THE BIG COUNTY FAIR TO BE HELD NEXT WEEK.

near Taneytown.

Very little needs to be said in addition to that which has already been said in our columns. So far as we know, all arrangements for the Fair are progressing smoothly, and all point to a big event full of interest, entertainment and education.

Tuesday, the opening day, is "Democratic" day, with addresses expected by Gov. Ritchie, Hon Carville D. Ben-son and Hon. W. H. Warfield. U. S. Senator John Walter Smith has been invited, and is fully expected.

Wednesday will be "Republican" day, with addresses by Hon. A. A. Blakeney, O. E. Weller and Senator Snader. A big tractor demonstration will be a feature of the after-

Dr. F. H. Seiss Called to Washington.

Very much to the regret of Taneytown and community, Dr. F. H. Seiss has discontinued practice in Taneytown, and has accepted appointment in the War Buerau, Medical Depart-ment service, in Washington, D. C. Dr. Seiss has been actively engaged in the practice of medicine in Taney-town, since 1881, and established an enviable reputation, both professionally and as a citizen. While the community sincerely regrets his departit nevertheless recognizes the fact that he has earned a deserved rest from the hardships of a country practice, and wishes him abundant success in his new field.

He has already entered upon his new duties. Final arrangements for leaving Taneytown have not been made, but it is probable that both he and Mrs. Seiss will remove, and take up residence in Washington, early in September. The position to which he has been called presented itself as a sudden opportunity, and called for prompt acceptance. He will be at home in about two weeks for an ar-

Westminster Colored Man Killed.

Lorenzo Bell, a colored man of Westminster, was killed Sunday night. The authorities are not satisfied with the story told by W. E. Robinson, a Baltimore colored man, who was with Bell when the latter died, and locked up Robinson in jail, pending an investigation.

Robinson says he came to Westminster on a motorcycle and took Bell in the sidecar to Pleasant Valley. As they were returning an automobile was standing on the State road a mile from the city without lights, says Robinson. To avoid striking the automobile, Robinson swerved the motorcycle and Bell fell out, says Robinson. The latter says he had not been drinking, but Bailiff John Baile found a bottle containing home-made liquor in the sidecar.

Indicted for Murder and Robbery.

Rockville, Md., July 30 .- At a spec al session of the grand jury, held this morning by direction of Judge Edw. C. Peter, John W. Mitchell, alias John C. Conley, alias John Miller and Joseph Thomas, known as "Gunman' Joe, were idicted for the raid on the Sandy Springs Bank, April 26. They were recently arrested in New York and Philadelphia. The Sandy Springs Bank was robbed of valuable securities and several thousand dollars in cash and Director Frank M. Hallowell was killed.

Two indictments were returned against each. One charges the men with the larceny of $3,110 from the Sandy Springs Savings Institution and $2,237 from the First National Bank of Sandy Spring, both of which institutions occupy the same building. The other indictment charges them with the murder of Director Hallowell. Indicted with them were Clarence Adams, alias Joseph Kane, and John Kelly, alias Frank Wilson, already under indictment and now in the Baltimore city jail awaiting trial. It was thought best to jointly indict all four men so there would be no obstacle to trying them all at once should it be

EUROPE AGAIN FACING WAR. England and France Begin to Mobil-

War in Europe is again impending. All Roads will lead to Ohler's Grove, Russian forces have apparently refused to stop advancing in Poland, in response to a request from England, and unless this is done, war seems inevitable. The latest foreign dispatches, are as follows: Paris, Aug. 5.—Great Britain has taken steps to mobilize rapidly two divisions for service in Poland, ac-cording to the Matin, which adds that plans for transportation and revictualing of this force have been prepared. Negotiations between France and Great Britain for the purpose of devising means for aiding Poland are being pushed actively, other papers assert, and the bureau which has been liquidating war stocks has cancelled certain previous engagements.

Amsterdam, Aug. 5.—A battalion of French riflemen quartered in Luxembourg have received orders to hold themselves in readiness to start for Poland ,according to the Berlin

Vossiche Zeitung.
London, Aug. 5.—The Herald, the Laborite organ, says that the British North Sea squadron has been ordered to the Baltic Sea and that instructions have been issued to reimpose the blockade against Russia.

Right, Hard Thinking.

Hard thinking is essential to success in life. We will have to think harder today than our fathers did, to win in this mad race war for highest efficiency in business; and recoup ourselves from the efforts of the past and present devastations by war and wastage of men and money As the thought is the father of the word and the act, and action is the dynamic power of business; the thought must be of the highest grade and of the greatest explosive force.

The Devil thinks hard; but he does not think on right lines. His thoughts are destructive and not constructive. His moralities are demoralizing. His evolution is devil-ution. Man, therefore, must not think as the devil thinks, or work on his lines.

Man must think right thoughts in order to do right acts, for "as a man thinketh in his heart so is he." To this end, he must have a standard. That standard must be of Divine making. The Ten Commandments, Statutes and Judgments, with the commands of the Christ are our rules for our practice. "And Jehovah commanded us to do all these Statutes, to fear Jehovah our Elohim for our good always, that He might preserve us alive as it is at this day. And it shall be our righteousness, if we observe to do all these commandments before Jehovah our Elohim, as He hath commanded us." Deut. 6:24, 25.

The Record specially regrets the leaving of Dr. Seiss, as he has for many years acted as Secretary and Treasurer of the Company, and has always been interested in its growth always been interested in its growth and policy.

Jehovah our Elohin, and manded us." Deut. 6:24, 25.

Our conscience is not the standard of right and wrong; it is but the scale balancing what we are taught is right or wrong. Love is not the standard, but it is the oil that makes life's burdens easy, and the matrimonial yoke hinge does not remove the door or the hinge, but it does kill the grind and the creak; so the oil of Divine love does not annul the Law, Commandments, and Statutes and Judgments of God, but it does kill all the enmity and opposition, "Because the carnal mind is enmity against God: for it is not subject to the Law of God, neither indeed can it be." is the fulfilling of the Law. All men have a conscience, but all men do not know, or practice the law of right-eousness, for their good.

That man things right, who thinks as the Creator thinks. He has made laws to govern every department of the Universe, as well as every detail of our daily life for spirit, soul and body. If we think according to these laws, our actions will be in harmony with the laws of attraction and Growth, and we will succeed just as Edison, Wright Brothers, and others have done, and are doing. Then others may enjoy the benefits of our right thinking, just as we are now enjoying the fruit of their hard think-

Remember, the basis of wise, right hard thinking is to be found in the Ten Commandments, Statutes and Judgments and the commands of the Christ. Think right in the start; think hard along the way; put your thoughts into practice, and with perseverance, you will win the goal of every worthy ambition. And the guarantee is: "And he shall be like a tree planted by the rivers of water, that bringeth forth his fruit in his season; his leaf also shall not fade, and whatsoever he doeth shall pros-

THE BAN LIFTED ON CIDER AND FRUIT JUICES

May Contain More Alcohol Than Volstead Act Names.

Another ruling on the Volstead Act has been handed down by the Bureau of Internal Revenue, which practically lifts the ban from cider and fruit juices and places them in the "non-intoxicating" class, and not necessarily containing less than "one-half of one per-cent" of alcohol.

The ruling is expected to raise many problems difficult of solution, even though it is aimed to prevent any commercial use of the home made products. The effect and extent of the ruling is not fully clear to the Record, but we give it below for the study and interpretation of our read-

"Section 29 of Title II of the national prohibition act provides that the penalties imposed in the act against the manufacture of liquor without a permit shall not apply to a person for manufacturing non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices exclusively for use in his home, but such cider and fruit juices shall not be sold or delivered except to persons having permits to manufacture vine-

"The bureau's interpretation of the foregoing provision is as follows: Any person may, without permit, and without giving bond, manufacture non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices, and in so doing he may take his apples or fruits to a custom mill and have them made into cider and fruit juices. After such non-intoxicating cider and fruit juices are made they must be used exclusively in the home, and when so used, the phrase non-intoxicating means nonphrase non-intoxicating means non-intoxicating in fact, and not necessarily less than one-half of 1 percent of alcohol, as provided in section 1, Title II, of the said act.

