FARM ORGANIZATION BY MEN AND WOMEN

An Fffort to Unionize and Boost Carroll County.

A very enthusiastic meeting of representative farmers and women of the county, was held in the County Agent's office, in The Times Building, Westminster, Saturday morning and afternoon. The meeting was called by the County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent, for the purpose of forming an Advisory Council to dis-cuss and plan work in farm and home projects. An all-day meeting was held and lunch was served at noon. Mr. and Mrs. Hauver, County Agent and Home Demonstration Agent of Frederick county, were present. Mr. Hauver gave an outline of organiza-tion and work which their Advisory Council had accomplished. Mrs. Hauver told of work in the community shows, especially the mid-winter exhibit which was considerd the best in Maryland. Some said it rivaled Maryland week in Baltimore.

During the meeting, a telegram from Prof, Bomberger of Maryland State College, was received saying that he was delayed thirty hours by a storm on the bay. County Agent Fuller outlined the plan of work, which is, to have every organization and community in the county represented on this council to help shape the policies of the work for the coming year. Over 40 men and women were present, and many took part in a discussion which followed. committee consisted of representatives from granges, farm organiza-tions and local clubs. It is expected that such, an organization will much to further the interests of Car-roll county and to increase the ef-fectiveness of the County Agents. Carroll county has needed such an organization which will unify the county work, and give to the men and women of the county an opportunity to help shape the agricultural poli-cies and advertise the county among the others in the state. Her opportunities are as great, if not greater, than any other county in Maryland. Let us get to work and boost Carroll. As many of the men were interested in the dairymen's meeting, they left early in the afternoon. Then the women took charge and organized the Woman's Branch of the Advisory Council. Mrs. Peltz was elected president, Mrs. Beacham, vice-president, and Mrs. Walsh, secretary. After presenting a brief plan of the work, two important projects were heaven. two important projects were brought up for discussion. The first was a curb market, and a committee of both town and rural women was appointed to get the census of opinion of the women in the city, as well as truck gardeners and local farmers. Anuestion presented was the desirability of having Woman's Day at the County Agricultural Fair, at Taneytown. Plans and suggestions were given in regard to increasing interest in woman's work. Plans will be given out later in regard to this.

Following is the Advisory Committee as it now stands, and if your community is not represented on this list, find out why.

MAIL TRUCK SERVICE.

Via Taneytown, Leaving Gettysburg

A change has been made in the Washington -Frederick -Gettysburg Mail Truck route that now includes Taneytown and cuts out Gettysburg, thereby saving 2.4 miles in the distance. Mail from Gettysburg, Hanover and other points, will be taken on at Littlestown. The change went into effect on Tuesday.

As we understand the service it is largely experimental, and for the purpose of developing parcel post business in country market produce to Baltimore and Washington, but will of course handle mail of all classes, giving Taneytown an additional mail.

Parcel Post packages for this dispatch should be delivered at the Postoffice in Taneytown, not later than 11:40 A. M. The start is made at Washington at 5:30 A. M.; then Rockville 6:35; Mt. Airy 8:25; Frederick, 9:30; Thurmont, 10:50; Emmitsburg, 11:20; Taneytown, 11:55; Littlestown, 12:30 P. M.; Union Mills, 1:30; Westminster, 2:10; Baltimore, 4:30; Washington, 7:30. Stops are made at all intervening postoffices along the line.

Prices of Merchandise.

Prices of Merchandise show no indication of coming down rapidly, in any line, whether it be goods sold over the counter, or heavy pieces of machinery. Declines are very likely to be by easy stages, and very grad-ually; therefore, nobody need "wait for things to come down," along the line of their usual needs, this Spring and Summer.

The standardizing of the price of wheat, this year, largely acts as a buffer for all other prices. Some goods may drop faster than others, as they may be affected by foreign imports, but most of the articles that will be marketed this year, have already been made, or contracted for, at present or past labor costs, and dealers will use their best efforts to sell on the same basis as that on which they bought, rather than invite losses.

There must be lower wages, and lower cost of raw material, before great price drops can be looked for. That there will be a downward movement, or tendency, in cotton and iron manufactures and food products, throughout the Summer, is the general opinion of all market experts, but no big tumble-none worth holding back buying for.

Miller Broke Out of Jail, but was Soon Captured.

John Miller, charged with shooting Abner S. Mills, the Gettysburg merchant, made his escape last Friday by sawing the bar that closed his cell door, then walking out of jail as far as McSherrystown, where he was arrested after five hours of freedom. He is now back in jail, and more securely confined.

On his way out of the jail he stopped at the Sheriff's office and secured a revolver. Miller said that a boy had given him the saw that he used on the bar, and a boy suspect has been arrested in York, who is reported to have made a confession. League covenant will be necessary before the chickens can be counted on either side.

Miller made no resistance when aralso co-operating with the movement, which begins overseas and follows the men home.

DELAYED PEACE TERMS CAUSE SERIOUS ALARM.

Very Little Advance Made in the Last Ten Days.

Very little is definitely known as to the actual progress made by the "big at the Peace Conference. But one thing is certain, and that is, delay that is rapidly becoming serious. The French claims are apparently the chief obstacle, as they relate to Ger-

While the League of Nations compact is known to have been greatly amended, and apparently authorita-tive changes have been cabled to this country, this too is in the uncertain stage, and, meanwhile armed conflicts are of daily occurrence.

It is both hoped and believed that an agreement is near; but, the outcome will represent the serious end of the effort—what Germany may do, and what effect it may have on the Bolshevik activities. Further revolts are of daily report; hunger, unemployment, and revolu-tionary propaganda, are thriving while the powers are disagreeing.

Mr. Root Offers Amendments.

Former Secretary of State, Elihu Root, of New York, has suggested six amendments to the League covenant, which seem to be generally acceptable, both here and in France.

The suggestion that the American representatives sign the covenant with the reservation that the United States does not relinquish its traditional attitude toward purely American questions is apparently regarded with considerable favor in American official circles. The delegates also are well impressd by the proposed amendment providing for the revision of the convention within not less than five years, nor more than ten

"The suggestion for the signature of the covenant by the United States, with reservations designed to insure the safety of the Monroe Doctrine and safeguard American immigration laws, it was pointed out, involves no procedure, as the reservations would be somewhat similar to those with which the Algeciras treaty was

Mr. Root's six proposed amendments to the covenant were in the hands of the American peace delegation for several days before they were published in the United States. They had been carefully considered by the delegates, who expressed their appreciation of this definite and construct-Several of the Root suggestions are believed by the delegates to be covered by the covenant as it now stands in its amended form.

The Reason Why.

Is it not wise to spend lavishly to save in the end? Is it not best to pour out money like water, to save human lives? Haste always makes waste, but haste gets things done before it is too late. When we needed men and ammunition, we needed them at once. A million men blocking the German drive toward Paris did more in less time than two million probably could have done if the capital of France had fallen. And so if any one thinks that the United States did not receive full value for every dollar raised by its Liberty Loans, let him ask himself why? and then buy Victory Liberty Bonds to his limit.

Now, the United States might, perhaps, have saved 67 cents on each keg of nails, or $1.73 on each rifle, had haste been of no consideration. In the aggregate, a great deal of money was spent rushing war preparations through in the shorter possible time; but had the results which were achieved in a few months been spread over a longer period, the war would have lasted perhaps a year longer. By the most conservative official reckoning this extra year of war would have cost 400,000 American lives—and $36,000,000,000.

It was by pouring men across the ocean in a steadily increasing stream and by quickly providing an enormous quantity of all war necessities, that our government saved not only an incalculable amount of suffering and bloodshed for the whole world, but actually twice as much in money for this country alone, as the total of the first, second, third and fourth Liberty Loans.—War Loan News.

April Renewals Coming In.

April is one of the months in which many of our subscriptions fall due, and we are glad to say that every mail is bringing in the renewals. From our experience, so far, with the payin-advance rule, we have no complaint to register against it, and no inclination to return to the old go-as-youplease plan. We believe, too, that our subscribers like it, and prefer the business-like way of paying, and the avoidance of all contention.

Getting Jobs For Soldiers.

The National Catholic War Council, from forty offices in the United States, and with many thousands of workers, is actively engaged in finding work for returned soldiers and It is stated that already over 10,000 men have been placed at good jobs within the past month, at a fee of only one dollar per job per man. How six American Y. W. C. A. secretaries and two Red Cross nurses have endured the cold and inconven-iences of life in North Russia in or-der to bring a touch of home into the lives of the Expeditionary Forces and to provide proper recreation for Russian girls in the newly militarized city of Archangel is the story told by Miss Elizabeth Boies, director of Y. w. C. A. work in Russia, who has just arrived in New York to recruit more women for this work.

