RETURNING SOLDIER DEAD. More Bodies of American Soldiers on Way to U.S.

The last large shipment of remains of soldier dead, returned for burial under the Stars and Stripes, will be completed when the army transport Cambrai reaches New York about March 30, with 1224 flag-draped caskets. With the arrival of the Cambrai the reverent task of the Quartermas-ter Corps of the Army of bringing home the bodies of those who fell in France, will be practically finished. Plans are already under way for appropriate services and ceremonies at the dock, to pay final tribute to those who made the supreme sacrifice. After the Cambrai lands her pre cious freight, approximately only 325 bodies will remain abroad to be brought to the United States for burial. Up to March 1 the Graves Registration Service of the Quartermaster Corps had returned to this country the remains of 44,418 of those American who died on foreign soil. So perfect have been all arrangements incident to the last journey, that many commendatory letters from relatives and friends of those returned for burial, have been re-ceived by the Quartermaster Gener-al's Office. Every effort has been made to accord the soldier dead the most reverent care, from the time of disinterment to the time the casket reaches its final resting place. Re-cently Major General H. L. Rogers, Quartermaster General, made a special trip to France to inspect the activities of the American Graves Registration Service, and on his return ex-pressed himself as fully satisfied with every detail of the work.

Concentration of bodies in American cemeteries abroad will be contin-ued, as about 32,000 of those who died overseas are not to be returned for burial here, according to the desire of their next of kin. The policy of the government is to remove the soldier dead from battlefield burial grounds, and to reinter them in per-manent cemeteries which will be cared for by the United States, as are national cemeteries in this coun-

Fields Act Together. Orders for a general miners' strike, April 1, have been issued from head-quarters in Indianapolis, and will continue until revoked by head union officials. The order will affect about 600,000 miners. The cause of the strike order is the failure, so far, of the operators and unionists to agree on a new schedule of wages; the miners demanding more, and the operators less, wages than under the present agreement.

Just what part the government may take, if any, remains an un-known question. Sooner or later, the extent of the right of union labor to dictate terms must be clearly settled by law, in order that the great body of coal consumers, and the business interests of the country, may have their vast interests safeguarded.

It is thought that the big stocks of coal on hand, and the continued operation of non-union mines, will prevent any serious shortage of coal, or any material advance in prices, in the near future.

Attorney-General Daugherty, according to reports, has made up his mind that the strike on April 1 is assured, no matter how alert the Department of Labor people may be to opportunities for a truce and ar-bitration and is thinking in terms of swift and drastic action to prevent any serious decrease in the coal supply of the country. FARMING OUTLOOK BETTER. Selling Prices Advancing, Buying Prices Decreasing.

Here are the early signs of the beginning of the end of what has been called the "agrarian revolt" and the "farm unrest." A "price war" among tractor companies has resulted in Ford cutting his tractor price from $625 to $395. The International Harvester Company has slashed the tractor price from $900 to $670, and is "throwing in" to each purchaser a two-bottom plow and a gang harrow. The Samson tractor dropped from $665 to $445, and the buyer gets a 25 per-cent reduction on tractor tools. The Case Plow Works follows suit by cutting the price of tractor and plow from $2023 to $995. The Minnesota State Prison, maker of farm machinery, has cut $400,000 from the price of machinery to be sold this eason. Farm prices are climbing hand over hand. Hogs went to $6.60 in the trough of postwar depression. In January they were $7.75 and in March they rose to $11. VOL. 28

The annual executive meeting of the Carroll County C. E. Union will be held Saturday afternoon, April 1, 1922, at 2:30, in the lecture room of Methodist Protestant Church, Westminster, at which time the date for holding the annual county con-vention at Deer Park D. P. Church will be decided upon.

Carroll County has the distinction of being the first county in the state of Maryand to acquire a Gold Seal in the Four-Square Campaign, that onor going to Deer Park Methodist About five weeks ago this society adopted the Four-Square Campaign as their particular effort, and at the institute on last Friday their last goal was attained, that of placing the C. E. World and the Maryland Endeavor in every one of the 26 homes repre-sented in their society. This attainment for a rural society is a high honor, and too much praise cannot be given to Miss Eva Logue, the president of the society, to Rev. J. N. Link, the pastor of the church, and to every member of the society. May many others of our societies follow the example set by Deer Park. This society attended the institute at Westminster in a body, 51 of their number being present at the night session.

All members of the federated shop crafts and maintenance of way de-partment of the Western Maryland Railway system have been ordered to strike at 10 o'clock this Saturday morning

The decision to call the strike was announced Thursday night by international officers of the crafts, following a conference in Hagerstown, according to a dispatch from that city. -Balt. Sun.

Hogs and shoats brought from $8.00 to $15.00; chickens 30c lb., wagon and bed, $125., manure spreader, $117., etc. The day being a fine one, and the sale well advertised, there was a great crowd of bidders present, and prices generally were good.

The automobile business, and too much experimenting with new machinery, has hurt farmers, and the hurt is largely being felt only now, and some of it being carried over into the years to come; but this is not the fault of farming being a poor business; rather the fault of farmers being poor business men. No business can stand expensive, unbusiness-like indulgences, caused by the race to "keep up" with other folks. One fool has made many, in every community, in unwise automobile and other investments, and "paying up" time can not be avoided.

Fire Losses of 1921.

The fire loss record of the country granted unto Clayton M. Black who for the year 1921 has been exceeded only once and that in 1906, the year of the great San Francisco conflagration. The past year's losses in fires Mary E. Gettier, administratrix of in the United States and Canada as Daniel L. Dubbs, deceased, received compiled from the daily records of The Journal of Commerce reached a total of $332,654,950. This is even greater than the 1920 total of $330,-853,925, when higher valuations on property of all kinds helped to swell the figures. The fire losses came in from all parts of the country and, while the year was free from any general conflagration, the steady flow of losses built up a total that practically has no equal in past records.

The causes which are responsible for this great waste of the nation's wealth are many, but chief among them in last year's record are care-lessness and moral hazard. Fire underwriters who make a careful study of the developments in the loss record advance the theory that the excessive percentage of losses attributed to carelessness is in a great measure due to the breaking down of general discipline in practically all lines of business activity. Then, too, they point out that when business shows but a narrow margin of profit, if any, the property owner is not disposed to expend any money for proper care and maintenance, with the result that many of the fires which occurred in 1921 might have been avoided if the profits of the business had been attractive.

The kind of conscience a man carries with him to bed, is apt to be different from the one he professes to own when holding forth publicly for self-interest, or in defense of personal habits. There are lots of Doctor Jekyls and Mr. Hydes disporting themselves in every community. _X___

Many a man has made the mistake of his life-time by being too-bullheaded. Too much absorbed in fighting for his own way about a thing, then spending the rest of his life regretting it. Getting an unprejudiced angle on the "other fellow's" proposition, and bending one's own to fit it, often pays big.

