. The little plant will become a great tree, the vast thing called the church, in which will be many a Judas Iscariot. Many a child of the devil in the pulpit, in the choir, on the board of trustees, and in the pews; the birds of the air in the branches. The food, which ought to be the pure word of God, will partly be mixed with evil, for leaven is always suggestive of evil, and we have come to days when from many a pulpit only false doctrine is proclaimed. He knew that it would be so, and told us that we might not be discouraged. Any who are looking for a world won to Christ in this age are looking for that for which there is no authority in Scripture. Continuing to hear him, and remembering that he said "The field is the world" (Matt. 13:38), we see him giving up all that still hidden but soon to be manifest. He also is the merchantman, and the pearl of great price is his church gathered from the sea of all nations, which in due time he will present to himself as a glorious church, holy and without blemish, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing (Eph. 5:27). It is of great price because of the price he

he had; for our sakes becoming poor

When the church shall have been completed, and Israel redeemed at his coming in glory, then shall his longpostponed Kingdom come. What My Church is Doing February 17 1 Thessalonians 1:2-8

"Our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power," even Holy Spirit power, even much fullness of Holy Spirit power. Thus was affliction caused by opposition. It was also received, "not as the word of men, but as it is in truth, the word of God which effectually worketh in vou that believe" (2:13). The Thessalonians believed it and it wrought like a cross child: 'Ish Gebibble.'" effectually in them. The church grew rapidly. Paul was there less than four weeks, but before he went away a strong church was called into being. In all missionary records there is nothing quite equal to this. Not only were people mentally convinced, but heartily converted. "Ye became followers of us and of the around here,' he laughed. Lord" (1:6). Not only so but they were "ensamples," that is, exemplary followers (1:7). Furthermore, they were witnesses, sounding out the beyond.

In the light of the history of this church let us ask some questions: "What is my church doing?" Is it receptive to the Word of God? Is the effectual working of that word evident? Is my church an exemplary one? Is it shining with a true light as a church should? Does the word of the Lord sound out from us? How many missionaries has my above the conscription maximum of church sent out in the years of its forty-five. Most individuals when they that morning as a pie contributor. life and experience? Love results from this source, but if a man gives itself. The supreme expression above forty-five is good for anything of love is the Cross. "He loved me, as a trench fighter, he ought to be good and gave himself for me."

The "patience of hope" is described in verse 10 as "waiting for his Son from heaven, even Jesus." "Until He come" there will be trial and testing, opposition, indifference, prejudice. The patience of hope is manifest in endurance and progress amid all that is adverse.

The work of faith, labor of love, patience of hope—these lead to activity and deeds that commend the church and make it vigorous and triumphant.

There are many votes for the trailing arbutus, but, as the editor suggests, its fragrance is doubtless overestimated, owing to the fact that it is the earliest fragrant wild flower of spring. Other candidates for first place are the partridge berry, the common locust, horned bladderwort (of which John Burroughs says: "In a warm, moist atmosphere the odor is almost too strong"), yellow jessamine, spotted wintergreen, and some of the magnolias. New Type of "Vampire."

Arrest at the instance of an army officer of a young woman who had committed bigamy in order to secure the allowance granted to soldiers' dependents gives color to the warning issued against this new type of "vampire," notes the Omaha Bee. Young soldiers are picked out by these women and deliberately led into marriage, the one purpose being to secure money from the government. The game is not a new one, nor does it exhibit much modification in its details. It is reported from some of the Southern army camps that as many as three and four soldiers have been wedded to the same woman. The young men who are away from home for the first time, wearing their country's uniform, should be warned that marriage is not merely an enlistment for the war, and therefore to be approached very seriously. Romance is part of a soldler's life, but it may have consequences that will embarrass him in after years. The "vampire" is one of his chiefest dangers, and one against whom it is difficult to guard.

Japanese "Steel Queen" Retires.

Mrs. Teruko Nakamura of Osaka, popularly known as "The Steel Queen," has announced her retirement from business. She intends to travel about the empire giving free film shows for the better education of the masses. She is making elaborate preparations to instruct the uneducated about the peoples of other nations of the world. Her views of American cities are especially extensive and well selected. Her efforts will be concentrated on the factory towns, where much ignorance exists. Mrs. Nakamura is thirty-four years old and has husband died deeply in debt, but she undertook the management of his steel mills and has not only paid off all debts but is herself rated many times waiting on them, and then but briefly. a millionaire. She converted the conretirement.

factions and a faction of the factio Little Pie Lady By JANE OSBORN

(Copyright, 1917, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

When Company B left Stantown you might have supposed the greatest procession of the war was that of the khaki-clad young men of Company B, with their splendid band playing, as they marched, in the glorious autumn sunlight, through the main street of that old town. True enough, it was a spectacle for which farming folk from the adjoining county, and perhaps some folk from larger cities, as well, journeyed to old Stantown. But other companies just as splendidly drilled and equipped as Company B had left other old towns, just as proud as Stantown; so there was nothing exactly unique in that procession.

