FARMERS DEMAND THE VIEWS CONTEST ON ENGINE DECISION OF CANDIDATES.

Want to Know How They Stand on Matters Affecting Them.

The National Board of Farm organizations has issued a questionaire to prospective candidates for the Presidency, in order to place them on record concerning the interests of farmers. This is interesting, because the same plan will likely be operated by Union Labor, Prohibition and anti-Prohibition 'organizations, the Railroad employees, and likely all other strong organized interests. The questions from the farmer organization are as follows:

"Will you do your best to bring about such direct dealing between producer and consumer as will secure to the farmers a fair share of the wealth they create, reduce the cost of living to the consumer and limit or destroy the opportunity of the

"Will you do all that in you lies to secure to all farmers and consum-ers the full, free and unquestioned right to organize and to purchase and sell co-operatively?

"Will you see that the farm people of America are represented on general boards and commissions in whose membership various interests are recognized, whether or not the work is directly concerned with agriculture? "Will you appoint a secretary of agriculture who knows actual farm conditions, who is satisfactory to the farm organizations of America and who will cause to be made comprehensive studies of farm production costs at home and abroad, and pub-lish the uncensored facts? "Will you take the action necessary to ascertain and make public all obtainable facts concerning the great and growing evils of farm tenancy so that steps may be taken to check, reduce or end it?

J. Milton Reifsnider Seriously Ill.

J. Milton Reifsnider, chairman of the Public Service Commission, who recently underwent an operation for stomach trouble at the Union Protestant Infirmary and who seemed to have been recuperating, suffered a serious relapse Thursday afternoon. Members of Mr. Reifsnider's family, who live at the Albion Hotel, were summoned last night to his bedside and told that his condition was very serious. They remained at the hospital most of the night, and at a very late hour the physicians seemed doubtful of the patient's re-

To Use Fish Skin For Shoes.

Fish leather may reduce the cost of boots and shoes. The appearance of leather made from the skins of the finny tribe is heralded by tanners and shoe manufacturers as the beginning of a new national industry.

Many are predicting that the product will have a far-reaching effect, within the next few years, upon the leather trade.

Experts say fish leather will soon be used for all kinds of footwear, from the finest of women's shoes to heavy hunting boots. It will also be in demand for bookbinding, bags, trunks and harness.

Leather made from fish skins, it is said, equals in quality that made from land animals.-New York American.

It appears to be coming more and more apparent that the manufactur-ers of the country are largely responsible for excessive prices, if one is to judge by dividends and profits de-clared. Notwithstanding high wages, it looks as though some manufacturers have added them to "the price," and then some, passing all on to the State Authorities Say that .Roads Must be Saved.

The victory for traction engines, as handed down in the decision of Judge Thomas will likely be contested by the state authorities, either by with-holding licenses for engines with heavily cleated wheels, or by taking the matter to the Court of Appeals; but it seems also to be the case that actual damage to the roads must first be established in each case, which renders it difficult to establish, in advance, any arbitrary general rule. Chairman Zock of the State road Commission, says of the situation:

'The State has an investment of $25,000,000 in its road system, and the system could not be duplicated for $40,000,000. Maintenance costs are high, and if the traction engines with thrashing outfits are allowed to use the roads indiscriminately it means that either the roads on which they are used will go to pieces rapidly, or that maintenance costs will be excessively. And it is all unnecessary.

"The State Roads Commission has proved that bands can be placed over the cleats on traction engine wheels without interfering with the efficiency of the engine so long as they are on the State Roads. These bands completely protect the roads, they do not cost much, are easily put on and are as easily taken off. Thrashermen object to them because they say they interfere with the operation of engines on dirt roads, and because they do not want to go to the expense of so equipping their en-

"As these traction engines are operated solely for profit, it seems to me that it is hard that the whole people of the State should be put to additional expense for roads maintenance to save the thrashermen a slight expense and a little trouble. Anyway, I intend to have a talk with Governor Ritchie on the matter and see if the present law cannot be amended so as to protect the roads and at the same time give the thrashermen all they are entitled to. They perform a very necessary service, in fact are indispensable, but the fact ought not to

The Taneytown Tax Bill.

The Bill presented in the Senate, by Senator Snader, with reference to the tax rate in Taneytown, apparently provides that the corporate authorities, under the new law, can levy a tax of 70 cents, instead of 50 cents, as at present; in other words; the rate for general purposes will be raised from 30c to 50c, with two special levies of 10c each, additional still in force. The Bill reads:

"Sec. 1." Be it enacted by the General Assembly of Maryland, That Chapter 331 of the Acts of the General Assembly of Maryland, passed at eral Assembly of Maryland passed at eral Assembly of Maryland passed at its January session 1892, entitled "An Act to repeal Section 155 of the Code of Public Local Laws of the State of Maryland, title "Carroll County," sub-title "Taneytown" and re-enact the same so as to read as the same so a follows: be and the same is hereby repealed, and the said Section 155 is hereby re-enacted so as to read as

Sec. 155. The said Commissioners shall cause to be made an assessment from time to time of all assessable property, real and personal, within the limits of said town, and shall levy a tax upon all such property not to exceed in any one year fifty cents on the one hundred dollars, they may deem necessary for the general cor porate government expenses; and that such levy shall be in addition to the special levies now required to be made

Sec. 2. And be it further enacted, That all laws or parts of laws of a local nature inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed."

Why Insurance Rates are Higher.

The Companies that have many fire osses, or are sure of having them, have advanced their rates during the past few years, and the question is asked—Why? A little consideration of the subject will give an easy an-swer. High prices do not cause more fires, but the losses that do occur cost greatly more to replace; and when we consider that a large percentage of fire losses, are only partial losses, it is easy to see the situation.

Five years ago, a small fire loss on building, insured say at $1000., could be made good perhaps at a cost of $100. The same extent of loss today would mean a replacement cost of perhaps $300., and this is the responsibility of the Company-to replace the actual loss.

The same is true of household effects. If those who insure would increase their policies to meet increased values, the Companies would have increased premium incomes with which to meet increased losses; but, the average property owner is carrying the same insurance he carried several years ago, which makes it clear that on the same income Companies can not pay increased losses

Wind storm losses—that are apt to occur more frequently than fire losses -come under the same general rule. A partial loss on a building that would not have cost over $10.00 to replace, several years ago, now costs twice or three times as much, and the insuring Company is responsible to pay on a building up to the full amount of the insurance on the building; in many cases, for a loss on half the building, would be required to pay the whole amount of the insur-

GERMANY SERIOUSLY THREAT ENED WITH CIVIL WAR

Danger That Anarchy May Reign Instead of Government.