If there is one good act that you have been just "putting off" time after time, why not get at it right now, and do it? As a rule, one's first impulses are best, and when observation has been favorable to the desirability of a thing, why not profit by it? The man who lives carelessly along, and does not make use of experience, shows very poor business judgment.

Encouraging the doing of off-color, or illegal acts, then soft pedaling, or perhaps expressing hypocritical doubt after they are safely done, is a practice very commonly resorted to in order to smoothe things over and try to recover lost reputation for fairness and decency. Deluded tools may get a throw-down, but discriminating sentiment of the best sort is not fooled, and does not forget.

The Motion-Picture Menace.

In all probability the inventive genius of the world has never produced a single good thing that has not been prostituted, and the more popular the thing itself, the more it is used for base purposes. It is not strange, therefore, that motion pictures have been so used by profiteering sharks, and by those who are always ready to capitalize immorality, and make it as attractive as possible, caring nothing for effect on the general public as long as their dirty practices pay big financial returns. And this practice is going on without much hindrance or ventilation by the press. There is so much "money in the business," that it subsidizes the press-pays it to keep quiet-indirectly, if not directlyand the politicians and officers of law, legislative bodies and the like, are largely in the same category. Public morality is getting less and less support from these sources. About the only safe-guards left against the flood of immorality, are the church, and good home influences, and this is widely true. Specifically, it is almost universally true of the "movies"; and unless there is a change, this most wonderful and attractive invention of modern times, will come in for more than its just share of bad reputation. The argument is used-and properly enough, no doubt-that pictures in schools, and even in churches, will develop intellect and impress lessons more effectually than by any other means; and yet the question must arise whether, after all, we are justifiable in using a process that is coming to-and has, a horrible reputation For the sake of decency and morality, and for the preservation of a great invention for legitimate uses, the law-making power of the country must soon handle the rottenness of the motion picture business as it deserves; or the better classes will have only one recourse left-the avoidance of the appearance of evil. Picture shows must be plainly labeled with their true contents, or christian people will be fully justified in not taking a chance with them at all. At present, the amusement seeking public must depend solely on the noral attitude of proprietors of movloud and indecent films, as easily as for the moral ones; and as the business is conducted, even the most conscientious theatre proprietors are apt to show pictures not up to proper standard, through lack of exact knowledge of what they are getting. And the worst of it is, the bad pictures can gradually become accepted as allowable, until all concerned become confused as to where the line is to be drawn.

As the "movies" are particularly attractive to children and young folks, and as these form the habit of attending the shows without parental restraint, there is present the danger of a blighting influence that dare not be much longer disregarded. For the sake of the picture business itself, that can be a tremendous influence for education, uplift, and general clean entertainment, we trust that the entry of Ex-Postmaster General Hayes into the inner workings of the business may result in saving the attraction, for the good of the public.

Five Per-Cent Americans.

Before America had Prohibition, 95 per-cent of the old booze business consisted of the traffic in so-called "light wines and beer."

The red-nosed gentry now clamor for the restoration of "light wine and beer." In other words they demand the restoration of 95 per-cent of the old booze traffic.

Rolling their eyes to heaven like a sick rooster in a thunder storm, they say they don't want the "return of the saloon." They only want the return of the stuff sold in the saloons which made folks drunk and sent

They want Congress to declare that 95 per-cent of the drink which makes folks drunk is not intoxicating.

They want 2.75 per-cent beer "by weight," which is equivalent to 3 percent "by volume," the universally recognized standard. Some of the former standard American beers only contained 3 per-cent alcohol.

They demand "light wine," and when forced to define "light wine," they say wine of 12 per-cent alcoholic strength, which is stronger than nearly all the wines of France, Italy, Spain, and stronger than most of former California wines.

Forty-five of the forty-eight states writ it into their Constitution that this whole miserable traffic was done cent Americans are in favor of the Constitution. Those who demand the restoration of 95 per-cent of the old booze business are only 5 per-cent Americans and 95 per-cent Huns.

The Pneumania Month.

March is a typical pneumonia month and usually gives a high rate of mortality for the disease. After a long and hard winter, the system loses much of its resistance and people grow careless. When every cold, no matter how slight, is given prompt and intelligent attention, there is much less danger of pneumonia. It should be borne in mind that pneumonia is a germ disease and breeds in the throat. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is an expectorant and cleans out the germ ladened mucus and not only cures a cold but prevents its resulting in pneumonia. It is pleasant to take. The American claim for reimbursement for the expense of maintaining the Rhine army is in no way dependent upon this country's action on the Versailles treaty. The Senate's rejection of the Versailles treaty could not possibly have nullifiled agreements involved in the armistice. Americans Who Made Their Names Celebrated Were Essentially Men of Highest Character.

"Bill Nye," our own Edgar Wilson Nye, leaped into fame while writing humorous sketches for the Laramie Boomerang, of which he was editor. The name of "Bill Nye" was bestowed on him by his office associates. His book, "Baled Hay," was very popular for a time, but, like much humorous writing, its popularity was ephemeral. "Bill Nye" was much loved by all who knew him. He was considered "the greatest American liar."

William T. Adams was the moted "Oliver Optic," who wrote more than a thousand stories. He died much mourned by young readers, for whom most of his books were written.

Under the name of Artemus Ward, Charles F. Browne made a worldwide reputation as a lecturer and humorist. He was an inimitable wag; his humor was irrespressible and kept all about him in a constant state of merriment. He was the first writer to adopt phonetic spelling. He died in 1869. "Eli Perkins" was contemporary with "Artemus Ward," and it was

Ward who bestowed the nom de plume upon him. Melville D. Landon was essentially a "funny man," but not truly a humorist. He was a gentle, kindly man and one who loved his fellows.

Henry W. Shaw was the "Josh Billings" of humor and homely philosophy. He was kicked into fame by his "Essa on the Muel," which netted him $1.50, his first money earned in literature. He traveled and lectured extensively on "The Probabilities of Life; Perhaps Rain, Perhaps Not." He said: "There's cheats in all things; even pizen is adulterated." He was a delightful man and never did a mean thing in his life, and never had an enemy among good men. "Josh Billings" died of apoplexy in Monterey,

RUNTY HENS NOT DESIRABLE

Investigation Shows at Least One Fowl in Fifteen Is Undersized and Hence Unprofitable.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Runtiness is not so conspicuous in the poultry flock as it is among other farm animals, yet it is a factor to be considered, and it is possible that in some cases it is of great importance. Certain it is that undersized fowls are not desirable, and it has been the experience of many farmers and Poultrymen that they can be almost, If not entirely, eliminated. This is the conclusion that may be arrived at after & study of the figures and comments obtained by a preliminary investigation of runts and their remedy conducted by the United States Department of Agriculture.

