

BIG RECEIPTS FROM ISSUE OF AUTO LICENSES.

Great Increase over the Same Period a Year Ago.

With a total of $1,256,287 collected for automobile licenses during the first quarter of 1920, all records for the same period in past years were broken, is announced by Automobile Commissioner E. Austin Baughman.

The most phenomenal figures were reached in January, when a total of $1,115,833 was collected, as against $876,684 in January, 1919.

The Taneytown Grade Crossing.

The following copy of notice, which explains itself, was served, this week, on the Agent of the N. C. R., at Taneytown, by the Board of County Commissioners, through its Attorney, Wm. L. Seabrook.

To the Northern Central Railway Company, a corporation. Whereas, Your railroad operated by steam, crosses at grade a certain highway in Carroll County, Maryland, (to-wit a certain highway leading from the City of Westminster Maryland to the town of Taneytown in said county and northward through said town of Taneytown), at a point in said town of Taneytown where said highway is known as Baltimore St., and

Whereas, A large number of the residents and taxpayers of said county have filed their petition with the Board of County Commissioners of said county, alleging that the said crossing at grade of said highway at Baltimore street in said town of Taneytown is of such a character as to render the passage of locomotives and trains thereon dangerous to life and property, and that in the recent past there have been several narrow escapes from serious accident, or loss of life, at said crossing.

The said Board of County Commissioners of Carroll County, Maryland, hereby gives to your said railway company written notice, the same to be served upon your agent at Taneytown, Carroll County, Maryland, that said Board of County Commissioners, will, thirty days after the service of said notice upon said agent, consider the necessity of further protection against danger at said crossing; and that if, within said thirty days your said railway company shall not have provided some method or device approved by the said Board of County Commissioners for protection against danger at said crossing, it will be the duty of the said Board of County Commissioners to proceed against your said railway company in the manner provided in Article 23, Section 303 of the Code of Public General Laws of the State of Maryland.

Dr. Lewis Resigns.

Rev. Dr. Thomas Hamilton Lewis, for more than 30 years president of the Western Maryland College, Westminster, and a leading figure in the Maryland Annual Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church, has tendered his resignation as head of the college, in order to be relieved of the arduous duties incident to the office of president.

Dr. Lewis succeeded Rev. Dr. James T. Ward as head of the college about 30 years ago, since which it has made rapid strides in all its departments, until now it is classed as one of the leading educational and theological institutions in the country.

Mr. Hoover would make a bully Secretary of something, in somebody's Cabinet, where he could let his fine organizing abilities run in one direction, as he has demonstrated that he can do, and we do not believe that he cares much which party's machine he is with, but we can not imagine him, under present circumstances, any party's candidate for president.

INTER-CHURCH CONFERENCE

Church Workers of Carroll County to Gather in Westminster.

Much publicity is being given just now to the Inter-Church World Movement, which is a united campaign of about 30 denominations, representing the large part of American protestantism, for advancement along all lines of activity, and for a united financial campaign in the co-operating churches.

A conference of all the churches of the county is to be held in the M. E. Church, of Westminster, on Thursday, April 15th, with morning, afternoon and evening sessions. A separate conference is planned for the young people during the afternoon and evening of the same day.

It is desired to have the pastor and a group of the leading workers, men, women and young people from every congregation. All persons attending will bring their own lunch or provide for the same.

The Sweet Corn Growers Meeting.

The sweet corn growers of Carroll county and vicinity held their annual meeting in the Firemen's Hall, Westminster, last Friday. There was a good representation of the farmers from all the districts of the county and the neighboring counties.

A committee was appointed to confer with the Frederick county organization to discuss the formation of a Western Maryland Sweet Corn Growers' Association. The purpose of which is to be the boosting of the growing of sweet corn for canning and improved methods.

The paying of cash upon the delivery of the last load of corn was very warmly discussed from both sides of the question. When the farmer delivers his wheat and other products, he is paid cash. Why not for sweet corn? The interest of the money held by the canners for nearly three months will amount to $10,000.

The old officers were re-elected. Mr. Geo. Rill, of Hampstead was appointed director for Woolery's district left vacant by the death of Mr. Frank H. Tenby.

The question of price for this year's crop was discussed from all angles, and it was unanimously decided it would be impossible to grow sweet corn for less than $25.00 per ton, at which price the farmer was taking a long chance.

Woman's Conference and Short Course

These meetings will be held next week, in Westminster, on Thursday and Friday, April 8 and 9th. Come, all women from far and near, and see the demonstration and hear the lectures which have been prepared for your benefit through the untiring efforts of the various committees.

CONGRESS TO DECLARE WAR AT END BY RESOLUTION.

Difficulty in Legally Ending a War that is Ended in Fact.

A resolution declaring war at an end between the United States and Germany has been reported favorably by the Foreign Relations Committee of the House, and will be taken up in the House, on Monday. It is believed that it will meet with the almost solid opposition of the Democrats, as being a measure intended to discredit the President; and that even if it should pass Congress it would surely be vetoed, and have no hope of being passed over the veto.

While constitutional lawyers say there can be no such thing as peace by resolution of Congress, but that the Constitution provides specifically that treaties shall be made by the President, "with the advice and consent of the Senate," it is nevertheless also true that only Congress can declare war; hence, the query, Why can't Congress bring the same war to an end?

The resolution plan is also receiving much indorsement, due to the fact that the President practically aimed to arrange a treaty without the Senate, therefore it is argued that Congress has the same right to adopt the opposite plan, that of declaring peace without the President.

The odd thing about the situation, is, that the war is over, without any danger of its breaking out again in the near future, but things have become so muddled between authorities, and laws, that peace can not be legally declared, although the whole country wants this done. The Supreme Court may yet have to be called on to straighten out the question.

Some Modern Proverbs.

Cream and rotten eggs always come to the top. The wisdom of the wise is foolishness to fools.

Beauty used to be skin deep, but now it is only on the outside. Once beauty was in the blood, the result of right thinking, right eating, right drinking, right dressing, right social life, but now many purchase it in the drug store, and paste it on the skin—but it won't wash.

Health is wealth; money is but the medium of exchange, whereby the rich and the poor alike, may purchase the necessities and comforts of life. Just as chickens come home to roost" so know this: "be sure your sins will find you out."

Just as water, true to the law of gravitation, seeks its level; so every man seeks his own level; and you can know his estimate by the company he keeps. The world without is but a reflection of your world within "for as a man thinketh in his heart, so is he."

Thoughts are things, and things are the materials for construction or destruction, wherewith we wage the battle of life; for the building of character. Love is not the Divine standard of right living, but it is the oil that removes the opposition to the commands of Jehovah, and makes "His yoke easy and His burden light."

To get the best out of your life, you must put the best into your stomach and into your head. It is just as easy to think in pounds, as it is to think in peace. We rob ourselves by our own self-imposed limitations. Have faith in God, and faith in yourself; look ahead, and then pull open the throttle.

Women Voters Threaten to Strike.

Republican women, of New York, have threatened to go on a "strike," or vote with other parties on election day, unless the state legislature acts favorably on some welfare bills in which the women are interested. This is a splendid argument in favor of women suffrage (?) if the country wants to add more powers favorable to securing class legislation regardless of the general public.

This leads us to reflect that the "general public" stands a pretty good chance, these days, of retaining mighty few of its old-time privileges except that of paying taxes. The "general public" will soon need to organize a party of its own, if it wants to cut any figure among the classes, and avoid being made "the goat" by the various organizations; and the newest of these, "votes for women," is apt to go strenuously after what women want, and to prove an eye-opener for the gallant male boosters of the rights of the weaker (?) sex. "Woman's rights" will evidently not end with the right of voting.

A Most Contemptible Thief.

Gettysburg, April 1.—While the family of Lewis Seylar were trying to snatch a few hours of troubled sleep before the funeral of Anna Seylar, aged 23, who was killed near here by a government mail truck last Thursday, a thief entered the premises and stole practically all of the chickens owned by the father of the unfortunate woman. No clue was left by the man, who could not have failed to know of the unhappy plight of the family and chose their hour of grief to rob them.

GREAT LOSS BY TORNADO

The Middle West Meets Destruction of Life and Property.

The first extensive storm disturbance of the year of a tornado character, occurred on Sunday afternoon and night, and affected Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Missouri, and as far south as Georgia and Alabama. Not only was the property damage immense, but the dead and injured numbered hundreds, of which at least 160 were deaths.

