GARTRELL IS STILL MISSING.

Majority Opinion Seems to be that he Drowned Himself.

There are no new developments, so far, in the case of the murder, of Miss Jenkins, as no traces have been found of Marvey Gartrell—at least, none made public. Opinions vary as to whether he may have committed suicide. As he tried to shoot himself, and as his disappearance has been so complete, many believe strongly that he drowned himself.

Buckeystown residents and friends of the murdered girl are disinclined to believe that Gartrell committed suicide. Posses have been watching the river and following the subsiding of the flood waters have made careful examination of the river banks for miles, and they claim that had Gartrell drowned himself the body would have been recovered by this time.

"Daylight Saving," Again.

Personally, "daylight saving" does not interest The Record. We do not need the clock to be turned ahead an hour in order to fool us as to the right time to go to work; we can get to work earlier in the morning, if necessary, without requiring the clock to essary, without requiring the clock to perjure itself; so, if the residents of cities will feel better, work better, and find more time for play, by monkeying with the clock, let them have their silly way about it.

But, if this "daylight saving" foolishness, is extended to railroads, or in any way interferes with farmers' plans or hours for work, or with ers' plans or hours for work, or with the preferences of any other classes to stand by sun time, then we are op-posed to this specimen of "personal liberty" stuff, of which the whole country is hearing too much.

We incline to the belief that "daylight saving" is a step toward more time for no work; and that its advocates are ready to go the limit in that direction. Some day, the state may be asked to pension everybody, at about $1.00 an hour, and throw in a lot of extras in order to get them to

"Hobo-Tramp-Bum."

Almost everybody has heard of James Eads How, the "Millionaire hobo," of St. Louis; the man who is acting the part of "hobo" from choice. Nobody seems to know what he is worth but it is in the millions and Worth, but it is in the millions, and is invested so that the income goes various ways to human derelicts, and does not use a cent of his income for himself. The last issue of The Dearborn Independent tells all about

His favorite traveling occupation washing dishes, scrubbing floors, Deeling potatoes, and general kitchen Work. He has crossed the Atlantic a dozen times, and always works his way. His main idea seems to be to help the "under dog," and has established a number of "hobo" hotels, where almost anybody can secure lodging, without price, and no questions asked. But, we do not mean to Dublish the life and works of Mr. ow; only to make public the difference between a "hobo," a "tramp," and a "bum," definitions of which are given in the article refereed to.

"A hobo is one who travels in search of work, the migratory worker who must go about to find employ-Workers of that sort pick our berries, fruits, hops, and help to har-Vest the crops on the western farms. They follow the seasons around, giving their time to farms in spring, Summer and autumn, and ending up in the ice fields in winter. We could get in our crops without them, for the hobo is the boy who does that Work. The name originated from the words 'hoe boy,' plainly derived from Work on a farm.

A tramp is one who travels but does not work, and a bum is a man who stays in one place and does not Work. Between these grades there is Don't get tramps and hobos mixed. They are different in many respects, chief difference being that a hobo will work, and a tramp will not, preferring to live on what he can pick in at back doors as he makes his way through the country."

Near East Still in Need.

Numerous appeals come to us for bublicity regarding the needs of the "Near East." They are authentic, and need our response. Perhaps six months yet intervene before the stricken countries can help themselves have no information as to what Eurapean Nations are doing in the direction of help—perhaps, all they

A BOOTLEG FACTORY. Stills Found on McFadden Farm at Trevanion.

On Tuesday afternoon, a raid was made by prohibition enforcement of-ficers on the premises occupied by Aquilla J. Stottlemyer, the McFadden estate farm, in Uniontown district. The officers found a five gallon and a ten gallon still, and five gallons of grain mash. Stottlemyer was taken before U. S. Commissioner Supplee, and released for a hearing. The raid was made by agents Flinchcun and Bernan.

Very little seems to be known, locally, about the case; at least, further information is not floating around. Perhaps there may be further developments at the hearing of the case that is reported to be set for a day next week.

Farmers' Day Coming Back.

Farmers' Day is coming back. Already the wheels of preparation have been set in motion. Details of a program, which promises to be the most interesting and instructive in many years, are being worked out. Exhibits and displays this year will be directed toward helping the farmer solve his most pressing problem. They will deal with "economy in production and marketing," and around this central theme will be grouped the things that science has done and can do to help. A free lunch will be served on the grounds to all visitors. A band concert and a baseball game are being planned. There undoubtedly will be other features which no farmer will want to miss. The date has not been definitely fixed, but it now looks like Saturday, May 27. And the place, of course, is the University of Maryland, College Park.

Distribution of Game.

The Forest and Stream Club, of Westminster has been requested by State Game Warden LeCompte to look after the distribution of game in Carroll County this year and a committee composed of John L. THE TREATY NOW SEEMS ASSURED.

Opponents Likely to Lack Votes on Final Passage.

Most of the amendments to the Treaty were voted on, this week, and results indicate that when the vote comes on the treaty proper, it will pass by a safe margin. Voting was largely on party lines, most of the Democrats opposing the Treaty as a come-back against the Republicans for defeating the League of Nations proposition of the Wilson adminis-

Crop Values in Maryland.

Just what has happened to the buying power of the Maryland farmer in the past two years is strikingly shown in figures on the principal crops grown in the State, recently compiled by F. W. Oldenburg, specialist in agronomy for the University of Maryland, Extension Service, from statistics gathered by the United States Bureau of Markets and Crop Estimates.

In 1919 the agricultural crops grown in the State, including practically all the important grain, forage, vegetable and fruit products, returned to the farmers more than $110,000,000. In 1920 falling prices had reduced this figure to slightly more than $90,000,000. In 1921 unfavorable weather conditions, affecting chiefly the fruit crops, and additional price declines reduced the total farm value of these crops to approximately $48,000,000, a decline of almost 57 per-cent from the high figure of 1919.

The difference between the 1919 and 1921 values, Mr. Oldenburg points out, is more than $62,000,000, which would represent a reduction of more than $1,200 in the annual in-come of each farm if distributed equally over the 48,000 farms of the State. This reduction in values, according to Mr. Oldenburg, applies only to the leading agricultural crops and does not take into consideration reductions which have taken place in the values of livestock and livestock

"It is interesting to note," says Mr. Oldenburg, "that according to the census figures Maryland farm-ers spent for labor, fertilizer and feed in 1919 $32,000,000 which is about two-thirds of the 1921 value of the leading crops."

A Very Sad Story.

His cries reached his father, who ran to his assistance, and failing to notice a barbdollar pair of pants. took advantage of the gap in the fence and got into the cornfield and killed herself eating corn.

