THE FARMERS'

Sharp Criticism of their Failure to Work Together.

We reproduce, below a rather pointed editorial from the Ellicott City Times, under the above caption. do not know the Harford County farmers, but it is reasonable to assume that, living adjacent to Carroll, there is little difference between them and Carroll farmers, and it may be that the well-meant criticism of the Times applies equally well to both; therefore we take the liberty of first-paging what the Times says: "Criticism, when made in the spirit of helplessness, is always wel-comed by men of big minds and open hearts. Criticism from the outside inevitably causes resentment. This bit of criticism offered in the proper spirit is aimed at the farmers in Howard County in the hope that they will absorb it and let it take root.

The annual meeting of the farmers at the Court House last Wednesday was a keen disappointment to practically every man who attended. Facing serious problems which directly affect their personal affairs and the affairs of their families those farmers who attended did not endeavor to give to our representatives at Annapolis an indication of what they desired in the way of helpful legislation. On the other hand a great number of farmers who would naturally be expected to be on hand at such a meeting were not there. The County Agent mailed out five hundred postcards with a return self addressed card requesting that the farmer addressed indicate whether or not he would attend the meeting. Out of five hundred mailed out less than one hundred were returned.

He is a slave to the opinion of men whom he has grown to consider "higher ups." For those who attended the meeters so that they might intelligently act in accordance when the time came But of the more than two hundred farmers at the meeting less than a dozen had a suggestion or a word to say about any legislation. Why cannot a farmer advance an idea for the betterment of his own and his neighbor's condition? Surely they are as intelligent a lot of men as can be found in any other walk of life. They always manage to find fault with what has been done although rarely do they help accomplish anything.

It is time that the farmers of Howard County realize as a unit they are the strongest class in the United As an individual he cannot accomplish anything. By joining and taking an active part in the Howard County Farmers' Association which a part of the state and national associations he can accomplish as much as any other farmer and probably more than a single individual in any other industry. "The Lord helps those who help themselves" and unless the farmers of Howard County show some inclination to do something for themselves they should not expect a great deal at others hands."

Carroll Co. Society, Baltimore.

The Carroll County Society of Baltimore City, composed of over two hundred and fifty loyal Carroll countains residing in Baltimore, is preparing for the greatest annual ban-quet in its history, which will be held at the Emerson Hotel, on Thursday evening, January 9, 1922, at 7 P. M.,

The Committee is arranging an unusually interesting program, which will be fully announced later. A splendid dinner will be served at the nominal figure of $3.00 per plate.

It is the hope of those in charge of the affair that many residing in Carroll County will take the opportunity to enjoy this delightful occasion. Attendance is not limited to members, but all Carroll Countains or friends who wish to subscribe will be made welcome, but should send their appli-cations to the committee not later than January 12, 1922, if possible.

The main purpose of the Society is to keep alive the spirit of good old Carroll County, with its splendid history and its proud traditions, as well as to interest itself in its future well-being.

Our C. E. Column.

Several times a year our C. E. col-umn is omitted because the Moody Bible Institute Monthly-from which we clip it by permission—arrives too late. We use this commentary large-ly for the reason that it is different from the one commonly used by the other papers circulating in this territory and is at the same time a good one. We trust that there will be but few weeks in 1922 that the feature will be omitted.

PROHIBITION AND RACE TRACK ISSUES.

Will be the Big moral Issues Before Legislature.

The Baltimore Sun Correspondent gives the following opinions on the above big questions that will come before the legislature for action.

"Although the "wet" or "dry" complexion of the House and Senate as a whole, and not the committees, will determine, in the last analysis, the sort of bill, if any, the Legislature passes, the committee to which it goes may have some material effect on the light in which it is considered on the

In urging that the bill go to the Judiciary Committee, Senator Norris is understood to hold that any enforcement legislation is in the nature of an addition to the criminal code, not a strict temperance question of whether Maryland is to be "wet" or

"dry."
The House Temperance Committee, it is believed, will be "wet." In the Senate it is said the "dry" members may be expected to have the upper hand. The question of the complex-ion of the two houses on the "dry" matter has not yet been determined. It generally is concerned, however, that the "wets" are in the minority in the Senate, but may have a small majority in the other branch.

George W. Crabbe's bill for concurrent legislation will not contain many of the drastic features of enforcement legislation in other States, according to advance reports. It is intended simply to carry out the enforcement idea.

The other big moral issue—race track betting—might result in wip-ing out all racing as the only means of suppressing this alleged evil, if the views of a good many of the members of the upper and lower house hold sway. The bill prepared by William Purnell Hall is said to provide only for a repeal of the Burke law, under which the present Racing to retain their bonds and to acquire Commission is now functioning. Whether the repeal of this law, without any further provision, would wipe out all prior legislation on racing and with it, the track charters, or whether it simply would place the tracks in the same status as before the enactment of the Burke law, is a matter on which there is difference

It is felt in some quarters, and this view is said to be reflected by the Governor, that the Racing Commission has not yet been given a fair trial in demonstrating its value to the biggest sporting asset in the State. The revenue derived from rac-

Following the "Other Fellow."

Every man, in every line of business, is acquainted with the argument that "the other fellow does it" followed by the implied, if not expressed conclusion that unless every other business man does the same thing, said other business men are little better than robbers. This applies, of course, to cut prices, for what "the other fellow" does in other cases is rarely quoted.

The idea never seems to prevail that "the other fellow" is a poor business man, or has made a mistake, or is taking a risky chance, or is perhaps already on the ragged edge of bankruptcy. Before "the other fellow" can be safely followed, every fellow in business must be sound in his methods, and honest throughout in all of his plans and prices.

We have heard of "the other fellow" who considers it smart and justifiable business to tickle his patrons in matters in which they are well posted, then more than "makes up" for the tickle in directions in which they are not posted. In such cases, "where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be

The "other fellows" argument isn't worth following Competition may as easily be the death of business, as the safety of it. Should the "other fellows" example be carried out generally, one fool could wreck the business of a whole country. We are all more or less too easy followers of "the other fellow" because we have too little confidence in our own sound sense.

During Year 1921.

About one-half billion of dollars was lost to the people of this nation through investment in doubtful or worthless securities during the year, 1920, according to Mr. Harry F. Guest, in the New York "Globe." Of this sum he estimates the promoters of these worthless securities realized $125,000,000 from the sacrifices of Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes. It is estimated that the loss toll paid by American people approximated $5 per head for every man, woman and child in the country.

The testimony given by Mr. Houtson Thompson, a member of the Federal Trade Commission, before the House Judiciary Committee recently, is the authority for the statement that half a billion dollars was squandered annually by people of this nation through speculation in worthless securities.

Among the victims who fell prey to the alluring promises made by the manipulators of the doubtful and worthless stocks and other securities, were men and women in all walks of A good many of them had denied themselves the necessities of life and responded to the patriotic call of the Government to buy Liberty Bonds and Victory Notes in order to help carry on the war to successful termi-nation. Most of these people parted with the Government securities they acquired during the war in exchange for securities which, Mr. Guest alleges were not worth the paper they were printed on. Since the launching of the Liberty Loan campaigns and particularly since the signing of the armistice, the United States Treasury has conducted a systematic campaign through its Federal Reserve District organizations urging the continuance of the habit of saving and has continuously warned the public not to part with their Government securities in exchange for bonds and stocks of doubtful character. People were cautioned to investigate the securities offered them

Harold Anderson, an expert from the United States Department of Agriculture, and J. W. Henderson, Germantown, are scheduled to take the leading part in this discussion.

THE LEGISLATURE NOW IN SESSION.

Governor Ritchie Presents his Party's Program.

