Get Permission to Hunt.

Every person who enjoys hunting, no matter how ardently, nor how care ful he may be not to shoot carelessly, or destroy property, should in every case respect the rights and desires of property owners. The argument that game migrates, and is not necessarily the personal property of the land owner, or tenant on which it may be dissatisfied, no matter how good times found, does not justify the hunter; for hunting involves trespassing on property that does belong to an owner, or

It is not difficult to understand how objectionable hunting must be to farmers, who have hard work to find the time to pursue their occupation and save their crops, and often can not hire help, even after offering high To such, the man with dog and gun, roaming at will wherever he pleases, shooting and enjoying himself, is an unwelcome trespasser, without any rights whatever, even though

Every hunter, therefore, should first secure permission to hunt. This is not only common honesty, but respectful and within the law-not only for hunting, but trapping. Farm owners, or tenants, and the boys and girls on farms, have first right to the game, without any question of doubt.

Railroad Men Return to Work.

The death of E. Garfield Rout, in Hagerstown, last week, is reported to have caused a break in the W. M. R. R. strike situation at that place. A group of strikers returned to work, on Monday, the outcome, it is said, of the assault upon Rout by Thomas E. Carroll, union leader in charge of the strike. Neither the railroad authorities or strike leaders are commenting on the situation, but it is believed that the strike may soon end. None of the boiler makers have yet returned, and these are the most need-It is claimed by some of the strikers that as long as these men stay out, the return to normal working conditions will be delayed for months.

LETTER FROM DETROIT.

Politics, Labor, Coal Situation and Other Matters.

I suppose that my friends among the readers of the Record, are thinking that I have given up my habit of sending a communication to you every now and then. The truth of the mat-ter is that, while I have often thought of writing an article, I could never think of anything to write about. Even now, I am starting in without any idea where I am going to land, but am trusting that I may think of something interesting to write about.

Five years ago today (13th.) I landed in Detroit. It does not seem that long, but I suppose the experiences we have had since making this city our home, have caused the time to appear shorter than it really is. The different customs, which I have written about from time to time, and the new kinds of work which we are all the time engaged in, seem to make time go fast. The difference in the climate also helps. Our winters are longer, and there does not seem to be the same division of the seasons as in Maryland. Of course, our being so much farther north accounts for this. Thus far, we have had a splendid Fall the finest of the five we have spent here. There has been no real cold weather, for which, on account of the coal situation, we are thankful, and hope it may continue mild for a long time to come. I notice you have trouble in get-ting coal in there. As far as I knom, nobody out here has secured, a full supply of hard coal, and as many furnaces cannot burn sofe coal, this makes the situation bad. I know quite a few people who are experimenting with oil burners, with varying success. Others are burning coke, and the rest burning whatever they can get in the way of fluel. Hard coal is quoted as high as $20.00 a ton, and Pocahontas, or smokeless soft coal from $12.50 to $14.50 a ton. The dealers all seem to try to keep the prices up as long as they can, but most everybody seems to think they put out of existence. must come down before long. We had keep our dwelling warm, and surely hope that this experience will not ing at 5c a pound in the stores, while you can get them from the street ped-dlers for $1.00 a bushel. Fruit of all kinds has been reasonable toward the for the home seem to be advancing slightly, while wages remain about

Work in the different factories has slowed up little, but this was ex- "wets" did not gain in a single "dry" pected, as it always happens so in the Fall months. There is, however, no scarcity of work as existed the last who has no job is in that situation because he wants to be. With the first of the year, and after all the changes of models are made, we all look for things to boom again. In the factory in which we work, the officials are making all sorts of changes, rearranging and placing new machinery, and otherwise preparing for the busiest year in the history of the company. And we believe the outlook is equally as good throughout the entire statement that the Newberry case match played a great part in the result here, true, but, there were other issues that also contributed to Senator Townsend's defeat, as well as that of liquor question the after results of the railroad and coal strikes and the heavy vote of those who are always are. I am satisfied that one candidate at least, owes his election to the promises that he made to the workers of the different factories, that if they would elect him he would surely get their wine and beer back again.

