AUTO COMMISSIONER REPORTS BIG INCREASE.

State Motor Travel.

In his annual report submitted to the Governor, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles E. Austin Baughman covers in detail the work in his department. He expresses his satisfaction with the motor vehicle law passed by the last General Assembly, it having brought about a more effective enforcement of regulations in the interest of pub-

Speaking of the problems caused by increased traffic he says:

New business which has come to this state as a result of the war has caused our highways to be used by great numbers of non-residents who are more or less unfamiliar with the motor-vehicle regulations. This situation is responsible for many of the accidents which are continually occurring on the public roads. As to non-residents, the problem will not be entirely solved until other states enact legislation similar to that in Maryland and until their officials begin to require of them the same strict observance of motor-vehicle laws which this state is trying to bring about."

Complaint is made that army truck drivers and government officials violated the state regulations; also that the law relating to the use of cutouts is unobserved sufficiently to be a great nuisance.

The gress receipts of the office amounted to $1,690,693.43, which, though $90,000 above the estimate, did not come up to the net revenue it was thought would be derived under the new law.

The report then continues: "The cost of patroling the roads was much heavier than in the preceding year due to the rise in the price of gasoline, oil, tires and other accessories. By far the heaviest increase, however, was caused by the changes made in the Acts of 1918. Such things as the giving of examinations to all applicants for operators' and chauffeurs' licenses, and the issuance of instruction licenses at the various county seats all over the State proved a serious burden and greatly added to the total of the disbursements made by my office. In my opinion these expenditures were more than justified by the results obtained, as the rigid examinations to which all applicants for licenses are now put has enabled us to weed out those that are unfitted for either mental or physical reasons to operate motor vehicles along the public highways. It has also enabled us to take care without delay of applications made by residents of the

The total number of deaths reported during the year was 203 as compared with 157 for the previous year. The increase is attributed to the large volume of traffic on the roads.

The cost of maintaining the Department is 9.9 per-cent. of the total amount of the revenue collected.

Take Care of Your Uniform.

In an interview, last week, Adj.-Gen. Henry M. Warfield said: "The Maryland men of the Army,

Navy and Marine Corps have upheld the high standard established by our forefathers in the earlier wars of our country and are returning. The welcome given them was but a slight token of the affection and admiration in which they are held by their fellow-citizens. They will soon receive their discharge from the service, and again take their places in the ranks as private citizens. Our Government has permitted them to retain their uniform, and I want to suggest to them that they shall take care of these uniforms. I have been distressed to see upon several occasions men who were apparently discharged soldiers working in their uniforms as they would overalls. In passing a garage I saw a man with his uniform covered with grease. I am confident that his use of the uniform is due to thoughtlessness. The discharged soldier should preserve his uniform and in the years to come he will look at it with pride, and when he dies leave it as a rich legacy to his heirs, who will regard it as a most precious inheritance; one which the coming generations of his family will treasure as having been worn by an ancestor in the great war of 1917-18. We all know of families today who are treasuring the uniform of some ancestor worn in the Revolutionary War, War of 1812, or the War of 1861 to 1865. "I feel sure that if this is brought to the attention of our gallant soldiers, it will receive their considera-

MRS. KISER NOT GUILTY.

The Plea of Insanity at the Time is Sustained by Jury.

The trial of Mrs. J. Frank Kiser, Facts and Figures Concerning the for killing her husband, by shooting, at their home in Harney, last February, was taken up last Thursday, and concluded on Friday with the expected verdict of "not guilty," on the plea of insanity. The trial was before a jury composed of Jacob H. Krumrine, John W. Smith, James E. C. Slasman, Geo. S. Stoffle, Wm. E. Markell, Wm. E. Grumbine, Claude E. Conover, Sterling C. Bixler and Bradford H. Owings, of the regular panel, and George F. Morelock, Frank Ward and Samuel Caltrider, talismen

E. O. Weant appeared as counsel for the prisoner, and Wm. L. Seabrook, State's Attorney, for the state. The defense put up the plea of insanity and introduced numerous medical experts who had examined the mental condition of the accused, the evidence was also brought in that insanity had existed in some of her family connections. The pre-ponderance of expert testimony was favorable to the insanity plea, only one testifying that, in his opinion, the mental condition of the accused was sound at the time of the commission of the act. The evidence was also to the effect that she was suffering from diseases calculated to produce an insane condition of mind, especially under excitement.

The verdict was that she was "not guilty of murder, and was sane at the present time." The State's Attorney had not asked for a "first degree" verdict, but for "man slaugh-ter." Both the trial and the verdict have attracted camparatively little interest, perhaps due to the "other woman" cause that led to the commission of the act, and to the entire absence of any other incentive.

Carroll County C. E. Convention.

The 28th Annual Convention of the Carroll County Christian Endeavor Union was held at Finksburg, June 4

All the sessions were very interesting and helpful. The great need of missionary work in the foreign field was emphasized throughout the whole convention. The Junior Society of Grace Lutheran church, Westminster, and that of the Church of the Brethren, Linwood, gave a very interesting program at the Jr. Rally, after which the Jr. Supt. made an appeal for more Jr. Societies.

Pleasant Valley Bank Open.

On Monday, June 2, the Bank Commissioner for Maryland made an inspection of the new Bank at Pleasant Valley, and gave his certificate authorizing the Bank to open its doors for business, which was done that day. A. Daniel Leister, is president, and Edgar H. Shaffer, vice-president. The Cashier is Nevin W. Crouse, of Tyrone, who was until recently a teacher in the public schools. Mr. Crouse has been named Notary Public, by Gov. Harrington.

There are eleven directors of the bank, and they were all present at its opening, as well as many other business men from Pleasant Valley and community. The capital stock of the bank is $10,000, and the surplus $4,000. A store room has been fitted up with the necessary bank furniture, safe, etc.

The more than 125 separate stockholders should make this a successful banking institution. It has a state bank, and has a board charter. Chas. O. Clemson, of Westminster, is counsel for the bank.

The Navy appropriation has also been reduced $375,000,000, from the amount asked by Secretary Daniels. No new construction is authorized. Neither bill has finally passed.

Candidates' Cards.

The Record suggests that it may be a good way to prevent primary contests, for candidates who mean to run to make their announcements early. This does not prevent others from getting into the race, but may discourage some. At any rate those who are candidates, can lose nothing by saying so, now.

SENATE WANTS SEPARATE LEAGUE AND TREATY

The Real Contest Likely to be on This One Demand.

The Republicans in the Senate, on Monday, sprung a surprise on the administration by producing a copy of the Peace Treaty, and having it read into the proceedings, against the protests of Democratic leaders. Nine Democrats voted with the Republicans to make the treaty public, and one Republican (McCumber) voted against. At an investigation of how the treaty came to get into this country, held previous to the debate in the Senate, the Assistant Secretary of State admitted that the State Department had in its possession more than 35 copies of the document.

The debate over the procedure was violent, the Democrats appealing for regularity in procedure relative making treaties public, while the Republicans countered by asking why the Senate had not a right to infor-mation that Wall street and the newspapers already had?

The copy used by Senator Borah, before the Senate, was secured from a reporter of the Chicago Tribune, who had it at the office of the paper about a week before bringing it to Washington. Some doubt exists as to whether the copy read is correct in every particular, but this can be determined by making comparison with the copies in the possession of the State Department.

Senator Knox, on Tuesday, introduced a resolution virtually demanding that the League of Nations covenant be lifted out of the peace treaty with Germany, giving ample time for the former to be given "future sepa-rate and full consideration," by the American people.

Senator Knox lays down five propositons in his resolution. First, he declares that immediate peace with Germany is the only end to which the Peace Conference should proceed; next, that the Federal Constitution cannot be amended by the adoption of a treaty as, in his judgment, would be the case in subscribing to the league of nations; third, that the Senate will ratify no peace treaty containing a league of nations covenant; fourth, that the resolution gives notice of the limits of the obligations against the United States, and finally, that the United States abandons its traditional isolation to the extent that t will consult with other powers affected whenever the peace of Europe shall be threatened.

As Senator Knox is easily the best international lawyer in the Senate, and a man not swayed by the same impulses as Borah, Johnson, and others, his challenge to the President represents the strongest opposition the combined proposition could possibly have in this country. Senator Knox is not only a former Attorney General of the United States, but a former Secretary of State, and it may be taken for granted that his resolu-tion is not one hastily prepared, nor which has not had full consideration, and backed by good constitutional

The President is not likely to surrender, no matter what the consequences may be. He has placed all of his eggs in this one basket; and of course, England and France wants America tied to them by the League covenant. The President is likely to return to this country, and fight to the limit for his treaty as it stands; and when this happens, the country may find itself in the gravest situation since the Civil War.

The Knox resolutions will be published in full on our editorial page, next week; and as they will likely be the basis of the action of the Senate of the United States on the Treaty and League of Nations, we suggest that these resolutions be carefully read and considered. Lack of space, prevents their publication in this

Big Wheat Crop Prospect.

Washington, June 9-Bumper crops are growing throughout the country, but plant diseases already have done some damage and threaten to curtail production somewhat. The largest wheat crop ever grown, aggregating 1,236,000,000 bushels of winter and spring wheat combined, was forecast n today's monthly report of June 1, of the Department of Agriculture.

That represents virtually one-third of the world's wheat crop this year. In previous years the United States has grown about one-fifth. Big crops of oats, barley, rye, hay, apples and peaches also are in prospect

Red rust made its appearance during May in the principal winter wheat producing sections and the infection is spreading. It caused damage to the extent of about 7,000,000 bushels to winter wheat and experts are unable to determine how extensive the damage will be by the time that crop is harvested.