The information was obtained from nearly 1,000 farmers to whom questionnaires were sent. Although these farmers were considered to be better than the average, they reported that 7 per cent of their animals were undersized to such a degree as to be called runty. This means, if the percentage holds true for all farms of the country, that more than 14,000,000 animals, not including feathered stock, are runts. In addition 61/2 per cent of the poultry on these farms was undersized, which means that there is, perhaps, even a higher percentage for the total farms of the United States.

Inbreeding and poor matings, as a cause, are the principal factors distinguishing runtiness in feathered stock from that in other farm animals. It is the consensus of opinion of 471 poultry owners, in all parts of the country, that the following causes are chiefly responsible for the runts found in feathered flocks:

Per cent Poor feeding ...... Inbreeding and poor matings ..... Inferior breeding stock ..... 13.1

They Should Be Gathered Daily Where There Is Danger of Them Being Destroyed.

When there is danger that turkey eggs may be chilled or destroyed they should be gathered every day, and a nest egg left in each nest. Skunks, opossums, rats, crows, and dogs are the greatest destroyers of turkey eggs, although occasionally minks, raccoons, coyotes, wolves, foxes, cats, and certain large snakes also eat eggs. When a turkey hen has been disturbed by one of these pests, she may change her nest to some other place and abandon the eggs.

Eggs for hatching should be kept at a temperature of as near 50 degrees or 60 degrees F. as possible, and should he turned over every day, say poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture. They should be jarred as little as possible while handling and should be incubated while fresh, never holding more than two weeks if it can be avoided. It is an excellent plan to mark the date on each egg as it is gathered, in order to be certain that no eggs are kept too long before they are incubated.

PICKING DUCKS FOR BREEDING

Active, Healthy Females of Medium Size Are Recommended-Use Only Mature Fowls.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Ducks are usually mated in flocks of about thirty females with five or six males, as the drakes do not fight one another. The number of males may be reduced to one for every seven females about the first of March, and again changed a month later to one male for eight to ten females.

Active, healthy females of medium size should be used for breeding; that is, weighing about eight pounds when mature. Only mature birds should be used as breeders. Select ducks with short necks, medium long bodies, flat backs and of good depth to the keel bones. Watery eyes usually are a sign of weakness in ducks. The drake is coarser and more masculine in appearance than the duck, and has a distinct curl in his tail feathers. Ducks should

DEAF MUTE MAKES SURE OF NOT OVERSLEEPING .-A deaf mute was seen buying an alarm clock the other day in a department store. He conducted his negotiations by nods and shakes of the head and by writing on his pocket slate. He examined the clocks carefully and finally selected one.

Asked later if the clock was for his own use he replied that it was and then explained, on his slate, of course, how he uses it. He has a shelf above the head of his bed which is held in place by a trigger. On top of the shelf he puts a pillow, so that when the shelf, which is hinged, drops, the pillow falls on his head.

A string attached to the trigger is tied to the winding key of the alarm, so that when it sounds the string is wound up and the trigger is sprung. In order to avoid disturbing the others in the house the considerate deaf mute removes the bell from the clock .- New York Sun.

How the Appellation "Human Birds" Came to Be Bestowed on the Penguin Family.

On the frozen ice fields about the South pole live the penguins, called by explorers "human birds" because they play just as children play, are friendly to their strange human visitors, and live in colonies.

Penguins are quite tall, a full-grown bird standing two feet high. Their wings are so short they cannot fly, but they use them as flappers to help them hurry along over the snow. Their strong legs are far back on the body and are so placed that the bird stands upright. The penguins are as much at home in the water as on the land.

One remarkable habit of the penguins is the way they "talk" to one another. A dozen birds will meet on one of the beaches, and gathering in groups of two or three, spend 15 or 20 minutes in animated conversation-uttering cries distinctly different in tone.

Penguins are fond of games, a favorite play being to force one another 2 brood sows, 1 will farrow in May, the other in June; 1 white boar hog, rest are shoats, ranging from 30 to 75 lbs. to the surface more than 50 feet from shore

Another sport of the penguins is a snow slide. They pick out a nice hilly spot near the shore of an icy bay, and then pack the snow very hard by throwing themselves on it. Then they go to the top of the slide and one goes down to test it. If it is all right the others follow.

WHY =

To a certain extent the decline of the Roman empire was due to its having outgrown its strength. Its ramifications in the western hemisphere rendered Rome peculiarly vulnerable to barbarian invasion, and a deterioration of the national character brought about by excess and conceit in its own powers, made the empire less able to cope with the situation. The division of the empire into two parts, the eastern portion being governed from Byzantium (Constantinople) and the western from Rome, added to the decay of its powers. The provinces drained to inanition by taxation levied for army and court, and in disruption through internal war, could not repel the barbarian inroads. The policy at first introduced of conciliating the invader and giving him military command proved futile, and eventually Rome was taken by the Goths, A. D., 408. The invader was bought out at a heavy price, but from that day the might of the Roman empire departed.

ENTERING NEW FIELD OF ART

Why the Average American Is Invited to Read the Works of Great Russian Writer.

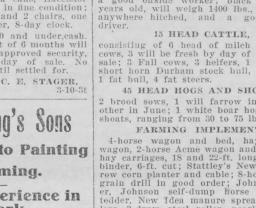

The American invents situations, the Russian creates character. I do not mean this as a sneer at our own work and tastes, but simply as a definition. It is safe to say that the ordinary American reader on a train could not endure the tales of Chekhov; but he ought to make the attempt, if only to learn to enter a new field of art, to try something else.

The chief requisite for a successful short story in America is that it be "snappy," "sure-fire"; things must begin to happen quickly, or the reader will turn to the next author. Many of our expert producers of these thrillers are fillers of prescriptions; they know exactly what is needed, and give it in generous doses.

Some of them are absolutely dependable. They never disappoint you. The American snappy story often builds up an extremely clever and mysterious situation, and suddenly solves it so that at the conclusion the reader smiles happily, and knows that he has been amused, just as he knows that the marshmallow tasted good-then he forgets all about it .-- William Lyon Phelps, in the Yale Review.

Why Lying Is Detested.