You would be surprised to know just how many "Reds" there are in a group of factory workmen. I know quite a number who openly boast of their sympathy with the Russsian gang, and are not backward in stating that they are hoping that the time may soon come when labor will get the better of the capitalists and treat them as the Bolsheviki is doing in Russia. These men are almost without exception also as "wet" as if they lived in New Jersey or Maryland, and all of them cast their vote where they thought it would do the most good.

Since my last letter, I had pleasure of greeting one of my beat friends in Taneytown. I refer to Rev. L. B. Hafer, who visited our city on the occasion of the meeting of Sovereign Grand Lodge, I. O. O. F., in September. To say I was glad to see him is putting it mildly, and I am sorry that he had to leave us as soon as he did. As my articles in the past have taken up more space than I had intended when they were written, I will York. endeavor to remedy this defect by

In Ohio, the "wet" amendment leg-alizing light wine and beer, was de-feated by 187,196.

In Illinois, a vote was taken on the question of modifying the Volstead Act, the vote in favor of which was about 2 to 1, against no modification. Illinois, Iowa and Kansas, voted heavily in favor of the soldiers' bonus,

The compulsory public school attendance law, in Oregon, was passed by about 13,000 majority. VOTE IN THE COUNTY.

Comparisons Develop Numerous Lines of Thought. The fact that Blakeney carried Carroll County by a plurality of 716, and France lost it by 805, tells a bg story, as does also the fact that Blakeney received 4088 votes, and France 1079 less, or 3039. Putting it the other

Another view of the party vote is had by making comparison between the vote for Senator this year, and the vote of last year, which showed party strength, on the vote for Comptroller, as follows:

Gordy (1921) Dem Bruce (1922) Dem Dem. Deficit. 936 Metzeratt (1921) Rep France 1922) Rep

Rep. Deficit By comparison with the vote of 1921 the total deficit for both parties this year is 3067. As the total registered vote is 13,350, the actual deficit, by comparison, is 6467, or a voting turnout of only 6 out of every 10 qualified voters, this year, for Senator.

Making the same comparison with the vote for members of the House. the figures show;

Gordy (1921) Dem Tydings (1922) Dem 3372 Dem. Deficit Metzerott (1921) Rep 5170 Blakeney (1922) Rep 4088

These figures can be carried out inthe same comparison as above, but they show on their face that while the Republican deficit by comparison with the 1921 vote, for France, for Senator this year, was 2131, the deficit on the vote for Blakeney, for the House was but 1082; and that the Democratic deficit on Bruce, for Senator was 936, while for Tydings, for the House, it was 1408.

a more or less profitless occupationbut the one fact seems to stand out ance." that our elections, after all, do not represent more than an approximation of public sentiment and that the kind of candidates nominated, and the issues involved, have a great deal to do with bringing out a normal vote. We find, also, that 6883 voted for Senator, while 7460 voted for candidates for the House, presumably showing that 577 were not enough interested to vote for eithed Bruce or France.

Children's Hospital Fund.

Among the meritorious objects asking for aid is the Children's Hospital, Baltimore, that is now raising a $300,000, fund for double capacity buildings. This hospital repairs brok-en children; straightens crooked and twisted backs, arms and legs; makes children sound, giving them a chance in life to earn their own living. It is doing a wonderful work but can accommodate only one in twenty of the applicants. There are now 8000 crippled children in Maryland, and four out of five of these can be cured, with proper treatment

Only about $25,000 of the amount needed is yet unsubscribed, and the counties are appealed to, to raise this amount. The Record has already sent in $5.00 and would like to send more, therefore makes the announcement that all sums handed in to this office will be forwarded, and credit given the donors.

Former Gov. Goldsborough is president of the hospital; Wm. G. Baker, vice-pres.; John P. Baer, Treas.; Dr. Wm. S. Baer, medical director; Geo. M. Brady, Secretary. A school is maintained in connection with the nospital, in order to mend the minds, as well as the bodies, of unfortunate little children. Can you help? Will you? If so, please be prompt!

OF BLIND POOL.