Winter wheat production is forecast at 893,000,000 bushels, compared with 899,915,000 bushels forecast last Monday, making it the largest ever grown. Condition of winter wheat was 94.9 per-cent. of a normal, compared with 100.5 last month and 83.8 last year.

THE LAW A FAILURE.

Frederick County Tired of Primary Election Law.

The Democratic County Central Committee, of Frederick county, will hold a meeting, this Saturday, to try to devise a plan to get around the primary election law, by practically returning to the old county convention system. If the committee sanctions the idea, a convention will be called and candidates indorsed whose names will go on the ballot through the operation of the primary law-unless there are contests, in which case a primary election would have to be held. The primary law in Frederick county has been a failure, as it has been in other counties in the state, and amounts to nothing more than a greatly increased bill of expenses for the taxpayers.

The Record predicted this outcome, from the beginning. The law ought to be repealed, and an improved convention system returned to. In Carroll county, the primary law has not resulted in better candidates, but in poorer ones, for the reason that many of our best men will not contest for a nomination; and while a convention may leave a few "sore-heads," the primary plan often makes perenmities that exist, only during a campaign for election, but afterwards, and decidedly more party discord.

Baltimore, June 8.—Ethan Allen Andrews, professor of zoology at Hopkins University, has followed his own advice by eating locusts. "Fine, just like shrimp," was his verdict. "If there were a scarcity of other food, persons who had tast ed them would probably think nothing of eating them in large quantities."

He and others working with him in the study of the habits and flavor of the pests are convinced that by eating the locusts as fast as they appear this generation would be doing the right thing by prosperity. So he did his bit. Others equally brave have ventured to help in the same way.

What has interfered with the con sumption has been the discovery that the locusts are not in the best of health. Many have been found suffering with a fungus trouble. After seventeen years underground, many are slightly moldy. This mold, spreading from the tail forward, will kill many of the insects. But Professor Andrews fears that it will not cause death soon enough to prevent the laying of eggs and the propogation of the next generation, seventeen years

PROCEEDINGS OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION

Controversy Between the Board and County Commissioners.

An adjourned meeting of the Board was called to meet in the office of the Board, on Monday, June 2, at 2:15 P. M., at which time the annual election of officers was held. J. Pearre Wantz/was elected president, and Arthur W. Feeser, vice-presiednt.

The Supt. then made the annual appointments of the executive force, as Supervisor of white elementary schools, Miss I. Jewell Simpson; Supervisor of colored elementary schools, Miss Ada R. Fulton; Attendance officer, Grover C. Taylor; Counsel, Chas. O. Clemson; Clerk, Chas. Reed; Stenographic clerk, Miss Helen E. Ohler., whose appointments were duly approved by the Board.

The list of unpaid bills was approved.

A petition presented by the residents of Freedom district, advocating the building of a consolidated school and High School, at Eldersburg, and offering land and labor purporting to represent the desire of the people of the one-rooom rural schools, to have the same permanently closed, was laid before the Board, but no definite action was taken, except to lay the same on the table for future consideration. An adjournment was then taken until Friday, June 6, in order to enter into conference with the County Commissioners, relative to an adjustment between the two Boards on various items of the annual budget, which said items had been disapproved by the County Commissioners.

At the adjourned meeting, which was authorized to be called on Friday, June 6, to take under consideration the following communication received from the County Commissioners.

Westminster, June 3, 1919.
Prof. M. S. H. Unger,
Supt. of Schools.

We beg to advise you of the final action of this Board with respect to the school budget. The Board has unions. finally decided to allow you the amount of $1000 for interest on short term loans, which you ask, but to couple with that allowance the condition that the work which you have started on the Myers' district building, and on the Union Bridge toilets, as contemplated, and other improvements represented as necessary, immediately be started and continued at once; otherwise, this item of interest will not be paid. The Board has fur-ther allowed the $1500 requested for White Rock school, and has added $500., which was stricken from the amount for toilets at Union Bridge. With these exceptions, the former action of this Board is confirmed.

The attention of the Board has been called to the fact that although publicly made the statement that half of the item of short term loans was represented by loans which had been contracted by a former Board, while in truth the budget of the past year contained an item for short term loans for an amount in excess of the amount which had been contracted by the former Board. The Board also wishes to suggest that if you would kindly correct the mathematical calculations contained in the analysis which you so freely circulated yesterday, the deficit therein shown would disappear.

Yours very respectfully BENJ. F. STANSBURY. WM. A. ROOP. JOHN W. MYERS.

After due consideration of the above, the Board adopted the following resolution, and ordered the same to be placed upon the minutes, and a copy presented to the County Cim-

WHEREAS, That as the County

Commissioners have allowed the Board of Education in the budget of 1919-20, $144,413.36, and as they have authorized that we pay $125,000 of the above amount for teachers' salaries, and it will require $10,000 for fuel, there is left a balance of $9,413.36 It will be impossible with this amount to continue the work of the Myers building, to construct the Pleasant Gap and White Rock buildings, and make the various renovations and improvements at Westminster, Union Bridge, Mt. Airy, and other points, and as no interest except $500 has been allowed on the loan of $35,000, it will be necessary to take the money which comes from the state tax over and above current expenses to pay WHEREAS, In order to continue the work of building the Myers district school building, the Pleasant Gap school, the White Rock colored school, and others in the summer of 1919, the Board would be obliged to borrow the money for the work and pay interest on same until such time for the entertainment of persons in as that money would be paid to this attendance. THE FEDERATION OF LABOR. What Union Labor Stands for, and in session at Atlantic City, attracted a great deal of attention. The address of President Gompers was its leading feature. He said in part; "Employers too have come to see the light of the new concept of right, and they are accepting the new order of things; that is, most of them are. There are others, who, like the Bourbons of old, never forget anything because they never learned anything. "Men and women have given their blood for principles and ideals, not only for the period of the war, but for the period of all time, in making sarifices. It was not their intention that the principles for which they contended should be lost sight of when the war was won. They sacrificed themselves by giving their blood, and now they are determined that tyranny, whether it be in political or industrial life, shall be no more. The day for that has passed. "Let me tell you this: If any employer believes that industrial autocracy is going to prevail in America he is counting without his host. 'The principles for which labor has fought since the beginning must come to full fruition. We are making no uniust demands. "Workers give to society a 'service without which civilization itself would fall. We intend to make this country worthy of the civilization of our times and to future historians the story of the labor movement in the United States will prove the greatest source of information and inspiration as to numbers, power and influence."

The executive committee of the federation unqualifiedly indorsed the peace treaty and the league of nations covenant.

"The world has in truth been made safe for democracy," the report ob-serves, with the reservation that such will be the case if the peace is built upon the basic principles firmly imbedded in the treaty.

Other observations made in the report are that:

Legislation should be passed making it a criminal offense for employ-

Just wages will prevent industrial stagnation and periodical unemployment.

went into the world war. The Federation convention went on record as opposing the Daylight-saving law, by a vote of 450 to 180.

Locusts Dangerous Feed.

If the so-called "seventeen-year-locusts" or cicadas are plentiful in your locality, and you are keeping chickens that have a chance to run under the trees where the locusts are numerous, watch out for trouble, warns the United States Department of Agriculture. It might well be supposed that the numerous locusts would provide a feast for the chicks, and they do; but this feast is not unattended with danger. Serious losses may result from the chicks eating too many of these insects. The wings and leg parts of the locusts seem to be quite indigestible, and are likely to obstruct the outlet of the crop in such a way as to cause the chicks to become crop

Little chicks are not troubled, because they are too small to tear apart and 'eat the locusts, but chicks that are more than four weeks old are large enough to devour the locusts and to have trouble as a result. The only feasible means of combating this difficulty, is to move the chicks, if possible, to fields where there are few trees and where the locusts in consequence do not gather in numbers. Trouble also has been reported from mature fowls eating the locusts in great numbers with considerable mortality resulting.

Talking, in Congress, in terms of statesmanship and disinterested honesty, was never so difficult a duty as now, and the condition is not all because of the near approach of a Presidential campaign, nor even to the necessities connected with the war.

A new County Commissioner is to be elected, this year. Here is a nice well-paid (?) job, not much work, and all he has to do is please everybody in levying taxes and spending the money-after he first gets the nomination, and then gets elected.

The "wets" are reinforced by organized labor, in favor of continuing the manufacture and sale of beer and wine, after July 1. It seems probable, therefore, that President Wilson -if Congress does not act without him-will find that he has the necessary authority to repeal the war-time prohibition act, without legislation, and before July 1.

Taking back Government controlled (for a time) telegraph, telephone and railroad lines, will be very much like breaking again to safety, a horse that has been spoiled by being in a runaway. Systems that had been perfected, and under discipline, have suffered beyond computation by numerous innovations following Government control, and those employees who have been under less restraintand more pay for it-will not easily be gotten back in the old harness.

The principle on which the U.S. Government is founded-majority rule by law-is never likely to go wrong, for long. When mistakes are made, the people can soon correct them by legal methods and nersons effort. The trouble that is growing among us, is, that bodies of men do not want to be controlled by laws and popular majorities, but by their own efforts, based on force, and subject to change to new efforts and more force, at any time, regardless of the laws of

Mr. Taft, who has been acting in this country as a sort of nurse for the Peace Treaty, is now somewhat concerned because the full text of the treaty did not soon follow the abstract of it. He says it is "inconceivable that the abstract misrepresents the text," and that while the Senate and public has probably never before been given as full an opportunity to know and discuss controversial points in treaties, yet this "last error of the administration has lost any credit attaching to such a policy," especially after so much has been made of "the necessity for publicity."