Conditions in Germany have been more or less chaotic ever since the great war, but within the last few weeks they have become such as to again threaten the peace of Europe. Just how to describe the situation seems impossible to do, briefly. There is said to be a fight on hand, under the surface, to return representatives of the old regime into power, and to nullify rule by the people, as we understand it; and the situation is also held to be an effort to overthrow all recognized government, for the establishment of radical Socialism, and nobody knows just what that is.

The government established by President Ebert, following the war, s at least in danger of being routed, Rioting, approaching real battles, has occurred at various places, hundreds having been killed and wounded in twenty-four towns and cities. There is also the report that the movement in Bolshevist, and contemplates the union of Germany and Russia in one great Soviest government. Another opinion has it that the outbreak is in reality a contest between the Militarists and Monarchists on the one hand, and the workman's movement on the other.

FREDERICK FOR ROAD BILL. Farmers' Meeting Indorse the Bill After Warm Discussion.

At a meeting of the Frederick County Farmers' Association, in Frederick, last Saturday, the road bill before the legislature was approved after a lively discussion.

Dr. Goodell the first speaker, referred to the road bill and stated that he was anxious to ascertain from the farmers what they thought ot it. Mr. Coblentz then dwelled to some length on the provisions of the measure. He stated that the bill originally called for an expenditure of $3,000,000 on state road improvement, 25 per-cent. of the funds to come from the county 25 per-cent. from the state and fifty per-cent. from the Federal Government. After a conference with the governor he said it was agreed to amend the bill making its application voluntary instead of mandatory with the counties. He then explain-ed the measure in detail and was asked a number of questions. Opposition was based eupon the fact that the measure provided for the construction of roads costing $30,000 or more per mile rather than for the building of cheaper roads.

Arthur D. Willard pointed out that many more miles of hard road, suitable for this county, could be built for the same amount that it would require to construct a few miles of state improved road and for this reason he was opposed to the measure as it now stands.

Mr. Coblentz explained that the purpose of the bill was to provide an improved main artery through all of the counties and that lateral roads or roads connecting with the main artery might be built of different and less expensive material.

D. Columbus Kemp said he favored good roads but was inclined toward building them consistent with dura-bility and good material at the least expense possible.

William J. Grove strongly advocated the bill in its original form, making it mandatory for the counties to build improved roads under the state and federal aid plan. A portion of the money, he said, could be spent in improved roads and the balance on hard bed highways connecting the improved main arteries. He said he did not advocate improved roads because he was in the road building business. In fact, he declared that on account of the labor problem, high cost of material and difficulty in obtaining bill, the third reading taining materials he wished he was out of the business. Good roads, he added, were an asset to any com-munity and it was far cheaper in the end to construct and maintain an improved road.

After an expression from others the bill as amended was endorsed.

Preachers Want Financial Independence.

Two Philadelphia preachers have leased a farm, that they will operate in connection with preaching. They say they are doing so in order to en joy the freedom that can be had only through the financial independence that enables themselves to speak their minds in preaching the gospel; and they are taking the farm plan for bringing about that condition.

"A Dissatisfied World."

We call special attention to an article on our editorial page, this issue, from the pen of Mr. Harbaugh, the regular editorial writer for the contains much real food for careful thought. While the writer's views may not be fully sound, nor generally accepted, they are such as must compel assent, for the greater part.

William Jennings Bryan has left it be known that "under certain circumstances" he will consider a nomination for the Presidency. Mr. Bryan is 60 years old today. A SUGGESTED TEXT

PROVERBS 11;26

"He that withholdeth corn, the people will curse him; but blessing shall be on the head of him that selleth it.

The editor of the Record reads the Bible—sometimes—and at one of these times, recently, came across the above Proverb, that has since been revolving in his mind without satisfactory understanding. Thinking that ome of our readers may be as much interested, as well as uninformed, he takes this means of trying to get more light on the subject.

It is generally conceded, we believe, that "corn" as referred to in the Bible, means our wheat. The general definition of "corn' is that it is "the name applied in any country to the principal bread-stuff." Assuming that the "corn" of the Proverb means wheat, or perhaps can be applied to food generally, what present relation, if any, does it have as a

WET LEGISLATION PASSED IN MARYLAND HOUSE

Race Track Bills Have Not Been Finally Acted Upon.

Gov. Ritchie removed all doubt of his position on prohibition, on Tuesday, by coming out plainly for 31/2% beer, cider and light wines, and sent a message to the House to this effect. A bill embodying his views was presented as a special order, on Thursday. He claims that such a bill will be effective in this state, even if the eighteenth amendment stands as it is, providing the decision of the Supreme Court recognizes the "concurrent" clause.

The race track bill met with its first defeat, on Tuesday, as it failed to pass by one vote, 52 being required, while the vote was 51 to 50. It is expected to receive the required number of votes on a proposition to reconsider. The entire Carroll county delegation voted for the bill. Speaker Tydings, on Tuesday, surprised the House by appointing a committee of five to "investigate the Anti-Saloon League," composed of Messrs. Gambill, Miles, McDaniel, Jones and Simmons. The act was in the control of the control answer to a petition to that effect from the Anti-Prohibition League of Talbott county.

A bill introduced in the Senate so amends the road law as to exempt from the provisions in the section defining the kind of motor vehicles from using the state roads, tractors or traction engines whose driving wheels are equipped with standard cleats used exclusively for agricultural purposes or for hauling threshing outfits clover hullers, hay balers, binders and othere farming imple-

A good part of Wednesday's session in the House was taken up in acrimonious debate over the Racetrack bill and referendum. Attorney-General Armstrong is reported to have given in informal opinion to the effect that the Bill is unconstitutional. The city delegation showed great resentment against Mr. Gambill for some of the remarks he made be-cause the city delegation voted solid-

The mining bill, which passed to the third reading file Wednesday night, is substantially the same as that of the last and preceding sessions, and has in view the betterment of health and of other conditions in the mines, of which the miners com-plain. The bill transfers from the miners to the operators many expenses borne by the former in re-pair of tools and of other equipments. It also is designed to correct unfairness in weighing coal of which the miners also complained.

