THE BOND ISSUE SNOWED UNDER.

Public Sentiment Emphatic in Re- pudiating Plan.

The decisive defeat of the Bond issue was practically assured from the beginning. It was due to a number of causes, some general, some local, and the road end of the question had nothing to do with it. In our opinion, dissatisfaction with the present methods of conducting our public schools, and to methods that seem to be proposed for the future, constituted the main cause for the defeat.

The public school system has been called, and is, "The bulwark of our country's greatness." Universal education, at the expense of the public, will always be; but, there is room for honest disagreement as to how far public education shall be extended, and how far non-essentials shall be added to essentials; in other words, as to what properly constitutes a "common school" education.

Broadly speaking, Maryland, and Carroll county, are merely following in the footsteps of other states; only trying to keep up with the procession, the object of which is to advance public education to a high degree of efficiency and extent of scope, far above and beyond the original design of "public" education, and, as many think, far beyond the limit that general taxpayers should be compelled by law to support.

It is not true that the people—the taxpayers—do not want needed schools. The vote was not on that issue, at all, but on the issue as presented—$350,000 for schools, allotting certain sums to certain districts—sums that were considered excessive—for instance $150,000 to Westminster.

Neither is it true that the taxpayers do not want reasonable expenditures for roads, where needed. These two questions should not have been combined. They are distinct propositions, and should have been so presented. The taxpayers simply would not take them together, and downed both. Right or wrong, the voters felt that the road proposition was attached as a "rider" to the school proposition, in order to popularize it, and "put it over."

The first precinct (Sykesville) of Freedom, and Union Bridge district, were the only districts giving the Bond issue a majority, while Mt. Airy was nearly equally divided. We do not know Sykesville's needs, but Union Bridge actually needs a school building, and should have it. None of the other districts gave anything like a close vote, even Westminster going strong against, while the vote in Union Bridge was not strong for the issue. The figures speak for themselves.

Crop Conditions in Md.

Wheat and rye are in good to excellent condition. Wheat is heading in the southern counties. Rye is heading in the northern counties of the Blue Ridge Mountains, has headed in the central counties, and is blooming in the southern counties.

In Allegany and Garrett Counties sowing of oats was completed and the early-sown are coming up. Elsewhere oats are growing nicely, and are in good condition.

Pastures on the Eastern Shore are somewhat in need of rain; elsewhere they are good to excellent.

In Allegany and Garrett counties planting of early potatoes was finished and peas were planted, but planting of gardens and trucks continues. Elsewhere early potatoes, peas, gardens, and truck are doing nicely, and are in good condition. Peas are blooming in the southern counties.

Planting of corn progressed rapidly. Corn planted during the first week of May is coming up.

FARMERS' DAY AT COLLEGE PARK.

General Information of Interest to Farmers of Md.

Once again the farmers of Maryland will have the opportunity to visit our State Agriculture College and Experiment Station. Farmers Day at College Park has been an annual occasion for many years, always well attended and enjoyed by all the farmers, farmwomen, boys and girls.

Those in charge are making special arrangements this year to put before the visiting farmers the results which have been attained through scientific experimentation and research. This work is carried on in all the different types of work of the farm and home. It will be well worth the time to pack the family in the car and spend the day at College Park.

A large delegation of farmers are planning to attend Farmers' Day at the University. We plan to leave Westminster, at 7 A. M. There are two routes; by Baltimore, down the Reisterstown road, turn off on Fulton Ave., to go across the city to the Washington Boulevard, to College Park; the other route is through Catonsville to the Washington Boulevard by way of Relay. There is little difference in mileage and both roads are good.

All those who are planning to go should get a pennant from a representative in your neighborhood, or from one of the County Agents. Let's have 1000 Carroll countians at College Park, Saturday, May 27th.

College Park, Md., May 15.—In addition to the numerous demonstrations and exhibits which will be arranged especially for the occasion, Farmers' Day at the University of Maryland, May 27, will afford opportunity for the people of the State to inspect the Institution and its work in every department.

All buildings and laboratories will be thrown open to the visitors who will have a chance to see the many ways in which the Institution is serving the public. The barns will supply some interesting view of the live stock and dairy work which is being conducted. The experimental plots and orchards also will be worth seeing. The wheat plots where different varieties are being tested for yielding qualities will be of particular interest because of the recent demand from Illinois for a large quantity of Mammoth red wheat, one of the higher yielding strains developed by the University of Maryland Experiment Station.

Poultry demonstrations, combined with an inspection of the poultry plant, will afford an opportunity to discover the most profitable methods of handling fowls either in the farm flock or the commercial plant. Demonstrations at the barns and the meeting of the State Holstein Breeders' Association will be the main features of interest for the live stock grower. Beekeepers will have a field meeting at the University Apiary and there will be conferences and special exhibits for tobacco growers and horticulturists.

A free lunch will be served by the University. The address of the day will be delivered by Sydney Anderson, Chairman of the Joint Congressional Commission on Agricultural Inquiry.—News Bulletin, No. 196.

Government After War Frauds.

Washington, May 13.—The amount the government will recover from alleged war fund cases "will be many times the amount granted to defray expenses incident to their prosecution," the House appropriations committee declared today in reporting a bill carrying $500,000 for use by the Department of Justice as a special investigating and prosecuting fund.

Explaining the need of money and men assistance, Attorney General Daugherty told the committee as revealed by printed hearings made public today that about 275 such cases ranging from several thousand dollars to several million dollars were pending and that the total amount involved aggregated $192,000,000.

Urging speedy passage of the bill, so that the Department of Justice might be adequately equipped "for successful disposition of the cases" the committee declared those who had defrauded the government during the war should be prosecuted to the limit with all the vigor the government could command while those upon whom unjust suspicion might rest were entitled to know promptly that such suspicion was not justified.

W. M. Shops in Baltimore.

When the new shops of the W. M. R. R. at Port Covington, Baltimore, are completed, the shops at Hagerstown and Elkins will be abandoned. This will mean that about 600 men at Hagerstown, and 200 at Elkins, the most of whom are out on a strike, will be permanently out of their jobs.

The new shops are expected to be in operation, in about 90 days. Striking trackmen are said to be coming back to work, daily.

The widow's cottage, at Mt. Lake Park, Md., the most attractive piece of private property in the Park, was destroyed by fire, early on Tuesday morning. The loss was $30,000, with insurance of $23,500.

WARNING TO AUTOISTS.

Must Keep Numbers Clean and Readable on Cars.

A warning to autoists who have obscured or dirty markers—license number plates—on their cars was given this week by Motor Vehicle Commissioner Baughman. The commissioner announced that he would give orders next week for the arrest of owners and drivers of cars on which the markers are not plainly visible and clean enough to read at a distance of 25 feet.

Pointing out that obscured and dirty markers constitute a violation of the law, Commissioner Baughman explained that he sought to reduce the chances of reckless drivers escaping and hiding their identity after running down some pedestrian or after some other violation of the law.

The commissioner said that obscured markers on motor vehicles were becoming more numerous every day. The principal trouble, he said, was the desire of autoists to have bumpers on the front and rear of their automobiles and the carrying of spare tires on the hangers attached to the rear of the machines so the license cannot be read.

The Story of the Pageant.

"The Sheathing of the Sword" is an original pageant to be presented for the first time Saturday, June 10, at 3:15 P. M., on the new athletic field in Westminster. The theme is based on Milton's line, "Peace hath her victories no less renowned than War." Approaching through the aisle of the ages, peace and her attendants ascend the dais in the center of the amphitheatre. The Ancient Age calls forth the Victories of Peace from Greece, Rome and Palestine.

The first episode shows how the establishment of the Olympic Games in 884 B. C. brought a sacred truce to battle-torn Greece. It is interesting to note that throughout the centuries, war was not waged during the celebration of this great athletic festival.

The second episode portrays the dedication of an altar to The Goddess of Peace which actually took place in 13 B. C., during the reign of Augustus.

The third episode celebrates the birth of The Prince of Peace by means of The Gloria in Excelsis sung by a white-robed choir. Then The Medieaval Age calls forth a famous scene between Henry VIII and Francis I on the Field of The Cloth of Gold in which "the kings of earth clasp hands after grim battle." The Modern Age reveals the United States at peace today with all the nations of the world.

The hundred years of goodwill between England and the United States are presented. The friendship of Japan for our country is brought out by an interesting incident that occurred in 1910 when the school children of Japan drew up a resolution declaring that they would never draw the sword against the people of our country. The American Indians assemble in their Last Grand Council and smoke the pipe of peace, declaring everlasting friendship toward the warring tribes and toward the White Brother.

