MOUNTAIN LAKE PARK LETTER.

Resort Looking Its Best and Enjoying Prosperity.

This mountain top, this season, is resplendent with nature's freshness, the rainfall having been ample for all vegetation, and weather conditions, as a whole, about right. The various attractions at the Park beginning with the opening of the season in June have been well attended by special gatherings, while the regular visitors for the atmospheric and restful advantages of the spot have more than reached the average. Apparently, the spot has made a change for the better under its new direction, though just what course plans may take seems to be an unpublished secret.

The religious influences of the M. E. Church are sure to predominate, which in a way will prevent the popularization of the Park for the mixed public; and yet, it is easy to realize how these influences may in themselves eventually command a sustaining patronage, and still not interfere with the attractiveness of the place for those who seek quiet, and the absence of many of the entertainment features that attach to most summer resorts may not be greatly a handicap. The moral and social atmosphere of the Park is assured for the future, even if some may object to the restraints and consider it "too dull" a place for enjoyment.

The property, as a whole, is "looking up," and looking better, and while there is much room for improvements, the careful observer will admit that conditions are much more promising than recent past seasons. This year, while there is room for visitors, it is confined largely to the smaller houses, and there are a number of places, formerly enjoying liberal patronage, that have been unopened for the past two or three years. But, with the turn of the tide, these are likely to again become busy.

This week an excellent chautauqua program is on, afternoon and night, headed by the famous Weber male quartet, of Boston, continuing until Monday with various attractions. During the past week, the centre of attraction has been a tennis tournament, participated in by many local champions from West Va., Pittsburg and Maryland. As the writer's education has been neglected in this line, he can give no facts, except that large and enthusiastic audiences and "rooters" attended the contests every morning and afternoon.

One of the noticeable facts here is the small number of coal trains going east, by comparison with other years. We should say that not more than one-third as much coal is being carried, as for the last two years—it may be going west, instead of to the seaboard.

The oats crop, now on shocks, has been large and fine, and the great fields of buckwheat are very promising of a good harvest about Sept. 1. The other big crop—potatoes—is extremely poor; not on account of drought, but of a blight. All kinds of fruit suffered from the freeze, as in the lowlands, and there is none worth speaking of.

The temperature here has varied from 50° early morning, to about 82° on the warmest days. The season, on the whole, has been considered hot, the record of 88° having been made when the 96° and 98° figure was reached in the lower sections; but, it is always delightful in the shade, and nights are quite cool; in fact, there is a little too much variation in temperature for any one way of dressing for it. Overcoats and wraps are very much in evidence at night.

Our Eastern Shore, southern Maryland, Baltimore and Washington, are well represented at the Mt. Lake Hotel, but most of the visitors are from Pittsburg and West Virginia.

Women's Meetings.

All the women of the county will be interested in knowing that Mrs. Marion Bell, of the University of Maryland, will be in the county for three days next week, and meetings will be held at the following places.

Westminster, Tuesday, Aug. 23, a County Federation meeting will be held at 2 P. M., in the County Agent's office, and all women in any part of the county are invited. A special invitation is sent to the women of Pleasant Valley, Fairview and Stone Chapel as it will not be possible to secure Mrs. Bell for those places as we had planned. Her subject will be on Home Management.

On Wednesday, Aug. 24, a Women's meeting will be held at Eldersburg, at 2:30 P. M., in the hall, and at 8 P. M., there will be a community meeting to which everybody is invited.

Thursday, Aug. 25, a Women's meeting will be held at Keysville, at 2:30 P. M., and at 8 P. M., there will be a community meeting to which everybody is invited.

School children who wish to save money they earn during vacation may secure thrift banks without charge from the Savings Division of the Treasury Department. Requests for the banks should be mailed to the Government Savings Organization, Box 1798, Richmond, Va.

HOFFMAN ORPHANAGE PLANS.

Censecration Services Will be held, August 25.

Members of the Reformed churches have received invitations to attend the anniversary and dedication of the Emmanuel and Zion cottages and Maryland Classis school house at the Hoffman Orphanage, near Littlestown, on Thursday, August 25.

A short program given by the children of the orphanage will be followed by Hon. W. Rush Gillian, of Chambersburg, Pa., president judge of the courts of Franklin County, Rev. Dr. Abner S. DeChant, of Hanover, Penna., will dedicate the Emmanuel Cottage and the president of the Zion Classis will perform a similar office for Zion Cottage. The president of the Maryland Classis will dedicate the school house in honor of its centennial. The exercises will begin at 1:30 P. M.

The program will be given under the large canvas arbor in front of the Administration building.

Meeting of the Board of Education.

The regular meeting of the Board of Education was called to order in the office of the Board, at 7 o'clock, Wednesday evening, August 10, 1921. All members were present.

After the reading and approval of the minutes of the previous meeting, the regular order of business was taken up.

The list of bills as presented to the Board was approved and ordered paid. It was decided that the date for opening the schools be fixed on Monday, September 12.

The vacant scholarships were awarded as follows:

Washington College, 1 male scholarship, John Bankert.

Western Maryland College, 1 female Senatorial, Miss H. Shirley Hay.

Western Maryland County Scholarships, J. Melvin Kay, Sterling Edwards, Fern Harver, Harrietta Reincke, Carroll Dern, Marine Belt.

Maryland Institute, Nina Fuller.

A report was made to the Board regarding the state of negotiations with reference to the purchase of the B. & O. land at Mt. Airy, and Commissioner Glover and Supt. Unger were continued as a committee to bring the transaction to completion.

After consideration of the application of the colored folks at Fairview school where the Board has been renting the old church for school purposes, and which has now been torn down, and in view of the fact that no money is available to construct a new building at this point, the Superintendent was authorized to open the Ridge school which has been closed for lack of patronage for the use of these colored children until a proper place can be supplied to them.

The committee consisting of Commissioner Feeser and Supt. Unger was continued to dispose of the Union Mills property.

It was decided that in spite of the shortage of funds, it was not advisable to refuse to supply oil for the floors this year, and the Superintendent was authorized to purchase the same.

Supt. Unger and Commissioner Alender were appointed a committee to study the types of cars available and prices prevailing, and report at the next meeting of the Board.

The meeting adjourned at 10 P. M.

Hay Fever Season Opened on Monday

The hay fever season began Monday and lasts until the first frost of fall, according to the best traditions, although many unfortunates start their annual suffering toward the end of July.

Besides afflicting hundreds of thousands annually, hay fever has caused many hot disputes in the past decades, not to mention centuries, among medical men, among scientists and many suffers themselves.

Aside from the hundreds of different remedies, home-brewed, patented and prescribed, one or two anti-toxins also have been announced. But the multitudes have been able to find no sure or lasting relief, it is reported by many members of the Hay Fever Association of America. It is one disease alleged to be more prevalent among intellectual persons than among low-brows or roughnecks, while some scientists have even said that all hay-fever sufferers are neurotics. Incidentally it has several aliases, some of the most frequent being rose cold, autumnal catarrh and hay cold.—Sun.

Congressman J. Chas. Linthicum has a number of 1920 Agricultural Year Books on hand. He will be glad to send one to any party who would be interested in the book. Address him House of Representatives, Washington, D. C. Mr. Linthicum represents a City District, and therefore has few calls for this book.

CARROLL COUNTY FAIR HAPPENINGS

Exhibits, Attractions and Programs Keep Pace With Past.

Two score and 4 years is a test of any ordinary going concern. Myriad changes come sooner or later to put a crimp in progress or completely change the entire character of all institutions. The Carroll County Fair Association has been able to weather the storms and seas of twenty-four years and is still doing business at Ohler's Grove, as the holding of its annual fair attests. Comparisons are likely to be as odious as they are odorous. Statistics are, however, reasonably safe and when 729 exhibits for 1921 stand over against just half that number for 1920, this alone augurs well for interest and co-operation. All other matters appear to have kept pace with the exhibition feature. The platform programs, while less complex, have been particularly select and well-suited in spirit and tone to the practical usefulness of the Grange ideal and idea. So there is every reason to believe the 1921 Carroll Co. Fair compares favorably in the long run with the average Fair of other years.

"Home Coming Day" marked the opening of the annual gathering. By the calendar it was Tuesday, and began with a St. Swithin's squint that failed utterly to materialize the shower promised by the lowering clouds. But the crowds on holiday little reckon with the signs in the sky or the pitiless screen of venetian dust that settles murderously on the grove-bound seeker after the joy of outdoors under the trees. And so it came about that the proverbial few who come early and stay late were pottering and peering about the show spots on the ground hours before the Union Bridge band began its program of musical merit, somewhat in advance of the time scheduled for the afternoon program. Senator R. Smith Snader was to have presided at the "Home Coming" meeting. While waiting for his arrival the Fair officials had the free outdoor attraction "put on" to the great delight of the unusually large first-day throng that crowded about the rustic stage or sat huddled together on the half-circle bleachers. A continuous up-keep of hilarious fun-making, laugh-provoking acrobatic stunts made everybody forget everything in their anxiety not to miss even half a second of this wholesome feature of the day.

Soon the band had gotten back from the out-door theatre to the speaker's stand and was again revelling in a riot of catchy tunes that brought the crowd to the auditorium to hear the home-coming address of the Rev. Seth Russell Downie, of Frostburg, Md., whose active participation in these annual Fairs for the last ten years, made him a more than welcome home-comer. Dr. Downie spoke on "The Call of the Blood" and plunged with characteristic familiarity and sincerity into an address peculiarly suited to the occasion and of timely concern as regards these days through which we are passing.

Among the other things he said: "There are certain events in human history to which we look back with a feeling of awe and reverence. Such events are Luther's nailing up of the 95 Theses, our forefather's signing of the Declaration of Independence, Lincoln's issuing of the Emancipation Proclamation. There are certain spots here and there over this broad earth which hallowed associations and memories have rendered sacred. On such spots we feel that we ought to put off our shoes because we are treading upon sacred ground. Such a spot is Plymouth Rock, Independence Hall and the Gettysburg Battlefield.