"Or, if the person making such cider and fruit juices desires to do so, he may (1) sell such cider and fruit juices at any time to persons having nermits to make vinegar: this having permits to make vinegar; this he may do under the provisions of said section 29. (2) If he preserves such cider and fruit juices at the time they are made, he may sell same to the public in general; this he may do under the provisions of section 4, of Title II, of said act. (3) Or he may sell said cider and other fruit juices so long as they contain less than one-half of 1 per-cent of alcohol but the purchasers thereof cannot use or possess the same after they contain more than one-half of 1 per-cent of alcohol; this he may do under the provisions of section 1 and 3, of Title

"The cider in the home may be allowed to turn to vinegar if the owner desires, provided he adds no sugar or other fermentable substance to the cider or fruit juices to increase the alcoholic content thereof, inasmuch a joy and a delight. Oil on a rusty as such practice is held to constitute a mash fit for distillation within the provisions of section 3282, Revised Statutes; he may sell said vinegar to any one who may desire to purchase it; this he may do under the provisions of section 4 of Title II of said

> "This regulation is not intended to cover the commercial use of cider and fruit juices, but merely the use of the same as applied to the home and as provision is made in section 29 of Title II of said act."

The Reward Still Held.

Distribution of the $1,000 reward offered by the county commissioners for the capture of Clarence Wallace, burglar-and murderer of Leo Creager is still pending in court. There are nine claimants for the reward—former Sheriff Charles H. Klipp and Harry F. Shank, this city; Mrs. Flor-Graft and Detectives Cornelius F. Roche, Charles A. Kahler and Thomas W. Quirk, Baltimore, and Detectives Lester Degrandchamp, Fred-erick Lavery and Wm. F. Marquette, of Santa Barbara California, and Miss Catharine Higgins. The latter three trapped Wallace at the Santa Barbara postoffice and captured him after he had been shot.

The county commissioners some time ago filed a bill in equity asking the court to decide to whom should be paid 'the reward. Recently the court passed an order that the plain-tiffs in the proceedings (the county commissioners) retain the costs and counsel fee of its solicitor out of the reward and to pay the residue to the court. It was also ordered and decreed that all further proceedings in the cause be stayed as regards the plaintiff, and as between the defendants that an inquiry be made as to those entitled to the reward and that an injunction be issued to restrain the defendants and all other persons who may be entitled to become claimants to said reward from commencing or prosecuting any further or other action in respect to said reward money.—Frederick News.

INSURANCE AND VALUES. Farmers, Especially, Are Now Taking Very Heavy Chances.

The Record has at various times called attention to the low amounts of insurance carried on buildings, as they now relate to present building costs. Only those who now sustain fire losses have these facts brought forcibly to them; but it is the part of wisdom and safe business for all to look carefully into their insurance coverings, and to take action accordingly. The following article recently appeared in the Frederick News: "Just a few days ago, during a severe thunderstorm, lightning struck the barn of a farmer. It was burned to the ground—a total loss. This farmer carried a $2000 insurance policy on his barn. Since the fire he has asked for bids to replace it, and finds it will cost him $7,000 to put up a barn equally as good, of the same dimensions and with similar material.

"Less than a year ago a farm of 100 acres was sold for $18,000. A fine three-floor barn was on the premises and a good brick house. Recently a contractor was a guest at the house. In conversation he informed the owner that with present prices of labor and material, it would cost $10,-000 to replace the barn and $8,000 for a similar house. The total cost of the place. Looks as though the buy-er received 100 acres of land for

"If you are a property owner look over the following figures and then determine if you are protected in case of fire with replacement insurance. "Three years ago it cost $2,000 to build a certain house. Suppose there is $1,500 insurance on it and a fire ensues. Would the loss be $500. Yes, and then some. For the building that cost $2,000 before the war, will cost $4,000 now, therefore, the loss would really be $2,500 if the owner expected to build a new home like the "Replacement insurance is a brand new idea with business men and property owners. It is one of the numerous outgrowths of the war. But it may be said with certainty that the shops have taken it out, for the man-agers realize it would cost double and perhaps more to replace the machinery today if there should be a fire.

"Owners of the large buildings in town, most of them, have taken out replacement insurance. It is only the little fellow who can least afford to lose, that is allowing himself to go unprotected.

"The foregoing leads up to the question of farm values. There are those who believe that land costs will drop back to pre-war levels. Never, unless wages go down also, and there is little belief that the pay of the worker will ever again go back to what it was before the war.

"Therefore, if labor and materials are to remain high certainly farm lands will stay where they are, if they do not go to a higher point. For as long as wages are high food will be costly and since the farmer is the man who raises the food the land upon which he grows it will retain an enhanced value.

"It looks more and more every day as though the farmer is coming into his own and that a once despised business is to become the most aristocratic industry in the nation. farmer is being recognized by the lawmaking bodies and by the public generally as more essential to the life of the country than any other busi-

"But while farm buyers are taking advantage of the moderate prices at present prevailing at a time when a farm can be purchased for the cost of reproducing the buildings, which practically amounts to throwing in the land, they should not overlook the necessity of protection by replacement insurance.

State Camp P. O. S. of A.

The State Camp of Maryland P. O. S. of A., was held in Sudlersville, Queen Annes County, from Monday to Wednesday, this week, over 150 delegates being present from all over the state. Sudlersville is a small town without a hotel, but what it lacks in public entertainment, it more than supplies in community spirit and hospitality, nearly every ome in the town being thrown open with a hearty welcome that was a revelation to many of the visitors.

The convention was one of the best and most harmonious ever held. Addresses were made on Tuesday night by Assistant Attorney General Penna., Gabriel H. Moyer, of Lebanon; Rev. Walter Egge, of Lebanon; Rev. S. J. Miller, of Arlington; Wil-liam F. Williams, of Baltimore; Rev. W. L. Seabrook, of Westminster, and William James Heaps, of Baltimore. The following State Officers were elected: State President, S. J. Miller: of Baltimore; Vice-President, J. Waters Russell, of Chestertown; Secretary, William James Heaps, of Balti-more; Treasurer, Wm. J. Carter, of Baltimore; Master of Forms, Alfred Baltimore; Master of Forms, Alfred Bowen, Attorney, of Cumberland; Conductor, George Noland, Sparrows Point; Inspector, Wm. E. Hartzell, of Baltimore; Guard, Melvin W. Routson, of Uniontown; Trustees, Arthur W. Norris, of Frostburg; C. Williams, of Baltimore; Chas. T. Eakle, Baltimore; J. W. Paynter, of Sudlersville; G. A. Romoser, Balti-more; Guy W. Haines, Taneytown. Next place of meeting, Cambridge.

A new feature of the convention was that it was wholly free; the citizens of the town declining to accept pay of any kind for entertainment, or any other service. Many of the delegates made the entire trip by auto, over the splendid state roads of the

RAILROADS GRANTED LARGE INCREASE IN RATES.

The Public Pays the Higher Wages in Higher Charges.

Washington, July 31.—Granting substantially the freight and passenger increases asked by the railroads to meet the Government guarantee of 51/2% plus one-half of one per-cent. optional guarantee which the commission allows, and the amount of the Wage Board award, the Interstate Commerce Commission today handed down its decision in the freight advance case.

The increase will add approximately $1,500,000,000 to the revenues of the railroads. Freight rates will be advanced about one-third, passenger fares one-fifth and Pullman charges one-half. Summarized, the commission's decision means:

A 40 per-cent. increase in freight rates in Eastern territory, 25 per-cent. in Southern territory, 35 percent. in Western territory and a 25 per-cent. increase in the Mountain-Pacific group.

A 20 per-cent. increase in passeng-er fares, which means an additional passenger burden of six mills per

A surcharge on all passengers in sleeping and parlor cars, this sur-charge amounting to 50 per-cent. added, for the benefit of the roads, to the cost of the Pullman or sleeping car

A 20 per-cent increase in excess baggage rates.

A 20 per-cent. increase in the rate on milk and cream, whether carried by freight or passenger trains.

The increased charges on freight alone were estimated as equaling a levy of $12 per-capita per annum for every man, woman and child in the country, basing the nation's population at 105,000,000 for 1920, recently made by the Census Bureau.

While the commission issued no digest of the possible freight and passenger returns authorized, the close-ness with which that body followed the estimates and requests of the carriers indicates that the return to the carriers will be nearly $1,500,000,000

The new rates are to go into effect as soon as the roads can publish the new tariffs and give not less than five days notice to the commission and the public. They are to remain in effect for two years only as provided by law.

It is estimated the rates will be in effect within 30 days at most. The commission admits that the situation is such the new rates should become effective at the earliest possible mo-

Passenger increases and surcharges will approximate about $300,000,000 per annum according to the table recently filled by the carriers. The re-mainder of the desired revenue will come from freight. This revenue is designed to meet: First the 5½ per-cent. guaranteed return to the carriers.