The Published List Shows Many Heavy Losers.

In the published list of creditors in the proceedings against F. M. Young, the missing "Blind Pool" operator, of Baltimore, there are quite a number of citizens of Carroll and Frederick county, who "invested" sums of from $100.00 to $3000., several of whom are residents of Taneytown district. There appears to be a prospect of getting back a dividend, providing the expenses do not eat up all assets in sight, and providing cash is supplied with which to make a fight. A news report of the outlook says;

"Contributions to the fighting fund of the Community Finance Company depositors continued to come in Friday. Thomas L. Girard, representing the creditors' committee, will turn these over today as a loan to Karl F. Steinmann, attorney for the receiver. If a sufficient amount has been received, Mr. Steinmann will use it to start the fight to regain several million dollars he believes can be attached. In that event, he said, he would retain the best legal advisors he could find in Baltimore. If the creditors do not show sufficient interest in the fight to regain their money the contributions to the fighting fund will be returned.

If Young had not disappeared on a holiday, Defenders' Day, it is probable that the assets of $176,273.42, which he left behind him, would have been diminished by almost one-third-$55,900 to be exact. This is shown in the schedules in bankruptcy filed Thursday by Young's attorneys, Baldwin & Sappington, in the United States District Court. Liabilities were shown as $3,563,644.34.

Both the Cumberland News and Times comment at length on the coming removal from Frostburg, of Rev. Seth Russell Downie, which will be some time in December. The News

"Rev. Seth R. Downie, pastor for the past three years of First Presby-terian Church, Broadway, tendered his resignation to the congregation Sunday morning to take effect on or baout December 17. Rev. Downie has accepted a call from one of the largest churches of York Co., Pa.

The departure of Rev. and Mrs. Downie and their family will cause regret not only among the people of the church, but also among the pupils of Beall High School. Miss Catherine Downie, their only daughter, is a senior at Beall High and is editor-inchief of the Karux, the paper published by the student body. Richard Downie, their only son, is a junior in the High School and is a member of the soccer and the basketball teams.

Rev. Downie held a high place in the esteem of the friends and members of the Frostburg Fire Department for the annual memorial services he conducted every year on the first Sunday of June in honor of departed members of the department. He was also popular among local Freemasons and was a frequent speaker at their social affairs. Rev. Downie was also a member of the Knights of Pythias and the Odd Fellows.

He graduated from Princeton University in 1898 and from the Princeton Seminary in 1901. As a result of his fine training together with natural talent, Rev. Downie is perhaps one of the most scholarly churchmen that ever served in this community. He is to go to a much larger church with 300 communicant members. addition to this large congregation, the Pennsylvania church also owns its own parish house and likewise a sexton's home.'

L. Crawford. There are 76 cases on the trial docket, 15 appeals and 30 originals. The trial of all civil cases was postponed until after the criminal docket, which will be taken up next Monday, until which day the petit jurors were excused. More than 100 witnesses have already been summoned for the Grand Jury, and the criminal docket will probably be large, but without any cases of serious moment.

Near East Bundle Day.

Near East Relief Bundle Day, for the donation of clothing for the sufferers from the Smyrna disaster and for the regular work of the relief or-ganization in caring for hundreds of thousands of orphans in the Caucasus, has been set for November 22, in Maryland, announces state headquarters.

Some idea of the tremendous need this year for clothing for these helpless people may be imagined by the people of Maryland if they could conceive the residents of a city twice the size of Baltimore, which now is computed to have about 800,000 residents, suddenly poverty stricken,, without clothing, without food, without heat and without shelter of any kind. That is the condition at present in the Near East and it has not yet reached the maximum for within a few weeks, 1,250,000 residents of Anatolia have been ordered by the Turks to leave homes and get out. This means that this number of people, men, women and children, will be cast out, almost without warning and must trek, they know not where, in the midst of wintre, for snow already has fallen in that section. It means that thousands of these people will die, of starvation or by freezing to death, that thousands of them will fall dead by the wayside as they tramp hopelessly away from their centuries-old homes.