Every person in Maryland owning as much as $200 worth of personal property, is interested in a bill interested in by Senator McIntosh. This compels all such persons to make a return to the Appeal Tax Court in the city and the county commissioners in each county, which must be sworn to and based on this a tax is to be levied. The form is to be prescribed by the State Tax Commission. This first return must be made next September and then every two years thereafter. The Senator believes that when property enforced the State's income will be increased by several millions.

The administration road bill, drawn by Ogle Marbury, has little, if indeed any, chance of passage. It was so drawn that its entire usefulness will almost surely rest upon the acceptance or rejection by the members of the legislature of the compulsory construction provision, which it imposes upon the counties of the state. The county members will not take this, and for this reason the bill has been held in committee since it was introduced on February 25. Frankly its friends are apparently afraid to bring it out on the floor for a test of

On Thursday, the House voted down the bill applying the Volstead law to Maryland. The vote was 39 for and 62 against the bill.

More Whisky Stolen.

The Sykesville Herald says: "One morning last week a truck was backed up to the Burkholder distillery near Westminster and took on ten barrels of liquor. It proceeded toward Baltimore, by way of Main St., Westminster, and disappeared. It is said the liquor was worth $20,000. We have read of other attempts to rob this distillery and of a watchman who prevented the thefts. Where the watchman was in this instance does not appear from the published accounts of the alleged robbery. It is on a par with the robbery of a distillery in Highlandtown early last week, when four trucks hauled away 40 barrels of liquor. No trace of the thieves has been reported. Both robberies have a fishy look."

FOOD TO RELIEVE EUROPE.

5,000,000 Barrels of Flour Sold on Long Time Credit.

The House, on Monday, voted to permit the U. S. Grain Corporation sell to Poland, Austria and Armenia, 5,000,000 barrels of flour, to be paid for when they are able to do so. The vote on the bill was 283 to 1—eleven Democrats and one Republican voting against the measure. There was a strong attempt to make political capital out of the question, but it turned into a talk-fest without anything developing save an attack on Mr. Hoover that "the saviour of Europe" was favoring this relief because it gave him another opportunity to "exploit himself."

The only opposition to the bill was along the line that some of the countries in Europe were learning to depend on the United States for help, rather than go to work and help themselves, and that it was about time to stop extending credits to foreign countries.

Fruit Growers Organize.

At a meeting of the fruit growers, in the office of County Agent Fuller, in Westminster, on Tuesday afternoon, the Carroll County Fruit Growers' Association was organized. The organization is the result of a meeting held several weeks ago, at which time it was decided that the growers of the county should be invited to attend an organization meeting on March 16th.

Dr. F. B. Bomberger, of the Extension Service of the Md. State College of Agriculture, addressed the meeting and explained the advantages of organization for the fruit growers of Carroll county. He also outlined the constitution and by-laws for the organization.

A. P. Snader, of New Windsor, was elected temporary president; Dr. L. Kemp, of Uniontown, temporary vice-president, and County Agent Fuller, temporary secretary. These tempo-rary officers were instructed to canvass the fruit growers of the county for additional members and to arrange for another meeting in the near future, at which time the organization would be completed.

The purpose of the Fruit Growers' Association is declared to be "to promote and extend the fruit growing industry of Carroll county, and to stimulate co-operation among the members." It is expected that all of the fruit growers of the county will join the association.

Whether we are to remain National Americans, or become International Americans, may be an issue in our Presidential election. In other words, whether we will largely stay at home, and mind our own business; or, whether we will take a hand in minding the business of the whole world, and doing it by fixed agreement, rather than by our own inclination at the time "the thing happens."

We note that administration newspapers are no longer quoting Mr. Taft on the Peace Treaty. The fact is, Mr. Taft's change of front, in coming to the support of the Treaty with reservations, may be a little difficult to follow; but when all is said in criticism of it that can be said, it must be admitted that he has been receptive to majority sentiment, and has recognized the Senate as an equal partner with the President in treaty making, which is more than the latter

Take Mr. Hoover's Word For It.

It seems to us that Mr. Hoover ought to be taken at his word, by all parties, when he says he does not want public office, but that his "ambition is to remain a common citizen, ready to engage in team play with any organization and leadership that has for its objective the consummation and maintenance of great issues in the forms that I believe are to the public interest and benefit." This is a perfectly laudable position, and there is no good reason to doubt that he means it to be taken at 100 percent face value.

Mr. Hoover is a man of wealth, and it is easily conceivable, that, not being a strong devotee of either party he is not greatly interested in political preferment or leadership. The that every man would like to be President, is all wrong. Even those who have the time and inclination to devote themselves to public service, can do so in many ways without being President, and with a great deal more pleasure, and greatly less responsibility and criticism.

Mr. Hoover might be a misfit as President, even though he possesses tled nothing. Disgraceful, if True.

It has been openly stated that army officials have appeared at Annapolis in the interest of the race track normal conditions. Just now we have gambling bill, urging that the maintenance of racing (presumably with the gambling feature) enables the down. The return of the railroads to army to secure a supply of cavalry horses. If it be true, as stated, that army officials appeared, to try to influence legislation of this sort, they ought to be court-martialed for conduct unbecoming the service.

A Soldier Boy's Argument.

A returned soldier, in discussing the "bonus" question, gets back at the argument against bonusing the boys who served in the army at $30 per month, by asking this pointed, pertinent and perplexing question-"Why did not the government draft men to work in shipyards and munition plants at a certain wage to correspond with the work they were doing ?" He goes on to say, "had this been done, the cost of living would have been kept down." This soldier boy says, further:

"When I landed over here I was against this bonus question, but after having different chaps continually telling me of the big money they were making while I, 'poor sucker.' was in the army, I changed and am now in favor of a bonus or let those in power in Washington turn it down and do so at once, and then, perhaps, we will forget about it.

I was in the draft age but enlisted. Perhaps I could have waited and secured a position in a munition plant or a shipyard and would have been I really believe if a few more thousand of us had done this and secured these so-called necessary jobs that the Government would have gotten wise and this question would not be up today.'

Pretty clean cut argument, isn't it, and moderately expressed? According to the way things look, in order to whip arbitrariness and greed in Germany, we had to do it at the cost of creating something like the same condition here. That isn't near mighty disagreeable sequel growing seats. This is a deplorable state of out of it.

What is the answer to the question? The government lacked the authority, perhaps, to keep down wages and costs in many private lines of work; but surely it could have drafted men to do "army work," here at home—as this ex-soldier says—at a fair price; and, had this been done, work of all classes would largely have been regulated thereby, and we would not now be staggering under a burden of high costs that nobody knows how to get rid of.