And the story does not deal with revolutionists. Miss Boies says she was too busy to be alarmed by them. She was never afraid to go out on the streets or to the opera at night during the time that she lived through in Petrograd and Moscow. Her chief difficulty lay in finding furniture, curtains and food for the Y. W. C. A. Hostess House, which she has estab-Her chief lished in Archangel for American sol-

Miss Bioes left for Russia, April 27, 1917, and arrived the latter part of She and her five associates established recreation work for girls in Petrograd, Moscow and Samara, receiving permission and food supplies through the medium of whatever ministry was then in power. Accompanied by members of the allied consulates and civilian residents of allied birth, she left central Russia for Stockholm last September, at the time allied intervention in Russia was announced But she did not admit that she was forced to leave Russia, rather she went to Archangel "by way of Stockholm," and to prove it, stayed there only ten days. Arriving there she cabled back to America: "Out of courses" and clothes, but not out of courage," and immediately began traveling to Varthe northern-most point of Sweden, a long toilsome journey, and arriving there, took a Russian fishing boat to Archangel. Just at the time of sailing it was discovered that the only food on the boat was dried fish. At the last moment, a bag of potatoes was secured to eke out meals for the Americans during the voyage. Miss Boies, the other five Y. W. C. A. secretaries—Miss Marcia Dunham, Mrs. Bryant Ryale, Miss Clara Taylor, Miss Elizabeth Dickerson, and Miss Helen Ogden—and two Red Cross nurses, are the only American women who have entered North Rus-sia since the American soldiers have

"The girl problem in Archangel is just exactly what it was in any camp in America," Miss Boies says, "only that the men and girls could not speak the same language. We began organizing recreation for girls and classes in English. As soon as

We secured the largest log hut we could find, but then the question of furnishing arose. It is impossible to buy things. Not even Not even furniture or cloth were to be had. With the help of American and British soldiers we built furniture—just benches and tables. The army had to and a friendly centre for the men, must have something to eat. Nothing but dried fish can be bought in Archangel. Finally the Allied Food Commission saved the day by granting us an allowance of 1,200 lbs of flour a month, and 300 lbs of sugar. We had a little oatmeal, and with this we made oatmeal cookies without baking powder, eggs, butter or milk! After many visits to a Russian woman in Archangel, we persuaded her to let us have her piano, so that we could have "sings" and dances for the men.'

The American Sentinel, the weekly paper published in Archangel, for units of the Expeditionary Force describes the opening reception at the Hostess House vividly, by saying that the decorations consisted of "wallpaper, chintz curtains and sprig of evergreen. In some rooms there was furniture." This reception was quite an affair. There was an American Jazz band, Mrs. Davis, wife of the consul, "poured tea," and as many as could get in, got into the house.

"Our hut is crowded all of the time. It really accommodates only 150, but the attendance is more liable to be 500. In London I met some American sailors who had just returned. When I asked one man if he liked the Hostess House, he said, "Sure! Only it was always so full that I had to pull about four fellows out in order to make room for myself.'

"In addition to the Hostess House, we work to cheer up boys in the hospitals, and we run a canteen at the railroad front—one of the many fronts in North Russia. This front s about 150 miles out of Archangel. Our canteen consists of a box-car in charge of a Y. W. C. A. secretary. She plans impromptu entertainments for the men, distributes magazines and books, gives them hot drinks, and does all the things which a woman can

FARM TRACTORS WILL BE A BIG INDUSTRY

To Revolutionize Farming After Winning the War.

Richard Spillane, a correspondent to the Philadelphia Ledger, is effusive over the future of the Tractor, as a means of accelerating farm work. His handling of the subject, as it relates to both war and farming, will at least be interesting, even if not entirely accepted. He says:

"One of the major industries of America in a few years probably will be that of the manufacture of The Department of Agriculture reports 132,697 tractors built last year, of which 36,351 were sold for export. Manufacturers estimate the production this year of 314,936.

The biggest task in the world is the turning of the soil each year for the planting of the crops. All other jobs are small in comparison. It has made farming a work of drudgery.

The tractor and the other labor saving appliances which men of genius have devised for the operations of the farm, mean a transformation in agriculture. From muscle power, the farm turns now to machine power. The 314,936 tractors to be built this year will have a power equal to that of approximately 6,000,000 horses. There are only 22,000,000 horses, in America. One of these days the horse will be as rare on the farm as he is today between the traces of a barouche. An element of great importance in connection with the tractor that has not received the attention it deserves is that it will make possible much deeper plowing than by the horse, and probably will increase the yields of rops such as wheat, corn and oats 5 to 10 per-cent per acre. It is likely too, to make dry farming less of a problem than it has been. One of the romances of the war is centered on the tractor. But for the tractor—or, rather, the lack of it, the Germans might have won the war.

The German has been a pirate in commerce in mechanics and in war. He has made a practice of watching every great development in science and other fields and by adaptation or change of some character launching it or some improvement on it and. calling it his own, and flooding the market with it. In the history of all new devices there is a period of development during which the articles tested in the crucible of experience is refined and brought to a degree approaching perfection.

The Germans appreciated the virtue of the tractor and watched its and classes in English. As soon as the Hostess House was opened, we began teaching them American dances so that they could dance with the to a point of high commercial and ag-"Opening the Hostess House was quite a problem. Archangel was settled by the English 200 years ago, and add enough of German invention but since that time the people have to it to suit their need and, that being accomplished, put out a "made in Germany" tractor that would be a wonder.

It so happened that when the war started there were only two tractors in all the German empire. were of a make of some years before which the Germans had purchased to study the design and experiment up-on. Immediately upon the outbreak of the war the German Government endeavored to buy all the tractors obtainable in this country. They also placed a big order which should become effective when peace came.

But, owing to the British blockade, they never could get any tractors in-to Germany. If they had succeeded, the food problem would not have been so serious. The loss of animal power on the farms would not have weighed so heavily against them. The average tractor can do the work of twenty horses. Besides, a horse eats as much grain as twenty men and a tractor eats no grain. Tractors might have won the war for Germany. That is not all. The British seeing the possibilities in tractors, transformed them into "tanks" with caterpillar tread.

But the field of the tractor is not that of Mars. It is that of peace—of the land from which nature gives its treasures in the way of crops to feed mankind. And the tractor, like the steel plow, the reaper, the binder, the huller, the thresher—everything in the mechanics of the farm—is the fruit of American genius.

Wm. von Dreisbach, known in some sections of the county as "Dutch Charlie," died at the county home, on Wednesday night. He has been a resident of this county, pretty continuously, for many years. He is said to have been a German Count, at one time, and an officer in the German army, but perhaps for some misdemeanor, lost his status in the Fatherland and came to the United States in 1865. He is thought to have been about 80 years of age.

George Weems Williams was nominated for Mayor of Baltimore, by the Democrats, on Tuesday, defeating Mayor Preston by about 4000, after a somewhat bitter contest, bordering on the personal, which stirred up a great deal of factional bitterness likely to remain and help the chances of Mr. Broening, the Republican candidate. Mayor Preston has left a good record as Mayor, but was personally unpopular with many. heavy vote was cast, showing the great interest manifested.

STATE MUST PAY HALF. The Federal Road-Building Fund For State Apportioned.

Washington, April 2.—Maryland's share of the Government's road-building program for 1919 will total $1,-523,750, it was announced this afternoon, following the publication by Secretary of Agriculture Houston of details of the greatest road-building program ever launched by the Federal Government. As Maryland, under the terms of the Federal Aid Road act, will have to put up at least as much as the Government, the outlook is for a road-construction venture for the State of more than $3,000,000. Already the Federal authorities have approved projects drawn up by the Maryland State Roads Commission calling for the use of $1,110,954. Of these projects, The Sun correspondent was informed, the following five, aggregating 39.2 miles and an expenditure of $657,901 is the Government's share, were approved in

An Unusual Will.

Gettysburg, April 3.—An unusual will has been admitted to probate in the office of Register Chas. W. Gardner. The document is a joint will of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Bollinger and was made August 25, 1916. The will provided for bequests in the event of the death of either one, and also what was to be done with estate after the death of both. Strangely, both died within a period of two months, Mrs, Bollinger's death occurring on January 26 and that of her husband on March 25. The will, after providing a small bequest to the Hampton cemetery, leaves the entire estate to be used for the care of an invalid son, Chester O. Chronister being named as the executor and being given power to use such portion of the principal of the estate as may be necessary from time to time. What remains after the death of the son is bequeathed to two children of a niece.

Republicans Win in Chicago, and Women Vote Wet.