The legislature assembled on Wednesday, and organized in part, for the session. The real work of the session will begin about the middle of next week, after both branches have fully organized. The Senate will be presided over by Senator Norris, of Baltimore, and the House by Representation Lee, of Harford Co.

The Governor addressed the body in initial control of the second of the in joint session, urging it to make all possible hast in redeeming the Democratic party's pledges, as follows;

1.—Reorganization of the administrative branches of the State gov-2.—Reduction in the number of ive office and to serve on juries. 10.—The planting of oyster shells on barren rocks, maintenance of fish hatcheries and all needed legislation for the protection of the crabs.

11.—State use for prison labor.
12.—No additional taxation, but a lightening thereof, if strict economy can make that possible. In his speech upon being installed

Mr. Lee urged that the House seek to keep down the volume of legislation.

"Four years ago I urged the least legislation the better," he said.

"There are too many laws. Let us the better have less that this except he try to have less. Let this session be on economical, business principles. When in doubt about a bill vote 'no.' And do not introduce bills 'by request.' "Let us take up the reorganization plan at once, and have these bills passed promptly. Let us get the pledges in the party platfrom passed and behind us."

Plenty of Booze on Hand.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Nearly 40, 000,000 gallons of whisky are stored in warehouses throughout the country, according to testimony of Milof Internal Revenue, at recent executive hearings of the House Appropriations Committee on the Treasury Appropriation bill, verbatim reports of which were made available

The reports also showed Mr. West estimated, that July 1 last there were in distilleries and general bonded warehouses 39,961,000 gallons of whisky, 399,000 gallons of rum, 885,-000 gallons of gin, 2,170 gallons of high wines, 640,946 gallons of alcohol and 369,000 gallons of neutral or cologue spirits, a total of 42,500,-

Distilled spirits, Mr. West told the committee, are stored in 260 distillery warehouses, 25 general bonded warehouses, 19 special bonded warehouses houses and 79 industrial alcohol plants. He recommended concentration of the liquor stock in four or five warehouses, which he said would permit more effective guarding of the liquors and result in a great financial saving to the Government.

As to Squirrel Shooting.

The Record has received a request for the publication of an article, favoring an open season for shooting squirrels after Sept. 1—a return to the old law. As the proposition is aimed to benefit the "general sportsman" we are opposed to it. Besides, we are not at all sure that squirrels are very destructive to crops, as claimed; at any rate, it seems to us that the owners of timber are the ones most concerned, and unless the request for a more extended open season comes from them, we feel that the law should be left as it is.

Dr. Davis will be especially active against the race tracks, and Superintendent Crabbe for a state prohibition enforcement law.

SENATOR PENROSE DEAD.

Remarkable Secrecy Attended the Funeral Arrangements.

Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania, died suddenly in Washington, last Saturday. He had been in ill-health for about two years, but pluckily continued to work despite his sufferings. Senator Penrose had for 25 years been prominent in Republican councils, and was regarded as high authority on tariff and financial questions. Al-though a strenuous partisan, and often spoken of as a "boss" and "standpatter," he was a man of great ability not only in his own state, but in National affairs. He was only 61 years

The funeral of the Senator, on Thursday morning, in Philadelphia, was unusual for a Senator, because it was strictly private. No advance information was given; there were no church services—not much of anything that attends funerals, ordinarily. Here was a man who might have had the most imposing and largely attended funeral of the age, but by choice had neither. Whether there was a religious service at either the house, or cemetery, is not known to outsiders. At 7:30 Thursday morning, within a few minutes a hearse and four automobiles appeared at his late home, the casket was carried out by undertakers assistants, and the short procession went rapidly to the cemetery, where guards were stationed and nobody was admitted. The fu-neral party was in the cemetery about fifteen minutes.

Senator Penrose was a bachelor, and leaves three brothers, one of whom, Charles, is a physician, who attended him in his illness.

Questions had been asked why the family desired secrecy in the burial of the Senator and the answer of close political friends was that Penrose hated pomp and ceremony and that it probably was his wish that he be buried with as simple rites and with as little commotion as possible. It is said to have been a tradition in the Penrose family, which is one of the oldest in the city, that all friends of members be strictly private.

Christmas Tree Farming.

In portions of Pennsylvania, where Christmas trees have always been plenty, and to be had practically for the asking, it is now said to have been decided that hereafter Christmas tree farming will be an industry, and that trees will be cultivated and trimmed, and in some instances "set out" and specially grown for sale. Even this year, trees were sold in many towns at from $1.00 to $3.00. Why not? A little tree is as much the property of the land-owner as a big one, and is worth paying for.

What Will the Harvest Be?

The Maryland legislature is in a position to devote its best efforts toward legislation, as it is entirely free from any political handicaps, and from those close divisions of party strength that sometimes prevent the free exercise of the will of the majority in matters of legislation. Governor Ritchie and his party have free rein to make a good record, and will be held fully responsible for all failures in this direction.

New Year Plans.

Nearly everybody in a business, or occupation of any kind, is apt to become "set in his ways." He continues old plans and ways and expects them to produce the best results, even though conditions have changed since his ways and plans were first put to use. What we call "system" is a fine thing, providing it is elastic. A fixed, never-to-be-changed, system, is a hindrance.

There are certain principles in business that never ought to change, but these are far from making up a complete working system; so, about this time in the year, when there is a letup in activities, is a good time to give our plans a once-over, and a tonicsomething to reinvigorate them, and make them adaptable to conditions now. To say that our hospital is filling a need in our community would not be sufficient, it is not only fillig a need-we cannot get along without it. In the past years before Harford county and Havre de Grace had such an institution probably many lives were lost which would now be saved. Too much thought, money and energy cannot be expended for the taking care of the sick and suffering. Each year many of our county and city peo ple are treated in our hospital with

This means a large outlay of money and although the hospital is helped to some extent by both the county and the city, nevertheless, with the constantly growing number of patients, and the corresponding increase in expense these funds have not proved sufficient to care for the current to badly needed improvements. elevator desired will greatly facili-tate the handling of the patients at selves but also to the doctor and

The Conference could not speak for more than a tenth of the nations. To deal with the submarine, with poison gas, with armed planes and with the rules of war a greater conference must be held. It must include every power, great and little, that has built or can build submarines. There is no reason to doubt that such a meeting must and will

In spite of the honest efforts of three out of five great Powers, submarine limitation has failed, for the time to match world hopes. After all, however, this is but a part of the great program, only a part of one of three great proposals. On the day that France mistakenly balked, the which alone occupy 182 feet in length world was virtually assured of the 10-10-6-3.5-3.5 capital ship ratio.

France has won a "victory" at staggering future cost to herself. She will pay in a certain measure of inevitable isolation. England will face France and take steps to meet her submarine menace. Unless a political miracle happens, France has driven England to a place where England cannot be relied upon if the German menace comes again. The submarine shot was the heaviest in the French locker and it has not brought England to a military alliance with France.

France came to Washington irritated and doubtful. Briand's great speech saved her army. She then reached out for a great, new fleet, proposing to increase rather than limher sea strength. Public opinion began swinging away from France. Her submarine folly carried on the swing toward her "moral isolation," so dreaded by Briand.

In America the swing has gone far. We feel now that by her actions France has canceled, to some extent, America's sentimental debt to her. She came to our help in the days of our youth; we went "over there" in 1917. We needed France to help the world throw off a burden. This time she has failed us.

Nevertheless we have pledged a peace in the Pacific and we will scrap 2,000,000 tons of fighting ships. We are going to make the submarine a moral outlaw and will draft savagely its last issue, in supporting an effort drastic rules for its use. Immense Blocks of Granite in Federal Structure at Washington-Others in Old Temples.