An additional one-half of one perdiscretion to allow for improvement and betterments:

The $625,000,000 additional in ellyan E. Archie S. and William H.

wages levied upon the carriers by the recent award of the Railroad Labor Anna R. Mower. Board at Chicago.

Altogether the roads intimated they required $1,017,000,000 in the original petition filed under the guarantee, to which they added $625,000,000 when the wage board award was made.

A Barn Burned.

The barn on the farm of Jacob Bankard, near Uniontown, and tenanted by John Baker, was struck by lightning, on Saturday last and burned, together with contents of about 1000 bushels of wheat and 70 tons of hay, and an automobile owned by Rev. Gonso, of Westminster, which was in the barn.

Mr. Bankard's loss on building and contents, over and above insurance, will be fully $4,000. He had $2,000 insurance on contents, in the Dug-Hill, and Peoples Companies.

Mr. Baker lost about $1000 on his share of grain and hay, above insurance. A chicken house and some chickens were also burned.

Storm Damage at Middleburg.

Last Saturday afternoon, a violent storm visited the section of Middleburg for a short time, during which one of the horse barns on the Walden farm was blown down. It contained a number of valuable animals, one of them, a brood mare, having it's back broken by the wreck. It is reported to have been valued at $10,000.

Two fields of corn, one belonging to Frank Kaufman and the other to Mrs. Lynn, were completely ruined by hail. The remarkable fact is that only these fields were injured; while small hail fell over a wider area, no damage was done except at this one spot.

Imoprtant Musical Event.

Professor Emmanuel Wad, the eminent Danish pianist, long a mem-ber of the Faculty of the Peabody Conservatory of Music, in Baltimore, will give a recital in St. Euphemia's Hall, Emmitsburg, Md., Friday evening, the 20th., at 8 P. M.

His recital will be, by far, the most important musical event in this section in a long time, and will prove a rare treat to all music lovers who may be fortunate enough to be present

Whenever a man has a headache now, he is an object of suspicion as having some "private stock" hid somewhere, and for this reason is alcause of his ache.

One big fact connected with not having a job, is, that the fellow who is in that fix can't be a "striker." Evidently, therefore, as the jobs grew less, so will strikes, which will be going into an undesirable country to get something desirable.

No doubt those who need vacations most, this year, will not take them, or perhaps cut the time usually taken, in two. Those who are closely confined, and whose work is mental, are the ones who need rest and relaxation most, and these are the ones who have not had their incomes increased to fit summer resort charges—the highest ever known.

The President has again operated the usual plan with the striking miners. Gave them a good lecture, expressed his sorrow that they should be so bad as to strike again, then appealed to them to return to work. and finished by agreeing to have a committee take up their claims for adjustment-which of course means another increase in wages-and in the price of coal.

The State of Public Mind.

The world has never heretofore experienced such a period of ill-feeling and confusion as exists today. It is a state of mind, pure and simple, and is not confined to any one line of exhibition. It is felt alike in the church, in society, in industry, and in governmental affairs. We are apt to think, if not say, the "church is inefficient;" but we fail to even try to conceive what this country would be without is against, nor of the great good it is accomplishing.

Both Good Candidates.

Partisanship aside, and letting the truth prevail, both the Republican and Democratic parties have nominated good men for President and Vice-President. There is no use, nor fairness, in trying to controvert facts. The Chicago and San Francisco conventions were not composed of either dishonest men, nor idiots, and their work represents the best possible judgment of the two parties.

Barring a few exceptions, when public office is bought at a price, states do not elect ordinary men to the United States Senate, nor as Governor of a great state, and they did not do so in the cases of Senator Harding and Governor Cox. Those who belittle the status of the candidates, are unfair and dishonest, and there is no clear avoidance of this judgment.

The coming campaign should be fought out over the differences between party policies, past and future, as clearly as such policies can be estimated, and the candidates should be left alone, so far as trying to misrepresent them is concerned. The candidates are both, better men than their traducers are apt to be.

A few days treatment convinced me that they were just what I needed. I continued there use for several weeks and they cured me."

Expensive Idleness.

Strikes and lockouts in 1919 cost the United States 143,850,000 days of production. To make up for this loss 4,800,000 men would have to work a month. A plant employing 1000 workers would be able to offset this loss in about 450 years.

The direct loss of wages was close to a billion. Indirectly, through restriction of supply and the consequent higher prices, this idleness is to be charged with an additional indeterminate sum of no mean proportions.

The labor disturbances of the last year were in part the result of grievances which had arisen during the war. The first six months of the American participation had been marked by an unusual amount of strife. A rigorous government policy and appeals to labor on patriotic grounds kept the year 1918 singularly free from serious disputes. But the signing of the armistice and the loss of morale that came with the end of hostilities threw into the year 1919 nine of the most serious labor disputes the country has ever experienc-

From this latest compilation of strike statistics there emerges one hopeful sign for the future. Violence in the disturbances is diminishing. It is attributed by the Bureau of Labor to the fact that fewer employers have tried to operate their plants by employing strike-breakers. The fact of prehibition has also unquestionably been an important influence.

We cannot afford strikes, even if they are peaceful. The country is now paying in part in the high cost of food, of clothing and of house rent for the strikes and lockouts of last year. Some means must be found for bringing the employers and the employed together before tremendous losses are incurred by both. The zone of conflict can be greatly reduced if the human side of the problem is not

HAVE MUCH ECONOMIC VALUE

Official of Museum of Natural History Tells of Importance of Bats in Jamaica.

Returning recently from the island of Jamaica, in the West Indies, where he spent four months on a scientific expedition, H. E. Anthony, associate curator of mammals at the Museum of Natural History, brought back with him many fine specimens of bats. which are numerous on that and other islands in the West Indies, says the New York Times.

"The only mammals native to the island today," Mr. Anthony said, "are 20 species of bats and one species of rodent. These different bats range in size from small bats, with a wing spread of six inches, up to very large bats, with a wing spread of from 28 to 30 inches."

People in the United States, where bats are comparatively rare animals. have no idea of the variety and abundance of them in such a place as Jamaica, or of the important economic value of the bat. They are either insect eating or feed on fruits. The insect-eating variety are small for the most part, and have considerable value as insect destroyers. They feed on mosquitoes and on a great variety of winged insect life, many of which are obnoxious to man or injurious to

AUSTRALIA HAS MUCH IRON

Engineers Report Immense Quantities Available in the Southwest Part of the Country.

Mining engineers have reported to the Australian government that immense quantities of iron ore are available at Yampi sound, in southwest Australia. The estimate puts the amount of ore available—that is, in sight above sea-level—at 97,000,000 tons. The larger quantities are on Koolan island, where the lode rises 600 feet above the water line; the lode is over 100 feet wide, and is traced for nearly four miles, but really extends right through the island. On Cockatto island the height is 300 feet, the lode running from end to end of the island.

The quality of the ore is exceptional. There is only 1 per cent of silica present and very little sulphur. These analyses compare favorably with the best known iron deposits in the world. Newfoundland (Bell island) ore is 51.80 per cent metallic iron, with 9.50 per cent silica. The French ores run to 57.23 per cent, the Cumberland (England) to 48.80 per cent, the Spanish (Bilboa) to 50.84, and the Algerian to a mean of about 50.

Bolshevist Stud Farm.

In the Live Stock Journal of London a correspondent relates the observations of an English horse-trainer recently escaped from Russia: "The Bolshevists went to all the stud farms and divided the stock among themselves. The best stallion in Russia, imported just before the war at an enormous expense, was given to a peasant, who took the horse off to his village in the interior to draw his cart for a few days and then be slaughtered for food. The bolshevists then started an improved stud farm under nationalist management. They made it up of six stallions and one mare'

Location at Uranus.

The latest calculations, based on the perturbations of Uranus, are stated by Dr. Eric Doolittle to show that the hypothetical planet beyond Neptune is nearly four billion miles from the sun, and requires 283 years to complete a revolution in its orbit. It is much smaller than other distant planets, with a mass only six times that of the earth. This is a secret of its elusiveness, and its discovery is expected to reveal a minute body of only the twelfth or thirteenth magnitude. Search is now being made for this mystery of the skies near Gemini's western border.

Biggest Freezer in World.