Mayor William Hale Thompson, Republican, was re-elected on Tuesday in the largest vote ever cast in a municipal contest in Chicago, by a plurality that is believed to range from 8,000 to 12,000. Robert M. Sweitzer, the Democratic candidate, who was defeated by Mayor Thompson in his first contest campaign, was second; Maclay Hoyne, independent Democrat and state's attorney, was third, while John Fitzpatrick, the labor candidate, trailed in fourth place. The "wets" won a sweeping victory, piling up a majority of 300,000 against prohibition in the first issue on the liquor question submitted to the voters. One-sixth of the men voted dry, while a surprising feature was that twothirds of the women voted wet.

In a letter to the St. Louis branch of the League to Enforce Peace, United States Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, suggested that a debate on the proposed league of nations be arranged between Wm. H. Taft and himself on the occasion of Mr. Taft's visit to Missouri in April. In the event Mr. Taft is unable to accept, Senator Reed said he would be willing to debate the subject with Senator Hitchcock or any Senator, Republican or Democrat.

Many returned American soldiers in uniform, are peddling various articles on the streets of cities. The practice is being inquired into, by war officials, as to whether this occupation is a matter of necessity, or one

The war is now figured to have cost $197,000,000,000. We will bet that this is not a true statement. It is more likely to be true that the odd 97 billions were just "spent" during the war, and that they never paid legitimate actual war costs.

An advertiser in an exchange of last week used this expression-"My repuattion is ? The very best for the least money." Now, what does he mean? Does he mean his reputation is the best to be had for one cent? And why does he use the question mark in connection with the statement?

At the time of writing this, the amended constitution has not been made public, therefore nothing can be said as to how the form will satisfy the former list of objectors in the Senate; but it is to be hoped that such a constitution may be agreed upon as may be safely accepted by this country, at least as a trial prop-

After all, the League of Nations constitution can be amended. The President says so, though almost the last impression he left here, when he sailed for France, was, that there were inside reasons why it could not be amended. And yet, almost as soon as he arrived in Paris he commenced suggesting amendments, and is reported to have actually asked for suggestions from Mr. Taft.

Baltimore has just passed through a nasty primary campaign for the Democratic nomination for Mayor. There is no other, more respectable, name for it. Primary contests may be worth while, just to bring out this very feature-the "nastiness" of politics-if so, the primary law fills the bill; but, it is a sure hatcher of undying personal hatreds, that bob up right along in succeeding party elections and contests. After all, is the primary law worth its cost ?

The intellectual idealists, the inventors of half-baked governmental theories, those who harbor Utopean dreams, and preach unworkable and illogical relations between government and industry-the gentlemanly Socialist professors—are not only in mighty bad company, these days, but are responsible for having started something that may make the world a bloody battle ground. Preachers with visions, and revolutionary social remedies, should be rounded up and put to jail: they are as dangerous as dogs with hydrophobia.

Unemployment Growing.

The increase in unemployed in the cities appears to be growing rapidly, perhaps partly because the demobilization camps are mostly near large cities, and the returning soldiers show disinclination to go back to the jobs they had in the country before being drafted. It is also becoming evident that bsuiness is not on the "boom." due to the non-adjustment downwards of the cost of labor and living.

The evil aftermath of abnormal wages and living is showing itself. Not only in the actual facts as they would naturally exist, but in the fact that the cost of living is now represented by a greatly higher standard of living by those unaccustomed to it heretofore. Most of the "profiteers" in wages have been spending their money, and have contracted luxurious habits that they now consider "nec-essarv.' There is also showing up the disposition-either chosen or enforcednot to pay the high prices asked for manufactured and other products. Optimism rules pretty generally, as to the future, but it is the kind that quence with all the authority of the than 300,000. ## Is the War Over?

The question is a serious one, even for the United States. We imagine that it would be a pretty difficult matter to have this country raise another army and send it to Europe; but what the army still over there may be asked to face, is another question. Germany still presents a big question mark, and back of it is Bolshevism, a monster not understood, but one that is growing and in all probability will need crushing by force of arms.

Who is to do it, and how? Germany is apparently not trying. Indeed Germany may turn in and become an ally of all the discordant elements included under the general head of Bolshevism. In the face of this, the allies are all war-tired and facing financial burdens; and in addition, are not any too well united on present

Perhaps the neutral countries like Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden, may offer the solution. If a new war breaks out, will they continue their neutrality, and if not, what will they do? If the allies invade Germany to come into contact with the Bolsheviks, what will hap-

There is also a condition approaching revolution existing in all countries, not even excepting the United States. The whole world is afflicted with an epidemic of disease-diseased minds plotting for the overthrow of government, law and order. England, France, Italy, Spain-all have their internal troubles. And what of Japan, the power freshest of all, today to engage in war? All of these questions are at present unanswerable by the

Outrageous Officialdom.

Some time ago the War Department ssued an order for the discharge of all soldiers in home camps who could furnish affidavits stating that their services were needed at home, but it seems that in many instances the orders are not obeyed. Many of the soldiers are only limited service men and these are anxious to get back to the responsible positions which they left when they entered the army, positions which are still open to them. There is not only too much red tape in official circles, but there is a species of autocracy attached to it that is disgusting. There is absolutely no actual necessity for keeping the boys in the service when they are no longer needed. The war has been over four months, troops are arriving daily from France, the lines are shortening up overseas, and the Government is relieved of the expense of keeping thousands of men on foreign The lieutenants have stepped into the limelight, young fellows with a little brief authority, who, rather than see the privates returned to their homes where they are needed, hold them in the service for their own advantage. If the faithful privates go, the companies melt away and Mr. Lieutenant is out of a job. He now draws more pay from the Government than he could earn elsewhere, and in order to keep his present position he disobeys the order from the War Department. These shoulder-strap fellows, nincompoops many of them, when they do get home, will boast in Falstaffian lingo how "we killed the German bear." They hold their jobs only so long as the companies are not discharged and it is to their advantage, in the matter of pay, to keep the privates in the service. The whole matter is an outrage, not only in a military sense, but to a personal degree. If there was the slightest need for the boys to remain in camp service, exposed to all the dangers in the way of sickness, etc.. that beset camp life, if would be different, but they do the Government no good by being kept on duty. Affidavits, it seems, do no good. They have done all that was required of them, and done it nobly, Some will lose their old jobs by being kept in the field at the beck of the lieutenant. Men who serve at the If half of the energy of country present monthly pay, can more than double their wage at home, and there is absolutely no excuse for keeping them in a service that does not need them. The War Department must wake up and do justice to the men who went willingly into the service of their country, and it was not their fault that they saw no oversea service. They were eager to go to the justice be accorded them .-"Harbaugh," in Middletown Register.

Encourage Wise Spending.

Dry goods merchants in every part of the country report radical changes in their customers' habits, due to war experience. People seek sound values in clothing; there is no disposition to be parsimonius, but women are judging garments by wearing quality. One large dry goods house has found a "self-serve" department successful in selling garments. Certain lines of stock can be sold on this principle, the customer examining saleswoman, and selecting by size, price, quality and other factors, plainly marked. The public is honest when satisfied is shown in the fact that turned for exchange.

Another interesting development is the sale of materials for home sewing, a continuation of home industry gress.—Phila. Ledger. brought back by the war. The store seeks to interest school girls in making their own dresses. Prizes are offered for well-made garments; sewing instruction is given in the store; suggestions are made for the purchase of material; interest is aroused by newspaper advertising. Money saved by this sort of wise spending can be safely invested in W. S. S. and Thrift Stamps.

The Overseas Situation.

The news from Europe is of little account. That is, it is not hopeful or assuring. It is the same old thing day after day, more disorder, more revolt, more uncertainty. We may expect these things, for we helped to make them uncertain by our slow progress toward the real end of the war. It may not be possible to avoid this. It is a mighty duty, this settling of the great war, and it is not settled yet. There is war now, lots of it.

The irresponsible elements of society have broken loose and are threatening even national existence. It is hoped we will reach peace soon and be able to start anew, and if necessary, thrash the Magyars, the Bulgars, and the Bolshevists into a sense of duty. This war has ripped up the elements fearfully and they don't seem to care whether there is a solid basis of world action or not. The Aleven if for awhile they abandon some of their fond dreams. Chairman Hurley, of the United States shipping board, has offered some practical suggestions for the ultimate solution of the problem of the American mercantile marine. This issue is by no means a new one, but it is given a totally new aspect by the changed conditions brought about by the war and by the possession by the federal government of about 12,500,-000 tons of shipping afloat, building or under contract. The problem what to do with these vessels is not only new but urgent, for government ownership of 70% of the mercantile marine under the American flag, or even of any substantial proportion thereof. is not a situation which the country is ready to make a permanent feature of the national policy.