The storm was especially severe in parts of Michigan and Illinois; but the strange thing about it was that while hundreds of miles in area were covered, the worst storm centres were separated by areas where there was little or no damage, each storm centre appearing to be separate from the other; but, everywhere the result was the same, thousands of buildings torn to pieces, trees and telephone poles leveled, and in some sections great damage by flood.

Scientists explain the peculiarity by agreeing that two great storms met each other, head on, and that the impact caused a rotary motion which formed eddies, or tornadoes. Sixty-five are known to be dead in Georgia, twenty in Ohio, thirty in Illinois, twenty-eight in Indiana and nine in Michigan.

The property loss in the Chicago area alone is estimated at $6,000,000, at Elgin, Ill., about $4,000,000, in Ohio about $2,000,000, and millions in other sections. While there was an insurance protection, it will cover but a very small portion of the loss sustained.

Threshermen and Farmers' Meeting.

The Threshermen and Farmers' Protective Association, met last week. The meeting was called to order by Thos. Slingluff in absence of R. Smith Snader, president. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. Mr. Davis stated that the object of the meeting was to protect the threshermen and farmers using state roads. The Secretary was authorized to mail application blanks to all threshermen on list, to request them to secure new members. Seventeen new members have enrolled at $3.00 which amounts to $51.00. Bill for stamps and envelopes was ordered to be paid, which was $2.15.

The next meeting will be April 3rd., at 1:30 P. M.

A More Strict Marriage Law.

By vote of 80 to 14, the House passed to the second reading the Eppler-Joseph marriage bill. In speaking of the bill Mr. Joseph said: "I feel very gratified at having finally passed a substantial amendment to the marriage laws which I believe will do a great deal toward eliminating the evils which have been so prevalent in the past. Since 1914 I have introduced at each session of the General Assembly a marriage bill in the hope of correcting the evils which have placed a stain upon Maryland's good name.

"The amendments proposed raise the age of consent from 16 to 18 years of age for the female and make it obligatory for one of the contracting parties to appear in person before the marriage clerk in order to obtain the license. There is no question in my mind, but that many of the infant and objectionable marriages were caused by the parties desiring to evade the law securing the license for them. This irresponsible person would simply swear that the answers given to the questions prepared by the clerk were true to the best of their knowledge and belief and the only knowledge they possessed was that given them by the party desiring to evade the law. No one could be charged with perjury.

"By the adopted amendment the contracting party, swearing falsely to the statements can be convicted for perjury. This will deter many from seeking to obtain a license unlawfully. "I believe that the bill as passed will go a long way toward preventing the long existing marriage evil in this state."

May Be Wooden Shoes Next.

Anyone who wishes something novel in footwear, even if it is not nobby, may have opportunity soon to give play to his or her fancy. Dutch manufacturers, learning of the high prices in the United States, are sending salesmen to this country to introduce wooden shoes to the American trade.

The outlook would not seem to be promising from the style basis, if no other, but the wooden shoe, clumsy and queer as it is, would be better for the human foot than the average shoe the American wears.

In the war period the examiners found comparatively few men with perfectly sound feet. The vast majority suffered from corns, bunions, flat feet, fallen arches or some other pedal defect or injury. The army shoe comes nearer being a good shoe and a sensible shoe than the shoes the American males have been accustomed to buy.

High heels, pointed toes, narrow lasts and other things demanded by "style" have distorted the foot of the American woman and done much injury to her—more, in fact, than many women know.

Present high prices for leather shoes may make a market for the wooden shoe among farmers, laborers and others who have not been in this country long and who knew the sabot abroad, but not outside that group, it would appear.

LEGISLATIVE SESSION DRAWING TO A CLOSE.

Resolution Passed to Restrain Operation of Equal Suffrage.

The soldiers' bonus bill finally passed the House, on Monday, by a vote of 76 to 2. Negative votes were cast by Messrs. Burke, of Baltimore county; Benson and Squier, of Cecil; Duddner, of Frederick; Corbett, of Washington, and Austin, of Wicomico. The bill provides $10.00 a month to each man in the service. There is to be a bond issue of $9,000,000, the interest and sinking fund to be cared for by a direct tax.

The Burke fraudulent advertising bill, sponsored by the Advertising Club, of Baltimore, and generally known as the Printer's Ink Model Statute, was finally passed as amended by the Senate on Tuesday. The amendment was offered by Shirley Carter and adopted by the Judicial Proceeding Committee last week, and protects the advertiser by specifying that it must be shown that he knew or should have known by the exercise of reasonable care that the statements in the "ad." were fraudulent or misleading.

The "bonus" bill may carry a referendum clause, before it passes the Senate.

The Burke Racing Commission bill was passed to its third reading in the Senate late this afternoon by a test vote of 15 to 12. Right on top of that the Senate did the seemingly incongruous thing of first defeating the Norris amendment, prohibiting all racing, and then passing to its third reading by a vote of 16 to 11, what had been the Nettle drastic anti-betting bill, albeit with a referendum clause. An explanation accepted by many in Annapolis tonight is that should both bills pass the people of Maryland will have an opportunity to vote as to whether they want regulated racing or not, and if the vote should be in the affirmative the racing commission will be there to do it.

The bills introduced by House Member Emory L. Coblentz, providing for a reduction from five to three County Commissioners and the appointment of a road superintendent, both of which were indorsed by the Farmers' Association, are apparently doomed. In a statement yesterday the four Republican House members, McBride, Ramsburg, Duddner and Cutshall, came out against both measures. The bills are now in the hands of the county Delegates, to whom they were referred after being introduced.

The resolution passed on Monday by the House of Delegates concurring with the Frick joint resolution passed by the Senate on Tuesday, authorizing and directing the Attorney General to bring suit or suits in the Supreme Court of the United States to enjoin the Secretary of State of the United States from proclaiming the federal suffrage amendment prior to the holding of a referendum thereon in certain states, is declared to be the first action of its kind in American legal history.

The papers have not been giving very enlightening reports of what has been done in the legislature, this week, and some of the bills acted on have been very hard to follow for the purpose of briefly reviewing.

Burglarizing "Private" Stocks.

The stealing of private stocks of liquors is getting to be a regular business in the vicinity of Baltimore, and perhaps other large cities. This is an evidence of the "increase of criminality" since the advent of prohibition, and of course is chargeable to prohibition. Those who want to surely preserve their life-saving supply will need to build bomb-proof containers, erect barbed wire entanglements, lay electric alarm systems, and perhaps mount a machine gun or two.

Carload of Paper Lost.

In the wreck at the Bruceville bridge, last week, was a car of paper consigned to the News-Post, Frederick, and a car of box material for the Ox-Fibre Co. Practically the entire consignment is a loss. The cars, it is stated, are too badly damaged to be gathered together and salvaged. The car of paper contained 56 rolls. Very few rolls will be of any use. The loss on this car alone will run close to $3,000. Order for this paper was placed early in February, and because of the great newsprint shortage, the loss is a serious one, as the paper is hard to replace. The total loss of Tuesday's accident will amount possibly to near $10,000.

Elmer L. Murray Goes to Japan.

Elmer L. Murray, son of Rev. and Mrs. L. F. Murray, of Frederick, Md., who has for the past three years been associated with the Department of State, at Washington, has accepted an appointment in the American Embassy, Tokyo, Japan. He will leave Saturday, April 3, for San Francisco, from which place he will sail on April 10, on the steamer "Nile."

The people of Uniontown and vicinity will remember young Murray, having received his earlier schooling in that town. His father was pastor of the Church of God, there, for ten years. All join in wishing the young man a very safe and pleasant journey to the far east.

TREATY MAY BE REVIVED.

President Petitioned to Resubmit the Peace Treaty.

A petition headed by Cardinal Gibbons, has been presented to President Wilson urging him to send the Treaty back to the Senate, and to accept the Lodge reservation to Article 10, and the other reservations. The petition is signed by a large number of prominent men representing both parties.

The condition is added in the plan proposed, however, that in ratifying the Treaty and entering the League of Nations the United States would be free to modify these reservations, the voters in the next election approving.