The biggest freezer in the world, with a capacity of 50,000,000 pounds, has just been completed and is now in operation at the Chicago plant of a large meat-packing concern. It has been erected for the dual purpose of freezing meat products, particularly for export, and of storing products during the period of heavy production, to insure a supply at all times. The building is ten stories high and was erected at a cost of $2,000,000.

BREAK FOWL OF BROODINESS

Hen Should Be Confined to Small Coop Raised Off Ground, Preferably With Slat Bottom.

When hens become broody, they should be, "broken up" as quickly as possible, for the sooner this is done the sooner they will resume laying. To break a hen of broodiness she should be confined to a small coop raised off the ground, preferably with a slat bottom. Give her plenty of water to drink; she may be fed or not, as desired. Not much difference will be found in the time required to break her of broodiness, whether she is fed or made to fast, United States department of agriculture poultry specialists say. Usually from three to six days' confinement will break her, but some hens require 10 to 12 days.

The broody hen will be recognized by her inclination to stay on the nest at night, the ruffling of her feathers and her picking at anyone who approaches her, and by the clucking noise she makes. The fact that her broodiness has been broken up can be recognized by the disappearance of these symp-

POULTRY FOR GENERAL FARM

Hen Is Main Dependence for Increasing Meat Supply-Farmer Must Determine for Himself.

The hen, first and last, is the main dependence for increasing the supply of white meat and eggs on a farm, but she requires the aid of turkeys, guineas, geese, and ducks just as, on a dairy farm, the cow requires the aid of pigs, sheep, and goats. The setting of the standard at 100 hens per farm is safe, but no such arbitrary standard can be set for the other kinds of poultry, say the poultry specialists of the United States department of agpiculture.

The small farm, with grain fields of neighboring farms in proximity to the barn and dooryard, would, perhaps, be better without turkeys. The farm through which no streams run and which has no large pond would perhaps be better without ducks. But the circumscribed farm on which terkeys would be a disadvantage may be well supplied with streams and ponds so that ducks would be unusually profitable, and the farm that has no streams and ponds may have large range for turkeys. Each farm family will have to determine for itself what poultry can be profitably kept in addition to 100 hens, bearing in mind always that an adequate number should be kept of all kinds for which free range can be found.

FOOD SUPPLY FOR CHICKENS

Mineral, Nitrogenous and Carbonaceous Constituents Should Be Furnished for Hens.

In supplying feed to fowls, there are three kinds of constituents which should be present in certain fairly well fixed proportions if the desired results are to be obtained most economically. These constituents are mineral, ni trogenous, and carbonaceous, all of which are contained in corn, wheat, oats, and barley, but not in the right proportions to give the greatest egg yield. In addition, some animal feed and green feed should be supplied .-United States Department of Agricul-

Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.

Chicken mites are one of the causes of the high cost of eggs.

A fine thing for warm weather is either skimmilk or buttermilk.

A good cockerel generally is worth all the cost and a poor bird is dear at any price.

If you do not care about having meat for the table and want chickens for eggs only, choose the White Leghorns or Anconas.

It is a good plan to give the poultry house a good coat of whitewash at least once a year; sometimes it will year, fall and spring.

KEEP POULTRY HOUSE CLEAN

Excrement Harbors Parasites, Contaminates Air and Breeds Contagion of Many Kinds.

Everything about a poultry house should be kept reasonably clean. As a rule droppings should be removed daily, for the accumulation of excrement harbors parasites, contaminates the air, and breeds contagion. - After the dropping boards have been cleaned they should be sprinkled with road dust, coal ashes, or land plaster, to absorb the liquid excrement, the poultry division of the United States department of agriculture suggests. Nests in which straw or other similar material is used should be cleaned ev-

it becomes damp or dirty The quarters should be thoroughly whitewashed at least once a year, late in summer or early in the fall. The whitewash can be made by slaking lime in boiling water and then thinning to the proper consistency for applying. The addition of four ounces of carbolic acid to each gallon of whitewash will increase its disinfecting power. The runs should be plowed occasionally in order to bury the accumulated droppings and also to turn up fresh soil.

KILL DEVITALIZING INSECTS

Paint Roosts With Kerosene Oil to Get Rid of Mites-Use Blue Ointment for Lice.

The protection from mites means simply to paint the roosts about once each week with kerosene oil and the lice can be killed off for the summer by giving each bird the blue ointment treatment at the beginning of hot weather. This has been told many times by poultrymen and probably there is no poultry fact that needs more frequent repetition than the best method of killing these devitalizing

DRY MASH FEED FOR CHICKS

Animal Food in Some Form, Preferably Buttermilk, Should Be Kept Before Fowls.

GET EGGS FROM TURKEY HENS

Increased Production Can Be Obtained by Feeding Ground Oats, Corn and Other Cereals.

HOW=

HOUSEWIFE MAY MAKE HER WORK MORE ATTRACTIVE. -How to make household work more attractive is so serious a problem that it is delightful to hear that the operation of washing clothes is "a kind of Greek dance." So, at least a lady who is used to Greek dancing declares. The same authority says that she engages in "rhythmic movements" for every household duty and finds her labors surprisingly lightened. Thus energy can be conserved in the lifting of a kettle if one stoops with one's whole body instead of simply leaning forward a little. The theory is plausible enough to deserve a careful working out. It is one of the principles of modern education that study must be made play for the child. How much more should work become one sweet song for the housewife! Many might find the combination of washboard and Greek dance perplexing. Probably the ordinary worker might resent the interference with her "ways," no matter how much help she might derive from it. But we have one resource unknown to the ancient in canned music. Put in the record and turn the crank, and the rhythmic movement is easy. In this untrodden field of domestic art-or shall we say science?-the first adventurers will have to walk warily. Only long and careful experiment can determine the exact kind of music for each particular task. It would not do to employ jazz if slow waltz time were required. If a bed were made up to jazz the sheets would probably not be tucked in properly at the bottom. A little comic opera music might suit a hasty luncheon, whereas for a deliberate and formal dinner an adagio from a symphony. might blend more harmoniously with the occasion. Since the domestic problem is one of the gravest the modern woman has to face, it is obviously of the highest importance that the connection between the family wash and the Greek dance be carefully investigated and further researches undertaken.-New York Tribune.

BEES' PRODUCTION OF HONEY

How the Transition From Nectar to the Highly Delectable Compound Is Accomplished.

When a bee arrives in the hive with a load of honey, she searches until she finds a cell to her liking and then enters the cell with feet upward. Her mandibles touch the cell where the load is to be deposited. Then the mouth and mandibles open, and a drop of nectar appears. With the mandibles constantly in motion while quite likely some secretion is added to the nectar, the head is moved from side to side and the nectar spread over the upper cell wall. When this honey is first stored it is quite thin, but later the bees evaporate or "ripen" it until it contains less than 25 per cent of water. The work is done mostly at night, the bees standing on the combs with heads upward and then forcing a drop of nectar to the mouth and mandibles, where it gently pulsates for about ten minutes when it is swallowed and another drop appears. This work continues sometimes for nearly half the night. Anyone entering the apiary at this time will note the pleasant odor of the new honey and will also enjoy the drowsy sound of the millions at work ripening the honey.

How to Resilver Mirrors.

Select a sheet of tinfoil of the required size and pour over it three drams of quicksilver for each square, foot of foll. Rub the foil with a piece of buckskin until it becomes brilliant. Place a sheet of paper over the foil so as to completely cover it. Then lay a weight on the foil, using a slab of marble or smooth block of wood. Increase the weight so that the foil will be pressed tightly to the glass. Allow to stand four or five hours to set. If properly done the foil will adhere closely to the glass. Usually, however, it is cheaper and more satisfactory to buy a new mirror than to try resilvering an old one.

How Corncobs Yield Dyes. Of importance to the dye industry is the recent discovery that furfural, or furfuraldehyde—a dye base—can now be extracted, like cellulose, from the common corncob, and at a cost of only 15 cents a pound. This colorless, oily liquid has previously been obtained only in the laboratory, and at something like $17 a pound. In consequence of this announcement the despised corncob will take on considerable commercial value. In the hands of the chemists it will yield dyes of a vivid green, in addition to the rare brown and blue vat dyes .- Popular Mechanics Magazine.

London's Fight on Prohibition.

The remodeling of London saloons to make them attractive forms part of the scheme evolved as a counter move to the prohibitionists who have sworn to make London dry. Brewers and licensed victualers have hired architects to plan large, airy public houses, where food as well as drink can be obtained.