The concensus of opinion in the shipping world will agree with Mr Hurley that the sooner the ownership shall pass from the government into private hands the better it will be for all concerned, for we have had sufficiently impressive demonstrations of the general results of government operation of transportation and communication facilities to prove that the greater hope for the growth of American shipping will be found in private

It is obvious, however, that American investors cannot at once absorb Merchants are falling in with this the enormous tonnage of shipping now in the hands of the government, and Mr. Hurley's program is carefully drawn to meet this and other complications of the situation. He believes that the credit of the government transfer to be safely consummated; but he is also convinced that the government should retain a certain measure of regulatory control over the business, to the end that rates shall be equitable, the rights of exporters goods without the supervision of a and importers safeguarded and American interests as a whole protected. # Germany Making a Bluff.

The report, coming by way of Copenhagen, that Germany will refuse to agree to Polish possession of Danzig is not surprising or alarming. Germany's representatives quite naturally would make a show of resistance to the Allied demands. The Berlin statesmen will make sweeping protests and urge wide demands, no doubt, with a view to yielding what they have to, but no more.

Germany might hope, by setting up a great show of resistance to the ceding of Danzig, to make better terms than would be possible than by an attitude of compliance. It may hope to get important considerations for a return to Poland of the most important Polish seaport. As a matter of policy and politics that attitude may be wise at present, but it does not become a nation that formally announced the annexation of Belgium and on January 2 of last year demanded of Russia full title to Poland, Courland, Esthonia and Lithuania.

The Berlin government was not worrying about self-determination nor the rights of neighbors in those days. It was ruthlessly grabbing everything and anything it could get that seemed likely to be worth having. It was openly engaged in a war of conquest and had undertaken to blot out Poland. There was no question about lies will have to see to this right soon, its motives then. Poland has a right now to the support of the Allies in a program that will make that nation strong and independent, instead of condemning it to a state of Teutonic vassalage such as would result if the Poles are not afforded adequate outlet to the sea.—Indianapolis Star.

THINGS TO REMEMBER AT BUTCHERING TIME

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. Cleanliness is the most important factor in butchering and curing meats. Meat very easily becomes tainted.

Save all pieces of meat for sausage. There are many ways of converting it into a palatable product.

All waste fat trimmings and skin should be rendered and the products used to make soap.

Bones should be crushed or ground for chicken feed. Never put meat in cure before the animal heat is out of it.

Always pack meat skin side down when in the curing process; except the top layer in a brine cure, which should be turned flesh

Keep close watch on the brine; and if it becomes "ropy," change it. Do not forget to turn or change meat several times during the curing process

The fat of dry-cured meat will sometimes become yellow. This does not make it unwholesome. It takes more time to smoke dry-cured than brine-cured pork.

Slow smoking is much better than a rapid smoking, and there is less chance of causing the meat to drip.

If meat becomes moldy, brush off the mold with a stiff brush or trim off the moldy parts with a knife. The entire piece is not spoiled. Be sure meat is thoroughly cooled before smoking.

Remember, the seasoning of sausage is generally governed by taste. Fresh sausage can be kept under a covering of lard for a number of days.

If meat has remained in the brine longer than the allotted time, soak each piece half an hour and three minutes extra for each day overtime. The meat should then be washed in lukewarm water, strung, and hung in the smokehouse. Do not hang the meat so that the pieces touch. The space between the meat is necessary to insure good circulation of smoke around the meat. Permit the meat to hang in circulation of smokehouse for 24 hours before beginning to smoke. A slow fire should be started, so that the meat will warm up gradually. Do not get the house too hot. The fire can be kept going continuously until the smoking is complete, holding the temperature as even as possible (120 degrees F.). Thirty-six to 48 hours is the time required to smoke a lot of meat, but if the meat is intended to great task and a great opporbe kept for any length of time slower and longer smoking is desirable. In this time of need for food every effort should be made to Q prevent milk from spoiling. Cows should be kept clean and should be milked in clean surroundings into a small-top or covered pail. All utensils which come into contact with the milk should be thoroughly sterilized with steam for at least five minutes, and milk should be cooled promptly to 50 degrees F. or less and maintained at that temperature. Whenever these conditions are met, little milk will be wasted. In this time of terrible destruction of human life it is particularly necessary that milk be produced under such conditions as to insure a $ safe food for babies. # PAINT AS AN ASSET.

Bankers Say They Lend More Money on Property When Buildings Are Well Painted.

AN INDICATION OF THRIFT.

One Concern Advances 25 Per Cent. More If Repainting Is Done Every Five Years.

Does it pay to paint carefully farm buildings? Does it add to the selling value of a farm when buildings are properly kept up and regularly painted? A careful inquiry of a number of leading bankers in the Mississippi valley, including such states as Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Indiana and Missouri, reveals the fact that in nearly every case the bankers did not hesitate to say that they would lend all the way from 5 to 50 per cent. more on land where farm buildings were well painted and kept in good condition. They maintain that well kept-up and well painted buildings and fences are an indication of thrift and that the thrifty farmer is a good client, and to him money can be safely loaned. An average of the returns from these bankers shows that the increased loan value because of painted buildings is around 22 per cent. Some of these bankers make interesting comment. A Michigan concern says that, while not especially prepared to advise definitely in response to this inquiry, the officers would loan more money on farms where buildings were painted than where they were not so treated. This bank also ands that where houses, barns and fences are well taken care of the farm is a profitable proposition, and bankers in general consider the farmer a good client. Another Michigan bank says "farm buildings out of repair and needing paint indicate that the owner is slow pay." Such farms are rated at about one-third of the assessed value for loans. Where the farm buildings are in good shape the rating is onehalf. The president of a middle western bank says that when real estate loans are considered, painted buildings are always taken into consideration in making an estimate. The general appearance of the property surrounding the house and barn and also the fields and fences would be carefully observed. He further says that he has no hesitancy in saying that he would absolutely refuse a loan on farms where the buildings were not kept up and well painted. In his judgment, unpainted farm buildings would reduce the loan value at least 25 per cent.

A Minnesota banker says that he is much more willing to loan money where the buildings are well painted. In his particular case he believes that he would loan 20 per cent, more than if the buildings were not properly taken care of. A farmer who will keep his buildings painted takes a much deeper interest in his work than one who does not. Another Minnesota bank says that well painted buildings have resulted in securing from his bank sometimes as high as 25 per cent, more money than where the buildings are not painted. An Ohio concern says that it will loan 25 per cent, more money on a well kept farm where buildings are painted at least once every five years. A southern Illinois bank says that it has no fixed rule about this, but it does make a decided difference when owners of farm lands apply for loans. If the buildings are well painted and thus well preserved the loan rate would not only be cheaper, but the amount of money borrowed would be larger. A northern Illinois bank does not hesitate to say that it would loan fully 50 per cent. more on a farm where buildings were well painted and in good order than where they were not. The vice president, who answers the inquiry, goes on to say: "There probably are many farmers good financially and morally who permit their buildings to remain unpainted, but as a rule the most substantial people who live in the country keep their buildings well painted."

An Iowa bank, through its vice pres ident, states that it would make a difference of at least 25 per cent, in favor of the farm with painted build ings. Another Iowa concern says that it would make a difference of at least 20 per cent.

All this being true, it is perfectly evident that it is a good business prop osition to keep the farm buildings well painted. They not only look better and are more pleasing to the owner, but the farm would sell to better advantage, the loan value of the property would be greatly increased and the buildings themselves would last much longer and need less repair.-The American Agriculturist.

PAINT AND ILLITERACY.

Curious Fact Comes to Light That Localities Least Using Books Avoid Paint Also.

Washington, D. C .- A curious fact has been brought to light by the Edu. cational Bureau and the Bureau of Industrial Research here. It is that in the states where illiteracy is most prevalent paint is least used. The paint referred to is the common or barn variety, of course, for the backwoods countries have no need for the finer pigments or facial adornments. It is true, though, that in the sections of all states where white illiteracy is highest painted homes are rare and painted outbuildings and barns are practically unknown. Probably the illiterates do not use paint on their buildings because they do not understand its value as a preservative.

ESKIMO DOGS NOT VICIOUS

Writer Who Has Traveled in the Far North Found Them Friendly and Affectionate.

Eskimo dogs are supposed to be the direct descendants of the northern gray, or white wolf, which they greatly resemble. They are of various colors-black, white, brown, brindle and gray—and they weigh from 60 to 100 pounds. In the far North a team consists of from 8 to 12, each attached to the sledge by a 16-foot rawhide trace. The advantages of this arrangement are obvious. Seated on the sledge with a 25-foot whip, one can reach out and touch the back of every dog, thereby keeping him in his place and exerting him to keep his trace right. The disadvantages are the indirect pull of the dogs at the tips of the fan and the inevitable braiding of the traces into a rope as large as one's arm, the untangling of which at low temperature necessitates hours and hours of extreme discomfort.