Some of the blocks of granite used in the construction of the treasury building at Washington are the largest ever moved in this country, and they were carried from the eastern part of Maine. They were transported to Washington by water, and after their arrival there moved by ox-power, a sort of double pulley system, a distance of two miles to the spot where they were wanted for use.

The work of moving them was performed with comparative ease, not more than eight or ten yoke of oxen being employed to move a block weighing more than 70 tons. The fluted pillars, a great number of which are used in the building, are 40 feet long, and weigh 50 tons at least. The largest blocks, 30 to 40 feet square, and three feet thick, weighed upward of 70 tons.

In the foundation of the great temple of the sun at Baalbec may still be seen, even in the second course, stones which are 37 feet long and nine feet thick; and under these and about 20 feet from the ground, three stones by 12 feet high. These three stones are estimated to weigh 900 tons each!

But one reads of an Egyptian idoltemple, Buris, far surpassing this, in which there was a sanctuary composed of a single block of granite 60 feet square. This is the largest and heaviest stone mentioned in the history of nations.

CURFEW BELL STILL SOUNDED

Authorities of Lincoln's Inn, London, England, Keep Up Custom Established Centuries Ago.

At nine o'clock each night, the curfew is rung, in London, England, writes a correspondent, as it has been for 300 years. This old-time custom is still a part of the duty of the chief porter of Lincoln's Inn. The bell which is tolled was originally brought from Calais by the ill-fated Robert Devereux, earl of Essex, in 1596. It is hung in the old Lincoln's Inn chapel, erected during the reign of James I, in the building of which Ben Jonson is said to have used his trowel. "At 8:45 each night I light my lantern and proceed to the belfry," said the chief porter-who in his modesty wishes to remain anonymous. "As soon as the last stroke of nine has sounded I strike the bell 50 times. Why 50? Well, I don't know, except that it is the custom. The only time the curfew has not been sounded in Lincoln's Inn during the past 300 years or so was during the war after the bomb fell in Chancery lane in October, 1915. I rang the bell, as usual, at nine o'clock. The bomb fell 25 minutes later, shaking the whole place. Some people thought that the curfew was responsible, so it was suspended until the night of the armis-

The quincunxes and flower-beds sent balm and dazzlement into the light, and the branches, wild in the brilliancy of midday, seemed trying to embrace each other. All around the tulip-beds hummed the bees, the flashes of these fire-flowers. All was grace and gayety, even the coming shower, for that relapse, by which the lilies and honey-suckles would profit, had nothing alarming about it, and the swallows made the delicious menace of lying low .- "Les Miserables," Victor Hugo, Oldest Metallic Objects.

In discussing the question of the metals used by the great nations of antiquity, a distinguished scientist recently pointed out that gold was probably the first metal known to man, because it is generally found native. The oldest metallic objects to which we can assign a probable date were found in a royal tomb at Negada in Egypt, supposed to have been that of King

In one of the chambers were some bits of gold and a bead, a button and a fine wire of nearly pure copper. If the tomb has been properly identified, these objects are at least six thousand years old. Nearly all the ancient gold that has been examined contains enough silver to give it a light color. It was gathered by the ancients in the bed of the Pactolus and other streams of Asia Minor.

The First Necklaces.

The necklace, now an ornament, was formerly something that was a badge of disgrace. All slaves wore collars as a symbol of their servitude. The workers had heavy iron affairs, but the favorite slaves of a household wore light gold bands or simply ornamental chains which were mere forms, not in any way confining. The possibilities of the necklace for decorative purposes caused it to lose its servile significance and become an article of

TUBERCULOSIS CAUSES LOSS

Insidious Manner of Attack of Disease Makes It Most Difficult to Detect.

(Propared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Tuberculosis of fowls is more widely distributed over the United States than is generally supposed. It is especially destructive to flocks in the North and West. The course of the disease is slow, symptoms are apparent only in the late stages, and the mortality is high. The danger to man, however, is slight, especially since cooking the flesh of fowls destroys the tubercular bacilli. Treatment of fowls affected is declared to be useless, but the disease may be stamped out by methods described in Farmers' Bulletin 1200, which may be had upon application to the division of publications, United States Department of Agriculture.

Of all domesticated birds the fowl shows by far the highest mortality from tuberculosis. The disease has spread so extensively in some states as to cause very serious losses to the poultry industry. The insidious manner of attack makes it most difficult to combat, because affected birds show no visible symptoms until the disease processes are far advanced, and in the meantime it has been communicated to others of the flock.

Avian tuberculosis, as it is some times called, is caused by a microorganism closely resembling the bacilli of human and bovine tuberculosis. While, primarily, it affects birds, it may also attack other animals. Pigs exposed to tuberculous flocks frequently are affected, and display localized tubercles in the lymph glands of the head, neck and mesentery. Rats and mice also may contract the disease naturally. Bacilli of the aviar. type have been found in tuberculous persons. The principal danger to humans is in eating eggs from tuberculous fowls, as eggs may be infected with the bacilli; however, as man is considered quite resistant to the avian type of tubercle bacilli, the chances of infection are doubtless slight.

Tuberculosis may be introduced on a farm in several ways, such as receiving infected fowls, exposure to neighborg infected flocks using the same range, infection of premises by freeflying birds, carriers, such as man or animals, whose shoes or feet may carry infected droppings from nearby infected farms. Most eggs harboring the organism fail to hatch, thereby reducing to a minimum the danger of infection from this source, but if infected eggs are thrown to the fowls the disease may be established in the flock.

One of the first symptoms is gradual emaciation, which becomes especially noticeable in the breast muscles. These diminish in size until in advanced stages there is scarcely any flesh left on the breast bone. Feeling the breast region will readily detect this wasting. The appetite continues good. Lameness in one or both legs, or drooping of one or both wings is

The bulletin mentioned describes these and other symptoms at length. Paleness of comb, wattles, skin on the head and about the eves is evidence of the last stages. The homing pigeons, bred and owned by the bureau of animal industry, United States Department of Agriculture, at the government farm, Beltsville, Md., have established a record during the past three years which stands alone and unequaled. In 1920 the birds from this loft won first, second, and third in the 200-mile and first, second, and third in the 300-mile race. In 1921 they won first, second, and third in both the 400 and 500-mile old-bird races, and best average speed of the Washington Racing Pigeon club and the National City Concourse association under whose auspices the races were flown.

In 1919 there were 33 lofts competing, in 1920 35 lofts, and in 1921 over 40 lofts comprising the best birds of the best breeders in all of Wash ington. This record of first and second and first, second, and third in all races from 100 to 500 miles was won separately by individual birds and has neve been equaled by any homing pigeo breeder in the District of Columbia or vicinity, which not only proves the superiority of the Beltsville birds, bu s a tribute to the ability and untirin; efforts of Mr. A. KEEP ONLY PUREBRED STOCK

High-Class Stock of Any Kind Has Tendency to Bring Other Good Animals to Farm.

The first fundamental of successful oultry keeping, whether on the farm. in a city yard, or in the large plant, is good stock. It is true that a good many farmers and others get fairly good results from ordinary stock, but if the same care and attention were devoted to birds of better breeding more satisfactory returns would be

There is another benefit from keeping good stock that is not easily measured, but, nevertheless, is recognized as having a big money value in the long run. That benefit is the general improvement in the place, methods, and the man himself, that comes from having birds that are above the ordipary. A man who has well-bred stock talks about it and shows it to his neighbors. Naturally, he wants the surroundings of his flock to look shipshape, and he takes pride in showing a knowledge of feeds and the methods of feeding. High-class stock of any kind has a tendency to bring other purebred animals to the farm. A good purebred animal continues its work of improvement indefinitely, not only within its own class, but everywhere on the farm, from the field to the library.