The covering letter, submitted to the President and written by Mr. Colcord, follows:

"With as simple formality as may be consistent with propriety and the high respect we owe you, we desire to present what is probably as spontaneous an appeal as was ever presented to the President of the republic. Neither its inception or signing is due to any peace society or other organization, nor have any such contributed to them. They come from the quiet and voluntary efforts of one man, who merely wrote to men and women of distinction in suggestion of the proposal and found an amazing response in its favor, which convinced him that he had appealed to the real heart of the people.

"What we offer is more than an appeal. As devoted friends of the League of Nations we very respectfully propose a plan by which the world and we as a part of it may immediately enter upon the benefits of our membership in the League of Nations on whatever basis of agreement may be immediately reached, and the irreconcilable points of difference besetted later by referendum or otherwise, as may seem desirable.

"Thus you might take the question of the adoption of your highest ideals respecting the League of Nations before the electorate and the opposing view be presented on the other hand without keeping the world waiting for our aid and without subjecting the vital question of our becoming a part of the League of Nations to the uncertainties and perils of a partisan political campaign, in which, by entirely unforeseen influences, all may be lost."

Declined to Rule on Cider.

Attorney General Schaffer of Pennsylvania, has declined to interpret rules for the making of cider in the state. He was asked a few days ago by a resident of a central county to give his views in regard to the manufacture of cider, but as the Attorney General only advises State officials, he refused to take up the subject for an individual. The letter sent to the Attorney General reads:

"I have a cider press, where we make cider for the farmers for apple butter. It is the only press for miles around, and the people have a heavy talk about it. I do not want to do anything outside of the law. There will be lots of apples wasted if I do not. Now let me know about it. There are poor people who don't know how to do without apple butter in our neighborhood."

The Disposal of Carcasses of Domestic Animals.

As the practice of allowing dead animals to remain unburied is a menace to the health of the live stock of the community, and a frequent cause of the spread of disease, it is hereby required that horses, mules, asses, cattle, swine, or other domestic animals having died from any cause, to be burned or buried at a depth of at least three feet, or sent to some establishment where dead animals are disposed of in a manner to prevent their becoming a menace. Regulation in effect April 1, 1920.

Too Many Prescriptions for Liquor.

In the opinion of State Prohibition Commissioner Richard S. Dodson, physicians of Baltimore are issuing too many permits to obtain liquor from druggists, and further, that the physicians are not exercising sufficient care in giving their patients proper medical examinations before issuing the permits.

Mr. Dodson also sounded a note of warning to the physicians against the practice of writing the names and addresses of their patients in an illegible manner. In many instances, he stated, the names are written in a sort of scrawl and the addresses likewise. He asserted, however, that he had found less opposition to the prohibition law than might be anticipated on the part of those who would naturally be expected to oppose it, adding that many people had expressed themselves as being desirous of conforming to the laws of the country.

C. E. Committee Meeting.

An Executive Committee meeting of the Carroll County C. E. Union will be held in the M. P. church, Westminster, Saturday afternoon, April 10, at 2:30 o'clock. Every Society is urged to be represented.

By a division of the Baltimore delegation, the city lost moving pictures after 2 P. M., on Sundays. Eight of the city delegates voted against the proposition. The Baltimore American regards the decision as a "big city chance lost" and that a "solid vote would have triumphed."

Already they are talking in the Senate of investigating pre-election campaign expenses, Senator Borah (Rep.) making the charge that candidates on both sides are spending immense sums to control the National conventions. Several bills have been presented, one limiting the pre-election amount to be spent in each State to $10,000. Perhaps Senator Newberry was not such a lavish spender, after all?

When the smoke clears away, it will likely be seen that the present legislature has not covered itself with many glorious achievements, but that what we sometimes refer to as the "sober second thought," will place a light on actions quite different from the light shown at Annapolis. A showing of the debit and credit side, after it is all over, promises to be of interest—especially to the last resort tax-payers who had no axes to grind.

It is even reported that Dutch manufacturers are sending salesmen to this country to introduce wooden shoes to the American trade. There are lots of people here with "wooden" heads, but wooden feet would be a distinctly new departure. Why does not some leader of society start the barefooted fashion? Nearly every part of the body has had a try at bareness; why not the feet, especially as it would relieve a lot of corn and bunions suffering?

Perhaps the inside history of racing legislation at Annapolis, this winter, will never be written for publication; but, we hope it has not been so very bad that it could not be written for general reading—rumors to the contrary, notwithstanding. It is a pretty serious matter to even hint at "slush funds," and we trust that there is no foundation in that direction, other than a will guess, due to sore disappointment that gambling at races was not abolished.

The Hoover movement throughout the country, will bear keeping in mind. The situation is a most unusual one. Mr. Hoover himself seems disinclined to help nominate himself, and there is a reasonable doubt as to his party affiliations; the leaders of both parties are pretty emphatic that they do not want him; and yet, there is a Hoover sentiment, backed by influential friends, as disquieting to Republicans, as is the uncertainty of Mr. Wilson's attitude toward a third term, to the Democrats.

If this country goes to the extent of getting into financial straits, due to lavish expenditures by the "newly rich" it will not be because there has not been a great deal of wise advice given, to save, and stop playing the "beggars on horseback" act. When the pinch comes—if it does come—there will be thousands who have voluntarily placed themselves outside of the worthy, but unfortunate, class, and will deserve no greater consolation than that they acted the fool, when fool-acting was good.

"Wilsonian."

President Wilson appears to have attached his name to a standard of personal stubbornness that may hereafter be referred to as "Wilsonian." While the Senate may have played the same hand in the Treaty controversy, the fact still remains—especially in view of the partially non-partisan stand of that body—that it is the President who will get the bulk of the credit for the defeat of the Treaty, because of his unwillingness to compromise on his own personal stand.

In these days of admitted wide liberty in thought and action on the part of the people, and of extensive recourse to the referendum as a legitimate way to settle differences of opinion, the President appears to have voluntarily taken his stand against public sentiment; though it must be acknowledged that he appears to believe that he represents actual public sentiment, in his willingness, and suggestion, that the Treaty case be made a "campaign issue."

But, view the matter as we may, as to responsibility, on the face of the situation as it stands, the President has been "Wilsonian," almost without precedent in his course, whether we regard "stubbornness" the right word, or whether it should be a more allowable expression denoting superior judgment.

A "Gas" Combine Charge.

It is being charged that there is a colossal combine being operated by several large oil corporations operating in Texas and elsewhere, to control not only the price of gasoline, but to exercise control over the prices of automobiles and accessories as well. So strong is this opinion, that the Attorney-General of Texas has been asked to institute suits against companies for alleged violation of the anti-trust laws of the State.

The above may, or may not, explain the rising cost of gasoline. The suits can hardly do any harm, and if the charges are well founded, the result should be to break up the monopoly, as well as reduce prices.

The probability is that combines along a good many lines, are working in this country. It would be remarkable if this was not true, as the opportunity has existed, under the cloak of "war prices" to boost many prices beyond the legitimate level caused by honest supply and demand, and it is hardly true that all of the big figures are caused by high labor costs.

Laws Should be Obeyed, or Repealed.

A close study of the Newberry case, in Michigan, seems to show that while the law arbitrarily fixing the sum that can be legally spent in a Senatorial campaign ($3750.00) was violated, none of the charges establishing bribery and corruption were sustained, which left the indictment rest solely on the excess of money spent.

There is now a movement on foot to investigate the campaign of Mr. Ford, who opposed Newberry, and this is fitting as any movement can be. As the case stands, Senator Newberry has been convicted of doing that which dozens of candidates do, but are never prosecuted for. He played chances on getting through, like others, and lost—perhaps because those who prosecuted the case were not "good losers" themselves.

As prosecutions under such laws have been so rare, the Newberry case will likely result in drawing the attention of states to their own like laws, and the decision of the Supreme Court in the case will be awaited with considerable interest. In the meantime, if we are to judge by the expressions of many Michigan newspapers, the convicted ones have been strengthened, rather than injured, by the case, even though the sentiment prevails the laws of a state should either be obeyed, or repealed.

The Country Schools.

Commissioner Claxton in an address a few days ago stated there was a great necessity for an entire change of studies in the country schools. Old England had all its ancient ideas upset by the great world war. Oxford for 600 years and Cambridge for 800 years built its educational system on the classics. Its students spent all the centuries studying Greek and Latin languages which were of no earthly use in practical everyday life, and a few weeks ago when the study of Greek was abolished and precious time spent in this useless study was to be employed in some practical useful study the Oxford students rose in rebellion at the sacrilegious slaughter of this ancient idol.