Hearing the racket, the mother ran, upsetting a four-gallon churn of rich cream into a basket of kittens, drowning the whole litter. In her hurry she dropped and broke, past all alone, crawled through the spilled cream and into the parlor, ruining a eleven setting hens, and the calves got out and chewed the tails off four new shirts. All to save $1.50.

Free Seeds-Out, but Back.

Following the course of preceding years, the House Committee on Agriculture cut out of the appropriation bill $360,000 for "free seeds" next year, but the House itself voted the sum back again, with a whoop. An amendment to reduce the sum to $240,000 was also voted down. From our best infomation on the subject. members of Congress want "free seeds" more strongly than do those who get them for planting.

PICTURES OF FLORIDA. Maj. A. M. Hall Writes a Very Entertaining Letter.

A personal letter to the Editor of the Record from Maj. A. M. Hall, of Apopka, Fla., formerly of Sykesville, contains so many interesting paragraphs, aside from the purely personal ones, that we take the liberty of reproducing them. His letter draws an attractive winter picture, by comparison with our experience in Ma-

"We have had a delightful winter here. The coldest days the thermometer dropped only to 40° and we have occasionally had fires in the fireplace to take the chill off the house. There has been no day, except when it rained steadily, when you could not see butterflies flitting about. and flowers in bloom. We are having about 80° now, but a delightful breeze always comes along to temper the rays of the Sun. Folks who have been here for years tell me the Summers are more delightful than the winters. You did not come far enough South when you visited Florida."

"We are about in the centre of the state, in Orange county. Orlando, the best of Florida's smaller cities, is our county seat, and will be the capital some day. It is a beautiful city with twelve lakes within the corporation limits, with attractive parks around some of them. I have not seen a mosquito since I have been here. There is a little court heavener that a little court have been here. is a little gnat, however, that sings in your ears and annoys, though he does not bite."

"I have a man's Bible class, and I preach once a month in the M. E. Church South, on the third Sunday. My son has a beautiful little home here, fitted with every comfort. It is on the shore of a beautiful lake as round as a dollar and about a mile in circumference. It is just over the town limits, so we put in our own light and water system. The lake is deen and cool and abounds in trout, deep and cool and abounds in trout, on it, is as yet problematic and is fed by springs that come up through the sand at the bottom. The water is pure and soft.

Apopka is quite an enterprising littown, and just now is spending $50,000 for new brick pavements and larger water mains. This means a good deal when you remember that the brick are laid right in the sand, and the water mains not more than 15 inches beneath the surface. Both the seaboard and the Coast line railroads touch here, and fine orange groves abound. Just now the trees are in blossom and as you ride along the highway you feel that you are sur-rounded by a multitude of June brides, all bedecked in fragrant blossoms. We are twelve miles from Orlando, and motor in each week; there is a brick road the whole way.

A woman who was too economical day in the year. Such a vacation to subscribe for her home paper, sent will brace you up. Think of it. I have not worn an overcoat this winter. Our fuel cost us just $2.00 for the entire winter, and we have wood bees and in ten minutes looked like enough piled in our back yard to last ten years or more. We will give you the best time we know, if you will come along. Will feed you on citrous ed-wire fence, ran into it, breaking fruits, and take you out to the swamp it down, cutting a handful of flesh and let you kill a deer, a bear, or from his anatomy and ruining a five- panther, whichever you like. Or, of abutting property, being designed you can go out the back door and get know one covey that roosts under a front porch."

During the excitement the eldest daughter ran away each of the Cabinet officers on the with the hired man, the dog broke up question of a general governmental reorganization, has included the suggestion that the Enforcement Bureau be placed under the authority of the Attorney-General.

Also it is now known that the Attorney-General is ready to recommend on his part, that the bureau be placed under the immediate supervision of an assistant attorney-general, who will supersede Prohibition Commissioner Roy A. Haynes. It can be added that it will be the purpose of the present Attorney-General, if the enforcement unit is legislated within the jurisdiction, to divorce enforcement from the Anti-Saloon League. It is known to be Mr. Daugherty's idea that this important business of the Government should be handled strictly by sworn officials of the Government and that such policies as are adopted should not be made subject to the approval of any political or reform organization.—Washington Cor. Miners and Operators Meet.

The anthracite coal miners and operators commenced their conference, on Wednesday. The miners want an increase of 20 per-cent over their present pay, while the employees want a reduction, to take the place of the two-year agreement that expires March 31. In case a satisfactory agreement is not reached, the miners promise a strike on April 1, until one is reached. It is held by many that the 20 per-cent. increase is a "bluff," and is asked in order to make a compromise on the present scale.

SENATE PASSES THE REFERENDUM.

Getting Well Toward the Bottom of the Pile of Bills.

The Prohibition enforcement bill was brought before the Senate, late Tuesday afternoon, with its fate in doubt, so far as the referendum amendment was concerned. The wet forces, ever since the passage of the bill by the House without the referendum rider, have been directing all their efforts toward the Senate, which all along has been admittedly close. The bill came to the Senate with an unfavorable report by the Committee having it in charge, but a motion to substitute the bill for the report was carried by viva voce vote.

Senator Tydings then offered the referendum amendment, and debate on the whole proposition commenced; Senator Robb leading for the bill, and Senator Tydings in opposition. At 11:30 P. M., Senator Towers in favor of the bill, presented a motion to recess until 12 o'clock, Wednesday, the vote on the motion being 12 for, and 14 against, with one Senator absent.

On the assembling of the Senate, on Wednesday afternoon, it was evident that the bill without the "referendum" was doomed; and while there was some continuation of debate, it was less than half-hearted, and the final vote was 23 to 4 for the referendum amendment, the only voters in the negative being Jones, of Mont-gomery; Robins, of Somerset; Robb, of Allegany, and Russell, of Kent. The "wets" are jubilant, of course,

The law, indorsed by the state board of forestry association, was passed eight years ago to prevent cutting or trimming of roadside trees by owners to enable the state and towns and quail, or squirrel, or rabbit. Quail cities in the state to beautify roads run on the streets of the town, and I and streets. Mr. Wolfinger's position was that the property owners were better qualified than the state forester to determine the need and wisdom of cutting and trimming.

EDITORIAL COMMENDED.

Steadily Declining Demand for Ardent Spirits Noted.

I feel constrained to indite at least a few words to testify my hearty appreciation and entire satisfaction with and concurrence in your very sensible editorial publication last week on "Twenty-five Years from now—and Prohibition." In the expressive language of "Josh. Billings," the quaint humorist of a generation ago, "them's my sentiments," indeed.