The soldier boys have a right to feel that they were government 'goats" who could not help themselves, for it must be remembered that "exemption" conveniently went along with many who were employed in "necessary government work." We do not argue that because the government left the wages question get the best of it—that it even left labor dictate to it—this is good argument for the granting of the present demanded bonus-but, it is a pretty good imitation of one.

The Best Laxative.

"My sedentary habits have necessitated the use of an occasional laxative. I have tried many, but found nothing better than Chamberlain's Tablets" writes George F Daniels writes George F. Daniels, Hardwick, Vt. Mr. Daniels is proprietor of the Hardwick Inn, one of the model hotels of New England.

A Dissatisfied World.

Never before in the history of mankind has there been such an unrest as prevails throughout the world at the present time. The peace which has followed the world war is an armed peace. The armistice has really setprevailing unrest appears on the surface, but the discontent cannot be minimized.

Unrest usually follows war. The people are always slow to get back to the high prices to contend with and there are no signs of their coming the corporations by the Government threatens an increase of freight rates, which will eventually have to be paid by the consumer. It is always thus. The poor consumer is the goat and usually he pays the bill. The approach of a presidential campaign will only aggravate matters. It means a long disruption of business and not until the result is announced will with an upward tendency. It will be We have heard a great deal about a long, long time before they go the hearkened to the call from the cities. The high salaries paid to certain movie actresses and others have lured thousands from the household. It is as difficult nowadays to get a housemaid as it is to find a gold mine at the North Pole. When a girl who formerly worked for $2.00 a week, reads that a woman commands $1000 per week as a movie star, she essays the trick, and, of course, fails. She has no rest till the dream is rudely broken and she is lost. The chances for the ordinary girl in the theatrical arena are too slight for the slightest consideration.

It is no wonder that the world is disturbed. Education as handed out today in some of the colleges of our land is no education at all. Muscle is educated at the expense of brains. What if Lincoln had received a degree of football kicking or rowing? Do you think his illustrious name would be blazoned today on the deathless pages of history? We send our boys and girls to school for a practical education and they come home with only a smattering of English, but with a great array of athletic medals. The sturdy old education that their parents received is not to be had in a great many of our schools today. All this breeds a spirit of world unrest. Every year I am called upon to prepare essays and orations for high school graduates. Why is it? The said graduates have been schooled in the non-essentials, while the whole story, of course, but it is a the essentials are relegated to back

> The present day unrest will not be remedied until we come to our senses. There would be less profiteering in this country if the people would refuse to pay profiteering prices. So long as wages are high, so long will people pay the price. As surely as shines the Sun, the lane will turn one of these days. It cannot be a straight lane forever. When circumstances force wages back to the old figures, there is bound to be trouble that will border on revolution. Men are paid in many instances more than they are worth. This breeds extravagance and economy is thrown to the winds. Nothing is laid up for a rainy day. Not long ago I saw a working man pay $34.00 for two silk shirts and he had six mouths to feed at home. Some day he is liable to growl when he is asked $2.00 for a shirt.

affairs, but it is as true as gospel.

The government is largely to blame for the present day condition of things. It paid too much for labor during the war. Contractors fattened on the National treasury and their enormous profits were winked at. The people were robbed right and left, and are still being robbed, for that matter. It looks as if some men had permission to loot the vaults of the treasury from the large increase of millionaires after the formal declaration of war. So, if matters do not adjust themselves before long, the world-wide spirit of unrest is bound to increase. We will reap the harvest by and by. Our country is facing a situation which is not only deplorable, but which threatens internal peace and national existence. -Harbaugh, in The Valley Register, Middletown, Md.

Holding Help.

In Baltimore there are some factories where the labor problem is almost as big at times as on the average farm, while other factories engaged in the same business have a constant supply of happy, contented workers on the job the year around.

It is not because higher wages are paid that these contented workers are found, for there is at least one where many of the workers, even to unskilled help, could better their respective financial conditions by moving on to other fields of work. But on the job they stay. They stay be-cause their employers pay them a salary—plus.

Plus what? Plus a friendly pat on the shoulder. Plus a cordial "Well, Frank, how is the family coming on?" That is the sort of thing which keeps farm folks and city folks happy and contented at their labors Within 16 miles of Baltimore, there is a farmer who does not know the meaning of labor trouble. He has plenty of hands, and they stay with him the year around. He pays his men a salary plus. But his particular plus is money based on what the worker really does. His men are on their toes all the time

Near Hagerstown there is another farmer equally successful in holding help. He pays a flat monthly wage, plus a day rate when work becomes particularly heavy, and takes a per-sonal interest in all the little hopes and aims of his men, who find real pleasure in confiding in him. There are hundreds of farmers throughout the State who have no trouble in keeping happy, contented These men have given real thought to the subject, and base their plans on the human element.-Mary-

HARNEY.

Mr. Charles Engle, an aged and highly respected citizen of this place, died on March 12, at his home, aged about 83 years. He had been a great sufferer for some time, and death to him came only as a sweet relief.

"Charley," as he was commonly known, was of a rather jolly disposition, and it can be truly said, that he was everybody's friend. He was always a hard-working and industrious man, and many times would disoblige himself to accommodate a friend or neighbor, and would have given his last penny at any time to help any one in need.
"Charley" was, what might be called, the gardener of the town, and when garden-making and seed planting time comes, we shall greatly miss him. We all knew that when he did any work for us, we never need worry about it, because it would be done right. He was a great friend of the children; they now miss his cheerful smiles and will never again hear his hearty laugh at their childish pranks. Truly, all will miss him, but willingly submit to Divine will.

Strange as it may seem, that many who were not apparently as deserving as he, were prospered and permitted to accumulate an abundance of this world's goods, while God in His wisdom decreed that he should be stricken down in poverty, leaving his funeral expenses and the care of his aged wife in the hands of a charitable people, who, realizing that charity is the greatest of virtues, have contrib-uted liberally and are still contrib-

Cold!-Sure.

On one of our most recent cold Saturdays the tenderfoot rank boy scouts of Terre Haute made an all-day hike along the Wabash. They were describing the hike for the benefit of some of their most interested friends.

They had described the city blasts from the river, the frozen ground and the various sensations produced on their spinal columns without winning what they regarded sufficient sympathy from their listeners. Just as they were most disappointed their executive took part. "Why it was so cold that we had to break the ice off the pancake batter between frying cakes," he ejaculated.

