Sunday School Meeting.

A meeting under the auspices of the Carroll County Sunday School Association will be held in Trinity Lutheran Church, of Taneytown, next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The program will be of interest to all persons connected with the Sunday Schools, whether as officers, teachers, or scholars.
Rev. Ross D. Murphy, president of Blue Ridge College, will deliver the principal address. There will be other addresses and discussions of Sunday school problems.

This meeting is for the workers of Taneytown District in particular, but all persons within reach of Taneytown are invited. If you enjoy good singing and good speaking, and if you believe in the Sunday School, do not fail to attend this meeting.

Carroll County Pic-nic.

The Carroll County pic-nic will be held, Sept. 10, in Meadow Branch grove, all day. Dr. T. B. Symons, head of Extension Work University of Maryland, will be the chief speaker. The occasion will be of special interest to farmers, but it is first of all intended to be a gathering in the interest of a greater Carroll County, irrespective of business or occupational interests. Everybody invited.

The following program has been arranged for 2 P. M.: Address of welcome, Hon. H. R. Wooden, Pres. Carroll County Farm Council; Response, Mr. Myers, Pres. Carroll Co. Society of Baltimore City; Reading, Miss Dorothy Eldredge; Address, Dr. T. B. Symons, Director of Extension work in Maryland.

The Game Committee will have games and contests for all ages of men and women. There will be ice cream, pop, candy, sandwiches and lunches for sale all day. The proceeds to go towards the county exhibit.

Herd of Cattle Condemned.

A herd of 52 registered Jersey cattle driven through the streets of Westminster to the stockade of the Western Maryland Railway, for shipment to the abattoirs at Baltimore, to be destroyed, was a depressing spectacle.

The cattle were the property of Robert Gist, who runs a dairy farm one mile from Westminster. All were registered cattle and had been condemned by United States Government agents because of tuberculosis. Mr. Gist was allowed $5,000 as damages, less than half the value of the cows, it is said. Only 19 were left on his farm.

OUR DETROIT LETTER.

Industrial Situation Looking Better
but none too Good.

It's a gloomy, rainy Saturday afternoon—the date for the beginning of the Annual Speed boat races, and as I had never seen such a race, I had planned to take one in—fact, I had gone to the River bank, when the rain drove me home again. So, having nothing on hand, I will endeavor to help fill up your space.

Detroit is a great place for sports of all kinds. You would be surprised to see the crowds who go to see the ball games at Navin Park—the American League grounds—even in face of the fact that the Tigers have been a losing team the greatest part of the season; and every other kind of sport is well patronized. We have some of the world's champion female swimmers here as well as golf and tennis players—professionals, I mean—and as we have a splendid river, deep and wide—in fact, its original name was D'Etoit, which is French, for strait and Lake St. Clair begins at the Eastern limits of the city, it follows that some interest should be shown in boating. So every year races are held under the auspices of the Detroit Boat Club, in which boats from all over the world take part—even from the Royal Boat Club of England.

Detroit is fortunate, from a sporting man's view, in having a man whose chief pleasure is designing and running speed boats. His name is Garfield Wood—commonly known as "Gar" Wood. His boat—Miss America—now holds the world's championship, and among the races scheduled for the coming week—there is one between him and an Englishman, for this honor. I wish I could give you an idea of how fast these boats go. They make a fast-moving automobile, seem slow in comparison. Sometimes accidents happen which send the boat to the bottom, but I have never heard of any lives being lost.

I was much interested in reading the account of the Fair, in the Record of last week. I still remember the first Farmer's picnic held in Taneytown district by the Copperville Farmer's Club, in conjunction with the Otter Dale Sunday School, in Nathan Angell's grove, near the school house. Not many of the men prominent in the management of that picnic are living—William Flickinger being the only one I can remember. Our Band played there, and I'm sure that from the success of this picnic resulted the larger picnic, or Fair, as it is now called. Later on this annual gathering was held in Col. Goulden's grove, and finally in Ohler's grove, where it has been held for a number of years.

From letters we receive in there, and from reading the Record, we notice that you have no berries or fruits of any kind—something that rarely happens around Taneytown. Out here, we hardly know whether such things are plentiful or not—the prices are always high. Last year, they let fruit rot on the trees so as to keep the prices up. This year it is scarce, and the prices are the same. The summer has been very hot, following a cold Spring, which has not been favorable to fruits and vegetables.

Some time before we came out here, we heard it stated by a visitor to Detroit, from Taneytown, that he had seen fine buildings of all kinds here, but very few churches. One of the large stores is running a series of articles by prominent men, in one of which I saw it stated that there are 381 churches in Detroit, or one church to about 275 people. I have no doubt this is true, for you can find anything in the way of religious sect here, that you ever heard of. There are small chapels and immense churches, a half dozen times as large as any in Taneytown—Mohammedan Mosques, Hindu Temples, Spiritualist churches by the dozen, and any kind of sect you may be looking for. A person interested in church architecture would be much interested in a trip over the city with this object in view, as all styles are represented.

I must confess that a stranger would be apt to think that we had no churches here, if he were to judge by the way the Sabbath is kept. But, as I said in one of my former letters, it's just the difference in the way the East and Middle West looks at it.

I see your ball team is keeping up its record. Taneytown must be stirred up considerably to be able to support a team like you have. Wouldn't I like to see a game there? We have plenty of ball out here, as the Hitchcock boys can tell you, but seeing a game where you know every one on the team, and can root for them, is mighty different from viewing one in which both clubs are strangers. Our season is about over—even now the foot balls are beginning to be put to use again. It sure does seem funny to read that clubs from York and Baltimore, not to say anything of the other towns around, are being beaten by Taneytown, which, when I was there, could never support a second-rate club.

I suppose that by the time this reaches you, the Editor will have returned from his vacation. I personally have had a lot of vacation—the enforced kind—during the past two months, but things look better now than they have for 15 months, and the prospects are for a busy winter. New automobile firms are starting up, and the older firms are preparing to get on or near 100% production. Anyway the outlook is better than last year, and as everybody pulled through then, we expect that they

Next Tuesday and Friday

Next Tuesday, the 6th., is registration day, and Friday, the 9th., is primary election day. There are still many who are unregistered—especially women—and if these want to vote at the primary election—the election at which the candidates of the parties are chosen—they must register, next Tuesday. There will be other opportunities for registering before the regular November election, when the nominated candidates will be voted on.

Those who are registered, but who failed to designate their party affiliation, can not vote at the primaries, unless they again appear before the registrars and declare their party. In other words, an "independent" can not vote in a party contest, but can vote when there is a contest between party candidates. Declaring "party affiliation" does not mean that one can not vote against party candidates, if it is desired to do so, at the regular election.

REGISTER, on Tuesday, and VOTE, on Friday. The first duty toward helping to secure the best possible government, rests in taking interest in the making up of the party nominees for public office.

PLANTING OF TREES IN TOWNS.

Municipal Interest and Care is Strongly Urged.

A bulletin has been issued by the Department of Agriculture, advocating the planting and care of trees in cities and towns, even in the business sections, and to this end suggests municipal care and regulation. An article on the subject says in part:

"The tree growth on the streets of the average American town or city is ragged and unkempt in appearance, while that of the suburbs, or small village often is not much better unless the planting has been done under municipal control, and the plantings on a street have been confined to a single kind of tree. The telephone, the electric light, and the trolley car have added their share toward the mutilation or destruction of the good trees that were in existence at the time of their coming.

Faulty methods of pruning have caused disfigurement and ruin. Success follows the careful planting of good trees which are given adequate protection and timely attention," says Farmers' Bulletin 1209, Planting and Care of Street Trees, just issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. "Every tree should be trained to its proper form while young, so that severe pruning will not be necessary later. Guards are necessary, too, for several years.

"To the mutilation of severe pruning has been added the destruction of many trees in centers of business because they excluded a little light, or made the store less prominent, or were somewhat in the way of using the sidewalk for merchandise."

The bulletin insists that providing shade on city streets is as much a municipal function as providing lights or sidewalks and should, therefore, be cared for by public officials. Probably the most efficient way of arranging for proper supervision, it says, is through an unpaid commission of three or five members which in turn employs an executive officer. Methods of organization are described, and numerous illustrations show how trees should be planted. There are chapters also describing pruning, spraying, transplanting, and other subjects of importance to every town or city whether it has trees or wishes to have them. The bulletin may be had free upon application to the Division of Publications, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Packing Company Incorporated.

The town of Pleasant Valley now has a packing company, duly incorporated, named The Pleasant Valley Packing Company, that has bought the packing plant, machinery and buildings and land where Edward C. Yindling & Co., formerly conducted a similar business, and is now packing beans, tomatoes, corn, etc., the autumn farm and garden products, buying from the farmers and truckers in and around the town and community of Pleasant Valley.

For several weeks the new company has been busy handling the products that have been brought to the factory. The new company organized for business by the election of A. Daniel Leister, President, J. Elmer Myers, Vice-President, and Nevin W. Crouse, Secretary-Treasurer, and Charles O. Clemson, of Westminster, Attorney for the company.