If anything were needed to show at once both the British love of outdoor sports and the number of young Englishmen who were crippled by the war, it could be found in the actions of the British National Lawn Tennis association in so modifying the rules of the game that a one-armed player, when he serves, may toss the ball from his racket instead of with his hand. To put a disabled player on an equality with competitors who are whole is the very flower of sportsmanship .- Youth's Companion,

REFUSED TO ADMIT FAILURE

History Records Many Instances o Men Who Rose Superior to Adverse Circumstances.

Failure is not a pleasant word, and it is not a safe word to use, for you can never be sure. Many a man who has been called a failure even by his friends has turned out to be unusually successful, as the Rev. John T. Faris in the Christian Endeavor World shows by the following example:

When Sir Henry Bessemer was a young man he perfected a plan for using revenue stamps that promised to save the British government large sums, and he was promised a comfortable position in the employ of the government. Then a flaw was revealed in his stamp plan, and the easy position slipped from his grasp. Although he had failed, he did not lose courage. Within a few years he invented the process of making steel that made his name famous and proved of incalculable benefit to the world.

When Stephen Girard was twentysix years old, he was the successful, captain of a merchant vessel sailing from French ports to the West Indies. But in May, 1776, storm and fog drove him into Delaware bay, and the British fleet prevented his escaping. He landed at Philadelphia, a captain without a ship, a seamen who could not leave the land. But within two years he was an American citizen, and within fifteen years he was the leading shipowner in Philadelphia. Thirty-six years later he became his country's bank during the war of 1812, and, when after the war only $20,000 was subscribed to a $5,000,000 loan, he stepped into the breach and subscribed for the rest. Phillips Brooks' first work after graduating from Harvard college was school-teaching. He enjoyed it and dreamed of success; but he found that he was not able to control the lively boys under his charge. The difficulties grew, and he resigned his position. The head master, when speaking of the successor he hoped to secure, very ungraciously said that any change, no matter what, could hardly fail to be for the better. Six months after his resignation Brooks entered the theological seminary, and three years later he began his career in the pulpit that made him famous. Failure succeeded failure in Abraham Lincoln's life; yet every one of the seeming failures had its part in making the man. When he failed as a shopkeeper, the failure brought out the deep-seated honesty that won for him the confidence and the affection of those who knew him. He thought of learning the blacksmith's trade, and even after he had committed himself to being a lawyer he thought he might perhaps do better as a carpenter. Several times he was defeated when he asked the favor of the people at the polls, but after each defeat he was stronger as a man and more popular with the voters.

Mistletoe Superstition.

Mistletoe is in many countries not admitted to the house before New Year's eve for fear of some dire disaster. This seems a relic of the religious ban long placed upon the Druidic plant, which by reason of its historic connection with heathenism has been excluded from the decoration of churches and from Christian sculpture. It appears in old English ecclesiastical art only at Bristol-cathedral, where both leaf and berry are carved upon the remarkable tombs which were probably designed by some artist monk in the household of the Berkeleys. The association of the mistletoe with Christmas did not arise until long after the Reformation. Knowing nothing about the parasitewhich is not native in Scotland, and is still rare there-Sir Walter Scott commits a terrible "howler" in his introduction to the sixth canto of "Marmion." Describing the delights of a medieval Christmas, he sends his "merry men" to gather mistletoe "in the wood," where they could not possibly have found it at that period.

Japanese Trade Expands. Japan is ambitious to obtain a large share of the trade of the South Sea islands, which is estimated at 2,000,000,000 yen a year. Of this Japanese exports amount to only 11/2 per cent, but have increased rapidly since the war. Some Japanese commercial leaders are advising that in order to increase the sale of Japanese goods in the South seas Japan must import from the islands rubber, sugar, chemicals, dyestuffs and spices, in which these islands abound. President Kimura of the Singapore Japanese Emporium, urges that Japan establish direct trade agencies with Sumatra and Manila for expansion of Japanese trade in Malaysia.

MEN OF STATURE

Only a Few Have Been "Giants in the Land."

Johann Van Albert, Recent Importation From Holland, the Tallest Specimen of Humanity Ever Seen in Modern Days.

When Johann Van Albert stepped from the gangplank on a recent arrival of the Mauretania he had the distinction of being the tallest man who ever entered the United States. His 8 feet 5 inches of height required that a special berth, made up of two ots placed end to end in a large companionway, be furnished for the trip from his home in Amsterdam, Holland.

Since Johann has left his quiet home out among the nearby windmills of Amsterdam and intends to enter the show business over here, it will be interesting to dig up some giant history and see how he compares with previous competitors who used to be great attractions. Probably no living giant in the United States ever exceeded the 8 feet attained by the late Captain Bates, who was a native of Kentucky.

The word "living" is used here because of the fact that for some time during the year 1869 the famous Cardiff giant led many people to be-Heve that a 10-foot man had once lived in Onondaga County, N. Y. The story of this monstrous fraud perpetrated on the American public makes such unusual and interesting reading that it will bear repeating.

The idea had its inception out in Fort Dodge, Ia., when an adventurous fakir purchased a huge block of gypsum from a quarryman of that place. The block then was shipped to Chicago, it being taken in charge by a sculptor, who chiseled it into a 10-foot giant. The surface was pricked with needles to give it the appearance of pores in the human skin, and then treated with a variety of acids which made the entire statue appear of ancient origin. After completion the giant was securely packed in an iron box and shipped to Union, N. Y., where the owner claimed it, loaded the bulky box upon a large wagon and hauled it fifty miles to a farm near Cardiff. The giant form was then removed from the box and secretly buried, remaining under the ground nearly a year, until it was "accidentally" discovered by some workmen who had been engaged to dig a well by the promoter of the fraud.

This great discovery was made on October 16, 1869, and news of the wonderful petrified giant spread all over the country. The lucky finders covered it with a tent and put it on exhibition, while special trains were run from New York city and other nearby points so that the clamoring multitudes could see the astonishing remains at the earliest opportunity.

Until the deception was discovered it is estimated that more than 50,-000 persons jostled each other in order to view the wonder, paying a dollar apiece for the remarkable priv-

But, passing on from this greatest hoax, it is found that Captain Bates as the tallest of our modern Ameri can giants, although his 8-foot height was slightly exceeded by that of Anna Swan, a native of Nova Scotia. Going further back into giant history we find that Queen Elizabeth's head porter was 7 feet 6 inches high, probably being given this exalted position on account of his ability to see what was going on at all times.

Among royalty itself it is claimed that one of the Roman emperors was nearly 9 feet high, but the measurements of those days may have allowed him considerable more height than he would be entitled to at this time, though no doubt he was a person of great stature for history to make note of the fact.

World's Strongest Child. Natalie Owens of Los Angeles, Cal., aged nine years, is said to be the strongest child in the world. She easily lifts a man of 175 pounds. In her father's dairy she handles cans of milk of all sizes, the largest weighing over 100 pounds, with as little effort and concern as the sturdiest farm hand about the place. In the public school she attends, she outruns all the boys of whatever age or size, and can trounce any two of them if the occasion arises. She has done this thoroughly several times. She is siender, not tall for her age, and weighs but 61 pounds, yet she amuses herself by lifting burdens that would tax an ordinary man, as readily as a woman raises a small basket of eggs.-Montreal Herald.

Plucky Terrier Dled With Fox It Had Run to Earth and Killed in Combat.

What is believed to be an unprecedented end to a combat between a fox and a terrier is reported from the

A stout hill fox hunted by the Blencathra hounds for three and a half hours on the mountain heights above St. Johns-in-the-Vale sought sanctuary in a fissure of rock in a crack near the skyline of Wanthwaite. Here he faced one of the gamest terriers belonging to the pack and, scrambling to a shelf in the rocks, was able for some time to give as fierce punishment as he got.

The terrier killed the fox, but refused to leave it and followers and hounds had at last to quit the crags so that they might make the descent of one of the most dangerous ravines of the mountain range before darkness. When huntsman and whip returned next morning to the crag they found terrier as well as fox lying dead outside the borran.

An examination of the terrier showed that the fox had inflicted no mortal wound upon him. The terrier had dragged the fox out and then, loth to leave it, had laid down beside it. It was clear that he had died from exposure during a bitterly cold night. No similar case has, so far as is known, occurred before.-London

NAPKINS NOT JUST SUITABLE

But Man Meant Well, and Fortunately the Teachers Had a Sense of Humor.