Get the Money."

Just now, public improvements are being rushed to keep step with the high cost of living, and everything else. The U.S. Government has set the pace and lesser governments are expected to follow. Let us borrow money, or issue bonds-"get the money" in some way-and follow the procession. "Paying up" time can take eare of itself, just so we hurry up and get our share of the plunder right now.

Labor and the Future.

There will be the strongest kind of a fight, on the part of organized labor, to keep wages up to, if not even higher, than their present record-breaking level. This fight will be by strikes, and all sorts of demands, and, as a last resort, may enter politics to a degree never before attempted. Anything like a peaceable acceptance of lower wages, appears now to be out of the question, even should the "high cost of living" argument be put out of business by coming down from its perch.

The whole question of labor, in its wide application, must sooner or later be made a question for National legislation, as it shows no tendency toward settling itself. Politicians have dodged it, played with it-done about everything with it but meet it squarely—and the time must come when it must be met, face to face, and the whole thing fought down to a level, should be urged. We are hoping that not only as a matter of justice to | our fears will prove not well groundcapital, but of justice to the great mass of our population that exists between capital and organized labor.

The question, serious as it is as affecting conditions in this country, may grow to be much larger and more serious as one of the great world problems. What will happen, for instance, when our tariff laws are made over, as they must be? What result can be looked for in our relations with Japan, China, and other European countries, if we place tariff duties so high on their manufacturers as to keep them out? If we do not prohibit cheap imports, what will happen in this country?

How will we maintain friendly relations even with England, France and Italy, if we make our tariff schedules to match our labor sched-

There is also this fact to be seriously considered. Labor stands back of the assumption that capital is always profiteering at labor's expense-getting too large a share of the profits. Suppose capital shuts up shop; what will labor do about it ?

Only last week, at Atlantic City, declaring that the National Association of Manufacturers in talking of a concentrated movement to reduce wages is "playing with dynamite, dynamite infinitely more dangerous both to capitalists and the public than all the May Day bombs of the anarchists," Basil Manly, joint chairman of the national war labor board, assured the National Conference of Social Work at the Traymore, that "American labor will not turn Bolshevist unless it is driven to it by selfish capitalism."

American labor, he asserted, whether organized or unorganized, will bitterly resist any such scheme "as that concocted by a large group of American manufacturers while banqueting sumptuously at the Waldorf-Astoria," until the price level has dropped far lower than it is today.

Mr. Manly made the prediction also that President Wilson, very soon after he returns to America, will call a conference of recognized chiefs of labor unionism and great financiers who control industrial capital, to arrange for a great industrial congress to plan an industrial peace that will be lasting if not permanent. He insisted capital must deal directly with organized labor, recognizing unionism unqualifiedly, if great strikes and mass movements of labor, "beside which all previous American strikes will pale into significance," are to be averted during the next year.

be authoritative; and because it apparently means that labor means to act for itself, and not be controlled by legislation; coming very near, indeed, to making an actual threat of practicing Bolshevism-whatever that may mean, exactly. Boiled down, this seems to be in the future; that, if we continue abnormal wages, and make our tariff laws to fit the wages, we will have trouble with foreign countries; if we avoid that, then we are bound to have trouble at home.

The Equal Suffrage Procession.

Much as we would like to-for the sake of many thousands of women who would use the ballot intelligently, and who have important interests The "wait a while" policy isn't to which they have a right to assist in unable to join the procession in advohouses, is a sort of insult against a cacy of the general equal-suffrage the excitement and temper of the improvement, either in laws enacted or enforced, or in public morals.

We cannot, for the life of us, understand why this "suffrage" business must be jammed through as a sort of emergency, "do or die," proposition, without first proving out the idea where it is being experimented with. In fact, we have the conviction that horrid-men politicians are using votes for women as a political commodity, from which they expect to profit in a political way, and with very little genuine gallantry about it, or respect for the intellectual calibre, or rights, of the female sex.

The political leaders have been counting noses and chances-not the best interests of the future of the Nation-and it is quite in common with the unscrupulous trend of things in general, that this should be so; as well as quite in common with the epidemic of itch among women to become manish that equal suffrage ed, in the future, but as yet we have not been able to join the procession.

Heroes Without Rifles.

The lumber camps of Maine are preparing a welcome for their war heroes. The famous "sawmill" unit will soon be back in the woods.

The doughboy, with his rifle, deserves all the honors that have been paid him, but after the men who jumped over the top into No Man's Land have been feted, the technical troops that America sent to France must have the credit which is their

Sturdy ax wielders from our pine forests bore a part in winning the war which could not have been taken by anyone else. Europe knew something about making trees grow, but the time came when it was necessary to harvest timber wholesale. That was where the training of the lumberjack counted for more than the education imparted by the veteran top sergeant. Trenches and dugouts at the front were shored up because Yankee woodsmen possessed a magic method of turning trees into timbers.

Work Is a Savior.

While a man has work to do he is fills the hours that might be worse than wasted. It is the harmless opiate for sorrow. It is a distraction that—if not overdone—is remedial and merciful. A man who has been long idle can pray for no better fate than to be busy. If he is good for anything he is made utterly wretched by having nothing to do.

Much pity is wasted on those who work hard. Hard work is not a curse but a downright blessing. The workman as he develops skill and science in his craft feels a creative joy in his being and his doing that is a supreme satisfaction.

He finds new powers that he did not know he had. The old capacities of which he was aware are expanded and intensified. He learns to do by doing. Such talk as this is alarming, and He constantly surprises himself by an all the more so because it is meant to | achievement of which he did not know he was capable.

We have all seen the youthful pilgrim in the man of life who had not found himself. He tried many things and in some perhaps attained a slender proficiency. But nothing quite seemed to suit him. He seemed in danger of squandering his gifts by diffusion. He "scattered his fire." His versatility became almost a curse.

Then suddenly he came upon his true bent-he found the thing he could do to particular useful purpose.

Thereupon he was transformed. From being the disdainful, doubtful "trifler" he became the specialist, of determined concentration. His objective was fixed and his course was set straight for it. Each day he made progress toward the end in view. He realized at last the purpose for which he was put into the world, and he was

Such a man is passing on the salvation he has himself received. His example is a stirring object-lesson. Every strong man raises up a train of disciples whose names he does not know, whose faces he has never seen. They argue: "He overcame privation and discouragement. I can do the same. He worked when he did not and selfish ease, even as he expelled

In determining and then following his own laborious course in life, a man voting there has been no noticeable ing to save those with whom his influence counts. Half the time we do better and braver things than we otherwise would because of the influence of one for whom we care. The inspiring incentive has a result that mystifies us, when we thought we knew our own natures so well.

Standing alone in the world, we might fall; but aloneness is one of the impossibilities. We never live to ourselves. There is always a cloud of witnesses, though these may be unseen. They expect something of us, and we are bound not to disappoint the expectation. We know not what shall be the flower and the fruit of the word or the deed of the moment. We only know that we must labor while it still is day, for the sake not of self but of all.—Phila. Ledger.

Labor Shortage Forecast.

We venture the prediction that before next year the labor shortage will be so great that business men and farmers will be scrambling for men. To meet this condition labor-saving machinery should be brought into use everywhere and as rapidly as possible. Household work can be lessened greatly by modern electric equipment. Work on the farm and in the factory still offers an almost limitless field for labor-saving equipment to supplant or supplement muscle power.

Every manufacturer should a quickly as possible so improve his plant, and when necessary so equip it with labor-saving devices of every kind as to be ready to meet the certainty of a great labor shortage. With an enormous wheat crop assured, at high prices for the farmer; with general improvement in all agricultural conditions; with highway work getting under way on a very large scale; with a marked revival of general constructive activities; with a heavy emigration and but little immigration, the labor situation will soon become acute.

The wise man will be the one who now lays out his entire campaign to utilize to the fullest extent every labor-saving machine available for his factory, his farm or his home.-Manufacturers' Record.

All the country papers are receiving medals "made from captured German cannon," according to the War Department certificate that comes along, for their patriotic efforts in Liberty Loan drives. The fact that the medals are made of some soft, white metal, while cannons are usually made of dark, hard stuff should not discourage the country editors. They shouldn't expect too much from the War Department.-Havre Parsons, in Topeka Capital.

"Y Retraining Wounded Doughboys.

The most complete and modern camp organization in the United States for the retraining of wounded soldiers is at Camp Dix, New Jersey, where a school has been established by the Y. M. C. A. with the co-operation of the army. Here a soldier who has been incapacitated for his former vocation, or the man who wants to make a new start, is given, free of charge, a thorough course of instruction in his chosen field, under trained technicians and with the most modern equipment, so that when his cure is complete, and his discharge is given him, he is ready to face life and a new Job with confidence. The men in this photograph are learning automobile mechanics, one of the most popular courses offered. Practically all of the wrecked cars, sectioned models and separate parts have been donated by manufacturers to the school, which is operated by the Y. M. C. A. Wireless operating, shoe repairing, talloring, sign lettering, stenography and typewriting also are offered at Dix and are much in demand by soldiers who have lost a leg, or possibly both legs. Farming is taught in a short, practical course, especially designed for shall-shock patients and soldiers who are nervous and tired after the strain of the trenches. In all, about a dozen different trades are taught at this "Y" school; and in addition to these, the three R's.

REJECTED BY ARMY, WON D. S. C. AS "Y" WORKER

His eyes were not good enough for the army but they served Thomas W. Wilbor, Jr., of New Britain, Conn. very well, after all, for he discovered when he went to war in a Y. M. C. TELLS OF THE HERO DEAD.