The really remarkable procession was the procession of the pie-laden ladies of old Stantown through the main streets an hour or so earlier than the marching of Company B. As a last farewell to the boys of Company B, a feast was to be spread on rough, improvised board tables in the larger hall in the town. Though a caterer had been summoned to supply the main courses of this feast, it had been decided that the ladies of Stantown, for generations noted for their crisp, delicious apple pies, should contribute the sweet course of the banquet.

And so the pies came. They were baked bright and early the day of the banquet, and scarcely had they cooled before they were on their way in the hands of their housewifely bakers, maids or children to the hall where they were later to be devoured. To carry one ple is comparatively easy, even when it is still warm. But to up to forty-seven years of age has ta- carry two, or even three, ples requires ken advantage of two more years caution and a gingerliness of gait that could not fail to mark its possessor Most of the ples were delivered at the concluded their fighting days through hall without mishap, but here and inability to keep down their girth there a scattering of crisp pie dough measure. But certain conditions in and apples that sent up a tempting, Germany, over which that country has savory fragrance, even in its ruln,

Two belated ples were carried in the verse 3. "Your work of faith, labor military bounds. Americans who go to outstretched hands of Madge Maddox, of love and patience of hope." Faith, France, therefore, are likely to have crisp and sweet in holiday white, and great spectacle that the day had in store and her own wonderful part in it. For Madge, though twenty, had had few breaks in the monotony of her life with her old maiden aunt and older grandmother. Now, though she knew none of the boys in Company B, she looked forward with a thrill to the fact that she was one of the fifty prefty girls who had been selected to wait on them at table. Of her own volition, she was also one of the two hundred housewives who had volunteered to make apple pies for the six hundred boys who were expected to eat them.

She walked very gingerly from her grandmother's cottage on the outskirts of the town, hoping and half expecting to meet someone she knew with an automobile who would transport her and her ples safely to their destination. She even thought she might meet a neighbor walking toward town empty handed who would relieve her of the burden of one of the ples. But no such luck befell her. The only person who appeared on the road that led to town was a man in the khaki uniform of Company B. Madge would have liked to ask the man in uniform to help her with one pie, for it was slipping in her hand, and the string that tied it was loosening.

Of course, her impulse to ask the man in khaki for assistance was only fleeting, for Madge had been warned against these men. Though her grandmother had consented reluctantly that Madge help wait on them at the banquet, she had warned her emphatically been a widow for eight years. Her not to smile at them, even if they smiled at her. Her aunt warned her especially not to speak to them, except, of course, as it was necessary in

But the pie was slipping, and when cern into a stock company before her the tall, well-built man in khaki stood beside her with outstretched hands to take it just as it would have slipped to the dusty ground, Madge had to smile, and before she knew it she had thanked the man, and they were walking together toward the hall as if they had known each other always.

As Madge and ber companion walked through the streets in town she felt with pleasure the eyes of neighbors and townspeople who saw her walking with one of Company B. Now, she was like the other girls who really knew and could talk to one of these brave soldiers.

"You have been very good to help me. I've liked talking to you, too,' said Madge simply, as they neared the hall where she supposed she and her soldier would part forever, "because I don't know any of the other men in Company B, and it makes me happy to have talked to one of them on the eve of departure."

"And I don't know another young lady in Stantown. That's why I felt so out of sorts when I had to come

"Why, that's strange!" commented Madge. "I thought all the men in Company B were from this section."

"Company B-yes, so they are," agreed the man in khaki, and then changed the subject as he followed Madge into the room where the pies had been received.

A near neighbor of Madge's, who receiving the pies, eyed Madge narrowly, and then the man in khaki. Madge colored, and the man seemed to guess the cause of her confusion.

"You're thinking that those ladies, will wonder who I am, and perhaps you are wondering yourself. May 1 present myself. I'm Bob Fairfax." It was just in time. The critical neighbor had eyed Madge with such disapproval that Madge turned her newly acquired information to account, and introduced her companion, adding, with a pretty little laugh, "Mr. Fairfax 'was just walking out the lane to see my aunt and grandmother, when he met me with the pie, and I'm so glad, for I never could have managed alone."

