

WANT NEW PAPER IN BALTIMORE.

Need of "Christian" Paper is said to be Very Great.

At the meeting of the Annual Conference, Maryland M. P. Church, held in Newark N. J. a special committee submitted a report favorable to the establishment in Baltimore of a "Christian" daily paper. The report was presented by Daniel Baker, W. O. Atwood and Seth H. Linthicum, and was as follows:

We, the undersigned, your committee, appointed at the last session of the Maryland Conference of the Methodist Protestant Church to consider the report on the question of the need and feasibility of establishing a Christian daily paper in Baltimore, beg leave to report in the strongest emphasis that such a paper is certainly and sadly needed at this time, and that if the necessary financial support can be secured the problem would be readily and successfully solved.

Never in its history has the State of Maryland and its great metropolis, Baltimore, needed more than does today, a daily newspaper which will stand for fundamental Christian ideas and righteousness in public and private life; a paper safe for every member of a man's family, taking the position of upholding and supporting the great moral questions of the day.

From our knowledge of the gentlemen who control our Baltimore dailies, we entertain a hope that a change in the policy of their papers may be secured by a united and persistent influence led by the many Christian organizations of our city and State or possibly through the auspices of the Baltimore Federation of Churches.

Among many favorable comments on the report, was the following from Rev. C. M. Elderdice, of Crisfield, Md. "If I write a letter to the Sun it is emasculated or ridiculed by headlines. Common decency requires that expression in this column should be treated with courtesy. The papers of Maryland stand against prohibition, for Sunday baseball, and ridicule the ministry. Maryland newspapers stand for every foul and unclean thing that raises its head."

Dr. Elderdice, of course, means the three (two in ownership) Baltimore newspapers, when he refers to "the papers of Maryland" as such a statement would be incorrect, if applied to the great majority of the other papers of the state.

A fourth newspaper for Baltimore depends on more than securing the required amount of capital which, in itself, should not be difficult, especially if sponsored by an effort backed by the churches.

As we understand the situation in Baltimore, the three papers of the city own four Associated Press franchises, or all allotted to the city. This may be a wrong impression, but even if correct, it may be possible to secure from other news agencies all of the telegraphic news needed to produce an up-to-date daily newspaper.

Making a fourth paper "pay" would also be a very important consideration; but, judging from the size of the city and the larger number of daily newspapers maintained in other cities the size of Baltimore and also considering the backing that a newspaper standing for issues that the present papers do not stand for, would reasonably receive, it would appear that the newspaper field of Baltimore is not already overcrowded.

There is still another consideration, that applies only to the present, and that is the high cost of installing a plant at this time. However, all of these problems can likely be overcome if the suggested effort is backed by enough earnestness and popular support.

Farm Conditions in Ohio.

Cyrus F. Flook, of Myersville has just returned from a trip in Ohio, where he spent considerable time with relatives. The time he spent there afforded him the opportunity of comparing farm activity with that of this section.

He stated that wages in Ohio this year are decidedly under those of this section. Farm hands by the month in Ohio, are now being paid from $25 to $30 monthly. He said that farm laborers, by the day, are getting only $1.50 and that many are begging for work at this price. He stated that the unemployment in the industrial centers has driven large numbers of young men who can get away, to the country for work.

Mr. Flook said also that he found the farmers there are intending to curtail their plantings this year as much as possible. He stated that many farms will not be run to much over half their capacity of corn, due to the fact that poor prices for these crops have prevailed and farmers who feel they can afford to do as they wish are taking things slowly until they see just how conditions will settle. He stated the more intelligent and farseeing farmers of that state believe that there is more price reduction coming, and that they do not care to produce crops which they must market at a loss.—Frederick News.

Very Generous!

The Baltimore Sun, in a circular letter addressed to The Record, and likely sent to other county papers, says:

"The Sun, as you have perhaps noticed, has taken steps to protect its exclusive articles by copyright. We do not desire, however, to have this apply to the counties of Maryland, and this letter is to give you permission to print in your paper, with or without credit, anything you may desire from the columns of The Sun, without bothering to ask about it."

THE DROP IN WHEAT.

July Delivery at Kansas City is down to 98 Cents.

The drop in wheat is still continuing, Thursday's quotation in Chicago being about $1.05, while at Kansas City the price dropped to 98c for July delivery. The highest price reached for wheat in Kansas City, was $3.45 in April 1917.

These prices, of course, affect the Eastern markets. The price in Taneytown, today, is $1.15 which is bad news, especially for those who had the chance of getting $2.45 to $2.50, but held their crops for better prices.

With the drop in wheat and flour, the price of bread still remains unequally high, but it is quite probable that "the staff of life" will be compelled to come down from its high perch.

Minneapolis patent flour is selling around and under $8.00 per barrel, and bran at $15.00 per ton.

Board of Education.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was called to order in the office of the Board on Wednesday, April 6th., at 10:30 A. M. Commissioner Allender was absent.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved as recorded.

The list of bills as presented to the Board was approved and ordered paid. Requests for contributions to local funds raised for libraries, etc., were presented to the Board which contributed ten ($10) dollars to the amount already raised in each case, except in the case of Union Bridge it agreed to make the contribution ten (10%) per cent of the amount raised by the school, which amounted to $20.

Union Bridge, $200, E. A. Wolfe, piano; Ebbvale, Mae E. Gettier, $24 phonograph; Sykesville, (colored), Penny School Club, $15, play equipment; Houcksville, T. W. Buchanan, phonograph; Hampstead, L. C. Kefauver, $57.00, phonograph; Frizellburg, Vesta Zepp, $10.35, library.

The budget for the year of 1921-1922 as prepared by the Superintendent was approved and authorized to be laid before the Board of County Commissioners after the next meeting.

The Board authorized Supt. Unger to have repairs made to the retaining wall at the Sykesville school.

Mr. Joseph Smith was appointed as Trustee to the Pine Hill school to succeed Mr. Albert J. Ohler.

The Board decided not to give the purchase of the property belonging to the Washington Camp No. 7, P. O. S. of A. of Pleasant Valley any further consideration until the expiration of the contract in 1923.

The advisability of adopting a method of conducting a Dental Clinic in Carroll County was deferred until the opening of school in the Fall.

A delegation composed of committees appointed by the various civic and social organizations of Westminster representing about 500 people came before the Board to advocate the imperative necessity of constructing a new high school building for Westminster and the surrounding communities. The Board promised to request the necessary funds from the County Commissioners for such building as was contemplated by the committee.

The plan for the construction of the Westminster high school building submitted by Architect B. E. Starr, as approved and accepted by the Board, and the amount based upon a tentative bid submitted by a well-known contractor of Hanover, approximately $150,000 was placed in the budget.

The Board authorized the advertising for the proposal for the completion of the Pleasant Gap building.

It was determined to make a permanent extension of one room to the Woodbine building, in order to take care of the growing necessities of that community, and it was also determined to secure bids for the removal of the building at Four Corners and re-constructing it at Taylorsville in order to make a two room school at this point, so as to satisfactorily house the school.

A delegation representing the Old Fort Community appeared before the Board presenting a petition showing a sufficient number of children to justify opening the Old Fort school in September. After careful consideration the Board decided to have an investigation made, and if the petition proved to be correct, the school would be opened.

After a long and careful discussion, the Board deemed it advisable to raise the salaries of high school teachers of Academic subjects, who are now receiving from $900 to $1100 to $1200 to $1400, this to include as now a range from one to eight years of experience.

The proposition laid before the Board by Attorney E. O. Weant for consideration and adjustment with respect to an alleged unsettled claim made by Mr. N. C. Erb was deferred until the next regular meeting in May.

The Board adjourned at 3:05 P. M.

Baltimore butchers are complaining that the demand for beef has greatly fallen off, and place part of the blame on the low price of eggs. At the same time, there is no sign of reducing meat prices to compete with eggs.

The labor situation in England still continues critical, but with hopes of adjustment at the last minute.

Co-operative Building.

Co-operative building is not very different from co-operative buying and selling. It simply means the union of small efforts and interests, that alone could not succeed. It means about the same that any other joint stock proposition means—an incorporated company for transacting business as one firm or partnership.

Co-operative building is not new. All large cities have large hotels, apartment houses, office buildings, and the like, built and owned on the stock company plan. Under the title of Real Estate Companies, or Building Associations, many thousands of dwellings are owned and used as stock in trade, as in a business.