"In my five years' work among these dogs I have failed to find the specie described by some writers as 'treacherous' or 'vicious' or 'ugly brute," writes Donald B. MacMillan, in his book, "Four Years in the White North." "On the contrary, the fullblooded Eskimo dog is one of the most. affectionate in the world. A hundred or more were often about our door. My men passed in and out among them without the least fear. Two hundred and fifty were berthed on the deck of the Roosevelt. To walk for ard it was often necessary to push them aside with the knees. No man, woman or child in the far North has ever been attacked, and not more than three or four of the whole tribe have ever been bitten."

ALPINE "SPORT" IN ENGLAND

Little Spot in Cumbrian Mountains Which Offers an Imitation of the Real Thing.

Few travelers, even those familiar with the by-ways, will think of England in connection with the sport of mountain climbing. Yet there is a bit of tumbled country in the west of England where a coterie of devotees of this perilous sport foregather annually at the Christmas season to get a taste of alpine work near home. The village of Wastdale Head, in the Cumbrian mountains, is the base of operations for these outdoorsmen who find their joy in scaling precipices with a forty foot rope about their waists and a hundred-yard drop below.

The village itself is one of the picturesque bits of old England which have not changed much in the last 500 years. Here you can attend services in what is probably the smallest church in the world-a tiny building with seats for twenty people. There is an inn, of course, with a battered signboard, which might have been modeled after a description from Dickens, except that it was flourishing some centuries before Dickens was born.

For eleven months in the year, neither the inn nor the church at Westdale Head are crowded. But the landlord at the inn has booked his little rooms with their low ceilings eight months ahead for the cold days of December. This is the season when the climbers gather, and the chance tourist who arrives at this time will probably sleep on the floor under the billiard table.

Mouse at the Wedding.

A friend of mine, hysterically afraid of mice, had often declared that wherever she went one was sure to follow. She did not figure on one attending her wedding, however. She was married at home and during the ceremony a mouse scampered across the carpet at the feet of the bride. As she was about to say "Yes," she screamed "O," and, jerking her hand from the bridegroom's, she caught up her skirts and veil and mounted the nearest chair. Nothing could induce her to come down. There she remained until the ceremony was finished and the bridegroom lifted her from her perch. I witnessed the wedding, but, like the rest of the guests, I heard little of the marriage service on account of the laughter, which was general. The parson gave them a certificate, so I suppose they must be married.-Exchange.

Wood Ash As a Polish. Someone has pointed out that the consumption of wood as fuel is attended with a by-product which has excellent polishing qualities. The writer recommends wood ash for polishing steel, pewter, brass, and copper in this way: That soft white, flaky ash is, as our careful grandmothers well knew, the best thing in the world as a cleaner and polisher. It will make the poor neglected fender shine like silver, put the wonted polish on the dulled luster of the brass candlesticks, fetch the soot off your enamel and aluminum kettles and pans, and clean them inside as well, without any of that unpleasant oily odor remaining behind which so many cleaning preparations leave in 'their wake. And-best of all-it costs nothing!-a recipe worth trying.-Scientific American.

April 6 Our Relation to God—Praying

Mark 11:19-26 Together with this Scripture Lesson read such other verses as Matthew 6:5, 6; Luke 18:1; John 14:13, 14; James 5:15-18, and 1 John 5:14,

Speaking generally, we may say that prayer is to be in secret; it is to be undertaken in the spirit of perseverance, in faith, in the power of His name, and with confidence; that confidence in God which results from fellowship with Him.

"Our relation to God" is a matter of faith on our part. The four words of verse 22 form a good life principle or verse 22 form a good life principle for the Christian. "Have faith in God," faith in His power to answer, in His providential control, faith in His purpose of redemption, and faith to pray. "This is the victory that overcometh even our faith—in prayer and in all things." See 1 John 5:4. When faith is in operation then verse 24 becomes real experience. With 24 becomes real experience. With this verse couple 1 John 3:21, 22. Faith will not operate while known sin is tolerated in the life. Anything that grieves the indwelling Spirit hinders faith and prevents prevailing prayer. But when we walk "in the Spirit" (Gal. 5:16), then we have the witness that we are pleasing God. Our relation to God is then a happy one in which we may "ask and receive." While we walk in this way it is easy to forgive as directed in verse 25. "The fruit of the Spirit is love," and "Love suffereth long and is kind."

The maintenance of faith and the willingness to forgive, seem to be the chief conditions of answered prayer in our Scripture Lesson.

Of all spiritual exercises prevailing prayer is the purest and most exacting. There is no greater need today in our young people's work than that we should learn to pray. Anthat we should learn to pray. Answered prayer makes God real to the soul. Because of its place and power we should often be found saying, "Lord teach us to pray." Not, teach us how to pray, but "teach us to pray." Teach us so to value prayer that we shall take time for it. that we shall take time for it.

Great movements are being launch ed just now in our denominations and churches, movements unusually great in their scope and extent. The leaders need the spiritual power and wisdom that comes through prayer. These are the days to pray for world These are the days to pray for world movements, for illumination of mind, for fidelity to the truth to God, lest the schemes of men hinder rather than help in the things that God desires His church to do.

Let the study of this topic be not of passing interest but rather a loud clear call to make our "valetien to

SAW FAR INTO THE FUTURE

Men Predicted Coming of the Telegraph and Airplane as Far Back as Seventeenth Century.

One hundred and four years ago, at this season, the war of 1812 was practically over. Peace was signed at Ghent on the evening of December 24, 1814, and then things moved fast, according to existing standards. December 26 one of the American secretaries left Ghent for London and January 2, 1815, he left England for New York, where he arrived some time in February, and his news was immediately delivered to the citizens by printed handbills. Other cities, however, had to remain in ignorance during the time it would take a fast rider to urge his galloping horse over the roads between them and New York. The telegraph was not yet intor, although Joseph Glanvil, a sev. scribed enteenth century preacher with an interest in the possibilities of invention, had told the Royal society that "to confer, at the distance of the Indies, by sympathetic conveyances may be as usual to future times as to us in literary correspondence." Glanvil. by the way, also told the Royal society that "to those who come after us it may be as ordinary to buy a pair of wings to fly into the remotest re gions as now a pair of boots to ride on a journey."

WESTMINSTER, MARYLAND.

The Lloyd School of Scientific Beautification boasted imposing, two-color letter-heads, bearing the picture of the 12-story Ramge building and that of a handsome lady in evening dress, labeled "Mme. Josephine Lloyd, presiident."

The school, in reality, consisted of one Harry Lloyd Rugglesford, one rebuilt typewriter, one peroxidized six-aweek stenographer, one second-hand roll-top desk, and a small dingy room on the top floor of the Ramge building. The pictured building on the stationery was, therefore, a case of metonomy, and that of the shoulder show a gentle fake

H. Lloyd Rugglesford was president, secretary, treasurer, board of directors, and office boy of the school, along with its faculty of able teachers and far-famed authorities on hair-dressing, facial massage, manicuring, and chiropody, and kindred recherche, erudite and recondite subjects.

His course of instruction was by correspondence. It comprised 12 lessons. The fee was $20-in-advanceyou-pay-but-once-results-guaranteed.

He advertised in newspapers and western magazines whose advertising managers were not yet overwhelmed by advertising reform.

When the beauty doctor's followup system was slow in convincing the village belles that they should be scientifically beautified, he made haste to hold forth the lure of a special rate of $15.42—$12.36—$9.18—$7.29—$3.05 -or $1.77.

He gauged his haste and figures by the quality of the stationery upon which mademoiselle had propounded her inquiries. As a judge of human nature-I mean feminine nature, for there is a difference-by the stationery route, Harry Lloyd Rugglesford was an adept.

The twelve printed lessons cost him fourteen cents. Advertising he figured at fifteen cents an inquiry. Office rent was seven dollars a month. The depreciation of the rebuilt and of the P. B. stenographer were small. Overhead expenses were less. Hence his sound judgment allowed him not infrequently to descend to the one dollar and seventy-seven cents mark.

Forgive me, reader, for this lagging start and the arrray of dull statistics. I apologize also to the editor, the linotype man and the proof reader. Anon will I endeavor to redeem myself.

Do you crave romance, love, osculation? A dab of pathos, a shift of scene, a few surprises? A villain, brief paragraphs, lively conversation? Oh very well. Perhaps I can accommodate you.