Somehow the usually timid Madge mustered up courage enough to ask her seldier to come home with her for luncheon, and while she left him on the front porch she had a hasty interview with her aunt; explained how they had met and the reason she had introduced him to the critical neighbor, and it was for that reason perhaps that she received the young stranger in khaki into her house and invited him to share their dainty lunch-

The young soldier got on famously with Madge's aunt and grandmother, vowed that he had rather stay with them than join in the festivities in the armory, and when Madge went to don her Red Cross apron and veil preparatory to serving at the banquet Mr. Fairfax was still dallying with the old ladies, walking leisurely through their garden paths and admiring all of the aunt's favorite flowers in a way that convinced her that he was "a perfect gentleman." And being sure he was such, she had no objections to offer when he suggested that he escort the pretty little Red Cross waitress to the hall of the banquet.

They parted at the door of the hall. and Mr. Fairfax held his hand out for a farewell.

"If I never see you again, little apple-pie lady, may I tell you that this has been the sweetest day of my life." and as Madge murmured a "good-bybut surely I'll see you at the banquet; perhaps you'll be at my table," he had left her.

Madge, who had expected so much from that banquet, was keenly disappointed. In spite of the splendid effect of the six hundred soldiers as they marched with blaring trumpet and beating drum into the hall for dinner she seemed to feel that something was missing. And as she had time to scan the faces of the men who sat at the long tables, she knew that she was right. Her soldier man was not there,

Why hadn't he cared enough for her to stay to the banquet? It was past nine o'clock that night when Madge, with cheeks flushed with fatigue, excitement and disappointment, stole out of the hall. She had promised her aunt to come home with neighbors who lived near her, but she dreaded the trip up the lane with them. Having finished her share of the work, she skipped out, and started homeward alone.

Fairfax stepped to her side before she had gone ten paces, and so content did they both seem just in the con-'sciousness of being together after their three-hour separation that Madge forgot to ask him why he had not been at the banquet. As they turned into the lane she asked him. "I didn't want you to know; but I'm not one of Company B at all. I'm only a movie actor; my company is of the film sort, and we came out this morning to take some pictures with the soldiers in old Stantown as a background. I was to ap pear to be one of them, so this was my costume. Then the rest of the crew went back to the city, and be cause my heart yearned for the country I told them I'd come back on a later train. Then I started out the lane, and met you. I was going back after I left you just now-but I couldn't-I couldn't leave you without finding out more about you. I don't care much for the girls I meet in the studios. The only kind of girl I could ever love is a girl like you."

"And just for that you stayed out here and waited-and went without dinner-oh, you must be very hungry I'm hungry, too. I didn't stay, though the Guards were going to wait on the waitresses and dance with them later. You see, you are the only soldier boy I care about. So let's go and tell aunt about it, and maybe she'll get us supper together."

INCREASE IN PRICES

Meat Animals Show Advance of 52.7 Per Cent in Year.

Sheep, Lambs and Hogs Have Far Exceeded Beef Cattle, Veal Calves and Chickens in Upward Price Movement.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Prices received by farmers for meat animals showed an increase of 52.7 per cent in a year, according to the latest report to the U.S. department of agriculture. The report for cattle, sheep, and hogs is for the year ending September 15, and for chickens, Oc-

The advance for beef cattle per 100. pounds, live weight, was from $6.55 to $8.40, or 28 per cent; for veal calves per 100 pounds, from $8.77 to $11.08, or 26 per cent; sheep per 100 pounds, from $6.25 to $10.05, or 61 per cent; lambs per 100 pounds, from $8.22 to $13.06, or 59 per cent; hogs per 100 pounds, from $9.22 to $15.69, or 70 per cent, and chickens, from 14.3 to 18.1 cents per pound, or 27 per cent. Sheep, lambs, and hogs have far exceeded beef cattle, veal calves, and chickens in the upward price movement at the point of production. The highest price at the farm per 100 pounds, live weight, reached during the year under review, was $8.70 for beef cattle in May, $11.08 for yeal calves in last September, $10.15 for sheep in May, $13.06 for lambs in last September, $15.69 for hogs in last September, and 18.1 cents per pound for chickens October 1 of this year. The latest farm price reported is the highest one of the year for veal calves, lambs, hogs, and chickens; the May price was the highest for beef cattle and sheep.