Co-operative efforts are usually made with the expectation of profit accruing but at times they are made with the hope, rather than expectation, of profits, the main consideration being to supply the object of the co-operation. And while there is present the chance of no profit, or perhaps actual loss, there is usually no greater percentage of this chance present than there is in any privately launched enterprise.

Co-operative building is new, only to the smaller towns. To towns lacking confidence in their future, and also disposed to criticize home enterprises. The spirit of "it can't be done" is the spirit that retards growth, and it exists to the greatest degree where citizens are too conservative and cautious to "take chances," and then get back of the chances and make them successful.

Manufacturing towns are towns with an abundance of dwellings; towns where investments in real estate require tenants to return profits; where empty houses cause self-interest to invite the location of manufacturing enterprises with which to fill the houses. No one ever saw a town full of factories, that was not at the same time full of dwellings—and people.

The proposition on foot to form a Building Company in Taneytown is not in any sense an extreme idea. It is backed by a crying demand for more dwellings, where manufacturing is not an industry. Just the normal needs of the town, in a healthy state, without any factories to close down. There is no fear in sight of any condition coming that would mean a surplus of dwellings. On the other hand, the outlook is all the other way—all for growth and more business, if it is invited.

Just now the town is a "closed shop" against outsiders. The only way to get in, is to break in. We not only have no dwellings for all the workers we need, but no effort, nor encouragement, is extended to help young people to acquire homes of their own, on easy terms.

The proposed co-operative effort, or stock company, could do just this. Its charter could, and should, provide for the purchase and payment for homes on the instalment plan. It should begin operations in a modest way and provide for immediate urgent needs, but it should also aim to stay in business and increase its operations indefinitely. No proposition of this kind can possibly foretell all it may do in the years to come; but, it must have a sound beginning, and this we believe, is the opportunity now at hand.

BALTIMORE CLUBMEN ROBBED.

A "Little Game" going on Meets With Sad Ending.

On Sunday morning, about 3 o'clock, the Citizens Democratic Club, at 222 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, was entered by masked bandits, and about forty members "lined up" and robbed at the point of revolvers. It is said that the amount taken from the victims was between $7000, and $10,000. The members of the Club, just previous to the "hold up," were pleasantly engaged in taking this money from each other, in a diversion sometimes harshly called "gambling."

Aside from the grades of criminality involved and the absence of "personal liberty" and social enjoyment, the bandits appear only to have accomplished, in a few minutes, a separation of cash from original owners, that said original owners were likely engaged in the greater part of Saturday night—and Sunday morning—the latter being in itself no great offense, according to Baltimore standards, if we are to accept the code of morals generally proclaimed as representing the city's public sentiment.

However, the bandits may have taken the view that they were, themselves, only exercising their proper "personal liberty" in going to see a "Sunday game," and taking a hand—not exactly "according to Hoyle."

Another Way to Look at It.

A railroad President, in a published statement on wages, and the life of workmen in general, comments on a well known fact, as follows:

"I would call your attention to the large number of 'flivers' owned by working men. Many say they have no right to own them. I ask, are they more expensive than the saloon? Do the results of the small car expense approach the cost of the booze formerly bought? Does the employer get better results from the men who drive cars, or from drinking men? Does an outing Sunday afternoon and a picnic in the woods or along a stream benefit a workman? Does it benefit the employer?"

Of course, this does not mean that every owner of a "fliver" was formerly a "drinking man," even if the quoted extract does couple the two together—besides, some women own 'em.

ROAD COMMISSION EXEMPT.

Cannot be Sued on Contracts Says Attorney-General.

Contractors are powerless to sue the State Roads Commission, should it violate contracts, according to an opinion rendered by Attorney General Armstrong, the opinion being given during a case of suit by contractors before the Court of Appeals, on Thursday.

In making his argument, Mr. Armstrong remarked to the Court that he believed the deficiency in the law which he had discovered was an unfortunate one, but that, inasmuch as it existed, he believed it had to be recognized.

Under the original Roads Commission act of 1902 the law specifically stated that the commission could be sued "ex-contracto," that is, on points arising out of breach of contract. This was to safeguard contractors against the constitutional provision which holds that the State cannot be sued without its consent. Under this provision the Roads Commission, as an agent of the State, could not be sued, and, as the commission makes many contracts it was thought best to safeguard the rights of contractors by giving them the power to sue if any commission should commit an unjust act in violation of its contracts.

At the 1916 session of the Legislature, according to Mr. Armstrong's contention, the original roads law was repealed and re-enacted in Chapter 536 of the Acts of 1916. In the re-enactment the provision giving contractors the right to sue was left out. Therefore, Mr. Armstrong contends, contractors have no right under the law to enter action against any agent of the State, because of the Constitutional provision which prevents suit against the State without its consent.

Other disputes between contractors and the Roads Commission, Mr. Armstrong declared, have been brought before the courts since the repeal of the original laws in 1916, but in no previous case, apparently, as the leaving out of the suit provision been noticed either by court or counsel.

WOMAN'S SHORT COURSE.

An Interesting Program and Many Fine Exhibits.

The Woman's Short Course held at the County Agent's room Times Building, Westminster, April 6 and 7, was a source of great information to those who attended. The county was well represented both days and great interest shown. The Extension Service of Maryland University is a gold mine of information whose wealth is free to all.

Wednesday morning was given over to a millinery demonstration by Mrs. Spence, teacher of Washington Y. W. C. A. and public schools. She demonstrated the method of making the popular gingham hats and also those of silk and braid. She revealed the mysteries of flowers made of organdy and silk and left paper patterns galore for those who wished to try their skill.

The Wednesday afternoon program was fittingly begun with an inspiring letter from Miss Rachel Everett, written at Chicago University, especially for the Woman's Short Course. Miss Venia Kellar, State Home Demonstration Agent, followed with a splendid outline of future community work for Carroll County women. She urged all woman's organizations to work for community welfare and stated that great things along this line are expected of Carroll County. She gave some statistics showing the cost of Home Demonstration work in this county, and outlined plans for the continuance of the work. Then followed the dress-making demonstration by Miss Ola Day, and Miss Gerber, of Frederick county. This was very practical, nice points of tailoring and fitting being emphasized.

Mrs. Guy Nussbaum exhibited a choice selection of practical garments and an attractive pair of curtains made of unbleached muslin, dyed and hand embroidered. These were much admired and Miss Kellar asked that they be sent to the conference of home demonstration Agents, which is being held for four days this week at the hotel Rembert, Baltimore.

Thursday was household engineering day, and the morning meeting was opened with a short talk by Miss Day, on kitchen mileage. This was followed by a humorous and practical paper on 20th Century Housecleaning by Miss Edna Erb, Westminster. Mrs. John W. Smith, Wakefield, followed with a short talk on treatment of walls and floors, giving some practical experience and ideas helpful to those who attempt to make an old house attractive.

The morning session was brought to a close with the showing of 60 slides by Mr. W. R. Ballard, of the State College. He is an expert landscape gardener and is always ready to give information to those wishing ideas for beautifying their home grounds. The slides are superbly tinted and show the finest examples of landscape gardening in the country.

Thursday afternoon program begun with a practical talk on electricity in the home, by Mr. Carpenter, of the State College. The talk was accompanied by a demonstration as Mr. Carpenter had arranged a set of dry cells on the table, and connected a series of wires so as to form a miniature lighting system. He good-naturedly answered a bombardment of questions and overcame the fears of some would-be-users of household electric appliances.

Mr. Carpenter was followed by Dr. Sullivan, Chemist, of the State Board of Health. He was introduced by the local health officer, Dr. L. K. Woodward. Dr. Sullivan explained the methods used in his department, and the laws governing the adulteration of food stuffs was found very interesting. He was asked many questions and a lot of good information was gained when asked about a popular prepared cake flour he replied, "yes, that is all right, it makes good cake, I made one myself."

Miss Day closed the meeting with an explanation of the exhibits, and asked those assembled not to miss the store windows which had been especially dressed for the occasion. She told of Mrs. Edgar Nussbaum's energy in coming down to Westminster, from New Windsor, on the 7:30 A. M. train to set the well appointed table in Nussbaum & Jordan's window. She called attention to the electrical sewing machine, from Mather & Sons Store which had been demonstrated by Mr. Hahn, from York.

Frederick's Claim Again.

Washington, April 13.—An old friend, grown gray in the service, made his reappearance on the House calendar when Representative Zihlman introduced the war claims bill for Frederick county. This measure is intended to reimburse Frederick for the $100,000 paid General Jubal Early during the Civil War to refrain from burning Frederick city. Were it not that the passage of this measure would set a precedent and open the floodgates through which hundreds of kindred claims would be rushed it might have a chance.