"Is not this place where today we meet for our home-coming hallowed ground? Is there another spot in Carroll Co., around which gathers more time-honored and finer memories than Ohler's Grove Fair ground? The very air is fragrant with rich and golden remembrances. From this spot over a period of 24 years the testimony of this community has been lifted to the great worth of the patient soil-tiller in the growth and progress of all life hereabout. This Fair has been one of the most potent factors in developing this community with its splendid institutions and principles. From this spot has been disseminated:

(1) General intelligence about Agriculture and Community Life. Here have been taught and interpreted our mission as a people.

(2) Reverence for law and order has been inculcated, the moral sense awakened and sustained. Our very civilization is built on this foundation.

(3) Faith in the Creator, our work and ourselves has been built up.

"So today let's be grateful for this Fair, its history and its usefulness. Let us do honor to the memory of the men who have shaped its destiny. Let us nobly perform the task life has laid upon us as children of a splendid heritage."

Dr. Downie then spoke with deep feeling of "The Call of the Blood" graphically picturing the homesickness of Hadad, at the court of Pharaoh, longing to leave all the riches, honor, ease, luxury of the Egyptian palace and go back to the barren red-cliffed country of Edom his old boyhood home.

The Blue Mountain Express, W. M. R. R., on Monday, struck a truck belonging to Thomas, Bennett & Hunter, contractors, of Westminster, at a crossing near Medford, and injured two men, and badly damaged the truck.

CIDER WILL BE SCARCE.

Scarcity of Apples will hit Certain Drinkers.

The Star and Sentinel, Gettysburg, says: "There is every indication that those who have been wont to irrigate their parched throats with the aggravated juice of the apple, known commonly as hard cider, will not be able to hoist the merry elbow with such regularity as of yore. The short apple crop predicted for the county will curtail all apple productions from apple butter to apple jack and the hard cider irrigator must consequently be content with a smaller supply.

Last year it is said the cider production was the greatest in many years, due supposedly to a prohibition law that has been enjoying some notoriety for the past two years or more. Whereas in other years the farmers used most of their cider for vinegar, last year they kept a barrel or two for beverage purposes. This year they, no doubt, will have little apple butter, less vinegar and some cider."

Advice to Merchants.

Will H. Farley, a business lecturer, has this to say to salespeople:

"Treat a customer as you would a guest in your home," advised Mr. Farley. "If you maintain this attitude toward the buyer you can't go wrong. Remember, it is not the man who hands you the pay envelope who is your boss, but the customer in your establishment. He is the one who supplies your money, and it should be your chief aim to cater to this person."

"The things that are bothering the merchant today more than general conditions are laziness, carelessness, mistakes and indifference. Through these leaks the losses to his profits result.

"Smile all the while," he advised the salespeople. "Ninety per-cent of our shoppers today are women, and 69 per-cent of the merchandise used by men is purchased by them. Why? For the simple reason that a red-blooded man has found he can't go into a store and confront the attitude of many salespeople without desiring to scrap. The men know what they want when they want it. Men are better customers than women. Smile, girls, smile, and get them back into the stores.

"Newspaper advertising is the one means by which you can carry your message direct to the homes. Make your ads plain, simple; be honest in your statements and see that your copy is changed regularly. A newspaper is read in its entirety in most homes. The paper folks wouldn't think of running the same news four or five days in succession—your position as an advertiser is just the same.

"Every store owner would like to pay his help more, but volume is a necessary requisite to that end, and it can be obtained quicker and cheaper through service than in any other way."

Belt-Parrish Reunion.

The Eastern Branch of the Belt-Parrish Association will hold its 22nd Annual Reunion in the Emory Grove Campmeeting grounds, Aug. 25, 1921, rain or shine.

Sports will begin at 9 A. M. Those who enjoyed the sports of the past 22 years will not want to miss them this year.

Bring the children and help them to have a happy day in the grove. Every member of the family is urged to be present. Come prepared to add something to the day's entertainment.

The box lunch proved very satisfactory last year. The same plan will be used this year.

NEAR EAST RELIEF TIME EXTENDED

Organizations Formed in a Number of Counties.

Because of local conditions in some of the counties, the closing time of the grain appeal made by the Near East Relief, has been extended from August 15 to 31, is the announcement from Maryland headquarters, 14 W. Franklin St., Baltimore.

Splendid organizations have been formed in a number of the counties and even in those where hail ruined the crops, and the farmers had to help each other, farmers are promising donations.

Talbot county has enlisted heartily for the campaign but has gone even farther and formed a permanent Near East Relief organization with Charles F. Broucham as chairman. Mr. Broucham is in the auto business and has armed his salesmen with posters and instructions. They will carry the appeal for grain to every hamlet, every store and farmer whom they approach. Mr. Broucham also will send trucks to collect the grain donated and convey it to the assembling point.

At Preston, Caroline county, W. C. Thomas, county agent and Joseph K. Hull, from Maryland Headquarters, addressed a meeting of the farmers association. The members unanimously endorsed the campaign, recommended the membership to give liberally and requested each member to see farmers not members of the association and request their co-operation. A warehouse in Preston was selected for the assembling of grain given and a committee of three members appointed to be at the warehouse all day on the ingathering day, Aug. 20th.

Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of the Extension Service, University of Maryland, has sent a letter to all county agents and members of the federations announcing the extension of the appeal to August 31, and asking their support.

In Anne Arundel, G. W. Norris, county agent reports, that although the county grows but little grain, yet it will do its full share on the grain appeal. In Talbot county, milk cooling stations have been selected as additional receiving stations for grain donated.

Black Sumac in Demand.

Rural residents of regions in Maryland, Western Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Virginia, and North Carolina will reap an uncultivated harvest this summer and fall when the black sumac becomes ready for use in tanning and dyeing.

Manufacturers of domestic sumac extract inform the Bureau of Chemistry, U. S. Department of Agriculture that they will need this year between 300 and 400 carloads of the product. In the sections mentioned, because storekeepers generally act as agents to buy the sumac and sell it to the carload dealers, while sumac is generally distributed throughout the United States its purchase thru local dealers is not organized in other states, so that manufacturers can buy in carload lots.

Only black sumac will be accepted this year and the leaf must be bright. It is understood that dealers either will not buy low grade at all, or will materially cut the price on it. First grade sumac must contain no berries and less than 25 per-cent of stalks.

The price paid the farmer per 100 pounds delivered loose to the country dealer will approximate $1.

Farmers planning to gather sumac this season should immediately consult their nearest dealer or storekeeper, who will advise them fully as to the quality of sumac he will be able to handle and as to quality required. He will also advise as to bags or other means of delivery.

CROP CONDITIONS.

In Maryland and Delaware, for week Ending, August 16.

Warm weather prevailed until Sunday, the 14th., and the 15 and 16 were cool. Thunder-showers occurred on the 12 and 14. The rainfall of the week was unevenly distributed over the section; it was heavy in Western Maryland, moderate in north-central Maryland, and light in southern Maryland and on the Eastern Shore. Sunshine was abundant.

This week's fine growing weather, following the beneficial rains of the preceding week, produced a marked improvement in all growing crops, which made excellent advancement.

Corn is in excellent condition and earing well.

Late potatoes continue to do well. Sweet potatoes are in good to excellent condition.

Truck crops and gardens are generally in good condition.

Pastures improved further and are good to excellent.

Tobacco is being housed and is a poor crop.

Harvesting of tomatoes, sugar corn cantaloupes, melons and truck continues.

Wheat, rye and oats are being thrashed in Western Maryland.

Plowing for fall seeding made good progress.

The few apples and peaches that escaped the freezes of late March and early April are now ripening.

Dog Days Ban the Swimming Hole.

Dog days, the hottest period of the summer when the Dog Star, the bright sun Helios, is in the ascendency, are now at their best. "Every dog has his day," says the old saw, but Dog Days are most benefit to the ice man, the ice cream manufacturer and the resort hotel proprietor who charges nineteen dollars a day for three glances at the menu and an unobstructed view of the ocean.

Many superstitions are extant concerning this period of the year. Mad dogs are supposed to be commoner during the latter part of July and early August; rattlesnakes are supposed to become blind and strike at any moving object; bathing is said to be dangerous and the water poisonous to any skin brazier. These beliefs, unsupported by scientific facts, are passing with the similarly erroneous ideas that two can live as cheaply as one and anyone can make home-brew.

It is true that the records of the Pasteur Institutes show an increase in the number of cases of rabies, the disease with which a mad dog is afflicted, but this may be due to a number of natural causes, including the fact that rabies develops more quickly in hot weather, scientists say.

Boys are in open rebellion against the superstition that puts a ban on the swimming hole during this period of the year when a dip in the water is refreshing relief from the boiling heat, and join in the ridicule that is consigning such fallacies to the forgotten past, as unsuited to this enlightened era.—Ex.

Wool Plus Co-operation Makes Blankets.

Figures now available show that more than 40,000 pounds of Maryland grown wool were converted into finished blankets and automobile robes, which were sold in various sections of the State through agencies established by farm organizations. The venture was so successful from the standpoint of the wool growers, who received a satisfactory price for their wool, and from the viewpoint of the purchasers of the blankets that the plan will be resumed in many counties this year with probably a considerable increase in the number of farmers participating.

Already farmers in Worcester, Kent and Carroll counties have forwarded initial shipments of this year's clip to the mill and in other counties the work is well advanced.

One of the significant features of the wool marketing plan, according to Dr. F. B. Bomberger, acting director of the University of Maryland Extension Service and specialist in co-operative marketing, is the evidence of the willingness and ability of the producer and manufacturer to work together.

"Of course it should be remembered," says Dr. Bomberger, "that while this co-operative effort made it possible to produce a high grade finished product, not all the usual, necessary steps in marketing are represented in the process. The plan makes it necessary for the farmer to act as his own salesman and to take all the risks in that connection. And while in many respects represents one of the important objects of co-operation, it is not possible with many farm products. On the other hand it does indicate that there are times, particularly when emergencies arise, when it is possible for producers and manufacturers to co-operate to mutual advantage. This plan of marketing part of the wool clip of the State is certainly very much better than having the wool lying idle on the farms and the factory making them probably not running."

The news that Wayne B. Wheeler sat with the Conference Committee on the amendments to the Volstead Act cheers us. We always feel better when we know Mr. Wheeler is around.

Charges Against Parcel Post.

There is charged to be a lobby in Washington, working in co-operation with certain Congressmen, to launch a drive against the continuance of the Parcel Post system as it is at present extensively conducted. It is charged that information given to the public, under Postmaster General Burleson, as to the cost and revenues of the service, is incorrect, and that Parcel Post is actually costing the government many millions of dollars, annually, and that its benefits are not widely enough distributed to justify the expenditure.