In plain truth, lying is a hateful and accursed vice. We are not men, we have no other tie upon one another, but our word. If we did but perceive the horror and ill-consequences of it, we should pursue it with fire and sword, and more justly than other crimes. I see that parents commonly, and with indiscretion enough, correct their children for little innocent faults, and torment them for wanton childish tricks that have neither impression, nor tend to any consequence; whereas, in my opinion, lying only, and, what is of something a lower form, willful obstinacy, are the faults ted both in infancy and ress of these vices, which will otherwise grow up and increase with them; and after a tongue has once got the knack of lying, 'tis not to be imagined how impossible it is to reclaim it,-Montaigne.

Total ... Early hatching is of more importance, according to the comments of poultrymen, than the figures in the table indicate. It appears that relatively few flock owners are familiar with the ad-Vantages of early hatching, but those who do their hatching early find it a distinct benefit. For instance, one farmer says, "Last year all of my chickens hatched after the first of June were runts. Those before that were normal and were laying in October. The same care and feed were given to all of them." Another observes, "When I get my chicks hatched in April and May I do not have runts in my flock. Still another estimates that one-third of late hatches are runty. "Hatch no chicks later than May 1," he says.

Of equal interest are the warnings Against inbreeding. "We have no runts in our poultry" is the statement of a Virginia farmer, who adds, "We buy purebred cocks from a different strain every year." "Keep purebred fowls and change the sire every year" is the injunction of another poultryman, and his experience is typical of many others.

Farmers' experiences with early hatching tally with the results of experiments by the bureau of animai industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. In these experiments the early hatched chicks showed a marked superiority over those purposely hatched late. There was a noticeably steady degradation in size and type of the late chicks compared With those hatched early.

From these side lights it is easily Seen that the questions of runtiness and good live-stock management are closely related and are tied up with economic factors of great importance.

DETERMINE EGG PRODUCTION

Much Depends on Kind and Amount of Feed Given-Hens Must Be Fed Regularly.

The one most important fact for all farm poultry keepers is that egg production is determined directly by the kind and amount of feed given and that in order to insure heavy laying the hens must be fed grain regularly and must have dry mash continually available.

Ducks Should Be Soid After They Are Two Years Old.

.... 100.0 be sold, usually, after they are two years old, although the best breeders or layers may be kept over their third year, say poultry specialists in the United States Department of Agriculture.

> In handling ducks, pick them up by their necks, as their legs are very easily broken. Ducks lay their eggs early in the morning, and should be confined to the house or pen until 9:30 or 10 o'clock in the morning. If allowed to roam early in the morning they may lay in a pond or stream and the eggs may be lost.

SEEK VACCINE FOR CHICKENS

Field and Laboratory Tests Are Being Conducted at the Kansas Agricultural College.

Experiments involving many field and laboratory tests are being conducted at the Kansas State Agricultural college to determine the efficacy of a vaccine for fowls to prevent cholera, typhoid and roup. It has been determined that cholera and roup are caused by the same organism. In field tests a vaccine produced at the college by Prof. F. R. Bandette has given some very satisfactory results and this is now being tested out in the laboratory. If these tests are successful more field work will be done by college experts. No vaccine is being given out at this time because the chemists are not in a position yet to guarantee it.

Why Called "Blue Laws."

"Blue laws" are, in general, any laws which impose vexatious restrictions on the members of a community and interfere with their ordinary habits or which seek to regulate their private morals. The name came to be applied specifically to a set of laws of this nature supposed to have been in force in the colony of New Haven, Conn., about the middle of the Eighteenth century. The supposition is based upon the wellknown fact that in the Puritan days the personal conduct of citizens was often subject to a close judicial supervision and that the sin of Sabbath breaking was especially odious to the magistracy._

How Matches Cause Poisoning. Cases of poisoning from safety matches seems to be common in Denmark. Dr. C. Rasch reports to the Ugeswrift for Laeger (Copenhagen) on 13 recent cases in his own practice. The trouble took the form of a severe inflammation of the skin on fingers, neck and face, with badly swollen eyelids. In men it appears below the pocket in which the matches are carried; in women on the fingers with which they light their cigarettes. Dr. Rasch ascribes it to the use of phosphorus sesquisulphide when amorphorus phosphorus was not to be had. -Detroit Free Press.

Why She Got Mad.

"I understand the wife of this professional humorist resents the way he pokes fun at feminine foibles."

"Hasn't the fellow tact enough to convince her that she's an exception to the rule?"

"He may have that much tact, but what makes her mad is the fact that he doesn't take the trouble to exercise it."-Birmingham Age-Herald.

Why She "Borrowed" Clothes.

A woman went into a Columbus department store recently and asked to see a suit of clothes for her small son. She looked over the entire stock very carefully, but seemed unable to make a selection. Finally she selected a suit and cap, but asked that she be permitted to take the articles home, that she might have time to give them further consideration.

The obliging clerk permitted her to do so. The next day she returned to the store with the clothes and cap. The clerk politely inquired whether or not her customer had found the clothing satisfactory.

"Oh, yes, they are lovely," said the woman, "but I'm through with them now. I just wanted to have my little boy's picture taken, and he didn't have clothes nice enough."-Indianapolis News.

Why "Blue Monday."

When psychological tests show that, far from being the worst day in the week for work, Monday is almost the best?

Tuesday is the week's high point of efficiency as we get down to work after the slight lassitude of Monday. This maximum efficiency lasts until Wednesday afternoon. Fatigue begins to show on Thursday, when production averages 15 per cent below Tuesday's maximum. Friday is the blue day. On Saturday we all are tired, but actually do more work under the stimulating excitement of the approaching weekend and the desire to clean up our work .-- Popular Science Monthly.

Why Figures May Be Wrong.

Cause for alarm. Census bureau says farmers made only 13,365,805 gallons of cider in 1919, compared with 32,583,998 gallons in 1909.

This looks like one of the great American industries is going to decay. Figures for 1921 probably would show a further falling off in cider.

The little joker is that an enormous amount of hard cider is made on the sly and doesn't show up in the statistics. Almost anyone making hard cider is apt to sample it frequently. Hence the figures he furnishes are bound to be muddled.

&_____ 1922, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

she walked up the little wooden walk stone that stood in front of the tiny said. cottage. The long parlor, stretching across the south front with its wide windows, brought back memories of the invalid father who had spent so many hours in the sunny room, look ing out at the village street.

"No," she decided, "I shan't sell it. I cannot bear to think of any stranger in that room. I wish I could get some boarders, then I could stay home and putter about my kitchen instead of going to the city. But I can't live on nothing, and maybe I can save enough to come back here summers."

Rose had taken domestic science at high school, and when she spoke of trying to get boarders her old friends had laughed at the notion.

"Why, Rose, country people like good plain food. You learned to make cream puffs and nut salads and all that fluffy stuff, and, anyway, who would board with you? We all have our own houses to live in."

"I know it," returned the girl doubtfully. "Even the teachers live at home, but-" She lapsed into silence, turning over the ever-present problem in her mind.