From Geo. W. Yeiser, Cal.

A card from Geo. W. Yeiser, at San Jose, Calif., says: "Of all the countries I have visited, and the many states we have passed through, I think we reached the 'garden spot' in Santa Clara district, Cal. Here in harvest time, millions of pounds of prunes and grapes now being gathered and dried in the field; and the peach orchards present a beautiful sight. Hope to reach San Diego, Cal., orange, lemon, and grape fruit belt by Aug. 30, and then a dash for home."

will do the same again. At the same time, if any one from Taneytown has any idea of locating in Detroit, my advice is to postpone such an intention, as we surely have all we can do to keep those busy who are here—and then some.

THE WASTE IN ROAD SIGNS.

Torn Down Almost as Soon as they Are Put Up.

Road sign advertising is unprofitable and results in a great deal of waste effort and money; besides the practice is in violation of law. The following article, clipped from an exchange, will explain the uselessness of such signs.

"John N. Mackall, chairman of the State Roads Commission, said that his engineers informed him that they had torn down about 1,000,000 tree signs within the last year. This sounds like an 'awful lot' of signs, but when one considers the fact that one concern put up 1,500 signs along the Annapolis Boulevard that were torn down within a few days after they were put up, the number becomes more reasonable.

The experts figured that it requires at least two minutes of a traveling salesman's or road agent's time to tack up the average sign that goes up overnight on the side of a tree. Figured out at this rate on the eight-hour-a-day basis, exclusive of Sundays and holidays, it means that it would require approximately 11 years and 40 days for one man to tack up that many signs, leaving out of consideration the time consumed by the usual sign-tacker in traveling by automobile and going from tree to tree.

Just why advertisers persist in violating the law in tacking the signs along the highways when they realize that they will be torn down is more than the roads chief can understand."

Roads that Needs Improvement.

A delegation of residents from the vicinity of Johnsville and Union Bridge appeared before the Frederick County Commissioners Monday and strongly urged improvement of the roads in that section, principally the road which was formerly owned by the Liberty and Pipe Creek Turnpike Company, and which was bought by the county.

If nothing better can be secured, the delegation urged that the road be at least given a coat of tar after the stone had been rolled. It was pointed out that it is "false economy" to throw a lot of stones on the surface of the road only to be kicked into the side drains. That, one of the delegation stated to a representative of The Post is simply "kicking our taxes" into the side drains.

The State, it was pointed out, is making improvements to the road from Ceresville to Liberty, but from the latter place to Johnsville nothing whatever has been promised. A promise has been made, however, that stone will be placed on the road from Johnsville to Union Bridge, but, as the delegation this morning stated, they would be as bad off under those circumstances as they were if no improvements at all were made, unless the road is rolled and oiled.

Those in the delegation appearing here were: Reuben Saylor, president of the Farmers' Club; Miss Pauline Fuss, secretary of the Farmers' Club; Jesse W. Fuss, committee man; Miss Marie Senseney, Union Bridge; Dr. John H. Messler and Dr. Frank Sidwell, both of Johnsville.

It was pointed out that a new State road is being built from Westminster to New Windsor and from the latter point the highway will be continued to Union Bridge. Unless Frederick county takes steps at once to improve the condition of her roads in that section, Carroll county trade, which would normally come here, will be diverted to Baltimore.

The stretch of road in question, especially from Liberty to Johnsville, is said to be in horrible condition, much worse than the average county road, and it is known that whenever motorists can shun it they do so. Naturally, they would not want to travel to Frederick if they had to take a highway in such poor condition. The section of the county, which protested to the County Commissioners over the road in question has been neglected, it was stated, in the construction of modern highways.

He was a graduate of Lebanon College, the University of Pennsylvania and Bonebrake Theological Seminary. He began his pastorate in Walkersville in October, 1920, this being the first year of his active ministry. He was 28 years old, and is survived by his widow.

Mrs. Irene C. Biser is a Republican candidate in Frederick county for the House of Delegates, in the primaries. She is the only woman candidate in the county.

VIOLATORS OF LAW SEVERELY SCORED.

Sympathy For Law Violators a Most Dangerous Force.

U. S. Attorney General Daugherty, in an address before the American Bar Association, on Wednesday, severely scored those "who either violate law, or sympathize with law violators, in industrial conflicts, agitation to upset American forms of government, and against prohibition statutes." He pronounced these the most dangerous forces at work to undermine law.

Arguing equally against sentiment that regards a convicted I. W. W. as a "hero of conscience" and "political prisoner," that holds a bootlegger an exponent of "personal liberty," and sets up the slogan of "human rights against property rights" in employment disputes, Mr. Daugherty asserted fallacy and danger lay in all.

He declared the demand for "personal liberty" in prohibition enforcement had been "advanced in the past by every champion of lawlessness who has sought excuse for unlawful conduct."

Supremacy of the law is not undermined by the ordinary criminal who commits murder, robbery, larceny," Mr. Daugherty said. "To the contrary, every occurrence of crimes of this sort tends to impress upon society the profound importance of law and its vigorous enforcement. The supremacy of the law is and has been challenged mainly in that class of legislation where there exists a difference of opinion as to governmental policy in enacting the legislation in question.

"At the present time among the forces undermining respect for law are the doctrine of so-called political offense, erroneous conceptions of personal liberty and false doctrines as to the rights of individuals and minorities."

Commercial and social leaders who scoff at the Federal prohibition law are aiding the cause of anarchy and promoting mob violence, robbery and homicide, it was declared in a warning issued to the American people by the judicial section of the American Bar Association.

"The people of the United States have undertaken to suppress the age-long evil of the liquor traffic," the statement, signed by Judge Charles A. Woods, of South Carolina, chairman of the section, said.

"When for the gratification of their appetites lawyers, bankers, merchants and manufacturers and social leaders, both men and women, scoff at this law, or any other law, they are aiding the cause of anarchy and promoting mob violence, robbery and homicide.

"They are sowing dragon's teeth and they need not be surprised when they find that no judicial or police authority can save our country or humanity from reaping the harvest."

Women Republicans Organize.

The Republican women of Carroll county held a mass meeting in Westminster, on Aug. 26. Mrs. Scott Roop, chairman of the woman's section of the County Central Committee, called the meeting to order and introduced Mrs. Samuel K. Herr as the presiding officer.

Addresses were made by Mrs. Arthur Bibbins, recording secretary of the Republican Women's League of Maryland; Mrs. Adelaide Thurston, of the national Republican speakers' bureau, of New York, and Miss Edna Beveridge, special representative of the national executive committee.

The chief purpose of the meeting was the organization of the women of the county. Organization was effected by the selection of Mrs. George B. Knox, of Woolery's district, as chairman; Miss Amelia Annan, of Taneytown, vice-chairman; Mrs. Clarence Duvall, of Warfieldburg, secretary; Mrs. Howard E. Kooztz, of Westminster, treasurer, and Miss Mattie B. Shoemaker, of Woodbine, chairman of membership committee.

Recalling President Wilson.

Charles O. Clemson, Attorney, of Westminster, received recently an announcement from former President Woodrow Wilson of the formation of a law partnership with Bainbridge Colby, the Secretary of State under the former President, the firm to be known as Wilson & Colby, with offices in Washington, D. C., and in New York City. The former President has not had a word to say about public affairs since his retirement from the office of President, March 4th. last. In the autumn of 1915, as President Mr. Wilson visited Westminster, stopping at The Westminster Hotel for a short while, and there was greeted by Mr. Clemson, who introduced the Chief Executive to the people who happened to be at the hotel then. Mr. Clemson has long been a staunch friend and ardent admirer of the former President.

The movement of coal, lumber, and other business and building necessities, is reported to be on the increase from west to east, indicating increased demand for use.

All of the public schools in this county will open on Monday, Sept. 12.

All articles on this page are either original, or properly credited. This has always been a strict rule with this office, and we suggest the adoption of it by our exchanges.

The colored folks are to have a five-story hotel with a fourteen-story tower, at Atlantic City. It will be called the "Fitzgerald." We wonder why? Sounds Irish to us.

Mr. Gompers has advised his labor followers to resist further reductions in wages, even to the point of "striking," if necessary. This does not sound like good sense, for general application. It is just possible, that in the general "readjustment" that must come, some wages are still unreasonably high, while others may not be. Mr. Gompers should be discriminative and fair.

There will be no "beer medicine" until Congress acts favorably, and the queer thing about it is, the brewers do not seem to be greatly concerned. A law that would permit a physician to prescribe a "case" of medicine at a time, with no limit as to the number of "times," is so humorous as to excite even the suspicion of the brewers, and very sensibly they are not "falling for it."

Let's Try the Old Machine, with Improvements.

The Baltimore American and News are trying to develop sentiment and strength in favor of an improvement in our Primary Election laws, and men skilled in politics are taking up the cue, as a rule strongly against the present law. The Record always opposed the change, and early in its trial saw its abject failure in this county, and repeatedly called attention—several years ago—to the fact that the tax-payers were being bunched; getting nothing in return for the operation of the law but doubled election expense.