TERM OF ARABIAN ORIGIN?

As the Story Goes, the Expression, "Better Half" Comes to Us From the East.

Strictly scientific searchers for the origin of the expression "better half," denoting one's wife, have decided that it was coined by Sidney in his "Ar-"Arcadia" was written in 1580.

However, those less concerned with scientific accuracy claim that an ancient Arabian tale contains the real origin of the expression. This old story tells of a bedouin who was sentenced because in the course of a blasphemous oath he had insulted the name or the honor of his chief,

The Arab's wife pleaded for clemency, declaring that not her "whole husband had committed the offense.

"Not your whole husband?" asked the sheik.

"Nay," she replied. "It was but the half of him. For am I not his other half, and I who have never offended thee should not be made to suffer for the sins of the other half, and the guilty half places itself under the protection of the better half."

The sheik, so the story runs, thereupon pardoned the husband, being greatly pleased by the ingennity of the Haines and wife by deed dated July 16, 1889, and recorded among the Land Records of Carroll County in Liber B. F. C. No. 73, folio 428, a certified copy of which deed is filed in this cause marked Exhibit "B."

That said real estate is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to interest therein as above stated, and that in order to make a division of said interest it will be necessary that said land be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties entitled thereto according to their respective interests.

That on the 14th day of September, 1921, said Cathorina Creen.

necessary that said land be sold and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties entitled thereto according to their respective interests.

That on the 14th day of September, 1921, said Catherine Green, widow of Joshua Green; Howard E. Green, Gladys M. Green, Louis Green, Helen Brooks, Alto Green, James Green and R. W. Green, entered into a contract of sale to sell said parcel of land to the Western Maryland Railway Company, a body cornorate, one of the plaintiffs, at and for the sum of Fifty Dollars, and that the said Western Maryland Railway Company paid the sum of Fifty Dollars on account and agreed to pay the balance, to-wit, Forty-five Dollars, upon the execution of a deed conveying a good and valid title to said property, as will appear by a copy of said agreement filed in this cause marked Exhibit "C."

That said piece or strip of land adjoins the land of the Western Maryland Railway Company, is unimproved and is of very little use or benefit to the aforesaid parties interested therein and does not yield any income whatsoever.

And that it would be to the interest and advantage of said infant, as well as to the interest and advantage of all the parties in interest that said sale of said property at the price contracted for as aforesaid should be confirmed by your Honorable Court: that said contract price is a fair and adequate price and is as much as and probably more than could be reasonably anticipated to be realized at a public sale. It is thereupon, this 7th day of December, A. D., 1921, ORDERED by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the plaintiffs, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Carroll county, for four successive weeks before the 16th, day of January, 1922, give notice to the said absent defendants of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 1st, day of February, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be

PLEASANT VALLEY.

New Year's Eve, Dec. 31, will long be remembered, when all at once the large barn of E. C. Yingling was destroyed by fire, with all its contents 6 horses, 4 cows, 2 sows with 15 pigs, 200 bus. wheat, 15 barrels corn, hay fodder, etc.; also wagon shed, hog pen, chicken house, and a number of chickens. The origin of the fire is unknown. Mr. Yingling and his famwere in Westminster at the time of the fire, having left home about 5 o'clock, and the fire started about 9 o'clock. The wind was blowing a western gale and set fire to Elmer Kindig's shed. Edward Hahn's house, summer house and smoke house were on fire, but was extinguished as also the straw stack of Roy Myers' was saved. People were present from Hanover, Baltimore, etc. Mr. Yingling's house and other buildings were on fire, but by having plenty of water, and that strong arm which God gave man, we were able to save the balance of the property. Anyone who has a book of "Our day in the Light of Prophecy," and will turn to page 92 of the falling stars of Nov. 13, 1833, will give you an idea of how our town looked on the night of Dec. 31. There were thousands and thousands of sparks bursting in the air and large ones falling to the ground setting fire to dry grass in the meadows as far up as John Brown's on the Pleasant Valley and Stonersville road. The Westminster Fire Co., responded, but could do nothing but protect the other properties. It was rumored that one of the horses was missing but that is not correct. As we said be-fore, the origin of the fire is unknown and never will be known.

Mr. and Mrs. Yingling are confined to the house with a nervous breakdown and we hope they will survive the great shock that is resting upon them. They have our sympathy and we hope that this community will help them: they need it. The barn was built by Frederick L. Yingling of the best lumber that he could get from such a remedy.

NOW THE "DIRIGIBLE" BOMB

Steered by Wireless, Its Possibilities for Deadly Work Are Almost Beyond Calculation.

A "dirigible bomb," that can be steered toward the target by wireless after being let fall from an airplane, is the novel invention of Elmer A. Sperry of Brooklyn.

Ordinarily, when bombs are dropped from aircraft, the chances of a miss are great. The speed and altitude of the plane, or balloon, have to be taken into account, and the wind, also. Obviously it would be of utmost advantage if the path of descent of the gravity projectile could be changed at will while it was falling.

The Sperry dirigible bomb carries a parachute, which, unfolding as it starts to drop, not only slows the rate of its descent, but incidentally serves as a "drag-rudder." By tilting this dragrudder in one direction or another the bomb's path of descent is controlled.

As the projectile starts to fall, a sec ond and very tiny parachute is liberated from the top of the bomb to support vertically a wire that serves the purpose of an antenna. It is by the nelp of this antenna that the man in he airplane is enabled so to operate the radio apparatus carried in his machine as to alter at will the angle of the drag-rudder. While the bomb is going down he circles about and steers it by radio. All he has to do to make the bomb turn this way or that is to turn a handle connected with his radio sender in the desired direction. Thus the bomb is made to land exactly where it will do the most good-meaning, of course, the most mischief .- Milwaukee

Beat .. Shortage W ... Oil. Because of a coke shortage due to war conditions, Austria was obliged to turn to some other fuel for heating cupola furnaces. Oil seemed to be the only promising medium, and its trial as an alternate produced some astonishing but desirable results. The experimental furnaces were equipped with two burners and a necessary complement of air pipes. No other alterations were made. The tests disclosed the fact that the coke charge, when oil was used was reduced by 11 pounds to each 200-pound iron charge. The oil required was a little over two pounds, and the melt was accomplished in from one third to onehalf the useni time.-Popular Mechanies Ma-

Deborah Elkins saw trouble ahead. She slowed the pace of her roadster as she approached the car beside the road and stopped when a tall figure planted itself squarely in front of

"Now, what in the world does he want with me?" she asked herself. "I can't help him and I won't give him a ride-even if he is a bit goodlooking!"

He came to the side of her car, and she saw in his dark eyes a grim look of determination. The tawny, wavy hair had lost its part and was rumpled engagingly. It occurred to her that she might give him a lift to town.

"My car has gone blooey, and I wonder if you will give me a lift? I am headed for the home of Mr. Elkins," he said briefly.

She looked at him sharply. She knew that her father had been trying to avoid process servers from the city for a week. Was this handsome, tawny chap one of that annoy-"But I-"

"I am Merton Raines from the office of Stetson & Stetson," he ex-

"No, I don't think I will," she answered. "Besides I am on my way to town."

"I am sorry, but I am on my way to the Elkins country home; so, if you will please move over one seat, I'll-' he said quietly.

"Well, what do you propose to do?" she demanded, *z.azed,

"To drive you to the Elkins place, then drive you to town," he answered serenely. "Please."

"I won't," she replied briefly. She plunged her foot on the foot throttle, but he had taken out the ignition key. The car was dead.