The friendship between North and South America is symbolized by the Panama Canal. The land divided—the world united." The meeting of the Atlantic and the Pacific is brought out by a dance drama and the twenty nations of the Pan-American Union advance with banners through the canal.

The last episode, presented by the future age, reveals a vision of the world under universal peace. A white robed multitude, carrying garlands, and wearing the olive wreath, surround the throne of peace declaring her ruler of the world. The pageant concludes with the singing of the world doxology of peace.

Shipments of Lettuce.

Shipments of lettuce during the season ending in April amounted to 12,266 cars compared with 11,288 cars to the end of the 1920-21 season. The increase was caused largely by the gain in shipments from California, the movement from the other leading States having been about the same during the past season as in 1920-21.

California, the only State to ship lettuce the year round, leads all other States in the volume of shipments. New York State is second in the number of shipments and Florida is third.

The active movement of lettuce to consuming markets extends from August to the last of April. June ordinarily is the month of lightest shipments, and the month of heaviest shipments are January, February, March and April. Nearly all of the shipments during these four months are from California, Florida, South Carolina, and North Carolina, although light shipments are made from Arizona. In addition, supplies of northern hot-house lettuce are received.

As the season progresses, movement begins from regions in the North. The markets during June and July are supplied mostly from California, New York, Washington, New Jersey and Michigan. In August and September the markets are supplied chiefly from California, Minnesota and New York. In October and November shipments come mostly from California, Idaho, New Jersey and New York, and in December the markets draw receipts mainly from California and Florida.

Gov. Ritchie will attend the dedication of the new athletic field of Western Md. College, Saturday afternoon, June 10.

PINCHOT WINS IN PENNSYLVANIA

The Republican Machine Gets a Decisive Defeat.

Gifford Pinchot, former Bull Moose leader in Pennsylvania, defeated Geo. E. Alter, the organization candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, at the primaries, on Tuesday. Pinchot owes his nomination to the state outside of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. His plurality will be in the neighborhood of 30,000.

United States Senator George Wharton Pepper, candidate for the unexpired term of the late Senator Penrose, was nominated by a large majority over Congressman-at-large William J. Burke, unofficial returns from 6236 districts out of the 7934 giving him a majority of more than 211,000.

After Mr. Pinchot learned that regular Republican leaders had conceded his nomination, he gave out a statement saying that "with no grudges to satisfy, no enemies to punish, and with the support of a united party," he would approach the great task ahead with "confidence that it can and will be carried through to the credit of the Republican party and the advantage of all the people of Pennsylvania."

The nomination of Pinchot is hailed as representing the passing of the old state organization, that flourished un-interruptedly under Senators Quay and Penrose, for many years.

There was but one victory in 25 years over the dominant political leaders than can be compared to his. That was in 1912, when his political mentor and personal friend, Theodore Roosevelt, smashed the machine built by Cameron, Quay and Penrose.

Gifford Pinchot's fight was a personal fight against a contractors' clique backed by Governor William C. Sproul. With imperfect organization and little money, but with the united sentiment of sixty-one out of sixty-seven counties of the State back of him, he defeated the contractors in their strongholds, Philadelphia and Allegheny, and placed their power in liquidation.

It was Pinchot and the State against the Vore-Leslie leadership of Philadelphia and Allegheny. They boasted that his defeat was certain. They conceded him the State, but figured his defeat by 150,000 majority in Philadelphia, and 80,000 majority in Allegheny.

Pinchot won his fight by a magnificent drive in those two strongholds. He carried ten wards in Philadelphia and held the Vore leadership down to a majority of less than 85,000. They had boasted of a lead for Alter of at least 150,000. In Allegheny, where the organization poured out its money with reckless abandon and where the Leslie machine worked day and night in a wild effort to swamp the Forester, approximately half of the expected majority of 80,000 for Alter was cut away.

The Firemen's Meeting.

Members of the Volunteer Fire Departments of all towns in Maryland are busy preparing to attend the 30th. Annual Convention of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, at Frostburg, June 7, 8 and 9. The Western Maryland city is planning to make this the greatest convention both with respect to the official program and also the amusement features that the fire ladders have ever attended.

Registration and assignment to quarters will occupy most of the first day of the convention, the opening session of the convention will be held at 8 P. M., June 7. On June 8th. the grand parade, the big event of the meeting, will take place, also the band contest. The election of officers and selection of next convention city will be held also on the second day.

The drill contest and pumping contest will take place on Friday, the 9th. Not less than 150 feet of hose is required for entries in the pumping contest, the winner of which will receive a prize of $150. Other prizes include a 1st. prize of $100 and 2nd. prize of $50 for winners in band contest; $100 for best and most apparatus in line; $50 for company coming longest distance; two prizes of $100 and $50 for companies making best appearance in line; and $75 for winning company in drill contest.

Among the varied amusement features are baseball games daily, dances every night, exhibitions of professional aviators, boxing contests, comic races, mummies parade, swimming contests, etc.

Frostburg is located in the heart of the Alleghany Mountains 2,600 feet above sea level, this guarantees delightfully cool weather for the convention, while the lofty mountain ranges surrounding the city will furnish a rarely beautiful scenic background.

The State School Board of Pennsylvania does not make appropriations for the domestic science and manual training courses. The Gettysburg School Board has therefore announced the discontinuance of these branches at the close of the scholastic year in June. Both branches have been part of the High School course for seven years, the first mentioned having been financed, for some time, by the local board.

BANKERS DISCUSS FARMING.

Maryland Bankers, on Boys and Girls Farm Clubs.

Atlantic City, N. J., May 17.—Casual visitors to the twenty-seventh annual convention of the Maryland Bankers' Association, which met in the Hotel Traymore today for a two-day session, might readily have mistaken it for a meeting of an educational association.

Instead of money, stocks, bonds, discount and percentage, the two major addresses of the day were on the subject of education and the keynote of the proceedings was service to the country, and that chiefly in training the boys and girls to be the better citizens of the future.

Judge Frank I. Duncan, of Towson, in making a report for the committee on agriculture, delivered a stirring address on the work and value of boys' and girls' farm clubs.

"Agriculture is admitted to be the backbone of the nation," said Judge Duncan, "and the farmer the banker's best friend. This idea of developing the country boy, of giving him a scientific view of farming along with his practical work, is nation-wide. It will increase in a short time many fold the agricultural resources of the country."

Judge Duncan narrated how three Cecil county boys, who were sent to the Atlanta Fair last year, won the cattle judging prize and will start for Europe on June 14 in charge of E. G. Jenkins, of the University of Maryland, and as guests of the Atlanta Fair Association. He spoke of the 394 negro boys in farm clubs who have produced, under supervision, corn and pork products to the value of $8,494.50.

The farm club boys of the State, he said, have produced foodstuffs of an aggregate value of $35,676.41 in a year.

In conclusion, Judge Duncan spoke of the meeting which club boys will have at College Park in August, and he urged the bankers to visit their camp. He asked for $500 to extend the work and contributions came so fast that Secretary Charles Hann could hardly keep track of them. In a minute, he announced, that the amount had been fully subscribed.—Balt. Sun.

An Enemy of the Pea Crop.

College Park, Md., May 15.—The pea aphid, an insect pest capable of multiplying rapidly enough to destroy an entire crop, has been discovered in commercial pea fields in Maryland, notably in Dorchester County, in numbers sufficiently large to menace the crop of canning house peas.

This announcement was made today by E. N. Cory, State Entomologist, following an investigation of the outbreak in Dorchester county at the instance of County Agent Warren Moore. The pest was previously discovered by the Federal Pest Survey in Delaware. C. C. Hamilton, Assistant Entomologist for the University of Maryland Experiment Station, is directing control measures in the infested district of Dorchester county and is testing the effectiveness of several new dust and spray compounds along with the standard established remedies.

In warning growers to be on the watch for the aphid or plant louse, Mr. Cory emphasizes the importance of killing the first lice by spraying as soon as the insects appear. Even though only one or two lice are observed on a plant, the necessity for immediate action is to be found in the rapidly with which the pest multiplies, says Mr. Cory. In large numbers they are capable of destroying an entire crop by preventing the setting of the blossoms or by distorting the pods, he says.

For the control of plant lice, Mr. Cory recommends a spray the use of three-fourths of a pint of nicotine, and four pounds of soap to a barrel of water. To be effective this solution should be strong, should be applied as soon as the lice appear and before the vines fall over and become matted and should be put on with sufficient force and enough nozzle so that every part of the plant is covered with all lice killed, he says.

The County Agent in every county where canning house peas are grown, is on the lookout for an outbreak of the pest and will notify the State Entomologist if assistance is needed.—News Bulletin No. 195.