The experiment has been a costly one. Even those who sought to "beat the organization," perhaps honestly enough in intention, have seen the organization, if anything, prosper more effectually under the law than without it. It has operated not only contrary to attractive theory, but in addition has caused more dissension, more ill-will, more personal and public expense, and more of everything disuniting and discouraging in politics than was ever known under the clearest instances of "bossed" conventions.

It would have been worth a great deal to have beaten boss rule, had it been accomplished, even in part. Apparently, the primary plan led "the people" up to the height of power and leadership; to the point of telling the bosses where to get off; but, the people at times talk and criticize a great deal, but eventually attend to their own private affairs, and not to the best that is in politics. Those who know the game, and like it, play it while the rest are at work, or asleep, and get away with the stakes.

So, if we are fated to have rule by the few—by the professionals—why not at least have it as economically as possible? Why continue on paying for temporary excitement, and the delusion that things must be different just because they ought to be, but will not? There is a remedy, worth trying, to get rid of the expensive failure, and it is to use the best judgment there is among those who know, how to get back to a convention system that is better than the one we had.

The old machine was discarded for a new one that has proven to be worse than the old. Let us now resurrect the old one, look it over, and try adding improvements to it. The result will not be effective safety against professional crackmen, but we will have the satisfaction of periodically "cussing" them, and be able to do it just as fruitfully, and with smaller tax bills to pay.

Better Pay Needed for a Better Legislature.

Another effort should be made to raise the pay of members of the legislature. It is true that the people voted down the proposition only two years ago, but perhaps it was thoughtlessly done, and because little effort was made in the way of educating voters up to the point of seeing the need for the higher pay. At any rate, the act was a mistake and should be corrected.

We want to send men to the legislature to act for us intelligently and honestly. This means that we ought to send men who have the intelligence, courage and constructive ability, to act as we desire and need. We should, in fact, send our very best qualified men to Annapolis, and not merely those who are moderately competent, and who are so situated that they can go without personal loss.

Our best men, as a rule, are busy men—thoughtful men—resourceful men—men of standing. These can not be had, at $5.00 per day, in any great numbers, to make the sacrifice of "serving their country" at a financial loss. Moreover, we need to send men able to avoid being led by designing leaders into trades and deals, to the end that resulting legislation is often positively bad.

The rate of pay received per diem does not always label a man as a "cheap" man, nor as a dishonest one; but, the best service, as a rule, comes from, and may be more naturally expected from, the man skilled in his occupation—who "knows where he is at," and can see what the other fellow may be trying to "put over."

There are men who go to every legislature to "run things," and do it. Even those willing and anxious to do their best, are handicapped because of not knowing right ways; and these must eventually be followers of somebody, very much in a hit or miss way, unsatisfactory to themselves as well as to the best public interest.

At present, nominations to the House of Delegates, especially, "go begging," and this fact alone explains the reason why. The office is not worth any man's having, who has special qualifications for the job; and it is not for the best interests of the state that this condition should continue to exist.

Beauty Contests Why Not?

Beauty contests among female aspirants? Why not? We have shows, contests and fairs, for the purpose of awarding cash prizes and ribbons for excellence in horses, cattle, hogs, chickens—and even pumpkins and cabbages. We have development contests, trials of speed, scientific feeding and experimental growing, for almost everything under the sun; so, why exclude the ladies?

Feminine beauty needs encouragement, else we would pose as partial to the brute and fowl creation. As a matter of fact, perhaps because we have not had more beauty contests of the feminine variety may be the explanation as to why dame fashion has instituted—in what we call "the styles"—certain exhibits of the female form as a sort of "beauty show" not otherwise provided for.

Merit unrecognized, needs to assert itself. Even the name "chicken," sometimes applied to individuals of the female sex, may stand as a reminder to male admirers of prize winners that they have been overlooking beauty and perfection among the fair sex, and that there are "prize chickens" in more shapes than the feathered varieties.

We may privately talk of "ducks," and "peaches," and "kittens," and "birds," and such like endearments, but all the while the subjects may be wanting wider recognition—a wider market, as it were—for their perfections; hence, the "beauty contests" of the present may be only the filling of a long felt want, and we should hesitate to decide that they are only another invention of Satan.

Jobs for the Jobless.

Secretary of Labor Davis has reported to the President that unemployment in the United States has reached the dangerous figure of 5,375,000. Other sets of figures gathered from various sources place the number of jobless as high as 7,000,000.

The situation is about as ugly as that of 1914, when approximately 7,000,000 wage-earners were out of work in the shock and dislocation of the first months of war. Winter is just around the corner, and it looks like a hard winter. Industries that have gone along during the summer are slowing down, and the great basic industries, the year-around mainstays, are not improving much.

It was time that some move be made. The Harding Administration proposes to do what it can in the emergency, and will step into the middle of the unemployment situation. Heads of leading industries are to be called to Washington and, with spokesmen of labor, asked to shape an emergency plan that will help in averting distress and suffering.

Doubtless the Administration would have called the conference earlier had it been foreseen that Congress would delay so long in dealing with the President's program for reviving business. Tax revision was a part of it; tariff revision and rail and farm relief legislation were the other factors.

Congress has taken a vacation with rail, tax and tariff legislation unfinished and with only a part of the farm relief measures passed. The Rail Bill, expected to stimulate rail activity, help the great steel and allied industries, take care of rail workers' unemployment and have a direct influence in putting hundreds of thousands of other workers back on their jobs, shared the fortunes of tax and tariff.

The unemployment conference is likely, if it grants the soundness of the Administration plans, to spur Congress into immediate action. If the conferees agree with the President that his program will give permanent relief, Congress will not dare delay much longer. For winter is not far off.

The completion of the program is to be the Administration's main effort toward getting back to "normalcy." It has been delayed so greatly and matters have drifted so far that immediate remedies are needed. These are to be emergency remedies, designed not to cure but to relieve.

The conference proposes to find work somewhere and somehow for the workers. If it is humanly possible, work is to be found or made for the man who wants to work.—Phila. Ledger.

The Key that Unlocked the Door to Long Living.

The men of eighty-five and ninety years of age are not the rotund, well-fed, but thin, spare men, who live on a slender diet. Be as careful as he will, however, a man past middle age will occasionally eat too much or of some article of food not suited to his constitution, causing indigestion or constipation and will need a dose of Chamberlain's Tablets to move his bowels, and invigorate his stomach. When this is done, there is no reason why the average man should not live to a ripe old age.

What Does a Newspaper Owe to its Readers?

The relation of a newspaper to its readers is one that at times is worth thinking about. Is it purely a business relation in which the subscriber pays so much per year for the paper and the publishers contracts to give in his news columns accounts of pink teas and lemonade socials, or that Mrs. Jones took dinner with Mrs. Brown, and Smith's baby has the mumps? Or does not the average publisher expect to give more than is included in a normal business relation? And doesn't the reader expect more? If it was a pure business relation, a matter of dollars and cents, the average publisher would charge more per annum for a subscription.

Eliminating everything but news, few if any of the numerous publishers of the country could supply the paper at anything like the usual charge per year. We fancy that the average publishers likes to think of his readers as all comprising one big family having many things in common and who feel that when they receive the paper each issue that they are getting more than the two or three cents that it costs them. We are inclined to think that between the average paper and its average reader there is a relation that is beyond and above a pure business relation.

The paper should give that which passes as current news, to be sure, but over and above this it must give a community service that cannot be measured in dollars. It must stand for the best that is in the community. It must have courage to condemn, as well as courage to commend. A paper to command respect cannot be spineless. It must have a code and abide by that code. If it is a real paper its readers will respect it if they do not always agree with it. A paper's great asset is a list of readers who respect it. A town's greatest asset is a paper that its readers respect. A paper must be honest, and as far as humanly possible it should be impartial.

A paper that does not have the confidence of its readers is incapable as a community spokesman. A paper that is run for revenue alone cannot long maintain the respect of its readers. These are some of the things that a paper owes to its readers. Sometimes, stop and think what you, as a reader, owe to the paper; not in dollars, but in a way that is bigger than dollars.—Montana Pilot.

JUST BURROWS OF ANIMALS

Mystery of What Was Known as the "Devil's Corkscrew" Has Been Considered Solved.

Of the many fossils which have come out of the mountains and plains of the West, few have excited wider interest than the "devil's corkscrew," found in rocks of the Miocene period, in northwestern Nebraska. They are usually white, and stand out clearly against the bluff background of the rock which incloses them, often attaining a length of 15 feet, with many twists and turns, ending at times in a large bulb, with occasional side passages. When first discovered it was thought that these gigantic "corkscrews" were huge petrified vines or roots of some strange plant. Study of the "corkscrews," however, failed to reveal any traces of plant structure. Later the skeleton of an animal like the badger was found in a large bulb near the end of the "corkscrew," and bones of a small camel and small deer were found in others. After that it was discovered that many of them contained bones of a small burrowing animal about the size of the western prairie dog. Excavation of actual recent prairie dog burrows, after filling them with thin plaster of paris, showed an interesting fact; the burrows of the prairie dog and the prehistoric "corkscrews" were closely similar. The mystery is considered solved.