The government has refused to honor this bill on the ground that only in the event supplies intended for the Federal Army were destroyed would the losses be paid. In this case the supplies were saved by paying over the amount demanded, and Frederick therefore believes that in all fairness the money turned over and refunded. The county was bonded to raise the money, and part of the indebtedness is still being carried.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS REPUDIATED.

President Harding's Message Lays Down American Policy.

President Harding in his first message to Congress, delivered in person, laid down the foundations of the policy of his administration in strong terms. While he rejects the League of Nations, the other terms of the treaty are accepted, and promises co-operation with the allies, peace with Germany, and the aid of this country in establishing peace in Europe.

The message, on the whole, was enthusiastically received by the members of his party, and will likely unify the party. It shows courage and straight-forwardness, and no dodging of great issues, even though leaving to Congress many details to be worked out.

The Democratic leaders criticize it as being a too radical departure from Wilsonism, and a too sweeping reversal of policies heretofore in force; but, regarded in the light of the election last Fall, this is apparently just what the country voted for. The following are the main points in the message.

"In the existing League of Nations, world governing with its superpowers, this republic will have no part."

In rejecting the League Covenant and uttering that rejection to our own people, and to the world, we make no surrender of our hope and aim for an association to promote peace in which we would most heartily join.

I should approve a declaratory resolution by Congress to establish the state of technical peace with Germany without further delay.

We are ready to co-operate with other nations to approximate disarmament, but merest prudence forbids that we disarm alone.

Freight-carrying charges have mounted higher until commerce is halted and production discouraged. Railway rates and costs of operation must be reduced.

The United States means to establish and maintain a great merchant marine.

The staggering load of war debt must be cared for in orderly funding and gradual liquidation. We shall hasten the solution and aid effectively in lifting the tax burdens if we strike resolutely at expenditure.

The most substantial relief from the tax burden must come from the present from the readjustment of internal taxes and the revision or repeal of those taxes which have become unproductive and are so artificial and burdensome as to defeat their own purpose."

The proposition suggesting another daily paper for Baltimore, made at the Maryland M. P. Conference has been in the minds of many for a good while, and according to our views on the main questions at issue, the proposition has back of it a considerable amount of well-grounded justification.

England is now spending a great deal more money for "booze" than before the war, and by the way, England is now having more turmoil, industrially, and otherwise, than it has ever had in its whole history. It seems unfortunate for the "still wets" that these two facts should come so pronouncedly together.

Labor Troubles in England.

The battle between unionism and the people or government, in England, is not very different from the battle in this country, except that unionism there is apparently more aggressive, and more inclined to exercise extreme measures without fear of consequences. The result in England, therefore, will be watched here with more than passing interest, for it is generally conceded that there, as well as here, there must be a settlement of labor questions without continuously "holding up" business and the general public.

There must be, and is, a line of more or less exact justice between workers and consumers, and sooner or later the line of justice must be found and adhered to. It is unthinkable that there must be force used to discover it. It is unthinkable, also, that force and necessity should operate, pending the time of its discovery.

Labor must be placed on the basis of fair pay for fair services and not the basis of what it can force from the people. Employers must also regard the same rule, and not take advantage of the necessities of the workers. The only thing to arrive at, therefore, is decency and fairness on both sides, and both must get rid of agitators, demagogues, and rule of force.

We have expressed the opinion before, and still adhere to it that a schedule of wages can be established for practically all classes of work, that will be just as fair and legal as established rates of interest and taxation; and that they must then be adhered to and enforced, as interest and tax rates are enforced.

Men must have fair pay guaranteed them by law. Then it must be as fully established that men must either work or not interfere with those who want to work, nor with the business of employers offering the legal rates of wages. Labor and capital must be equally protected then safeguarded, and those who would violate either side of the question, should be dealt with as criminals.

The Railroad Situation.

It is becoming a matter of common judgment that a radical change must be made in the Railroad situation, very shortly. The President is insisting on a definite report and recommendation from the Railroad Labor Board, by April 18, or threatens that he will take the matter out of their hands and ask Congress to take action.

The question of continued financing of railroads, has about reached the limit, and either bankruptcy, or lowered expenses, must follow quickly.

The Railway Age admits freight rates should soon be reduced but designates as "one of the most extraordinary hallucinations regarding a business matter ever known" the presumption that the railways would fare better under present conditions if they would make general reductions, and adds: "There is the strongest reason for believing that the tremendous reduction of traffic has been due almost entirely to general business conditions, and would have come if there had been no advance in rates.

"It is obvious that to reduce the old rates, even if this did restore the old traffic, would be to restore the old deficit of over $4,000,000 a day and throw every railroad into the bankruptcy courts. Anybody who seriously suggests general reductions of rates without previous reduction of the railroad-payroll is either hopelessly ignorant of the facts or entirely fit for a lunatic asylum."

The Harding Team.

A month of President Harding has apparently been very satisfactory, except to a few who made up their minds in advance that he "wouldn't do." It is also becoming apparent that his selection of cabinet heads is such as will strengthen his administration, and that they possess the ability and energy to tackle even the big new problems that confront the country.

It now remains to be seen, whether the new Congress will match the President and his official family, and if it does not, the country will know it, and place blame where it belongs. The country is not apt to accept "loafing on the job" by anybody, and if Congress is top-heavy with a Republican majority, the condition will last only two years.

So far as Mr. Harding personally is concerned, his conduct is not only satisfactory, but also a big surprise to many who have had doubt as to the soundness of his Presidential timber. He is showing more and more that his previous mediocrity was merely conservatism, and that he has a mind of his own and courage of his own, when the time comes to act.

Unless there is a hidden monkey-wrench somewhere that is likely to fall into the machinery, or be thrown in, the administration promises very well indeed, and it will not be healthy for the wrench throwers if they act merely from selfish or obstructive motives.

Mr. Hughes is unquestionably the big man of the team, which is almost taken as a matter of course, because Mr. Hughes himself narrowly missed being president—and he was fine Presidential timber. His handling of foreign questions simply "brings down the house," and politics is lost sight of, so far as criticism is concerned.

Duty of Family First.

Is a man's duty to support his family ahead of his obligation to his union? Does he owe it to them to support them, rather than to obey an order to strike, which order throws him out of work and leaves the family without means of livelihood.

Those questions seemed to come squarely before a judge in one of our Eastern courts a short time ago, and the judge did not hesitate for a moment—he held that a man's first duty is to his family. He must support those who have a right to look to him for support, and if he goes on strike in his regular occupation, it is his duty to make provision for their support, or stand before the law as guilty of non-support.

The case was that of a woman who complained that her husband had provided but $8 in more than two months toward the support of herself and five children, the oldest nine years and the youngest a babe in arms. The husband made the defense that he was on strike, as a plasterer, refusing to accept the reduction in wages of 20 cents per hour—from $1 per hour to 80 cents. The judge told him he must provide for the support of the family or show some better reason than that.

Such a decision opens up a wide field for discussion. In some cases where strikes are declared, the union pays certain benefits, but these are never sufficient for the support of a family. Hence, when men strike it is the wife and children who are the greatest sufferers.

However, while we would not contend against a man's free right to leave his labor, if no contract exists there should be reason used in striking. Labor leaders should take into account the suffering of those who have no voice in the matter. They should also consider whether existing prices do not justify reductions in some lines. We believe they do. Surely a wage of eighty cents per hour for plasterers is high enough under present cost of living. But we have no desire to enter into discussion of the merits of the strike. The sole interest is as to man's first duty.

We believe the decision of the judge in this case is eminently fair. Let men understand that the obligation of support for the family will be enforced, and there will be less idleness, less discontent, less agitation—and more production. Production is what is needed not idleness.—Ellicott City Times.

Business Temper Today.

Business men of every kind and character show more signs of irritability and ill temper than at any time in years.

That's fine. Don't take it as a personal affront if manufacturer or middleman is peevish and faultfinding. It's a good sign.

Did you ever notice that when a person is seriously ill he wants sympathy, and not a little coddling? He sorrows for himself and wants you to sorrow with him. When he's that way he is in a very low state of mind and body.

But when the crisis is past, when his heart is stronger and his blood is beginning to be pumped through his veins with more force, he undergoes a change. He gets nervous, querulous and hard to please. He complains about everything and is what the ladies call "as cross as an old bear." That's a sure sign of convalescence. That's when the nurse knows the patient is on the road to recovery.