Now that the country boy or girl is lured to the pleasures of the city movies it is time to begin such studies as will interest these children from the farms in farm subjects. Instead of long hours in studying history, theoretical nature studies and a smattering of Latin, why not spend some time in teaching seed testing, testing soils, the proper care of live stock on the farm, and the time and how to plant gardens.

Instead of wasting hours in the High School on Latin, French and Philosophy, when the carpenter, bricklayer, plumber and machinist command a dollar an hour, why not have the vocational training teach a boy to drive a nail straight, to saw and plane a board, to sew leather and give them some ideas on electricity its application. A school garden or a home garden should be part of every rural school course.

The value of birds in the extermination of insect pests the value of fruit on the farm are valuable studies. Teacher and scholar would derive health and pleasure from the use of rake and hoe and would become as much interested in these practical useful things as they now receive from basketball, football and baseball. The next generation will have to learn the gospel of work and economy. What better beginning than in the country school where the hope of the Nation rests.

Already some states have begun this system in their High Schools so much so that a High School in Missouri is today repairing harness for the farmers, repairing wagons, putting in home conveniences for the people in town. They have paid for their tools and equipped a general repair shop. It is found it has in no way lowered their averages in their book studies and that it gets the boys acquainted with the city, its people and supplies a need in these strenuous times when it is difficult to get anything done even at exorbitant cost.—J. H. Shepherd in Maryland Farmer.

Wisely and Nicely Done.

The question as to what to do with ex-Presidents has bothered the Nation for a century past. It is not a circumstance to the question as to what to do with a President, which the Democratic party has seen gradually but irresistibly looming for immediate answer.

It must be remarked that a very gentlemanly and dignified means of answering it has been found. With the stage carefully set for him by the Democratic leaders and with a full Democratic audience at hand to demonstrate the party's approval of his advice, Representative Humphreys, of Mississippi has sent Mr. Wilson an important warning that he is no longer the head of his party and must not plan to lead it in the forthcoming campaign. Gracious, complimentary, mindful not to deprecate the argument that the party deserves retention in power because of the glorious record it has made in the administration of the nation's affairs, Mr. Humphreys told the President; "Here is your hat. A third term is in principle abhorrent to all true Democrats." And as he sat down at the end of forty minutes of carefully thought-out reasons why, the halls of Congress resounded with applause and Champ Clark and Claude Kitchin and all the other Democratic leaders rushed over and wrung his hands in joy and gratulation.

Thus was brought about what virtually amounted to a real copy of the "Book of the Dead," and it contains the funeral ritual of the Egyptians, describing in mystical language the experiences of the soul after death and the text it must quote to escape the torments and trials of the lower world. In one chapter, the longest in the book, is a picture showing the judgment which the defunct, before entering into the fields of the blessed, will undergo in the lower world, in the presence of Osiris and 42 judges of monstrous form, who are on hand to devour the guilty and drink his blood. Anubis, the god of the dead, and Thoth, the god of wisdom, examine the deceased by weighing his heart in the "sacred" balances of Justice. The famous "negative confession" enumerates 42 capital sins from which the deceased must be free. Should he fail to pass the ordeal, he is either handed over to be devoured by the monster, part hippopotamus, part crocodile and part lion, which represents the Egyptian Cerebus, or is thrown into the fiery lake.

For automobile radiator caps a figure of an eagle has been patented with wings that are flapped while a car is in motion by a pendulum inside the bird.

Long life is claimed by its French inventor for a dry battery that is sealed with a zinc cap connected with the zinc shell instead of the usual wax covering.

The total production of radium in the United States up to the close of 1918 is estimated at approximately 55 grammes, which is understood to be more than half of all the radium the world has produced.

Buenos Aires is one of the fastest growing cities of the world. The census of 1914 showed 1,575,800 inhabitants, and it is now estimated to be over 2,000,000, since immigrants are arriving at the rate of more than 10,000 per week. Until recently the city has retained most of the characteristics of the small Latin American city.

The crops in Switzerland in 1919 were considerably below those in 1918, with the exception of the fruit crop. This was due to unfavorable atmospheric conditions, a cold and wet spring, drought in early summer and again in late summer, followed by sudden falls in temperature and early frosts, and to the fact that the acreage planted in 1919 was smaller than in 1918.

NEW OCCUPATION FOR GOAT

Billy and Nanny May Be Profitably Employed in Clearing Away the Impeding Underbrush.

The monkey cotton picker was never an entire success. The monkey could pick the cotton, but it cost more to provide human direction to guide his efforts than the negro cotton pickers asked for the whole job, picking, directing and all. But the Angora goat as a clearer of land requires no direction. Just string a few strands of barbed wire around the land to be cleared so that Mr. and Mrs. Goat and the kids shall not clear the land that is not to be cleared and they will do the job without even a casual suggestion from the land owner.

The success which has attended the raising of Angora goats in the rugged Ozark country of southwestern Missouri has suggested to specialists of the department of agriculture that it might be equally profitable to place such herds on many other wild tracts, particularly those which have been cut over, because these goats are proving of great help in clearing away underbrush. Growing mohair and producing kids, the Angoras in the Ozarks are also trimming down the brush, manuring the hills and preparing the way for grass, cattle and sheep.

According to reports secured by a representative of the state college of agriculture in Missouri, the Angoras required to clear an acre of land varies from two to five, depending on the density and size of the brush.

SOUL'S ORDEAL AFTER DEATH

Old Volume, Known as "Judgment of the Dead," is a Fancy of the Ancient Egyptians.

"Book of the Dead" is a very old book, known in ancient Egypt as the "Judgment of the Dead," and it contains the funeral ritual of the Egyptians, describing in mystical language the experiences of the soul after death and the text it must quote to escape the torments and trials of the lower world. In one chapter, the longest in the book, is a picture showing the judgment which the defunct, before entering into the fields of the blessed, will undergo in the lower world, in the presence of Osiris and 42 judges of monstrous form, who are on hand to devour the guilty and drink his blood. Anubis, the god of the dead, and Thoth, the god of wisdom, examine the deceased by weighing his heart in the "sacred" balances of Justice. The famous "negative confession" enumerates 42 capital sins from which the deceased must be free. Should he fail to pass the ordeal, he is either handed over to be devoured by the monster, part hippopotamus, part crocodile and part lion, which represents the Egyptian Cerebus, or is thrown into the fiery lake.

Queer Wedding Presents.

The following are a few of the many curious wedding presents that have been received by those about to enter the bonds of matrimony.

A well-known author received on his marriage, from a rival man of letters, a scrapbook containing a collection of all the adverse criticisms his works had ever received; while a popular artist was on similar occasion presented with a set of elementary works upon self-instruction in drawing and painting.

Unusually vexatious was the gift received from his neighbors by an infirm octogenarian who had married a pleasure-loving woman more than fifty years his junior. It took the form of a large brass cage, "intended"—so ran the accompanying note—"to restrain the wayward flight of a giddy young wife who had married a decrepit old fool for his money."

Timid Old Soul.

My aunt was a timid old soul and was quite afraid of holdups. For safe keeping she always put her money in her stocking. One day when she was going to do some Christmas shopping she thought she would play a joke on the holdups. She put the money in her pocket and carried her purse. In the purse she put newspaper crumpled up. She kept her hand in the pocket that had the purse and walked along merrily. But to her surprise when she had purchased her needs she reached for the money, but it was missing. Then, forgetting, she reached for her pocketbook and pulled out the paper. She had to give back all the articles and walk home empty-handed.—Chicago Tribune.

As to Brevity.

Of course brevity can be carried too far, may be awkward and inarticulate and incomplete. We may be brief and tedious at the same time. Some one brought Voltaire, the master of brevity, an epigram in two lines. "Ah!" said Voltaire. "Very good, but it drags in spots." The old comic dramatist said of a dull oaf: "The laconic ass makes brevity ridiculous." We do not want to make brevity ridiculous or let it make us so. Nevertheless, we should all do well to cultivate and practice brevity, and we may be sure that we should be much more listened to if we spoke less.—Youth's Companion.

Incredulous Lady.