Defines Women Canteen Workers as "Honest-to-God American Girls."

DAYING a high tribute to the work of the various war welfare agencies serving with A. E. F., Secretary of War Newton D. Baker, who returned recently from a tour of inspection and investigation of our army in France and the occupied portion of Germany, has made a public statement with reference to the magnitude and accomplishments of the Young Men's Christian Association overseas, which, in the words of the secretary of war, "by reason of its longer establishment, its larger experiences and its larger facilities, had the greater part of this work to do, especially

This statement was made by Secretary Baker in connection with the awarding of the Croix de Guerre to three Y. M. C. A. workers who served in France. At the request of Dr. John R. Mott, general secretary of the National War Work Council, Y. M. C. A., made recently to the war department, there is an official investigation and survey of the Red Triangle work with the A. E. F. overseas now under way. Secretary Baker gave high praise to its work from his own personal observation during the war and since the signing of the armistice.

"The Y. M. C. A. has represented the heart of America and has carried to solcampaign to assist the War Risk Insurance Division in this work.

The "Y.'s" part of the job will be to explain the system to the men in camp and station, to hold conferences, and in every other way possible to bring the government scheme, which is extremely attractive as an insurance proposition, before men in uniform. All of the "Y" work along this line will be under the direct supervision of District Insurance Officers of the Military. Moving pictures, bulletin boards, lectures, personal conferences, will all tell the insurance story in "Y" huts throughout the Eastern Department. The government has been enormously handicapped in the insurance division by the neglect of soldiers to take any action on the conversion of policies. diers abroad our affections and our ideals for them," said Secretary Baker. "I do not know if I can convey to those who have not had the opportunity to see what went on there any adequate idea of the character of that service, and the appreciation which the war department and the army of the United States feel for the service rendered by the Y. M. C. A.,

both at home and overseas."

For the 11,229 Y. M. C. A, women and men workers sent overseas up to April 10, Secretary Baker has only words of praise. "Honest-to-God" Americans, he calls them, using the language of our soldiers. Seventy-five of these volunteer, non-combatant workers are buried "over there," in their army khaki. Fourteen were killed by shell fire in action, two of whom were "Y" canteen workers-Amer-

Of the part the Y. M. C. A. played in aiding morale and keeping healthy and happy our two millions of soldiers overseas, he said: "When we survey this superb army which is now coming home, with its broadened shoulders, bronzed cheeks, robust health, spiendid nerve, and high spirit that comes with great accomplishment we must remember that among the formative influences that went into it and made it possible was this social spirit which was carried from home to the front line trenches, which shared the privations and dangers, was an integral part of the army; for in 'No Man's Land,' where the shells fell thick and fast, there are the graves of American soldiers and the graves of the 'Y' workers, side by side, not separated in their work, not separated in their faith, not separated in spirit, not separated in their sacrifices. finally united in their last resting place.

"They were at the front in the very front line trenches, over which shrapnel burst and over which aeroplanes hovered. Under machine-gun fire one could find the American dougbhoy at his listening post and very often alongside of him the Y. M. C. A. man with his books, magazines, papers and his little aids and comforts, which were carried to the very edge of 'No Man's Land.'"

There were 2,891 American women Y. M. C. A. canteen workers and theatrical entertainers sent overseas up to April 10, and Secretary Baker glorifies these selfsacrificing workers, declaring they have the love and full respect of our American soldier manhood.

"In the huts the Y. M. C. A. man and woman were found—that extraordinary beautiful thing which the Y. M. C. A. sent over and which the doughboy learned to call an 'Honest-to-God American Girl.'

"Sometimes her hair was streaked with gray, and there was the relationship of mother and son, but ordinarily the relationship was the tender relationship of brother and sister. I have had these fine girls say, 'Mr. Secretary, I live with a regiment of soldiers fifteen miles from any other woman who can speak English, and although I have been with that regiment a month, I have never heard one mar swear in my presence.

"I asked, 'But do you always feel safe in such a desolate place?'

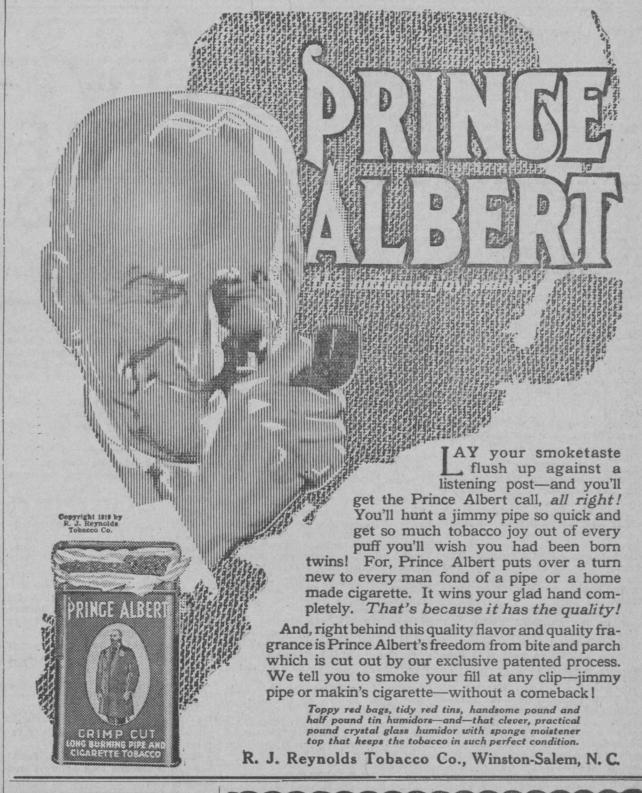

"She replied, with a laugh, 'When I lie down at night the doughboys voluntarily post a guard around my tent, and I am never disturbed until reveille in the morn-of the work of the Y. M. C. A. on troopships, in the overseas training camps and in evacuating the wounded Secretary Baker says: "As I crossed the Atlantic during the war, through the danger zone, I found the Y. M. C. A. worker on the ship taking his place beside the soldier. When that hour was over on all these ships, coming and going, these agents of the high social purpose of America ministered to the sick and wounded with their amusements, magazines, books, etc., comforted entertained and advised the well.

"In the long periods of training over there the Y. M. C. A. workers were constantly found organizing amusements, aiding men in corresponding with their families and friends at home, giving counsel and advice in the embarrassments that arose in the daily life of the soldier, ministering to them by distribution of such istering to them by distribution of such things as could be provided by the generous funds of the people of America, welcoming the incoming soldier and giving the outgoing soldier Godspeed." To the splendid work of these various war welfare agencies is very largely due the fact, said Secretary Baker, that "no army of any size or nationality, including army of any size or nationality, including our own, ever before in the history of mankind has had such a record of health, cleanliness and high idealism of purpose. There were assembled about these soldiers not only influences of home and of neighborhood, but the great organized agencies for dealing with life of the young."

Several large concerns are making alcohol from cheap molasses brought from the West Indies. This molasses, which is uneatable, is known as "black strap." The internal revenue chemists have been able, however, to ferment it and to obtain not only alcohol but to so use the residue that they get glycerin.

Four lots of "black strap" of 1,000 gallons each subjected to the new process turned out a very excellent quality of glycerin. There are 100 gallons of this clear dynamite glycerin, as it is called, now on exhibition in the treasury department. Samples of it treated with nitric acid by a wellknown firm of explosive makers, at the request of the government, produced as good a nitro-glycerin as the market affords.

Nitro-glycerin when incorporated with pulp or other inert substance becomes dynamite. Thus out of the simple sweets of the sugar bowl comes forth the strength which will rend the

MIXED COWPEAS AS FORAGE CROP

Quantity of 1918 Crop Harvested for Seed Is Reported Much Less Than Normal.

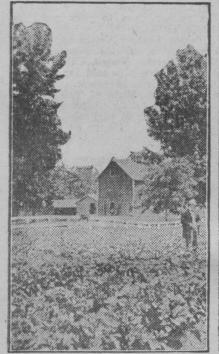

VARIETY IS OF IMPORTANCE

Whippoorwill Is Good General Purpose Pea and Is More Generally Grown Than Any Other-Groit Is High Yielding.

(Prepared by the United States Depart-

It is well to take stock of the seed and varieties of cowpeas desired and to obtain quotations and samples. The quantity of the 1918 crop of cowpeas harvested for seed is reported much less than normal. It is hardly possible that prices will be much lower than those prevailing now.

The variety to be selected is of much importance, depending not only on locality, but on the use to be made of the crop. Where the crop is desired for forage or turning under for green manure, mixed cowpeas answer the purpose and are to be had at a less cost than single varieties. The Whippoorwill is a good general purpose pea and perhaps is more generally grown than any other sort. The. Groit is one of the highest yielders, both for forage and for seed, and is adapted to a wide range of conditions. For early varieties, the Early Buff, New Era, Whippoorwill, and Early Blackeye sorts and Groit are most suitable. The later varieties are better adopted for forage and better food are the varieties of Blackeye, Cream, Gallivant, Conch, and some of the Crowder varieties. Ordinary varieties of cowpeas are severely attacked by eelworms or nematodes, which infest most of the lighter soils in the South and cause root knot of many crop plants and weeds. To plant such varieties on land infested with the nematode is a dangerous practice, since they will either die prematurely or produce lowered again and amid the boisterous poor yields, and will permit the nematodes to reproduce to such an extent that the next crop may be more severely damaged than the first. Cer- hands and knees on the stage and tain varieties, however, the Iron, crept into the wing. Brabham, and Monetta-are highly resistant to root knot. Therefore, whenever the planting of cowpeas on fields that are or may be infested by the cause of root knot is contemplated, special care should be taken to plant only the Iron, Brabham, or Monetta varieties.