All this great host of refugees must be fed and clothed and it is for clothing for them that Bundle Dav. Nov. 22, has been set on which clothing old or new, just so it is warm, is asked by the Near East Relief. The people of the state are asked to send donations, prepaid (to save the organization that expense), to Maryland Headquarters, Near East Relief. 14 W. Franklin St., Baltimore, Md. The people of Baltimore City will take their donations to the public schools and Pratt Libraries, all of which will be receiving stations on Bundle Day.

The Dissatisfied Vote.

The balance of power in this country, on election day, is held by the dissatisfied classes. By this we mean the organized, or partially organized, classes that want something from Congress, and do not get it, then show their resentment against the party in power for the time being, by voting for the minority party candidates. This has been true, for years, and will remain true, as long as being "against the government" seems to offer a chance of "getting square" over alleged grievances.

All of this means that voting is largely an act of transitory impulse, rather than an exhibition of carried out deep mature thought. Voting for, and against, the recent amendments in Maryland furnished a case of this sort. But few people knew, or cared, much about the actual results hinging on these amendments. Many voted "against" them simply because they were not understood, while others voted "for" them largewhile others voted for them large and two-year terms, as heretofore. ly because they appeared to offer a This is to arrange the system so that chance "to get something" not now to their successors will be elected at the be had.

In a dozen states, this year, this dissatisfied crowd voted against the government, for as many different reasons. There was not a single states, unless we may except the out-notably, not in Ohio. To some extent, labor unionists, the American stripes, made common cause, but nogreat National issue affected the re-

Compulsory School Attendance.

We believe that a reasonable compulsory school attendance law, is commendable. There should be no such condition as children growing up in ignorance, in these times, with ample school facilities everywhere; and the inclinations of parents and children to evade a reasonable education should be prevented by law.

However, no such law should arbitrarily apply alike in all cases, and the evidence and needs in individual cases should determine whether or not | hold for three years. The reason for the full penalties of law should be invoked. Absolute defiance of the intent of such laws, is one thing, while the needs of the home for the time been appointed for four years will be believe that in most cases of infraction of the compulsory attendance laws, absolute fairness and justice both reasonable law, and the future welfare of children.

We believe, also, that compulsory attendance in the public schools, alone to the exclusion of private, or parochial schools, or individual tutorship, is wrong, not only in principle but in freedom and justice. It is true that the public schools are maintained at public expense, but this does not necessarily mean that the public must patronize such schools. There should be option given in the way and manner of securing an education, as in other matters. The state provides numerous other public establishments but there is no discredit thereby attaching to private institutions engaged in the same line of activity, nor any penalty for patronizing them.

The law passed in Oregon at the election last week, compelling all children between certain ages to attend the public schools during their open term, in our judgment, represents a most radical specimen of unjust legislation, and deserves early repeal. We believe, also, that the laws of other states should be so framed, or amended, as to maintain a reasonable guarantee of school attendance for all children: but that except in cases of studied and aggravated voluntary opposition to such laws, circumstances should be taken into full consideration before inflicting drastic penalties. Unquestionably, parents have no real right to permit their children to grow up in ignorance, merely as a personal liberty. Children may not be owned and disposed of, like cattle.

The Fewer Elections Act Explained.

We clip the following from the Baltimore Sun, of last Friday, as explanatory by Secretary of State Perlman, as to the workings of the new elections amendment;

"There will be no change in 1923," said Mr. Perlman, "except that the Governor, Attorney-General and Comptroller, who must be chosen next fall, all will be elected for terms of three years, instead of for four-year Congressional election of 1926.

"In 1926 the plan will have been developed so that all State and county officers, except judges of the circuit courts, the Supreme Bench of Baltimore city and the Court of Apgreat issue applying in all of the peals, will be elected for uniform terms of four years. The term of none of these judges is affected by "wet" and "dry" issue, and even in the amendment and the only way it this the same result was not carried may touch them is under appointments by the Governor. This will apply to State Senators elected last year and Clerks of Courts and Regis-ters of Wills elected in 1919.