This is a big question that needs the closest possible investigation; not only as to costs and receipts, but as to the distribution of benefits, and what classes, if any, are being unduly favored and what are unfairly operated against. It is quite possible that in such an extensive innovation there are evils as to which the public needs to be informed, and it will not do for us to regard this effort at "lobbying"—if there is one—as wholly wrong, until we know all the facts.

There is no question that the Parcel Post system, as a whole, is of vast benefit to the country, and one which we will not want to destroy; but it is just as possible, that within such a vast business there are places that need remedying, and perhaps some restrictions.

We know very well that, at present, the merchandise of printers is most unfairly shut out from participation in the benefits attached to parcel post rates, and that such merchandise is of a specially desirable class for handling in the mails. It is just as likely that there are classes of matter admitted to the mails that have no business there, and that benefit very few people.

Therefore, the country should withhold its verdict, and not too quickly decide against this so-called lobby. It is quite possible for just "lobbies" to exist, as well as the unjust, and because a term is in bad repute, it is not necessarily always bad. So far as the Record is concerned, it is inclined to the belief that the parcel post system has been greatly overloaded, and that a full investigation of it will be timely.

Things Not Worth While.

Increasing age is apt to bring to the person of average intelligence the time when he or she gets a clearer vision of the relative value of things, and to reach conclusions that twenty years before would not be thought of. A vast amount of time and experience, and the frequent turning over of matters, is needed in order to make people fully honest, and to estimate things at their real values.

We are all more or less ambitious, and more or less seekers after pleasure or possession, to the extent that we feel that we want to win, whether honestly, or by hook or crook, that which we feel at the time our happiness depends on. But, we become disillusioned as maturity shows us real values and the folly of pursuit of fancies, and we are quite apt to conclude that the greater part of our lives were lived in the midst of wasted opportunities.

We venture to say that the average person of sixty, or thereabout, has one wish; that he or she could live life over again, having the maturity of mind of the present, and the years of youth that have gone. Very few can say that they would not have done things differently, had they their time to go over again—meaning, with their present knowledge gained by living, and experience.

Each life is largely a life that must be lived and tried out, within itself, and for itself. We merely have our regrets, while our children are dreaming their dreams, and imagining that they are going to do everything better, and show old folks how.

The Weak Strong Man.

A man's strength—when it be strength of mind or will, or persistency, even when all are properly aimed, may be his weakness. Not necessarily a weakness that pulls down, but a weakness that prevents great increase in strength.

There is something about the exact—always right—man, that fails to attract people. The quality that we sometimes call "personal magnetism" is missing. We may go to such a man very willingly when we need him, but he does not naturally attract strong partisans as followers.

There is a perversity in human nature that fails to lionize unchanging and methodical precision. Perhaps it is because most of us are full of imperfections, and we feel rather comfortable with those of like kind, and correspondingly uncomfortable when we feel the presence of models of perfection.

Occasionally, we find a man so confident of himself that he lacks diplomacy, and with it, lacks a strong following of friends. When there is no weak spot in his armor of righteousness, there is a popular disposition to let such a man stay in his lonesome class; and thereby we apparently stand self-convicted of aiding a very defenseless policy.

It is paradoxical, no doubt, but one often gains a victory when he sacrifices his own strong convictions. Not convictions of the highest order, of course, for these should always be maintained; but there is a gracefulness in "giving up" sometimes, when no great stake is involved, that makes friends—and no person can make a success in life without them. Persistent pursuit of having one's own way, in all matters, is a weakness.

A Splendid Indorsement.

We recently read a letter from a subscriber to a daily newspaper, commending that paper for its "power for right," the application being made to the attitude of the paper toward bringing about "disarmament and world peace and happiness." It went on to say, "The power of the press for righteousness and human uplift was never before so splendidly demonstrated," and as a concluding paragraph, said:

"In saving raised journalism to this high and noble level you have placed all the worth-while world under obligations to you, and especially to those engaged in journalism."

In this particular instance, and especially as the comment was directed, the commendation was fully deserved. What a splendid tribute it would be to the press of our country, if so much could be as truthfully said about all newspapers, and along all lines of newspaper policy!

What is it, in the make-up of the mentality that energizes and directs newspaper morals, that leads the same paper to reach the heights of National honor, and to stand for absolute fairness and justice in all great world problems, considering only the highest and greatest aims to be accomplished, and yet, miserably fall down from such sublime heights in matters affecting the morals and habits of those who make up our own American body politic?

Evidently, the bigness of things, as they appear in the mental horizon of many editorial writers, consists of matters considered in the abstract; but those things that affect merely the units making up the abstract, stand for small matters about which one need not waste high-toned sentiments, but about which one can be free to consider such common business questions, as to which side it pays best to truckle to.

Autos and Churches.

In a talk recently with a good lady of Sykesville whose friendship we regard highly, she found occasion to say she regretted that so much automobilism is indulged in on Sunday. We did not argue with her, nor did we try to convince her that she takes the wrong view of the matter. But we sincerely hope that there are not many more of the same opinion.

We'll admit there's no excuse for Sunday "joy-riding," which means reckless speeding and boisterousness and a complete disregard for the rights of others as well as disrespect for the day we are taught to observe as holy. But when it comes to using the auto in a sensible way on Sunday, we're for it. And if you'll show us anything that has done as much for the church in the past few years as the auto, we'll be glad to know what it is. Today the farmer living many miles from a church can attend services without inconvenience in all kinds of weather. Not only that, but he can take his entire family and be there in the same length of time it took him to get ready in the old days, before we had the automobile. He doesn't have a long, hot, dusty, tiresome ride home to dinner after the service, either, now that he has a car. The attendance at all our rural churches has been greatly increased by the auto, and the church brought closer to the home of thousands of rural residents all over this broad land.

No, there is no place for the Sunday "joy-rider." But for the man who uses his car sensibly and for the comfort, pleasure and benefit of himself and family, Sunday autoing is not out of place.

When I Was a Boy.

Now and then every man turns over the pages of the picture-book of memory, and goes on turning until he comes to the earliest pictures of all, that present him as a boy.

In many households today real picture-books are kept; fond parents are preserving snap-shot photographs of their children growing up, and in the days to come they and their children will have the visible biography to recapture "childhood's sunny hours." Many a mother would rather sacrifice every other book in the house than part with that collection of pictures.

But we all may have pictures in our heads. Among those we like the best are those of the irresponsible existence we had before we were restricted by a sense of duty and destiny and the solemn responsibility of life.

We look now at the men and women as old as we are, and as we clasp hands and the eyes meet we are saying to ourselves, if not audibly: "Can this be the child I used to know? Can this be my playmate of countless adventures? How long ago that was! I wish I could go back and be as I was then and make a fresh start. I wish I had my life to live over again; I should do so much better with it!"

The regrets are unavailing. We cannot go back. But the thought is not mournful. If we could live again the years that are past we might have done worse—a great deal worse. Each period of life has its own rewards and satisfactions. Nature mercifully adjusts her compensations. There is a happiness of childhood; there is a happiness of age. To realize in maturity that we are serving mankind, that we are helping to bring in the better day, may bring to us a pleasure that is far above the thoughtless gaiety we knew when we were young.

We cannot reverse the calendar and the clock, yet we may keep the spirit of youth—its hope, its enthusiasm, its optimism. If we cannot go back to childhood, our childhood may go forward through the years with us. It profits nothing to talk dejectedly of the "lost illusions" of youth and bemoan the forfeited chances. It is ours to take what is left us and make the most of it, rejoicing that the best of what we had when we were children is ours to the very end of our lives.—Phila. Ledger.

Same Old Story But a Good One.

Mrs. Mahala Burns, Savanna, Mo., relates an experience, the like of which has happened in almost every neighborhood in this country, and has been told and related by thousands of others, as follows: "I used a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy about nine years ago and it cured me of flux (dysentery). I had another attack of the same complaint three or four years ago and a few doses of this remedy cured me. I have recommended it to dozens of people since I first used it and shall continue to do so for I know it is a quick and positive cure for bowel troubles."

The Return of the Soldier Dead.

The return of the bodies of a large part of the soldiers who died on foreign soil is creating in many places scenes of patriotic and pathetic interest. The friends who have desired the returned of these remains will perhaps find some comfort in the proximity of those last relics. The people will be glad that no effort or expense was spared to give this bit of satisfaction to those who made so great a sacrifice.

The bodies of those that remain in the foreign soil which they so nobly freed of the brutal invader will not be forgotten. They rest in "fame's eternal camping ground," with a multitude of noble heroes.

It is a day of many sad memories when the last rites are said at the little home burial grounds where the soldier bodies finally find their last resting place. Yet perhaps the bitterness of grief has passed away so that the friends of these dear boys can feel the honor that comes with the tragedy.

These young men achieved the highest triumph of life. Nothing that they could have accomplished in seventy years of ordinary living could compare with what they did in those few short months. They will be remembered forever as the saviors of their country, as the men who showed their ability to rise above pain and sorrow and peril and fear and to attain the highest level of nobility.

Any family that is represented in these quiet cemeteries by one of these boys has a right to feel proud of the contribution it has made to the progress of the world. It has given the highest gift in human power, and it should be cherished forever in a special place of honor in the community. Our people in Frederick should not forget the boys who have made this sacrifice, nor the sorrowing ones left behind, but show the survivors by constant sympathy and friendship how much this service is valued and treasured.—Frederick News.

EDUCATION LAWS TOO LOOSE

Children's Bureau of United States Department of Labor Deplores Some Exemptions Allowed.

Every state now has a compulsory day school attendance law, according to information recently furnished by the United States Department of Labor through the children's bureau. The bureau has just completed an analysis of education laws affecting child labor, the results of which are published in a chart entitled "State Compulsory School Standards Affecting the Employment of Minors."

In five states attendance is required until eighteen years of age, in two of these in certain districts only; in three until seventeen; and in thirty-two until sixteen. One state requires attendance until fifteen, six others and the District of Columbia until fourteen, and one state requires attendance until the age of twelve years, but applies this to illiterates only.