How could she stay at home without getting into debt? The cottage had been closed while she had finished school in the next town, and her uncle in Pontiac had advised her to sell, but this she was reluctant to do.

"It's almost impossible for me to go to church," complained plump Mrs. Betts as she stopped in to talk with Rose. "Getting the children ready is enough for a body to do, but to try and get things in shape for a quick dinner is-

"Why don't you have a fireless cooker and put your dinner in there?"

"No. Be there at 2 o'clock sharp, smiled the girl. Jim Deering, just ahead, turned

"I didn't get an invite to your fare. well party," he suggested. The cool mention of her departure stabbed Rose, but she rallied, conscious of the smiles about her. "Come to dinner, if you like," she said, trying to speak casually; "you won't get much, though.

He looked down at her trim suit and soft hat, with its drooping brim, Rose glanced about her wistfully as | and sighed. She was mighty attractive, but he needed a wife who would leading from the gate to the gray be a home body. "I'll be there," he

The dinner was a surprise. From the delicately browned round of beef to the thick apple pie, with real cream over it, the meal was perfect.

"Best coffee I ever drank," remarked Ed Betts, thoughtlessly, and was recalled by a glance from his wife.

"How could you have it all ready and still go to church?" demanded Hannah Meeker, accepting a second cup of the amber coffee.

"I planned it all out, and almost all the solid food was in the cooker while I was gone. I baked yesterday," murmured Rose, looking embarrassed under the shower of praise-praise that meant something, coming from her plain-spoken neighbors.

Jim Deering looked at the light home-made bread and then at the girl whom he had thought too well educated to be a good cook.

"Rose, you said you would take boarders if there were any," began Mrs. Betts, "why couldn't you serve dinners here?" She looked around the south room with its crisp white curtains and shining casement windows. "You would have all you could seat. Some might come just Saturdays and Sundays, others every day. We all have so many children that it would be wonderful to be able to step down street and find a real dinner waiting. Then, too, we would all enjoy meeting. It would be like having a party every day."

Rose surveyed her guests with shining eyes. "Do you really mean it?" cried as a chorus of voices acshe cepted, some for daily dinners, others for the week-ends when housework was heavy.

Toward evening when the last of the guests had drifted homeward Jim Deering still lingered. Manlike, he began to fear he might lose the girl as he saw the esteem her culinary skill had aroused in the village. Mrs. Betts had said that she knew the new minister, a bachelor, would be delighted to have dinners with Rose and the prospect irritated him amazingly.

"Rose," he murmured. "I kept hesitating because I thought you had grown too fine for me. I didn't dream that you would be willing to get right down to tacks and cook real food. The work will be too much for you. Don't you think you had better settle down and cook for just one man?"

And Rose, reading the real love behind the mask of the blunt, teasing words, agreed,

Students of History See Significance in Recent Move of the Dean of Westminster.

There is more than meets the eye in the announcement that the dean of Westminster has assigned a particular stall on the north side of the chair for the use of the mayor of Westminster whenever he visits the abbey in either a public or a private capacity. The dean's kindly act removes another obstacle to the full friendship which should exist in Westminster between the ecclesiastical and the civic authorities. Centuries ago there was no love lost between them. The abbey authorities were a powerful body; the citizens of Westminster were struggling to be free, in a municipal sense. It was the cellarer of the abbey who built the Gatehouse prison.late in the Fourteenth century and installed the abbey janitor as its keeper. It was the abbot who had custody of all prisoners captured within the liberties. It was the abbot who, when debts were owing to the monastery, did not recover them by ordinary process of law, but sent out his "common pressers" to distrain on the debtor's goods. When Bryan Talbot, a gentleman by birth, fell into arrears with his rent, he had to surrender his "large bedsted legged," his "litill old Ship Chest," his water-tub and his "blew pylyan for a woman." Not until the middle of the Fifteenth century did self-government manifest itself in a society of citizens, and that is a long way from the gift to the mayor of a stall in the abbey .-- Christian Science Monitor.

CALL TUESDAY UNLUCKY DAY

Members of the Greek Church Have Reasons to Look Upon It With Misgivings.

To most persons of western tradiion Friday is more or less considered to be an unlucky day. Many of them prefer not to say this straight out, but they are a bit wary of starting any large enterprise on a Friday. The idea may come from the fact that for so many people Friday is held as a fast day and great interest in purely secular pursuits should be held some what in abeyance. The old Norse peasantry give a different explanation.

"To begin a big thing on a Friday leads_to a great temptation to break the Sabbath," is the way one old grandmother puts it.

To most members of the Greek church it is not Friday, but Tuesday that is the most unlucky day. The reason is clearcut and historical, for it was on this day that-a Tuesday, in 1453-Constantinople was lost to the eastern empire and passed under the control of the Turks.

Voices That Will Live Forever.

It is not generally known, but there are many of the leading personages of the last century whose voices will never die. These are records which are part of the Edison collection at Menlo Park, N. J. When the Edison machine for reproducing speech was fected the inventor sent a repre sentative around the world for the purpose of interviewing famous people and persuading them to speak into a phonograph. Thus, Gladstone can be heard congratulating Edison on his wonderful inventive genius. King Edward expresses his astonishment and admiration at being able to hear voices reproduced by a machine. Tennyson reads a verse from one of his poems. Browning tries to recite and fails. Among others, Cardinal Manning, the duke of Clarence, Lord Salisbury and the duke of Cambridge contributed to this wonderful collection, which cost a great deal of money.

Probably the Earliest Form of Money of Which There Is Any Real

Knowledge.

The earliest tribes did not need money because no individual in the tribe owned anything personally. All property belonged to the tribe as a whole and none to any one person. Later on when the tribes met there arose the custom of barter or trade, the simplest form of which was the exchange of articles possessed by one tribe for those owned by another. For instance, some of the Australian tribes had a rough green stone which was valuable for making hatchets. Members of another tribe, seeing these green stone hatchets naturally wanted them. They had no money, as we know it today, but they had red ochre with which they painted their bodies. Thus it developed that the tribe owning the green stones wanted some red ochre, and each article became a kind of money-each became valuable for trading purposes.

It was necessary, however, to await the developments of a "unit of value" before money became elastic. It required something valuable in the eyes of these tribes. One of the earliest forms of this elastic money was shells. The skins of animals were long used by savage tribes as money, but these could not be carried about like shells. The skins, however, were valuable in trading and fortunes were reckoned by the number of skins owned. As soon as animals became domesticated the live animal itself replaced the skin as money.

SCHEME PROVED A NUISANCE

Office Force Refused to Allow Methodica! Man to Overlook Letter Written to Himself.