"Why do you sit at a ouija board when you might be enjoying interesting conversation? You can't believe a thing the toy says."
"Well," replied Miss Cayenne, "I mightn't believe the conversation, either."

More Truth Than Poetry

IN THIS OLD WORLD WITH ITS STEADY GRIND, IT IS BETTER TO BE AHEAD THAN A LITTLE BEHIND.

THERE IS A GOOD DEAL OF TRUTH IN THAT, NO MATTER WHAT YOU MAY THINK OF IT AS "POETRY." HOW CAN YOU GET AHEAD? THE ANSWER IS PLAIN. SAVE! UNLESS YOU DO, YOU WILL ALWAYS BE A LITTLE BEHIND. SAVE A LITTLE, NO MATTER HOW SMALL YOUR EARNINGS. THEN PLACE THE SAVINGS IN A RELIABLE BANK LIKE OURS WHERE IT WILL BE SAFE. NO MATTER HOW SMALL THE AMOUNT, YOU WILL THEN BE AHEAD INSTEAD OF BEHIND. IT'S THE THING TO DO. TRY IT.

Wonderful New Coal Oil Light

Burns Vapor Saves Oil
Beats Electric or Gasoline

Awarded GOLD MEDAL at World's Exposition San Francisco

Scientists say it is the nearest to day-light in color

Costs You Nothing

To have this wonderful new Aladdin coal oil (kerosene) mantle lamp demonstrated right in your own home. You don't need to pay us a cent unless you are perfectly satisfied and agree that it is the best lamp you ever saw.

Twice the Light On Half the Oil

Recent tests by the Government and noted scientists at 35 leading Universities prove the Aladdin gives more than twice the light and burns less than half as much oil as the best round wick, open flame lamps on the market. Thus the Aladdin will pay for itself many times over in oil saved, to say nothing of the increased quantity and quality of pure white light it produces. A style for every need.

$1000.00 Will Be Given by the Mantle Lamp Company—the largest Coal Oil (kerosene) mantle lamp house in the world—to any person who shows them an oil lamp equal to the Aladdin. Would they dare invite such comparison with all other lights if there were any doubt about the superiority of the Aladdin?

Let Us Call and Show You This Greatest of All Lights.

Saleswoman Had to Admit That Acquaintance Would Be Wrong to Make a Change.

They were in Pullman seats on a night train, both making up expense accounts. One leaned over and said: "Ever paid it?" "I—think not. Do you?" "Surest thing you know. All the money I spend I make up in my accounts." Then came the usual question: "Say, what line are you in?" The rich society girl who had offered her services to raise money for the colossal war work campaign smiled, played the novice and parried the question: "What line are you in?" "I'm in petticoats. But if you want to make money go into corsets. I was in corsets five years and made a pile of money, but you get tired of selling one line, and so I went into petticoats. But, believe me, if you want to make money go into corsets. Say, what town did you do today?" "R—" "Did you make good?" "Yes, I think I did fairly well." "How much did you do?" "About $50,000" (the actual amount pledged to Miss — for the campaign). The saleswoman, who had considered a $200 day in corsets good business, gasped: "Heavens, don't go into corsets!"

Might.

"The pen is mightier than the sword." "Yes," replied Senator Sorghum; "but a good typewriting machine properly managed may be mightier than either."

Poorly Trained.

Caller—Can I see Mrs. Swelton?
Maid—She's not at home.
Caller—When will she be back?
Maid—Dunno. She ain't gone out yet.

No Economy.

"You have been burning the wind!" protested the policeman.
"Maybe I was," answered Mr. Chuggins; "but not enough of it to make any difference in my gasoline bill."

PROBABLY NOT.

"The circus has cut out thrillers." "Couldn't compete with the movies, it's pose."

Intensive Rhetoric.

When epithets are launched so free in oratoric games, We find there really can be High art in calling names.

Too Vague.

He—My dear girl, don't let this meeting of ours do like one of a legislative body's—a adjourn sine die.
She—What's that?
He—Without naming the day.

He Calculates Time by It.

"Does your watch keep good time?" "Splendid. I can depend on it all ways to be about 15 minutes fast."

Its Result.

"How does a needle bath feel?" "Just sew-sew."

Paint is Cheaper than Lumber
"Save the Surface and you Save All."

With lumber so high you cannot afford not to paint—while with labor high, you cannot afford to use common paint. The best paint to use is 100% Pure Paint. You can easily know when you are getting this by the label on the can as every reliable paint has the analysis right on the label. "Look into it."

100% PURE PAINT

consists of pure, NECESSARY ingredients, properly ground and mixed in the right proportions. Into a pure paint go no chalk, no clay, no sand, no whitening under either plain or fancy names—such as calcium carbonate, magnesium silicate, aluminum silicate or barium sulphate. 100% Pure Paint contains no adulterating oils such as petroleum spirits, asphalt spirits, drying oil, etc. The formula for pure paint is very simple; pure White Lead, pure Zinc, pure Linseed Oil, pure Turpentine and the necessary tinting color.

Monarch 100 per-cent Pure Paint Fulfills all these conditions.

BACK AGAIN.

Isaac wished to consult a physician and asked a friend to recommend one. "And what does he charge?" asked Isaac, making a note of the doctor's name. "Five dollars for the first visit, three dollars for succeeding calls" was the reply. Half an hour later Isaac entered the physician's office and gave this greeting: "Good morning, doctor, I'm back again."

SPORES SCATTERED BY WIND

Remarkable Reproduction of Species of Fungus is One of the Wonders of Nature.

We often wonder at the amazingly sudden upspringing of mushrooms and toadstools. Today the green of the lawn is unbroken. In the night a gentle rain falls, and we wake to see a crowded group of yellowish-white "inkycaps" spreading their parasols in the very shadow of our doorstep. Mr. Burton O. Longyear in the Outer's Book describes the marvelous reproductive powers of these fragile and short-lived plants.

Each species of fungus produces upon or within some part of its fruit body countless numbers of minute reproductive bodies called spores. So small and light are they that they float in the air as an invisible dust. Many of them fall to the ground and are washed into the soil by rains. Others are wafted away on every breeze, carried possibly for days, to be brought down at length by rain many leagues from their starting point. In this way they are carried to the ends of the earth, dusted into every crack and cranny, lodged on every exposed surface of wood or soil and caught on every dew-moistened leaf or twig.

The amazing number of spores produced by a single fungus can be realized only by knowing their relative size. Thus in the case of most puffballs at least three thousand of the globular spores, when laid side by side, would be required to form a line one inch long. A compact mass of such spores, the size of a parlor-match head, would contain the incomprehensible number of thirty millions of these microscopic bodies, enough to cover an acre of ground with four spores for every square inch of surface.

PIPE MAKERS USING BIRCH

Wood Has Been Found to Be Eminent-ly Suitable, After Treatment by a Special Process.

American birch since the war has acquired a South American name. Nowadays it is fashioned into pipes and then called something besides birch. The only evident reason for the change seems to be the fact that the process that converts soft birch into a hard pipe was originated in a Latin American country, according to the New York Evening Sun.

Birchwood owes its new name and its present prominence in the pipe industry to the war, which cut off the supply of briar and sent the prices of the stocks in America sky high.

Substitutes have been sought for the expensive imported briar. The cessation of importations with the war—they haven't been resumed yet—intensifies the search for an American wood that would provide a suitable substitute.

Many native hardwoods were tried without success. Most of them were either too hard to be worked into pipes or too heavy to rest comfortably between a smoker's lips. Then some one hit on the expedient of trying a soft wood and employing a process that would give it the required hardness for use in pipe manufacturing. Birch was found the most suitable for the purpose.

Oil Wells Detected Electrically. New uses for electricity are constantly appearing. One of the latest is the detection of crude oil in the earth instead of boring for it.

It is stated that crude petroleum has been located electrically in the shallow oilfield near Corsicana, Texas, and that further tests are being made around Burkburnett. A series of batteries is used for the test, the negative terminal being connected to a wire which is dropped into dry waterhole, valley or indentation, and the positive terminal being connected to a "land wire," which is used to make contact at various points on the surface of the field investigated. It is stated that the higher electrical resistance of oil compared with other constituents of the earth, permits it to be located by the reduced deflection of a sensitive instrument in the circuit.

"Easter Riding" in Bohemia.