"Twas June. How's that for a telescoped para-

H. Lloyd Rugglesford swung jauntily off the trolley car, winked at the man on the corner decorated with the 'Please Help the Blind," ceived an answering wink, paused at the florist's, purchased a 50-cent bunch of violets, and was elevated to the twelfth floor of the Ramge build-

The doctor of beauty entered the beauty school with a satisfied air. Sadie, the stenographer, was pounding out form letter No. 7. That same epistle was calculated to plunge the fair recipient into the seventh inferno of despair because she had not yet purchased a money order and essayed the route of scientific beautification. Form letter No. 7 was a masterpiece of selling talk on the scientific elimination of pimples, freckles, moles, blotches, birthmarks, hair on the face, ingrown fingernails and the like.

"Hallo, Sade," said the beauty doctor. "I believe you said you liked violets. I've bought you a few."

He handed her his offering with a truly Elizabethan bow.

"Ever so much, Harry," she said gaily, raising the bouquet to her pretty retrousse nose. "I haven't saw as swell a bunch as this all spring. You're there with the keen eye for nifty flowers, all right. Them roses the other day was too dear for anything." "Quit kidding, Sade," said the beauty doctor, smiling archly. "You know that nothing's too good for you. Anything much in the way of mail to-

Sadie handed him a bundle of let-

An examination of their contents disclosed 14 money orders, eight festive letters of warm commendation of the course, 19 vigorous kicks from disgruntled students, six threats to report the institution to the post office authorities if certain sums were not forthwith returned, and 22 answers to advertisements.

"Anything startling, Harry?" inquired Sadie, pausing in her clatter. "Same old thing," he rejoined. "Kicks and kopeks galore, and 22 new nibbles."

"Well, ain't that just fine!" rejoined the private secretary, renewing her mastication of the chicle and her attack on the rebuilt.

Harry returned to his morning's mail, strove to translate the aspect of the 22 inquiries into terms of dollars and cents, but his thoughts persisted in drifting into other channels.

And this was the picture that float-He saw himself in a little flat. It was breakfast time. Opposite him, across the breakfast food, bacon and them up for travel.

pot of steeping Young Hyson, he be held a fair young creature, with red cheeks, eyes like violets, retrousse nose, and hair of dainty, drug-store flaxen hue.

You guessed it, reader. It was Sadie.

For weeks had this wonderful picture hung in Harry's mind. For weeks had he argued the question of marriage pro and con. At times he had been on the point of laying bare his soul and begging Sadie to go with him to the courthouse and clergy, and thus make him the happiest beauty doctor

Yet, always, before he could seize her fair hand and begin his matrimonial canvass, a still small voice had, warned him that before he hitched his chariot to a marriage license he must needs address Satan in the terms of the Biblical command, eschew his undignified and dangerous calling, and cast about him for a more genteel and desirable vocation.

He knew that already a post-office inspector was camping on his trail, and he knew not the day nor the hour when a cruel and untimely governmental jolt would relegate the institution of scientific beautification into the discard. Incessantly had the sinister vision of the post-office inspector been haunting him, flitting into his dream by night, harassing his thoughts by

What-marry Sadie while standing thus upon the thin ice of his professional life? No, it wouldn't be right to commit such a reckless act.

He had therefore cast about him for a buyer upon whose shoulders to unthe institution of latter-day learning. And yesterday he had found a man who had offered him a thousand dollars for the gay enterprise, forever to have and to hold. He had accepted the offer, and closed the deal with impatient dispatch.

And now he had resolved to turn his youthful energies into the real-estate business, place a "best investment" upon Sadie's finger, and become a desirable citizen beyond the pale of postoffice inspectors and kindred worries of his hitherto dangerous pursuits. Little wonder that Harry's thoughts were thronged with flatirons, flapjacks, frying pans and fluffy kimonos instead of with the unregenerate details of a business taboo!

Harry pulled himself together, wheeled his chair about with a suddenness that startled Sadie, and said:

"Sade, I've been wanting to tell you something for a good many weeks." "What's on your mind, kiddo?" asked the girl coyly. "Well," pursued the beauty doctor, "I've come to the conclusion that this correspondence school graft isn't exactly the stunt for an ambitious young chap like me. I've been cleaning up quite a bit of velvet in it, but the fact is it's not precisely on the level. You know that, Sade.

"It ain't the sort of business that a man would like to have his wife, for instance, tell the neighbors her husband was in. It ain't what he'd like to leave to his son when it came to an aerial in the direction of the sweet by-and-by.

"Worse than that, there's been a post-office inspector hanging round here for a couple of weeks trying to get a line on the institution. I've stopped him and swapped conversation with him a number of times myself. He's one of these smooth guys, and never tipped it off that he was interested in the school at all.

"But I've caught him wandering round here entirely too often to make me feel comfortable. His snooping round here is getting on my nerves, Sade, and I've decided to sell and get out from under before they let something drop on me.

"My successor takes charge tomorrow. I'm going to take a whirl at the real-estate business, Sade. What do phantly, with a conscious blush of pride.

"Oh, get out," said Sadie. "Are you on the level?" "On the dead level, Sade. And lis- the wood thus protected."

you, girlie.

a hunch I'll have a hard time getting to like the new business, but I'm doing it for you, so that I can be on the level and decent and look folks in the face from now on.

"You've had me on the run ever since you began pounding out form letters for me. I'm all to the psychopathic about you. You've panhandled my pump for fair, Sade, and I want you to marry me. Gee, but I love you, kiddo, and I've got just the coziest little flat all picked out!" Harry rose, took a step in Sadie's direction, then suddenly paused. A strange look had come into Sadie's

"I'm awfully sorry, Harry," she said, "awfully sorry. But you know that post-office inspector you saw round here? Well, he ain't been investigating the school at all. He's been round here to see me- And-well-him and I was married yesterday at noon."

P. S .- Somehow, the moral of my story has become slightly twisted. It is either: "He who hesitates is lost," or "Act in haste and repent at leisure." You may take your choice.

Curiously enough, the question of removal of snow from main highways which is now being agitated was first undertaken nationally by Austria in 1877, at which time a law was passed compelling municipalities to remove snow from state roads in order to keep

ANTIQUITY OF

Strange Sources From Which Pigments Used by Modern Painters Are Derived.

PRESERVATION OF SURFACES.

Crude but Effective Processes Employed by the Egyptians and Greeks of Pliny's Day-Noah Prudently Waterproofed the Ark.

Whether paint was invented in answer to a need for a preservative or to meet a desire for beauty is a question fully as knotty as the ancient one about the relative time of arrival of the chicken or the egg. It was invented, though, and it serves both purposes equally; so whether it is an offspring of mother necessity or an adopted son of beauty remains forever a disputed

The first men, cowering under the fierce and glaring suns of the biblical countries, constructed rude huts of wood to shelter them. The perishable nature of these structures caused rapid decay, and it is probable that the occupants, seeking some artificial means of preservation, hit upon the pigments of the earth in their search. It is perhaps natural to suppose that it was the instinct of preservation that ledmen to the search, although the glories of the sunsets and the beauties of the rainbow may have created a desire to imitate those wonders in their own dwellings. The earliest record of the application of a preservative to a wooden structure dates from the ark, which was, according to the Bible, "pitched within and without." The pitch was a triumph of preservation whatever it lacked as a thing of beauty. Decoration applied to buildings first comes to light with ancient Babylon, whose walls were covered with representations of hunting scenes and of combat. These were done in red and the method followed was to paint the scene on the bricks at the time of manufacture, assuring permanence by baking. Strictly speaking, this was not painting so much as it was the earliest manifestation of our own familiar kalsomining.

The first Hebrew to mention painting is Moses. In the thirty-third chapter of the book of Numbers he instructs the Israelites, "When ye have passed over the Jordan into the land of Canaan, then shall ve drive out all the inhabitants of the land from before you and destroy all their pictures.

At later periods the Jews adopted many customs of the peoples who successively obtained power over them and in the apocryphal book of the Maccabees is found this allusion to the art of decorating, "For as the master builder of a new house must care for the whole building, but he that undertaketh to set it out and paint it, must seek out things for the adorning

Although Homer gives credit to a Greek for the discovery of paint, the allusions to it in the books of Moses, the painted mummy cases of the Egyptians and the decorated walls of Babylon and Thebes fix its origin at a period long antecedent to the Grecian era. The walls of Thebes were painted 1,900 years before the coming of Christ and 996 years before "'Omer smote his bloomin' lyre."

The Greeks recognized the value of paint as a preservative and made use you think of that?" he added trium- of something akin to it on their ships. Pliny writes of the mode of boiling wax and painting ships with it, after which, he continues, "neither the sea, nor the wind, nor the sun can destroy

"I'm doing it all for warlike people, never brought the decoration of buildings to the high plane "It will be hard for me, awfully it had reached with the Greeks. For hard, to break into anything like the all that the ruins of Pompeii show real-estate business after being in this | many structures whose mural decoracorrespondence work so long, and I've tions are in fair shape today. The colors used were glaring. A black background was the usual one and the combinations worked thereon red, yellow and blue.