Be Sure of Seed.

To be certain of having seed of these, the supply of which is limited, farmers should take steps to procure them at once. It is of paramount importance that unmixed seed of these varieties be secured. If Iron, Brabham, or Monetta seed mixed with those of susceptible varieties, such as Taylor, Whippoorwill, or Early Buff, are planted on infested land which contains the eelworms, considerable losses may follow. In addition, the nematodes will be largely increased by having favorable cowpea plants on which to live, and, consequently, subsequent crops planted on the same land are more subject to injury. Many so-called failures of the resistant varieties to withstand root knot are due to planting mixed seed

As far as practicable, obtain seed from local sources. Such seed seem to be as well, if not better adapted, than those brought in from other re-

Ceylonese Reap and Grind Grain in Much the Same Way as in Biblical Times,

At Kandy, Ceylon, the entire method of planting, reaping and grinding grain is conducted as a religious ceremony. The work of carrying the sheaves is allotted to the women, and it is a picturesque sight to see them bearing away the huge bundles of sheaves on their heads. At eventide teams of buffalo as innocent of muzzles as though subject to Mosaic law, are brought to the threshing floor and driven over this paddy to the accompaniment of a community chorus. When well trodden by the herd, the buffaloes are driven away to their respective swamp wallows. The straw is now removed by the women from the paddy, and the latter fanned free of rubbish. The grain is next tossed and fanned on winnowing trays, entirely by hand. The method takes some days. When completed, and ready for the "granary" it is stored in large urns called "bissa," which are protected by a thick coating of mortar. The "bissa" looks like a small thatched cottage, but it is really a miniature silo. When needed for breads or curry, the grain is ground by the women on huge flat stones much like the "metate" of the Mexicans, another round stone resembling a rolling pin in shape, being used to crush the grain. It is then cooked in various ways.

EACH HAS INDIVIDUAL COLOR

Cities by No Means Alike in Hues Which Attract the Eye of the Traveler.

"Have you ever noticed how cities sometimes seem to have their own special colors?" asks Julian Street in "American Adventures," the book in which he and Wallace Morgan recorded, in words and pictures, what they think is the most picturesque part of our country—the South.

"Paris is white and green-even more so, I think, than Washington,"

Mr. Street continues. "Chicago is gray; so is London usually, though I have seen it buff at the beginning of a heavy fog. New York used to be a brown sandstone city, but is now turning to one of creamcolored brick and tile; Naples is brilliant with pink and blue and green and white and yellow; while as for Baltimore, her old houses and her new are, as Baedeker puts it, of 'cheerful red brick'-not always, of course, but often enough to establish the color of red brick as the city's predominating hue. And with the red-brick house-particularly the older onesgo clean white marble steps, on the bottom one of which, at the side, may usually be found an old-fashioned iron 'scraper,' doubtless left over from the time (not very long ago) when the city payements had not reached their present excellence."

Turn Between the Acts.

One night the father of Kitty Stesuited to Southern conditions. The phens, who afterwards became countess of Essex, went on the stage between the acts, and was standing close to the drop scene, with his back to it, when the stage manager gave the signal for the raising of the curtain. Among the sorts most suitable for Slowly the cloth went up, and as it rose the coat-tails of Mr. Stephens became involved in the roller, and feeling himself caught, he began to struggle for freedom. His efforts were unavailing, however, and when the roller reached the top there was he in full view of the audience, suspended by his coat-tails, his head and feet downward, his figure resembling a half-open knife. Then the stage hands became alive to the situation, and the drop-scene was merriment of the audience, the sounds of hilarity increasing as the victim, almost black in the face, landed on his

Use Preventives.

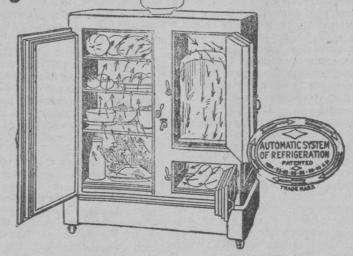

Loss of time, money and health often can be prevented by the use of some simple, inexpensive preventive measure. At all times, especially during these days of influenza you should never allow yourself to remain in a run-down physical condition. If attacked by disease, while your resistance is low you may pay for it with a long illness or possibly with life itself.

Most people think a doctor's only use is to be sent for in case of emergency, like a fireman, and be brought running with his pillbox in hand just in the nick of time to cheat the undertaker. Many a first-class funeral could have been prevented by a pill taken at the right time. Go to a doctor once in a while. Let him thump your chest bone, gaze on the scenic mysteries of your tongue, count your pulse and telephone your lungs. Neglect of health is a common form of thriftlessness .-Thrift Magazine.

GIVE GRENADE BANKS TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

Millions to be Distributed by Treasury Department to Encourage Happy Habit of Thirft.

Hand grenades made by the United States government to bomb the Huns to destruction are now to be used to boom thrift. Millions of the little machines of destruction, with the explos ives carefully removed, are to be given to the school children of the United States to encourage the saving aabit. The grenades are being converted into miniature savings banks. They will hold pennies and nickels and dimes which can be converted into Thrift Stamps. The Thrift Stamps in turn can be converted into War Savings Stamps.

Distribution of the grenades in the several Federal Reserve Districts will be left in the hands of the district Savings Directors. In this district the quarters in Richmond, Va., has so ar-

HAND GRENADE SAVINGS BANK ranged that a grenade bank will be awarded to each child, who, during the vacation period, earns enough money to buy a War Savings Stamp.

Some bank in every community will lend each child a grenade and at the close of the vacation period the child will return it, with the money it contains, to the bank. There the money will be counted. If the child has saved enough to buy a War Savings Stamp the grenade-bank will be his, but in all events the cash must be invested in Thrift Stamps if not enough has been saved to pay for a War Savings Stamp. The grenade-banks are of considerable value and will be splendid souvenirs of the great war, and the War Loan Organization of the Fifth Federal Reserve District is anx. ious to place them in the hands of as many children as possible.

BRITISH THRIFT.

The British War Savings Committee has become a permanent institution in England and the folowing declaration has been issued explaining the English attitude oward thrift:

"Quite as important, both as a source of revenue and as a social movement, is the restraint of luxury, and growth of economy and simplicity of life among the well-todo. Otherwise goods and services will be wasted. War savings applies to all classes and appeals to all incomes."

HOW SAVINGS HABIT HELPS EVERYBODY

Money Invested This Year in Thrift Stamps Returns in Five Years Vastly Increased.

On New Year's day 1923, there will begin a remarkable series of dividend payments to American people Hundreds of millions of dollars of War Savings Stamps sold during 1918 will then be redeemable. On each News Year's day thereafter for a number of years there will undoubtedly be huge returns to the American people of the money borrowed with in-

These great dividend days bring American bankers new opportunities and also responsibilities. How can new thrift habits be linked to thrift institutions? How can this money, the product of thrift, be mobilized for further work?

Already the bankers are working War Loan Organization, with head- with the Treasury Department to continue thrift habits. For people who save money there is a wide range of thrift institutions that will take charge of funds, put them to work safely, and return good earnings. As the government plans to borrow by general education of thrift in every kind, so the banks and thrift institutions can aid the government by encouraging general thrift and building bigger business themselves.

One of the first steps to be taken by bankers is that of spreading information about banks, life insurance, building and loan associations, federal farm loans, and all other thrift institutions. The best way to meet Uncle Sam's borrowing needs is to promote thrift on the broadest possible lines.

Every dollar deposited in a savings bank becomes available for national finance. Every life insurance policy sold is equivalent to an indirect loan to the government. Every obligation assumed by thrifty people such as a building mortgage is a stimulus to production and saving, and therefore, as much a national service as the direct purchase of government securities. In placing these matters clearly before everybody in his community the banker will live up to his opportunities and his responsibilities in the new thrift movement. When the billion dollar New Year Days arrive he will be ready.

TELLS HOW SHE BUYS WAR SAVINGS STAMPS

Woman Tells How by Intelligent 8av-ings Plan She Is Able to Accumulate Money Which Was Formerly Wasted.

"Save while the money is warm" is the motto of a woman who has estab lished a reputation both for herself and her family by the number of War Savings Stamps she bought without apparently stinting in the least. Here is her system.

"The only way to save is to save. When I have actually saved a quarter I put it into a Thrift Stamp without delay. If I save that quarter on one thing and then spend it carelessly for something else, I have not saved any real money.

"For example the other day I went down town expecting to pay $10 for a pair of special shoes. To my surprise, I found there was a sale that day, and got the very pair of shoes I wanted for $7.75. I had saved $2.26. But how to keep it saved. I knew that if I simply regarded it mentally as saving, before the end of the month it would be spent miscellaneously. I went right down stairs in the store and bought nine Thrift Stamps and stuck those quarters in the Thrift card where they could not get away before the end of the month.

"I do the same thing when I have saved a single quarter or half dollar, and I am seriously thinking of getting a little penny bank to hold saved penaies or dimes until they grow to Thrift Stamp size. What is more, I am get ting a whole lot of fun out of this most fascinating game, the game of "Getting Ahead."

The girl with the mop of fair hair and the china-blue eyes laid down the dollar on the counter and said to the shopman: "All right, I'll call in for It tonight and pay the balance." She nodded to the man and left the little store. That was about ten minutes before Joe Annerly happened along.