"PIANO" MAKES QUEER MUSIC

Probably Paderewski Would Shudder at Sight of This Native African Instrument,

Africans are a music-loving people, though in a native African village there is not much to be had that will produce sounds of a harmonious nature. There the musical instruments are of the crudest kind. Even if the African musician has the real musical gift, with his very best effort it cannot be displayed creditably on the crude instruments at hand.

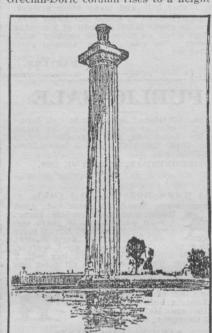

The African "piano," ungainly looking as it is, shows a good bit of ingenuity both in its construction and its manipulation, so that the sounds blend in some sort of musical strains. There are usually 18 to 20 "keys" in the makeup of an African piano. Each is of polished wood 3 to 4 inches wide and 14 to 15 inches in length. Under each key is a gourd attached by means of a resinous gum, or an application of cement very durable when it hardens. A half circular strip of flexible wood holds all in place. The gourds are of different sizes. Two sticks, like drum sticks, are used by the player, one in each hand; and the playing is done by pounding with the sticks upon the keys, each of which, when struck, gives out a different sound. In some of the villages of Africa where missionaries dwell, the "piano" drum, for that is what it really is, serves as the church "bell," to summon the people to the services. If manipulated by the native evangelist, which is often the case, the call to prayer and praise rings out with all the lusty musical (?) sounds his vigorous pounding can bring from it.

to Help Britain. In the great hall at Buckland abbey in Devonshire, a few miles from Plymouth, the ancestral home of Sir Francis Drake, there hangs an ancient drum of a pattern not known these 300 years. It is the famous drum of the great English sea-fighter, his companion throughout his whole adventurous career. It beat the signals on his flagship when he scattered the Spanish armada; it went with him on the first British ship that went around the world, and it sounded the taps when, after his death at sea in the West Indies, his body was committed to the waters of the Atlantic ocean.

When Drake lay dying, so runs the tradition, he commanded his brother, who was a captain of one of the ships in the British fleet, to take his drum back to England and hang it in his hall at Buckland abbey. Whenever danger threatened Britain let them sound on the drum and his spirit would enter into the British admiral and scatter his country's foes as he had done in the days gone by. His brother did as he was commanded and after three centuries the drum still | hangs in Buckland abbey, which is now in the possession of a descendant of Drake's brother. Twice, runs the legend, has the drum been sounded-and not in vain. Once, in the generation after Drake's death, when the Dutch sought to wrest the control of the seas from the British, and the doughty Admiral Von ner told what little is known about Tromp sailed up the British channel "sleeping sickness," which has made its with a broom at his masthead, to appearance in America. Young Wife Not at All Displeased at Rebuke Administered to Con-Jugal Partner by Bishop.

A colonial bishop, speaking at a meeting held for the purpose of raising funds for the building of a church, sought to put his audience in good humor by making complimentary references to the progress that had been made in their district, dwelling particularly on the advancement in the quantity and quality of the various local products. The clergyman who had been appointed to the incumbency, a very young man, rose at the conclusion of the speech and solemnly called his lordship's attention to the fact that he had omitted to mention eggs, which were a considerable source of revenue. On the spur of the moment the bishop decided to administer a rebuke. "It is highly gratifying to learn," he said, after apologizing for the omission. "that the poultry of the neighborhood have such a competent young rooster to crow for them!" When the meeting was over the bishop, who was very tender-hearted, thinking he might have hurt the young clergyman's feelings, and those of his wife as well, tendered an apology to the latter, who, to his surprise, quickly dispelled his fears. "Please do not trouble," the lady said. "I was pleased with the answer you gave to my husband. It will do him a great deal of good!"

HARD LUCK OF BANNISTER

By WALTER A. FROST

My acquaintance with Mr. Bannister was short. It lasted only from Chicago to Port Huron, and yet in that time he told me not only his real name, his "alias," and his occupation, but also the very hard luck experience which I shall set before you.

The cause of our becoming acquainted was accidental-the dining-car was crowded and the steward put us at the same table. As I seated myself I noticed a little man at the other side of the table, but I paid no attention to him until he looked hard at me, and in a low voice asked:

"What line do you carry?" "I beg your pardon?" I asked. "What line do you carry?" There was no escape. "Law books,"

I answered. "I am a lawyer." He smiled and held out a fat hand.

"We are in about the same profession. I am a detective."

"Yes," I replied, for I felt a desire to know more of a man who could see any resemblance between a lawyer and a detective. "We are, it might be said, slightly related."

"Well, when you have practiced longer you will understand what I mean when I say that we are in about the same line."

He smiled, and between orders to the waiter told me his story.

"Yes, when you have practiced longer you will understand what I mean. You lawyers have to use us at every step you take; you can't get on without us. A witness goes back on you and gets lost, and the first thing you do is to call one of us in to look up your man for you. Lawyers, doctors, business men and bankers, you all give us a lot of work.

"Speaking of bankers, I'm down on all of 'em, for it was while doing some work for a banker that I had the hardest piece of luck I ever struck, and just when everything was going love-

"It was this way! The chief called me in one afternoon, and said he: 'Jim, I want you to go down to Ellerton and see Stevens, the banker. There's been some work done down there, and he's afraid some of it may

"'He'll give you the facts, and then go to work. The gang that's suspected is something like the Fiske outfit you gathered in at Oshkosh last fall.'

"The next morning I was in Stevens' private office, and it was a dandy. But never mind that.

"The next morning, after seeing old Stevens, I dropped into a saloon where I'd seen some young fellows go, and found six or eight boys having a quiet game. I had a beer, bought a cigar, and went out.

"Next morning I dropped in again. The bar-keep recognized me and said, 'Good morning.' 'Good morning,' says I, and got my drink and cigar and went out without saying anything more. I kept on dropping in and some of the chaps began to notice me, but they held off, which made me think I might be somewhere on the right track, so I went in steady.

"After I'd been in town for about a week one of the young fellows asked me at the saloon one evening what I was selling.

"'I'm buying,' said I. " 'Buying what?'

"'Land.' And then he introduced me to the rest of the bunch who were at the table playing. They asked me to come in, and I did. They couldn't play much, I saw, but I let them win a couple of dollars, and then I cleared

"A few days after that when I went in-it was one afternoon, about halfpast four-I found some of the gang there. Then I knew they wasn't working, for if they had been they couldn't have been there then.