It's that way with business today. The business man is reacting to natural causes. He is on the mend and, being on the mend, is showing he possesses a temper.

That you can take as proof that business is starting back to health and strength.—Richard Spillane in Phila. Ledger.

Relieves Rheumatic Pains.

"I am subject to rheumatism and when I have a spell of it one or two applications of Chamberlain's Liniment relieves the pain and makes rest and sleep possible. I would not think of doing without it," writes Mrs. C. Owsley, Moberly Mo.

Bryan on Beer Ruling.

William J. Bryan gave the United News Association the following interview expressing his opinion of the proposed beer for medical purposes ruling. First the new administration should not have been embarrassed by an important opinion at such a time when it must necessarily endorse or repudiate. Second, the opinion is a misinterpretation of the spirit of the law if not of the letter, and encourages violation.

If the opinion stands, medical colleges will soon be established to convert liquor dealers into tonic doctors or general debility physicians.

While the Prohibition law only applies to beverage liquors its enforcement can not be evaded by merely changing the name "drink" to "dose" or by substituting a doctor for a saloonkeeper.

If the Palmer opinion results in wholesale evasion of the law as seems likely it will have to be modified by the new attorney general or remedied by act of Congress.

The Prohibition Amendment is a permanent part of the federal Constitution. No well informed person whether he be wet or dry expects it to be repealed. It must therefore be enforced.

Failure to enforce it would invite lawlessness which would menace orderly government. Respect for law should not depend upon the citizens' opinion of the law; it should rest on loyalty to the government.

Criminal laws are not intended primarily for those who like them; such do not need them. A criminal law is intended for those who do not like it. Law is the crystallization of public opinion and public opinion when duly embodied in law must prevail or popular government will become a farce.

Prohibition was adopted by the deliberate act of the American people and it can not be repealed by official opinions.

If you aim high and miss what you are aiming at, even so you may bring down an eagle.

Now that nearly everybody except a few hardy souls has discovered that home-brewing is a failure may be there will be more room in the refrigerators next summer for the milk and butter.

A man in a dry goods or millinery shop always feels embarrassed and looks the part, but a woman in a men's clothing store never is embarrassed.

The old-fashioned man who was taught that women were his superiors and who reluctantly submitted to the new idea that women are his equals, now is fighting bitterly to prevent their again being considered his superiors.

They Speak Well of It.

"I frequently hear Chamberlain's Cough Remedy praised by friends and acquaintances which only tends to strengthen my good opinion of it," writes Mrs. Fred Arter, Zanesville, Ohio. Try it when you have a cough or cold and see for yourself what an excellent medicine it is.

REVOLVER INVENTED BY BOY

Idea of Deadly Small Arm Was Born in the Brain of Fourteen-Year-Old Runaway.

The revolver, that until the invention of the automatic pistol, was the most deadly small arm known to man, was born of the brain of a fourteen-year-old boy, Samuel Colt. Colt ran away from school and shipped on board a merchant vessel bound for the East Indies. He had a good deal of time on his hands once the ship was well at sea, and a long period of calm weather followed its movements. He began to seek an outlet for his active imagination and mechanical urge. He attempted various things to aid sailing, but without any great success. He then took to planning a pistol that would shoot several times with a single load. He had only bits of wood and a jack knife to work with, but before the voyage was over he had cut out a model for a revolver very similar to the pattern still in use.

Once at home again, he went to work in his father's factory, but the revolver idea was still in his head, and he worked at it from time to time until he was twenty-one. At this point his experiments had so far advanced that he asked for and obtained patents in America and European countries. A stock company was organized, and from this humble start the great Colt arms factory was begun, and the revolver put on a market that soon carried it around the world.

SCIENTISTS HOLD TWO VIEWS

Are Not in Accord in Their Explanation of Origin of the Planetary System.

Scientists explain the origin of our planetary system in two ways. One of these is the familiar nebular hypothesis of Laplace. The other is the planetesimal theory of Professor Moulton, which is probably the most correct one. According to this theory our planetary system was originally a vast spiral nebulae. The planets were formed by accretions of matter in the spirals of the nebulae. Our earth and its satellite, the moon, were formed in this way. The moon being a smaller accretion of matter, was naturally attracted by the earth, which was possessed of enough gravitation to hold the moon. The moon therefore is not a child of the earth, but speaking in everyday parlance, we might call it an adopted child. This theory explains a great deal that the nebular hypothesis does not. There are vast numbers of such spiral nebulae in the heavens, indicating that this is nature's accepted way of creating new worlds, and it is for these reasons that I accept this view of the formation of the earth and the moon.—Pittsburgh Dispatch.

Two Cold Inaugurations.

Two presidential inaugurations especially marked by cold weather were those of Taft and Grant (his second). Thousands of people became sick from exposure during Grant's second inauguration, and many died. It is said the coughing of people who had colds was so great that the orchestra at the inaugural ball could hardly be heard.

The Taft inaugural blizzard began in Washington the afternoon of March 3, 1909. It continued all night, and the snow in the capital the next day was so deep that it seemed impossible to have a parade. But the parade was held, and on a street swept clean, thanks to the Washington street department, which removed thousands of wagon loads of snow and slush from Pennsylvania avenue. Many people became sick from standing in the snow or sitting in the cold stands to watch the parade. There was much suffering caused by exposure. President Taft's reviewing section was inclosed in glass and heated by electricity.

"Robinson Crusoe's" Musket.

The musket said to have been given to Alexander Selkirk when he was put ashore on the island of Juan Fernandez, 400 miles off the Chilean coast, has been going the rounds of British museums.

It was Selkirk's adventures upon which was based De Fo'e's famous story, "Robinson Crusoe." The musket is inscribed with the name of "A Selkirk Largo, 1771." It was purchased by Randolph Berens for $6.25, but the owner has insured it for $10,000.

Selkirk owned a tavern near Clapham, but died in 1726 at sea as a lieutenant aboard a naval vessel.

Washington Made Custom.

It was Washington's cabinet that established the custom for all future inaugurations to be made in public. When the time for Washington's second inaugural came around he was in doubt as to the proper method of taking the oath for his second term. He addressed a note to his cabinet asking for their opinion as to whether it should be public or private. The cabinet at that time was divided. Jefferson and Hamilton recommended that it should be private. Knox and Randolph reported in favor of making it public, which was done.

Soft, as It Were.

"All the young ladies are raving about your new clerk's melting eyes." "Let 'em rave," said Mr. Grumpson. "I've never known a chap with melting eyes whose brain wasn't in the same condition."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Home Town Helps

MOVE FOR "BETTER CITIES"

Active Campaign Begun in Oklahoma
—Cash Offered for the "Best Home Town."

It looks as if it were going to be a good year for children in Oklahoma. Following the example of Kansas in instituting a "Better cities campaign," the Rotarian club of Shawnee has offered a cash prize of $2,500 to any middle class city in Oklahoma which by November 15, 1921, will score the highest as a good place in which to bring up a family, Shawnee itself being now an example in that respect.

Kansas started it. An active campaign in that state to determine which of its cities was best adapted for the bringing up of the coming generation was held during 1915-1917. There were 85 cities in the list of entries, each endeavoring to show cause why all parents should register as citizens within its precincts. Winfield won the first prize of $1,000, and Oklahoma, being the next outdoor neighbor of Kansas, was not to be outdone in the way of indicating what its cities could offer for family residence.

The idea of a better-cities campaign began with William A. McKeever of the State University of Kansas. In order to make the local campaign more effective, the state board of education urges that a control committee consisting of representatives from the home, the school, the church, and the community be appointed to help the town to set its best foot forward as a better city for better children and better parents.

There is an official scorecard, which provides ten points for judging. Facilities for play come first, for industry second, followed consecutively by points for schools, health, scoutcraft, moral safeguards, sociability, religion, service and housing. Mr. McKeever may be addressed at Lawrence, Kan., in care of the state university, if you wish to find out more about better-cities campaigns for your state.—Pictorial Review.

PREVENTING DECAY OF WOOD

Forest Products Laboratory Gives Some Valuable Hints to Both Builders and Architects.

The chances of infection of timber by wood-destroying fungi, while it is under the care of an architect in the structure may be greatly reduced by following the hints issued by the forest products laboratory, Madison, Wis.

The material should be stored on well-drained ground, where standing water or overflow water may not reach it. All rotting or infected debris should be collected and burned. Sound lumber should not be piled along with infected lumber. Weeds should be removed from about the piles to allow a good air circulation.