The parents of the pupils of a large Indiana ward school decided to give the teachers a surprise dinner party. Accordingly they took charge of the building one evening, herded the teachers in one room and made ready the table for the dinner. But just as everybody was about ready they found that they had forgotten napkins. One of the hostesses accordingly telephoned her husband who worked in a department store. "The colors are pink and white so bring something appropriate," she fold him. He bought them-pink and white. But when they were opened they displayed storks holding in their mouths the time-honored new babies. The hostesses were horror stricken but the teachers, ready to grasp the awkwardness of the situation, led in laughter. But that man says that he will move out of that school district before there is another banquet for teachers.-Indianapolis News.

Why Judge Dons Black Cap.

The custom of putting on a black cap-really a square piece of black cloth-observed by judges when sentencing a prisoner to death is a relic of the ancient days when covering the head was a sign of mourning. The judge, therefore, in putting on the black cap, is assuming mourning in view of the fact that he is about to pronounce the forfeit of a life.-London Tit-Bits.

The Battle of Flowers

By A. W. PEACH

(C), 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Loris Vincent looked up from her joyous work of arranging a bridal bouquet to see a tall, lean, young fellow, homely except for the gray gentleness of his eyes. He was watching her. With him the romance beganto end in surprising ways with her as assistant

"I would like to send some violets to this address-Miss Evelyn Heminge," and he added the street in a fashionable part of the city.

Her first thought that he would never take a prize for beauty changed a bit more; his voice was rich with a deep and mellow music that the gods sometimes give to one whom they have dowered otherwise unfairly.

She noted the order, and turned to find him gazing with musing eyes at the bouquet over which she was work-

"I suppose that means happiness for some one?" he said.

"Why not two?" she questioned, smiling.

His smile in return told her that the gods had taken pity upon him in another way. "It does, I hope, but I was thinking of the man." He lingered a moment. "Flowers always appealed to me; my mother-" He stopped short and left her.

Wondering, she looked around, and saw coming down the aisle a fashionably dressed man whose smoothly groomed appearance contrasted sharpwith her customer's somewhat seedy though neat and clean appearance. The two men nodded-one with a smile, one gravely.

He of the recent styles leaned over the counter. "Maid of the flowers, I wish you would send a bunch of your roses to Miss Evelyn Heminge," and he added the street. He looked at her with studying eyes. "I have heard that we tend to become a part of what we are doing. I believe it is true in your case."

The rose in her cheeks deepened. "It is true in mine-and others!" she answered-and he did not see the point clearly.

"You're an artist," he said admiringly as her fingers, slim and white, hovered over the flowers. His knowing, suggestive eyes, were on her face.

McMurry, the old Irishman, whose flowers had kept his soul fresh through his city years, called her, giving the young swell a sour look as he did so.

The flirtation ended with the departure of the would-be flirter, and she laid the cards side by side-"Randall Damon"-he of the homely face and gentle eyes-"Roger Hazen"-he of the handsome face and suggestive eyes. One was sending violets, the other costly roses to the same girl. "I know which I would choose," she thought to herself just before Mc-Murry's voice said, "Little guurl, if wan of these chaps gets fresh, let me know." And she knew which one he meant. The battle of the flowers went merrily on-the shy, winsome violets against the queenly roses. Damon came in and lingered, chatting with her about the flowers-and old Mc-Murry paid no attention; Hazen came in, and chatted with her about herself; and the old Irishman looked on with a scowl. She found herself looking forward to Damon's visit. She learned he was a young lawyer in one of the great city offices-something in his favor, she thought; and she guessed that the clean, fine honesty of his face must make him appeal to men-if not to women of a certain type. She began to have vague dreams of being with him, within reach always of the pleasant voice that carried no hint of darker moods. She smiled at the dreams. Then, one day, looking a bit more tired and worn, he said he would not send the violets, but take them. "Things are almost settled," she thought. He took them for a number of times; and then for a week he did not come. The reason she discovered antiques.—Tampa Times.

She thought a little; and the next day the violets went to Miss Evelyn Heminge just the same. McMurry scowled at the charge to herself, made her tell the reason, and then back in the dingy flower-scented office, he scratched off the charge.

A week went by; then Hazen came in, his face a bit cold and the smiling cynicism gone.

"Just why, may I ask, do these flowers come to Miss Heminge? She is engaged to me-

"She-what?" Loris cried, impolitely He looked at her sharply. "You get the idea, don't you?" She nodded. "Yes, and I think I can say that no more flowers will go to Miss Heminge from here—at least Impulsively she gathered the dewy violets at her left, and soon a box was on its way to the big city hospital where the angels of death and of life were striving for victory.

A week later he came hesitatingly in, the same quiet smile in his friendly eyes, the same pleasant mellowness in his voice. He was thin and gaunt, but there was still the suggestion about him of something unconquerable beneath his gentleness.

They chatted of the flowers and she said it: "I'm sorry the violets did not win from the roses!" He started and then laughed softly. Looking into his gray, frank eyes she saw something there that seemed to hold her transfixed, to envelop her with subtle power until she was helpless. She listened, hearing words that made her vague dreams startling and true verities.

"The violets I bought here for a long time and took away I bought because they gave me a chance to see you. Let me confess who and what I am-and then let me say the strangest words to you that a man ever said-" "I know-who and what you are-"

she said brokenly, and then-His firm hand dropped to hers among the flowers; and under the spell of his voice her dark head dropped-

"You mean?" he asked gently. Bravely, in full surrender, she lifted her tear-filled eyes to his. "Isn't here among these flowers-just the place for a man and woman to learn to-"

The mild, rich brogue of old Mc-Murry broke into the tenseness gently, from the rear of the shop, "You young folks go into the office and close the door-an' I'll tind to the trade!" And' under his breath he added, "An' God be good to ye all the years!"

WON BET BUT LOST MONEY

Maine Man Proved Himself "Good Sport," Although He Was Out On the Transaction.

A youth entered a Rockland store and sought the proprietor. "I'll bet you," he said, "that I can stand on two corners of a handkerchief, and while you stand upon the other two corners you cannot hit me." This was a new one and looked interesting to the genial proprietor, who is always ripe for new stunts to add to his category of practical jokes.

"It's a bet of $2." The transaction was duly recorded by the head clerk and a neighbor from the corner.

Then the youth proceeded. Taking his handkerchief he spread it on the threshold, and closing the door took his stand on the two corners outside, while he ordered the proprietor to take his position on the corners on the interior. As the Myrtle street boy grinned at the proprietor through the glass the latter blushed at his gullibility. But he was a game sport and was out to win.

"Bring me the ax," he ordered, and holding his position on the handkerchief he smashed the panel of the door with lusty blows. Then reaching through the opening he exerted himself to touch the lad outside. The boy outside squirmed and twisted, bowed his legs and bent his back, but the storekeeper insisted and won the bet. "What matter if a new door does cost money? When a man's reputation is at stake never let trivial details enter into a bargain," says the boss, -Rockland (Maine) Independent.

Cultivate the Smile.

It's a mistake to wear a long face. You can't help the shape of face nature gives you, but you can see to it that you use it to the best advantage. The man with a perpetual scowl repels people. He may be a most entertaining man when you learn to know him, but the chances are you will follow the example of the children and see that your paths don't cross. You can take the face nature gave you and wreath it in smiles if you have the right force within. That will be your entry to many an opportunity that will never permit the long face to have a look-in. "Smile even if it hurts, smile."-Grit,

Age and Youth Are Not

Matters of Years

Seventy years is not really such an advanced age, declares Dr. William S. Welch, long and highly eminent as pathologist at Johns Hopkins and still very active in directing the School of Hygiene and Public Health. As Dr. Welch has just rounded out the allotted three score and ten, he speaks from experience as well as knowledge, but even he probably would admit that he is not as young as he was thirty or forty years ago.

Of course, old age does have its compensations, when good health goes with it, but the compensations are all of a negative character, and the best of them are not enviable by those in possession of youth, the most precious of all treasures in spite of its numerous troubles and dangers.

Being wise, Dr. Welch does not eulogize old age; he merely declares that it can be endured with calmness by philosophers, and an analysis of what he says brings out that in his own case he finds his seventy years a burden easily carried because he retains some of the bodily and all of the mental activities that are the common possession of ambitious and fortunate youth. In other words, he doesn't much mind being old, because he is still young.

As a matter of fact, age and youth are not matters of years. Senescence may begin at any time and it may be long delayed. What is called-ever so vaguely !- "constitution" seems largely to determine the arrival of the dreaded hour when powers begin to fail, and "constitution" is a legacy, not an achievement.