Too, the natural tendency of human

Too, the natural tendency of human kind in-general to contrariness; to let the imagination seemingly invest the inclination and taste for forbidden fruit with a special flavor and relish; the ever-increasing scarcity of the supply and consequently growing difficulty of getting the product, at all; all contribute to the widely prevalent yet steadily declining demand for ardent spirits as a beverage on the part of the better class of people and largely explains the insistently extensive consumption until now so

Particularly with the inconsiderate or desperate drink-addicts in the lower grades of humanity, habitually predisposing anyhow, such impressions and feelings have latterly but intensified as the certainty of continued chance for indulgence becontinued chance for indulgence becomes less and less, the very prospect a dissolving hope while the liquid-output itself becomes scarcer or more and more alike beyond reach by-purchase, safeguarded from theft, even uninviting because taste-repugnant as well as unrefreshing or nonstimulating and ever detariorating in quallating and ever deteriorating in quality so as to be most intensely poison-ous and crazing or bodily and men-tally downright suicidal for the par-

I quote another and highly interesting aspect of the subject, as quite recently treated on by Timothy Sullivan, the regular New York city correspondent of The Dispatch of this city, apropos to the current visit to this country of, and caustic criticism gratuitously made, by the wife of Great Britain's late Prime Minister

Aisquith:
"Poor Margot! When she came to this country a few weeks ago she was "fully prepared to believe in prohibition." She expected to find that it would prove a great boon to the poor, "that the poor woman would receive her husband's wages every Saturday night instead of their being spent on

But a few weeks have disillusioned her, she says. Naturally one asks why, and to his surprise is told that it is because the "drinking by your" young men and maidens is shocking."

did not. "I did not see any young women intoxicated in Chicago or anywhere else in this country, but I was told of it on every side. Margot did not go among the poor for whose concern she expressed herself so enthusiastically when she arrived here. If she had done so, she would have found a very different opinion of prohibition from that prevailing among the light-headed, self-indulgent class which thinks it "smart" to drink and break the law.

I should like to make a wager with Margot that if she takes a typical working-class residential section in this city and a similar section in London, she will find that a far greater proportion of the week's wages goes home here. I will also wager that she finds fewer gin-sodden mothers and defective babies among New York's poor."

Some Ambridge people may have been too busy a few weeks ago to make New Year resolutions, or they might not have had time to frame a set of good resolutions to guide them through this year. Hard times in England are present with unparalleded force. The situation in this country is nothing to compare with the one over there. Thousands and thousands are unemployed, business is at a stand-still, and the Nation is spending for pensions and official disbursements, more than its income, not counting interest or principal on debts.

The most pitiful stories are still being circulated as to the needs of the Near East. We ought to respond to them, even though we are very, very tired of hearing them. There is hardly a chance that these stories are over-colored; their source is reliable, even if somewhat a business nowadays-a business that should be closed up in this country as soon as the situation warrants. America should not be an "easy mark" for the world's unfortunate classes, by the dereliction of foreign governments.

The People are Misrepresented.

A writer in "The Dearborn Independent" writes forcefully on the "Yellows of American Journalism," and insists that the argument of the Editors, that the majority of readers want salacious stuff about "broken homes" and scandal, is all wrong; and that they only think the people want that sort of stuff, because they (the editors) want it.

That is our position, exactly. The city papers are catering to diseased mental and moral appetites, and are fooled because a comparatively few hungry derelicts want "bootleg liquor" and "bootleg reading mat-sive equipments and news dispensing franchises, and opportunities for publishing clean papers are hard to find. There is capital enough, brains enough and patronage enough; but, the openings are pre-empted, and those holding the monopoly know it.

This is demonstrated effectually in the fact that country weeklies are as a rule, clean, and must represent their dollars a weekly newspaper can be established and operated; the field is open to competition, and public sentiment shows the kind of news and editorial opinions to offer each week.

There is no foundation to the philsensational, off-color, city papers. They take them, and read them, from necessity, and not from choice. There are hundreds of thousands of city readers in the same boat, showing their displeasure with the moral tone of city papers, but stopping subscriptions to them, merely means cutting one's self out of reading the portion of decent news that is given.

We venture to say that if these illscented papers would go to the risk of asking a referendum vote from standards they most desire, they for every honest man and endangers would get a great deal of information at variance with their own ideas of what the most of readers want.

Fight for Equl Rights.

Equal Rights, or "Woman's Rights" as interpreted by the class known as "militant suffragists," is becoming almost a nauseating movement. There are a great many excellent women advocating their "rights," but it seems to be becoming apparent that these women are overwhelmed by the radicals, and that the rights of women, as advocated and made possible by the best men of the country, is rapidly showing itself to be something that neither the oest women, nor best men stand for.

The fact is, the rabid suffragists appear to be fast overdoing the priv--if the past few years were to be ute books.

There are women, and women. Some of them are strong for moral incendiary, no letup in the pursuit issues, and public and private right- of the firebug. He is every man's eousness, and some are not; and it enemy, and against him every proseems but truth to say that so far, tective engine of society should be the majority of them who have been used .- N. Y. Herald. elected to public office, and given the opportunity to elevate public morals, have not been conspicuously active in that direction, to the best of our observation.

Two women in the New Jersey House, last week, voted against ratification of the Eighteenth amendment, defeating the bill by one vote. That the bill was passed the next day, on a reconsideration, does not change the fact. Miss Risteau, the only female in the Maryland House, voted against Prohibition enforcement, and the anti-race track gambling bills; and like votes on like questions could be enumerated from other states. They voted, of course, according to their views, and "rights."

The Shylockian efforts made for the extension-of women's privileges, are not elevating in the calm public mind the status of women as a class and as full citizens. There is much in the extensive "drive" in this direction that nauseates, and we wonder whether these women leaders are of the same material, mentally and morally, as the "mothers" who are remembered for their goodness, and steadfastness against evil?

On the whole, this equal rights novement begins to look very much like an occasion for "repentance at leisure." The Sykesville Herald, last week, concluded an editorial on the subject, with this paragraph;

"Ladies:—We cheerfully concede your right to the very best that can ossibly be provided in any sphere which you touch, or which touches you. We favor any measure which will guarantee you greater personal or proper security. We will support any movement which will make your burdens lighter, or enlarge your spheres of usefulness. But we are old-fashioned enough to believe that the greatest contribution women can make to the welfare of the race must ome through the channels of motherhood. And just how these changes you propose will secure for our grand-children better mothers than we, and our children, have had, is not clear to We are sure your purpose is sincere, but we fear the road you have chosen leads away from the goal."