"Well, I was pretty sure they was the boys I was looking for, and so, wanting to see what they'd rise to, I managed to drop a set of 'skeleton' keys on the floor when I was just going to pay for the drinks. I bent down quick and picked 'em up and shoved 'em into my pocket, but I saw they was 'on,' for in a few minutes one of the bunch came over to me and says:

"'See here, Mr. Jenks' (I'd told 'em my name was Jenks), 'you might as well tell us a little more about yourself. We know you're not down here to look up land, and it's our opinion you may be after something that begins with D.'

"Dough was what he meant. But I was not going to be drawn out, at least, not yet, and so I said:

'It strikes me I don't know much about you boys yet. Don't you think you'd better show up first?'

"They held off a bit even then, but finally one of them, a tall, sharp chap he was, came close to me and says: 'Were you ever in Janesville?'

"I laughed and said: "Why, yes, I guess so.'

"'Were you there two weeks ago?'

"I looked around for a moment, as if to see there weren't any one could hear, and then I said:

"Yes but I didn't do that job." "He wasn't quite sure yet, for he tried me again: "'Who bought it of the man who

"found" it?" "He was thinking of the big diamond robbery that had just come off squat figure into the smoking comin Janesville. It was a neat piece of | partment.

work, and the chief had two of his best men on it.

"'How can I tell?' I asked. 'They say the Jew got it, but he cleared before the "Blues" got there.'

"I thought they was going to talk up, but the tall man was suspicious, I saw, and so I went out, after setting them up again.

"That evening the tall man asked me to take a little ride with him. I wanted 'em to feel sure of me, and so I put a 'jimmy' under my coat, and when we got into the cutter I wrapped it up in the blanket and put it under the seat.

"We had a nice drive, for it was a dandy night, but the chap didn't say a thing about himself or the gang or me. He only talked about the fishing up North, and we didn't get anywhere. Along about eleven we came to Rite's place, and he said we'd go in and have a drink. I jumped out and went to tie the horse, asking him to throw the blanket over her. He proceeded to do so, and of course the jimmy fell out. "He laughed and clapped me on the back. "'I guess we've got you located now, old man,' says he. 'And now we'll go back. "We went to the rooms where the rest of the gang were waiting for us. "'I guess he'll do, boys,' said he, and then he says to me: 'I have an idea that we can put a man like you in the way of making something

"They grinned, and then we talked things over.

"I had been traveling with them pretty steady for a month, when one night they told me they were going to do & little piece of work on a bank in town (Stevens' bank, of course), and they wanted me to 'fix' the safe.

"'All right, boys,' says I. 'I'll have to send down to Chi for my "kit,"

"Next morning I went over to Stevens' and put him 'on,' telling him to put some marked bills in the safe for that night. I got the combination from him, too, thinking I might have some trouble with the safe, and I had to get it open one way or another.

"Then I went over to the chief of police and fixed it up with him so that he'd surround the bank after we had gone in and nab us as we came out.

"The bank proposition was a little heavy for the poys, some of 'em being a little new at such work, and when Tuesday night came they began to get a little nervous. But I filled 'em up with drinks, and told 'em how easy it was, gave out a long talk on my own experiences, and by Wednesday afternoon they were ready for anything.

"We had a good supper, with lots of drinks of all sorts, and some of the boys were pretty well jagged by the time we were through.

"We had set the job for midnight, met then at a barber shop, where the big chap had a job (he was slick), and then separated, meeting again at the bank as the clock struck twelve.

"The big fellow broke in the door with his shoulder—he was as strong as a bull-moose—and we all piled in after him. I remember I was the last man in, and I was thinking how fine they were going to look in the papers next morning, the five of them standing in a row, with me at their right as the desperate and food supplies so scanty man who had 'gathered them in.' I that the Georgians have ordered 100,-laughed to myself as I opened the 000 persons, mainly Russian refugees safe, and then I heard the snap of a man's fingers, a voice cried 'now, men!' the lights were turned on, and each of us was looking into the barrel of a gun.

"I looked at the man who was covering me, and you can just about figure out how I felt when I saw that it was that young kid with the yellow hair. He smiled a bit, and then told us to throw up our hands. "All of us did except the big chap, and he got a bullet through his hip. I tried to remonstrate with the kid, who seemed to be running the thing, but he told me to 'cut it out,' and I saw that it was no use. "They took us down to the jail and got our faces by flashlight. I was standing with the rest of the bunch, and my name (my real one, too, for I'd given it to old Stevens in the first place) was stuck underneath.

"I tried to drive it into the chief of police that I was out after the men, but he said I'd given wrong information, and the light-haired kid was boss there, anyhow.

"Then they threw us into cells that a dog couldn't have slept in, and sent us down to Chicago next morning handcuffed together like Siamese twins. They tried us, and I got off with a reprimand from the court for 'encouraging crime and, though a detective by profession, leading young and weak boys astray.'

"Then the chief jawed me for an hour, and gave me a 'vacation' for 'incompetency and general stupidity.' And the papers made it hot for the chief for 'hiring such men,' and then, of course, he chucked me permanent.

"All because that kid with the yellow hair had started in, on his own hook, to run the same gang that the chief had set me on! If he'd waited three minutes I'd have landed the bunch, I'd have 'gathered in the outlaws,' as the papers said. But you see how it was. And what made it all the worse, the tall chap turned out to be Jem Cummings, wanted in St. Louis and Boston for forgery and robbing

"As it was-well, it was hard luck, wasn't it?" Mr. Bannister stared gloomily out into the night.

"Come," said he, after a moment, "let's get something to smoke. Every time I think of that kid with the yellow hair it makes my head ache. Let's smoke up." And I followed his short,

Colonel Haskell Reports to Near East Relief on Desperate Needs of Helpless.

"By a recent agreement between the premiers of the republics of Armenia, Azerbaidjan and Georgia to cease hostilities and settle all differences by arbitration one obstacle to relief work in the Caucasus has been removed and makes accessible a great number of destitute people who otherwise would perish this winter.