Angered, she stared at him, but his dark eyes were pleasant and smiling.

The Old Tire on the Rear Wheel Had Gone Flat.

"One of those rare determined type," she mused to herself.

He asked her to move. On her refusal he lifted her bodily from the seat into the next. Sudden wrath was softened by the new sensation of a man's strong arms raising her as they would a child; and her mixed emotions left her undecided. Before she rallied they were on their way.

He smiled down to her. "I am sorry, and I apologize, but you see I'm out to do what a dozen men haven't done."
"I see-and I ought to be downright angry with you-but you are a bit interesting. I never ran across a man just like you-so near the caveman, I think," she said, calmly studying him.

He winced. "Don't! I'll show you later that I can be decent."

"I wonder," she answered, leaving him puzzled but busy with his driv-

Attracted in spite of herself to him, she made up her mind to pay him for his cool confiscation of her car and also prevent him if she could from ever reaching her father, for she was convinced that her companion was a process server-a young lawyer who had volunteered to see to it that her father got the papers which would require his appearance in an annoying lawsuit.

She reached forward, and with practiced hand jerked the ignition key from its socket. The car slowed down to a standstill.

He turned around, smiling. "Now, little girl, you must be good. Return that key, or right here I must take it away from you by force, and I almost think I would like to."

She clung to the key, almost wishing that he would try for the sake of the experience of having him, and vet angry at his calm assumption that he could take it from her. She returned the key with the feeling that here was a new kind of male. The car rolled smoothly on, and then, over a rough hit of road began to bump suggestively. She laughed in spite of herself. The old tire on the rear wheel had gone flat.

He groaned in auguish. "And this is the kind of car you drive." Adding, "I beg your pardon.

"Well, I was on my way to the garage when you-you-held me up," she exclaimed gently.

He stripped off his coat. "It's a case of putting on your spare, and here goes!

He laid his coat in the seat. Her eyes caught the glint of a legal-looking envelope, and a wild plan leaped into being. Cautiously she drew out the envelope, extracted the contents, and replaced it and sat innocently

"Two at the same game," she thought with delight.

Once more he took his seat, first glancing at the pocket to make sure his envelope was there, and the eventful journey continued.

Her thoughts were a little mixed. What he would do or what he would not do or what he would say or whether he would be terribly angry when he discovered the loss of the papers were questions she could not answer; but she discovered herself hoping that he would not be too angry.

Under the guidance of his capable hands the car rapidly covered the remaining miles, and he came to the goal of his effort-the entrance to the Elkins home. He mounted the steps triumphantly.

"If you will wait, I will be glad to drive to your home or to town," he said gravely.

"This is my home," she said sweetly.

He staggered and caught himself, hesitated, then she saw his strong jaw set. "I am sorry it should be this way, but I have no choice."

Then he went in. The sound of voices reached her through the open door, her father's deep laughter loudest. Then the would-be process server came out, and she skipped in. When she returned, her holdup man was far down the road swinging with steady strides townward. She slid hurriedly into her car, pressed the throttle, and soon caught up with him. He turned a smiling face, and it dawned upon her that he was a good winner and besides a good loser. "What. Mischief, did you do with those papers?" he asked, a man's broad grin on his race.

She laughed. "I just gave them to father! I have always thought he ought to go and testify-and the other reason-well, I just plain like you! Will you ride with me?"

"Will I?" The frank adoration in his eyes averted hers. "I certainly will because I want to show you my caveman ancestor is about a million years old!"

TRACES MOVEMENT OF EARTH

Famous French Astronomer Throws New Light on Subject Long a Matter of Dispute.

The fact that our earth in its voyage through space has no fewer than 14 distinct movements has been pointed out by the French astronomer and scientist, Camille Flammarion, These are as follows:

"Daily rotation, annual revolution, fluctuation or rocking due to the precession of the equinoxes in a period of 26,765 years, monthly movement of the earth around the center of gravity of the 'earth-moon couple'; nutation caused by the attraction of the moon every 181/2 years; variations. coming once every century, of the obliquity of the ecliptic; variations every century of the eccentricity of the terrestrial orbit; displacement of the line of apses every 21,000 years; disturbances caused by the constantly changing attraction of the planets; displacement of the center of gravity of the solar system around which the earth travels annually, this center being determined by the variable positions of the planets; perpetual variation of latitudes; daily tides of the continental soil; displacement of the whole Milky way, of which our sun is one star, toward the constellation of Capricorn, at the formidable speed of 375 miles per second or 1,250,000 miles per hour."

Cries and Calls of Gray Geese.

Can any sportsman or naturalist clearly state the distinguishing character of the usual cries of the British species of wild gray geese? From what I can gather (partly from my own experience) the note of the gray lag goose is barsh, sonorous and nasal, resembling that of the domestic goose, as might be expected. The note of the bean goose is somewhat similar. but softer and more bell-like. The chief cries of the pink-footed goose according to a friend of much experience, are a sharp "kee-wick," and a rather metallic "ha-ha-ha." while the note of the white-fronted goose is more highly pitched and more musical than those of the other three.-Letter in the Field.

Why Chinese Noses Are Flat.

there is a practice which seems to have a curious result. The mother carries her infant in a kind of pannier on her back, and not, as in other countries where the dorsal carriage is affected, with the face turned outwards. but, as probably we ought to expect in China, where everything seems to go and come by rule of contraries, with the face turned inwards. The result of that is that the baby's nose is of necessity pressed against its mother's back, whence, no doubt, has been evolved in the course of ages the peculiarly flattened or blunted nose characteristic of the Chinaman.

TAKE INVENTION FOR GRANIED

Few People Seem to Realize Importance of Work Done by Men of Brilliant Ideas.

Inventors sometimes have been looked upon as rather scatter-brained people who spend most of their time thinking up impractical ways to do unnecessary things. But, according to Dr. Miller Reese Hutchinson, distinguished inventor and former adviser of Thomas A. Edison, few people realize the importance of invention to our modern daily life.

"Invention," says Doctor Hutchinson, "is perhaps the most important constructive force in our economic life. We take it for granted and few people appreciate its daily application. But inventions shadow our every step from the cradle to the grave. Our food is planted and harvested with invented machinery: it is distributed throughout the world on invented freight cars and motortrucks; it is cooked in invented stoves and ovens and sometimes eaten with invented teeth. We come and go from our work on invented means of transportation-if we walk it is on invented shoes and socks. All of our daily activities in business and industry are expedited and made possible by inventions. Our leisure moments are soothed by music front invented musical instruments or brightened by invented motion pictures, and when we die we are placed in an invented casket, carried away in an invented hearse and lowered into the grave by means of an invented lowering device."-Industry Illus-

FRENCH CITY HAS HISTORY

Tarbes, Birthplace of Marshal Foch, Otherwise Identified With Military Prowess of Country.

The visit to America of Marshal Foch, incidentally lends interest to his native city, Tarbes, in the south of France. This town which is destined to be a shrine of France henceforth, already has contributed in other ways to the military prowess of that country, according to a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Honored by a conspicuous statue and by the name of one of its principal streets is Dominique Jean Larrey, who introduced the 'flying field hospitals,' adopted and developed by Napoleon, the genesis of the modern ambulance. More recently it has been a center for the breeding of the famous Pyrenean horses, an Anglo-Arabian breed, valued primarily for their light cavalry use. It also has an important arsenal."

Glass Pavements a Failure.

Some years ago a plant was established near Lyons, France, for the manufacture of paving glass. Numerous descriptions of the new paving material were published, and a brilliant future was predicted for it. The city authorities of Lyons permitted the manufacturer to lay a specimen section of glass pavement in the Place de la Republique, a center for heavy

The llama and alpaca are extensively domesticated in South America. A relative of theirs, the vicuna, smaller In size, is a wild animal, native to the high plateau of the Andes.