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneu-monia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough The great trouble is, the big pa

Firebugs.

In the last twelve months there has been a suspicious increase in the number of fires in New York City. The authorities bluntly assert that some of them were started deliberreaders. For a few thousands of ately to conceal the removal of goods bought on credit and not paid for, and to collect insurance money. Arson has become so menacing that the Board of Fire Underwriters, representing the great fire insurance companies, has established a fund of osophy that country readers want $100,000 to use in pursuing and prosecuting firebugs.

The Fire Underwriters' detectives will co-operate with the police and the Fire Prevention Bureau. They should have the voluntary assistance of real estate owners, their employees and all tenants, whether they occupy rented quarters for business or for residences.

Incendiarism is not a crime against rich insurance corporations or against pressing creditors. It is a crime against the public, and every all their readers, as to the moral firebug enhances the cost of living the homes and lives of every person in the city.

A fire set to bilk a creditor raises the cost of insurance in all quarters of the town. The cost of insurance goes into rent. In a city of renters, which New York is, so far as the homes of its inhabitants are concerned, an incendary fire in a fur shop means higher rents all over train of foul blood-corroding disease.

But this is not the worst of it. Every fire in a congested urban com- cleanliness. Prevention is better than munity puts in peril the lives of scores, hundreds, thousands of individuals. A little blaze in a great loft building may do inconsequential damage, but, doing it, that fire may start a panic costing many precious lives. A swindler burning up his Please do not forget much of your stock in a shop adjoining a motion trouble may lie in that "dish rag," picture theater may start a panic in and at your back kitchen door. Reileges gained, and in the light of the which hundreds of men, women and present we doubt very much whether children may be killed. A torch ap-gone over again-the Nineteenth at midnight may destroy a tenement amendment would now be on the stat- house, and young and old, hale and infirm, may be suffocated.

There should be no lenity for the

_____ THAT DISH RAG.

Whew! "Jess' smell his breath." It does not smell delicious, and if you will take the trouble to examine it under a microscope, you will find, that the one I am telling you about, looks even worse than it smells.

Why? Because it is the common practice of many otherwise, clean, common-sense housewives, washing the greasy, fishy, mixed dishes, to squeeze the dish cloth into a tight ball, grease and all, and put it into one corner of the sink, or hide it behind a post in a dark place, if there is one convenient.

Result: Microbes. Microbes big and microbes small; microbes fat and microbes lean; microbes gaunt and hungry for human blood; microbes by the million. Why, if all the microbes in that one dish rag, were converted into pounds, they would pay off the National war debt.

But, why am I telling you this story about a dish rag? Well, I will tell you. One day in the course of my business I had occasion to go to the back door, of a very well-kept home; mother and daughter were about to wash the dinner dishes

The mother said: "Mary get me the "dish rag," My attention was attracted, and my stomach distracted, by a most peculiarly offensive smell, that penetrated to the very bottom of my stomach. To my surprise and horror, I found it was coming from the "dish rag.

I noticed the mother washed the greasy, fishy dishes with it, then squeezed it up into a ball, grease and all, and put it in a corner of the sink, in the darkest place, there to breed more bacteria, and become more foul smelling till the next dish washing.

Breed? Well, yes, they are far more prolific, than health germs in the very best soil, for the whole course of nature is toward corruption; hence, Godlikeness is the opposite of filth and corruption. You may not know it, but a messy ill-kept dish cloth s a menace to the health, not only of the inmates of that home, but to the health of the community. There is disease and death lurking within its ill-smelling folds.

I am not just now prepared state how many, and just what kind of germs are bred in such dish rags; but I am prenared to say, there are enough so-called bacteria—whatever that means. as I do not find them defined in Webster—to poison, and kill a whole community.

(Our WINSTON (premium) Dictionary says; Bacteria are vegetable organisms which can be seen only under the microscope; some cause decay; some cause fermentation, and many cause disease".—Ed. Record).

These death dealing germs get into the food, then into the stomach, pass into the blood and apparently remain quiet until the pathological soil is sufficiently corrupt to breed them; then we have a case of fever, an epidemic of typhoid, etc. It is true we live and thrive on germs, but disease germs are not masticated and cannot be digested, they are wiley little imps from the pit of destruction.

Now add to the germs from the dish rag, the germ laden stench, carrying millions of foul disease germs, germinated by the hot sun, under the kitchen window, or just by the kitchen door, where you throw your dish water, slops, and refuse; to this add the filthy, poisoned germ laden air wafted into the house, from the open, out door, uncovered cess pool, too often standing near the kitchen door, read Deut. 23.

The odor may not be even pungeant enough to be detected by the foul smell, but just the same it is carrying death and destruction, for you breathe it into your lungs, and swallow it in your saliva. Remember "the curse causeless does not come." Sickness and disease are the direct effects of a cause, and most of the causes are preventable, with a little infrequently hid in that dish rag, or lies just outside your kitchen door.

In these days of advanced Scientific knowledge we hear much about "disinfectants." No doubt they have their place. But is it not just possible to "miss the mark," and kill the health germs with the disease germs? Every farmer knows, that it is much easier to kill the good plants than it is to destroy the weeds and thistles. These pesky little evasive disease creating germs, for most part, elude the Scientific grasp, such as cancer which according to the health reports is killing off 1 in every 13 in Canada, and 1 in every 10 in the United States, and rapidly on the increase. The germ may be found in swine's flesh and the other forbidden meats of Lev. 11, and the ground prepared by the use of tobacco, alcoholics, and the denatured goods which create

Nature's disinfectants are sunshine, pure air, fresh water, and cure. Until we stop these disease germ propagating habits and boil and sundry our dish cloths, fevers, plagues and pestilences will ride upon the wind, to curse the rich as well as the poor, for death and destruction do not respect person or position.

CAT'S SKIN AS PAIN KILLER

Sufferers From Rheumatism May Find There Is Something in Rather Novel "Remedy."

There are more curious cures for rheumatism than any other disease. Bee sting cure has, of course, long been known, and it certainly seems to do good in some cases. Other people wear necklaces of beads-amber or ordinary blue glass—to ward off attacks. The belief that a silver ring with a piece of copper let into the side will cure rheumatism is also very widespread. It is, at any rate, less inconvenient than the Cornish cure, which necessitates crawling under a bramble that has formed a second root in the ground, or drinking water in which a "thunder-stone" has been boiled.

Finally, there is the wearing of a cat's skin, a custom introduced by Belgian refugees during the World war. There would seem to be a sound reason underlying this particular belief.