OLD MYSTERY OF THE SEA

What Became of Fine Liner President Which Disappeared in the Year 1841?

Among the modern sea mysteries none is more baffling than the vanishing of the liner President in 1841. The vessel was the latest word in luxurious ocean travel, having but lately been launched. And that day in March when she sailed from New York for Liverpool every vessel in the North river paid tribute to her size and superiority. She was 268 feet long and of 2,360 tons.

Early in April reports began to filter into America from Liverpool that the President had not arrived, and as the days sped on far into the summer the agony of suspense on both sides the ocean grew. On her passenger list had been the names of many prominent persons, among whom were the celebrated comedian, Tyrone Powers, George G. Cookman and the duke of Devonshire. A few more than 100 passengers were aboard the President.

Whether the President foundered in some violent gale, was sunk or crushed by icebergs, or was destroyed by fire, no man to this day has been able to tell, for not even a splinter of wreckage was ever reported seen.

Paradise of the Hunter.

Kamchatka forms a peninsula at the extreme southeastern termination of the great Siberian continent. Game is pursued by the inhabitants all the year round except in May, June and July. Sable trapping is a favorite pursuit of the native hunter, the skin of this little animal being accepted as the gold currency of the peninsula.

The business of buying and selling is carried on with the natives through middlemen—Siberians, Chinese and well-to-do Kamchadals—who, while faithfully serving their masters, make a fat living out of it for themselves.

A veritable paradise for the big-game hunter, Kamchatka contains reindeer, caribou, big-horn mountain sheep (Ovis nivicola), the great gray wolf and many varieties of bear, all in quantities unknown, says an exchange, in any other quarter of the globe.

Antiquity of Porto Rico.

Ethnologists have reason for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade of culture. Few traces of these aborigines are now to be found except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone-enclosed plazas, on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No traces of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type.

The Apple of Eden.

From time immemorial the apple has been blamed for being the cause of man's downfall in the garden of Eden. We have even gone so far as to call our Adam's apple by that name in memory of the incident.

As a matter of fact, the word apple does not appear in that part of Genesis treating with the Garden of Eden, the "fruit of the tree" being the words always used. The fallacy arose from the fact that the word apple has in many languages the general meaning of fruit, and that before an English translation of the Bible was permitted the story was incorrectly spread by ignorant churchmen, and thus took root too deeply to be eradicated.

It Doesn't Pay

It doesn't pay to tickle the heels of a mule, fool with a loaded shot gun, or try to sweep back the sea with a broom. These are all foolhardy undertakings.

It DOES pay to have a Bank account. You may be as busy as a mosquito in a bed room, but if you do not save some of your earnings you have wasted a lot of effort. Successful men learn this lesson early in life and open an account at the Bank and put their money to work.

GOOD FENCES ARE REQUIRED

Fowls Running at Large Destroy Gardens and Flower Beds—Confine Them in Yards.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Confine the back-yard flock; otherwise the hens will stray into neighbors' yards and gardens, where they may cause damage and are almost sure to cause ill feeling. The yard should be inclosed by a board or wire fence. Wire fencing is preferable, as it is cheaper and the hens are less likely to fly over it, say poultry specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture. If cats prove troublesome where one is raising chickens, it may be necessary to cover the top of the yard with wire also. A board should not be used at the top of a wire fence, as this gives the hens a visible place to alight and tends to teach them to fly over.

A 5-foot fence is high enough for most conditions, but if the hens show a tendency to fly over such a fence the flight feathers of one wing should be clipped. Leghorns need a 6-foot fence. The larger the yard which can be provided the better the hens will do, as it not only gives them greater opportunity to exercise, but also makes it possible to maintain a sod on the yard. In most cases not enough land will be available so that a sod can be maintained.

If the yard is fairly large, it can be divided into two parts and green crops, such as oats, wheat, rye, or Dwarf Essex rape allowed to start in one yard while the hens are confined to the other. The green crops should be sown very thick, and the following quantities will be found satisfactory for a yard 25 by 30 feet: Wheat, 2 1/2 pounds; oats, 1 1/2 pounds; rye, 3 1/2 pounds; rape, 5 ounces. When the growing stuff reaches a height of 3 to 4 inches the hens can be turned upon it and the other yard be similarly sown.

Where it is inadvisable to divide the yard it is possible to keep a supply of green stuff growing by using a wooden frame 2 or 3 inches high covered with 1-inch-mesh wire. A frame made of 1 by 2-inch lumber, 6 feet long and 3 feet wide, with an additional piece across the center to support the wire when the hens stand on it, will be found desirable for a small yard. A part of the yard as large as this frame is spaded up and sown, the frame placed over it, and the material allowed to grow. As soon as the green sprouts reach the wire the hens will begin to pick them off, but since they cannot eat them down to the roots the sprouts will continue to grow and supply green material. This frame can be moved from place to place in the yard, and in this way different parts cultivated.

The yard should be stirred or spaded up frequently, if not in sod, in order to keep it in the best condition. This will not only tend to keep down any odors which might arise, but also allow the droppings to be absorbed into the soil more readily, and, therefore, keep the yard in better condition for the hens.

Although it is necessary to keep the hens confined to their yard most of the time, it is sometimes possible to let them out where they may range upon the lawn for an hour or so in the evening when some one can be at hand to watch them or at certain seasons of the year to allow them to run in the garden plot. This will be enjoyed greatly by the hens and will be very beneficial to them.

CONTROL INTESTINAL WORMS

Best Way Is to Change Ground Upon Poultry Run, Especially if Fowls Are Crowded.

Changing the ground upon which poultry run is the best means of controlling intestinal worms in poultry, because the worms or eggs of the worm will stay over in the ground from one season to another, especially if the poultry is overcrowded.

POULTRY FLOCKS

FEEDS FOR PRODUCING EGGS

Poultryman Should Have Full Knowledge of Proper Feed and How to Prepare It.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Everyone in the poultry business hopes to have eggs throughout the year, but of course this is scarcely possible. If the business is gone into on a commercial scale the largest profit should be obtained during the winter. If just two eggs a week extra can be obtained from every hen a good profit will be made, while if one egg a week extra can be recorded in the winter, this one egg will pay for all the feed the hen eats, according to the experience of the poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. To obtain this greater production not only should the fowls be young and of a good laying breed, but the feeder should have a full knowledge of the proper feed and how to prepare it. And this can be achieved only by study and care.

Nutrient in the feed of laying hens serves a twofold purpose: to repair waste and supply heat to the body and provide the egg-making materials. As only the surplus over what is needed for the body is available for egg production, the proper feeds should be given in sufficient quantities to induce this production.

In feeding poultry a valuable lesson may be learned from nature. In the spring the production of eggs is an easy matter. Fowls at liberty to roam find an abundance of green and animal feed on their range, which, with grain, provides a perfect ration for laying hens. In addition to this they get plenty of exercise and fresh air. So far as possible, then, the feeder should try to make these winter conditions springlike.

Two systems are used in feeding fowls—the dry-mash and the moist-mash, although in the dry-mash system a light-moist mash often is fed. By the term "mash" poultrymen mean a mixture of ground feed, either moist or dry. The greatest advantages to be derived from the dry-feed system are the saving of labor and the lessened danger of bowel trouble resulting from sloppy or soured mashes. In the dry-feed system for laying hens, as practiced successfully on a New York poultry farm, the grains fed are as follows, in the proportions indicated:

This mixture is scattered in the litter early in the morning, and again at about 11:30 a. m., and this induces abundant exercise. A hopper containing dry mash is hung against the wall. The mash is made of these ingredients in the proportions indicated (by measure):

200 pounds cracked corn.	130 pounds wheat.
30 parts bran.	130 pounds oats.
30 parts middlings.	15 parts ground alfalfa.
22 parts corn meal.	2 parts oyster shell.
30 parts meal (animal).	1 part grit.
	1 part charcoal.

The hopper containing this mash is kept before the fowls all of the time.

Corn is the most popular of all the grain feeds for farm poultry, probably because of its abundance and comparative cheapness, and because it is relished over all other grains. It should be balanced with meat, bone, linseed meal, gluten meal, and such feeds as are rich in protein, for corn is deficient in this constituent. When corn is fed to hens that have plenty of exercise, and a chance to get insects and green feed, more satisfactory results are likely to be recorded than when fed to the same fowls closely confined. It may be fed quite liberally to your poultry during the winter in cold climates, but should be fed sparingly in summer.