Almost the limit to which labor strikes may go, was demonstrated in New Jersey, this week, when Forest fire fighters went on a strike for more pay, and permitted a fire to continue burning that had already caused a loss of $500,000, and which endangered the town of Woodbine.

The C. & O. Canal from Washington to Cumberland, will not be opened for traffic this year, due to the coal strike, as the outlook is for so short a carrying season that it will not pay to put the canal in order. The barges are tied up, the mules in pasture, and the crews have gone to other work.

The Cost of Labor the Key to Farmer Prosperity.

The following, from an editorial in the Frederick News, is true in the abstract, but alone it will not bring equalization of selling and buying prices for the farmer.

"The low prices created by abundant crops may seem a curse to the farmers. Yet if they continue, they make conditions so much easier for people living in towns and cities that consumption of staples is much increased. Also low food prices tend to reduce the cost of producing manufactured goods, so that the things the farmer must buy will tend to cost less.

The best thing the farmers can do for prosperity at this time, next to raising abundant food, is to create such improved systems of distribution that the farmers could get a larger share of the price the consumers pay. If that could be achieved, the farmers could buy more factory products, and thus give work to many now unemployed. Setting more people to work in the factories would react on the farms and create a demand for more food. Ample production and better distribution should be the watchwords on the farm."

The farmer can secure all the economy in distribution that is possible, and yet this will not very materially add to his profits. Distribution, free of cost, is an impossibility, and lambast the middle-man all we please, he is a necessary evil, to a considerable extent, no matter how we may disguise him under another name.

What the farmer needs, more than anything else, is lower buying prices, and these must be looked for far beyond the manufacturer, the jobber, the retailer, and the carrier. The cost of labor is the starting point.

No farm "bloc" in Congress, no combination in selling, no pooling of handling facilities, will reach the cost of labor in the mines, the manufacturing establishments, and with the railroads. To put it plainly, unionized labor is the block in the way of farm prosperity; or, to put it in another way, there must be more competition for employment on the part of labor, that will reduce its cost.

It would not be a good thing for the prosperity and happiness of this country for labor, and the price for labor, to become demoralized and begging for employment. Labor of all sorts should be well paid and liberally employed—dignified and respectable, with full chance to more than merely exist. So, when we say that unionized labor stands in the way of farmer prosperity, we mean that unionism is, we believe, standing in the way of its own best interests, by holding out now for wage scales beyond the proper level, and that with a lower level and more general employment, not only labor itself, but the whole country, would be immensely better off, and that includes farmers.

Newspapers and "Wet" Forecasts.

Let there be no mistake about it, that, until after the fall elections, there will be a great deal of misrepresentation with reference to prohibition, and the liquor question generally, in many, if not most, of the city dailies. These papers are undoubtedly "wet" to a pronounced degree. Whether due to financial influence from an organized body, or bodies, interested in the sale of liquors, or whether it is because of a preponderance of "wet" sentiment in the cities, we do not know.

But, there is a special influence back of these papers. The editors do not "just happen" to be so unanimously "wet." They are not representing their individual opinions, nor those of the ownership of the papers. There is "pay" somewhere in the propaganda, and the campaign is for the purpose of helping to nominate "wet" candidates for Congress and afterwards electing them.

This is the year of the big last-ditch fight. Unless sufficient interest and force be aroused this year to upset the Volstead act, it never will be upset, and the "wet" crowd knows it. Therefore, even small favors in the way of sentiment for "light wines and beer" will be thankfully received, and larger ones in proportion.

The propaganda will be insidious, rather than open. There are not likely to be many, clearly distinguishable, out-and-out "wet" editorials, nor even very strong play on "personal liberty" appeals. The effort is likely to be made largely through first-page articles, playing up so-called "failures" of prohibition, the "impossibility" of enforcing it, the increase in "criminality" and "insanity" since prohibition, etc., etc., as well as opinions of "eminent" men and "professional" men favorable to a more liberal construction of the enforcement act. No man, of any prominence at all, who has anything to say against the Volstead act, need go without a public herald—he will have a season pass to preferred position in many of the big papers that the masses read.

Baltimore Newspaper Men will Never be Presidents.

President Harding has solved the day-light saving problem! David Lawrence, the noted special correspondent for big newspapers, says his solution is a "novel" one! The clocks are not turned forward, yet an hour is gained in the afternoon! The President simply suggests that everybody get up an hour earlier, go to work an hour earlier, and quit work an hour earlier. How simple, yet how remarkable for the President to conceive such an easy solution to so complex a question!

President Harding is a newspaper man who happened to become President. Evidently, there are some newspaper men in Baltimore who will never be President, because they could not think of such a novel way of saving day-light—couldn't think of anything but moving the hands of the clocks ahead.

So, in Washington, the government departments, the banks and stores, will open at 8 o'clock instead of 9 o'clock, and close an hour earlier than formerly; while over in Baltimore the newspapers will still be congratulating themselves that they succeeded in "putting over" a monkeying with the clock scheme, even if it does mix things up. But, this is not the only specimen of the devious tactics of Baltimore newspapers.

The Easiest Way.

The trouble with most people is that they seek an easy answer to a difficult problem, says Bishop Page of Boston.

"The other day I was shown two lottery tickets bought by women. Thousands of people have bought these tickets. Millions of dollars are spent in worthless stocks, oil and others. So many young men, even well-trained ones, are impatient of the slow processes of earning money by constructive effort. They seek the easy way."

The easiest way is called, by psychologists and scientists, "the line of least resistance."

Usually it leads to failure. Are you, unconsciously, following it? Most people are.

You never saw a prosperous saloon with a door that opened outward. The door either opened inward or was of the swinging type. Saloon-keepers instinctively recognized the principle of the line of least resistance—and made their bars approachable the easiest way.

Few persons will use the revolving door of a department store when a smaller door is propped open nearby.

Many a merchant, whose store had to be entered by climbing a few steps, has greatly increased business by eliminating the steps, making the entrance slope gradually up.

Conservation of energy is natural law. The human body recognizes this law and expends as little energy as possible—seeks the easiest way.

Without the human instinct of seeking the line of least resistance, there would be little inventive progress in the way of labor-saving devices.

Laziness is the father of invention. For instance the jack which you put under your auto axle when you change tires was invented by an Ohio farmer boy who disliked lifting heavy wagons by hand.

Virtue, carried to extremes, often becomes a vice.

The eternal human desire to find an easier way, while excellent up to a certain point, is the cause of most laziness—"putting it off till tomorrow."

Life's problems are very simple, easily understood. Encountering them, first seek an easier immediate way, then—if none is found—mobilize energy for quick attack.

A problem or job is difficult or easy, according to one's viewpoint. The perpetual formula for success is: Refuse to be dismayed or disheartened by the apparent size of a task. Tackle it as quickly as possible—immediately and with all available energy.

They Want Us at Genoa.

Thus far the Genoa conference has made bad matters worse. The conference is ending its fifth week with its eyes glazing and its jaw loosening.

In the last seven days Genoa has degenerated from a conference of thirty-odd nations into a duel between France and England. More exactly, it is a duel to the political death between Lloyd George and Poincare. They struggle for the hegemony of Europe.

Lloyd George is trying to "save face" with his proposed "mixed commission." He wants the Soviets represented on this body, but France will not consent even to this. The Gaul will sit nowhere with the Soviets. The Frenchman regards the "show" as being over and is not interested in keeping up the bluff.

Poincare is keeping Genoa from having a decent funeral. He cannot agree with Lloyd George on the type of coffin or the flowers to be ordered, or the width of the pallbearer's arm bands.

The principal interest now is in hanging the blame for failure on somebody. England is trying to place it on France. France is trying to place it on Germany and Russia. The preparation of alibis is going on.

No one is spending any time in tabulating the good done at Genoa. Assessing the harm it has brought is easier. It has split the Entente and made things easier in the long run for Germany and given the Soviets a further lease of life by enabling Tchitcherin to go back to Moscow and preach another "holy war" against such nations as have kept a shirt on their backs and a loaf on their tables. Also it has disappointed a horde of greasy concession hunters, who gathered over Genoa as vultures gather in the blue.

The anti-French party in Great Britain is wild with rage, while the pro-French or anti-Georgian party is rubbing its hands at the prospect of the Premier coming empty-handed from his trade-expedition. The French are back of Poincare as nearly united as a nation ever is back of any Premier.

It is not surprising that in this deadlock over the chilled corpse Europe on this "mixed commission" Atlantic to America. France suggests that we come and sit with Europe on this "mixed commission" if there is to be one. We may come on our terms, or on no term whatever, but our presence is earnestly requested.