Stimulate the circulation, and you do something toward curing rheumatism. So if you wear a rough, warm substance like a cat's skin next your body, you reduce your chances of catching rheumatism.

NOTHING STINGY ABOUT HIM

Generous Man Dead Willing to Let Neighbor Have Anything he Would Pay For.

"Don't tell me we are not a generous people," said the corner-seat passenger on the early car. "I hear so many people complaining how stingy folks are that it's refreshing to see somebody that's got something to give away."

"Well, what for instance?" grunted his seatmate. "Somebody been offering you good advice, or has he only been wishing he could divide his cold in the head with you?'

"Neither one," said the other, "but I've got a big-hearted neighbor who was talking across the fence with me the other day. He had sent for a catalogue of some hardware-clothing concern, and he let me look it all over."

"That was generous," agreed the other. "That was the next thing to giving you something, I'll say, letting you read a fresh new book."

"Yes, but he did better than that," resumed the first. "He not only let me look the book over all I wanted to, but he said, 'You can send and get anything you want in it; I don't expect to buy it all."-Los Angeles Times.

Appeal of Music to the Human Mind. Music, like literature, appeals to the human being as a whole. Whatever the range covered by literature in the appeal to human nature, precisely the same range is covered in a different medium, but not less surely, by music.

To make music take its proper place, would therefore be to give it an equally important place in the public school curriculum with literature. Beethoven, for example, would be placed side by side with Shakespeare as a subject of study, because Beetheven is exactly of the same importance and on the same level as Shakespeare, as a storehouse of mental wealth and a subject of intellectual training. Like Shakespeare, Milton, Wordsworth and Coleridge, the great composers like Beethoven, Bach and Mendelssohn strengthen the reasoning powers, the imaginative faculties and higher nature generally.

Spot Forever Famous.

Motorbuses, charabancs, and thousands of motorcars pass by Box bill and the pretty little hotel which nestles under its foot at Burford bridge without knowing that in the beautiful old garden at the back of the house Nelson took leave of his beloved "Emma" -the Lady Hamilton, whom Romney painted over 60 times-before he took coach to Portsmouth and thence sailed on that cruise which ended at Tra-

In that very same garden another event happened which men do not take as much account of, but which may, nevertheless, count for more in the true evolution of the race.

John Keats wrote the greater part of "Endymion" as he walked those paths, listening to the birds and looking upon the beautiful landscape, and coined there that immortal phrase: "A thing of beauty is a joy forever."-London Times.

Rosin Beds Now Mined.

Many articles in daily use came originally from the ground, but few realize that "mining" rosin has been a thriving industry in the United States for many years despite the fact that rosin is the product of the sap of certain

Half a century ago rosin was so cheap that it did not pay to put it in barrels and send it to market. The barrels were worth more than the rosin. Turpentine, however, brought a good price and came from the same sap which yielded rosin as a byproduct. In consequence manufacturers concentrated on the turpentine and allowed the molten rosin to run into pits, where it hardened and was covered with earth to get it out of the

By the number who take part in the discussions, and also by the large attendance at our meetings, it is readily seen we have developed at least two good habits. We now earned to obtain a seal. This is a sign that ours is a working society. As conditions are unfavorable for the organization of an intermediate society in our church, it was decided at an executive meeting to allow dhildren as young as ten years to join the C. E. Society. A number are eager to join and they will be gladly welcomed. C. E. Society this Sunday evening, at 7:30. Leader, Miss Vallie Kiser. Everyone welcome Kiser. Everyone welcome.

He left his office early the next afternoon with the intention of starting the job. Putting on a pair of overalls he went out into the garden.

An hour or so later he came into the dining room and flung himself down into a chair in disgust.

"The new saw I bought isn't worth a nickel!" he stormed. "Why the thing wouldn't cut butter!"

His small son, George, looked up in surprise.