Unfortunately, says the bureau, the exemptions in the majority of states are so numerous that they greatly limit the application of the law. The most common exemptions are for employment, or upon completion of a specified school grade. Four states specifically exempt for work in agricultural pursuits, three with no age provision. Laws of fourteen other states contain loosely worded provisions exempting a child at any age, which might be used to cover absence for farm work as well as for many other purposes. Several states exempt a child whose services are necessary for the support of himself or others, without any age or educational provision.

The amount of attendance required is still unsatisfactory in many states, several demanding only 12, 16, or 20 weeks in a year. Even in states where city children must attend for eight or nine months, the amount of attendance required in rural school districts is sometimes considerably less.

HAD MIGHTY SUSPICIOUS LOOK

Washington Correspondent Tells of Joke Played by Senators on Veteran Capitol Barber.

One of the most remarkable things about men, be they of high or low estate, is that they never grow up.

Take for instance, that group of elder statesmen in the United States senate. Here is the trick they were caught playing on Sims, the old negro barber at the capitol, who has been shaving them and their kind for forty years.

Sims is a preacher and great Biblical authority when he is not shaving senators. He is profoundly religious. He has confidence in his fellows.

So, when Senator Harry New of Indiana told Sims that he had a present for him, the venerable barber walked into the trap all unsuspecting.

The senator said he wanted to bestow his present in private. He and Sims went into an anteroom. The senator squatted down and Sims did likewise. The senator took from his pocket a large-sized pair of dice and rolled them out on the carpet. Sims watched.

At this moment a group of senators, in the plot with New, burst into the room. There, apparently, were Senator New and the old barber, despite his protestations of religion, shooting craps. The statesmen were horrified. An employee of the senate had been caught gambling. Sims, of all men, had gone wrong after forty years; Sims, whom they trusted implicitly. It was a case that called for drastic action.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Breaking a Land-Clearing Record.

A total of 18,000 acres of land in Marinette county, Wisconsin, were cleared during the season of 1920. This is a record, and the increase will represent at least $1,000,000 a year in crops. The closing of the task was marked by a great blast of an acre of stumps near Wausaukee. At this point 158 sticks of dynamite were set off simultaneously as an electric impulse was transmitted by a presiding official who closed a switch. A land clearing school and 57 educational meetings were part of the campaign that made their efforts so successful, and explosives to the extent of 14 carloads were used in the undertaking.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

White Gold as Platinum.

It is an easy matter for the metallurgist to make an alloy with gold as a basis that has all the appearance of platinum and in London, recently, a great many persons have been "taken in" by the composition, paying platinum prices for jewelry afterwards found to be an inferior material.

Motor Efficiency vs. Gasoline Efficiency

Why the Standard Oil Company (New Jersey) Maintains a Great Experimental Department

THERE is a point beyond which the efficiency of a motor car or truck cannot be guaranteed by its manufacturer. Thousand dollar cars have been known to render longer and more satisfactory service than others which were valued at two or three times as much.

Mechanically your "job" was perfect when it came to you from the factory. The best of materials, commensurate with the price of the car, were used in its construction. The car was as nearly ready for efficient service as the manufacturers could make it.

How do you select Motor Fuel?

From this point the responsibility for efficient operation of your motor lies largely with you (who must select and purchase fuel and lubricants) and with the refiners.

Your task is to find a consistently good gasoline, adjust your carburetor to it, and use no other. Our work is to see that this gasoline is constantly up to standard; to make sure that you can get it wherever your business or pleasure takes you in the field served by the Standard Oil Co. (N. J.); to improve it when possible through the efforts of specialists in our Development Department.

Follow Expert Guidance

Our development men are at work seeking still further to improve our products. These experts have devoted their lives to study of the refining business and the relation between the properties of the oils and the service which they render. They deal only in facts. You can't go wrong in following their guidance.

Natural Flavor of Cider and Grape Juice Retained by Pasteurization.

Sweet cider or grape juice can be preserved in a sweet condition indefinitely if directions recommended by the Home Demonstration Department of the University of Maryland are followed carefully.

As rapidly as the juices are pressed from the fruit place them in clean vessels. Wooden barrels or tubs which have previously been thoroughly scalded will serve the purpose very well, although earthenware jars, if available, should be used. These are allowed to stand overnight; or for not more than 12 to 14 hours, in the coolest location possible so that much of the solid matter suspended in the juice will settle to the bottom.

Glass jars or bottles must be thoroughly sterilized to receive the juices, which are drained off without disturbing the sediment.

If fruit jars are used they should be fitted with sterilized caps and rubbers, and the cap tightened down as far as it can be turned. If bottles using crown caps are used, the bottles are capped as they are filled, using caps which have been sterilized. In case bottles closed with corks are used, set the previously sterilized corks in place in the bottles and tie them down loosely with strong cord so that steam may escape. To relieve the pressure during sterilization the bottles should be filled only to the neck.

A wash boiler or other convenient vessel can be prepared for a "water bath" by fitting it with a wooden rack on which the containers filled as above indicated with juice are placed. The bath is filled with cold water and the bottles or jars, if closed, are inverted or laid on one side so as to wet the inside of the caps thoroughly with juice. If bottles closed with corks are used, the bottles must stand upright in the water, which should come up to the necks of the bottles.

The heating is then started. A thermometer is hung so that it will dip for half its length into the water, which is heated gradually until its temperature reaches 175° F. Allow the bottles or jars to remain in the water for 30 minutes if quart or half gallon jars are used, and from 40 to 45 minutes if gallon bottles are used. Then remove from the stove and immediately tighten down the caps of the jars, if jars are used. If corked bottles are used, drive the corks firmly into the necks; invert each bottle so as to wet the cork thoroughly with the hot juice; then complete the sealing by cutting the cork off smoothly and pouring hot paraffin over it.

Place the production in a dark, cool storage room. Watch it for a period of a week or more for the beginning of fermentation, which will be indicated by frothing at the surface of the liquid. If any bottles show signs of fermenting, return them to the wash boiler and repeat the process exactly as before, loosening the tops, of course, before heating begins, and closing down firmly again before the liquid is allowed to cool.

When the juice is placed in storage the suspended solid matter will gradually settle out and sediment will accumulate in the bottom and on the sides of the jars. In the course of two or three months at ordinary temperatures, this settling will be completed and the liquid will be fairly clear. It may be used directly from the bottles or drawn off into clean bottles which should be sterilized before they are filled and which should then be corked and pasteurized by heating to 170° F. for the same length of time as in the first pasteurization. If rebottling is necessary or desirable the second heating should never reach the temperature to which the juice was first heated; otherwise, the clarification which is secured by settling and decanting into new containers will be defeated, as a second process of sedimentation will occur. If the temperature be kept 5 degrees below that reached at the first heating, this result will be avoided.

A reliable thermometer is a necessity for this work, as it is important that the juice be heated to 175° F. in the first heating, in order to destroy the organisms which would otherwise cause fermentation. It is equally important that the juice should not be overheated, as this will give it a cooked taste which is decidedly unpleasant to many people.

Yes, Where?

Joseph and Isaac went to hear Billy Sunday preach, and after the service, as they were going home, Joseph said:

"Vell, Isaac, vat you t'ink of him?" "I don't like him," said Isaac.

"Too much hell. It was hell, hell, hell all the time. I don't believe there is any hell, Joseph."

"No hell?" asked Joseph in amazement.

"No," answered his friend.

"Vell, then, Isaac," said Joseph, "if there is no hell, where is bizness gone?"

In Sad but Loving Remembrance of our Dear Mother, MARY TRIMMER, who departed this life 2 years ago, Aug. 23, 1919.

Dear mother, you have left us, and we miss you, more and more. But some day we hope to meet you when the toll of life is o'er.

Sometime, somewhere, our eyes shall see The face we loved so well. Some day her hands shall clasp in ours, And never say farewell.

Keep her, Jesus, in Thy keeping Till we reach that blissful shore; Then, O Father, let us have her To love and cherish as before.

BY HER LOVING CHILDREN.

CARD OF THANKS. I hereby extend my heartfelt thanks to my friends and neighbors, who so kindly assisted me during the illness and death of my husband.

MRS. DAVID M. HUMBERT.

He made sympathetic application of the wordpicture to the Taneytown home-coming exercises and quickly carried his audience from the thought of home to their place in the great world beyond their gates. He said "the world has entered upon a new age which calls for new standards of value, new occupations of truth and duty and new tasks and tests in every realm of human endeavor. Certain things must be done if we are to escape economic chaos and serious suffering.

"1—Everybody must get together on the one basis of an undivided National service, each class must stop thinking in terms of class and begin to think and to act in terms of our nation. We need a new attitude of mind, a new spiritual awakening. A perfect society must find some way of working unitedly for the good of all. We must get rid of the small idea by putting the bigger idea in its place.

"2—People must stop lying in every detail of life and tell the straight truth to each other about every transaction.

"3—The time has come to reckon with the really vital distinction in life respecting personal worth and personal property. Let's stop kneeling to stuff and slurring over personality. Man's fundamental requisite is a large, wise, rich, beautiful, wealthy soul and spirit for the consciousness of personal worth, of a big personality to fasten to. Our need is for men of moral weight not moral stature. Let us seek emancipation from the despotism of things which perish with the using. Let us walk and work as men and women made in the image of God.

"4—The supreme, superlative need of the hour is for every mother's son of us to quit our ceaseless talking and get down to real honest work. The salvation of every ill is to sweat. We have won in the world struggle. Can we win in the coming world peace? Only is victory possible by hard, honest work and by giving a square deal only to the man who is himself a square man."

Despite the threatening outlook which a cloudy and gloomy sky held over the community, a goodly number of folk from far and wide came trooping early to the big outdoor playground to see things and "hear the speaking" on Wednesday—Everybody's Day.

The Rev. L. B. Hafer was master of ceremonies and did his work with characteristic thoroughness and dispatch. After a pleasing concert by the Mt. Joy Community Organization Band, led by Geo. Gouker whose eight years of experience in army and navy bands, makes him a capable leader—in a neatly turned speech the master of ceremonies introduced the Rev. W. H. Egge, of Lebanon, Pa., who was to bombard the expectant audience with some "ticklers."

Rev. Hafer referred particularly to the good part of laughter in life. He facetiously inferred he didn't just know what Dr. Egge was to say and smilingly said he hardly knew whether Dr. Egge himself knew what he was going to talk about, but that he was quite certain he would give his hearers something to think over and a good deal to laugh about.