In various parts of Bohemia, now the principal state of the new Czecho-Slovak republic, a curious old custom prevails, that of "Easter riding." On each Easter day, at four o'clock in the morning, the riders assemble, dressed in black and carrying crosses, flags and other emblems. From Schonwald they proceed on a three-hours' ride to Kulm, where they attend service. The priest, after a sermon wherein he refers to the horse as a symbol of power, bestows his benediction on the animals and their riders. This done, the riders visit the neighboring castles, where they receive hospitality, subsequently making their way homeward, escorted by a band and a large crowd. The origin of this curious custom is lost in the mists of antiquity.

China's Tea Industry.

Indications are that the Chinese government intends to make every effort to encourage the tea industry in that country and to increase China's tea trade with foreign countries, and the Peking cabinet recently decided to establish a tea bureau under the ministry of agriculture and commerce. It is stated that the tea industry of China is not keeping pace with the world's increasing consumption of tea, and while China is still holding its trade in the finer qualities, India and Ceylon have practically captured the market from China as to the common black teas.

THIRTY FIVE YEARS AGO

WE BEGAN THE DRY GOODS BUSINESS AS

G. W. WEAVER & SON.

A small beginning it is true, but a steady and splendid growth every year until in recent years we have fully competed in area of floor space occupied—in assortments of Merchandise—with any store in Southern Pennsylvania outside of the larger cities. This growth in business was not due to any personality father and son may have possessed, but in the fact of always trying to give Honest Service and Honest Merchandise at Honest Prices. This is best attested by the fact that we number among our present customers the same people, and their descendants, who bought from us thirty-five years ago.

We are beginning this New Year, we believe, with a better Stock of Merchandise, and with the same firm purpose of only Honest Goods at Honest Prices.

Every Day Brings Us New Goods.

HIS DARK PAST

By MARY MORISON

(©, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"And so," said Mrs. Trent, "we want your advice."

"Yes, Cousin Anne, we were sure you would know just how to handle it," chimed in Daisy.

Cousin Anne looked at them with a rather humorous expression in her beautiful gray eyes. "Let me see if I have it straight," she said, showing her concentration on the subject in hand by a most alluring frown. "There are two men—one named Tommy and one named James—both standing on their toes to marry Daisy here."

"Well, really, Cousin Anne," interrupted Daisy conscientiously, "James has never said anything as definite as that. It is just that he keeps coming here day after day and sends me all sorts of lovely things—"

Mrs. Trent broke in rather breathlessly: "Among them some French poems, which, of course, I wouldn't let her read!"

"Dear, dear, how dreadful of him!" asserted Anne Dunsany, a sternly repressed twinkle showing in her eyes. "What else does he do, Daisy?"

"It's more the way he looks at me than anything else," said Daisy. "His eyes are so, well, intent—they make me fairly squirm. And then the next minute I think he's laughing at me. Tommy says he knows there's something very queer about James, dropping down there in Glenbrook from nowhere that we know anything about and keeping a dead silence about his life before he came. It does look queer, doesn't it?"

"I can see how it would look queer to Glenbrook," replied Anne equivocally. "These silent, mysterious, fascinating men with intent looks in their eyes generally bear investigation."

"That's what Tommy says," smiled Daisy.

Anne looked at her young cousin in silence for a moment. Then she rose, picked up her very chic hat and placed it on her golden head with a most becoming tilt all her own.

"I'll be back before long," she said. "I'm going to have a look at the mysterious James house. An observant woman can learn almost anything about a man from his front door mat"—and waving her hand in farewell she disappeared down the garden path and out the big gates onto the road.

In spite of the difference of ten years in their ages and the difference of a world in their experiences of life, Anne Dunsany was very fond of her little cousin. By some freak of consanguinity they looked almost enough alike to be sisters and Anne took a very deep and personal interest in everything that touched her.

"I could easily murder that James man in cold blood if he is playing with her," she mused as she approached a comfortable house set back from the street. She was just in time to see a motorcar dash through the gates and disappear in a cloud of dust up the road.

"That's James," mused Anne. "Now for his house!"

It was a nice house from the outside, Anne had to admit. The white pillars of its broad veranda gleamed in stately purity at all suspicious passersby as if denying their owner's possible blackness of reputation. The wicker chairs and tables, the magazines and books strewn around in pleasant disarray looked attractive.

"I wish I could see the inside," suddenly thought Anne. "He's out and I don't see any servants around—I'm going to explore!" and before she had time to reconsider she had hurried up the front walk, mounted the steps and entered the house.

She walked into a long, low room. The late afternoon sun came through the open windows and touched the rows of old books that reached up to the ceiling with a golden light. It was a most satisfactory room, and Anne sank down on a deep sofa to take it in. She picked up a little red bound volume from beside her—open, where its late reader had thrown it only a short while ago—and caught her breath. "Monsieur Beaucaire!" she murmured.

What memories the title brought back to her! It reminded her of a wonderful summer years ago, of long days spent in a small white sailboat on a bright, blue ocean and of evenings when a man with quizzical gray eyes had recited bits of "Monsieur Beaucaire" in the moonlight.

"It was one thousand years ago," said Anne Dunsany.

So absorbed was she in the sudden rush of memories that surged over her that she did not hear a motor drive up or a heavy footstep enter the room.

A man stood in the doorway, quite still as he caught sight of Anne. His face whitened a little and his mouth twisted into a quizzical little half smile, but his voice was quite steady as he said:

"Hello, Anne."

"Monsieur Beaucaire" dropped from Anne's grasp and lay unnoticed on the floor as she sprang from her seat. "Jimmy!" she exclaimed, "how on earth did you get here? Am I dreaming?" and then in a sudden realization: "Oh, you are James!"

"James to Daisy," answered the man, still looking at her from his place in the doorway, "but Jimmy to you, Anne—always and forever more." There was utter silence in the big room for a minute, and then the man went on:

"Do you remember the first time you called me Jimmy?" he asked. "It was at the Van Norden's. We sat out six dances in succession and started all the old gossips talking. That was the first time I told you I loved you, too—and I—"

"Don't, Jimmy," said Anne. "Our love didn't treat us very well, you know, and we buried it. Let it rest in peace."

"You do not mean that, Anne Dunsany," said Jimmy, advancing toward her, and before she knew it he had her in his arms and had kissed her. She could feel his heart beating heavily. His voice at her ear was unsteady, like an old forgotten melody. "You haven't buried it any more than I have," he said.

"Why not?" whispered Anne, trying to make her voice sound firm. "You made my life pretty miserable, you know. Your jealousy would have driven many a woman mad, and I wouldn't go through it all again for anything in the world."

"I've learned a lot since then, my dear," said the man. "You won't let love go just because it hurt you once," and he kissed her again.

With a sudden remembrance of her real mission in the house Anne tore herself free.

"How can you?" she cried. "What about Daisy?"

"Oh, Daisy!" said Jimmy, his eyes sparkling gently. "Daisy looked so like you, Anne, that I just couldn't keep away from her. Then I knew, too, that sooner or later she would bring you to Glenbrook. But I didn't dream of finding you here today."

With her face against his shoulder Anne explained. "They told me the past of a man named James must be looked into before he could pay further attentions to my young cousin. You know in Glenbrook it is a serious thing to pay attentions."

The man's gray eyes twinkled with understanding, and Anne continued: "So I decided the best way to unearth the creature's secrets was to inspect his house, he being absent. I had just found 'Monsieur Beaucaire' when you spoke, I thought I was dreaming."

"And do you really think you are not going to marry me, my dear?" asked Jimmy, his lips brushing her hair.

"Poor little Daisy!" said Cousin Anne.

Jimmy laughed in a way Glenbrook had never heard him laugh before.

"Look!" he said, pointing to the window. Coming down the street hand in hand, oblivious of neighbors, of the beauties of the sunset sky or of anything but themselves, came Daisy Trent and—Tommy.

"Daisy likes certainties better than mysteries, dearest," said James.

GIVEN NAME BY FRANKLIN

Suggestion of Famous Philosopher Resulted in Current's Becoming Known as Gulf Stream.

The Gulf stream, which was discovered by Ponce de Leon while on his famous search for the fountain of youth, received its name through a suggestion of Benjamin Franklin, because it issued from the Gulf of Mexico. While it is only a part of the grand scheme of ocean circulation, and the Gulf of Mexico is in reality only a stopping place, this name is generally applied to the current now as it was given by Franklin.