Cupid—Piano Tuner

~~~~~~~~

By FREDERICK HART

A young man clad in a dingy but serviceable suit stood outside a rundown-looking lodging house and contemplated it with disfavor. At the same time he consulted a card which he held in his hand.

"It's the address all right," he muttered. "And I suppose the lady lives somewhere between the roof and the cellar. Oh, well-I started this and I suppose I'll have to finish it!" With which words he mounted the porch and rang the bell.

A suspicious-looking landlady answered after an interval and demanded to know his business. The young man presented a card which read:

UPSON & CO. Planos and Musical Instruments. Without comment on the invidious distinction drawn on the card the landlady requested his business.

"One of your lodgers has a piano of ours and I've come to tune it." "Oh!" The landlady seemed far from satisfied but could offer no ob-"That's Miss Carruthers. Fourth floor front. Go right up."

The young man entered and mounted the stairs, which creaked. He arrived at the fourth floor front and paused.

"James Barton," he said, addressing himself, "this isn't what you bargained for when you started out. However, if old maids' pianos need tuning you must do the dirty work. Heigh-ho!" And he knocked on the door.

There was no answer. He knocked louder. Silence replied. Unwilling to think that his climb had been for nothing, he deliberately tried the door. It opened at his touch, somewhat to his surprise, and he stepped in. And what he saw sent him swiftly to the middle of the shabby little room.

On the floor, sprawled in a disorderly heap, lay a girl. She was lying on her face; masses of chestnut hair, goosened by her fall, spread themselves about her head; her arms, limp and disjointed looking, were outstretched at queer angles. James Barton did not hesitate; in a moment he had lifted the girl's limp body and carried her to the bed which stood in one corner.

The movement seemed to rouse her. As he laid her down she stirred, came to herself, and with a quick blush tried to sit up. The effort was too much for her, and she sank back weakly. Barton held up an authoritative hand.

"What's the matter? Don't movejust tell me. Is there anything I can do?"

"I-I'm so hungry!" The words seemed to be wrenched out against her will, but they conveyed a message that the young man was not slow to understand. He dashed down the stair, passing the amazed landlady in the hall, and returned in a surprisingly short time laden with bundles. The landlady seemed, on his return, about to interfere. James Barton merely charged at her in such a ferocious way that she shrank back in fear; in another moment he was up the stairs and in the girl's room.

She had arranged her hair when he was gone, and the sight of the food he had brought restored her. She sat up and ate-sparingly, under his directions-and soon seemed to want to talk, her hunger satisfied for the mo-

"I've lived here for a month," she said in answer to his question, "and I gave piano lessons. And nobody seemed to want to learn. And I had one pupil, and she would do things wrong, and one day I scolded her and she stopped the lessons. And that's all, I guess, except-how did you come

"Great Scott! I never asked for the name. The landlady said 'Miss Carruthers, fourth floor front,' and I came on up.'

"Mrs. Suilivan lives on the ground floor," replied the girl. "She has a piano, too. You have made a mistake, haven't you? But-I'm glad you

"So am I," replied James Barton, promptly. "And now the question.

But what the question was they did not discover just then, for the door swung authoritatively open and on the threshhold appeared a police officer, followed by the landlady.

"What's goin' on here?" inquired the officer loudly. "This lady here (indicating the landlady) said there was suspicious doin's up here. Who are you, young feller?"

James Barton reached into his inside pocket and produced a card, which he handed to the officer. The latter read it, grinned and to the landlady's amazement said, "Well, that's all right. Next time you come runnin' for a cop you better use your head a little more an' your feet a little less. This young man's all right." And before the indignant landlady could reply he was gone.

The girl turned to James Barton. "Who are you?" she asked. "You're not an ordinary piano tuner. Why did the policeman say you were all

"Well, I'll own up," said James Barton. "My name's James Barton, and my father is Edward Barton. He just about owns the city, I guess, but he's a nice man in spite of that. I'm a piano tuner because I bet father that I could earn my own living and that was the only thing I knew anything about. Upson & Co. don't know who I am and neither does anybody else, for that matter, unless it's you. Can yoù keep a secret?"

"Of course I can," replied the girl. "And now I'll tell you my family history. My name's Edith Carruthers, and I haven't any father any more, and I bet myself that I could earn my own living-and it looks as though I'd lost. And that's all."

Her eyes were filled with tears, but her voice was brave. James Barton wanted to take her in his arms then and there and comfort her, but he reflected that it would hardly be the thing to do on such short acquaintance. He went back to the theme of the conversation where it had been interrupted by the entrance of the landlady and the policeman.

The question is," he repeated, "what are we going to do about it? You can't get rid of me easily, for I stick to what I like. And now when am I going to see you again?"

"Why--" she began, but he interrupted.

"You're going to see me tomorrow evening, and the evening after that, and the evening after that, if you'll let me-and ever so many times after

And subsequent events proved that James Barton, whatever might be his faults as a piano tuner, was an accurate prophet.

The youth had friends and the facts in the case were taken up to the commanding officer, who found extenuating circumstances and pardoned the Kentuckian. This act displeased the captain of the company in which the youth was enrolled, and he decided to throw a wholesome scare into the young soldier.

So he stood him up before a file of his comrades and six bulletless muskets banged as one, and the young man fell dead-killed by malignant anticipation as the narrator of the story calls it.

NO DEFINITE RULE FOR FEED

When Hens Are Laying Heavily They Should Consume Much Larger Amount of Mash.

Feed according to the appetite of the irds; no definite rule can be given. Feed scantily of grain in the morning and give all the grain they will eat in the afternoon in time to find it before dark. There should be no grain in the litter at noon; when found, it indicates feeding too much in the morn-

In general, feed by weight two-thirds part of grain to two parts of mash. When the birds are laying heavily they should consume a larger amount of

A green range of alfalfa, clover, or grass furnishes the ideal condition. When these are not available it is necessary to give the birds some kind of succulent food. Mangel beets, cabbage, sprouted oats or green clover are usually considered the best green feeds. If these are not obtainable, apples and potatoes make a valuable addition to the ration. Feed at noon in such amounts as the birds will clean up before night.

Hard, sharp grit is necessary for grinding feed; oyster shell to supply lime for egg shells. Neither will replace the other. .

A gander may be mated with from one to four geese, but pair or trio matings usually give the better results. From four to twenty-five geese may be kept on an acre. Under most conditions ten is a fair average. Free range on grass or stubble is advisable, and many persons in the South keep them to kill weeds in the cotton fields.

Females usually are kept until they are eight to ten years old, or as long as they lay well, but ganders seldom are kept after they are six or seven years old. Yearling ganders of the domestic breed often are used for breeding, but both sexes usually are best for breeding when from three to five years old.

SHARKS TAKEN OFF NEW YORK

Their Capture Said to Have Been a Regular Thing Prior to and During Year 1815.

A shark nowadays even on the most exposed beaches of New York and the metropolitan area is a rarity and a curiosity, but there was a time when these fish used to be caught off Catharine slip, says the New York Sun. This was about 1815, when the fishing smacks and fish cars used to unload and load off this wharf in the East river and the dead fish thrown out into the water used to attract the sharks. An old man, Sam Way, a porter in the old Catharine market, earned a reputation as a master shark catcher. "Shark around the slip," was the cry that was raised when a shark was sighted off the pier and then Sam would drop his broom and put out his chain hook and soon would have the giant fish struggling on the dock. He is said to have hauled in as many as seven in one day, some of them fourteen feet long. Devoe, the historian, tells an incident which is passed on herewith without confirmation: "One day Sam hooked a big one and he climbed into a skiff which lay tied to the end of the slip; the shark took to pulling and broke loose the skiff with Sam in, and away he went down the river at race-horse speed, nearly as far as Red Hook before he tired out, or Sam could hold him up. He, however, mastered him and brought him back, and Sam after that concluded not to be run away with again. So he stuck to the raft or dock when he fished for 'shark' thereafter.'