Dr. Egge then burst into a string of humor that kept up for an hour of real entertainment. He hadn't much to say about any one thing but dealt delightfully with a lot of things. Of course he said much in serious vein and worthy praise of agriculture. Naturally he dwelt heavily on the function of humor in the work-day world. He particularly stressed the truth that we do not laugh at others' misfortunes but that we always laugh at things we neither love nor hate. There was no attempt at serious discussion of men and things—just a wholesome and successful effort at entertaining his audience, making them forget the heat and burden of the day and sending everybody back home and back to work light-hearted, gay and glad that there is much in the day's rounds that tickle us amid the thousand things that taunt, tease, tangle and throttle us.

The balloon ascension was of short duration but much more of a success than that of Tuesday and the platform performance of the clever acrobats was a scream from end to end.

Thursday was Agricultural Day big, breezy and best of all because of its practical character and peculiar concern to the man who tills and toils. Nearly 2000 automobiles edged into the grove and along adjacent entrances. Thousands of feet tripped merrily in and out among the grand, old trees and made the rounds of the kaleidoscopic shows that held out all sorts of fun and frolic for the wriggling mob of humanity. Popcorn eating, gum chewing, hotdog devouring, popdrinking hordes made even the homefed feel like just another bite. Prof. J. N. O. Smith and his augmented Taneytown Band kept things lively by a well selected concert far into the afternoon.

Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of work in Maryland and Professor in Maryland University was to have made an address on the success of the farmers' co-operative marketing and buying association, but was suddenly called to the Eastern Shore. But one scarce sees how there was a moment available for speech-making in the midst of a day filled to the neck with exhibits by specialists on different phases of extension work, stock judging and the judging of canned goods, meats, vegetables, grain, hay, etc. Perhaps most interesting was a demonstration of desirable points in real good dairy cattle, especially to our young men starting in to make of dairying a livelihood.

F. W. Fuller, County Agent, was kept very busy at his soil-testing booth. Miss Rachel Everett, County Home Demonstration Agent, with Miss Gerber of like office for Washington Co., and Mrs. Beacham, of Medford found judging the canned goods, etc., a big but pleasant task. Meats, vegetables, grains, hay, etc., came in for careful scrutiny by Mr. Fuller. Dairy cattle were judged by

To the Republican Women of Carroll County:—

Mr. Bricker is temperate, honest, courteous and intelligent and will make a strong candidate and efficient official. Taneytown District, the banner Republican District of the county, is entitled to this recognition.

Considered, therefore, from both personal and political standpoint, Mr. Bricker's nomination is a wise selection.

Prof. Gibson and hogs and horses by Prof. Carmichael, both gentlemen coming from State College to perform their difficult work. The poultry were judged by G. O. Brown, a Baltimore expert of many years experience.

The horse and cattle display—under Jacob Bankard's superintendence, was of exceptional merit and attractiveness. Thorobreds and grades of four classes included 69 superb Holsteins (thorobreds), 15 Durhams (mostly thorobreds); 11 thorobred Jerseys, and 5 Dutch Belts; 23 horses and colts added much to the display.

95 hogs—Duroc, Chester, Poland China and Berkshire strains—proved a centre of continuous interest. 3 sheep completed the creditable showing which outpointed in entries last year's exhibit by over a third.

The usual outdoor free attractions proved especially popular and enlivened the day's happenings considerably.

The shades of approaching evening soon emptied the woods of its happy throngs—and so closed a day beautiful for weather and mighty with merriment, the climax of a big undertaking carefully prepared for and successfully carried out.

Today closed the Fair and was devoted entirely to athletics. Two years ago, athletic day was arranged for by Rev. S. R. Downie after much conference with the Public Athletic League of Maryland. Carroll County is exceptionally favored in getting this concession from the P. A. L. officials and Dr. Burdock has shown the warmest concern for the annual success of Fair Athletic Day. Badge contests in the 15 scheduled events were "run off" this afternoon.

With the 3 o'clock consignment sale of live stock, etc., the 1921 Carroll County Fair slipped quietly into the annals of things gone but not forgotten.

HOME OWNERS GOOD CITIZENS

Truth in Statement That Red Flag is Never Flown Above Abodes of Happiness.

It has been truthfully stated by many authorities that the red flag of anarchy or Bolshevism has never been found flying from a man's own home," says the Journal, Material Facts, Cleveland, Ohio.

"Agitators and disturbers are the rolling population bent only on fomenting hatred. They believe in many 'isms' because they mean equal division, and these wanderers, having nothing are willing to divide. Cleveland, now the fourth city, has reached her present position because her citizens are home owners and are using every effort to further Cleveland interests.

"Owning one's home is beneficial from an economic standpoint. The future of our country depends upon its citizens. Crowding of families into tenements tends to destroy the physical fabric, while the lack of privacy in home life leads to the breaking down of established moral precedents. The archbishop of Canterbury in a recent message states: 'The overcrowding in some regions, both urban and rural, ought to fill us with shame. It is, of course, a fruitful source of immorality, as well as disease. We are absolutely bound to make a genuine and sustained effort to secure that every man, woman and child shall have such accommodations as will enable him or her to live in health and honor.'

"To this end, then, of a better citizenry, a better city, a more glorious state, a most magnificent people, let for a sane and healthy people, let every one cultivate the saving and thrift essential to the ownership of a home."

New York Newspaper Advocates Drastic Action Against the Disfigurers of Beautiful Scenery.

Everywhere the motorist travels the natural beautiful scenery is marred by glaring signs, not only small boards, but immense structures often a hundred feet or more in length and twenty or more feet in height.

Just at a bend in the road where the tourist expects to have a fine view sweeping over a broad valley the scene is completely cut off by a monstrous and offensive structure covered with a glaring advertisement.

At some points both sides of the road will be lined with these unsightly and ugly advertising walls.

In England the disfiguring of fences, buildings and other places with signs is prevented by law on the ground that the good taste of the people is offended and the landscape disfigured.

Some of the worst offenders are manufacturers who are interested in the development of motoring. They have boarded up the roadways along the whole eastern part of the United States, much to the annoyance of motorists and disfigurement of the landscape.

If the nuisance cannot be stopped any other way, motorists can at least agree not to patronize any concern aiding in detracting from the natural beauty of our country and the pleasure of the public.—New York Sun.

Build House on Hill.

The cottage in the dell is all very poetical and furnishes a good design for the illustrated cover of the popular ballad, but the house that is built on the hillside is superior in every way and particularly has it a distinct garden advantage over other sites. Here in picturesque levels the small plots of ground hang one above another in starlike fashion. Delphiniums in blue, violet and heliotrope may crown the tier of terraces, at the base of which a plain bit of lawn borders on the street or roadway, edged with boxwood to give an atmosphere of venerableness reminiscent of old-time gardens, fragrant with lavender, southernwood and spicy herbs.

Make the Home Attractive.

The only way to make a city attractive is for the individual family to insist on buying only attractive homes, and particularly to take the responsibility for making its home grounds attractive.

Grass seed may be sown, shrubbery planted and cultivated, flowers provided for, and painting done. If every person in a block makes his place neat and trim, the whole block will help the appearance of the city. A single negligent home owner may spoil the work of a dozen neighbors.

Good in City Planning.

It is easy to see how one phase of city planning relates itself to other phases, and how desirable it is for one part of a city or one business in a city to be developed with due consideration to other parts and to other business. City planning is nothing less than a community affair and nothing more than a sensible and businesslike provision for the best possible development of all the community's interests.—Kansas City Star.

RECORDS HUMIDITY IN AIR

Both Temperature and "Livability" Shown by Twin Thermometer Likely to Become Popular.

Sensations of heat or cold, as experienced by a normally healthy person, are caused almost entirely by the condition of the surrounding atmosphere. If it is still, damp, and about 75 degrees or more in temperature, a feeling of disagreeable heat and oppression results; while if of the same temperature, but dry and in moderate motion, no discomfort is felt. The reasons for this are that dry, moving air takes away bodily heat about as rapidly as it is generated, while damp, still air does not, explains a writer in Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Therefore in designing an instrument to determine whether atmospheric conditions are conducive to bodily comfort, other factors than temperature must be taken into account. For this reason the ordinary dry-bulb thermometer is unreliable and has been supplemented by another instrument of the so-called wet-bulb type, in which the bulb is inclosed in a fabric mesh bag which keeps it damp. To use, both bulbs are immersed in hot water until they register 110 degrees. They are then removed, and the time required for each to drop to atmospheric temperature noted. The wet bulb will always cool more rapidly than the dry one. This difference in cooling rates serves to index the degree of comfort one should be experiencing, as it roughly indicates the moisture in the air and whether or not air is in motion.

ROMANCE EVEN IN NEW YORK

Almost the Last Place on Earth One Would Look for It, but It is There, Nevertheless.

Two New Yorkers have set up jeweled tablets in a fashionable uptown cafe, where they first met the women who became their wives. The tablets commemorate the felicitous events.

However incredible this may sound to a race of wives whose husbands forget their wedding anniversaries and a get their wives to associate fashionable cafes with connubial constancy or New York with sentiment, it may easily be confirmed by looking in at the grill of the Cafe Brunch-Arts.

Both memorials are bronze plaques inlaid in the wall in alcoves of the grill and inclosed with glass. The first is set with a fiery opal and carries the mystic inscription "Happy Dawn, September, 1905," nothing else. Andre Bustanoby remembers who put it there, but does not say. The other was the work of a celebrated local lawyer. It is set with a large turquoise and engraved, "A. and L. Aere Perennius, MCMIX." Like the other, it celebrates the meeting with and hours spent with the wife to be. And 12 years have elapsed since the second was put up without any request for permission to alter the inscription or efface.

Mysterious Feat of Rats.

Here's another mystery problem to set beside that of how the Egyptians built the pyramids. G. W. Youngblood, a business man of No. 125 South Broadway, Los Angeles, is responsible for it.

Youngblood related that on opening his office one morning he found that rats had chewed off the tops of carvings which were standing in a glass vase about 14 inches high. According to the real estate man, the rats did not move a chair next to the vase and thus reach the succulent stems, nor was there anything else near by on which they might have stood. And he does not believe the rodents could have climbed the sides of the smooth vase. Still the flowers suffered heavily.