Thought-Reading.

This trick never fails to raise a laugh if performed before a room full of people-the more the better.

Ask a lady to write a sentence on a piece of paper. She must hand this round and let everyone read it except vourself. Then ask her to fold it up and place it on the floor, and get one of the men present to put his foot on it. After thinking deeply for a few minutes, assume a bright smile, and say to the owner of the foot:

"You wish me to tell you what is on that piece of paper?" When he replies "Yes," answer, "Your foot," and make for the door.

ADDS TO VALUE OF PROPERTY

Effective Argument as to the Necessity for Carefully Thought Out City Planning.

City zoning and city planning tend to stabilize real estate values and make it easier for the real estate dealers to offer permanent investments to prospective purchasers. This forms part of the advice that J. C. Nichols of Kansas City has offered his fellow realtors. He says:

"In talking last summer with the comptroller of a life insurance company which loans a larger amount of money on real estate than any other company in the world, I asked him if he thought $100,000,000 was too large an amount to place on the destruction of property values in our cities from year to year by the shifting of downtown business centers and by the abandonment of high-class residence

"'Why,' he said, 'Nichols, $100,000,-000 would not begin to cover it.' I said: 'What do you think-$500,000,-

"'Well,' he said, 'I doubt very much if that would cover the annual loss in money from the unnecessary shifting of our property values.'

"Now, with what confidence can we present to an investor the proposition of buying property if we have to admit right on the face of it that we are in a business that deals with uncertainties, that we are in a business that deals with shifting values of property? "There is the very keynote of city planning from the standpoint of the realtor. It stabilizes the very product which you are presenting to your investors, and I cannot understand why the National Real Estate association has not yet realized that the cityplanning movement that is starting in this country will have more effect upon the business of every real-estate man than all the other movements put together."

In line with movements launched by automobile clubs and associations, state highway departments, the American Legion, the American Forestry association, and various good roads organizations, the Department of Agriculture is urging the planting of black walnut trees along the highways. LESSON FOR JANUARY 8

ELIJAH THE TISHBITE.

LESSON TEXT-I Kings 17:1-24 GOLDEN TEXT—But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you.—Matt. 6:33. REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ex. 16; 1

Kings 16:29-33; Matt. 6:19-34.
PRIMARY TOPIC-God Cares for Eli-

JUNIOR TOPIC - Elijah, the Brave INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC -Jehovah's Champion Preserved. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC Obeying the Word of Jehovah

1. Elijah's Message to Ahab (v. 1). This was a startling message, for Ahab had not only led Israel into idolatry, but into a repudiation of the living God.

1. "As the Lord God of Israel liveth." Elijah knew the source of his message. He knew that he represented the living God, therefore had no fear to come into the presence of the king in His name.

2. "Before whom I stand." Because Elijah stood before God, he could stand before Ahab. His "standing" before God indicates his constant readiness to go on His errands.

3. "There shall not be dew nor rain these years but according to my word." This suspension of moisture continued for three and a half years (Jas. 5:17), and was given in answer to Elijah's prayer (Jas. 5:17). Drouth was predicted as the punishment for idolatry (Deut. 11:16, 17), and the prophet was now applying the divine judgment. II. Elijah's Retirement (vv. 2-16).

As soon as he had delivered his message he retired from the king's sight, while the penalty of the king's sin should be visited upon the land. When the famine was sore in the land, the king sought east and west, north and south for Elijah, but God had concealed him. Those who speak God's message frequently seek solitude when the message is delivered.

1. By the brook Cherith (vv. 2-7). (1) Drinking of the brook (vv. 4-6). While drinking of the literal waters of the brook, he was being nourished faith was tested as he saw the stream whosoever will, let him take the warun lower and lower as the drouth ter of life freely." continued. (2) Fed by the ravens (vv. 4-6). The ravens brought him bread and flesh in the morning and bread and flesh in the evening. Elijah thus enjoyed two meals each day, with water to drink. The same God who sustained Elijah, still lives, and we should trust Him for our daily bread. At last the brook dried up because there was no rain in the land. The Lord then ted him to move

2. At Zarephath (vv. 8-16). (1) The place (v. 9). Zarephath was at the west side of Palestine, near the Mediterranean sea, in Gentile territory. In order to reach this place Elijah had to cross the country from the Jordan to the sea. Zarephath was only a few miles from the home of Jezebel's father. This, no doubt, was a trial to Elijah. (2) Sustained by a widow (vv. 10-12). "Bring a little water and a morsel of bread," was the request which he made of the widow. This, no doubt, was a great trial to her, but God had touched her heart and stirred up faith in her. Her reply reveals her deep distress. (3) Elijah's reply (v. 13). This made plain to her that it was a case of mutual interest to do as the Prophet sald. "The barrel of meal shall not waste; neither shall the cruse of oil fail." (4) The widow's obedience (v. 15). "She did according to the sayings of Elijah, and she and her house did eat many days." (5) God keeps His word (v. 16). May we learn from this lesson:

1. The particularity of God's providence. Truly a sparrow shall not fall to the ground without our Father. By the prearrangements of God all our needs are daily met. There is no happen so in God's providence. The woman of Zarephath, going out to masonry foundations. gather sticks to prepare the last meal, met Elijah, and is helped for two years.

2. No matter how small our resources, we can do something for God if we will. The lad with the five barley loaves and the two small fishes, with the blessing of the Lord, did a great work.

3. Our concern should be to work for others and for God before ourselves. We should give our all to God and trust Him for further supply.

4. God often allows us to get down to our very last in order to teach us that all is from Him.

5. God's dealing with this Gentile woman is a foregleam of His dealing with the Gentile nations.

The Cheerful Worker.

Do all things without murmurings and disputings; that ye may be blameless and harmless, the sons of God, without rebuke in the midst of a crooked and perverse nation, among whom ye shall shine as lights in the world.—Philippians 2:14 to 16.

A Great Reward.

I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith. Henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness .-- II Timothy 4:7 and 8.

Utilizing Opportunities Genesis 41:14-40; 2 Corinthians 6:1, 2 In Ephesians 5:16 the Christian believer is directed to utilize his opportunities. The words "redeeming the time" are in the margin of the Revised Version made to read "buying up the opportunity." Like a merchant in the market place, looking for and making good investments so are we to turn to spiritual account the opportunities constantly confronting us. But how? Let verses 17 and 18 of this same chapter make reply. Here we read "Be not unwise," i. e., be not intoxicated, and absorbed by, or entangled with worldly things, but "be filled with the Spirit." Here is the answer in the negative and positive forms. Our Scripture lesson in Genesis 41 provides an illustration of the truth Ephesians. Joseph had learned through years of testing and training the insufficiency of self and the sufficiency of God. He gives expression to this in verse 16. Confronted with the greatest opportunity of his life, he humbly confesses his own inability in the words "It is not in me," and immediately follows this with an assertion of God's willingness and pow-er in the words, "God shall give Pharaoh an answer of peace." That this confession was no formal and creedal statement uttered as a mere repeti-tion for the sake of the effect is demonstrated in the verses that follow. Mary especially verse 38. Something in the life and manner of Joseph, additional to his words, made its impression on Paraoh. It is not what one says that counts, but how one says it. Not only what one does, but how one does it. In other words, it is quality that counts. A man's worth is determined by his spiritual power. Observe the comment of Pharaoh after Joseph had finished speaking. It may not have conveyed at the time all that it suggests to us in the light of New Testament teaching but it does imply unmistakably, the recognition of the presence and power of deity in the life of Joseph. And this is the source of our ability to utilize opportunities.