They want us to help pick up the pieces, to save the "face" of the Old World and help them make a bad thing a little less evil. Europe has tried the job alone and failed.—Phila. Ledger.

Evils of Constipation.

Perhaps the most serious of the diseases caused by constipation is appendicitis. If you would avoid this dangerous disease, keep your bowels regular. For this purpose Chamberlain's Tablets are excellent, easy to take and mild and gentle in effect.

Diplomacy.

European diplomats met in Genoa a few weeks ago. They met as "diplomats" have met since statecraft made the first of that long series of mistakes which has bathed the world in blood for centuries.

In a word: They met with chips on their shoulders.

Premier Poincare, filled with the imperial spirit of the French Republic, came with ultimatums and demands, with open determination that no dotting of the I nor crossing of the T should be eliminated from the reparations.

Germany came with inward chuckling over a secret treaty with the Russian Soviet Government, her envy intent chiefly on picking a time of disclosure when they might create the greatest consternation. The Soviet's envoy appeared with a silk hat as a proletarian concession to capitalism, but he came without denial of the fact that 48 Bolshevik divisions were massed on the border of Poland, ready for an offensive.

David Lloyd George, the British prime minister, made the nearest approach to an attitude of good fellowship. But national aims were given the forefront in the attitude of each delegation; possible concessions were kept in the background.

European statecraft follows the customs of the merchants which have become predominant influences in that continent. It consists in each nation demanding the outrageous utmost, with the inward expectation on each side that dickering will ultimately reach a fifty-fifty basis of agreement. Sometimes that basis is not reached, and war ensues. How much better it would be if diplomacy was straightforward, and if diplomats did not permit their heroics to threaten the real welfare of the people they represent.

"OIL O., TROUBLED WATERS"

Phrase in Such Common Use Today Can Be Traced to an Old Latin Legend.

"To pour oil on troubled waters" means to smooth out a difference or to allay a commotion of any sort. The original use of the phrase was quite literal and goes way back to an old Latin legend. Utta, a priest, was sent into Kent for Eanfled, the daughter of King Edwin, who was to be married to King Oswirra. The priest went to the bishop to ask his prayers for a safe journey, and the bishop, predicting a tempest at sea, gave him a pot of oil, saying:

"Remember that you cast into the sea this oyle that I give you, an anon, the winds being lated, comfortable, fayer weather shall ensue on the sea."

The tempest came as predicted and the sailors and passengers were expecting death every minute, according to the legend, when the priest, bethinking himself of the oil, cast it into the sea. In a second the waves became calm and the wind died down.

From that time "pouring oil on troubled waters" became a popular metaphor.

Honor Belongs to Frenchman.

More than half a century after the site of the present city of Rio de Janeiro in Brazil had been discovered by the Spaniards, Andre Goncalves, a Frenchman, directed the construction of the first house that was to prove the start of the capital of the great South American republic.

Goncalves had entered what is now known as the harbor of Rio de Janeiro on January 1, 1502. He thought it was the mouth of a stream—hence the name, "River of January."

In 1556 Durand Villegaignon, a French Huguenot, accompanied by a company of compatriots and co-religionists, set foot on Brazilian soil. He liked the country, and immediately founded the first colony of white men in that section of the world.

Set Up New Landmarks.

Satisfaction rewards every forward step by inspiring to still greater advance. Limitations become matters of history as the modern spirit urges souls to their full possibilities.

You have to be the director of your own future. You will do well to reverence the old landmarks. But you will do better to use them as means to establishing new ones. Cling to the old home if you must. Today more than ever the nation is looking for the fellow who dares and does what conviction suggests.

The whole world lies before you. Reach out and take hold of the great possibilities that lie just beyond the reach of the old landmarks. "Let knowledge grow from more to more" and you reveal it in wholesome, inspiring conduct.—Exchange.

The Reason.

A negro was brought up before the judge on a charge of disorderly conduct. "This man," said his accuser, "was going on like a lunatic last night; cursing, groaning, blaspheming, kicking furniture, shrieking, wailing. Nobody in the neighborhood could get any sleep." "What have you to say, Sam?" asked the judge. "Jedge," answered Sam. "Ah's gwine ter tell de truf. Ah done got a slight visitation uv religion. An' if Ah done talk louder 'n mos' folks it am becase Ah sure am fuder from de Lawd dan older men."

Lemon Bath Luxury in India.

In the West Indies a lemon bath is almost a daily luxury. Three or four lemons or lemons are sliced into the water and allowed to lie for half an hour in order that the juice may be extracted. A remarkable sense of freshness is given to the skin.

SEVERAL USES FOR ALFALFA

Experts Term it Nearly Perfect Forage—As Hay it is Unsurpassed for Feeding.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

"A nearly perfect forage"—that is the height of praise heaped upon alfalfa by R. A. Oakley and H. L. Westover of the United States Department of Agriculture in a new Farmers' Bulletin, Utilization of Alfalfa, just issued. And when the good qualities of this crop are enumerated it is evident that some such description is warranted. As a hay it is unsurpassed for general feeding; as a pasture it has a high carrying capacity and produces large gains; as a sowing crop it is valuable with proper handling; it makes excellent silage; and when ground into meal it is a good and easily handled feed. In addition to those good qualities it is of great value as a soil improver. Attempts have even been made to introduce it as a human food and as a medicine, but it cannot compete with other staples as a food and it has no special medicinal properties.

Although not detailed enough to make laborious reading, each subject from haymaking on through to alfalfa meal manufacture, and a consideration of fake and fad alfalfa products, is treated so fully as to give the reader a thorough understanding of the possibilities of this great crop. Those who are inclined to be too enthusiastic over certain uses will find reason in the collected experience of many growers and feeders to modify their views, for alfalfa is not a panacea for all the troubles of the farm and feedlot. Consideration is given to the needs of dairy cattle, beef cattle, hogs, sheep, horses and poultry, and to the crop in various forms, including hay, pasture, silage, straw, sowing feed, tea and meal.

Those who are interested should write to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, for Farmers' Bulletin 1229, which will be sent free of charge.

HOW MANY SHEEP TO A FARM?

Plan of Live Stock Production Recommended by the Department of Agriculture.

For 160-acre farms of all-arable land a plan of live-stock production has been recommended by the United States Department of Agriculture which includes 80 ewes (one ewe to two acres) along with 22 breeding cows and 12 brood sows. Arable land of the best class when used exclusively for sheep, can be made to support from five to eight ewes (with their lambs until marketed) per acre. On pastures suitable for either cattle or sheep five ewes may be considered the equivalent of one cow or steer, and the winter feed required for one breeding cow not in milk would be equivalent to that needed for about eight ewes.

GOOD FEEDS FOR FATTENING

Cane and Beet Molasses Tested at Iowa Experiment Station in Feeding Steers.

Cane and beet molasses are good feeds for fattening steers. The only question, in some cases, is whether it is economical to feed it in competition with cheap corn. Tests at Iowa experiment station, with two-year-old steers, showed a loss on every ration tried, but there was a smaller loss when cane and beet molasses were omitted from the ration in one set of feeding tests. Tests a year ago last winter brought this bit of advice: "Go slowly in purchasing either cane or beet molasses if the price is higher than corn, pounds for pound." If a feeder wants to use a pound or so a day per steer for an appetizer he can afford to pay more for it.

Watch the Ewes Closely.
Pregnant ewes should be closely watched and means devised that each member of the flock receive proper care.

Making Money With Hogs.
By making small fields and keeping each cropped, hogs may be raised with a minimum of expense.

Excellent Hog Pasture.
Dwarf Essex rape makes excellent pasture for hogs. A deep, rich soil is suitable.

LIVE STOCK FACTS

INTEREST IN BETTER SIRES

Records Show Campaign for Purebreds Has Extended to All States and Island Possessions.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With exactly 5,900 persons enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" campaign at the close of the calendar year 1921, records of the United States Department of Agriculture show a continued interest in this work which has extended to all states and several island possessions. During the year the number of live stock owned by the persons enrolled increased from about 400,000 to 750,000. The figures include both male and female stock. All of the males are purebred, and the females, which may be of varied breeding, are bred in all cases to purebred sires.

It is noteworthy that 56 per cent of all female stock listed in the better sires campaign are purebred. This figure is 1 per cent higher than a year ago. The effect of the use of purebred sires in reducing the number of scrub animals on farms is shown by the small proportion of scrubs in herds and flocks headed by purebred males. The figure at the end of the calendar year 1920 was 2.1 per cent and for 1921, 1.9 per cent scrubs in such herds.