In the early Christian era the use of mosaics for churches somewhat supplanted mural painting. Still, during the reign of Justinian the Church of Saint Sophia was built at Constantinople and its walls were adorned with paintings. In modern times the uses of paint have come to be as numerous as its myriad shades and tints. Paint is unique in that its name ass no synonym and for it there is no substitute material. Bread is the staff of life, but paint is the life of the staff. No one thinks of the exterior of a wooden building now except in terms of paint coated. Interiors, too, from painted walls and stained furniture down to the lowliest kitchen utensil, all receive their protective covering Steel, so often associated with cement re-enforcing, is painted before it goes to give solidity to the manufactured stone. The huge girders of the skyscrapers are daubed an ugly but efilcient red underneath the surface coat of black. Perhaps the best example of the value of paint on steel is found in the venerable Brooklyn bridge, on which a gang of painters is kept going continually. It is scarce possible dicant. "I've got to eat something, you to think of a single manufactured article which does not meet paint somewhere in the course of its construction. So has paint grown into the very marrow of our lives.

Missionary Must Have Been Some what Staggered by Keen Logic of Kafir Chief.

Among the former chieftains of the black tribes of the Transvaal Magato maintained absolute independence during his reign over the Magatese, and it was not until after his death that the Boers succeeded in collecting the hut tax from his people. An incident that illustrates his character is told in "Secret Service in South Africa."

About 1894 the Boer government sent General Joubert with a small escort to persuade the truculent old chief to acknowledge its overlordship, or at least to pay something on account of the arrears of the hut tax. "Are you Paul Kruger?" Magato

The Kafir starts life at the point most white men only attain with old age. Independence and a competency are his natural heritage; therefore, why should he toil?

Magato summed up the position to the missionary who was vainly endeavoring to inculcate the European theory of the necessity and dignity of labor.

"Why do you white men work so hard?" he inquired.

"To earn money." "Why do you want money?" "That we may have no need to

Must Have Smelled to Heaven. Throughout Italy of the sixteenth century the passion for perfumes amounted to a mania, according to Pompeo Molmenti, the historian. From cap on the head to the shoes on the feet, gloves-to such an extent that at Milan the guild of glovers and perfumers was one and the same-socks, shirts, even money, all were scented. And as if that were not enough, patrician ladies carried on their persons pouncet-boxes filled with scented unguents, and held in their hands chaplets of amber and smelling bottles, One finds in the inventories hairpins of amber. They put musk in their baths and amber, and aloes, and myrrh, peppermint, jonquil, Indian plum, cinnamon, ammonium and other scents. Largest Earth Embankment.

The Belle Esurche irrigation dam in South Dakota is the largest earth embankment in the world. Its construction was authorized by congress at a cost of $5,000,000. From an engineering standpoint this project is one of the most interesting which the government has yet undertaken. Its principal structure is the earthen dam. This dike, which closes the lowest depression in the rim of a natural basin, is 6,200 feet long, 20 feet wide on top and 15 feet high in the highest place. The inside face of this structure, which has a slope of one to two, is protected from wind and wave action by two feet of screened gravel, on which are placed concrete blocks each four by six feet. The cubical contents of this dike are 42,000,000 feet, or about half of the famous pyramids of Cheops in Egypt. The reservoir created by this dam covers about 9,000 acres and will be the largest lake in the state.

German Drummer Balked When He Started to Cross Old Bridge at Troy, New York.

Albany, N. Y., has a historical museum that contains, among other treasure, a bass drum dating back to the great influx of German immigrants which followed the revolution of 1848 in Germany, says Cartoons. This instrument was owned by the first of the wandering "hungry five" bands which appeared in this country after Marx and Engels, the industrious collaborators, wrote the communist manifesto.

The bass drummer was called "Thick Head" Schultz. According to a music teacher now living in Albany, who heard Schultz perform in the '80s, he could play in three different rhythms at once without making the band mad.

At Troy, ten miles up the Hudson river from Albany, was one of those long, old-fashioned inclosed wooden "Go back and tell your chief that I | bridges, unlighted within, like a tunam as great a chief as he is, and that | nel. # BRIGHT COLORS GIVE RELIEF

Simple Method by Which Desk Workers May Avoid Incalculable Injury to the Eyes.

The constant use of the eyes on white paper will in time weaken them and make it necessary to seek other employment, or resort to some remedy.

Bookkeepers, proofreaders and those compelled to gaze for hours at a stretch on a white surface, should have a number of bright colors on their desk or near at hand upon which the gaze should be allowed to rest at short periods when the mind is busy with some mental struggle.

The bright colors will give a relief to the long, constant strain on the eye, and it will be astonishing to those who have never resorted to any such remedy to note the relief secured. Green should predominate. Yellow and red with shades of pink should be used. Bright-colored blotters and brighttinted mottoes or picture cards with birds and flowers as well as scroll designs will produce the most relief to weary eyes. Even a bouquet with green foliage combined with the flowers will give satisfactory results, but this is not as permanent as brightly colored prints that will not fade for a long

Advice With Exceptions.

"Take the first job that offers. Do it with all your might. Your worth will soon be recognized by your employer, who will reward you with a 'raise' and with his daughter's hand, and you'll live happily ever after." The returning soldier is already being fed upon this truistic advice which successful old age delights to hand out as it were the sole "secret of success," which it isn't by a jugful. The wise young man, accepting the good will of counsel, discounts in his planning three counter-possibilities: (1) that the first job offered may not be one for which the applicant is adapted; (2) that the employer may not be the all-wise, sagacious, broad-minded person which the success books invariably post him as being; (3) that there either (a) may be no daughter or (b) she may prefer somebody else. With these and other similar qualifications the spirit of the work-hard-and-you'll-prosper wheeze still stands as admirable.-Lowell Courier-Citizen.

How to Braze Metals.

In brazing brass, copper, wrought iron and steel, clean the metal thoroughly at and near the joint to be brazed, by scraping or filing. Be sure to fit the edges closely together. If greater strength is required, lap the edges over each other about a quarter of an inch. A good plan is to rivet the edges together to hold them in place. Place brazing material along the joint. Take finely powdered borax, wet it with water and place a little along the seam. Put the article over a charcoal fire, joint down. Heat it slowly and evenly, holding it about an inch above the charcoal. When the brazing material is all melted, rap the part with a hammer, to induce the material to flow all through the joint. If the article is brass or copper, it should be plunged into cold water, and if steel or iron it should be allowed to cool

LESSON FOR APRIL 6

GOD THE FATHER ALMIGHTY.

LESSON TEXTS—Genesis 1:1, 27; Psalms 103:1-14; Matthew 6:24-34.
GOLDEN TEXT—Our Father who art in heaven, hallowed be thy name.—Mat-

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Deuteronomy 6:4, 5; Psalms 145:1-21; Isaiah 6:1-3; Matthew 22:35-33; John 4:24; 1 John 4:7-16. PRIMARY TOPIC—The Heavenly Father's care for his children.

JUNIOR TOPIC—God our Creator and Father.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC-What we owe to our Father in Heaven.

I. God the Creator (Gen. 1:1, 27). God was before all things. God the uncaused cause is the cause of all things. "Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, even from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God." (Psalm 90:2). The universe came into being by the will and act of the personal being called God. In verse one is enunciated the sublime philosophy of every right life. In the beginning of all science and philosophy-God; in the beginning of every life-God; in the beginning of every year-God; in the beginning of every day-God; in the beginning of every business-God; in the beginning of every thought, plan and human relationship-God. Conviction as to this sets one free from the false philosophy of the age. Man himself is a creation of God, not an evolution. Man was created in the likeness and image of God This precludes the foolish idea that man ascended from and through a brute. He came into being by a special creative act of God, having been preceded by a special council of the Godhead (Gen. 1:26, 27). Those who believe this record repudiate the Darwinian theory of man's origin as not only a human vagary, but a vicious philosophy inspired by the devil. When man came forth from the Creator's hands he was neither a savage nor a baby; he possessed the powers of a mature man. As an example of the maturity of his intellect, he named the animals as they passed before him.

II. God the Preserver (Psalms 103: 1-14).

All created things would perish were it not for the preserving mercies of It embraces the following gracious heneficial acts: 1. Forgives all iniquities (v. 8). Pardon is the prime necessity if moral things are to be preserved. 2. Healeth all diseases (v. 3). This refers to the healing of the body and the soul. Renovation of man's moral nature is necessary. 8. Redeemeth the life from destruction (v. 4). Redemption implies the payment of all demands against the debtor. God in Christ performs the part which the individual failed to perform, and crowns him with the full right of citizenship in his kingdom. 4. "Satisfieth thy mouth" (v. 5). This means that God satisfies all legitimate desires and thus the youth is renewed. The original capacities are restored to their native vigor. 5. Executeth righteousness and judgment (vv. 6-14). The wrongs of life are righted and thus man is relieved of the burdens which they entail. He extends his pity to-

III. God Our Father (Matt. 6:24-84). Christ came to reveal the Father. The subjects of the kingdom will love him as a child loves its father.