And to make the problem harder, Youngblood said that the rats, displaying a highly developed artistic sense, carried roses from one desk to another which lacked postes. How did the rats accomplish their task?

Otters Cared For.

A pair of fully developed otters have been discovered in a slough along the Brandywine, near West Chester, Pa., and have been watched with interest by many persons.

They are the only ones reported in Chester for probably 40 years, and are very carefully protected by the owner of the property where they have made a den in a bank beside the still water.

The animals are said to be about four feet in length and very active. It is believed a number of young may be produced in the den beneath the bank and prove the founding of a colony which will arouse much future interest.

New Dickens Drama.

At a recent Charles Dickens dinner in London regret was expressed that dramatic versions of the Dickens novels are not more popular. Forthwith a certain Bransby Williams proposed to undertake to popularize the Victorian novelist in the theater. At Birkenhead he will accordingly institute a repertory season with adaptation of "David Copperfield," "Oliver Twist" and "Barnaby Rudge," to be written by members of the Dickens fellowship under the direction of said Mr. Williams.

John H. Repp

Union Bridge District
For Republican County Commissioner

TO THE VOTERS OF CARROLL COUNTY:
I wish to address you a short letter on the subject of business men in office.

We, who have lived many years and have witnessed the close of three wars when the destinies of our institutions, and of this great Government were threatened, can speak intelligently and authoritatively on the subject of business men in office—from the President of the United States to the smallest County Office.

We will be called this fall to elect our County Officers again, and taking a business view of the situation, the County Commissioner office is the most important in the County.

John H. Repp, of Union Bridge, is an applicant for the nomination for County Commissioners. I have known Mr. Repp from childhood, went to school with him and was associated with him in the Hardware business for many years. I am in a position to know that he is a well educated and intelligent man, and has proven himself to be a very efficient and successful business man.

Mr. Repp has spent his life in business affairs, is not a politician and never sought office, but the office is now seeking him, and you will make no mistake in voting for him.

Respectfully Submitted,
WM. WOOD.

TO ALL VOTERS OF CARROLL COUNTY:
Now that John H. Repp has been induced by his many friends to become a candidate for nomination as County Commissioner for Carroll County, I feel it my duty to say a few words regarding his fitness for this responsible position.

Having known Mr. Repp since boyhood, I have always found him a man of exceptional business judgment, successful in his ventures, possessing keen business foresight, a man of few words but firm in his convictions adhering strictly to the Golden Rule throughout his long business career.

Feeling that no one could be found possessing all these qualities to a higher degree, I can conscientiously commend him to the voters of the county as a fully competent man for this office.

Respectfully,
DR. JOHN N. WEAVER, Union Bridge, Md.

Having known John H. Repp for a long time and having been associated with him in a business way for several years, I consider him an ideal man to perform the important duties of County Commissioner. I therefore urge the Republican voters of Carroll County to give him their support at the primaries and, if nominated, voters irrespective of party convictions will be working for the best interests of the county if they unite in securing his election in November.

TREND OF JOHNNY'S MIND.

The teacher had asked the class to find out what they could about the equator for the next lesson in geography. When the class came to recite, Johnny was called upon first. "Johnny, what is the equator?" asked the teacher. Johnny, who had forgotten to look up the matter, failed to answer. "Who can tell us what the equator is?" urged the teacher. "The equator is an imaginary line running around the earth," recited Fred, who had taken a sly peep into his geography while the teacher was quizzing Johnny. "Now, Johnny, you may go to the board and write for us what you have learned about the equator." To the teacher's astonishment this is what Johnny wrote: "The quator is a menagerie lion running around the middle of the world."

A MEAN MAN

She—Before we were married you used to give me such lovely presents. You never do now.
He—I didn't have to put up with your presence the year around then.

Advice.
Today when dealers all combine To rob you of your cash, Console yourself and quote the line: "Who steals my purse steals trash."

The Farm of Today.
"Did you learn to milk the cow while you were in the country, Mazie?"
"No; but I learned how to appreciate the old masters and run a six-cylinder automobile."

The Ruling Passion.
"I saw Banks, the contractor, at church."
"Yes. He heard that the streets of the Celestial City were paved with gold, and he wants to bid on the extensions."

No Swell Joint.
Farmer (in the city)—I want ter find an' gettin' house.
Pedestrian—Are you looking for any particular place?
Farmer—Well, not too durned p'tickler.

Awful Mistake.
Mr. Jones—Heavens! My whiskers are turning yellow.
Mrs. Jones—Mercy, George; you mistook my hair bleach for toilet water.

Obscure Mendacity.
"Your thermometer is wholly incorrect. It registers 10 degrees less than the actual temperature."
"That's why I like it, I dread these fearfully candid friends."

Handy Reference.
Hubby, dear, do you love me?
Why, certainly, my dear. Just refer to my letters I wrote you during courtship days.

A Practical Girl.
Some men have a family tree And loud of it descant; But I shall wed a man who has A good-sized business plant.

Faultfinding.
"There is too much faultfinding in the world."
"Yet faultfinding has its uses. Columbus would not have made his great discoveries had he been perfectly satisfied with the navigation facilities of his time."

The World a Stage.
"Shakespeare says, 'All the world's a stage.'"
"Yes," replied Miss Cayenne. "And the cost of living indicates the presence of a great many ticket speculators."

What Did He Mean?
New Medical Student—Professor, where did you get all those skeletons?
Professor—Ssh! We raised them.

Counter-Attack.
She—All is over between us. Take away your hateful presence.
He—All right. Give 'em to me now.

ODD BELIEFS ONCE COMMON

Until Comparatively Recent Times, Silly Superstitions Had a Great Hold on the People.

Superstitions in regard to the most familiar things, as well as the most unfamiliar, still linger, even in a scientific age like ours. What man of middle age cannot remember as a boy firmly believing that if he should touch a toad warts would grow on his fingers; that if he should drop a hair from a horse's tail into water it would become a water snake; that cobweb would stop the bleeding of a wound; that a stiff breast bone in a goose betokened a cold winter? Every countryman believes some of these and scores besides.

These superstitions are merely survivals of countless beliefs which seem to us mostly ridiculous, but which were once gravely accepted by everybody, even the most learned. How far back they go nobody knows. But Pliny, in his "Natural History," written in the First century of the Christian era, is full of them.

And all down the centuries, especially through the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries, there were scores of books which gathered and advanced such "wisdom," and they found a public way down into the Eighteenth century. They find their way—these beliefs—into literature, and Shakespeare's plays are dotted through with examples of them.

SHARKS IN DEADLY COMBAT

Sea Monsters' Duel to the Death Witnessed by Fishermen Off South Carolina Coast.

A combat between sharks is a rare sight, but a battle to the finish was witnessed in the sea off the South Carolina coast by some fishermen. A commotion in the water first attracted attention to the spot. The two monster fish were attacking each other with the utmost fury; and as the struggle took place at the surface of the water, the anglers had an excellent view of it. The sharks fought, not with their teeth, but with their long, powerful tails. They dashed furiously at each other, darting this way and that, each lashing at the other with his tail. At no time did the spectators see blood in the water, but the blows that were struck were evidently hard enough to do fatal damage, for after a while one of the combatants began to show signs of distress. It gradually weakened and presently turned sideways on the surface and then over on its back, in which position it floated, apparently dead. The men in the boat were about to attach a rope to the carcass when suddenly there was a mighty swirl in the water, and the other shark came swiftly to the surface, seized the defeated foe in his jaws and carried him down out of sight.

Quaint Garter Customs.

There are several quaint customs in connection with garters. A description of two, however, must suffice. The one is that prevalent in several mid-European countries, of taking off the bride's garter by the best man at the breakfast, and cutting it up, and distributing the pieces among the groomsmen and guests.

The second is, or rather was, the practice in the German imperial family of giving the bride thirteen pairs, one pair of which was kept as likely to bring her good luck. This pair is always made of pale blue silk (the maiden's color), and has diamond clasps. Another pair was sent to the museum of Berlin—where there are something like ninety most interesting specimens—and the remaining pairs were given as keepsakes to the young nobles and others who attended the wedding.

Judging from the more recent garters are even nowadays scarcely less dainty, elaborate, or costly than of yore, though perhaps often worn more for ornament and sentiment than for use.—Kansas City Star.

Woman as Medal Designer.

Mme. Anie Mouroux, a French woman, is now on a visit to this country and has achieved a world wide reputation as a designer and maker of medals. She designed a number of war medals, for the French government, and has done other notable work. She was a winner of the Prix de Rome, which was established in 1666, and during all that time she was the only woman who contested for the honor. When she was selected the award narrowed itself down to a group of six.

Up to Specifications.

"I do not insist," the old gentleman said, "that the man my daughter marries shall have wealth, provided he has sound judgment and unusual cleverness."

"Well, you must admit, sir," the youth replied, "that I showed sound judgment in selecting you as a prospective father-in-law, and considerable cleverness in getting Grace to accept as ordinary-seeming and poor a chap as I am."—New York Sun.

Final.

"She refused you."
"Tentatively."
"What do you mean by 'tentatively?'"
"She said she would marry me when my salary got to be $10,000 a year."

"That wasn't a tentative refusal."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Hope

By GRACE UPTON

Hope Gordon mounted the third flight of stairs in her aunt's boarding house and carried the carpet sweeper into the "third floor front" room. This room was occupied by Mr. Archibald McPhee, floorwalker in a department store, and Hope always smiled a little as she tidied up the room. It was typical of Mr. McPhee, with its expensive silver toilet set spread on the dresser, its cut-glass bottles of perfumes and toilet water, its gold-framed pictures of rich-looking people wearing handsome clothes and showy jewelry, its rack of rain-bow hued neckwear—a scarf for every day in the year and a few over—its wardrobe filled with costly clothes—

"Poor Mr. Harrison!" sighed Hope, for she was thinking about the occupant of the hall room at the rear. Then she pulled down the window shades to the proper place, left a window open just a little to keep the air at the proper temperature, and left the room. The hall room came next. She looked at the narrow white iron bedstead with the bed neatly made up, at the white washstand in the corner with two or three things in order—the scantily furnished dresser, the almost empty wardrobe—the poverty of it all.