A young man about town walked down Bond street in London recently, and the sight so shocked the sensitive British public that the London Daily Chronicle saw fit to run the item as a news item.

LESSON FOR MARCH 19

THE DOWNFALL OF ISRAEL

LESSON TEXT-II Kings 17:1-18. GOLDEN TEXT-II Kings III-18.
GOLDEN TEXT-Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people.—Prov. 14:34.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Hosea 7;

Amos 2:6-16.
PRIMARY TOPIC—What Came of Wrong Doing.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Israel's Punishment INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC

-Results of Disobedience to God.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC

-How National Sins Are Punished.

1. Israel Taken Into Captivity (vv. 1-6).

This was the fulfillment of that which Amos had predicted in the days of Jeroboam II, at a time when the nation was at the height of its prosperity. The northern kingdom was ruled by 19 kings, all of whom were wicked. Their wickedness was not because of lack of information or opportunity, but in spite of it. God if he would be loyal to Him. Jeroboam departed from God and the apostasy thus begun continued downward to the end. In the reign of Hoshea, the last king, the king of Assyria came and besieged Samaria and carried the children of Israel captive to Assyria, from which they never returned.

II. The Sins Which Caused Their Dcom (vv. 7-18).

1. Conformed to the ways of the heathen (vv. 7-9). God had commanded them not to follow in the ways of the heathen, but these Israelites, instead of maintaining lives of separation, secretly did that which was displeasing to God. Secret sins just as surely as open sins bring ruin, for all things are naked and open to Him with whom we have to do. One may maintain his reputation before men while practicing sins, but ruin will sooner or later overtake him. Even though God had cast out the heathen for practicing these sins, the Israelites followed in their ways. God demands separation (II Cor. 6:17).

2. Served idols (vv. 10-12). They not only compromised by "walking in the statutes of the heathen," but worshiped hand. their gods. It was not a long step from following in the statutes of the heathen to worshiping their gods. Before they worshiped idols they cast off the true God. Idolatry came in because the race did not wish to retain God in its affection (Rom. 1:21-People today are worshiping idols because they have first cast off the authority of the living God. Man is a worshipful being. When he ceases to worship the true God, he worships other gods. Neutral ground is impossible. 3. They were rebellious (vv. 13-15). God by his prophet had said Turn ye from your evil ways and keep my commandments," but they stubbornly refused His testimony, even rejected His statutes. God, in love, tried to save them. He sent some of the noblest and best prophets who ever spoke to man to persuade them to turn from their sins, such as Elijah and Elisha, but they hardened their necks and plunged deeper into wickedness.

4. Caused their sons and daughters to pass through the fire (v. 17). This was the dreadful Moloch worship-the most cruel rite of heathen worship. It was done by kindling a fire in a hollow metal image until its arms were red hot and placing live children therein to be burned to death.

5. Resorted to magical practices (v. 17). When faith in the true God wanes, men always turn to the magical arts. In this way they sold themselves to evil in the sight of the Lord to provoke Him to anger.

III. Judgment Falls (v. 18). At this stage of the drama the curtain falls. God could not be inactive

1. God was very angry. God's anger is not raving fury, but the revulsion of His holy nature against sin. Sin cannot exist in His presence. His wrath must strike. Though He waits long, the debt must be paid and always with compound interest. There is only one way to escape God's wrath; that is, to turn from sin. 2. Removed them out of His sight. The land of Palestine is regarded as the land of God's sight; that is, the place of His manifested presence. Their national identity was blotted out forever. These people are still scattered among the nations, and as a separate nation doubtless they will never return to their land. The judgment was severe, but not more so than the sins merited. God had waited long. The despising of His grace must eventually work ruin. What judgment must fall upon the people today who reject His grace and mercy!

Morch 19 What Does Following Christ Mean? Matthew 16:21-26 John 10:27-30

The pathway of Christ was the pathway of the cross. To follow Christ means to go in the same pathway. This applies only to real Christians, truly regenerated people. Following Christ is not the method of God's salvation for sinners, but it is His method for those who are in the way of salvation, those who through faith know experimentally the power of God in delivering them from the pollution, the penalty and power of

In verse 21 we see the necessity of the cross, for "He must go to Jerusalem and suffer," the cost involved is seen in the words "and be killed." The glorious outcome is indicated in the meaning words, "Be raised again the third day." Verses 22 and 23 break the continuity of the theme which is resumed in verse 24. The words of Peter show us the attitude of the flesh towards the cross. Self shrinks back saying, "Not this," for promised the first king His blessing | the cross means rejection an death. Self refuses to recognize the rejected Saviour. It will rally to a great leader. It will hail a new teacher. It will eulogize the social reformer, but the crucified man as the only hope of a lost world; self unenlightened by grace will not receive. Nevertheless, when our Lord resumes His teaching in verse 24 He says, "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross, and follow me" -into death and resurrection. In other words, he declared that not only must He die, but His followers must die too. The primary meaning of the cross is death. The cross crosses us out. What this means is explained in other Scriptures such as Rom. 6:3, 4 and Gal. 2:20. Following Christ means the denial of self which is much more than self-denial as commonly practiced.

The remaining Scripture in John 10 follows in logical order. "My sheep hear my voice and I know them, and they follow me." They have heard His voice, they have trusted Him and received from Him the life that is eternal. Now they follow Him in the pathway of the cross, knowing that they shall never perish, neither shall any man pluck them out of His

TEST FOR WRITERS OF PROSE

One Who Can Describe Clearly Proper Way of Tying Knot Is Master of Language.

Ropes more than any other subject are, I think, a test of a man's power of exposition in prose. If you can describe clearly the proper way of making this or that knot, then you are a master of the English tongue. You are not only a master-you are a sign, a portent, a new discoverer, an exception among your fellow men, a unique fellow.

For no one yet in this world surely has attained to lucidity in this most difficult branch of all expression. I find over and over again in the passages of those special books which talk of ropes, such language as, "This is a very useful knot and is made as follows: a bight is taken in the standing part and is then run over righthandedly, that is with the sun, then under the running part, and so through both times and hauled tight by the two

SHOWED RIGHT CIVIC SPIRIT

Interesting Story of How Youngsters Erought About the Regeneration of Their Village.

Twelve boys who started out in a semi-playful mood under the name of 'Dirty Dozen" finally were led on until they had cleaned up a whole community of 1,500 people physically and morally. At last their name was changed to "Diligent Dozen."

There was a quiet little mother of one of the twelve hidden behind the scenes, who never appeared publicly to be connected with the affair, but at whose house there was a mysterious generator of brilliant ideas for such boys. The twelve "D's" met both Friday evening and Sunday afternoon for conference, writes William A. McKeever in the Chicago American.

The town cleanup of the boys was worked in accordance with the rules of what we call "good psychology." They met with the proprietors of the main business section, two blocks in length, and agreed to clean up the streets in front of them and keep them clean for a year, provided these men would do likewise with their store fronts and interiors. The general transformation began with a rush. Saturday morning early the dozen were there with sweepers, shovels and wheelbarrows, and by noon the street looked strangely new.