Franklin's theory of the cause of ocean currents, the Detroit News remarks, was that the winds produce the current by air moving over the surface of the water, and thus illustrated his theory: "It is known that a large piece of water, ten miles broad and generally only three feet deep, has by a strong wind had its water driven to one side and sustained so as to become six feet deep, while the windward side was laid dry."

It has been found, however, that the water entering the Caribbean as a result of the trade winds is not more than one-half the amount which flows through the Straits of Florida from the Gulf of Mexico, and the other half is supplied from a source which does not come under the head of a measurable current. The waves caused by the wind is the other source, every ripple carrying a certain amount of water in the direction toward which it is flowing, irrespective of the current caused by its friction. When the waves become large, tons of water are hurled from the crest into the trough every time the waves break.

Potential Uplifter.

"The young woman who is reading a paper on hygiene seems to take herself seriously."

"Yes," replied Mr. Cobbles. "That's Sally Toodle, daughter of the richest man in town. She thinks this old man's money sorter makes her responsible for other people's goin' on, one way an' another. I'm afraid that unless some feller comes along an' marries Sally, an' maybe mistreats her a little an' leaves her at home with th' baby an' th' servants while he's skylarkin' around, she's goin' to meddle with other folks' business all her life. There's nothin' like a matrimonial jolt or two to teach a woman common sense."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Wanted—500 Girls to Give Up Toy Poms And Teas for Worth While Substitute

Around the fireplace at the College in New York where Salvation Army lassies are trained for their exacting work. Insert—Lieutenant Colonel Margaret Bovill, Secretary of the Woman's Social Department of the Salvation Army.

NO languishing in bed until ten every morning, with novel and a box of chocolates; no shopping tours and matinees; no tea dances; no nightly cabaret tours. Hard work. Devotion to the sick, the troubled, the disheartened.

Young woman, how do you fancy this program of existence? Five hundred young women with energy and a desire to lead lives of usefulness are sought by the Salvation Army throughout the United States. As lassies they will spread comfort and happiness.

"The work of the Salvation Army has grown beyond our fondest hopes; we need capable young women to carry on our service to humanity," said Mrs. Colonel Margaret Bovill, veteran Salvationist. She is at the head of all activities for women and children east of the Mississippi River. Her offices are at National Headquarters, No. 122, West Fourteenth street, New York.

"Do you know," she asked, "there are more than 1,000,000 idle women in the United States? The ambitions of these idlers have not gone beyond the stage of bonbons and the latest novel. A large proportion of these would welcome, I feel sure, a chance to lead lives of usefulness if they knew the opportunity. The Salvation Army now offers them every sort of useful work—nursing in the Army's hospitals, infant hygiene in the children's homes, relief and rescue work in the slums.

"Two thousand unfortunate women are cared for annually in Salvation Army rescue homes. Young women are needed to help these girls take care of their nameless babies and lead useful Christian lives. In our nurseries and kindred institutions every year 50,000 children are cared for. What an opportunity for the girl who loves sweet, chubby toddlers! I know of no more happy girls than our Salvation Army lassies. The trumpet has sounded. Young woman, the Army needs you!"

THE TAMBOURINE GIRL

THE Doughnut Girl of wartime has doffed her khaki and donned the familiar blue. Today she is serving just as valiantly as ever as The Tambourine Girl of the city slums, the angel of the tenements and the guardian of the poor. Instead of the doughboy, the poverty-stricken, the distressed, the sick and the unfortunate know her now and call her blessed.

Oh, boy, she's still the Girl—in peace as well as in war!

Dedicate Salvation Hall in Tokyo

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL
SUNDAY SCHOOL
LESSON

By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.
(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

LESSON FOR APRIL 4

EASTER LESSON.

LESSON TEXT—Luke 24:13-25.
GOLDEN TEXT—Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory?—Luke 24:26.

PRIMARY TOPIC—The Story of a Wonderful Walk.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Walk to Emmaus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—The Proofs That Jesus Rose From the Dead.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Fact and the Meaning of the Resurrection.

I. Two Disciples Journeying to Emmaus (vv. 13-10).

1. Who they were. One was Cleopas (see v. 18); some think the other was Luke, whose modesty forbade him to give his name; but it is not definitely known. Why they were going we can only conjecture; perhaps they were only walking away from Jerusalem to relieve their anxiety and drown their sorrow. The ordeal through which they had passed left them somewhat stunned; they needed the physical exertion and quiet of the country to calm their nerves. They were sad (see v. 17).

2. What they talked about (v. 14). "All the things which had happened." Strange and wonderful things had taken place and they could not but commune together concerning them.

3. Jesus joins them (vv. 15, 16). It was while they communed together and reasoned about Jesus that he appeared to them. He never leaves those in doubt who sincerely seek the light; he promises to meet even with two or three who gather in his name (Matt. 18:20). Those gathered in his name have their heart toward him in love, and their talk is concerning him. If we would have Jesus draw near to us more frequently then let us more frequently commune together concerning him.

II. The Conversation on the Way. (vv. 17-27).

1. Jesus' question (v. 17). Though he was a stranger to them his question did not provoke resentment; there must have been something in his manner and tone which unlocked their hearts.

2. The disciples' answer (vv. 18-24). Though surprised that there should be a single man in the confines of Jerusalem unacquainted with the things which had recently come to pass, they spoke fully and freely of what they had communed about.

(1) It was concerning Jesus of Nazareth (v. 19). This Jesus was mighty in word and deed before God and the people. (2) Delivered, condemned and crucified by the chief priests (v. 20). (3) Shattered hopes of the disciples (v. 21). They had reposed their hope in him as the Redeemer of Israel. (4) Their bewilderment (vv. 22-24). The story of the women concerning the empty sepulchre reminded them of Christ's words that he would arise on the third day. A new hope seemed to be arising in their hearts, yet they were too timid to take their stand upon it. (5) Jesus expounding the Scriptures to them (vv. 25-27). He chides them for their unbelief of the prophetic Scriptures (v. 25). What sorrow and perplexity they would have escaped had they believed what God had recorded! Jesus showed them that what had happened was exactly what the Scriptures had foretold concerning the Messiah and that it behoved Christ thus to suffer and to enter into his glory.

III. The Lord Reveals Himself (vv. 28-35).

1. Nearing the end of the journey (vv. 28, 29). He made as though he would go farther, but they constrained him to abide with them. It would have been a great loss to them if he had not been "constrained."

2. Sitting together at the table (vv. 30, 31). His blessing of the bread and breaking it were so familiar that they knew him. Then, too, they may have seen the nailprints in his hands while he broke the bread. They now knew for a certainty that the Lord whom they had mourned as dead was alive and in their very presence. If we had eyes to perceive we could see Jesus daily walking and talking with us. What a different life would be ours if we would but see him!

3. The disciples convinced (vv. 32-35). They at once returned to Jerusalem and reported to the eleven what things were done and how the Lord had revealed himself to them in the breaking of the bread. They exclaimed, "The Lord is risen indeed!" May Christ come to every believer on this Easter occasion in such a way that we may know beyond the peradventure of a doubt that he is really alive!

Reaching the Top.

It is by attempting to reach the top by a single leap that so much misery is produced in the world.—Cobbett.

Keep Straight On.

The way to heaven: Turn to the right and keep straight on.—Spurgeon.

Be Wise.

Be wiser than other people if you can, but do not tell them so.—Earl of Chesterfield.

WHY

Man Is Not Master in the Natural World

That man is only partially master in the natural world, and that whenever he tries to change the natural order of things he suffers for it, was brought out by Prof. Alessandro Ghigi in his inaugural address at the University of Ferrara.

"Man," he said, "has not found it possible either to change the laws that govern the general economy of nature or to suppress certain classes of beings, for it is true that the cultivation of useful plants and the rearing of domestic animals has multiplied a myriad of parasites of both. And man himself, if he no longer has to fight the lion and the tiger, is constantly battling against micro-organisms no less deadly than those great beasts.

"Biology wisely applied, teaches us that whenever man has interfered with the harmony of a fauna, by introducing a new species or by suppressing an existing one, he has obtained good results only when he has taken into account the repercussions that this action might have upon all the other creatures, and he has run up against real disaster whenever he has failed to take it into account.