The foundation should be of a material free from decay and should be high enough to allow good ventilation beneath the stacks. In humid regions the stack should be on foundations 18 to 24 inches from the ground. Wood treated with antiseptics, concrete brick or other durable material should be chosen for foundation. The foundations should be built so that the piles will slope approximately one inch to every foot of length.

In most regions lumber should not be close piled in the open, but should be thick. Lateral spacing is also very desirable. Roofing or cover boards should be used on the piles and should extend over for several inches in front and back.

Wherever infected or decayed material is observed either in the piles, or foundations, or the sheds, it should be removed immediately to prevent contamination of sound material. The material in close contact with the infected material should be carefully inspected to detect decay, and, if infected, an antiseptic solution should be applied. Water-soluble salts, such as sodium fluoride, mercuric chloride, zinc chloride or copper sulphate are recommended.

What Every City Needs.

Fault finders are numberless, who stand with harsh censure and snap judgment upon what the toilers are doing, says the Philadelphia Ledger. The toilers are too busy doing the work of the fault finders, and they cannot stop to explain. What every plantation of human beings is in need of, if it is to flourish, is a group of men such as (to give but one shining example) the late Albert E. Turner, who love others better than they love their own ease and quiet and spend themselves in unselfish endeavor. No man gets the name of civic patriot by doing things simply for himself. He must serve the public interest and the general good, not his own pocket; while the range of his charity may cover the whole world, "it should, in the homely phrase, "come home to roost" in his own town.

Death has robbed us of our mother. Of the one we loved so well. Taken from this world of sorrow. Safely home with him to dwell.

On you dear mother, we could always depend. And knew we had one sincere friend. At home, or where'er we may be, Dear mother's prayers would follow us.

God called her, oh, how sudden. And she listened to the call. Hastening to her home in Heaven. Though she had to leave us all.

Dear mother, smiles on us from Heaven. Ask God to lead us when we die. That we may meet our dear mother Some sweet day by and by.

BY HER CHILDREN.

In Loving Remembrance of my dear father WALLACE H. MOSER, who died April 5th., 1921.

Oh father, thy gentle voice is gone. Thy warm true heart is still. And on thy pale and peaceful face is resting death's cold chill.

What grief and pain he suffered here. None of us will ever know. For Jesus took him home with him. Where no tears will ever flow.

But when the evening came dim and sad. And chilled with early dew. His eyelids were forever closed In death, we knew.

By the beautiful gate he stands and waits. Our dear father from pain set free; We shall clasp his hand and feel his kiss. When the hinges turn for me.

By his daughter, BERTHA AND FAMILY.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Whereas, It has pleased the Divine Creator to remove from our midst our esteemed Brother, Wallace H. Moser, and while we humbly acquiesce in this decree of the All-Wise, and know that our brother has received a promotion, we can but feel deeply the loss of his presence; and

Whereas, We desire to express our respect, love and appreciation for our departed brother, his high character and his useful and blameless life; be it Resolved, That Washington Camp No. 2, P. O. S. of A. tender the bereaved relatives its sincere sympathy in their sorrow, which we share; and be it further Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread on the minutes of our next regular meeting and a copy sent to the relatives of the deceased brother.

By Order of the Camp, CHAS. G. BOYD, Sec'y.

Card of Thanks.

We wish to extend our thanks to friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us during the sickness and death of our uncle, Wm. L. Harman.

DAY OF THE SAIL NOT OVER

Many Years Likely to Elapse Before Steam is Without Rival on the High Seas.

Is the day of sail over? A few years ago many people would have answered that question in the affirmative. Square-riggers, there is no doubt, are decreasing in numbers; but recent years have witnessed a remarkable revival in the building of sailing craft. Most of the new sailing vessels are fitted with internal combustion engines for use in calm or contrary winds, the sails being brought into use in favorable weather. And the sailing ship of the future will most probably be the fore-and-aft type familiar for many years on both coasts of the American continent, especially in the lumber trade.

They have a stark, austere beauty of their own, with their four or five tall masts, their great sails, and their usual carved sheer and low freeboard. They are considered remarkably handy vessels, especially adapted to sailing close-hauled, that is, as near to the wind as possible. And since sail must always remain the cheapest form of propulsion, it would seem likely that—especially since the coming of the internal combustion engine—so adapted for combustion with sail—the threatened disappearance of the sailing ship from the seas will never come to pass.

APPEALED TO HIGHER COURT

Decree From Judge Cupid Enabled German Engineer to Laugh at Government Regulations.

If a government refuses a passport there is a higher authority that may be appealed to in certain cases, as demonstrated by the recent experience of a German engineer. This authority is no less a personage than Dan Cupid himself.

The German engineer was preparing to marry and the wedding day was set, the Paris Journal des Debats states. At the last moment it was discovered that the bride-to-be had not obtained a passport, and as she lived in a neighboring country there was no possible way for her to get into Germany at the hour appointed for the ceremony.

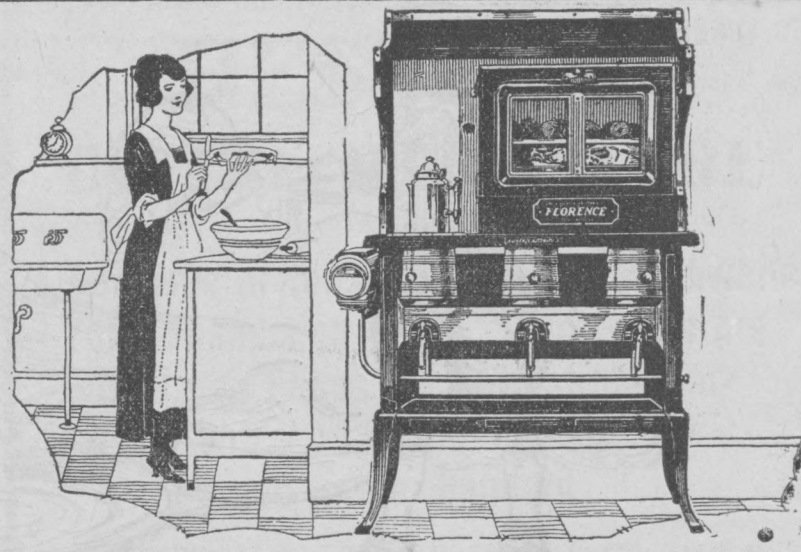

Rather than postpone the happy event, however, the couple devised an ingenious plan. They had the wedding party gather at the frontier, and the marriage service was read while the bridegroom stood on German soil and the bride on the other side of the line. When the ceremony was over the groom reached out his hand, drew his bride over the line into Germany and drove away in a waiting coach.

The authorities were impotent, for the lady was now a German citizen by marriage, and as such had no need of a passport.

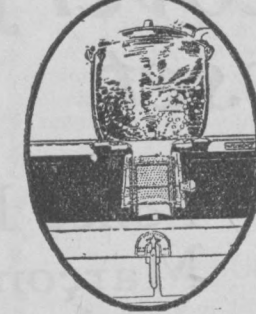

For a Severe Cold.

"Chamberlain's Cough Remedy cured my daughter Anna of a severe cold and cough a few years ago and ever since then I have never missed an opportunity to recommend this medicine to anyone suffering from throat or lung troubles. I cannot speak too highly in praise of it," writes Mrs. D. J. Shelly, Earlville, N. Y. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy contains no narcotic and may be given to children with perfect confidence. It is a pleasant syrup so they do not object to taking it.

SEES TURKISH RULE AMUSING

English Author Finds Funny Side to Life in Jerusalem Under the Crescent.

The tradition of Turkish rule in Palestine as one finds it in Jerusalem is simply a joke, declares G. K. Chesterton in his book, "The New Jerusalem." All the stories about it are jokes and often very good jokes. My own favorite incident is that which is still commemorated in the English cathedral by an enormous hole in the floor.

The Turks dug up the pavement looking for concealed British artillery, because they had been told that the bishop had given his blessing to two cannons. The bishop had, indeed, recently appointed two canons to the service of the church, but he had not secreted them under the floor of the chancel. There was another agreeable incident when the Turkish authorities, by an impulsive movement of religious toleration, sent for a Greek priest to bury Greek soldiers, and told him to take his choice in a heap of corpses of all creeds and colors.