At the request of several state extension workers a special report has been made for the last three months of 1921 with respect to progress by states. Enrollments of persons agreeing to put their live stock on a purebred-sire basis totaled 716. The greatest activity during the quarter was in Ohio, Nebraska coming next, followed in turn by Washington, Virginia, Kentucky, and North Dakota, in the order named.

The leading counties during the quarter were Hardin County, Ohio, with 100 persons signing enrollment blanks. Kittitas County, Wash., was second, with 56 enrollments; Belmont County, Ohio, 49; Grand Forks County, N. D., 47. Other active counties were Ellis, Okla.; Gallia, Ohio; and Lewis, Wash. These results make Hardin County, Ohio, with a total of 166 enrollments, the third highest county in the United States, the first and second being Pulaski County, Va., 446, and Greenville, S. C., 176.

The widespread interest in the use of purebred sires as a means of improving live stock is evident from the number of counties where the work has already gone forward. Live-stock owners in 548 counties, and, in addition, in the islands of Guam and Porto Rico, were participating in the work at the end of the calendar year.

HOW

NEW ELECTRICAL DEVICE BENEFITS DEAF PERSONS.

—An electrical device has recently been patented which, while small enough to be carried conveniently in the pocket, is said to afford very great assistance to those who have been unable to hear any but the loud-est of sounds.

The phonoper, as this device is called, consists mainly of a small earpiece or receiver, weighing less than half an ounce and fitting almost invisibly into the outer ear passage, a small transmitter, measuring 2 by 4 inches and a little over a quarter of an inch in thickness, a switch and a small light battery of high storage capacity. It is claimed that this instrument enables the deaf to hear the most subdued musical sounds as well as conversational and public speaking, without the faintest suggestion of that tiny tone usually noticed in sound-transmitting instruments.

The idea of electrical hearing aids is not new. Various contrivances have made their appearance for the last 15 years or so, but have had many drawbacks, such as the roaring and hissing sounds, caused by the excessive vibration of the large diaphragm, coupled with the general appearance of these contrivances with the large black box receiver held to the head by the heavy steel headband. In the phonoper the earpiece fits into the ear and, but for the slender silk connecting cord, is almost imperceptible. Even the transmitter, that part which collects the sounds, is carried completely hidden in a pocket without materially impairing its function.

The elimination of the metallic tones from the transmitted sounds has been accomplished by substituting a thin membrane in place of the metal diaphragm, an idea based upon the action of the human ear drum.

JAPS HONOR GOD OF FIRE

How Peculiar Religious Observance is Carried Out in Islands Ruled by the Mikado.

A religious observance in Japan peculiar to the coldest season of the year is that of bathing in cold water and wearing to and from the bath a single kimono of pure white, with a white band about the head.

The ceremony is out of respect to Fudo San, the god of fire, primarily. Those observing the custom carry a lantern and jingle a small bell as they go along the street. The season continues for 30 days.

The first 15 days of the season is called the daken, or great cold, and the second 15 days the shokon, or small cold. Most of those who go through the ceremony are young men, apprentices in some trade, who run to and from the bath, repeating the words, "Rokkon Shoyo," as they go.

The principal temple and bath is the one in Fukawaga Ku. The cold water bath there is open for women only until 6 o'clock in the evening, but at all hours in the day for men. Among the women are many young actresses, who pray earnestly for success in their profession.

How Deadly Gas is Made Useful.

By mixing tear gas, developed for war use, with deadly but odorless hydrocyanic acid, a powerful disinfectant, the chemists of the chemical warfare service have made a combination that can be used safely in sanitary work. Since the hydrocyanic acid gas kills the eggs of vermin as well as the vermin, it is one of the most effective disinfectants known. As it has no taste or smell and produces no discomfort when breathed, the first indication of its presence in the atmosphere is the collapse of the person breathing it. Tear gas is detected instantly by its irritant effect on the eyes even when the air contains only minute amounts, and the combination of the two can thus be escaped before the cyanide has a chance to act.

How Changes Affect Humanity.

Nations develop skill, prosperity, power, for awhile; then retrograde, while other nations develop.

The earth, first a ball of fire from the sun, cooled a crust; huge vegetation and animals developed. As the crust thickened, less heat has diminished size but increased qualities of plants, animals, mankind. When the earth becomes too cool to supply ample sustenance the human race must retrograde.

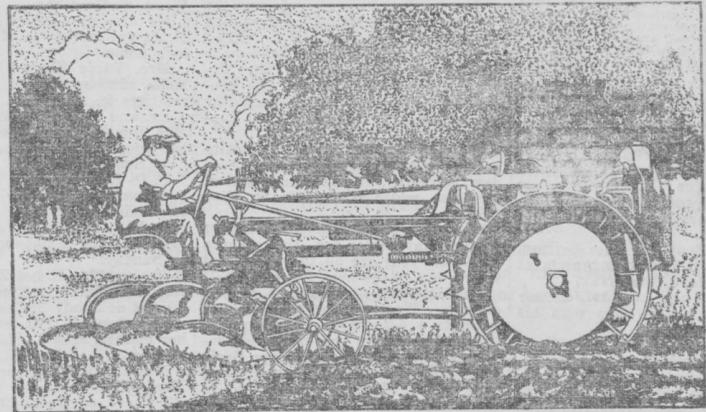

Finally our solar system will become a lifeless frozen waste. But other systems will be developed somewhere in the universe.

How Wall Street Will Guard Funds.

The Wall street messenger boy who loses or mislays the fortune in securities which is entrusted to him is soon to be replaced by a bullet-proof armored car, carrying a chauffeur and two armed guards, according to an announcement by the National Surety company. No attempt will be made by this firm to carry all of the financial district's securities, as only those of its own patrons will be transported, but it is believed that the move for greater safety will be followed by other concerns.

If you want to make a profitable investment in farm power, come in and look at the MOLINE. And remember that—

If desired you can use the "drag behind" or horse-drawn implements you now have with the Moline tractor the same as with other types of tractors.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

The Alumni Association of Blue Ridge College met in a big rally on Saturday, at the school buildings. After a meeting which sparkled with enthusiasm and loyalty toward their Alma Mater, some definite plans were formulated to assist in the development of a greater Blue Ridge for the ensuing years. Arrangements were made to increase the number of the student body, and steps were also taken to increase the present endowment two hundred thousand dollars. A fine luncheon was served on the campus to the Alumni members and the student body.

HARNEY.

On last Sunday one week the C. E. Society had a special program, at their evening service, consisting of special readings, special talks on different topics, and special music, among which was a solo by Miss Emma Strickhouser.

On last Thursday of last week our school gave a play entitled "Married Life." Those having part in it are certainly to be congratulated. The play consisted of three acts and was a two-hour play. During the entire time not a single hitch was noticeable but all seemed to carry their parts almost like professionals. We are proud of our teachers and proud of their work, but we are sorry that the grades do not go higher; but it seems to make little difference. We have been informed that the pupils who graduated from our school, in taking the examination for teachers, passed with higher percentage than many of the high school graduates.

Miss Shultz, who has been visiting at Elmer LeGore's, is seriously ill with pneumonia at this writing. She is a nurse, and had just come off a long case and came here to rest up, before taking another. She is a sister of Mrs. Strickhouser and Mrs. Mervin Boyd.

Early in his career he learned to "yes" or "no" and means it, and was therefore successful in business.

Last week, William Forney, the oldest man in our community, got what might have been a serious fall. He is nearing 89 and is very much crippled up. While trying to get up out of his rocking chair, both rockers broke off at the back posts and backward he went, and his weight of 240 or 250 pounds brought him to the floor with considerable force; fortunately, after being helped up he was none the worse from the accident.

Very few of our people voted on the Bond issue, on last Monday.

Lumbago.

This is a rheumatism of the muscles of the back. It comes on suddenly and is quite painful. Every movement aggravates the disease. Go to bed, keep quiet and have Chamberlain's Liniment applied and a quick recovery may be expected. Mrs. F. J. Dann, Brockport, N. Y., writes: "I can honestly say that Chamberlain's Liniment cured me of lumbago a year ago last summer. When I began using it, I was flat on my back in bed and could not turn to the left or right. I had a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment in the house and this was applied to my back. It promptly drove away the pains and aches."

HOME TOWN HELPS

PUT TREES ALONG HIGHWAYS

Cogent Reasons Why There Should Be a Termination of the Present-Day Neglectful Attitude.

If you are short of sentiment, and think more about money than you do about the service that your soldiers gave you, even that is no excuse for being a tree slacker. Your help is wanted in planting trees along the nation's highways in memory of the services of all soldiers of the World war. It will pay you in dollars, if that is any argument. Property with shade trees brings a higher price than property without it. Roads with trees give comfort to you and your children and your children's children.