"Two hundred thousand destitute Armenians and Tartars can now be reached in the districts of Karabagh, Shusha and Nakhichevan, in the southeast section of the Trans-Caucasus, and we are planning to extend our work there. The economic situation is so 000 persons, mainly Russian refugees without employment, to leave the city of Tiflis. About 45,000 workers in the oil fields of Baku have been ordered by the Azerbaidjahese to leave the city because there is no work for them and Around every station along the railway are gathered groups of hundreds of homeless people lying huddled together on the ground, the majority of them too weak even to try to help themselves. From time to time the stronger ones climb on freight cars and move elsewhere, always seeking better conditions, which do not exist. Two hundred and sixty-three thousand homeless refugees from Turkish Armenia thus are constantly milling about throughout Russian Armenia, making the relief work conducted by the Americans a problem requiring infinite patience and organizing ability.

"This is especially true in view of the existence of 248,000 destitute inhabitants of Russian Armenia who possess homes, but no food, as well as 150,000 Greeks, Russians, Persians, Syrians and Yezidis who have been driven out of parts of Transcaucasia.

They constitute a fertile field for the seeds of Bolshevism or any form of anarchy, the spread of which once loosed would be impossible to predict.

"It is generally admitted in the Caucasus that the Americans of the Near East Relief already have saved the lives of at least 30,000 babies and children and of 500,000 adult refugees and destitute. This work still is continu-

JOHN'S PICTURE OF WORSHIP IN HEAVEN.

LESSON TEXT-Rev. 7:9-17. GOLDEN TEXT-Blessing, and glory, and wisdom, and thanksgiving, and honor, and power, and might be unto our God for ever and ever. Amen.—Rev. 7:12. PRIMARY TOPIC — The Heavenly JUNIOR TOPIC.—A Glimpse of Heaven, INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC -A Vision of the Glorious Future.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC Permanent Message of the Book of

1. Who they are (vv. 9, 11). (1) Redeemed men (v. 9). They are mainly Gentiles-"of all nations, and kindreds, and people, and tongues." They are those to whom the "gospel of the kingdom" has been preached by converted Israelites (Matt. 24:14). In the first part of chapter seven we saw God sealing his chosen ones from Israel. They were sealed with the seal of God in their foreheads, which doubtless means the supernatural endowment of the Holy Spirit on the last days (Joel 2:28-32). While this was partially fulfilled on the day of Pentecost, its larger realization is still future (Acts 2:15-21). This outpouring is for the equipment of the Jews for their divinely ordained mission, namely, to preach the gospel of the kingdom to the whole world. When God sends forth the 144,000 Jews with the unction of the Holy Spirit, the innumerable multitude from all nations will receive Christ, the slain Lamb, for their redemption. (2) All the angels (v. 11). These angels indorse this ascription of praise offered by these redeemed men by saying "Amen.

2. Whence came these redeemed? (vv. 13, 14). They came out of the great tribulation (v. 14). After the rapture of the Church (I Thess. 4:13-18), awful days of suffering and trial shall come upon the world (II Thess. 2:7, 8). It is the time of sorrow when the anti-Christ shall hold sway; such days as were not before nor shall be after, in which if not shortened no flash could be saved (Matt. 24:15, 21, 22; cf. Dan. 7:8; 9:26, 27).

3. What they say (vv. 10, 12). (1) Salvation to our God and the Lamb (v. 10). They ascribe their salvation to God through the sacrifice of the Lamb, Jesus Christ. (2) "Blessing." They acknowledge that all blessings come from him. (3) "Glory." They acknowledge him as the glorious one and the one to whom all glory should be given. (4) "Wisdom." He is infinitely wise and all wisdom comes from him. (5) "Thanksgiving," because salvation was provided by him. (6) "Honor." Their hearts went out to him in high esteem. (7) "Power and might. power inhered in him.

II. The Blessedness of the Worship-1. They are before God's throne

ers (vv. 13-17).

(vv. 9, 15). They are in heaven and near the throne of God. Jesus Christ is now preparing mansions for those who shall go to heaven (John 14:1-3). 2. Clothed with white robes (vv. 9, 14). Their white robes suggest their character. They have been made such in the blood of the Lamb. The only way for a sinner to be made ready for heaven is through the blood of

3. They bear palm branches (v. 9). The significance of the palm is found in the use that the Jews made of it at the Feast of Tabernacles. It was a time of great joy, because it represented the gathered harvest. The bearers of the palm branches will experience the blessedness of not only being in heaven, but of enjoying rewards for their work on earth.

4. They serve God day and night (v. 15). Heaven is not a place of idleness, or altogether of singing God's praises, but a place where real, vital service is rendered to God; indeed, there are nobler fields of endeavor awaiting us beyond this life. This life is but a training school in which we are made ready for service in heaven.

5. God dwells among them (v. 15). To get to heaven at all would be truly blessed, but to be there and have God to dwell among us will be wonderful.

6. Hunger no more nor thirst (v. 16). Here life is one continuous round of hungering and thirsting. In heaven we shall neither hunger nor thirst, for Jesus Christ, the Lamb, shall feed us. The straits and necessities of life will then be over.

7. Neither shall the sunlight or heat come upon them (v. 17).

8. God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes (v. 17).

This Day Only.

Enjoy the blessings of the day if God sends them; and the evils bear patiently and sweetly; for this day only is ours; we are dead to yesterday, and not born to tomorrow .-Jeremy Taylor.

Greatest of All Cunning.

The greatest of all cunning is to seem blind to the snares which we know are laid for us; men are never so easily deceived as while they are endeavoring to deceive others .--Rochefoucauld.

> March 21 Everyday Courtesies I Peter 3:8-12.

The common courtesies are becoming decidedly uncommon in our busy, bustling age. What a rare thing it is, for example, to find a street car coductor courteous enough to give to passengers proper direction concerning the best way to reach their destination, especially if the inquirer's speech has a foreign accent or is somewhat broken! How pleasant an experience it is to find a policeman who is obliging as well as officious! How happy one feels in finding an usher who is considerate rather than commanding! What a thrill one gets when in a crowded department store he finds the floorman and elevator man courteous and kind! Comparatively speaking these experiences are rare. Notwithstanding all the talk about brotherhood, the thing itself is conspicuous by its absence. An extreme case of need will excite sympathy, leading to some measure of consideration, but consideration and courtesy, as a rule and principle in the daily life, are not much in evidence.