But at once the most curious and the most common touch of comedy is the perpetual social introduction to solid and smiling citizens who have been nearly hanged by the Turks. The fortunate gentleman seems still to be regarding his escape with a broad grin. If you were introduced to a polite Frenchman who had come straight from the guillotine, or to an affable American who had only just vacated the electrical chair, you would feel a faint curiosity about the whole story. If a friend introduced somebody saying, "My friend Robinson; his sentence has just been commuted to penal servitude," or "My Uncle William, just come from Dartmoor prison," your mind and perhaps lips would faintly form the syllables "What for?" But evidently, under Turkish rule, being hanged was like being knocked down by a cab; it might happen to anybody.

HARBOR FOR SHIPS OF AIR

Artist Has Given Us Picture of Probability of the Not Far Distant Future.

Something very unique in the way of a terminal station for future traveling is suggested in Flight. It is a picture by Roderic Hill showing an aerial terminus, or the "White Moon-line," raised aloft over a seaport. It is not a flat aldrone situated on the surface, but a huge circular structure which towers far above the tallest buildings of the city. On its top-most circumference, platforms swinging on a circular railed bed are carried by two rotating arms on which aero liners light and from which they take off. On the left of this great tower is a passenger elevator with two cars carrying passengers to and from the embarking level. Inside this structure is a huge elevator for lowering the aero liners for refitting and repair, and in its mysterious depths we can picture workshops lit by flickering lamps, where hundreds of mechanics work busily day and night. With such terminal as this, the future industrial magnates will be looking up at their captains as each in his respective craft draws near to exchange or deposit the cargo in his care, and then it will be that the dreamer of today will behold the fulfillment of his vision.

HOW

STUDENTS EXPLAIN THE ORIGIN OF "GHOST" IDEA.—Many people who "do not believe in ghosts" would hesitate to spend a night alone in a haunted house. So strong is the effect of inherited tradition that it overcomes our common sense and, like conscience, makes cowards of us all. For the belief in ghosts is world wide and of extreme antiquity. It exists today throughout the globe, among every race from the most primitive to the most highly civilized.

Popular beliefs die hard, and it is easy to understand that once the idea of ghosts had arisen it might continue to exist for countless generations. The difficulty is to explain how a superstition so contrary to common sense could have first arisen.

A new solution of the mystery has recently been suggested in "The Burial of the Dead." According to this latest theory, ghosts were originally not disembodied spirits but living men. A survey of superstitions throughout the world discloses the fact that there are certain characteristics common to the ghosts of all nations. Among other things they suffer from hunger and cold. So the good-natured Breton peasant, when he goes to bed at night, is in the habit of leaving a little food on the table and some fire in the grate so that the poor ghosts may eat and warm themselves.

Again, among many races it is believed that a ghost may be wounded or even killed, and it is not uncommon for savages to organize ghost hunts. — Exchange.

HOODWINKED THE GREAT J. P.

How Two Impecunious Reporters Secured Neat Sum From the "King of Wall Street."

The late J. P. Morgan, with all his financial shrewdness, often was hoodwinked. Art dealers were not the only ones who found him an easy mark. J. P. had a heart larger than his head. Unlike most financiers, he was not always unmoved by a tale of woe—whether that tale was genuine or bogus. I have just received a new Morgan anecdote illustrative of this, and illustrative, also, of the fact that the famous banker could enjoy a joke when he was the victim. Two newspaper reporters desperately hard up (as reporters sometimes have been known to be) made a touching plea for a contribution for a new church which a worthy group of colored people were pictured as heroically striving to establish. The story was so plausible and so appealing that Mr. Morgan handed them $400. Before the pair were out of sight he saw them divide the money! The story goes that for a moment Mr. Morgan didn't know whether to be furious or philosophic, but that he then burst into laughter, called in some of his associates and told them the joke.—B. C. Forbes in Forbes Magazine.

How Indians Have Changed.

Times have certainly changed. It wasn't so many years ago that when a crowd of Sioux Indians got together of an afternoon there was usually a considerable amount of battle, murder and sudden death in the air. According to the story books, the proceedings usually opened with firewater and scalping, and closed with an entertainment in which a paleface tied to a stake was the chief performer.

But nowadays things are different. When the Sioux Indians in Minnesota get together it is to listen to public health lectures delivered in their own language, and frequently by members of their own tribe. There is a great deal of tuberculosis among these Indians, and the American Red Cross is endeavoring by means of these lectures to educate them in preventive measures against the disease. An old chief, Two Hawks, is an eloquent lecturer for the Red Cross.

How Citrus Crops Were Saved.

With the temperature hovering around 33 degrees, as it was for two or three weeks in the California citrus fruit district during the winter, the motorcycle frost patrols reduced the damage of former years to a wonderful extent. Squads of motorcycle riders were assigned to the different valleys where oranges, lemons and grapefruit are the principal sources of economic wealth. These riders kept tab on a large number of temperature stations in widely separated localities and the moment the mercury dropped to the point of creating frost which would damage the fruit the news was flashed broadcast by telephone. The smudge pots in the orchards were then lighted and Jack Frost kept above the smoke screen.

How Wool Is Made From Wood.

Efforts that have heretofore proved unsatisfactory have been made to produce wool from wood, but announcement is made now that the difficulties have been overcome. The early experiments produced a short stapled material with less warmth retaining power than natural wool. Now a synthetic wool has been produced that has a long staple, greater heat-retaining properties, and much strength and durability.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D. D.,
Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1921, Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR APRIL 17

BIBLE TEACHINGS ABOUT WORK.

LESSON TEXT—Mark 6:1-3; John 5:17;
II Thess. 3:6-13.

GOLDEN TEXT—Not slothful in business; fervent in spirit; serving the Lord.—Rom. 12:11.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—Ex. 20:9-11; Prov. 22:29; 28:19; 31:10-31; Eph. 4:28.

PRIMARY TOPIC—A Child Who Helped.

JUNIOR TOPIC—The Ant and the Slug.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Workers and Shirkers.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Labor Problems.

Work in relation to God has a different meaning than in relation to man. In relation to God it means continued activity directed to some purpose or end. In relation to man it means manual labor.

I. Mighty Works Wrought by Jesus (Mark 6:1-3).

As God's obedient servant, Jesus energetically gave himself up to His work.

1. Teaching in the synagogue (v. 2). This He did on the Sabbath day. He could let no opportunity to do good pass.

2. The result of His teaching (vv. 2, 3). (1) The people were astonished. In their astonishment they asked questions: (a) From whence hath this man these things? (b) What wisdom is given unto Him? (c) Is not this the carpenter? (d) Are not His sisters with us? That His wisdom and power were superhuman, they could not doubt. The only answer to their questions is Christ's absolute Deity.

(2) The people were offended (v. 3). Not being able to answer their own questions and to believe their own eyes and ears, they rejected Him. This rejection was not because they knew Him too well, but because they knew Him not at all. His countrymen judged Him by His brothers, sisters, and father, and therefore failed to know Him.

II. "My Father Worketh Hitherto, and I Work" (John 5:17).

Jesus had on the Sabbath day healed an impotent man. They sought to kill Him for this good deed, and when He linked Himself with God in this they more earnestly sought to kill Him. They tried to kill Him because He made himself equal with God. The special points of equality with God were:

1. Giving life to the dead. No human being has ever been able to raise another from the dead. The Jews rightly interpreted His claim to being able to raise the dead as a claim to Deity.

2. Judging mankind. No human being is wise enough to judge his fellow being. Christ's claim to be the Judge of mankind they interpreted to be His claim to Deity, and they were correct.

III. The Man Who Will Not Work Should Not Eat (II Thess. 3:6-13).

There had developed among the Christians at Thessalonica a tendency to idleness. Some were neglecting their lawful earthly callings—even to the extent that they were becoming a charge to the church. From the context of the Thessalonian epistles it would seem that this serious condition was the result of wrong views concerning the second coming of Christ. Such as this is wholly wrong and absolutely contrary to the significance of "the blessed hope." The attitude of those possessing an intelligent view of the Lord's coming as taught by Christ and the apostles, is earnest attention to the present duty. "Occupy till I come," is Christ's charge. Speculative stargazers have brought this precious doctrine into disrepute. Unceasing fidelity to all the responsibilities of the present is the correct attitude of those who are waiting for the Son from heaven. To correct this wrong, Paul—

1. Asserts his authority to command (v. 6). This authority was given him by Christ.

2. Commands them to withdraw from those who thus walk disorderly (v. 6).

3. Paul's example (vv. 7-9). Paul pressed with great earnestness the doctrine of the Lord's return, and yet consistently continued in his lawful calling. In order to not be chargeable unto them he labored with great earnestness night and day.