The methodical Mr. Kellam grunted acknowledgement when Kessler, an office assistant, presented him with a note, according to the New York Sun. "Found this in the 'K' mail box. It's addressed to you," said Kessler.

Kellam took the note, walked toward the pigeonholed mail box and later resumed his seat. It wasn't long before Kloss, another fellow worker, came up to him with a note addressed to him which he had picked out of the mail box. Kellam was not quite so cordial, but he took it and repeated his trip to the office mail box. He was even less cordial when Klanster, another associate, approached him a few minutes later and held out a note.

"I found this in the 'K,' " he began. "Darn it," shrieked Kellam. "I know where you found it. I put it there so I'd get it in the morning-it's to remind me to do something tomorrow. For the luvva Mike put it back!"

Mysteries of Nature.

One of the most mysterious powers that close observation has revealed is the capacity of certain fishes and water animals to live out of the water. Some small crustaceans have been known to lie for 40 years in dried mud without losing the power of actively living when the mud was moistened again. A naturalist visiting a little mud from the Jerus pool of Gihon, at the Jaffa gate, and put it in a pill box. It lay dry for 40 years, but when some of the dry dust was put into a saucer full of water it gave rise after a short time to some lively water fleas. The eel, as is well known, can travel through damp grass. There is a tropical fish, known as the climbing perch, which has the very curious habit of scrambling, by means of its pectoral fins, up stones, roots, and even the trunks of trees, in search of insects on which it feeds. Still more surprising is the habit of a South African fish, called Clarias, which is said to make nocturnal raids on the fields in order to eat the grains of millet .-- Cincinnati Enquirer.

Mrs. Betts rocked vigorously: "I just knew you'd come back full of theories, Rose. These newfangled recently for what purpose they were things sound all right, but my mother cooked on a big hard coal range, and that's good enough for me. "You'd make a good housewife, Rosie, you have so much enthusiasm for the common things of life," sighed Mrs. Betts, who had once had a fourline poem published and who had since languished for fame. "I like to let my thoughts soar on better things."

"I have a fireless cooker. Say, suppose you all come to dinner here Sunday at 2 o'clock, then you won't have to bother before church and I hate to eat alone. I'll be going away soon and I'd like to have a little party here first. Suppose I have as many as I get in-" Rose's blue eyes enn twinkled at the pleasure in the other's face and she lost herself in mental calculations as to the number she could seat in the parlor.

Sunday morning the invited guests stared in amazement as they saw Rose in her accustomed place in church.

Jim Deering, who had heard of the party at Rose's house, smiled grimly as he saw her. He had been a stanch admirer of hers, but he, too, had heard which protrudes a spout; and when of the domestic science course and had it is hot enough it gives off a gas which decided that the girl would be too burns with considerable brilliancy. The quaint belief that a necklace of blue beads preserves children, and especially girl children, from bronchitis, is very widespread. Herein lies the reason for the sale of thousands on thousands of cheap blue glass necklaces in hundreds of little general shops in the poorer quarters of London and other big cities. They come from Bohemia, and neither the manufacturers there nor their wholesale agents in this country knew until wanted. The necklaces are made of beads of a peculiar dark blue, almost violet, color. No other beads will do. They are never taken off, and should the wearer die the necklace is buried with her. Similarly, a child with a sore throat wears a coral bead necklace. The same article of jewlery, when worn by adults, is supposed to drive away depression and melancholy. The wearing of a jade necklace is believed by many people to be a sure cure for kidney trouble. This belief is widely held by the Latin races, the very name "jade" being derived from a Spanish word meaning "lions."-London Tit-Bits.

Greatness Seldom Appreciated.

No man is great to those who know him well. Shakespeare was only one of the players around old London. Goldsmith was too poor to purchase patches for his wornout clothes. We think we would treat such men of genius better. As a fact the next generation will tell us what gumps we were in not seeing the genius of our own day. But don't worry about that, you may not be it. To build big takes the fire of genius. Great structures can't be visualized at a glance. It's the patient plugging that finally reveals the details that commend the enterprise.-Exchange.

Lawsuit of Long Duration.

The longest drawn out lawsuit on record in legal history is between two neighboring French villages in Jura-Charchillat and Meusia. The case had Its beginning in the Thirteenth century In 1232 a certain knight of the Holy empire divided a certain wood between the two villages. Although the wood is of small value, the two villages engaged in a controversy over the exact line of division and a lawsuit, which has lasted through the centuries to the present age, was begun.

During the past century there have been many judgments rendered, all of which have been appealed from. In one court decision the advantage was given to Meusia. Charchillat appealed and the case was finally sent back to the court of civil appeal at Nancy. where last December Charchillat was awarded a third of the wood instead of a fifth, as settled before. Each of the towns was condemned to pay its own costs since 1824. Meusia has appealed from the award.

The Family Silver.

"Whenever I'm invited out to dinner or one of those society affairs, you can leave it to me to make some bad break," Spud Murphy complained bitterly

"What's the trouble, Spud?" asked a sympathetic friend.

"Well, the girl asked me up to her house for dinner. She told me they were high up in society, and that they had the family name on all the silver and napkins."

"Well, how did you get in Dutch?" "The first thing I did when we sat down at the table was to take a squint at the silver and napkins, and then the girl got sore because every time I spoke to her father I called him 'Mr. Pullman.' "-The Leatherneck.

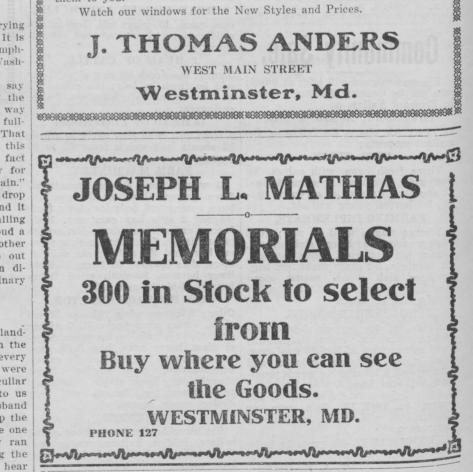

The weather men have been trying to answer: "How does it rain?" It is a hard question, says Dr. W. J. Humphreys of the weather bureau at Washington.

"Lots of people are content to say that the droplets at the top of the cloud pick up others on their way down and come out at the bottom fullsized rain-drops," he said. "That sounds nice, but those who give this explanation seem to overlook the fact that clouds can float in the sky for days without giving a drop of rain." He has calculated how big a drop would result from such a fall, and it turns out that a cloud particle falling from top to bottom of a dense cloud a mile thick and picking up every other droplet on its way, would come out only one-sixteenth of an inch in diameter, much smaller than an ordinary raindrop.