Wheat usually is considered the safest grain to feed alone, but is too expensive to be fed much to fowls. This grain should be supplemented with other grains and with some meat feed or skim milk to increase the proportion of protein. Wheat contains more protein than corn, about the same amount of carbohydrates, but less fat, and on the whole is considered not so valuable for fattening, but better for growth. Wheat screenings, if they are of a good grade, frequently can be purchased and fed to advantage. Of course, there is always danger of introducing weed seeds through their use. "Burnt wheat" seldom can be fed advantageously; the difference in price between this and good wheat usually being too slight to warrant one in buying it.

GREAT GAME IS ADVERTISING

Has Developed Until Today It Calls for the Services of Trained Experts.

Advertising is a game. Business is its stake. No other game has greater zest or importance. Too many business men play it carelessly.

Competition is the great instructor. Run your eyes over the advertisements of today and you will find them showing a skill and ingenuity well deserving the name of art. The titles read like news heads and have the appeal of news. The copy is terse and readable. It tells people unmistakably how they can economize; where they can buy the best goods for the least money and with the least inconvenience to themselves. Everyone wants to economize now. The advertisement which does not promise economy might as well not be written.

We see a judicious use of space and appropriateness of display that makes each modern good advertisement a classic. If one should compare them with those that were set a few years ago he would be surprised at the improvement.

And yet there are slovenly advertisements still, advertisements which merely take room and exhibit the backwardness of those who pay for them.

The best skill in any game is only attained by trained experts. Others may have good ideas and flashes of luck. But only the expert knows how to use good ideas for the maximum of result without relying on luck.—New York Mail.

TOOK THE KISS SERIOUSLY

According to French Scientist, the Romans Had Three Distinct Ways of Specifying It.

Dr. Emile Malespine, a scientist of Lyons, France, and a contributor on physiological subjects to leading French periodicals, has written an article for the Forum in which he traces the development of the kiss as a social custom from earliest history.

"The first manifestations of the kiss encountered in literature," says Doctor Malespine, "are those which are furthest removed from the kiss of homage, appear rather as ceremonies, than as natural and spontaneous expressions of sentiment. The Bible shows us pagans kissing their idols. The Greeks and Romans had a special veneration for statues; there was at Agrigento, according to Cicero, a marvelous statue of Hercules, of which the lips and the chin were completely worn away by the devotions of the faithful."

"The Romans, as well as the Greeks, knew the kiss in all its perfections. Their physiological wealth in this regard, is an added proof. Without counting the diminutives, they had three words specifying the kiss: The osculum corresponds to what we should call the kiss of friendship; the basium, more tender, was the kiss of relatives, and of husband and wife; finally, the savium applied to the kisses of lovers."

Turk as a "Goat Herder."

The famous goat herder of primitive countries who sells his milk by the jar or cup from the goat skin bag on his back has his modern prototype in the person of a chap who appeared on the Bowery said the New York Sun.

Slung over his shoulder was a large white metal container similar in shape to the goat skin bag and from one end of which protruded a spigot. The top of the container was gayly festooned with flowers and flags and for three cents the peddler would take a small paper cup from his pocket and draw a glass of milk for the thirsty youngster, or passerby. The carrier of the metal container wore a bright red turban on his head. His trousers were broad-beamed of the same color and his mustache of the kind figured in lithographs of the ferocious Turk.

Nice Choice of Words.

Young James and the still younger William were engaged in a violent disagreement, during which blows had been exchanged, when their father appeared.

"Why, boys," he said, in a pained parental tone, "what does this mean?" "I don't care," sobbed William, a little conscious of superior virtue. "He started it! He said—he said I was a liar!"

"Why, James! What a thing to say about your little brother!" James hung his head. "Well—I didn't say exactly that, father," he explained. And, in answer to a further question, "I just said that he didn't remind me any of George Washington."—Harper's Magazine.

MUST HAVE ADAPTIVE TASTE

Veteran Traveler Declares Globe Trotter Can Not Be Over Nice in Choice of Food.

One of the first things a young man who wants to see the world should learn is how to eat. Otis Warren Barrett says so, and if anyone knows he does. He has been wandering into queer parts of the world for the government for years past and he is never sick, says the Kansas City Star.

"Train the palate," says Mr. Barrett. "I can live on palm oil chop in Liberia or raw fish in Japan and never have a qualm. I may not prefer monkeys boiled in grease and eaten with the bare hand, but I can eat monkeys with the best of monkey eaters. The man who is particular about his chop had best stay at home."

Mr. Barrett has made a success of wandering. He is one of the greatest of our agricultural experts. His latest exploit is to teach the natives of the palm countries how to make white sugar out of palm sap—which they never knew before—by which process four hundred and fifty thousand tons of the finest sugar imaginable has been added to the sugar total of the world. In all his years of wandering in swamp and jungle he has never been seriously ill, and he attributes this in part to the fact that he can live at the local table without repining.

"Cassava paste isn't very good," said Mr. Barrett, reminiscently. "It doesn't taste like anything, and it is so sticky that if a man were to attempt to chew it his jaws might be clamped together or perhaps his teeth might be pulled out. One just makes a little ball of it, rolls it in gravy as a lubricant, and lets it slip down."

The Ideal Purgative.

As a purgative, Chamberlain's Tablets are the exact thing required. Strong enough for the most robust, mild enough for children. They cause an agreeable movement of the bowels without any of that terrible griping. They are easy and pleasant to take and agreeable in effect.

No Substitute Offered.

Say what you will about druggists offering something "just as good" because it pays a better profit, the fact still stands that ninety nine out of a hundred druggists recommend Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy when the best medicine for diarrhoea is asked for, and do so because they know from what their customers say of it, that it can be depended upon.

A Delightful Social Event.

(For the Record.)

Mr. and Mrs. J. F. King, of near Kingsdale, delightfully entertained, on Sunday, Aug. 28, the following guests: Mrs. Leala Stahl and two sons, Ray and Ralph Harner, of Detroit, Mich.; Miss Renna Hipp, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. Norman King, daughter, Florence, and two sons, Edgar and Ernest, of York Springs, Pa.; Mrs. Lucinda Wolf, Miss Vertie Harner, Miss Cora Long, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keefe and Estella Koonz, of Littlestown; Mr. and Mrs. Birnie Ohler and daughter, Alta, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer King and children, Orpha and Fred.

All spent a very pleasant time and did justice in trying to relieve the groaning table of its weight of the delicacies of the season.

Mrs. Leala Stahl and two sons, Ray and Ralph Harner, will leave for their home at 163 Drexel Ave., Detroit, Mich., Sept. 1st, after spending a very pleasant time motoring in the east, since Aug. 1st. They will be glad to have any of their friends visit them in their new home and do their best to make it pleasant by showing them the garden spot of U. S. A.

The Weather and Crops.

The week ending Tuesday, Aug. 30, 1921, was characterized by clear, sunny days with the exception of the 29th., when showery weather prevailed. The cool period which began on the 21st. terminated on the 28; 29 and 30 were warm.

Growing crops were affected unfavorably during the week by the dry weather, especially over those portions of the southern half of the section where rainfall was light during the first two decades of the month.

Corn continues in good to excellent condition, except in the southern counties, where it was injured somewhat during the maturing stage by the dry weather. It is maturing rapidly under the influence of sunny days, and cutting has begun in some localities of Charles and Sussex counties. Late corn is in need of rain.

Late potatoes continue in bloom, and are in fair condition. Sweet potatoes are good, and are maturing. Truck crops and gardens are fair.

Pastures have deteriorated, and are poor to fair in southern and fair to good in northern counties.

Harvesting of tomatoes, sugar corn and truck continues. Harvesting of cantaloupes and melons has practically ended; both were fine crops. Harvesting of early tobacco continues; that previous cut is curing nicely. Late tobacco needs rain. A third crop of alfalfa is being cut.

In Garrett county thrashing of oats continues, and buckwheat is in full bloom.

Plowing for fall seeding was interrupted by the dry and hardened condition of the soil.

Some wheat, winter rye, winter oats, alfalfa, crimson clover, and vetch were sown in Wicomico county.

Good soaking rains are needed for growing crops.

Just a sweet remembrance brother;
Just a memory fond and true;

But just let this little token show,
We still remember thee.

Gone; but not forgotten.

St. Joseph's Supper and Lawn Fete.

A simple and very impressive ceremony marked the flag-raising at St. Joseph's Fete last Saturday. After a few introductory remarks by Father Quinn, Miss Margaret Smith sang a stanza of the Star-Spangled Banner.

Mr. A. B. Blanchard donor of the flag and pole then made a brief address. In part Mr. Blanchard said:

"Not unknown to most of you is the name of Joseph A. Goulden. Many were happy in having the acquaintance and friendship of that distinguished statesman. Most fortunate was I in claiming relationship with him.

His interest in Taneytown in general and in St. Joseph's Church, in particular, was traditional. With his passing I felt that I had fallen heir to the love and affection which the Colonel had, at all times, manifested toward this, his old home. As the Convent approached completion, I wished to make a donation. My thought was, 'What would the Colonel suggest?' To the Colonel, the highest type of citizen was the man true to God and true to Country. No Catholic establishment is complete without both. I knew the flag would come, and I wished in the spirit of our late friend, to be the agent of its coming.