4. Those who will not work should not eat (v. 10). This is the right principle upon which to base all works of charity. It is the efficient cure for pauperism. The right economic order has as its foundation principle: Work in order to eat. This should apply to all classes, rich and poor.

5. Busybodies exhorted (vv. 11, 12). Idle men and women always become busybodies. Paul's exhortation is that they with quietness work and eat their own bread.

Man's Glory.

How Can We Improve Our Recreations?

I Corinthians 10:23, 24, 31-33; 11:1

It is an outstanding and abiding principle of the Christian life to think of others. "Let no man seek his own, but every man another's welfare." In thinking of others we must keep in mind their highest good, not merely their present gratification or pleasure or even profit. "For bodily exercise profiteth little, but godliness is profitable unto all things, having promise of the life that now is and of that which is to come."

There are many things that are lawful for Christians to do, but not all of these lawful things are expedient or edifying. The apostle's appeal in one of the verses of our lesson is to follow him even as he followed Christ. His whole life is a commentary on this verse. All that hindered his efficiency for the service of the Lord was excluded, and whatever promoted that service was adopted. The service that he rendered always had in view the spiritual and eternal good of those whom he sought to serve. As a matter of fact, our chief concern is not with recreation of individuals or communities, but their regeneration. If we can promote the eternal good of the individual, if we can reach the hearts of men through the channel of physical or mental recreation, well and good; if not, we have reason to question whether we are fulfilling the command of that verse in our lesson which bids us to do all to the glory of God. God is not glorified in recreative measures only as they are a means to a higher end.

Institutional features and factors in community life have made such an insistent clamor in recent years through the utterances of well-meaning, but unregenerated people, that the real work of Christ has been side-tracked and ignored. It is true that we are beings with social natures and that provision needs to be made for social development, but when that development becomes an end in itself, it falls far short of what might be reasonably expected from Christian leaders, if those leaders desire to be distinctively Christian.

In all young people's societies there should be committees and simple organizations for the promotion of social and recreative features. The work undertaken, while appealing to the social instincts, should be permeated by an atmosphere spiritual and wholesome, in order that the participants in the gathering should intuitively perceive the difference between that which is Christian, and that which ignores or denies the name and the Spirit of our Lord.

Electric Air Purifier.

How many places there are where the natural air circulation is inadequate! Restaurants, for instance! How often one enters them with a wee bit of appetite, only to have that wee bit reduced to none at all, by the close and stuffy atmosphere of the place. Not only that, but the cooking odors are all too apparent. In other words, the place is so "smelly" that appetite dwindles instead of being whetted, and even though the food is good, the appetite is lacking. Is there any remedy for the close and stuffy conditions of so many restaurants?

There is the electric air purifier that costs no more to operate than an electric fan, and it removes air impurities and approximates outdoor conditions, so there is a pleasant, stimulating tang in the atmosphere. It is valuable in kitchens, offices, basements, smoking rooms and theaters—wherever the air conditions are apt to be bad and inadequate.

Bad Omen to Dream of Devils.

To dream of seeing devils is a bad omen for the sick. For the young it denotes grief, melancholy, anger, sickness. Devils with horns, claws, tails, etc., or with pitchfork, torment, despair. To fight with a devil, peril. To talk with one in a familiar manner, danger near at hand, despair, and sometimes loss of life. To be carried off by a devil is a warning of great misfortune. To be possessed by a devil, great favor from one in power, long and happy life. To be pursued and fly from a devil, fear, persecution from a man in power, law troubles. To beat and conquer one, triumph over an enemy, glory.

Kept It Up Too Long.

One day at a community sing we were instructed to sing a round. As this was the first round I had ever sung I had great difficulty in carrying the tune with my set. To make it easier, I put my fingers in my ears so that I wouldn't hear the other divisions singing. Imagine my embarrassment when, taking my fingers from my ears, I discovered I had been singing about a minute after the others had stopped, and that they were all sitting there laughing at me.—Exchange.

Great Expectations.

"Who is the mysterious stranger who has upset Punkville?"
"The boys think he's a baseball scout, while the girls hope he's rounding up beauties for a moving picture concern."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

'DEAD' MAN SPOKE

And Negro Bearers Hurriedly
Abandoned Litter.

Incident Would Have Shaken the
Nerve of Men Far Less Superstitious
Than the Dusky Soldiers.

I feel sure we are all pretty well agreed as to the genuine bravery displayed by Uncle Sam's brunettes in action! The little incident which I am about to relate will not, I hope, detract very much from the above statement, Louise M. Riis writes in the Stars and Stripes.

It happened on a dismal, rainy night; just such a night, in fact, as you all doubtless remember, when our C. O. usually elected to rearrange the classes of patients who were confined to bed in the various wards. A muggy, sloppy, wetish sort of night, when the bravest sort of chap hesitated to venture out with oilskins and hip boots. So naturally we were not greatly surprised when the order came to transfer a few of the flu cases to the ward opened on the opposite side of the camp. All such cases were kept at the extreme end of the ward, divided from the rest of the patients by sheets which formed a screen between the beds.

One of my patients had answered the "Final Roll Call" a few minutes before the order came for the general night moving to begin, and I had sent for the litter bearers to remove him to the morgue. We were a bit short of help at this particular time of the night, and two negroes among the convalescent patients had been pressed into service. When they arrived on the scene, being rather busy making out cards in the office, I instructed them to first remove the corpse at the far end of the ward.

Just across from this bed was the one occupied by a flu case, a lanky chap from Kansas, whose drawing voice was easily recognizable, and whose whining notes had earned him the sobriquet of "Kain Sass." By some mistake the darkies loaded him on to the litter which was destined for the morgue, and Kansas, being by that time used to being lifted about, made no demur, until the procession arrived at the far end of the ward, on the way outside, when he suddenly drawled, "Ah! this a—l of a night to take a man out!"

I have been told that a negro becomes an ashen color when frightened; I can't say just how these particular chaps looked. I only know I listened to the most unearthly howls or groans that even a negro ever indulged in; that a litter was dropped to the floor with almost surprising suddenness; that two dark clouds flew by me, out into the night, flinging wide the door, overturning the O. D.'s lantern in their wild rush, and that a drawing voice was whining for somebody to pull "them covers over my head again."

Shipbuilding Is Intricate Art.

"The construction of a great ship requires more separate arts and trades than any other object made by man," said Admiral D. W. Taylor, chief of the bureau of construction of the United States navy department in a recent meeting of the Royal Ontario institute.

Among the actual branches of science which enter into shipbuilding the oldest is astronomy, which is still of great importance to navigators. Radio apparatus is peculiarly an advantage to the navy. Mathematics is an essential, of course, to all the other sciences. Mathematical apparatus for range finding, he stated, is employed, which determine instantly problems containing as many as half a dozen variables.

Chemistry and physics contribute in a great measure to the complete battleship, the branch of optics alone having given many advantages. In the matter of electrical science the scope to which it is used on the battleship may be appreciated by the fact that the average large warship can generate 150,000 horse power of electrical energy, which is equivalent to the amount used for a fairly large city.

Ingenious Planting Device.

By the ingenious application of a discarded two-cylinder opposed motorcycle engine, a New York farmer has devised a celery-transplanting machine, says Popular Mechanics Magazine, that automatically sets the plants while propelling itself. The motor, hung between the front wheels, transmits its power to them, and also operates two endless belts. While one man guides the machine, two others at the back place the small plants on marks on one of the belts, as it crosses a feed table. The other belt holds them in position, roots forward, until they enter a furrow made by a small plow on the machine, and two following disks then turn the earth back around the roots.

Analysis of Suicide Statistics.

In 46 cases of suicide analyzed by Lowrey in the Journal of Mental and Nervous Diseases, 16 were cases of dementia praecox, 9 of manic depressive insanity, 5 of psychopathic personality, 3 of psychoneurosis and the others scattered. In 14 cases the attempt was due to depression; in 7 to hallucinations or delusions; in 6 to escape persecution; in 7 to escape physical suffering or dread of mental disease. The methods used most often were cutting, gas and poison.

AWNINGS

In Spring and Summer when the Sun's warmth increases we must have protection from the heat, if we are to fully enjoy our Homes and Porches. There is something delightful about living on a Porch—it seems to draw the outer world and humankind closer together—but when that porch is unprotected from the rays of the Sun, it loses charm and usefulness. Awnings furnish just the right degree of shade and privacy for the home. Then, too, the Office or Store where customers come to do business must be kept cool and comfortable from the rays of the Sun.

Awnings Are Actually A Necessity.