"I hope he can find a position today," she sighed, for she knew that the pale grim face was growing paler every day, and that his board bill was creeping up. Her aunt had not said anything yet, and the girl hoped she would not, but coal bills were high.

"Do What?" She Faltered.

and it was creeping toward the new year.

"Perhaps Mr. McPhee will get him a place in the store," she thought. "I know he wants to be a newspaper man, but—oh, dear—" she stopped and stared at a new picture on Jim Harrison's dresser. A large photograph of a pretty girl, a really nice girl with a charming smile. Across one corner was written in a dashing hand: "Come back for my sake, Jimmy!"

That sentence rang in Hope's ears the rest of the day. She could not eat and her lovely face grew pale and worried, for in her heart of hearts she loved Jimmy Harrison—and there was another girl who wanted him to come back. Could he resist that appeal? He came in to dinner that night looking white and grim as usual. He was late and so was Mr. McPhee and the two men ate alone. Hope went in and out waiting upon them, for it was Maggie's evening off.

"Made any connection yet?" asked McPhee genially as he ate his soup.

"No," answered Jimmy Harrison. "Afraid this is a bad time, for I don't seem to fit into anything."

"Got any friends—any pull?"

"Nothing, but some letters from home folks in the West."

"We need a man in our advertising department; better come up and nab the job tomorrow morning."

"Thank you, McPhee—but can I fill it—"

"Of course he can, Mr. McPhee—he's very clever, indeed—you can fill it—you must," interrupted Hope. "He much start the New Year right—with a good position." She smiled at both men and Mr. McPhee laughed outright and Jimmy Harrison turned to her gratefully.

"That's fine of you, Miss Hope," he said.

Hope fled blushing into the front sitting room, where she hid her face behind a newspaper. What had she done? She did not know much about Jimmy Harrison and here she was championing his cause, finding a position for him through Mr. McPhee, all because she had learned to love him—and probably he doesn't know me from Maggie," was her agonizing thought.

But Mr. McPhee rushed through his dinner because he had a theater engagement, and as he passed through the sitting room he winked at Hope. "Landed him, didn't I?" he whispered hoarsely.

Hope nodded. "So good of you, Mr.

McPhee, she said, but her heart was sore. It gave a sudden jump when Jimmy Harrison came out of the dining room and stopped in front of her looking down at her with a very strange expression in his gray eyes.

"Miss Hope, did you put McPhee up to giving me a job?" he asked.

"Why?" He didn't seem angry at all, in spite of his pride.

"Well, I thought it would be nice for you to start off the new year right—and then—there's the girl in the picture—you can make good before her," she stammered.

"What girl—oh—you have seen it? And so—" He reddened, and with another muttered word of thanks he dashed up the stairs whistling like a blackbird.

Hope bowed her sunny head and cried.

Christmas came and went, with boxes of candy and flowers for Hope and her aunt from Mr. McPhee and Jimmy Harrison. The latter went to business every day with Mr. McPhee and he was making good, very good, indeed. The anxious frown left his countenance as he paid Mrs. Winne the board money he owed, and Christmas morning he had appeared in a new suit of clothes, looking very handsome and happy. As his spirits soared, poor Hope's went down.

She tried to be unselfish and look forward to the New Year with a hopeful heart, but always before her there was a picture of Jimmy's happy face and the sweet smile of the unknown girl who wanted Jimmy to come back for her sake.

The first of the year dawned a cold, brilliant day. There were only a few people at the breakfast table that morning, for most of the boarders were away for the holiday. Hope Gordon and her aunt sat alone at the table, when suddenly Jimmy Harrison came in flushed and handsome.

"Happy New Year!" they all cried in unison, and Jimmy sat down, announcing that he was as hungry as a hunter.

"I will see about some hot cakes for you," said hospitable Mrs. Winne as she bustled away, leaving Jimmy and Hope alone. He leaned over and took her hand in both of his large, capable ones. "Hope," he asked gravely, "why did you do it?"

"Do what?" she faltered.

"Get me a position—and you know—put a few books and magazines in my room when I most needed them—a newspaper full of want ads, urge me to get ahead and have faith in me when I had lost it myself." He was looking very grave now.

Hope hung her head. "I don't know—you needed encouragement. I thought you wanted to go back and couldn't—"

"All those reasons," he asked gently. "That is enough, and I must go and help Aunt Pessie—"

"I need you most—I need you always, Hope—Hope for the future—forever—let me begin the new year with Hope, dear!"

"But the girl in the picture—" she wavered.

"The best sister in the world, as you will find out some day," he cried triumphantly.

Mr. McPhee breezed through the room on his way to the kitchen.

"Happy New Year!" he called to the two, whose heads were so close together, and the two lifted faces were so radiant with joy that worldly Mr. McPhee vaguely wondered if having clothes and everything was the only thing in the world. For instance, there was Miss Dreer of the laces—

This was the beginning of Mr. McPhee's happiest year.

MORE LIGHT, MORE PLEASURE

Tests of Theatrical Audiences Prove That Out-of-Door Life Is Beneficial to All.

Some interesting tests have recently been completed to show the effect of light upon one's enjoyment of any sport or entertainment. An audience has been carefully watched while enjoying some form of entertainment in bright sunlight, in various degrees of subdued light and in total darkness. The tests have been scientifically accurate and the effects have been measured by reading the pulse, the blood pressure and the general physical condition of the spectators. It has been found that the degree of enjoyment and the physical and mental benefits increase steadily as the light increases. In other words the spectator gets much more enjoyment and benefit from the same performance if the light be increased. In moving picture theaters, where the house must be kept dark, the spectator enjoys himself less than in a lighted room or out of doors. These experiments confirm the opinions of many scout leaders. It is good scout philosophy and proves, what we have always believed, that sunlight and out-of-door life is beneficial to us all.—Boys Life.

Peanut as Source of Milk.

The common peanut is the source of a new substitute for milk, which so closely resembles its prototype that it turns sour and curdles, produces buttermilk when churned, and may be made into cheese. The flavor, in which the nut characteristic persists, is declared to be practically its only point of variance from cow's milk.

The new lactical product originated in the laboratory of a southern university, where the peanut kernels are converted into four times their volume of milk, varying from four to eight per cent in fat content, and from 2.4 to 3.3 per cent in protein.

The cost of production is said to be less than the market price of dairy milk.

Sunday School Lesson

Teacher of English Bible in the Moody
Bible Institute of Chicago.

LESSON FOR AUGUST 21.

PAUL PREPARES FOR WORLD CONQUEST.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 15:1, 15:5.
GOLDEN TEXT—But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus
Christ we shall be saved.—Acts 15:11.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Gal. 2:11-21;
Eph. 2:4-22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Some of Paul's
Helpers.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Beginning of the Second Missionary Journey.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—Revisiting Friends in Asia Minor.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Paul Champions Christian Liberty.

1. The Controversy in the Church at Antioch (vv. 1-5).

This difficulty was a most serious one, for it threatened the disruption of the church into Jewish and Gentile divisions.

The question was, "Shall Gentile converts be required to keep the Mosaic law as a condition of salvation?" This issue was brought on by the coming of certain men from Jerusalem who declared, "Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved" (v. 1). The question was so difficult that Paul and Barnabas were unable to put them to silence. These Jewish legalists had the letter of the Scriptures on their side; they could point to the commandments where this was enjoined upon believers (Gen. 17:14). Paul could not point to any Scripture where it had been abrogated. If Paul could plead that Abraham was justified before he was circumcised, his antagonist could say, "Yes, but after justification the rite was divinely imposed." The brethren at Antioch decided to refer the matter to the mother church at Jerusalem. Accordingly Paul and Barnabas and others were sent as a deputation to Jerusalem.

II. The Deliberations of the Council (vv. 6-21).

1. Peter's Speech (vv. 7-11). He argued that God had borne witness to His acceptance of the Gentiles by giving the Holy Spirit to them the same as unto the Jews. Since, therefore, God had not put a difference to it would be folly for them to do so. God's action in sending Peter unto them was the unanswerable proof that there was no distinction to be made.

2. Paul and Barnabas rehearse their experience (v. 12). They told how that God had set His seal of approval upon their preaching of salvation by grace through faith apart from works, by the working of signs and wonders through them.

3. The argument of James (vv. 14-21). He took the fact declared by Peter and showed how it harmonized with the prophecy of Amos. He showed that the reception of the Gentiles was not in conflict with God's plan, but in strict harmony therewith. God's plan for the ages is as follows: (1) Taking out from among the Gentiles a people for His name (v. 14). This is what is now going on—the calling out of the church. (2) After the church is completed and removed the Israelitish nation will be converted and restored to their land and privileges by the Lord himself at His return (vv. 16, 17). (3) Following this will be the conversion of the world through the agency of converted Israel (v. 17; cf. Rom. 11:15). His judgment was that the Gentiles should not be troubled with things that are Jewish, but should be warned against the perils of heathenism, such as meat offered to idols, fornication, and blood.

III. The Decision (vv. 22-29).

The mother church at Jerusalem came to a unanimous agreement and accepted the resolution offered by James. They not only sent a letter stating the decision of the conference, but took the wise precaution to send influential men along with Paul and Barnabas to bear the same testimony by word of mouth. This letter denied the authority of the Judaizing teachers (v. 24), and declared the method by which this decision had been reached (vv. 25-27).

IV. The Second Missionary Journey (15:36; 16:5):

1. Contentions over John Mark (vv. 36-41). Paul was suspicious of Mark because of his desertion on the former Journey. Barnabas took Mark and sailed to Cyprus. Paul chose Silas and went through Syria and Cilicia confirming the churches. The Lord thus overruled it to good, for it gave an opportunity for wider dissemination of the gospel.

2. Finding Timothy (16:1-5). This was at the very place where Paul on his first Journey had endured cruel stoning. Timothy was with Paul through much of his work ever afterward, a great blessing to him.

Hezekiah, the Builder.

And the rest of the acts of Hezekiah, and all his might, and how he made a pool, and a conduit, and brought water into the city, are they not written in the book of the chronicles of the kings of Judah?—II Kings 20:20.

The Pure and the Defiled.

Unto the pure all things are pure; but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled.—Titus 1:15.