To the children of the school, I give the flag. May they ever be true to it! May they ever cherish it as their dearest possession, after God."

At the conclusion of Mr. Blanchard's speech all sang a verse of "My Country 'tis of Thee." An orchestra from Hanover furnished music.

The second and last night of the fete will be the coming Saturday, September 3. The O'Brien Jazz Artists from Baltimore, will be on hand to keep the night air alive with tuneful music.

Again this Saturday Mrs. Pius Hemler will serve the most delicious spring chicken supper. Supper will be served at 5 o'clock.

Paint Prices are Greatly Reduced.

If you have any building that needs painting, now is the time to do it. The heat of the summer dries out the wood and opens up the seams—these should be covered now with a coat of good paint to protect your property from the ravages of winter. A small paint investment now will save expensive repairs and deterioration that is sure to result if your buildings are left to the mercy of the elements.

Monarch 100 per-cent Pure Paint will spread farther, look better and last longer than adulterated paints which cost just as much. See us before investing. It will pay you. Prices are now quite reasonable.

To The Voters Of Carroll County

It was generally conceded up to the last night for candidates to file their intentions that there would be but one name filed for Clerk of the Circuit Court; I find it impossible to visit each District, let alone to see all the voters and therefore I appeal most earnestly to the Democratic voters of the County to enlist themselves in behalf of my nomination from now until the Primary is closed—assuring each and all that I want one term and only one term.

Believe me as always your friend,

The Farmers' Situation.

A leading director of one of the Reserve Banks, speaking of the financial condition of the farmers, says:

"However much consideration individual farmers are entitled to, Washington has an exaggerated idea of the importance of propositions submitted by some farm organizations, whose officers do not represent the mass of farmers any more than union leaders represent the mass of industrial workers."

"The average farmer is too busy digging himself out to pay much attention to anything else. He is bet-ter off and his outlook is clearer than seemed possible a few months ago. His crops have turned out better than once was indicated, and the prices of some products have risen above the profit line. Coarse grains are too low, but the farmer figures out a profit in corn by feeding hogs."

"Financing the cattle and sheep industries will be a problem for the time, especially on behalf of the tenant farmers, but a responsible, capable farmer can get credit for urgent requirements. Most of the trouble can be traced to too easy credit, which caused him to speculate."

To The Republican Voters of Carroll County:

I have endeavored to see all the voters before the coming primary election, but I find that impossible, and I am therefore making this final appeal to the voters. Taneytown District, with her more than four hundred Republican majority, has never been honored with the important office of Register of Wills, and she feels that she is entitled to favorable consideration at this time.

A few weeks after the primary election there will be a general election, and every Republican candidate, in fact every Republican voter, will look to Taneytown to furnish the majority with which to elect our ticket. I consider it therefore but fair to ask that you give me your votes for the office of Register of Wills in the coming primary election, thus giving to Taneytown District the recognition to which she is entitled.

I do not presume to know it all, but I do promise that if nominated and elected, to give to the people the most courteous, efficient and satisfactory service of which I am capable.

Respectfully your Obedient Servant,

WILLIAM F. BRICKER,
Taneytown District.

Confidence In The People.

I have always had confidence in the people; hence I announced my candidacy for Clerk of the Circuit Court months before the last day on which candidates could file their papers, instead of waiting till the night of the last day on which they could be filed.

I wanted the people to have time for reflection and measure me from every angle and viewpoint, to see if I were capable of, and competent to fill the office of Clerk of the Circuit Court with credit alike not to myself alone, but to all of the people whose candidate I am; not of any clique or faction, as stated by me at the meeting of the Democratic County Central Committee and one of the most representative bodies of citizens, ladies and men of the county, recently held in the Firemen's Building.

My patriotism cannot be questioned when I gave my all (two sons) to our Government in the late World War; one of whom was over there nearly a year and on No Man's Land from September 13, 1918 to the signing of the Armistice. The other son had received orders to sail but before they were executed the Armistice was signed and the order for sailing was revoked.

Again, I bought as many Liberty Bonds as my means would permit that the money could be raised to feed, clothe and return our beloved ones to their heart-broken parents, wives, children, sisters, brothers and loved ones again.

I have never solicited favor from anyone by attempting to discredit the good qualities in others, or by belittling them in any way whatsoever. Notwithstanding false reports, I positively say I have not promised (nor will I, unless elected) any person or persons a clerkship in the office to which I aspire. Beware of all rumors, promises and threats. What more could be required of a candidate for any office?

Yours very Respectfully,

Joseph B. Boyle.

FOR COUNTY COMMISSIONER

To the Republican Voters of Carroll County:

The primary election will take place Friday, September 9, next, and it will not be possible for me to see all Republican voters. I therefore, respectfully ask your support and promise, if nominated and elected to give the office my constant attention.

It has been many years since the Northern part of the county had a representative on the board of County Commissioners.

To the Republican Voters of Carroll County:

Do you want a Register of Wills who knows how to conduct the office ACCORDING TO LAW? Then vote for WESLEY C. BROOKS.

Do you want a Register of Wills who has devoted over 5 years to the study of Testamentary Law? Then vote for WESLEY C. BROOKS.

Do you want a Register of Wills who is Temperate, Intelligent, Polite, Obliging, Pre-eminently Efficient, Popular and a first class Campaigner? Then vote for WESLEY C. BROOKS, whose district, with 1442 REPUBLICAN VOTERS in it, is asking for his nomination.

Give Him Your Vote.

Three Parties To A Telephone Call

It is always well to remember that good telephone service does not depend entirely upon the operator.

There are two other persons involved—the person calling and the person answering—and over their movements the operator has no control. She may do her part very efficiently, but unless the others co-operate, the best results will not be had.

It is not the fault of the operator, for instance, if the calling party, relying on his memory, calls for a wrong number or hangs up his receiver in the middle of a conversation. Neither is it the fault of the operator if the called party fails to answer promptly or is already engaged in conversation with another person.

Good telephone operating is brought about by co-operation on the part of the party calling, the operator and the party called.

By A. W. PEACH

(© 1921, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Ruth Arnold's impulsive friend precipitated herself into a chair and said gaily: "Ruth, you dark-eyed witch, you have the male hearts at this inn in captivity; but I know the one among them you are going to marry!"

"Wonder of wonders, Lucy, I don't and besides—" Ruth began.

"And besides," Lucy proceeded, "you don't like to talk about such things—I'll say that for you. But, listen. I happened to be in a canoe last evening near the Point, and I overheard some of the men talking; and I distinctly heard that handsome Baltimore fellow, Lee Hargrave, make a wager that he would be engaged to you before you left!"

Ruth's astonishment and disgust were evident on her face. "What a thing to say! Lucy, if you love me, don't spread this any farther!"

"There he goes now!" Lucy exclaimed, and Ruth looking up saw Hargrave, handsome and serene in white flannels walking across the lawn.

She recognized him immediately, for he had caught her attention the day she and her mother arrived at their favorite summer place. She had made up her mind that there was no more conceited man on earth.

"I Can't Say What I Would Like to Say."

"He's coming here!" Lucy whispered. "I'll get out!"

Came he did, in his serene, assured fashion. Ruth watched him with hidden interest. So here was the man she was to marry—on his way to begin the winning of his wager.

He seated himself at her invitation and promptly sought to engage her for a yachting trip that some of the young people had under consideration. She started to refuse, then a sly purpose crept into her mind. Why not give him a good lesson?

She accepted as graciously as she could in view of what she knew.

Offensive as the affair was, it held some amusement for her and besides she might teach him a wholesome lesson. She refused other invitations but never his. He began to wear a slight air of possession which pleased her. He began to grow a bit serious and she let him.

She was puzzled. He never talked about himself even when she tried to lead him on. Only when a gray-haired man pointed him out to another as a mining engineer who was remarkably successful did she gain any information about him. He was always one of the first to take hold of work incidental to any of the good times, and he was certainly thoughtful of others.

"Really," she had advised herself after one pleasant time, "he is quite likeable." She stopped short. "What if I should fall in love with him—after that wager? Gracious!"

The next day a telegram called him away, and it was a lonely day for her. Lucy, coming with a merry query, was very coldly treated. But the day gave Ruth time for thought. She came to a decision.

"I shall—let's see, what's a cruel way to say it—tie a can to him when he comes back!" she said brutally.

He returned looking a bit weary and haggard, but with his calm self-esteem as fresh as ever. He sought her soon after his arrival that evening, and, shooting away others that tried to join them, took her away on a walk along the shore.

"It's coming," Ruth warned herself and tried to smile. She was a bit frightened, for he had found, sensibly she acknowledged it, a place in her heart—a small, wee corner, anyway.

Where the sea swept away from the high bluff, he halted. "Ruth, my work carries me into rough country, and I am going to take back to that work some of the best memories of my life. I wish, too, I might take—take one other memory with me."

She tried to say to herself, "How easy! My promise, my kiss, and then —never again!" but some thing in his voice cheapened the words. Her heart jumped as she wondered if he had made the wager in fun, and then really fallen in love with her.