The week following soap, water, paint and putty were brought freely into use on the old store buildings. Old tobacco tags, circus bills and notices of painkfillers were raked down and burned. About one-third of the display windows—under the influence of this "revival" were torn out and replaced with plate glass fronts. Many interior improvements followed.

The school buildings and church structures were next attacked by the "D's." The school officials were requested to clean and repair the buildings, and the teacher gave a half-holiday so that pupils might thus review the school yards. The dozen themselves took care of the vacant lots on which the church buildings stood.

MAN'S DUTY TO HOME TOWN

Civic Obligations Are Not Always as Thoroughly Recognized as They Ought to Be.

There is no country in the world in which wealth so generally recognizes its obligations to the public as in America. Vast sums have been devoted to public use, to the great benefit of the public. But municipalities have not figured largely as beneficiaries, though they have to some extent. Indianapolis has by no means been forgotten. And it surely ought to be a pleasure for any person with the right feeling toward the city or town in which he has lived to do something with his money to make life in it happier and pleasanter. The obligation of a man to his town is like that which he owes to his church or his university, and it should be as gladly performed. This feeling is becoming more widely prevalent in Indianapolis, and it will bring results in which all will rejoice. Civic life can be made better, and a proper civic pride developed in this way that will be worth much,--Indianapolis News.

Life in Big City Not Best.

Cream will rise to the surface anywhere, says Mr. Bok, and the institutions of the big city will reach out for their captains only where they find quality. He says of the aspiring youth:

"Let him use the great city as a market in which to buy or sell; to see and profit; let him use it as a place to go for a good time if he chooses. Let him bring back with him the best within it to serve his own community, but leave behind him its turmoil and restlessness that vexes the spirit and makes the young old. Let him think twice and thrice before he raises his children with the ghastly memory of a steam radiator in a city flat."

UNITED IN HONOR

Brave Belgians to Be Together on Judgment Day.

Two Defenders of the Liege Forts Await the Day When They Will Join Their Comrades.

A solemn assignation is to be kept in the Fort de Loncin, at Liege, in Belgium, writes R. J. Cruikshank in the London Daily Mail. The day when it will be kept is known to no man, but it surely will be. The tale begins amid the smoke and thunders of gigantic battle. It is the early days of the long terror. The Liege forts, most sorely tried, most faithful of defenses, are being smashed and shattered by monstrous guns.

In particular, the Fort de Loncin holds out an incredibly long time. It is sheeted in flame and rent by explosions. Stonework is splintered like glass and heavy iron twisted like paper. Small hope here for poor fleshand-blood humanity. The big magazine blows up. There is the horror of a dazzling rush of flame, of a thunder and quaking like the end of the world. Two hundred soldiers lie buried forever, deep beneath a mountain of concrete, which has been hurled savagely into the solid earth by the force of the explosion.

At last the fort is surrounded and overrun. The valiant Colonel Naessence, who has led the forlorn hope, ts taken prisoner, and with him such few of his men as remain alive. Among them is an excellent N. C. O., Gabriel by name. Death is threatened—indeed, seems close at hand. "I will die with my soldiers," cries the leader with the gesture of the Latin temperament. But they spare him.

Here is the second chapter of the story. Deep amid the wreckage of the Fort de Loncin there has been built a crypt. It is cold and as dark at noon as at night. In wooden coffins, on whitewashed shelves, repose the remains of forty-seven soldiers who died in the defense of Fort de Loncin in those terrible days of '14. They sleep deep and quiet, with those other 200 who are buried beneath the concrete. The crypt is winding and devious, on the model of the ancient catacombs. It is a serene afternoon in the year of peace, 1921. Colonel Naessence is courteously conducting us over the fort where he made so stout a stand, He is gray-haired, gravely-spoken, logical. He tells the history of the defense very modesty. It is quite by accident that one catches the ends of the story. It is from Gabriel that it comes. He stands there blinking in the sunlight, the typical old sergeantmajor retired and in "civvies."

"There are forty-seven coffins in the crypt down there."

"That is so." "But there are forty-nine places, so you say. How is that?" "There are two who have not yet been carried there." "Where are they?"

"M. le Colonel is the one. I am the other. It is his purpose to be with his soldiers in death. And I too. Fortyight and forty-nine will be in thei places. The crypt will be complete. The valorous defenders of this Liege fort will meet forever in the cool, dark crypt. It will be the last roll call in the Fort de Loncin.

The Parliament Clocks.

Among the various expedients to which governments are resorting in these days to raise money, no one seems to have suggested the taxation of clocks. The idea of such a tax is strange today, yet no less a financier than the young Pitt adopted it in 1797 as part of the means to pay for the Napoleonic wars. It was not long in force, it failed to get much revenue, and by reducing the number of clocks bought it threw many skilled workers out of employment. Indirectly, however, it enriched collectors in later generations with an interesting article of furniture. Abandonment of private clocks led enterprising tradesmenchiefly victuallers-to provide clocks for their customers. From their origin In the Finance act of the day the quasi-public clocks were called parliament clocks, and they seem to have been turned out chiefly by one firm. At any rate there is one standard pattern—an upright case of "grandfather" style, always with black face and white hands and figures. Those which have survived the intervening century and a quarter are now much sought

KEYMAR, MD.

AN APPEAL TO REASON

Maryland has on its statute books a so-called "Full Crew Law," which requires railroads to man all freight trains of thirty (30) cars or more with crews of six (6) men, viz.: 1 Engineer, 1 Fireman, 1 Conductor, 2 Brakemen and 1 Flagman (3 Brake-

The movement for the enactment of "Full Crew Laws" had its origin during the period of operation under the old link and pin coupling, and hand brake systems, which preceded the installation of the automatic coupler and automatic air brake.

Brakemen were formerly required to brake by hand on the tops of freight cars, and to go between cars to couple or uncouple.

With the installation of the automatic coupler it is no longer necessary to go between cars to couple or uncouple, and by the use of the automatic air brake the train is controlled by the engineer, eliminating the necessity for braking by hand.

Formerly brakemen spent most of their time riding out on top of cars, regardless of the weather conditions, whereas now they spend nearly all of their time riding on the locomotive or in

Therefore, there is no longer a necessity, if such ever existed, for the "third," or "additional brakeman," as required by the Maryland "Full Crew Law."

A careful analysis of the reports covering investigations of accidents made by the Maryland Public Service Commission and Interstate Commerce Commission disclosed no instance of the jeopardizing of the safety of either the public or employes, and that not one accident has been attributable to an insufficiency in the number of men comprising the crew of the train involved.

The repeal of this law will not mean more unemployment. It will mean the transfer of men from unnecessary and unproductive employment to useful and productive occupations in other departments.

PUBLIC OPINION as reflected through the PRESS of Maryland is practically unanimous for the repeal of a law which has caused the railroads to expend unnecessarily, in Maryland, in ten years in which the law has been in active effect, a total of about $2,500,000; money which is after all the public's, for the public must in the last analysis pay the bill.

The paramount interest of a railroad is "Safety First." That fact alone insures the maintenance of efficient crews; and the repealer, also, provides an additional safeguard, if such is needed, in that it leaves the Public Service Commission of Maryland in a position to order on duty the "extra man" if it is shown that safety demands such a course.

Safety, efficiency, common-sense and justice all call for the repeal of the Maryland "Full Crew Law."