Lessons from the Book of Ruth
Ruth 1:14-22

The lesson from the book of Ruth is one of warning. Elimelech in a time of testing fails to trust God and runs away to Moab. It is a case of backsliding through distrust or unbelief. In verse 1 Elimelech goes to "sojourn" in the country of Moab. In verse 2 he "continued" there and in verse 4 we find that he and his family dwelled there "ten years." When one leaves the life of faith and goes to Moab, it is not with the intention of staying long, but the backslider becomes reconciled to the lower ground of experience and is rescued only by a miracle of God's grace.

The second lesson may be gathered from Naomi. Her name means "pleasantness" but complaint and bitterness of spirit characterize her utterances (1:20, 21). Her experience in Moab is very instructive. First, she was "left." Those upon whom she leaned were taken away. Then she arose. A timely word concerning the plentiful supplies of Canaan reached her and created a longing and decision to return home. Like many another wanderer she said, "I will arise and go." There is always an aching void in the hearts of those who leave Canaan for Moab, and they never are happy until they return.

Ruth and Orpah present a startling contrast. Outwardly their actions appear to be the same, inwardly they are very different. Both start to go to Moab, but Ruth alone "Clave unto her;" that is, she was steadfastly minded in the matter. Orpah was emotional, but Ruth was determined. Orpah returned to her false gods but Ruth had made the decisive choice of Jehovah, the God of Israel, and gives expression to that choice in the words of verse 16, "Thy God shall be my God." Out of this steadfast faith and decisive choice there issue the beautiful life and character of this woman. Simplicity in life, sincerity of heart, steadfastness of faith and humility of soul, are in her case the fruit of a living, vitalizing faith in the living God.

New England True to Tradition.

A certain Red Cross public health nurse, in New Hampshire, reports that the interest in the Red Cross course of instruction in "Home Hygiene and Care of the Sick" in her county is unprecedented. This nurse travels over a considerable area, the county being a large one, including eight towns.

It is the consensus of opinion at the New England division headquarters that in this county, at least, the future of the American Red Cross is assured because of the great service performed through these classes. New England still lives up to her tradition of recognizing and sponsoring the best that education can give.—Red Cross Magazine.

WORLD HAS CHANGED LITTLE

Marked Similarity in Certain Newspaper Advertising Today and That of Many Years Ago.

Newspaper advertising of 160 years ago differed greatly in form from that of today, but the difference in substance and intent was rather small. In the columns of the New York Mercury of that period one finds the following articles offered for sale and extolled for their particular qualities: "Godfrey's General Cordial," which was the opiated soothing syrup used in that day for peevish, teething babies; the "Princely Beautifying Lotion," by use of which the ladies "made up" for the street; "Turlington's Original Balsam of Life," which must have been disappointing since all the users are now dead; "Dr. Ryan's Incomparable Worm Destroying Sugar Plumbs," "White Drops for the Scurvy," "Red Pills," "Sweating Powder," "Dr. Radcliffe's Only True Specific Tincture for the Toothache," "Essence of Balm of Gilead," "Potter's Water, for the Safe, Easy and Specific Cure for the Stone and Gravel," "Keyser's Pills," "Golden Tincture for Hysterical Diseases," "Genuine Harlaem Oyl" by the bottle, "Levine's Well Known Eyewater," "Bloom of Circassia" for off-color complexions, "Lady Molyneux's Italian Paste," "Best Corn Plasters and Lip Salve," "Venetian Paste for Enameling the Hands, Neck and Face."

The bottle of Stoughton Bitters by which old toppers used to give an additional tang to their nips of whisky stood behind every public bar up to about 50 years ago. Long after its use had been abandoned it persisted until "standing like a Stoughton bottle" became the common expression for immobility.

ATTORNEY-AT-LAW
WESTMINSTER, MD.

Westminster, Md., August 1st., 1921.

Fellow-Republican:—

Next to the Judgeship itself, there is no more important office in the county than that of Clerk of the Circuit Court. The interests of the people of the county make it absolutely necessary that either the clerk or his chief deputy be a man thoroughly qualified to care for those interests. No one can have greater fitness for the position than a lawyer, who has been for many years familiar with all the details of the work of the office and in the Court.

As such a lawyer, and believing that I have the necessary qualifications, I am seeking the nomination, and, if nominated and elected, it will not be necessary for me to seek some one with greater knowledge of the duties of the office to be my chief deputy, and as such deputy to be the clerk in fact while I am clerk in name, but pledge myself to give to all the work of the office my personal attention and supervision.

It will be impossible for me to see more than a very small percentage of the voters, and therefore I am taking this method to ask you to go to the primary election on Sept. 9, and cast your vote for me.

Very Respectfully Yours,

George L. Stocksdale

Taneytown Baseball Notes.

On last Saturday afternoon the E. & H. Levy Silk Mill Club visited Taneytown, and played a stiff game, but failed to connect with "Bonnie's" superb pitching, who struck out 17 men. Taneytown hit heavy, having 11 hits to their credit, but the sharp fielding of Hanover held them down to 3 runs. Up until the 6th. inning no runs were scored, when Denver Hitchcock landed out a home run—which makes his 8th. for this season—and brought home Fuss, who had already reached 2nd. base; the other run was made in the 8th. inning. The few hits to Hanover's credit were taken good care of by Taneytown, who succeeded in shutting-out the visitors. Bange, who pitched for Hanover, had 2 strike-outs to his credit. This is the third Hanover team to visit this place, this season. The score: Taneytown 0-0-0-0-0-0-1-x=3 Silk Mill 0-0-0-0-0-0-0-0=0

On Wednesday, a rather loosely played game with Middletown, resulted in defeat for the visitors. Taneytown hit heavy, having four 3-base hits and one 2-base hit. Bonsack, struck out 9 men, and Schafer, who pitched the last two innings struck out 3. Pry, who tossed for Middletown, had 5 strike-outs to his credit. The score: Taneytown 3-0-1-3-0-0-2-0-x=9 Middletown 0-0-0-2-0-0-1-0-1=4

On Thursday, the Baltimore Yanigans—a good combination—team, met defeat here, in a well-played game. McClary, a former Blue Ridge League pitcher, from Hagerstown, who is said to have been very successful last season, pitched for the visitors, until the sixth inning, when he was relieved by Lyston, an Oriole Athletic addition who also failed to make good. The visitors had only four hits; while heavy hitting and a double play by Taneytown, who had eight singles, two 3-base and one 2-base hit featured.

Schafer, for Taneytown struck out nine men, while the two pitchers for the visitors struck out five. The score: Taneytown 3-0-1-0-0-1-0-0-x=5 Yanigans 0-0-0-2-1-0-0-0-1=4

Cause of Appendicitis.

When the bowels are constipated, the lower bowels or large intestines become packed with refuse matter, that is made up largely of germs. These germs enter the vermiform appendix and set up inflammation, which is commonly known as appendicitis. Take Chamberlain's Tablets when needed and keep your bowels regular and you have little to fear from appendicitis.

An Unusual Birthday Anniversary
(For the Record.)
Mrs. Sara Lightner, of near Taneytown, recently motored to Gettysburg and had her photo taken with her twin brother, Samuel M. Allison, of that place in honor of their having passed their 81st. birthday. The twins were born to Mr. and Mrs. Francis Allison, of Mt. Joy Township, Adams Co., Pa., and are the last survivors of a family of six children, among whom were Jonathan Allison, late of Taneytown, Mrs. S. D. Reck, late of Gettysburg, Pa., and Mrs. Amos Yeatts, who died some years ago in Carlisle, Pa.

Mrs. Lightner is the widow of Wm. Lightner a veteran of the Civil War and is the mother of Mrs. Martin Hess, of near Taneytown, with whom she resides.

Mr. Allison is the father of Dr. C. Edw. Allison, of Elysburg, Pa., and Dr. H. A. Allison, a Prof. in Susquehanna University, Selingsgrove, Pa., and is a veteran of the Civil War.

The Record joins with their many friends in congratulations upon the occasion of this unusual anniversary.

We hereby extend our thanks to all friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us at our recent fire.

Boy Scout Camp.

(For the Record.)
Sykesville Troop, Boy Scouts of America, left for camp on Monday, August 1, and returned Wednesday, August 10. They were encamped in the beautiful grove on the banks of a lovely stream of water, on the farm of William H. Flickinger, near Taneytown. It was one delightful camp ground with pleasant surroundings. Mr. Flickinger and his splendid family did all possible to make the boys happy, and often said it was the most honorable crowd of boys he had ever known. Not one time did they annoy him. We shall never forget the kindness of this good man. Our boys entered into every part of the program splendidly and carried out tasks assigned cheerfully. E. O. P.

The End Pew Holder.

The following sentiment of a church paper is timely. "Having entered the pew move along. Do not block up the end of the pew as if you did not intend to have any one enter it, or as if you were holding it for special friends. Do not rise to let others in, but move along, and leave the pew invitingly open, so that they will know they are welcome. If a pew capable of holding six has five already in it, don't make a formal procession to let one poor sacred woman go to the farthest end, but move along, and let her sit down at the end next the aisle. It is not necessary for a man to sit at the end ready to rush out and kill Indians as it was once upon a time."

Lost the Lion's Share.

When Jones' rich grandmother passed away, all his poverty-stricken friends rallied about him with words of cheer and comfort, but Jones remained sad and dejected. "She left a last will and testament I suppose," murmured Jenkins, carelessly. "Oh, yes," said Jones, "she left a will and testament." They hung expectant, while sobs choked back his words. "I," he declared at last, "am to have the testament."—Jack Canuck.

No Chicken.

Bill Hart does not bear much of a reputation as a funny man. He and Charley Chaplin have very little in common, either on or off the screen, but recently, when asking a really young girl to play a certain part, Bill uncorked a joke that threw the studio into a furor. "You're an old woman," he accused one girl, and naturally the storm started. "How dare you call me an old woman?" demanded the girl, all prepared to dive into Bill tooth and nail. "Well," replied Hart, "if you were walking across the street and you saw a worm, would you pick it up?" "Certainly not," was the reply. "Then," adjudged Bill, "you're no chicken."

Look What He Got.

A miser was scoring a hired man for his extravagance in wanting to carry a lantern when calling on his girl. "The idea," he scoffed. "When I was courtin' I never carried no lantern. I went in the dark." The hired man proceeded to fill the lantern. "Yes," he said sadly, "and look what you got."—New York Daily News.