He went on. "I can't say what I would like to say in the way I want to. But I am desperately in love with you."

His calm assurance aroused her. "There is a good reason why you say that." Then she told him what she knew about the wager.

He listened in silence, his face turned to the moonlight sea. When her hot words ended with, "These shores have heard just such tales many times. A real man's love means too much to me," he was silent for a little; and then he spoke so evenly his voice did not betray his mood:

"I have only three weeks off in the year. I cannot meet you elsewhere. I am sorry I impress you as being egotistical; it is my way, that's all. At heart, I am sure I am not; for from boyhood I have fought for confidence in myself. Suppose we return."

He talked in a quiet way on the return; and he left her with a farewell word that he had to return that night. Under the soft light of the corridor globe his face was white and drawn.

She went to her room and stood thinking, with a queer sensation of hurt and pain within her. He had evidently come all those miles just to ask her. But he had not denied the wager.

The sky broke and fell about her the next morning. Lucy came gaily up. "My dear, I made a mistake. Now that he's gone and no harm's done I want to tell you the chap making that wager was Evert. One of the men told me. Their voices are so much alike—"

With a cry Ruth rushed away to the shelter of her room. What to do—what to do! She must reach him. Dizzily she sought out her brother who had joined them that week. He listened, his cold gray eyes heating. Then he said in a frank, brotherly way: "You darned little fool. He's one of the finest chaps here. You write what you want and I'll get it to him or bust. And if you ever pull off such a deal again, I'll spank you myself."

In the evening Ruth saw a dusty roadster that bore evidence of hard driving glide to a stop with squealing brakes in front of the inn. A tall figure rose from it, mounted the steps and came toward them. She heard her brother say, "Get inside, sis." But she was powerless to move. Anyway she was willing that the whole world see and know—and some of it did in the next moment.

OBJECTED TO SHRILL NOTES

Cat Evidently Had Its Own Idea of Music, and the Courage of Its Convictions.

A friend tells me, writes "Cat Lover," that he was visiting at a house where there was a beautiful big Persian cat. One day he entered a room and found the whole household, to his astonishment, lustily whistling a well-known air. "Whence this tune?" he asked, and received as answer soft to voice—"Look at the cat." Glancing at this quadruped he beheld it pacing furiously to and fro with back erect and quivering tail. Its whole being suggested fury, a sort of Berserker rage. The most vociferous whistler of the party was a young lady of the house who seemed to take a special delight in making her notes loud, clear, and shrill. The cat directed all its venom against her. Eventually, it lay crouching before her in the act of springing, and would certainly have attacked her viciously had not someone intervened by thrusting a folded newspaper between the cat and the momentary object of its hate. It appeared that "The Old Hundred" produced a similar effect on the animal, but other airs failed to manifest any power to arouse hostility. Sprightly airs with soft, low notes seemed to give unfeigned pleasure. But high, shrill, long-drawn-out notes—especially when they were produced by whistling—appeared to cause it acute physical pain, which it showed in the aforementioned manner.

How Bolshevism Began.

The mystery of where the soviet system was evolved has been cleared up to the satisfaction of British Socialists by the disclosure of Russian trade delegates to London that it took its origin from a meeting held in London in 1915.

Lenine, Krassin, Bogdanoff and other "intellectuals" happened to be in London together at that time, each for his own special reason. They got together and discussed the form of government best suited to Russia after the inevitable downfall of czarism, and formulated the Bolshevik scheme based on Marxism which now prevails.

Before separating, the reformers bound themselves to work for the realization of the plan, fuller details of which were afterward worked out by correspondence and at subsequent secret conferences in other European centers.

The Sun Oven.

In some tropical regions, where coal is scarce—as in Egypt, the Punjab and the African Karoo—teakwood boxes blackened inside, fitted with glass tops and properly insulated are in common use for cooking, baking and other purposes. These sun ovens, which have the advantage of eliminating cost of fuel, afford a temperature of 240 to 275 degrees Fahrenheit in the middle of the day. Provided with a mirror for a reflector, they will run up to 290 degrees.

When you come right down to reason, what is there to "discount" tires—

THE next time a friend comes to you all excited about some wonderful tire bargain—ask him how much value he ought to get for each dollar of tire money.

It's astonishing that any car owner today should not know all the tire service he is entitled to.

Nor how to check up between the economy of par quality on one hand—and big discounts, surplus stocks, discontinued lines and retreads on the other.

For two years U. S. Tire makers have been telling the American people all about tires.

They have laid open the tire business from every angle.

They have always led the fight for better tires.

They have consistently maintained quality first standards with certain economy for the tire buyer.

They have established 92 Factory Branches all over the country. Perfecting U. S. distribution so that you get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire.

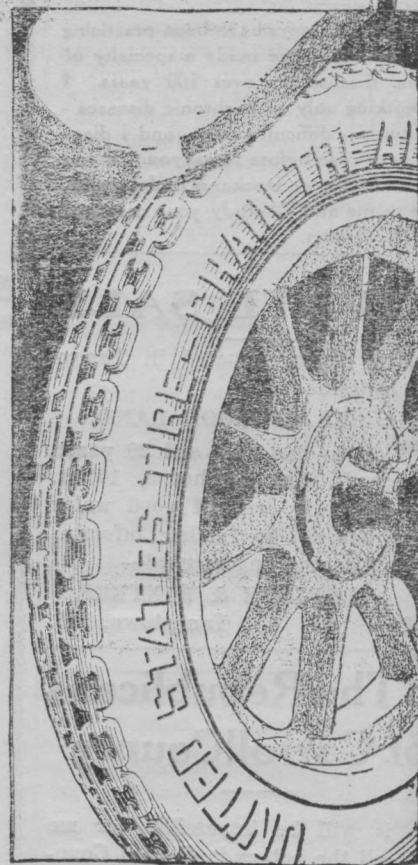

So when a man once decides on U. S. Tires he knows what he is getting in quality—service—economy.

In support of his own judgment he gets the pledged word and reputation of the largest and most successful tire concern in the world.

A sound reason for the fact that you see more U. S. Tires on more cars than ever this year.

"You get a fresh, live tire every time you buy a U. S. Tire."

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 4

FROM PHILIPPI TO ATHENS.

LESSON TEXT—Acts 16:9, 17:15.
GOLDEN TEXT—The angel of the Lord empath round about them that fear him, and delivereth them.—Psalm 34:7.

REFERENCE MATERIAL—I and II
Thess.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of Paul and Silas.
JUNIOR TOPIC—A Midnight Experience
in Philippi.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC
—Courage in the Face of Persecution.
—YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC
—Preaching with Persecutions.

I. Paul and Silas in Jail (vv. 19-26).

1. The occasion (vv. 19-24). When the demon was cast out of the maid her supernatural power was gone; therefore, the source of revenue was dried up. This so exasperated her owners that they had Paul and Silas arrested before the magistrates on a false charge. Those men ought to have rejoiced that such a blessing had come to this poor girl.
They cared more for their gain than for her welfare. This is true of the iniquitous crowding together of the poor in unsanitary quarters in our tenement districts and the neglect of precautions for the safety of employees in shops and stores. Without any chance to defend themselves they were stripped and beaten by the angry mob and then remanded to jail, and were made fast in stocks in the inner prison.

2. Their behavior in jail (v. 25).
They were praying and singing hymns to God. It seems quite natural that they should pray under such conditions, but to sing hymns under such circumstances is astonishing to all who have not come into possession of the peace of God through Christ. Even with their backs lacerated and smarting, and feet fast in stocks compelling the most painful attitude in the dungeon darkness of the inner prison, with a morrow before them filled with extreme uncertainty, their hearts went up to God in gratitude.

3. Their deliverance (v. 26). The Lord wrought deliverance by sending a great earthquake which opened the prison doors and removed the chains from all hands.

II. The Conversion of the Jailer (vv. 27-34).

The jailer's sympathy did not go out very far for the prisoners, for after they were made secure he went to sleep. The earthquake suddenly aroused him. He was about to kill himself, whereupon Paul assured him that the prisoners were all safe. This was too much for him. What he had heard of their preaching and now what he had experienced caused him to come as a humble inquirer after salvation. Paul clearly pointed out the way to be saved—"Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." The word "believe" means to yield to and fully obey.
The proof that the jailer was saved is threefold:

1. Transformation from brutality to tenderness.

2. Confession of Christ in baptism.

3. His whole household baptized.

III. The Magistrates Humbled (vv. 35-40).

The earthquake brought fear upon the magistrates. They gave leave for the prisoners to go, but now they refuse to go, claiming that their rights as Roman citizens have been violated, and demand a public vindication. Paul was willing to suffer for Christ's sake, but he used the occasion to show them that persecuting men who preach the gospel is an offense against the law of God and man.