Joe was hurrying home from work and as he passed the little old "antique" shop he hesitated. It was raining and Joe hurried on that account, not because he was particularly anxlous to arrive at his solitary bachelor apartment-nothing much to hurry home for when there is no one when you get there!

So Joe stopped and passed in among the antiques, or pieces of second-hand furniture, as they really were, and inquired the price of the elgant brass clock he had seen in the window.

Fifty dollars! No, fifty dollars was too much. He didn't really want it,

He was just turning to go when a picture hanging on the wall at the back of the store caught his glance. It was just one of those colored lithographs which, in a good frame, look so well hanging on a parlor wall, and It was enough to give a throb of homesickness to Joe, for that very picture, for an exact replica of it, had hung on the wall of his mother's parlor back in the old home town. There is nothing so reminiscent as the sight of a

"I'll Call for It Tonight." picture which has been a familiar ob-sect in the years of long ago.

store and asked the price.

"Sorry, mister," the man said, "but that picture is sold."

"Sold?" questioned Joe. "That sells me, too. But why is it hanging there If it's sold?"

"Well," said the man, "I guess I sh'd have taken it down. A young lady came in here not ten minutes ago and paid a deposit on it. She's fetching it this evening." And suiting the action to the word, he lifted down the picture and laid it to one side. Joe turned away disappointed. He wanted that picture—it was just like a breath from the old home days. And some girl had beaten him to it-just his luck. He went into a "quicklunch" and ate some supper-say, but a lonely man does have to eat anything that's handed to him !- and went home to his apartment-bedroom and

How should he spend the evening? A movie show? Shucks! What's the idea of watching a lot of ginks making love all over the screen? Nix on that, He was in no mood of lovemaking. The loss of that picture was still affecting him!

While Joe was in this frame of mind a certain young lady, of whose existence he was not even aware, was feeling quite elated. She had got back home from the office, and after eating her supper she was going to extract a certain number of dollars from a certain private cache and was going after that picture she had paid the deposit on. Funny how the same thing can have such opposite effects on diffierent people. But then, of course, the girl had not lost the picture!

When Joe put on his hat that evening and set out to try and forget the old home days, his steps seemed naturally to bend themselves in the direction of the antique shop. The rain had stopped and a fresh wind was blowing He was still feeling homesick on account of that picture, and was just wondering what had become of those friends of his boyhood, Bill Smith and Larry Jones and that freckled-faced Red, when, on turning a corner, he was violently bunted in the middle by some one carrying a bulky and re markably hard parcel. Joe staggered from the sudden impact. He stooped to pick up his hat, and then looked to see what had caused it. Instantly he realized what had happened. He had met the girl with the picture! As though to confirm his suspicions, the wind playfully whipped up a corner o the loose wrapping paper, and th glimpse he got proved him to be cor- CHARLATAN HAS "SOFT SNAP" rect. Without taking his eyes off the coveted picture he addressed the girl.

"Would you mind if I took a peep, a last peep at it?" he asked pleadingly. The girl nodded. Evidently this man must be the one-time owner. She thrust the picture toward him, and Joe gazed at is long and earnestly. "Guess you've seen it before somewhere?" she asked presently.

"I should say I have! Gee," he muttered, drinking in the familiar scene. "I wonder what has become of Bill Smith and Larry Jones and that freckled, red-faced kid?"

A smile unseen by Joe lighted the

"And Effie Farmer?" she suggested. For a moment Joe wondered if his ears had deceived him. Then, wheeling round on her, he asked amazed: "Say, were you ever in my home

"I kind of think I must have been, one time," the girl answered reflectively. "I kind of think there was a boy called Joe Annerley lived there. But I can't be just sure."

She turned her head away—this man was staring at her so rudely. He seemed to have been stricken dumb, He just stared! He stared so long that she simply had to break the silence. But it was the man who spoke first after all. He had often wondered about the little girl who used to come to his mother's house, the two blond pigtails hanging down her back. But that was years ago. She must be quite grown up by this time.

"Did you know Effie?" he asked tensely.

The girl nodded. She still held her head averted, and Joe wished she would turn it into the zone of light made by the street lamp. But she did not seem interested. She had tucked the picture under her arm again and moved as if to pass on. Joe was desperate. In all the long years he had spent in the giant city he had never felt quite the loneliness that oppressed him tonight.

"Say," he asked wistfully, "do you ever hear from Effle these days?" If only he could get this girl to talk a little while it would help some. But he got no answer. Evidently she resented his persistence. Joe felt ashamed of himself and started to make matters worse with stammering apologies and exclamations. He didn't want to be rude, but he did want to hear news of the home folks and he wondered if Effie Farmer was married and where she was living. He-

At last the girl did turn. She lifted her face to where the light fell fully on it. A smile was on her lips-a smile composed of mischief, of petulance and not a little happiness.

"Joe Annerley," she said, "I think you are very dull. If you happen to want to know, my name is Effie

That did it! Joe took one good long last stare right into the girl's face, then, seizing the bundle from beneath her arm, laid it on the sidewalk. He opened his arms, then closed them again around the form of Effie Farmer.

"Effie, darling," he whispered, holding her close, "we've just got to share that picture-got to!"

And strangely enough when the picture again hung on a parlor wall-their parlor wall.

STEAK HONORED WITH SALUTE

Acts of Mexican Soldiers Drew Witty Epigram From Imprisoned British Soldier.

Col. I. Thord-Gray, an "old-timer" of the British army, now chief of intelligence with the Canadian expeditionary force in Siberia, once was arrested in Hermosilla, Sonora, Mexico, where he joined the constitutional revolutionists, with whom he later served as a cavalry commander. The arrest was an error, but Gray didn't know it, neither did the Mexican captain in charge of an adobe house which served as a military jail. Colonel Gray demanded food after an elapse of 12 hours. He was brought a piece of half-raw steak wrapped in butcher's paper-no plate, knife or fork.

With an oath, the Britisher threw the steak, paper and all, out of doors The guard, a squad of West Coast Indians, was lined up on either side of the entrance. The Mexican soldier. like the horse, excels at sleeping while standing. As the steak and brown paper rustled by the guard awoke, and each man presented arms. The prisoner finally got word to a friend, who arrived soon after with a fine meal and a bottle of champagne. The wine had been much jostled in the carriage, and when the wire was cut the cork popped out with a noise like a pistol shot and the champagne was sprayed up to the ceiling. At this the guard at the door awoke the second time, and each man stepped back and threw a cartridge into the barrel of his Mauser.

"The Mexican makes the best soldier in the world-when he is asleep," said Gray, "always ready to give honors to a piece of steak or battle with a bottle of wine."

Constantinople Street Scribe Finds Easy Dupes Among Those Who Seek His Services.

Often in a niche in the wall of a Constantinople mosque or in a deep inset window close to the ground there sits, cross-legged, perhaps with a pair of spectacles on his nose, a person distinguished above the mass, a man of letters. In front of him stands a little desk for holding papers and a book or two, a wooden pen, an ink bottle, and some sand for blotting. In writing, however, the sage rolls the paper upon his finger, requiring no other rest for letter or for arm.

A contributor to Asia Magazine, who is familiar with the ways of the near East, surmises that such a conversation as the following frequently takes place over the letter writer's table:

"From whom?" asks the wise man of the women, who have humbly presented a letter.

"Our husband, effendi." "Most beloved of my wives," commences the flattering reader. "I am well. I wish you are well. The weather is well. The cattle are well . Here, pausing a moment and studying the paper closely, he inquires: "What s your husband's name?" "Almoon, effendi."

"Ah, yes, Almoon. Your husband's writer does not form his characters

Satisfied, the women pay two metalliks and depart.

Some weeks later they return with another letter, and similar questions and answers pass between them and the old impostor. But when they appear before him again in still a few more weeks, the crafty fellow recognizes them and immediately begins to

"My beloved wives, I hope you are well, I am-"

"But, effendi," the women interrupt him gently, "this letter, we thought, was from some one else; our husband has returned."

"Ah, you should have told me so!" The scribe looks at them reproachfully; so reproachfully that they murmur an apology and depart.-Youth's Companion.

WORLD'S FIRST STEAM FERRY

Was Established by John Stevens in 1811, Running Between Hoboken and New York.

The first ferry in the world was established in 1811 by John Stevens between Hoboken and New York. Taking up the study of steam in 1789, it is recorded, he took out patents on marine engines three years later, and in 1798 completed his first boat, successfully operating it on the Hudson river. In 1804 a second boat was equipped with two screws, and the style of propeller designed by him was for many years preferred above later inventions. Though this was the first application of steam to the screw-propeller, yet this design was the identical short, four-threaded screw used today. It is remarkable that this form of propulsion was not practically introduced until 1837. His original steamboat also contained the first condens-America, and a multi-tubular boiler. In 1807 he built the sidewheel steamhost Phoenix which was a few days behind Fulton's vessel in attaining the legal speed, and was thus shut out from the Hudson river: but he boldly steamed her around to the Delaware by sea, being the first to navigate the ocean with the new motive power.

Old Roman Plumbers.

There were plumbers in ancient Rome, and they knew their business well. The great baths (most important and extensive of all the public buildings) were supplied with water by elaborate piping systems. Along the principal streets ran lines of tall pillars of light construction, carrying pipes through which running water was supplied to the dwellings on either side.

When the ancestors of the presentday Germans had destroyed Rome, and with it the Roman civilization, the plumbing art was lost. It stayed lost until within recent years, and now we are reviving it with some strictly modern improvements.

Wind-Driven Dynamos.