1. Undivided affection (v. 24). The child of the heavenly Father makes the unequivocal choice between God and the world, for unless God has the first place he has no place.

2. Not anxious about food and clothing (vv. 25-32). (1) It is useless (v. Anxiety can bring nothing. "My God will supply all our needs" (Phil. 4:19). (2) It shows distrust of the Father (vv. 28-30). In the measure that one is anxious about these things he shows his lack of faith in the ability and love of God. If we would please God we must come to him in faith (Heb. 11:6). The birds and flowers shame us in this (vv. 26-28). (3) It is heathenish (v. 32). We do not' wonder that those who are ignorant of God should manifest anxiety, but for his children to do so is to play the heathen. He knows that we have need of temporal things and if he cares for the flowers and birds he will surely not allow his children to suffer. 3. He diligently seeks the kingdom of God (vv. 33, 34 He subordinates temporal things to things of the spirit. This shows the right relationship that a child of God is to sustain to secular affairs. This does not mean that a child of God does not exercise proper forethought in making a support for himself and family. The warning is not against legitimate forethought, but anxious worry.

Forgetfulness of Self.

A true perception of the Gospel is the entire forgetfulness of self, utter absence of any pretension, and the complete and entire refusal to accept the world's praise or judgment.-General ("Chinese") Gordon.

He Who Loves God.

One who loves God truly asks no other compensation than God himself; for if he should demand something else, it would be the prize that he loved, and not God.—Bernard of Clairvaux.

KHAKI SOLDIERS

And the Nation Will Show That It Stands Behind Them in the Victory Liberty Loan

More than a million of Uncle Sam's boys are "over there" looking after the common good of the world. And they will have to stay upon the job until it is done; until things are righted again; until order is brought out

While they are overseas they must be taken care of adequately; they must be clothed and fed and lodged comfortably. Uncle Sam estimates that it costs $423.27 a year to equip and maintain a soldier in Europe.

Part of the proceeds from the coming Victory Liberty Loan will be devoted to caring for the "doughboys." Part of it will go into the rehabilitation fund for putting the injured soldiers back upon their feet. Part of it will go for insurance claims. The rest of it will go to meet the hundred and one other demands for this greatest of world emergencies since the dawn of civilization.

Every mother's son of them did his part, helped insure liberty and justice for the world at large and restore Uncle Sam to his rightful position in the estimation of the nations of

They did their duty fully, these boys who won. They fought to the end. through fire and flood. They never talked about letting up.

This is no time for Americans to think of letting up. The nation must stand by its guns, by its records; by Uncle Sam and must make the next loan another big success.

FINISH THE JOB

Success of the Victory Liberty Loan, the fifth government war loan, will depend largely on the savings of the people of the nation.

To insure its success, we must save NOW-to practice anew the great lessons of the war, thrift and economy. Aside from the loss of respect for ourselves as a nation, every family will be unpleasantly affected, if the coming loan is not fully subscribed. Uncle Sam's war exchequer is compelled to spend money to maintain the army of occupation, to rehabilitate the wounded, to bring home the victors and to carry out the program of reconstruc-

This money is being borrowed from the banks of the country, and Uncle Sam is issuing short-term certificates of indebtedness in anticipation of the coming Liberty Loan and of the federal income taxes. If the banks were not speedily paid back, their resources would be gone, and as they could make no loans, credit operations would be hampered and businss stagnate. How about it? Will we finish our job-that of paying the war bills, as our immortal heroes finished theirs of vanquishing the Hun? They were not quitters, even when called on to make the supreme sacrifice. Will we be quitters, when there is all to gain and nothing to lose?

A little saving now is all it will cost and this saving will mean a stronger grip on the future. The Victory Liberty Loan will soon be offered. Will you be ready to do your part?

***** Resolved.

That peace will find us backing Uncle Sam as strongly as we backed him in war.

That between now and April we will lay every possible stone of the groundwork for the Fifth Liberty Loan and leave no act undone which will tend to keep alive and quicken the con sciousness of the nation that savings and thrift are peace essentials.

That we will exert our efforts to stop trafficking in bonds of the first four loans and will keep our War Savings Stamps.

That we will carry out our War Savings pledge if that is unfulfilled, and make and keep new Savings pledges this year.

That we will work tooth and nail from now till the last day of the April drive to oversubscribe that Liberty Loan.

That we will finish our job.

Rotherhithe Old Saxon Town. Rotherhithe is one of those old English towns, Saxon in origin, whose name lends itself to two etymological explanations. Red Rose Haven is said to be the origin of Rotherhithe, from a Red Rose signboard which used to mark some seaman's tavern centuries ago. Probably the more accurate version points to the old Saxon word "redhra," a mariner, and "hith," a haven, as accounting for the word Certainly Rotherhithe had a great eputation for the quality of her seamen; Sir John Leake, the hero of La Hogue, hailed from the old port on the Thames. In Pepys' day it was commonly known as Redriff, and occurs under that name in the Diary on many occasions.

The Pork Barrel.

The phrase "pork barrel" originated from an old saying of the people in the farm districts that they had no need to worry on account of a severe winter, as they had their barrels filled with salted pork or other meats. From this to the sharing of political plums is but a step. When appropriations for improvements are made by congress or legislatures, such as post office improvements, and river and harbor work, each representative strives to secure a part of the appropriation for his district, so that his constituents may share in the financial distribution in the form of contracts or

Powerful Explosive.

The liquid oxygen explosive appears, from notices in the German technical press, to have been developed as a mining substitute for nitric explosives, which had been all taken for military purposes. It was discovered a score of years ago that when a carbonaceous material is saturated with liquid oxygen and ignited by a fuse or electricity, the carbon and oxygen combine violently, and successful trials were made in blasting. This explosive, called "oxyliquit," is now doing duty quite extensively in breaking up coal and potash. In seeking a combustible, experiments were made with a mixture of gasoline and infusorial earth, pulverized cork, dry wood pulp and dried peat, but the best results were obtained with lampblack. This is placed in a suitable cartridge. In the preferred method the filled cartridge is immersed for half an hour in liquid oxygen in a special container, and then, with an ignition system quickly attached, is placed in the borehole, tamped and exploded. The effects are nearly equal to those from the same weight of dynamite. The serious disadvantage of the method is the necessity of liquefying the oxygen at the place where used; but a very great advantage is safety in transportation, and especially complete lack of danger from unexploded cartridges. The oxygen evaporates in about ten minutes, leaving simply inert lampblack.

Women as Secretaries.

Since Mr. Lloyd George made the innovation of appointing a woman secretary, the example of the prime minister has been followed by some of his the colleagues in the cabinet. One of the in this Departme three private secretaries to Mr. Bonar Law, the chancellor of the exchequer, having left recently to become deputy chairman of the board of inland revenue, the chancellor has decided to economize man power and at the same time give formal recognition of women's growing efficiency by making Miss E. M. Watson one of his private secretaries. These appointments of women civil servants to confidential posts in the entourage of the members of the British cabinet are highly popular among women workers generally who appreciate the honor thus done to their sex.

Yellow Fever Mastered.

Reports from Ecuador indicate that Doctor Noguchi, the famous Japanese scientist, who is at present in that country, has isolated the bacillus which causes yellow fever, and has prepared an anti-serum conferring immunity on those exposed to the disease. The discovery is being tried out on Ecuadoran troops in the fevery in-

The conquest of yellow fever is one of the important achievements. In the Canal zone the first steps were taken; the fever was banished by sanitation. But proper sanitation is an extensive process and is impracticable in sparsely settled regions. So Doctor Noguchi's discovery comes to give a needful coup de grace to the old villain, yellow fever.

Successful in its tenth season can be said of few plays, but it can truthfully be said of "Human Hearts," a drama which provides healthful recreation for the public and which Taneytown. seems to instruct while appearing in the form of amusement is a boon to any community. So young and old

How Diphtheria is Contracted.

One often hears the expression, "My child caught a severe cold which developed into diphtheria," when the truth was that the cold had simply left the little one particularly sus-ceptible to the wandering diphtheria germ. If your child has a cold when diphtheria is prevalent you should take him out of school and keep him off the street until fully recovered, as there is a hundred times more danger of his taking diphtheria when he has a cold. When Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is given it quickly cures the cold and lessens the danger of diphtheria or any other germ disease being contracted.