Let us not forget the teaching of the other part of our Scripture lesson that "now is the day of salvation," the greatest day of opportunity that "The Spirit and the Bride say come, by the Living Waters from the throne and let him that heareth say come of God. From day to day Elijah's and let him that is athirst come, and Alluring Offer to Workmen.

In telling of Europe's monetary woes James Bryce, former ambassador from Great Britain to the United States, recounted recently a story which was told him by a friend who visited Russia. "It takes a pile of ruble notes that high," said Viscount Bryce, extending his hand several feet above the table, "to purchase a crust of bread there. The workmen employed to print off new ruble notes threatened to strike. They were propitiated by an offer on the part of the soviet government that, when they had worked an allotted number of hours at making ruble notes for the government, they might work as much longer as they liked at printing off ruble notes for themselves."-New York Evening '

"SMALL HOMES MAKE CITY"

Testimony of Expert Who is Warm Advocate of Building Zone Idea During Town's Youth.

"Make a city of the owners of small homes and you will have a well-run

This was the verdict of Edward W. Basset, counsel of the zoning committee of the New York board of estimate and father of the zoning laws. after an exhaustive review of city development under the building zone system.

"Before the days of zoning," said he, "the head of a family would be forced two or three times to sell his private home because he was pushed out by advancing stores or apartment houses. Then he would usually move to New Jersey, Long Island or Westchester, and New York would lose a try, and the people, by-and-by, begood citizen. A home owner takes a lively interest in local improvement and neighborhood welfare. Until New York adopted the zoning plan, there was no encouragement for small home owners inside of the city limits. Now the owner of a small home is better protected in many parts than if he goes out into suburban villages. "Small detached homes are springing up rapidly in all of the outlying boroughs, especially in Brooklyn and Queens. The home owner sees that in residence location he is protected against invasion of stores, small factories and garages. In the D and E districts he is safe from large tenements and apartments. He is willing to put his earnings in the equity of a small home and pay off his second mortgage by installments because the zoning plan has lessened the dangers that would wipe out his home equity."

ALWAYS TIME WELL SPENT

"Cleanup Week," as an Institution, Should Be a Feature of Every Town and Village.

Cleanliness, as we have been reliably informed, is next to godliness. And community cleanliness is just as important as individual cleanliness, if we are to have a pleasant, healthful and decent city to live in.

Milwaukee has always occupied an enviable position among the cities of the country for its civic tidiness, and the annual institution known as "cleanup week" has helped materially to this happy state of affairs. We have been having a salutary "cleanup" in respect of the moral surroundings of the city. A good deal of rubbish has been dragged out and done away with and stray corners are still being explored and tidled up with excellent results in so far as the moral atmosphere is concerned.-Milwaukee

Practical City Planning.

There is no mystery whatever about city planning. It is only the application of common sense business methods to the development of a city. Too frequently city planning has been understood in this country as relating merely to the esthetic side of city improvement and city development. We must get rid of that notion.

The element of beauty, of course, must never be overlooked, but It would be more to the point to fix as the goal of a city plan the idea of making the city a more practical city. Real city planning must inevitably deal more with the practical than with the beautiful. It must aim for better and more attractive living conditions.-Charles F. Coffin.

Billions Invested in Homes.

There are approximately 6,000,000 families in the United States living in their own homes. This represents an aggregate investment of $30,000,000,-000, since builders and contractors declare that the average American home is valued at $5,000. At 5 per cent the American home owners are therefore paying out about $1,500,000,-000 for the privilege of enjoying life under roofs that belong to them. The 5 per cent will easily take care of repairs, taxes and interest on the investment.

"Say Less and Do More." If we could only make our hands move as actively as our tongue, if we could say less and do more for each other's good, not alone would every home be happier, but communities would be greatly enriched thereby .-John Wanamaker.

CLAY PIFES USED BY ROMANS

Discovery Raises Interesting Question as to What the Rule s of the World Smoked.

About thirty years ago potsaerds or pe bowls as thick as a man's thumb ere found in the course of the excavation of a Roman castle in the vicinity of Hanan. The bowls were made of gray clay, and browned by heat. Subsequently, numerous fragments of what were evidently clay pipes were unearthed in the ruins of Roman settlements in Switzerland and at August-on-Rhine, or Augusta Rauracorum, as it was called by the ancient Romans. Careful examination proved that the potsherds were parts of clay pipes much like the clay pipes of the present-day Dutch fishermen, the only difference being that the stem of the Roman pipe was very short, and probably a thick straw was used as a mouthpiece. Some of the excavated pipe bowls have hinges, indicating that the Romans used pipes with covers There arises the question, "What did the Romans smoke?" It is possible that inhalation of the smoke of certain plants was as common in the ancient Roman empire as the use of certain medicines is today in this councame accustomed to smoking aromatic narcotics, like lavender, to while time away. The fact that smoking pipes were excavated in ancient Roman castles in Switzerland and Germany indicates that barbarian mercenaries in the Roman army adopted their southern masters' custom. During the migration of the nations, smoking, like other customs of civilized ancient times, was lost in Europe, to be revived more than a thousand years later when Spaniards carried tobacco from America to the old continent.

HAVE HIGH REGARD FOR LIFE

Brahmans' Ethics Do Not Allow Them to Destroy Even the Most Annoying Pests.

Mr. C. E. Tyndale Biscoe, in his book, "Kashmir in Sunlight and Shade," gives the following entertaining account of the Brahmans' peculiarities: "It's very difficult to understand the Brahmans' ethics. Often in the summer time, when one is teaching a class, it happens that a mosquito or a fly settles on one's hand. By force of habit I end his life with a slap. At this the Brahmans jump and cry out, Oh, oh! you have taken a life! You have taken a life!' and suck their fingers hard and crack their knuckles, which is a sign of distress and horror. They have of late given up this custom of showing horror at the death of a fly or mosquito, for they hate the retort, 'Don't you eat mutton?' They will not kill insects, and I have seen a boy pick a flea off of himself and then quickly put it in a place of safey down the neck of the boy next to im, for if he had put it on the floor t might have been trodden upon, or perhaps have returned to his own person. This belief of theirs in the preservation of pests is very unfortunate. It is the same with rats and mice which abound. The furthest they will go in the matter is to catch them in traps and then carry them to the opposite side of the river and there release them. But as people on both sides of the river play the same game, the rats do not decrease greatly."

Mice Phenomenal Jumpers.

Mice can make people jump. Can they jump themselves?

The answer is in the affirmative, and, according to an incident related by F. C. (Halifax), they are real dabs at it. The other day he came upon a mouse on a 6-foot wall. The mouse ran away, and, finding no means of gradual descent, took its life in its hands, and jumped to the ground. The ground was a hard-beaten foot path, and, to the astonishment of my correspondent, the little creature alighted without injury, and scuttled away for all it was worth. "A mouse's leg will be barely oneeighth of an inch thick," concludes F. C. "and if we work the incident out proportionately, we find the little creature's jump equivalent to that of a man at over 131 feet. Imagine a man taking a sheer downward leap 131 feet, alighting on a hard surface, and running off uninjured!"

I am not sure whether F. C.'s formula is correct, but I agree with him that his little mouse certainly was some jumper!-London Answers.

Meaning of Clergy.

The word clergy, like the word clerk, which is the Latin clericus in Anglicized form, does not refer exclusively to churchmen, but includes all who have any pretension toward learning.

William Rufus, the second of the Norman kings of England, enacted an ordinance in 1087 known by the title "Benefit of Clergy," in accordance with which an accused man could save his life on proving that he was not entirely ignorant of letters.