An account was recently given in Ingenioren by Mr. H. C. Vogt of some experience of the utilization of wind power for driving dynamos. The mills described had sails 100 feet in diameter and an area of 3,930 square feet. With a mean wind velocity of 24 feet per second 290 horse power was obtained. Power is transmitted from the main shaft by a series of cogwheels with the spokes in tension; rope and chain gearing were found not to answer. By means of gearing the speed of the main shaft, 121/2 revolutions per minute, is increased to 1,500 revolutions per minute for the dynamo.-Scientific American.

Be Ready for Advancement.

There are men who labor for decades without advancing. They are good workmen, but they know nothing beyond the narrow confines of the work they are doing. They have no interest in the problems of their work, no desire to improve production through the discovery of better methods. And they wonder why others pass them on the upward climb. It is

THRONE HER PRIZE

Lucky Swimmer Ruler of Ancient City for Year.

Every Girl in Byblos, Syria, Had Opportunity to Compete in Aquatic Contest, Held Annually.

The ivory throne of the high priestess or oracle in the temple of Byblos might be won by any girl in the ancient city, no matter how wealthy or how poor her parents. The position was open to the society queen and the fisher alike, and once seated, she was in reality the ruler of that Syrian city for a year.

In the old days the city of Byblos, or Gabal, was famous for the art of its stone cutters, and in the Book of Kings these Giblites are mentioned as the stone "squarers" employed by King Solomon upon the temple. But it was mainly for the annual festivities held at Byblos, and known as the Mysteries of Adonis, that the city was most famed. There was located there a splendid temple to Adonis, and in the spring of each year hundreds of persons from all parts of Syria and the adjacent lands journeyed to the city to witness the celebration of the mys-

The soil of the land at the headwater of the river is of red clay, and when the spring rains began to fall in the hills the water of the river became red. The priests said Adonis had been slain. The myth was variously told, but briefly it narrated the story of Adonis being killed while hunting and his restoration to life by Jupiter at the prayer of Venus.

When the water of the river became red the people began to lament the death of Adonis. Streets and houses were draped with mourning and the people went about weeping and lamenting. This lasted a week. Then a great funeral procession formed and a wooden image of the god was carried. to the river, where it was set adrift to float out to sea.

Then began the unique and interesting part of the ceremonies. The young women of the city assembled along the seashore and all day gazed out over the waves. Sometimes several days were consumed in this part of the ceremony for the watch must be kept until an expected message was received from the waves. Finally, far out, one might behold an object bobbing up and down on the rollers. As soon as it was discovered a great shout went up from the girls, and all plunged into the sea, each striving to be the first to reach and recover the object, an earthen jar in which the message that the god lived again was supposed to come.

Several hundred young women, wildly swimming out at sea, was the unusual sight, for to the first girl to grasp the jar fell the honor of being the high priestess or oracle of the god during the coming year.

The lucky swimmer, on returning to the shore, was grasped by the hands of the crowd and borne in state upon an ivory throne to the great temple, where she was seated with solemn ceremony before the image of the god.

This swimmer might be the daughter of the wealthiest merchant and the leader of society, or might have spent all of her life in the hut of a poor fisherman. No matter what her former social position may have been, from the moment she recovered the jar with tts message until another took her place at the close of the year, this girl was consulted about all matters of importance that were of interest to the people. Once seated upon the ivory throne the daughters of the rich came to consult her "mystic wisdom" and merchants planning voyages to lands of which she had never heard would appear with choice gifts. Nothing could occur without her sanction and her words were final. Then, at the close of the year, another was seated in her place. When the water of the river began to turn red the ivory throne was vacated. She, who for a year had ruled supreme and spoken the words of the god became a common attendant in the great temple and stood quietly in the great assembly, amid the ascending clouds of incense before the image of the god, to see another seated on the prophetic, ivory throne.

Have Patience With Yourself.

Sometimes it keeps a fellow busy having patience with himself. He knows himself capable of doing a given work. He craves for the chance and when it comes he makes a mess of it. Or it may be that he wants to be exceptionally calm under a given test and he can't control himself and betrays his fears. Oh, it's trying all right, but you will come out on the credit side if you can have patience. Let folks laugh at you if they will. You stick to your job and see that you give the old man the best of self-management. Remember he's your hardest proposition and more likely than anybody else to take advantage of you. It will try your patience to be patient with him, but it will pay. Instead of wallowing in self-disgust just face the facts honestly and apply the helps where they are needed most. You will get a man out of him yet.-Exchange.

WHEN AVIATOR "STEPS DOWN"

There Are Some Few Things Ha Misses, but, Take It All in All. He's Not Sorry.

"No, sir, I'm not feelin' like any eagle in a cage. I haven't any feathers, and the ground's my natural habitat, if you understand me. A fellow has two feet for walking and he can use his arms for swimming, but you don't see any wings sproutin' from his shoulders, do you?"

A young "shavetail," recently released from the air service, was talking. His face still bore the tan of a southern sun and he hadn't yet dropped the habit of "policing" his pockets or snapping his hand to a salute when he met an officer.

"But you know, it's sort o' hard, this sittin' into the old job. I'm findin' a lot of dust-littered corners in my attic and I'm spendin' most of my time brushing away the cobwebs.

"As I told you, I'm no bloomin' eagle, but there 're times, 'long in the middle of the afternoon, when I'd trade my chances of future salvation for one little ride-just to swing into the cockpit, give 'er the gun and feel the old bus bump along over the ground a way, then pull 'er back on her haunches and take the air with a zoom.

"But this gettin' back into harness has other features than that of polishing up the rusted machinery in my dome. I'd been looking forward to the time I could shuck my uniform and get back into civics ever since the armistice was signed, but one day without the tight-buttoned breeches and leather puttees, and I was ready to go back to the old cords. The wind whistled 'Home, Sweet Home' round the bottom of my B. V. D.'s and I feel like an orphan child alone in a cruel, cold world. The next day I was out in my uniform, and since then I've been shedding it a piece at a time.

"And then I'm missin' the insignia. Those little silver wings were the 'open sesame' to anything from a stag party to a commercial club banquet. They were good for a dinner invitation or a bank loan.

"But it's good to get that 'settled' feelin' now-to know a fellow's life is his own to live, to feel he is a complete unit and not just an atom. And you can tell the world the army does this for a fellow: It sends him back to his job filled with vim, vigor and vitality. He feels he has up enough steam to last a lifetime."-Kansas City

Disagree on Best Working Time. Most people, bound by iron-bound tradition in the matter of work hours, have their own ideas as to what are really the best hours for work, and envy that fortunate class, the authors, for their privilege of arranging their schedules to suit their own convenience. And it is a curious fact that many writers prefer greatly to work late at night.

Longfellow worked until two or three in the morning, preferring the stillness of the night to the noisiness of the day, for his hours of toil. Mrs. Oliphant, also had the habit of doing most of her writing late at night, and in the "wee-sma' hours." Booth Tarkington gives his mornings to tennis and spends the afternoons and evenings at work: and H. G. Wells also prefers burning the midnight oil.

While on the other hand, Thackeray preferred to work early in the morning, preferably before ten. George Bernard Shaw says the best working hours are breakfast to lunch, in the open air if possible, and states that "All night work is drunken work," and Sir Gilbert Parker is another advocate of getting up early and doing most of his work before lunch.

China's Mineral Wealth.

In the light of the constantly predicted exhaustion of the world's coal supply the following note from the United States commerce reports is of interest:

"For the past 20 years the world has heard marvelous stories of China's vast wealth of coal, yet China imports more than it exports. The figures for 1917 show 1,000,000 tons exported and 1,400,000 tons imported, yet, according to V. K. Ting, director of the geological survey of China, a minimum estimate of China's wealth in coal indicates that it is sufficient to supply the world's consumption, at its present rate of 1,000,000,000 tons a year, for a period of 1,000 years. Probably no other statement made concerning China would demonstrate more forcibly than this the backwardness of the country in modern industrial development. Coal is known to occur in every province in China.

Paper From Dead Leaves. Owing to the scarcity of other materials, paper was made in France during the war from dead leaves. The leaves are crushed, then the powdered portion is carefully separated and the fibrous ribs and veins turned into pulp. These are made ready for use by simply treating with lye, washing and bleaching. For cattle food purposes the leaf powder may be mixed with molasses and made into cake. For fuel, the powder may be compressed into briquets, or it may be converted into comparatively pure porous carbon by destructive distilla-

LESSON FOR JUNE 15

PRAYER.

LESSON TEXTS-Matt. 6:5-15; Luke 18: GOLDEN TEXT—Be careful for nothing; but in everything by prayer and sup-plication with thanksgiving let your re-quests be made known unto God.—Phil.

ADDITIONAL MATERIAL—Gen. 18:29-83; Ex. 32:31, 82; Matt. 26:20-46; Luke 11: 1-18: John 17:1-26; I Thess. 5:17; James 5; 16-18. PRIMARY TOPIC—Talking With the Heavenly Father,
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Teaches How to Pray.

INTERMEDIATE TOPIC-Prayer a Privilege and a Duty.

SENIOR AND ADULT TOPIC—The Christian Conception of Prayer.

1. The Proper Motive in Prayer (Matt. 6:5-8).

The righteousness which counts with God is doing right deeds with the right motive. Righteous as the act of praying is it may be an abomination unto God: 1. If it be to be seen and heard of men (v. 5). Much of the public praying is false—when there is more. thought of what the people think than of what God thinks. In praying the individual is dealing with God, therefore if he be engaged in it to attract men's attention it is blasphemous. It is not wrong to pray on the street corner and in the synagogues; that which is condemned is doing it to be seen

2. If there be the use of vain repetitions (v. 7). This does not mean that we should ask but once, for we have examples of Christ and of Paul praying three times for the same thing (Matt. 25; 39-46; II Cor. 12:7-8), but meaningless repetitions as done by the heathen. The reason assigned is that "your Father knoweth what things ye have need of before ye ask him" (v. 8). God is pleased with true prayer (v. 6). We should have a real desire for fellowship with God. Since prayer is a transaction of the soul with God, we should go to our inner chamber, where only God can hear, and there commune with him.