"The Americans, for instance, have waged efficacious war against noxious insects imported from other countries, by finding the natural enemies of these in their country of origin. This system of natural war has been systematized."

SURVIVAL OF OLD CUSTOM

Why Mr. Newlywed Invariably Turns to Kiss His Bride at Conclusion of Ceremony.

"Aw, can't they wait until they get home?" is what many a little page at his big sister's wedding has said at least to himself, when, at the conclusion of a ceremony, the happy man turned and kissed the bride. They kissed each other, of course, but it is he who turned.

No, little brother, they cannot wait. It is part of the game. This is a survival of a custom of ancient times when it preceded by a longer time the ceremony which it now ends.

In the days when public betrothals or espousals were the general practice, many an aspiring suitor did not have the wherewithal to endow his prospective bride with the ring which was supposed to complete the ceremony. However, a kiss duly performed before witnesses was considered sufficiently binding.

Who will blame these ancestors of ours if they came without rings then, or having the ring, demanded in addition the alternative, until the official seal reverted back to nature's own?

And who will blame the modern bridegroom if for lack of a ceremony of betrothal he has clung to his privilege and transferred it to his wedding day?

Why China Wants Newspapers.

During the last few years the demand for waste foreign magazines, pamphlets and newspapers has been very great in China among hawkers, who buy these periodicals and pay nearly one-third of what they cost originally. Their use is probably to make soles for sandals for the poorer classes of Chinese to wear in place of shoes.

If the waste magazines contain some war pictures they will be put to better use than the making of soles. Chinese who are too poor to get an education and who can't read or write find the best way of getting some knowledge of world affairs through the medium of the pictures in foreign magazines.

Why Number Thirteen Is Feared.

The thirteen at table superstition, which has spread to thirteen of anything, is well-known. The origin of the prejudice against this number is usually supposed to be the fact that thirteen persons sat down at the Last Supper, after which occurred the most tragic event of the Christian era. Hesiod says it is unlucky to sow corn on the thirteenth of the first month, and an old Norse legend says that the twelve great divinities were dining at Valhalla when Loki, the god of discord, appeared, and a quarrel with Balder occurred in which Balder, the god of peace, was killed.

Why Frost Injures Food.

An egg expands when it is frozen and breaks its shell. Apples contract so much that a full barrel will shrink until the top layer is a foot below the chine. When the frost is drawn out the apples assume their normal size and fill the barrel again. Certain varieties are not appreciably injured by being frozen if the frost is drawn out gradually. Apples will carry safely in a refrigerating car while the mercury is registering fully 20 degrees below zero. Potatoes, being so largely composed of water, are easily frozen. Once touched by frost they are ruined.

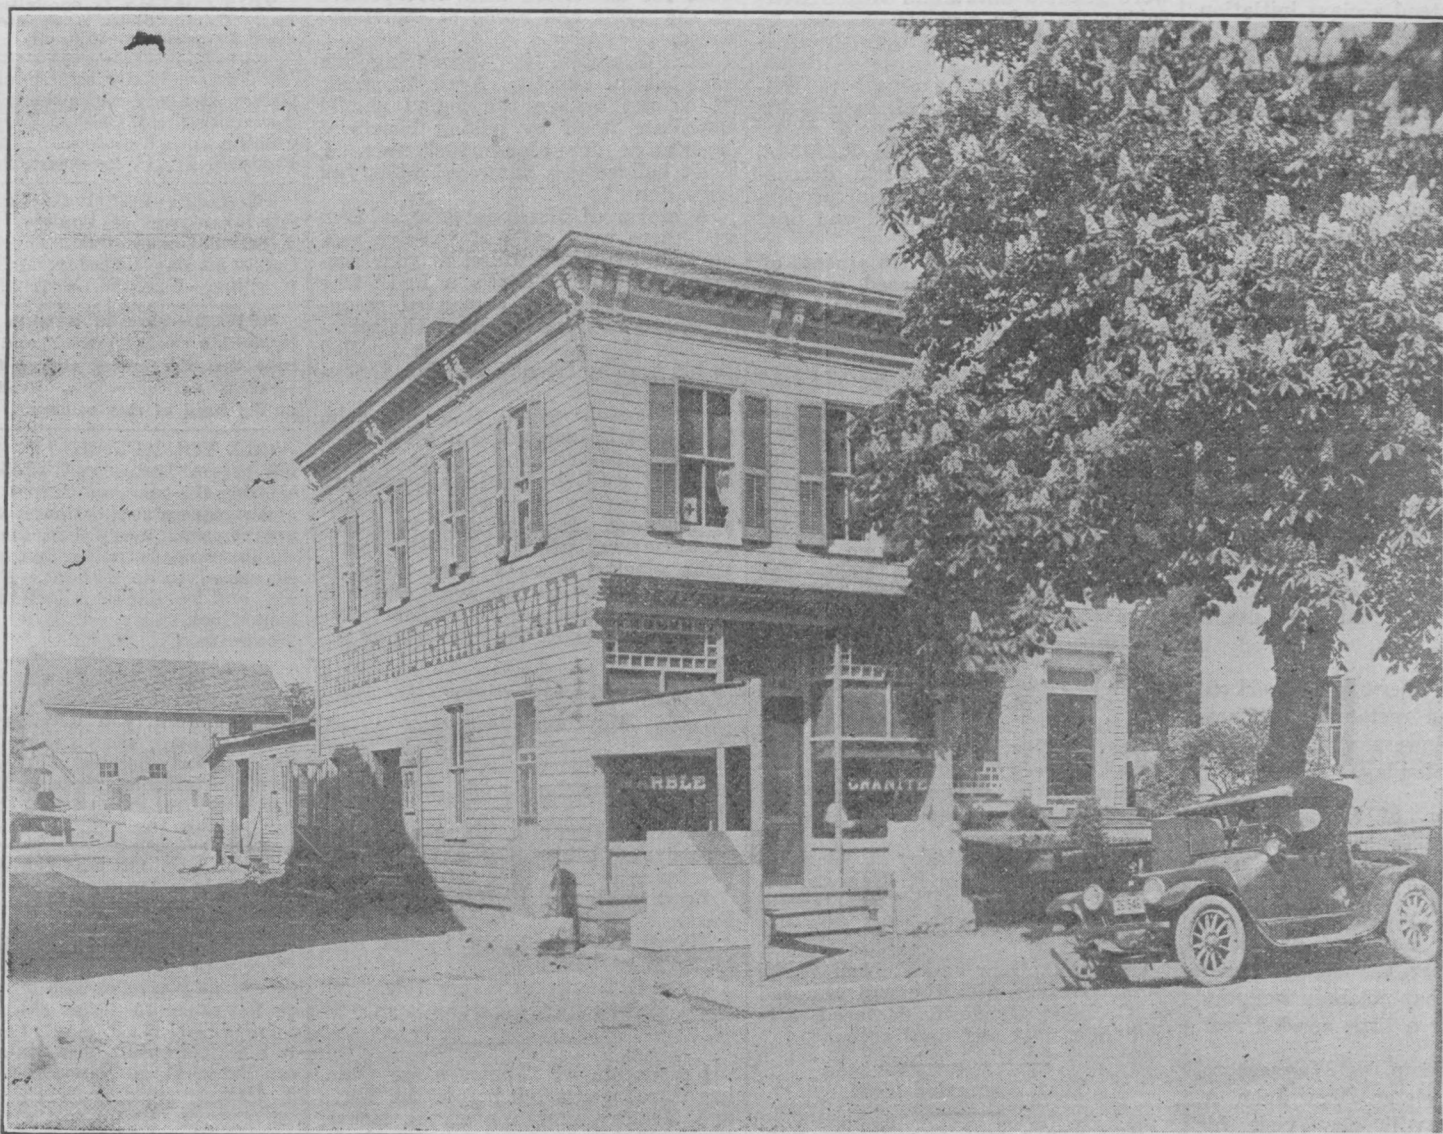

How Toothbrush Plant Is Used.

The toothbrush plant of Jamaica is one of the most curious plants in the world. By cutting pieces and fraying the ends the natives obtain natural toothbrushes, and a tooth powder is obtained by pulverizing the dried stems.

How Old Is the Incubator?

Literature written more than 1,000 years ago mentions two breeds of poultry still being raised in China, while incubators now used are the same in principle as those employed in Egypt 4,000 years ago.