We lived in the flat above our landlord. He and his family were in the habit of going on motor trips every Sunday. So one Sunday we were rather surprised to hear a peculiar grinding noise in what seemed to us to be their kitchen. As my husband was not presentable, I grabbed up the peker, for I felt sure it was some one trying to break in, and bravely ran down to the front door and rang the door bell. I thought they would hear the bell ring and be frightened away. Imagine my embarrassment when the door of the flat opened and the landlord stepped out and caught me with the upraised poker in my hand. When I finally got through explaining he merely informed me that the noise was caused by the grinding of his coffee mill .- Chicago Tribune.

LESSON FOR MARCH 26

REVIEW

GOLDEN TEXT-The Lord is righteous in all His ways, and holy in all His works,-Psalm 145:17.

DEVOTIONAL READING-Pealm 130. PRIMARY TOPIC-Favorite Stories of the Quarter.

JUNIOR TOPIC-Israel's Heroic Proph-

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC -Estimate of Elijah, Elisha, Jonah and Amos.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -Social Teachings of the Quarter's Lessons.

The method of review will largely be determined by the taste of the teachers and the grade in the school concerned. To the writer's taste, two good methods are available: the biographical and the summary. In using the biographical, the lives of four great prophets, Elijah, Elisha, Jonah and Amos may be considered. These four men are connected with nearly mining camps, preaches the old timeall the lessons of the quarter. This method can be used to good advantage in nearly all the grades of the school. In the summary method the principal fact of each lesson with its leading lesson should be set forth. This method can be used to good advantage in the adult departments. The following is a suggested summary:

Lesson I. Rehoboam refused to grant the request of the people for the lightening of the burdens of taxation. Because of this ten tribes under the leadership of Jeroboam revolted and formed another kingdom. The most effective cure for social and political unrest is justice by the rulers to those ruled.

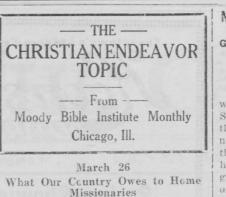

Lesson II. Elijah, after announcing to Ahab the withholding of rain for a term of years, fled and was fed by the ravens and by the widow at Zarephath. God adapts himself to the circumstances of His servants, and sometimes in the most unlikely ways provides for His own.

Lesson III. At the request of Elijah, Ahab called the people together to witness a supreme challenge of Baal worship. Faith in God will stand the most severe test. The fire of God is the unfailing sign which differentiates true from false religion.

Lesson IV. Elijah, though brave before the 450 prophets of Baal, fled for his life from Jezebel. God dealt most gently with his discouraged servant. We should learn from this that frequently we fail in our strongest point.

Lesson V. Naboth refused to sell his vineyard to Ahab, whereupon through Jezebel's plot he was murdered, and Ahab took possession. Nations and kings should respect the rights of individuals.

Lesson VI. When Elijah's work was finished, God took him to heaven by a whirlwind. Elijah had once requested

Luke 10:1-17 What our country owes to the home missionary directly and indirectly can hardly be tolo Speaking generally and in human terms, it owes everything that is worth-while. Home missionaries are planters of churches, and churches stand for the gospel of grace, the Word of God, for law and order. Home missionaries are never rewarded in this world; they are merely supported. None but God can truly estimate the full extent of their work. One home missionary organized more than one hundred churches in Kansas. Who can tell how much the State of Kansas owes to this one missionary?

Lumbermen, miners and needy foreigners are especially indebted to the home missionary as the following examples show.

The Shantymen's Christian Association may be considered as a home missionary enterprise. It visits the gospel, gives away Bibles and por-tions of the Bible and is entirely supported by voluntary contributions. In describing the work, one of their mis-sionaries writes as follows: "After choosing the largest bunk-house for our service, we went around notifying the men to come in. A number responded and listened to a message based on 1 John 5:11, 12: "God hath given unto us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son, hath not life." The meeting was not without visible results for one man openly professed conversion. Others accepted copies of the Gospels, and manifested a new interest in the Word of God. Returning to our cabin, we stopped at a Chinese camp, where seated around the table at their evening meal, we found six Chinamen. It was a great joy to hand them six Gospels in Chinese, and to the light in their eyes as they see quickly laid down their chopsticks and picked up the little booklets."

The work of the missionary among the foreigners in our country may be seen by the fact that at the present time there are in this country 15,000 Italians who are members of 300 Italian churches and missions scattered all over the country. About 250 missionaries are giving their whole time to the task of converting Italians, not to Protestantism but to Jesus Christ. In addition to this, there are nearly 20,000 Sunday School pupils, and a working force of a thousand men and women coming into contact with nearly a hun dred thousand more of their own people.

Average Citizen Is Slow to See Their Value and Usefulness to the Community.

NOT MUCH SNOW IN NORTH Geological Facts Which Are Some-

thing of a Surprise to the Average Reader.

By the figures of the United States weather bureau snowfall in winter in St. Louis. Mo., or in Richmond, Va., is three or four times as great as for the north coast of Alaska, while we believe that the snowfall in St. Louis or the highlands of Scotland is ten times as great as on the north tip of Greenland or on the northerly islands discovered by my expedition of 1913-18, writes Vilhjalmur Stefansson in the World's Work. In the north polar regions there is, to begin with, very little snow on the ground at the end of winter. We have already said that in some parts of the polar regions the temperature is 100 degrees in the shade in the summer. It would have to be a very peculiar kind of snow if a little of it more or less covering the ground in winter would last far into the spring. Of course, it does not last long, but disappears like magic. For three or four or five months, according to just where you are, you have green prairies and flowery meadows that are a delight to the eye, and would be delightful to every sense but for the unbelievable plague of insects-mosqui; toes, sandflies, horseflies and the like.

EXPERTS BUILD FUR WRAPS

Making of Crazy Quilt Nothing Compared to the Piecing Together of Bits of Skin.

Of course it would not be quite the thing to look a gift fur in the lining, or rather to rip up the lining and look at the under side of the pelt, but if the dollars that pay for the scarf or the wrap have been saved up out of your own pay check, it might be wise to do so, according to a jovial and friendly member of the "fur mosaic" workers. For it is in scraps and trimmings of fur that they work, setting together these discards bought in bulk from furriers who will not bother with them, says the New York Sun. Endless patience in matching and attaching, skill that is traditional and careful sewing result in a piece of fur that would put the most intricate crazy quilt of our grandmothers' time into the amateur class. Does it wear well? A friendly member of the Greek colony in Sixth avenue that makes this luxury fabric of scraps shruged his shoulders and said: "Why for you aska me soch thing? You should know. Fine for the looks.

Can make extra careful care, no-yes? Don'ta forgetta the cheap price."