II. The Model Prayer (Matt. 6:9-15). 1. Right relationship. "Our Father." Only those who have become children of God by faith in Jesus Christ (Gal. 8:26) can pray aright.

2. Right attitude. "Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come." When we realize that we have been delivered from the power of darkness and translated into the kingdom of his dear Son (Col. 1:13) by being made the children of God we cannot help pouring out our souls to him in gratitude and praise, longing for the coming of his

3. Right spirit (1) That of trust which looks to him for daily bread. (2) That of love which results in the forgiveness of others. God will not Hsten to the prayer of the one who has an unforgiving spirit. (3) That of holiness which moves us to pray not to be led in temptation, and longs to be delivered from the evil one.

4. The ascription of praise. "Thine is the kingdom, the power, and the glory forever." III. Persistency in Prayer (Luke 18:

1-8). The teaching of this parable is that men ought always to pray and not to faint (v. 1). The context shows that praying should be the business of the church while the Lord is absent. Having referred to the coming of the Lord at the close of the preceding chapter he uses this parable to enforce the obligation of the church under the figure of a widow crying day and night unto God. Though the unjust judge had neither fear of God nor regard for man he avenged her of her enemies. Much more, then, will the tender loving Father, God, avenge his own elect (v. 7). God is pleased with those who persistently pray, or, as popularly expressed, "pray through."

IV. The Proper Attitude in Prayer (Luke 18:9-14).

This is brought out in striking contrast by two men praying. The Pharisee's sense of self practically excluded the consciousness of God. The poor publican had a most keen sense of God, and therefore sought his mercy. The Pharisee presented personal credentials, while the publican cast himself upon God's mercy. The publican was justified, while the Pharisee was rejected. Let us come into the presence of God with humility, for God is Easy to Commit Sin. It is a great deal easier to commit a second sin than it was to commit the first, and a great deal harder to repent of a second, than it was to repent of the first.-Benjamin Which-

For One Another.

The will of God respecting us is that we shall live by each other's happiness, and life. . Men help each other by their joy, not by their sorrow. They are not intended to slay themselves for each other, but to strengthen themselves for each other. -Ruskin.

To Have Knowledge.

If we would indeed have knowledge thrive and flourish, we must water the tender plants of it with holiness .-John Smith.

THE -CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

June 15 What We Owe and How to Pay It. 2 Corinthians 8:1-15 The example, the motive and the

this Scripture lesson.

Paul was raising a fund in the Gentile churches of Macedonia for the poor folk in the church in Jerusalem. He wrote to the Christians in Corinth concerning the example afforded by the gifts of believers in Macedonia. Notwithstanding their affliction and deep poverty the Macedonian Christians had such a measure of joy that and heartened them to such an ex-tent that they gave gladly and with-out urging or teasing. In the words of verse 5, they gave beyond their power or means, and also willingly. What an example to Christians for all time is found here!

If the gifts of money and time now being contributed to the "Centenary Fund" and the "New Era Movement" and other church enterprises were given in this Spirit a great revival would result, and many thousands would be saved for God. For these Christians of Macedonia not only gave in an exemplary way of the things they had, but "first gave their own selves to the Lord" in dedication to His service.

The motive for giving is seen especially in verse 9, "For ye know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ that though he was rich yet for your sakes he became poor that ye through His poverty might be rich." He impoverished Himself; He did not merely pity us in our need. Pity does not enrich others, but giving to the point of sacrifice as He did. The principles of giving are presented in verses 12-15. There is first of all the willing mind to give according to what one has, not making excuses and saying, "If I had as much as Mr. Richman, then I would give largely." No, no, let there be a willingness to give "according to that a man hath." This leads to another principle which is that of equality. All are to share in the blessedness and responsibility of giving, so that none shall be unduly burdened.

none shall be unduly burdened. The quotation in verse 15 concerning the gathering of the manna in the wilderness illustrates the divine plan Until Mr. Wilson, no "reigning" of equality in this matter of giving.

LIGHT ON UNKNOWN LANDS

Explorer Added Greatly to World's Knowledge of Customs of Peculiar Peoples and Tribes.

Returning in April, 1917, from one of his trips, Capt. Theodore de Booy, the archeologist and explorer of previously unknown regions of Santo Domingo and Venezuela, who died in New York, brought with him a "swallow or regurgitating stick" from the Virgin islands.

The "swallow stick" was believed to have been used in worship by a West Indian priest more than 400 principles of giving are all found in years ago. It was about five inches long, and carved from the rib of a sea cow, in the image of one of the West Indian tribal gods. It was said that there were only three other such sticks in existence.

Previously unknown regions in the mountains between Venezuela and Colombia were explored by Captain De they gave liberally.

Booy. No white man had ever before entered the high and cloud-capped mountains of that country, which are inhabited entirely by Indian tribes. It took many days of difficult mountain climbing to reach the heights where the tribes live in a land of perpetual mist and cold, although within ten degrees of the equator. Captain De Booy reported that for the most part he had found the natives friendly. At the start he was chosen to lead a campaign against a neighboring tribe to obtain women and other booty. All the material results of the expedition save the women were offered him, but he declined.

The day after this opening marriage feast the bride rides to church, and the bridegroom walks. The priest who receives them in the porch reads a short sermon on their duties in the matrimonial state, and then the wedding party proceeds to the altar, where the foreheads of the high contracting parties are bound together with gold chains. The wedding festivities continue for at least three days after this, and the couple are not regarded as married until the ceremonies have been concluded. The social celebration of the wedding is carried through as conscientiously as the religious part.

What's in a Name?

Most readers are familiar with the story of the German bank in a United States city which, finding its name un popular, changed it to the "Sherman bank." Here is another example on the same lines: A popular New York city German restaurant was called the Kloster Glocke (Cloister Bell), and its front was decorated with a large bell as a sign. The name has been changed to the "Liberty Bell," and the bell of the old monastery now does duty as a replica of the one which rang out independence to the colonies.

As to Newspaper Subscriptions.

We occasionally see it stated that subscribers to newspapers, no matter how long in arrears, can be made pay, through law, for a publication, as long as they receive it. We doubt whether this is true There is no U. S. law on the subject, and we doubt whether there are many state laws specifically covering such cases. The likelihood is that law on the subject is largely confined to decisions in cases—to pregreatly, sometimes upholding liability. as stated, and sometimes not.

However, all who do continue to receive a paper, whether subscribed for or not, ought to pay for it. If it is not wanted, it should be refused—turned back to the postoffice

There is now a bill before the Illinois legislature specifically providing that without contract, or argument, to the contrary, no person shall be liable to pay for any periodical not sub-scribed for, nor for one continued beyond the time of expiration.

you?"
"Finer'n frog hair, Jurd!" triumphantly replied Gap Johnson. "Of course, my wife has been sorter puny, yur of late, and several of the children have got the measles and mumps and one thing and another, and the lightning struck the corner of the house tuther night and like to have tore the whole place to pieces, and one of the kids fell out of a tree and broke his arm, and a feller took a shot at me day before yesterday and ventilated my ear, and such as that, but I swapped for a running horse last week, and a couple of my hounds have got six pups apiece. Aw, I tell you, they can't keep a good man down !"-Kansas City Star.

Pomona Grange Resolutions.

The Pomona Grange of Carroll County, at recent meetings, passed resolutions as follows:

In favor of the Prohibition amendment to the Constitution, and opposition to rescinding the Presidential war period prohibition order.

In favor of the repeal of the Daylight Saving law, characterizing it an additional handicap in conducting farm operations.

That all farmers paint their names on mail boxes, and place same on the right hand of the road.

Why Boys Leave the Farm.

The following bit of verse may carry illumniation to some who are mystified as to why boys quit the farm home.

"Why did you leave the farm, my lad?
Why did you beat it off to town
And turn your poor old father down?
Thinkers of platform, pulpit and press
Are wallowing in deep distress;
They seek to know the hidden cause
Why farmer boys desert their pa's.
Some say they long to get a taste
Of faster life and social waste,
And some will say the silly chumps
Mistake the suit cards for their trumps
In waging fresh and germless air
Against the smoky thoroughfare.
We're all agreed the farm's the place,
So free your mind and state your case."

"Well, Stranger, since you've been so frank I'll roll aside my hazy bank,
The misty cloud of theories,
And tell you where the trouble lies;
I left my dad, his farm, his plow,
Because my calf became his cow;
I left my dad—'twas wrong, of course—
Because my colt became his horse;
I left my dad to sow and reap 4
Because my lamb became his sheep;
I dropped my hoe and stuck my fork
Because my pig became his pork;
The garden truck that I made grow
Was his to sell, but mine to hoe;
It's not the smoke in the atmosphere
Nor the taste for life that brought me here.
Please tell the platform, pulpit, press
No fear of toil or love of dress
Is driving off the farmer lads,
But just the methods of their dads."

Booze Is Not a Good Cure.

From the Ames, Iowa, Intelligencer When a man comes to you all doubled up with pain and declares he will die in your presence unless you procure him a drink of whiskey,send him to a doctor or else give him a dose of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy. There is a mistaken notion among a whole lot of people that booze is the best remedy for colic and stomach ache.