Courtesy appears in our Scripture lesson as a command. It follows in logical sequence the unity, compassion, love and pity that precedes it. Where these four are not found, courtesy will not abide. It is the product of love, and love is the fruit of the indwelling Spirit of God. There is apart from this a superficial courtesy which manifests itself in external matters and has its own reward. But the courtesy enjoined by the apostle is a deeper and more abiding quality. It belongs to the heart life and as Dickens said, "A man can never be a true gentleman in manner until he is a true gentleman at heart." On its negative side courtesy is described in our lesson as "not rendering evil for evil," but positively rendering good for evil, blessing and cheering other lives through the blessing that we in-herit from God. This is faith work-ing by love. On this principle one can avoid conflicts and misunder-standings, and thereby as the apostle says "see good days," not involving nimself in troubles which make life a burden. There is an old Parisian proverb which reads "He that planteth thorns shall not gather roses. It is common knowledge that evil speaking and "railing for railing" produces results which burden many ives and provoke endless controversy and conflict, while a courteous answer is productive of peace and good-will. According to verses 1 and 12, these are the things to seek definitely and continually. The favor of God rests upon all who do this, but His face is against them that do otherwise. Courtesy is due to all, the old, the young, the poor, the stranger, and the weak. This claim can be easily met if we are rightly related to God in Christ, and properly adjusted to the Holy Spirit day by day. Then the joy of the Lord is our strength and we do not become weary in well

HOME NEST ONLY NURSERY

When the Young Birds Leave It They Rarely Return, According to John Burroughs.

It is always interesting to me to see · young birds leave their nest. It is ierally an irrevocable step; they y rarely go back-young swallows do, however, perhaps more frequently than other hirds. The nest is in no sense a home, but a nursery for a brief period. Most of our birds who bring off a second brood build a second nest, though a robin will occasionally reline and otherwise patch up an old nest. Nesting birds leave the nest one by one, sometimes at intervals of an hour or two; at others, of a day or more.

The current notion that the parent birds teach the young to fly-that of set purpose they give them lessons in flying—is entirely erroneous. The young fly automatically when the time comes, as truly as the witchhazel nut explodes, and the pod of the jewel weed goes off when the seeds are ripe. The parent birds call to their young, and I have thought that in some cases they withhold the food longer than usual, to stimulate the young to make the great adventure. But in the case of a pair of bluebirds which came under my observation, the young were fed up to the moment of flight.-John Burroughs, in Harper's Magazine.

How Wild Things Are Lured.

Fish and frogs are equally curious to examine the many bright lures that the fishermen know will attract their attention. In frog hunting all that is necessary is a gig composed of several hooks grouped together and covered with a small bit of red flannel. When the frog sees this bit of bright red it leaps for it and often hooks itself at the first attempt. Trout, muskellunge and other game fish will often leap clear of the water to grab an especially brilliant lure.

It may be said that every kind of bird is brimming over with curiosity as hunters of every land have trapped them by inducing them to approach and investigate unfamiliar objects. Crows and parrots possess this curiosity in extreme degree, and if anything is held near their cages they are quick to come over and examine it from every angle.

Contributions From the Squirrel Family

Countless pert little squirrels of the | it is an easy matter to slip this wind kinds we are all more or less familiar off or on. One can imagine ermine with die to furnish pelts that masquerade as other skins in garments made of them. They are dyed into beautiful brown tones and the furriers rechristen them. But the pelt of the Siberian squirrel is an exquisite gray, marvelously marked, that makes one think of a white mist. To dye it would be like painting the lily or adorning the rose. It is made up into regal garments and used in fur pieces or for collars and cuffs on coats of sealskin or of sumptuous fabrics. There is no gray more beautiful and delicate, therefore this fur seems best adapted to wraps for high occasions.

The designer who made the wrap pictured understood how to suit style to the fur. It is a mantle of Siberian squirrel and "class" is written in every line of it; grace, rather than utility or even convenience, governed its making. It is very dressy and has a wide fants. collar; there are slits to accommodate the arms, instead of sleeves, and it is shaped to a long back. A single, large fur-covered button assumes all the responsibility of fastening it, and made up in the same way for the same sort of wear, or sable or sealskin.

Every season presents coats of or dinary squirrel fur for misses and for grown people's wear in the undyed skins. But the chances are that many more skins are used for making up garments and fur pieces in dark colors than in the natural colors. It proves a satisfactory fur in wearing qualities whether dyed or not.

Squirrel is the most esteemed of furs for children's wear and leads in the little company which provide warmth in their coats. It includes opossum, Angora, muskrat, rabbit, light fitch and imitation ermine. The white belly of the squirrel accounts for much of the last-mentioned, but is chiefly used for making linings for cloth coats both for grown people and children, and for lining carriage robes for in-

Local Library News.

Our local library has been fortunate in getting into touch with the American Library Association, the organization which assumed the task of furnishing books and magazines to our soldiers and sailors during the late war, and which is now perfecting plans to increase its usefulness y enlarging its field.

The post-war program of the Association, is to carry into every community, however remote, the opportunity to enjoy books, and to have the benefit of good library advantages generally. This is a privilege which a large majority of the American people of present do not be the second ple at present, do not have, especially those in the rural communities.

The scheme is, first, to arouse, through a campaign of publicity the desire for books, and the passion for reading, and then through state, county, and local agencies, to supply them; in short, to bring within reach of everyone, all that is best in the world of books, an opportunity for self-instruction in all lines of human endeavor, and a broader general knowledge, through reading, and study courses, available under the "Books for Everybody" movement.

Fraudulent Investments.

Despite warnings by the Government, bankers and the better newspapers, the fraudulent securities industry, which has cost the people of this country so many billions of dollars not only goes merrily on but seems to increase from week to week. Nearly every day we hear of some stock swindler being put out of business or sent to prison. Only recently the notorious S. C. Pandolfo was convicted of using the mails in the dissemination of false claims as to the condition and prospects of the Pan Motor Company. The list of victims of these stock speculators is constantly growing, although responsi-ble bankers and Government agents are continually warning the people against these fake promoters and recently the Investment Bankers Association declared war on them. The amount of money lost in stock swindling—estimated by the Government at $500,000,000 a year—is increasing. It is apparent that legislation—even though necessary—can not prevent the evil. It can only be prevented by the education of the public to the danger of the Get-Rich-Quick industry.

Bankers throughout the country can assist materially in exposing these swindlers through persistent warnings in the way of publicity in their local newspapers and also by their refusal to advertise in newspa-pers that accept the advertisements of illegitimate stock promoters. Unfortunately there are certain newspapers in every part of the country that care more for advertising revenue than for the interest of their readers. These newspapers knowingly accept huge, flaring advertisements of worthless stocks. Legitimate newspapers will not accept this sort of advertis-