IMPORTANT EFFECT OF WAR

Demand for Horses Has Not Been So Far-Reaching as Great Many Belleved, Says Expert.

That the effect of the war on the demand for horses has been important but not so far-reaching as many persons have been led to believe, is the opinion of Dr. C. W. McCampbell, associate professor of animal husbandry in the Kansas State Agricultural col-

"Since the beginning of the war approximately 1,000,000 horses have been exported from the United States," said Doctor McCampbell, "This is a large number when considered in the aggregate, but when compared with the total horse population it has not been particularly large-21/2 per cent of the whole or one out of every forty horses.

"The United States government has not made heavy purchases to date and the latest information from the quartermaster general's office states that only horses from six to ten years old weighing from 950 to 1,350 pounds are being purchased.

"The British demand a neater. smoother, better-made, better-gaited. and sounder horse than the French and have been willing to pay more for their horses. Most of the horses taken have weighed less than 1,400 pounds-a type for which there is very little commercial demand. Marketmen express the opinion that this class of horses would be selling for $50 per head less were it not for the war demand."

PREVENT DISEASES ON FARM

Loss of Young Animals Can Be Reduced by Cleaning Out Stable and Disinfecting.

A good job for the first rainy day. From 6 to 10 per cent of the young animals are lost each year from such infectious diseases as calf scours, hog cholera, blackleg, contaglous abortion, navel ill of sucklings, distemper and other infectious diseases.

Reduce this loss of young animals from infectious diseases by cleaning the stable thoroughly and disinfecting with whitewash to which has been added 2 per cent crude carbolic acid or 5 per cent coal-far dip. This is easily applied to the walls, ceiling and floors with a spray pump.

FURNISH CHICKENS PURE AIR

Windows of Hen Houses Should Be Kept Open During Middle of Day During Severe Weather.

Open the hen house windows in all except the severest weather, during the middle of the day, so that the sun and air can get in and purify the house and give the fowls plenty of good air to breathe. If they can be made to exercise vigorously while the windows are open, they will not suffer any harm from the cold, even if it is severe, and will be healthy.

> THE PIERCES COMING! The Hearons Sisters Date Cancelled.

On next Saturday night, February Sisters with the Antrim Bureau have been cancelled, so they are not available, though we wanted them ever so much. In their stead will appear Mr. and Mrs. Zulette Spencer Pierce, whom your Citizen's Entertainment Committee tried very hard to "sign ap" as a special feature of the 1917. 918 series—but were unable to land.

Prohibit Race Track Gambling.

The present legislature will justify itself in good works, if it does no other new thing than put out of business race-track gambling. Strange to say crap shooting, the operation of slot machines, and games of chance of all kinds, are illegal in Maryland, while the biggest of all gambling institutions still flourishes openly. But the "strangeness," after all, means that the race-track gambling crowd have heretofore had the "influence" tails as to the evils of the custom. For the season of 1916, at the four race tracks in the state—Pimlico, Bowie, Havre de Grace and Laurel nearly $20,000,000 in bets were placed, not counting the immense sum that went to the saloons, and the ther attending costs. Horse racing, for purses, is not so bad, especially as it may be desirable to develop speed in horses, and this can hardly be done merely for pleasure and exercise; but, the side gambling features are detestable. There are only three track gambling spots in all of North America where the business is recognized-Mexico, Kentucky and Maryland—and Maryland should get off the list at this session of the legislature.

PUBLIC SALE

NEW WINDSOR, MD.

The undersigned, as Administratrix of Hezekiah Hawk, deceased, will offer at public sale, on the premises, situated on Middle St, Taneytown SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 16th, 1918, at 1 o'clock, sharp, the following described property:

I have experienced operators, who are earning $1.40 to $1.50 in eighthour day. Those, who on account of home work, can arrange for part of day's work. Owing to war orders closing on Monday, we will run two hours more each day. Schedule: 8 a. m. to 12; 1 to 5; 6 to 8 p. m.

My factory affords steady work

My factory affords steady work with congenial surroundings for every person who wants work, all or part of the time. Call and consult me about

BONUS.

The manufacturer I have my contract with, has placed an extra bonus for 1918 to all operators who work for me steady throughout the year. This applies to those who work part of the time steadily, or work at home. One-fourth cent on small operations, one-half cent on all large operations, per dozen, will be paid to each operator over their regular cash pay every two weeks. This bonus will accumulate until the end of the year.

LOCAL WORK. We also make shirts for our home people, who furnish the material. CHAS. E. H. SHRINER.