SURVIVAL OF A PAST AGE

Why the Picturesque Corner Store and Postoffice in New England Will Soon Have Gone.

The community house and the community council are replacing the corner store and postoffice in New England. The rural free delivery takes the mail-order trade to the farmers' own door. And the men's clubs take the place of the circle around the stove, where once the village life con-

Yet the old corner store and postoffice still is a factor in New England social life. The storekeeper is the presiding genius of these places and an important man in the village hierarchy. He will last as long as the old guard survives, but his methods are antiquated and he is doomed. One such old fellow, whose store, at the junction of four roads in a distant Maine farming section, was the rendezvous of the scattered community, would grumble that he could never have a moment's peace. "Don't no more than git my hands into the dough to mix my bread, but some'n has to come and ask for something. Ain't got my corn hoed yit, 'count of having to sort all them letters and packages. I've a good mind to quit storekeeping; it's too darn wearing on a man.

And he absolutely refused to keep red calico as part of his stock, because, he said, "I don't no sooner git a lot in than it's all sold out and I have to git me some more."-Hildegarde Hawthorne, in World Outlook.

Why Berlin Barred Long Hat Pins. No hat pins figured as weapons in the latest disturbances in Berlin if an order issued by the chief of police a few days before the reactionary coup of March 12 was heeded by the wearers of feminine headgear. It appears, according to an account in the Berliner Tageblatt, that an old police order dating to pre-war days was revived, in view of the danger to innocent bystanders engendered by the wearing of enormous hat pins in subway and street car crowds, and the Berlin women were warned that each such offense would cost a fine of 60 marks and the "proper" term of imprisonment. Furthermore, the order pointed out that any person injured by one of these pins could recover damages up to 6,000 marks, and the culprit might also be sent to jail for two years and fined 900 marks.

Why Automobile Is King.

America makes nine-tenths of all the automobiles in the world today, It is only a few years since the best cars were made in Europe, but now we send our cars to 183 different countries, including Iceland. It is no wonder that you can scarcely cross a street or road in the country without dodging an automobile, for last year nearly 2,000,000 cars were turned out in the United States, which makes about 7,000,000 cars regularly registered in the country. In a few years it is believed there will be nearly twice as many. There are more cars to the population in Nebraska and Iowa than any other place in the world, or one for every six and a half persons .- Boys' Life.

How Embargo Act Worked.

The embargo act of December 27, 1807, was termed the "O-Grab-Me act." This embargo, laid by the United States on all its own ports and vessels in retaliation for certain decrees of England, sorely restricting the rights of neutral vessels, bore particularly hard on New England, which had been increasing its shipping very rapidly. Inverting the word "embargo," the malcontents called it the "O-Grab-Me act," referring to the fact that it operated to the advantage of one part of the country at the expense of the shipping interests in another. The act was repealed in February,

When he was established as king over all Israel, he executed judgment and justice unto all his people. In this respect he stands as a type of the Lord Jesus Christ; for when David's greater son, the Lord Jesus, shall reign over all Israel, righteousness and justice will prevail in all the

It. David's Inquiry for Some of Saul's House to Whom He Might Show Kindness (9: 1-3).

This story of faithful love to a dead friend is quite refreshing. David experienced great grief when he received the news that Jonathan had fallen in battle. Now when he is made king and success has crowned his efforts in the subjugation of his enemies, he sets himself to make inquiry as to whether there is any one left of Saul's family to whom he might show kindness for Jonathan's sake. When Mephibosheth, Jonathan's son, was found, David ordered him to be brought to him and restored to him his grandfather's estate. Being unable to cultivate it on account of infirmity, he arranged that it be cultiwated for him. Not content with this, he ordered that Mephibosheth should cat at his own table as one of his sons. This example of David's nobilty teaches us that those who are plessed and prospered should stop to inquire as to whether there are not some deserving ones whom they can help. It may be that children of some old friends who rendered us help in former days need care and help. Then, too, some faithful servant of God could be cheered along life's way. This should not be simply done as an act of charity, but in recognition of some lasting obligation in view of help rendered by their fathers in byigone days. This was the case with Jonathan. He had sacrificed much and endangered his life for David's

The chief value of this lesson will be realized by making it a living story Mlustrating the plan of salvation. David's making inquiry for some one upon whom he can bestow kindness Illustrates God taking the initiative in providing salvation for lost and needy souls. This is clearly suggested in David's expression, "show the kindmess of God." Mephibosheth did not seek David's help or sympathy. Quite likely he had a fear and dread for him like the sinner has in many cases for the Lord. Salvation originated with the Lord. He did not make this provision because of man's merit, but out of a heart of grace, for the sake of another, even Christ.

III. Mephibosheth Is Found (vv. 4,

This lame man was found in the house of Machir in Lodebar. This strikingly illustrates the sinner's condition. The sinner is utterly unable to walk uprightly before the Lord. Mephibosheth was in the house of Machir, which means "sold." This is exactly the sinner's condition-sold unto sin and Satan. Lodebar means "no pasture." This, too, suggests the sinner's condition of soul which nothing can satisfy but God. The sinner maimed and enslaved by sin has an "aching void" which only God and his grace can satisfy.

IV. Mephibosheth's Sense of Unworthiness (vv. 6-8).

When he was brought into the presence of the king he reverently fell upon his face. Every sinner in the presence of God feels unworthy of his saving grace.

V. David Restores to Mephibosheth the Forfelted Estate of His Father (vv. 9-10)

He not only restored this estate, but provided a means of tillage. God not only receives us into his family as children and restores to us the estate forfeited by Adam, but provides for its culture and development.

VI. Mephibosheth at the King's Table (vv. 11-13).

This act of kindness on the part of David was done out of the sincerity of his heart. This illustrates God's kindness to us in Christ.

The June Offering

By LILY WANDEL

(@, 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"These roses," murmured Aunt Blanca whimsically, as she strolled with her niece through the flaming flower garden, "seem to inspire me every year at this blooming time-inspire me to do something kind, something particularly beneficent. Do they make you think the same way, Car-

"They make me think of love and brides, these darling June roses,' laughed the girl, blushing prettily.

The aunt smiled. "Perhaps when I was your age I connected roses and June with brides and love, too. But now, since many years, love takes a broader sense, more a love of humanity in general and a big desire to make some one very happy every June."

"How good, how lovely!" enthused the niece, softly.
"Good? Lovely?" almost cynically,

"the intention, yes, but-Carlotta, do you know that every single June offering for years and years has been a complete failure?"

"Failure?" repeated the girl incredulously. "Why, how do you mean?" "Take last June for an instance," demonstrated Aunt Blanca wearily; "though I had vowed the year before not to try again, with the roses came the old delightful spell and I felt urged to make somebody happy. There was the poor Clemmer family whose afflictions and hard luck were the talk of the town. They all had been down with the 'flu,' the father out of work for months, the oldest son in a bad ac-

Here was my opportunity. went to their landlord and paid their rent for two years in advance and, armed with the receipt, went to the sick woman. When I told her she burst into tears. I wept along moved by her gratitude, until she spoke. She had always hated that house and the very thought of staying there, being forced to stay for two more years, was more than she could stand.

"The year before it was poor McNulty. Her husband beat her, took away the little money she managed to earn, pawned the clothes people gave her, did everything to make the poor woman's life unbearable.

"For years she told the town people that she was saving for a divorce and each time she had a little sum together her brutal husband robbed her. June roses bloomed and Mrs. McNulty came out of the hospital, where she had been carried after her husband's last drunken outburst. I helped her get her divorce, paid everything and set her up in a neat little flat. But she is not happy and tells everybody that I interfered-if it had not been for me she would still have her hus-

"Three years ago it was the girl with the voice-why go into details? But can you imagine anyone so silly as I, Carlotta? I feel inspired again to help some one, but honestly I am a little afraid to venture."

"Aunt Blanca!" cried Carlotta, her eyes shining with sudden impulse, "you must let me help you with this June offering! Oh, please, I know the very person and, oh, how grateful we -I mean he-will be!"

"Who is this exceptional person?" "The finest boy in the world! The most self-sacrificing man-he's an artist! He loves his art hetter than anything else in the world except me, Aunt Blanca!"