IV. Preaching in Thessalonica (vv. 17-19).

At Thessalonica he found open hearts. He followed his usual custom of going first to the Jew (v. 1). After witnessing to the Jews he went to the Gentiles. Concerning the Christ he affirmed:

1. "It behooved Christ to suffer"
(v. 3). No plainer teaching is to be found anywhere than the suffering of Christ (Isa. 53).

2. The resurrection of Christ from the dead (v. 3).

3. The kingship of Jesus (v. 7).

The result of this preaching was that many Greeks, some Jews believed.

V. Preaching in Berea (vv. 10-15).

His method here was the same as at Thessalonica. He entered the Jewish synagogue and preached Jesus unto them. The Bereans received the gospel with glad hearts. Two striking things were said about them:

1. They received the message gladly.

2. They searched the Scriptures daily for the truthfulness of their preaching. All noble minds have (1) an openness to receive the truth; (2) a balanced hesitancy; (3) a subjection to rightful authority.

Exhortation to Holiness.

And the Lord make you to increase and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you: to the end he may establish your hearts unblamable in holiness before God, even our Father at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all his saints.—I Thessalonians 3:12, 13.

When God Appears.

When we have broken our god of tradition and ceased from our god of rhetoric, then may God fire the heart with His presence.—Emerson.

Thy Will Be Done—With My Mind
Matthew 6:7-15

Mind in Scripture signifies the understanding or the judgment, whereby we distinguish between good and evil, truth and error. According to 2 Corinthians 4:4 the mind of the un-believer is blinded by Satan. Distrust of God, and disbelief of what God has said in His Word concerning His Son, react upon the human mind with blinding power. The Jews as a nation are living examples of this.
(See 2 Cor. 3:14.) In their Old Testament, they do not see the sufferings of Messiah. It is there, and others see it, but because of prejudice, pre-conception and pride, "Their minds were blinded."

On the other hand, many Christians are blinded to the glory of Christ.
They see only the sufferings. His future glory and His coming kingdom they do not see. They even oppose and ridicule, sometimes with bitterness, those who do see it. Prejudice, preconception and pride of scholarship have blinded their minds. Let us beware of blinded minds.

"Thy will be done—with my mind"
necessitates the mind of Christ in us.
When He came into the world, He said "I come * * * to do thy will, O God" (Heb. 10:7). This involved obedience even unto death.
We must be like-minded, willing even to suffer rather than turn aside from the known will of God. According to 1 Corinthians 2:16, "we have the mind of Christ," that is, the regenerated, those endowed with the Holy Spirit, have an experimental knowledge of God's will and like-mindedness with Christ to do it. Because of weakness and infirmities the Christian often falls short in the doing of God's perfect will; nevertheless, it is to the Christian, "good, acceptable and perfect." (See Rom. 12:1). His mind inclines towards it, and his ambition is to do it.

We should pray to be filled with the knowledge of His will that we might walk worthy of the Lord, unto all pleasing (Col. 1:9-11).

The following quotations will be found suggestive as bearing on this topic: (1) "The woodman sharpens the ax, the mechanic his tool. Good work is not done by blunt instruments.
Therefore, sharpen the mind for God's work." (2) "As the soil, however rich it may be, cannot be productive without culture, so the mind without cultivation can never produce good fruit."

THE NEWS PUBLISHING CO.

BALTIMORE, MD.

For Clerk of the Circuit Court.

MR. JOSEPH B. BOYLE.

The Democratic voters of Carroll County are asked to nominate Mr. Joseph B. Boyle, of Westminster, as their candidate for Clerk of the Circuit Court at the primary election which will be held on Friday, September 9th., and judging from the expressions of public opinion which are heard on all sides there seems to be no doubt whatever but that Mr. Boyle will be selected as his party's choice for that office by a large majority.

Mr. Boyle is eminently qualified for the office to which he aspires.
He is one of the best known and foremost business men of Westminster, and his ability and integrity are unquestioned in all parts of Carroll County. He has passed his entire life here and probably is known to as many people as any man in the county. All his lifelong he has been foremost in all that tends to the improvement and betterment of the whole community, and no more public spirited citizen is to be found in Westminster, and his word in all his transactions, both public and private, has always been his bond.

In 1894, when the National Government decided to establish the Rural Free Delivery of mails, Mr. Boyle, who was then Postmaster at Westminster, was chosen by the Postoffice Department to start the work, and the early success of that great improvement to the Postal service in the country districts was justly given to the skillful work of Mr. Boyle, and the rural free delivery as it is now carried on in all parts of the United States owes its inception to the care and efficiency of the Postmaster of Westminster, who was complimented by the Postoffice Department at Washington for the manner in which he had managed what was then looked upon by large numbers of people as a doubtful experiment, but which has since proved to be one of the greatest benefits ever conferred on the people of the whole country.

Mr. Boyle has been a regular, loyal democrat all his life, and has always supported the regular nominees of his party. His father, the late Colonel Boyle was for many years the unquestioned leader of the party in Carroll county, and was long one of the best known members of that number of Democrats who came to the front at the close of the Civil War, and helped re-organize the Democratic party of Maryland and restore the franchise to a large proportion of the best citizens, whom some people were endeavoring to keep in a state of political bondage. The late United States Senator, Arthur P. Gorman frequently said that he owed his political fortune for many years to the active aid of three men, of whom Colonel Boyle was one, and that the democrats of Maryland owed a debt of gratitude to Col. Boyle which they could never repay, and that his personal obligations to the Carroll County leader were beyond compensation.

As a citizen, as a business man, as a Democrat, Mr. Boyle's record is without a flaw, and that he is deserving of any honor which his party and the people of his county may confer on him is the opinion of all those who know him, and the Democrats of Carroll will honor their party, and the voters of the county will honor themselves by electing him to the office to which he aspires.

Many may remember Miss Catherine McEneany, of Washington, who charmed us by her singing at St. Joseph's Bazaar, in May. Miss McEneany is an enthusiastic admirer of Taneytown. When given her choice between a trip to Taneytown and a birthday dance, Miss McEneany unhesitatingly chose the former. More power to you, Miss McEneany!

Rev. Dr. Seth Russell Downie has been spending the week here, taking special medical treatment, from which he expects to be permanently benefited. He is a hard worker, and has been unwell, but nevertheless found the time to help the Record out very materially during Fair week, for which we acknowledge our rather belated, but none the less sincere, thanks.

If there is ever a time in a man's life when he feels that he has been "stung," it is when he takes a vacation to rest up from the heat, but picks a time when the home weather is fine and the resort weather too cold and wet, then returns home to a flare-back of extreme heat.

David C. Nusbaum, last Saturday night, when turning his car into the Haines yard, near the square, collided with State policeman Topper on his motorcycle. The "Cop" was pretty badly shaken up, and both machines were damaged to some extent.

We have received, this week, from our long-time friend Wm. A. Goulden, of Pittsburg, a lengthy clipping from The Pittsburg Dispatch, giving a number of answers to the question, "What can be done to attract and keep young men on the farm?" We will publish the collection, next week, on our editorial page. It will be interesting—and variously estimated.

(For the Record.) Those who spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Howard LeGore and family, were Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Krotel, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Clark, Miss Agnes Bowers, Miss Loretta Bowers, Messrs. Harry and Samuel Krotel, of Baltimore; Miss Florence Ohler, Mrs. Vern Ridinger and children, Hubert and Treva, Mr. Harry Stambaugh and Mr. James Pitzer, of Frog-town.

Those who visited Geo. I. Harman and family, Sunday were: Wm. F. Kehn and wife, and Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Koltz, of Baltimore; Mr. and Mrs. L. T. Blessing, Geo. Scott and Julia Peters, of Johnsville; Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Harman and children, of Mt. Union; James I. Barrick and wife, of Emmitsburg; Mrs. Wm. R. Clabaugh and son, Harry and wife, of Good-int-Tent; Norman Harman and wife, of Detour; Frank Harman and family, of Keysville; Esther, Walter, Roland and Daisy Fleagle.

Sunday baseball is being played in some localities, not far from Taneytown. We trust that public sentiment here will develop itself so strongly against this manner of desecrating the Sabbath, that games will not be played in this community. Taneytown is supporting its home team, very generously, but we believe it will be best for the continuance of this support that both local players and local enthusiasts refrain from giving Sunday games any encouragement, even by attendance.

Taneytown Baseball Notes.

Taneytown won from Arendtsville, last Saturday, on the home ground by a score of 10 to 6. It was a game won by the locals, but the first inning with its 5 tallies was a fortunate one, as were the two home-run drives by Groff, who played first base. Aside from these features, and the good pitching by Bonsack (who had a bad fifth inning) the game was rather raggedly played. The visiting pitcher—Shoop, a left-hander—steadied after a bad start, and really pitched a very creditable game. The score was as follows:

Taneytown 5-0-0-3-0-1-1-0-x=10
Arendtsville 0-2-0-0-3-0-0-1-0=6

A Pronounced Success.

The uniform success that has attended the use of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy in the relief and cure of bowel complaints, both for children and adults, has brought it into almost universal use, so that it is practically without a rival and as everyone who has used it knows, it is without an equal.