Shelter and shade are two of the blessings the trees give us. In these days of the scarcity and high price of fuel for our homes and schools, trees are an asset as windbreaks. A group of trees on the windward side of your building keeps it warm against the cold blasts.

The heat of summer is bearable with scattered trees and their shade along your paths. The attractiveness of any place is enhanced by trees.

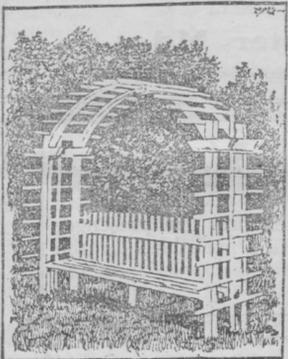

With a little care you can plant memory trees on home grounds, street, school lawns, or parks.

Trees cool and purify the air. Public forests have been used for health resorts because of the trees. If you plant a few trees together, happy groups here and there, they will reward you without fail.

FOR THAT 'GOOD OLD SUMMER'

Winter the Time to Prepare Furnishings That Will Make the Porch an Attractive Place.

"Winter's the time to enjoy summer," is an old adage which may be paraphrased into winter's the time to get ready for summer. Simple designs in garden seats and chairs may be made by the home carpenter during the winter months. The designs are simple in line and within the skill of the man who is accustomed to the use of saw and hammer. The flower boxes on the garden seat may be omitted or placed lower if desired for flowers rather than vines.

Fighting Fire.

For rural fires, when there is a delayed headway before the fire apparatus can reach them, there is nothing so good as water thrown by a powerful pump. All fire-extinguishing substances act by virtue of their property of excluding air from the fire. This is the only thing that makes water put out a fire, and the gas blanket formed by the chemical extinguishers is effective for the same reason where the fire is in a confined location.

Community Problems.

The fundamental problems of any community are based upon four things—production, labor, transportation, morale. Its prosperity, of course, is dependent upon production. Production in turn is dependent largely upon labor and is made possible by facilities for transportation. By morale is meant the spirit that permeates the people and gives them the will to succeed.

Beautifying Highways.

The Michigan legislature, in order to encourage roadside beautifying, passed an act which makes it the duty of the highway commission to look after the setting out of shade and nut-bearing trees. While thus beautifying the highways and at the same time starting a new growth of valuable timber, why not also urge the railroads to utilize their rights of way in similar fashion?

Approximately.

Hokus—Who wrote "Ten Nights in a Barroom?"
 Pokus—Aren't you thinking of "Twelfth Night?"
 Hokus—What difference did a couple of nights, more or less, make in those days?

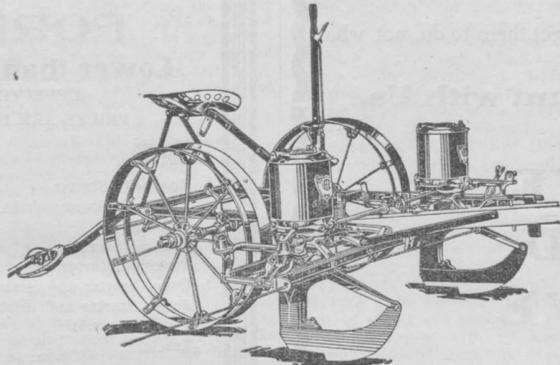

Not Then.

"I hate to hear a man talking to himself, don't you?"
 "No. If he's talking about his troubles I'd sooner have him talk to himself than to me."

Planter Profits.

After you have spent weeks behind the plow the disc and the harrow. After your fields have been worked down to a perfect seed bed, then comes the time to make planter profits. Big yields are the result of perfect planting every hill in its place year after year, the profits of good planting follow.

International Corn Planters.

Plant accurately whether set for checking, drilling or power drop. Without stopping the team the variable clutch can be set to plant 2, 3, or 4 kernels to the hill. Edge, flat and full hill plates interchange in the same hopper. The automatic marker requires no attention.

The tongue adjustments for leveling the boots insures an even cross check. Fertilizer attachments always available.

The City of Dreams

"What do people do to get acquainted?" Annie Laurie Ware thought desperately.

She was walking along one of those streets in Harlem where the buildings seem to form a canyon, where the avenues are ugly crosscuts, where there is no vista to rest the eye.

"Now, if I should just stop this man coming and say, 'I'm so desperately lonely that I'd like to cry,' I wonder what he'd do. Call a policeman, I suppose."

Annie Laurie had come quite close to him now, and she saw that he had keen blue eyes and two pleasant creases in his cheeks, that he glanced at her casually and that when he did she felt the blood color her face.

"Just as though he knew that I was thinking!" Annie Laurie went on disconsolately, as she turned the corner. "Now, if I looked back and he looked back and— Why, Annie Laurie, I'm scandalized at you!" she told herself.

She stopped a moment before a shop window; it was a very tiny shop with just enough glass to show Boston ferns, a feathery spray of lilacs and some narcissus blooming in a shallow bowl.

"He'd say, 'Would you rather have violets today, Annie Laurie, or just roses as usual?'"

"Anything I can do for you, miss?" Annie Laurie started. She realized she had stopped longer than she need before this window, and she blushed and looked down at her glove, which was quite white at the finger tips where it should have been gray, and hesitated.

"Yes, I should like a bulb," she said, boldly, "and some pebbles and a very, very little bowl."

"Forty-five, miss."

Annie Laurie just had fifty cents left and she realized with a pang

"I Must Have Some!"

that it meant she would have no lunch tomorrow—and she hoped there would be no delay with her pay envelope.

She smuggled her precious bulb under her arm and made the journey back to her room without further adventure.

"It must have sun and it must have water," she said aloud as she set it in the open window ledge.

She let the water drip over her bulb and heard an irritated voice ascend from the regions below: "But I don't need any water, thank you!"

Annie Laurie peered down, and the voice peered up, until she found herself looking into the very blue eyes of the man she had passed.

"Oh, it's you!" she gasped.

Then overcome at the betrayal of her words, she pulled in her head, and in her embarrassment dislodged her precious bulb. She heard it go rattling down the arcaway amid the sharp clatter of her pebbles, and as she saw her little bowl shattered into fragments she gave a heart-broken wail.

"I'll see what I can do," a sympathetic voice called up to her.

"Remember, Annie Laurie, how you were brought up!" she warned herself.

When, five minutes later, a breathless young man with laughing blue eyes presented her with a stubby brown bulb, Annie Laurie, with drooped lids that hid all the light of her dancing eyes, answered primly, "Thank you very much."

That was all.

That "thank you very much" precluded all other conversation. You couldn't talk about the weather suddenly or even about having seen a certain person before, so the young man thought, when a prim little guardian held the floor.

And Annie Laurie back in her room was lonelier than ever.

"I know he's nice," she wailed. "He has eyes like little Bennie, and his voice—and I shall just have to go on the same as ever, dying of loneliness, going down to the office in the morning and coming back in the evening, and wishing in the meantime." And she did.

The ache in her heart was getting harder to bear all the time, and if it hadn't been for the five dollars she could send each week to a little frame house in St. Petersburg, she might have given up the struggle and fled home.

Her letters were full of the charm of New York, of Fifth Avenue in the sunshine, of a shop window that was a glimpse into fairyland, of colorful East side streets and the mystery of the river after dusk—all this and more—Annie Laurie wrote about, while her shoes showed stubbed toes, and her little gloves had patched fingers and her hat—well, she refused even to consider it any longer.

One afternoon the temptation was strong and she stopped before the tiny shop and breathed in the scent of trailing arbutus.

"I must have some!" she told the bent old woman.

The little, bushy, fragrant sprays of sweet blossoms were tied in white tissue before she asked, "And how much is it, please?"

"Seventy-five."

She searched in her pocket and she felt in her purse, but all she could find was fifty cents. Her cheeks burned with embarrassment for there was another customer in the shop with his back turned.

"I think you dropped this!"

Annie Laurie looked up into a pair of very blue eyes and almost believed at first that she had dropped it. But this time she was forestalled.

"I believe you live on the floor above me, and I believe I rescued your bulb," he said quietly, "and I think if I'm not mistaken, you're Annie Laurie Ware?"

"Oh, but how did you know?" she asked in a shaken voice.

He did not tell her that any one could read a name on the letter box.

"I know you've never done anything like it before, spoken to a man who hasn't been introduced," he explained, "and I hope you won't do anything like it again. But I'm from the South, and I know you are—and I'm desperately lonely—"

It was the one thing that could have touched Annie Laurie Ware.

"Perhaps—" she hesitated.