Let us figure on Awnings for your House or Store. We will fill the order at your House or Place of business, any place in the county, at a Reasonable Price for the complete job.

WINDOW BOXES

Window and Porch Boxes add much to the beauty of every home. We again have a complete line of Galvanized Porch or Window Boxes, in 24, 30 and 36 inch lengths. These are painted green and are self-watering, priced at $1.25, $1.75, $2.50, respectively.

SQUARE GALVANIZED BOXES

For many kinds of large plants that it is necessary to move in the house during the Winter, for which clay flower pots are too small, the ideal holder is the Galvanized Box. These are much lighter than wood, do not leak, have the air vent necessary, and are painted in a pretty shade of green and inexpensive. Three Sizes, $1.75, $2.25 and $3.00.

How Tubercle Bacilli Enter.
Drs. E. Christin and F. Naville state in the Annales de Medicine (Paris) that tubercle bacilli enter the body just as often through the stomach as through the breathing apparatus. They assert that these germs can pass through membranes without leaving a sign of their passage and are carried by the lymph stream to the lungs or to other organs.

"With that and tact."

NOTHING
"RUN DOWN"

Heart All Right—Lungs All Right BUT Blood Weak

NO ENERGY OR ENTHUSIASM
That's When You Need Pepto-Mangan—
The Red Blood Builder

When you feel weak and almost sick, see a doctor and find out what is wrong.

It may be a serious illness. But in many cases the doctor finds nothing really wrong except a general run-down condition due to the need of stronger richer blood.

For over thirty years physicians have recommended Gude's Pepto-Mangan to restore weakened blood to its normal healthy state.

Pepto-Mangan imparts to the blood the elements it needs to build up vigorous men and women. Children whose blood is impoverished become listless and pale and fail to romp. Pepto-Mangan creates a supply of nourishing red blood that makes the cheeks glow, the eyes sparkle and brings back the energy for play or studies.

Pepto-Mangan is obtainable in liquid or tablet form, whichever proves most convenient. Both forms possess identical medicinal qualities.

There is but one genuine Pepto-Mangan and that is "Gude's." Ask your druggist for "Gude's" and look for the name "Gude's" on the package. If it is not there, it is not Pepto-Mangan.

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

Miss Amelia Annan is visiting relatives in Washington.

Harry G. Hawk, of Hanover, spent last Saturday in Taneytown, on a visit.

Mrs. Mary L. Motter, of Washington, is visiting in town and neighborhood.

The work of bringing the sidewalks on Baltimore St., to "state" grade, has commenced.

Miss Margaret Waybright, of near Harney, is visiting her sister, Mrs. John Hockensmith.

Ferris A. Reid, of Baltimore, is substituting in the R. R. office for H. B. Miller, Agent, who is attending the state Pythian convention, in Baltimore.

Last Sunday night was another freezer, the temperature dropping to about 15°. The fruit, roses, flowers and early garden truck, are having a hard time of it getting started.

J. Albert Angell was hurried to Frederick Hospital, at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning, suffering from an obstruction of the bowels and was operated on at once. He stood the operation well, and is reported to be progressing in a satisfactory manner.

The Union Bridge Band, assisted by Taneytown talent, will give a concert in the Opera House, next Thursday night, April 22, at 8 o'clock. This will be a new class of entertainments for Taneytown, and should prove popular. In addition to the concert, there will be solos and readings. Admission only 25c.

The Taneytown High School are putting the finishing touches on their play which they will present in the Opera House, on Saturday evening, April 16. In order to make the program as interesting as possible selections of both vocal and instrumental music will be rendered between acts.

Miss Annie Hagan a sister of Norman B. Hagan, died last Friday, in Hagerstown, after an illness of ten days from pneumonia, aged 62 years. Funeral services took place last Sunday, in Mt. Olivet cemetery chapel, Frederick, conducted by her pastor, Rev. A. B. Cooper, of the United Brethren Church.

Attorney Wm. A. Golden native Taneytown, is one of the score leading laymen selected by Administrator Archbishop Canavin, to represent the Pittsburgh-diocese at the gala welcome home celebration today (Friday) in Philadelphia, in honor of Cardinal Dougherty, metropolitan of the province (embracing the State) of Pennsylvania.

Property owners in Union Bridge complain that visitors to town hitch to trees on private property without permission. We suspect that there, as here, where to hitch? is often a difficult problem to solve. Most towns need more accommodations for both people and horses, and efforts should be made to provide them, or "fence up" the towns.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin D. Dern left for Athens, Ohio, on Wednesday morning, where Mr. Dern will engage in the vulcanizing business. Mrs. Dern will help to select a new home there, and will return soon. Mr. Dern has sold his fine home here, on private terms, to Charles Hockensmith, who will occupy it with his family, either this fall or in the spring.

The Record has always been very liberal in giving free local notices to Churches, Lodges, Schools and Societies of various kinds, as well as to movements of a local character for public local or public general, good. We desire to continue this attitude, but as the Record itself is a valuable local asset, and as it needs continuous liberal financial support, we at times wish that more of the objects mentioned would voluntarily, make use of our "Special Notice" column.

The public meeting, held last Friday night, for the purpose of considering the question of providing more homes in Taneytown, was well attended, and the interest taken in the matter was general. After a wide discussion of the situation, the following committee was appointed to investigate the cost of available lots in several localities, and to get close approximate estimate on the cost of erecting a block of four houses: D. J. Hesson, George A. Arnold and D. W. Garner. Another meeting will be called when the committee is ready to report, and more definite action will then be taken.

Miss Nellie Hess spent the weekend at her home. She will be one of the graduates from Franklin Square Hospital, in May.

Rev. L. B. Hafer, Grand Warden of the Grand Lodge of Md., I. O. O. F., made an official visit, on Thursday night, to Monumental Lodge No. 16, Baltimore. The Lodge voted a contribution of $3000. to the I. O. O. F. Home fund; about three-fourths of the amount will be paid by individual members and the balance taken from the treasury. Taney Lodge No. 28, of Taneytown, will decide on its contribution, this Friday night.

General Pershing's Americanism.

General Pershing, in his address in Philadelphia, on "All-American Day," left no doubt in his clean-cut sentences as to the force and clarity of his Americanism. The following portions of it form an excellent creed for all Americans to adopt:

"Let us make it entirely clear that we have no place for so-called citizens of German birth or lineage or of any other origin, who, false to their vows, seek to prejudice American action for the benefit of an alien government, or who would determine an American question for a foreign reason. We shall henceforth permit no such thing as dual citizenship in America."

We earnestly protest against the debasement of our American citizenship to promote political or warlike interference with the affairs of a friendly people. Under no subterfuge can this country be used by persons of alien lineage to harbor intrigue against them. The American people are weary of foreign propaganda. Old World prejudices and inherited antagonisms have no place on American soil.

We welcome all who leave these behind and who honestly come among us to adopt America as their own, but we equally abhor all who come here to carry on racial strife and who, under the cloak of American citizenship, ignore their obligations to the detriment of American institutions.

May all those patriotic men who fought and all who loyally stood behind them pledge anew the fulfillment of their obligations to the nation the same in peace as in war and again avow eternal adherence to the principles of liberty and justice upon which the great Nation rests."

A Surprised Butcher.

A dignified-looking woman stepped up to an attractive-looking showcase in the meat market, and after she had bought several pieces of meat she asked:

"Have you any shin bone that I could use for soup stock?"

"Just the thing," responded the obliging clerk as he took up a long shin bone and knuckle and balanced it on his left hand.

"What is it worth?" asked the woman.

"Just a half a dollar," said he. "It is such a large piece, would you mind cutting it at the joint?"

"Sure I will," he replied.

After cutting off the large knuckle he again balanced the long slim shin bone on his hand and said:

"You may have this for 40 cents."

The woman looked at the piece for a moment, then at the knuckle and said:

"Is the piece you cut off worth only 10 cents?"

The clerk hesitatingly replied:

"Yes, madam."

"All right," said the woman; "I'll take the knuckle."

The clerk waited a moment, looked at the woman, then actually laughed aloud. But he was game and willingly wrapped up the 10-cent soup bone.—Indianapolis News.

The screen's most unique attraction of the year.

BEFORE THE WINTER MAN CAME
with an all Indian cast. This is an all Indian picture, the entire cast being composed of full blooded American Indians. This is the first time in the history of the moving picture industry where a picture had been made without a single white man or woman in it. And it is a real picture too, with as thrilling a plot as the most enthusiastic movie fan could desire. But hero, heroine and villain are all Indians. A picture you will never forget.