"Ah!" laughed the elderly lady,

"Let me tell you, dear Aunt Blanca. please," began the girl earnestly, "and you cannot help but admire my Rolf from the bottom of your heart. He was studying art when we fell in love and he asked me to marry his and then he told me-told me that he was as poor as a church mouse, but that his whole ambition in life was to become an artist. He would have to study a long time before he would amount to anything and even then it would be years before he would earn enough to support two. He could not afford a studio or any of those delightful places artists have. So, what do you think he did, Aunt Blanca? He gave up his art! Gave up his life's ambition for me! Oh, I know it just broke his heart and I can't bear it! He's working now and studying nights to be a mechanical engineer-I hardly ever see him!"

"This," answered the girl with bright promptness; "rent a studio for Rolf, fit it up, easel, paints, everything and give him a year's tuition with some great artist! Give my boy his old work again, what he loves! Revive his ambition! Oh, Aunt Blanca, will you give him this chance? All his life he will be grateful to you and I will be too! We can rent the studio and fit it up without him knowing it and then spring the whole thing on him as a surprise! Oh, will you, Aunt Blanca?"

The old lady hesitated: finally, unable to withstand the girl's beseeching eves, she consented. "Under one condition, that I do it all myself, make all the arrangements and buy the furniture for the studio apartment!"

"Of course. I won't butt in at all! I'm too happy, too deliriously happy! Think of Rolf's face when I tell him that a fairy godmother has restored him to his rightful place!" A few weeks later Rolf Basset was invited to Aunt Blanca's for the weekend. Rolf was to arrive late Saturday afternoon and the ladies rolled the tea table out on the leafy porch.

"We'll first have tea," chirped Carlotta, kissing her smiling aunt, "and then I'll tell him!"

But she could not keep her burning secret that long. Rolf, very brown and hearty looking, had scarcely seated himself when his fiancee said archly: "Rolf, what would you say if somebody told you that you could return to your art, go into a lovely studio, study for a year with a master, in a word, be a fairy godmother to you?" She did not dare look at him, but her eyes, sparkling with anticipation, held

Aunt Blanca's attention. "What I'd say?" drawled Rolf indifferently biting into a sally lunn with great relish-"I'll say that the fairy godmother was a big fool! Ha! Ha! Yes, a big fool, throwing away her money!" And he took another big bite of buttered muffin, not seeing the girl's face suddenly grow white. "Yes," he continued, innocent of the castles he was smashing, "I'd say there are just about enough people trying to be artistic in this world and the quicker a man realizes that he'll never be a genius and turns to something else for his vocation, the better! Why, Carlotta, I never slept so well in my life as since I have been doing real work, nor have I ever earned so much or had so little worries or such good prospects! Not that I'll never paint again. Of course I will, but in vacation time, and improve. for my own pleasure-why-Carlotta -what is the matter?" He was at her side in an instant.

Carlotta sobbed; she turned from the rest! Another June offering a failure!" In vain Aunt Blanca tried to soothe her.

Rolf came close, slowly comprehending. "Aunt Blanca," he begged almost desperately, "what does this mean? Did Carlotta or did you fit up a studio for me? And I spoiled everything?

"Yes, yes," sobbed his fiancee quickly, looking up at last, "everything is waiting, ready and--- Here her aunt interrupted. "I have confession to make, Carlotta. In the last minute I got cold feet. I canceled the furniture order and the studio. I had my doubts whether Rolf, after having tasted the independence of business life and income, would care to go into your scheme. So, Carlotta," and the girl was smiling through her tears, "the June offering is still to be made. If you two will accept a little bungalow as a future wedding present--but I won't choose it; I'll not even help select it, so that afterward if the cellar is damp or the neighbors are noisy you can't---' They smothered the rest with kisses.

Gui de Faur.

Perhaps the most eminent man at the French bar in the sixteenth century was Gui de Faur, seigneur de Pibrac, who died May 27, 1584. At the council of Trent he sustained with distinction and great eloquence the interests of the French crown and the liberties of the Gallican church. His state services were many, and he added to them the composition of 'Moral Quatrains," which parents for ages after used to make their children learn by heart. He was remarkable for the amiableness of his character; yet he was the victim of a religious bigotry, and as a proof of this it need only be recited that this kindly man, this amiable lawyer who reformed the French bar, was so led away by what might be termed religious fanaticism that he wrote an apology for the Bartholomew massacre.

Residents of Eastern Shore of Maryland Relate Pretty Legend in Connection With It.

I went over to Baltimore to speak to a Methodist conference some time ago. I met there a splendid-looking man, with a long, flowing, white beard, and I said to him, "Do you preach in this section of the country?" He said, "Yes, sir; I come from the eastern shore of Maryland. Have you ever been on the eastern shore?"

Knowledge Quells Fear in Human Heart

Emerson says: "Always do what you are afraid to do." This is a splendid rule for cultivating courage: but an even better rule would be, "Always investigate what you are afraid of," is the advice of Anne Boyan Mc-Call in Delineator. Examine into the cause of your fear; look into it, and find out what it is.

When we go forward and investigate the things we are afraid of, we are very likely to find in them something actually helpful. Is it the opinion of others we fear? If we could make up our minds to go toward them and try to understand them, we should find that, instead of things to fear, they are either things that are not worth troubling about or else they are things that would be an actual help to us.

Going toward life instead of away from it, learning to face, yes, and investigate, whatever frightens us, whether our fear be a physical fear, a mental one, or a spritual one, this is practicing bravery, and this at last is to attain to self-forgetfulness and the merging of our lives in others. Brave thoughts (unselfish thoughts), the sayings and doings of brave, unselfish men and women; the biography or autobiography of brave lives; the committing to memory of verses that are full of spiritual bravery; the daily conscious effort to investigate and understand lives and beliefs and interests that are different from our own, all these will help us to cultivate that bravery which is at heart thought of others, and that conscious and loving thought of others which is not alone bravery but a perpetual enrichment of

Why Birds Prefer to Make Their Neste in Proximity to Human Habitations.

What is the real explanation of the fact that so many of our birds nest so near our dwellings and yet show such unfriendliness when we come near them? Their apparent confidence, on the one hand, contradicts their suspicion on the other. Is it because we have here the workings of a new instinct which has not yet adjusted itself to the workings of the older instinct of solicitude for the safety of the I said, "No; I am sorry to say that nest and young? He told his wife that he heard strange voices in the house, and that even in church enemies were putting electric batteries on his back. On Sunday, after continued and harassing osculation, he told her to smile. "I couldn't," she explained to the clerk. "I was slowly being kissed to death." He threatened to stick a knife into her and she smiled. Stoddard pleaded not guilty to the charge she made against him, and the magistrate questioned him about the voices and the electrical experience in church. "Yes," said the prisoner, "I was doing a mission when We expect that most of our town subscribers will eventually be better back." Magistrate O'Neil decided to send him to the Kings County Hospital for observation.

Fruit Prospects Good.

Maryland has prospects for 171,-000 more barrels of apples and 87,000 more bushels of peaches this fall than last year, according to the July 15 report on fruit conditions issued by S. B. Shaw, secretary of the Maryland State Horticultural Society in co-operation with the University of Maryland Extension Service and the Bureau of Crop Estimates, Department of Agriculture.

The prospects for the apple crop in the State have improved decidedly since the June forecast and the esti-mated yield for this fall is now 397,-000 barrels. Reports received from the counties indicate particularly large crops of York Imperial and Ben Davis varieties and almost without exception the fruit is said to be free from disease and in fine growing con-

CALLS FOR WAR ON RATS

United States Department of Agriculture Gives Figures of Depredations That Are Astonishing.

The rat is the worst animal pest in the world. From its home among filth it visits dwellings and store rooms to pollute and destroy human food. It carries bubonic plague and many other diseases fatal to man and has been responsible for more untimely deaths among human beings than all the wars of history. In the United States rats and mice each year destroy crops and other property valued at over $200,000,000. This destruction is equivalent to the gross earnings of an army of over 200,000 men. On many a farm, if the grain eaten and wasted by rats and mice could be sold, the proceeds would more than pay all the farmer's taxes. The common brown rat breeds six to ten times a year and produces anaverage of ten young at a litter. Young females breed when only three or four months old. At this rate a pair of rats, breeding uninterruptedly and without deaths, would at the end of three years (18 generations) be increased to 359,709,-482 individuals. For centuries the world has been fighting rats without organization and at the same time has been feeding them and building for them fortresses for concealment. If we are to fight them on equal terms, say specialists of the biological survey of the United States department of agriculture, we must deny them food and hiding places and must organize to rid communities of them. The department has devoted a great deal of study to the problem and is anxious to help in rat extermination, not only by supplying bulletins and other printed matter, but by supplying the advice of specialists in specific