"That's just what I think!" he finished jubilantly. They stood quite still outside the tiny shop, and the man pleaded: "I wonder if you'd let me get some violets, a handful or just a rose to celebrate?"

"Roses," Annie Laurie smiled, and then as he darted into the shop she repeated the formula to herself, "as usual."

They walked up the street together, and the man with blue eyes said: "Look!"

Annie Laurie gazed down from the heights at the street that seemed almost like fairy street at the other side of the little park.

"New York is an enchanting place, isn't it?" the young man asked.

"It's almost like a city of dreams," Annie Laurie answered tremulously.

The young man gave one swift, understanding glance at her face before they turned back.

"It is the city of my dreams—now!" he said.

WHEN THEY WORE IRON DUDS

New York Girl Had Simple Explanation for Costumes of Days of the Long Ago.

It was Thursday afternoon in the armor room of the Metropolitan Museum of Art. Perhaps this explained the presence there of two domestics. Twenty-five years ago they would have been known as "servant girls" and their appearance would have suggested their calling. But today they are domestics and as for their looks, the casual observer, particularly if he were a man, could not have told them from their employers.

Their hats were just as stylish and their silk-clad ankles were—but why go into details?

Just why they were in the armor room is something of a mystery, for they wandered from case to case in an aimless sort of way, thoroughly disinterested in everything they saw. Finally they paused before a lifesize figure clad in a full suit of armor. Their interest was aroused, but this interest was of the entire practical sort.

The fine workmanship, its antiquity, the beauty of the silver traced designs which covered each piece of the steel suit, all these were lost upon them.

"It must be a terrible heavy thing to wear," observed one, whose speech, like that of her friend, suggested the Irish Free State.

"An' the trouble of keepin' it clean; the rust an' everythin'," suggested the other.

"Do you suppose men iver wore such things?" queried the first with an air of incredulity.

"Sure," replied her friend, and then, as if the explanation suddenly occurred to her, she added, "Why, when you're fightin' mad ye don't care what ye wear."—New York Sun.

Invention of the Telephone.

The germ of the telephone may be dated back as far as 1837, when Page of Boston found that a bar or needle of iron would give out sound when subjected to rapid cycles of magnetization and demagnetization. The first electrical apparatus was described by Philipp Reis of Germany in 1861. He embodied the effect of Page's discovery. No advancement was made in the working out of the problem after Reis' work until February 14, 1876, when Alexander Graham Bell of Boston applied for patent rights on his magnetic telephone. The patent was granted March 7, the same year.

Why Some People are Poor.

Their ideas are larger than their purses.
They do not keep account of their expenditures.
They are easy dupes of schemers and promoters.
They reverse the maxim, "Duty before pleasure."
They do not consider it worth while to save nickels and dimes.
They try to do what others expect them to do, not what they can afford.

GOT IDEA FOR WATER WHEEL

World Greatly Indebted to Humble Cow and Man's Quick Perception for the Turbine.

The huge hydro-electric power development now reaching every part of the world owes its origin to a homely incident which took place in California many years ago, in which an early day miner and his cow were the chief factors.

History and legend relate that on a hot day in the summer of 1890 a typical placer miner of that period toiled on his claim. To supply water for washing the gold-bearing gravel he had provided a long length of ordinary hose, and as the fall above was considerable the water gushed from the hose with decided force. As the sun sank the cow came to the workings to slake her thirst, and was in danger of upsetting some of the sluices and other devices of the placer miner. So the man turned the hose on the cow. By chance the water blast struck the cow in her cup-like nostrils, throwing her head back sharply.

The man was Lester A. Pelton, out from Ohio on a mining venture, and later world famous as the inventor of the Pelton water wheel, the device which forms the basis of the great turbines which transform water into electric energy.

Pelton said many times that the idea of the invention came to him when he saw the effect of the water blast coming in contact with the cow's nose. Within an hour he was rigging up a wagon wheel with empty cans tied to the rim and was able to prove the value of what was later to be his great invention.

WOULD PRESERVE RARE BIRD

European Governments in Africa Unite in Giving Protection to the Whale-Headed Stork.

Whale-headed, or shoebill storks are remarkably rare birds. The American Museum of Natural History has received a skin and skeleton of one of these uncommon members of the feathered world. Only four other specimens of the birds are known to be in this country. They were all secured by Colonel Roosevelt and are all in the National museum at Washington.

The whale-headed stork is a large African bird found only in the papyrus marshes of the Upper Nile and along the northern edge of Lake Victoria and on the upper Luabala. It is uncommon, even where found, and very wild. It is now carefully protected by all the European governments which have colonies in Africa, special permission being required for hunting it.

It is of scientific importance for the reason that it may be related to the herons, and if so, constitutes a very remarkable link between two orders of birds. In appearance it is of gaunt, gray figure, some five feet in height. Its large head is surmounted by a little curled tuft. The expression of its eyes is scowling. Its huge bill, in shape similar to a whale's head, is tipped with a formidable hook.

A Sufficient Excuse.

There was a wild and frenzied scurrying. Men, white-faced and staring-eyed, fled as if pursued by a pestilence. They dropped whatever they had in hand and stood not upon the order of their going, but departed like frightened roebucks, hitting only the high places as they went.

"Why are the people fleeing?" he asked.

"A candidate who calls himself 'the Friend of the People' has just come to town," replied an innocent bystander who had no vote.—Kansas City Star.

To the Purchasers of a 30 x 3 1/2 Usco for $10.90

WHEN the "Usco" Tire announced its new price of $10.90 it carried this understood contract with the buyer—

A price reduction made in good faith—using all the U. S. advanced art of tire making not only to get the price down, but to keep the quality up.

Today $10.90 is not the uncommon price it was last November.

But the "Usco" Tire is still the uncommon tire value it always has been.

HILKIAH'S GREAT DISCOVERY

LESSON TEXT.—II Chron. 34:33. GOLDEN TEXT.—Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path. —Ps. 119:105. REFERENCE MATERIAL.—Deut. 6: 6-9; Josh. 1:8; Col. 3:16; II Tim. 2:15; 3:14-16. PRIMARY TOPIC.—How the Lost Bible Was Found. JUNIOR TOPIC.—Hilkiah Discovers the Lost Bible. INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC.—How to Make the Bible Our Own. YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC.—The Authority and Influence of the Bible.

About a hundred years elapsed between the reformation under Hezekiah and that of Josiah. Some time during this time the book of God's law had been lost. Two wicked kings had reigned in this interval. The Lord had given Hezekiah much wealth. His son Manasseh, coming into possession of his father's property, and being ungodly, would naturally neglect the Bible, if not purposely try to put it from sight. Those who do not obey the law of God, are usually interested in putting it out of sight.

I. The Book of the Law Found (vv. 14-17).

1. The Occasion (v. 14). It was while repairing the temple during Josiah's reformation that the law was discovered.

2. The Book Delivered to the King (vv. 15-17). Upon making a report to the king of work done, the king was told of the finding of the book of the law by Hilkiah, and the book delivered to him.

II. The Effect of the Reading of the Law (vv. 18-28).

Shaphan the Scribe read the law before the king.

1. The King Rent His Clothes (v. 19). As the law was read before him he was led to realize more seriously the awful extent of the nation's departure from God. He knew that sin merited punishment. The function of the law is to reveal sin. The man who will honestly hear the demands of God's law will fall upon his knees before God and cry for mercy. The reading of the royal robes indicated that the king was penitently sorrowful.

2. The King Sent a Deputation to Make Inquiry of the Lord (vv. 20, 21). The king included himself in the guilt before God. "Go inquire for me and for them that are left, for great is the wrath of the Lord that is poured out upon us." His sense of sin was so keen that he sent them to inquire as to whether there was any means of averting the judgments of the Lord. Instinctively the human heart turns from God's threatening judgments to a means of escape. The soul that sorrows for sin inquires for a way of escape. The law prepares for the gospel. The law is our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ. The soul under condemnation inquires, "What must I do to be saved?"

3. The Message of Huldah, the Prophetess (vv. 22-28). (1) Confirmation of what the law said (vv. 22-25). She said that all the curses written in the law must fall, for the sins had been so flagrant that God's wrath could not be restrained. Destruction was hanging over Jerusalem and it was too late to avert it. It was not too late to repent to obtain mercy from God, but the outward consequence of sin must be realized. This finds fulfillment on every hand today. The murderer must hang. His soul may go directly to heaven, provided he has accepted Jesus Christ. (2) Acceptance of Josiah's repentance (vv. 26-28). Because of his tenderness of heart and deep repentance, the Lord said he should be gathered to his grave in peace, and should not see all the evil to be brought on Jerusalem and its people. What Huldah said was true even though Josiah died in battle (35: 23-25). When God accepts a man and forgives him, his death is a peaceful one even though it may be on the battlefield. God's presence is with him and he thus will go straight to the heavenly home.