The statute in favor of those who constituted the clergy in this sense continued nominally in force until Queen Anne's reign, when in 1700 it was repealed, although long before that it had become a dead letter.

Inconsiderate Man.

She-Yes, I've broken our engagement. Just think, last night he takes me to a show and tells me it's a tragedy. For two whole acts he lets me sit there and weep and finally, in the third act, he tells me the whole thing is a farce. I'm through with him.

SAYS STICK TO HOME TOWN

Successful Man Points Out Fact That Road to Success Lies in Small Community.

"Shall I stay in my own community or try my luck in the big city?" is a question that most young people sooner or later ask themselves. Of late years the tendency has been toward the city, which holds out the lure of fame and fortune.

Comes Edward W. Bok with an answer out of his own experience. He cries down the big city, and while admitting its necessity, warns youths to consider its greater opportunities only in connection with the greater struggle and the unnatural and even sordid conditions that surround such endeavor. Mr. Bok does not hold that the young man should dodge the hard knocks by which character is molded, but that it is foolish deliberately to seek them, since they will come fast enough unsought.

The shortest road to success in the blg city is by way of the country or the small community. Very few of the leaders of the great financial institutions in New York got their training in New York. They were called to those duties after they had made a success in smaller communities. As a rule their training ground has been the producing agricultural distracts of the Middle West. They have grown up in the small communities where quality counts.

Mr. Bok concludes that it is better to be a large toad in a pond than to be a small toad in a river. Work in the small community gives one a better opportunity to concentrate and to learn the principles of life under the most natural conditions .-- Minneapolis

TO PRESERVE PUBLIC HEALTH

Movement in Cuyahoga County, Ohio, Is Given Warm Praise by Cleveland Newspaper.

Cleveland, long recognized as among the healthiest of large cities, bids for an even higher distinction in that field by the organization of the Cuyahoga County Public Health associa-

According to Doctor Bishop, superintendent of the Lakeside hospital, we are to have here a situation not duplicated anywhere else in the country -all of the privately operated health agencies of a county brought together under one head for the purpose of forwarding the health work of the community and giving the right sort of support and co-operation to the public health agencies. It is an achievement of note. The people of Cleveland are its chief beneficiaries.

After all, community health is largely an optional matter with the community itself. Even a big city can reduce infant mortality, decrease the general death rate and furnish proper living conditions for its people, if It cares to take the trouble. In large part it is a matter of civic education. -Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Where Democracy "Took."

A "community mind" grows by accretion. The rolling years add each its portion to a living village spirit.

Ten years ago the small town of Roscoe, Ill., put on its year's program, having been led to it by the nascent Roscoe Improvement association. Since then, except for a brief forced interval, this village has kept on the job to become a community, spelt large, that is "a group of people dwelling at one locality and bound together by common interests."

So, without tax or special assessment they laid their own cement walks and crossings by volunteer labor and gifts of cash, installed an electric service on streets and in homes, conducted the May cleanup day and celebrated the glorious Fourth and Memorial day. -Chicago Daily News.

Make for Good Citizenship.

The wholesome surroundings of a small one-family house are a great asset to the city. Children can grow up without tearing down buildings to create playgrounds, as most big cities have been compelled to do in congested neighborhoods. An abundance of light and air is one of the best assurances for building up a sound, healthy family. In the long run this means the production of good citizens.

WORTHY WIFE OF GREAT MAN

Madame de Lafayette Said to Have Been All That a Man's Heart Could Desire.

Marie Adrienne Francoise de Noailles, second daughter of the Duc d'Ayen, a beautiful, gracious, charming girl, was the wife of the equally gracious and charming Marquis de Lafayette, French hero of the American Revolution. Adrienne was a true daughter of a noble house, and marriage with her was, according to historians, the most fortunate thing that ever happened to the brave young darling of for-

"This happened," writes George Morgan of the death of Louis XV, "to be the spring when Lafayette drew the best prize in life, Madame de Lafayette.'

Writing of the marriage arrangements, Adrienne says:

"I was scarcely twelve years old when M. de Lafayette was proposed as my husband, he himself being at that time but fourteen. His extreme youth and the isolated character of his position, for he had lost all his near relatives and was without anyone in whom he had confidence to guide him, as well as his large fortune entirely free from restrictions, which my mother considered a source of great danger, led her after careful conconsideration to refuse him, in spite of the good reports of his character that we heard from all those who knew him. She persisted in her refusal for several months."

FAIR HAIR ON THE DECREASE

Scientific Reason Alleged Is That Blondes Are Less Resistant Than Their Darker Brothers.

Scientists tell us that blonde hair is dying out, the reason being that blondes, being less resistant, die soener than brown-haired persons. The cities, too, show a smaller proportion of light-haired and light-eyed persons than the country. Variety of colors in the hair of a population is a sure sign of civilization and culture. This variety is never found in pure races, like Indians, Africans, negroes and the Asiatics. The Maltese and the Hebrews have the largest proportion of brownhaired people, and the Danes the smallest. But the Danes make up for it by having the largest percentage of blondes. When the hair comes down close on the forehead, forming a peak, that is a sign of a strong constitution and a long-lived ancestry. The man is also credited with having a short, sharp temper, great honesty of purpose, excellent observation, and perseverance. Stiff derby and opera hats are responsible for much of the baldness found among young men in large cities. The unyielding rims of these hats interfere with the circulation in those veins which return the blood from the scalp.

Purest Natural Light.

The scientists tell us that the firefly's light is the purest in nature; almost all other sources of illumination give forth a mixed form of energy that is only in part illumination, to the human eye, at least. But the firefly gives forth light and nothing else, An ordinary gas flame, for instance, contains but three per cent of light rays. Sunlight itself is only 35 per cent pure. It is no wonder, then, that many a child has discovered that when a firefly crawls over a book in the dark you can read the type behind them, providing he is accommodating, and you read rapidly. The illumination is said to come from a photogenic plate of fatty substance supplied with a profusion of fine tracheal branches, which carry a rich supply of oxygen to the fat cells and cause, a the insect's will, a rapid combustion. Probably it is fortunate for the fire fly that this combustion does produce pure light, and not 45 per cent of heat waves. -Harper's Magazine.

Getting Seat Habit Early.

A well-meaning young mother, over estimating the innate fineness of her six-year-old son in a Munjoy Hillbound car, caused considerable embarrassment to herself and friend and amusement and censure, according to the caliber of the other passengers The young matron and her small son were comfortably seated in the crowded five o'clock car, when the family friend was spied by the boy. Mother said: "Jack, dear, let Mrs. So and So have your seat." And then the fun began-Jack dear at first mildly but firmly protested. Mother became insistent and Jack more persistent and the argument waxed from mild to decidedly vociferous, with the car still speeding on its way and Jack dear holding down the seat at Washington avenue, although the argument started at Monument square, Jack won out to the end of the ride, but was assured a most unhappy half hour with dad later in the evening .- Port land Evening Express.

Raccoons Inhabit Woods.

Raccoons like the woods, especially if water is near. Swamps and marshes furnish the best places for sets. Signa of the animal can usually be discovered at the mouths of small streams emptying into larger ones. The current carries food-injured fish, crawfish, snails, etc. These can be picked up by the 'coon and, since he always seems hungry, spots where there is something to eat furnish the best places for traps. The beginner will have no trouble in recognizing the tracks. They resemble the imprint of a small baby's foot.

If you will consider the experience of others under similar circumstances, who have been most successful inchecking their colds in their beginning, you will secure a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy without delay, and use it faithfully. There are many families who have used this preparation successfully for years and hold it in high esteem. It is excellent.