Tyranny of Clothes Customs. Three hundred years ago Shakespeare could make Polonius say, with some measure of truth, that "oft the apparel doth proclaim the man." Certainly this sort of proclamation has been made less and less "oft" as the three intervening centuries have gone by. Almost before Shakespeare laid down his pen the doublet and hose, the swinging mantle, the jeweled sword and the fluted ruff of his time were sobered out of existence by the steadily growing Puritan influence. In the age of Queen Anne the apparel proclaimed not so much the man as the man's tailor, remarks a writer in the Christian Science Monitor. A century later still we have Charles Lamb brooding rather querulously over the mystery that a "mere melancholy ninth of a man," a tailor of Fleet street, should be able to tell him how many buttons he would wear on his coat, and tell him with an authority not to be gainsaid. Since the time of Lamb inch by inch and garment by garment the clothing of the modern man has been taken out of the range of his own free control and handed over to the tyranny of custom and convention.

Gaudy Advertising Sign Boards Along The Highways Are Well Called a Menace to the Traveler.

The order of the state highway commission, requiring the removal of all advertising sign boards from state highways by July 1, 1922, will meet with general approval. As a rule, these signs are placed with conspicuous disregard for the safety of motorists. Most of them defeat their own purpose. So placed as to compel the attention of a motorist, they draw his interest, not to the merits of the commodity advertised, but to the folly of obstructing the view at a crossing. While there is some doubt as to the scope of the order, it will have a beneficial effect upon the campaign to eliminate signboards which disfigure the landscape. There is and can be no objection to neat route, detour and warning signs designed to promote the usefulness of roads, but the gaudy boards which hide the view of the country, and even of the roads, from travelers, have long since sunk to the status of nuisances. In ordering them eliminated, the highway commission is merely responding to the weight of public opinion. Many

Seek Cheap Power Alcohol.

Gasoline users will be interested to know that the search for cheap sources of power alcohol still continues. A recent writer in Nature suggests that foodstuffs are too valuable at present for such uses, but thinks that waste land in Ireland might be used to produce crops to be utilized in this way. Arrowroot, cassava and corn are possibilities in tropical countries; and a number of cellulose materials, such as straw and sawdust, offer possibilities in industrial regions.

Lesson VIII. At the command of Elisha, Naaman dipped himself seven times in the Jordan and was healed of leprosy. In order to be healed of the leprosy of sin, human pride and vanity must be put away and obedience rendered to God.

Lesson IX. The king of Assyria sent a great army to apprehend Elisha because he had repeatedly informed the king of Israel concerning the movements of the Assyrian army. When the Lord opened the eyes of Elisha's servant, he beheld the mountains filled with horses and charlots of fire. "The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him, and delivereth them." "Lord, open our eyes!"

Lesson X. At the preaching of Jonah, the wicked city of Nineveh repented and God showed mercy. God's mercy and forgiveness should move us to preach the gospel to the heathen.

Lesson XI. The children of Israel prided themselves in their security and gave themselves to luxury and sensual indulgences. God sent Amos to warn them of the judgment which must follow. The Lord will bring the ungodly to judgment for their ungodly living.

Lesson XII. In due time the prophecy of Amos came true. The Assyrians came and carried the children of never returned. Rejection of God and the despising of His worship will be followed with judgment and destruction

The Tax to Be Paid.

Fear is the tax that conscience pays to guilt .- Sewell.

The tree growth on the streets of the average American town or city is ragged and unkempt in appearance.

while that of the suburb or small village often is not much better unless the planting has been done under municipal control, and the plantings on a street have been confined to a single kind of tree. The telegraph, the telephone, the electric light and the trolley car have added their share toward the mutilation or destruction of the good trees that were in existence at the time of their coming.

Faulty methods of pruning have caused disfigurement and ruin. "Success follows the careful planting of good trees which are given adequate protection and timely attention," says Farmers' Bulletin 1209, Planting and Care of Street Trees, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. "Every tree should be trained to its proper form while young, so that severe pruning will not be necessary later. Guards are necessary, too, for several years.

"To the mutilation of severe pruning has been added the destruction of many trees in centers of business because they excluded a little light, or made the store less prominent, or were somewhat in the way of using the sidewalk for merchandise."

Alibis Always Ready.

In India, where stealing is practiced as an art by whole bands and tribes, the thieves owe obedience to the naik, or chief, of their tribe, who directs most of their operations but usually does not engage in them. It is his duty to prepare the alibis, and he is always the chief witness when one is arrested. Convictions are naturally hard to get, but when it appears that the police have evidence against a tribe, the naik will decide which members shall surrender themselves and plead guilty. There is no appeal from his decision, and it is usually the less expert desperadoes who are selected as sacrificial goats. While they remain in prison their families are well taken care of, and their grieving wives provided with temporary husbands.

Should these prisoners give information to the police they had better never return home, for a certain fate awalts them. At any rate, any of them would rather spend his time in prison than in manual labor.

Bad Trend of the Times.

One feature of the home which has become a grave question with the social workers is the threatened breaking down of the relation between parent and child.

It is in the home that the natural affections are awakened in earliest years and developed into a habitual feature of the growing character. Lack of affection is one of the greatest blights on human character; so much so that St. Paul, when enumerating the woeful condition into which men bring themselves by deviating from the laws of morality, wind up by way of climax with the phrase, "sine affectione," which means "without affection."--Exchange.

When a call for the police comes in, the home which sent the alarm is at once flooded with light from the powerful searchlight, which also follows the burglar, if possible, when he attempts to make a getaway. Meanwhile an officer goes out in an automobile after the thief, whose chances of escaping with his loot are slim .-- Popular Science Monthly.

Good in Co-operation.

Flavel Shurtleff, Boston architect, emphasized the value of complete cooperation with state agencies concerned with public works. Through this it has been possible to develop interlinking parkway systems in conjunction with the state commission charged with the parkway work of the metropolitan district. The effect has been to rim and interline the town with wide thoroughfares radiating out into surroundings of natural 2-17-tf scenery, some of which is already held in reservation by the commonwealth. The water supply of Winchester occupies a somewhat unique position. Natural basins were secured and developed at a cost of about $700,000. and $900,000 have been realized in revenues since its creation, Mr. Shurtleff said. There is no habitation near the reservoirs and no vehicles are permitted entrance to the byways that border them. Work of reforesting the edges of the basins to preserve the snowfall is under way.-Christian Science Monitor.

A Picture of Stitches.

As part of a war display there was shown a large picture of a French peasant girl with a background of a typical poppy field, all of which had been worked on a motor sewing machine. The picture represented some 2,500,000 stitches; 13,200 yards of sewing silk were used and 315 hours' time were required to make the "poppy field" picture.