III. The Law Obeyed (vv. 29-33).

1. The King Read the Law (vv. 29, 30). He gathered together the inhabitants of Jerusalem, including the priests, Levites and elders, and read unto them the law.

2. The King Made a Covenant Before the Lord to Keep His Commandments and Testimonies (vv. 31, 32). This was done sincerely—with all his heart and soul. He caused all that were present to stand to it.

3. The king took away all the abominations out of all the countries that pertained to Israel (v. 33). All the days of the king they departed from following after the Lord.

He Will Save You.

When you feel as if things were dragging you down into the depths will you remember that the Lord Jesus Christ is at your side? All human help may seem very far away; but He is not far away. Even through the noise of the storm He can hear the faintest cry. "Lord save me, I perish," and He will save you to the uttermost.

Adversity.
Adversity is the first path to truth.—Jrnyon.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

From Moody Bible Institute Monthly Chicago, Ill.

May 21

What Christian Endeavor Does for Me. Matt. 25:14-30

Those who have received definite and direct blessing from the young people's society can add much to the meetings of the society by a good testimony concerning blessings derived from young people's work.

Among the possible benefits of young people's work are these:

1. A saving knowledge of the Son of God. This is pre-supposed and assumed in the words of the pledge, "Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ." These words are a confession of faith in Him as Lord and Saviour, and also an expression of dependence on Him for all things. Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid which is Jesus Christ" (1 Cor. 3:11).

2. Definite responsibility which calls for service and develops latent power. Many a useful and efficient Christian worker got his start in the young people's society. By faithfulness in little things he won the confidence of his fellow-workers and developed ability to handle larger things. Frequently this led to further preparation in some training school or Bible institute, and ultimately lead to definite Christian work at home or abroad as a life service. Some of the greatest Christian workers in the world have been prepared in this way. Their talents were not hidden through timidity or distrust, but developed by training and use.

3. Christ-likeness of character. The emphasis which is placed on spiritual exercises, such as prayer, Bible study and systematic giving tends to produce the above type of Christian character, the type which is so separate from sin and worldliness, that the doctrine of God our Saviour, is adored in all things (Tit. 2:10), and beautified. The need for this Christ-like quality of life was never greater than in this twentieth century when so many cheap substitutes and counterfeits are being offered in place of the real thing. Ideals, rules and regulations are everywhere being presented until the glorified and risen Christ is almost lost sight of. Read with care Colossians 2:8-10.

DAMAGE DONE TO COLISEUM

English Writer Criticizes Action of the Authorities in Removing Ivy From the Walls.

For many centuries down to February 1, 1872, there was a solemn procession from the Church of San Clemente to the Coliseum in Rome, carrying the relics of Saint Ignatius, the disciple of St. John and companion of Polycarp, around the scene where on that date he had been devoured by lions as the first of the martyrs of the Coliseum. The spot where shortly after his death 115 Christians were shot down by arrows was marked, until 1872, by a cross which was then destroyed.

Ruskin's "Flower Wedding"

There is a beautiful passage about the flower in one of Ruskin's letters. "You will find," he says, "that, in fact, all plants are composed of essentially two parts—the leaf and the root—one loving the light, the other darkness; one liking to be clean, the other to be dirty; one liking to grow for the most part up, the other for the most part down, and each having faculties and purposes of its own.

Each Man Allowed Four Wives.

Servants are so inexpensive in Java that even a person in moderate circumstances can afford at least six. Europeans living in India and Java find the luxury of many servants difficult to give up when they go home, and very often stay in the East for that very reason.

According to the religion of Java, which is Mohammedan, a man is allowed four wives. But the H. C. L. has even reached Java, and the number of wives has, on that account, been cut down to a great degree.

If a nobleman marries beneath him he does not bother to go to the ceremony, but very kindly sends his sword or his hat to represent him.

HOME TOWN HELPS

CITY SHOULD BE BEAUTY SPOT

Traveler Singles Out Atlanta, Georgia, as Ideal Residence Town, for Variety of Reasons.

The importance of insisting upon making our city a cleaner, more attractive city and one of which we may be proud, was brought home to the writer while attending a national advertising convention at Atlanta, Ga. After making a tour of the residence and suburban districts, as well as the downtown business portion of Atlanta, I was very favorably impressed. It was quite evident that the citizens there are making every effort to have their city known, not only as a progressive and up-to-date center, but as one of the beauty spots of the South as well.

In our own Kansas City should we not take more seriously the suggestions of a just and successful newspaper and give more thought and attention to the cleaning up, painting and beautifying of our downtown districts? To my mind, the present is the critical period in the life of our great city, and we should be careful not to allow our interest in its financial welfare to overshadow our desire to be known in the future as the city beautiful.

Advertising is one of the biggest factors in business, but before we can take advantage of that means we must get our business, or our community, in such a condition that we are justified in offering it to the public. —Kansas City Star.

WORK FOR CITY'S INTEREST

Best Kind of Business Man Recognizes the Duty Which All Owe to the Community.

What does a business man owe to the city in which his business is located besides the payment of taxes? Nothing, some close-fisted and tight-lipped business men will say. But they are not the biggest success, nor are they the kind of business men who get the most out of life. The business men who make the biggest successes and who get the most out of life are the kind who believe they owe something more to the city in which their business is located than the payment of taxes, who believe they owe it what they can contribute of active aid in solving the problems that confront it, social, political or commercial. Fortunately for the cities of this country, there are many able business men who, disregarding the advice of the kind of business men who say that it may cause them to lose some trade if they take sides in a city's affairs, are devoting considerable of their time and their talents to doing something for the general good of their city. And the number of such good business men is growing.—Lawrence (Kan.) Telegram.

Plant Trees.

There is no question about the need, the value, the absolute necessity of planting trees in America. Any small argument against it is overcome by big arguments by people who know the tree subject.

There is but one question left—how many trees will you plant? You don't have to do the actual work. Pay your money to the American Legion. The boy scouts of the country have offered to take orders from the legion and plant trees, and giving money is the least of the task.

If there is anything you want to know that you haven't been told about trees, you are welcome to write the American Forestry association at Washington, and you will be sure of a courteous reply, and a quick one.

Home Owning.

If home owning is promoted the profit to the country eventually will be greater than any outlay so far suggested. It is an investment in practical patriotism. It means more young men growing up in the country with an intense practical loyalty to the nation and its institutions. It means unity and strength based upon appreciation of service rather than disaffection and weakness due to apparent contempt for such service.

Road Improvement.

The time is near when all main roads will be paved and lined with trees and shrubbery. This beautification movement is well along already, thanks to the splendid memorial tree campaign which will plant a tree for every American soldier, who served in the World war. We're now in the era of road building, and we soon will lead the world in permanent, connected highways.

CONFIDENCE AND CREDIT.

The "Ultimate Consumer" must Trust to Somebody's Honesty.

After all, real business is conducted largely on confidence and credit. The two are inseparable and indispensable. Very much is made of "cash" transactions, "large quantity" purchases, "direct to consumer," cutting out the "middle man," and other like expressions; but, back of all business expedients and regulations, there must be "confidence" and "credit" for the foundation of safety.

Expert buyers can reduce to the minimum the need for confidence, so far as their buying is concerned; but when their selling time comes, those who buy are not likely to be experts. It is quite out of the question that they should be. A big firm can, and does, employ expert buyers for every class of merchandise it handles; but, the class that we call the "ultimate consumer" is not in the "expert" class—he must depend largely on the "confidence" he has in the firm that sells to him.

A farmer purchaser is likely to be an expert—or at least a very good judge—of horses, cattle and farm machinery; but, when the farmer comes to the buying of household goods, clothing, paints, and the hundreds of items he needs, his expert knowledge fails him. He must depend on the honesty, the fairness, the truthfulness, of the seller—on "confidence" in the seller.

How can the average purchaser, thousands of miles off, with nothing to go by but a pictured and printed catalogue, get from it the confidence—the assurance—of a satisfactory purchase for his cash? We do not mean by this that all catalogue houses over-recommend their wares by the use of printer's ink; but we do mean to say that the catalogues are gotten up by experts in their line, and their descriptions are very apt to be as alluring and inviting as possible. The home merchant is known by his reputation for truthfulness and honesty.

His goods are actually on his counters for inspection before buying. He is "at home" to hear complaints, and "make good." Why should not "confidence" in him be stronger than in a printed description? Why should not his word, even be taken before the advertisement of a stranger?