"Those county officials whose successors would have been elected in 1927 will find their terms unchanged. Their successors will be elected in 1926, but will not take office until a year after their election—and hold for three ears, that is, until 1930, when the four-year terms will begin. FRENCH FOUNDED NEW YORK?

Province Was the Original Settler of the Metropolis.

Several days ago your correspondent reported the invitation extended King Albert by Rev. Charles S. Mac-Farland, general secretary of the Churches of Christ in America, asking the sovereign to honor with his presence the celebration of the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of New York.

As a chief reason for his invitation Mr. MacFarland observed that the American metropolis owed its birth in large measure to original Walloon colonists. Of course, the Belgian newspapers have taken the liveliest interest in this bit of history and several of them, notably the Nation Belge, "It was designed to remove doubt have printed exhaustive articles on the subject.

It would seem to be a fact, however, that the real founders of New York were in reality people from northern France or, more exactly, from the ancient province of Hainaut.

It was, indeed, a man from Avesnes, in that province, named Tesse de Forest, who, in 1624, went ashore on the island of Nanatian with some three time have followed it. The Court of hundred Walloon farmers and artisans Appeals does not decline to receive who had brought their household goods and cattle from Antwerp, where > These colonists named the community which they formed there New Avesnes in honor of their home city. Later, when the Dutch crowded them out, the city became New Amsterdam, and was finally christened New York by the English.

> It has been suggested that a statue of Tesse de Forest be erected in New York in 1924.—Kansas City Star.

It who paid $885 for the materials, which were torn down and removed. This marked the passing of London's gates, except Newgate, which was not denor. There were originally four principal gates. The English metropolis, like most of the cities of the Middle ages, was surrounded by a wall and a entering the city by way of Aldgate. The old gate was then torn down and replaced by another, built strongly of stone, which in Queen Elizabeth's reign gave way to another, more ornamental than useful. It was this gate which was demolished in 1760.

Every year great numbers of travelers, not pilgrims, but merely people should not let any old prejudice keep in search of enlightenment and culture, visited this seat of antiquity to see the temples and the pyramids. And to facilitate their travels, certain priests or officials acted as guides. They took whole parties and attended to their housing and all their accommodations for the peroid of their jour

EGGS AND FOWLS PLENTIFUL

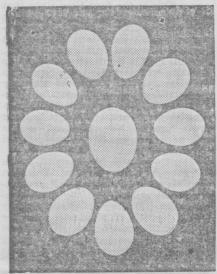

Storage Houses Are Full and Farmers Have Increased Flocks to Unusual Extent.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

This fall and winter eggs and poultry will be plentiful and prices should be low enough to make them economical. Just now storage houses are full of eggs and farmers have increased their flocks of poultry to an unusual extent. On August 1 there were 4,812,-248 cases of eggs in storage, which is about 35 per cent more than the aver age at this season for the last three

Eggs start moving out of storage in summer and the greatest sales of such eggs come in fall and early winter. As a rule, the bulk of storage eggs are sold before the first of January, the activity of the market after that date depending on whether the weather is severe or mild enough to stimulate eg production. An open winter practi cally eliminates the storage eggs early in the season. But this year, regardless of the state of the weather, egg: should be available at very reasonable prices from the start.

Poultry farming, both as a specialty and as a side issue on other farms, has been one of the best-paying lines of agricultural work during the last two or three years, which accounts for the large supplies on hand this year. Prices to the farmer, however, have

HENS ARE OFTEN DISTURBED

Interference With Nervous System Is Frequently Sufficient to Set Layers Back.

To a great many persons it will seem like going to extremes, but, nevertheless, it is true that interference with the nervous system is frequently great enough to cause a serious drain on the vitality of the laying hen, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Various things that interfere with the ordinary daily life of the fowls may be put in this class. Hens are often disturbed, especially those of the more nervous breeds, by the presence of strangers. Changing them about frequently from one pen to another is also a disturbing factor and will set the layers back, as will the mixing together of birds that have been separated for some time.

TREATMENT FOR SCALY LEG

Mix Kerosene and Lard Together and Thoroughly Brush Into Covering on Feet.

One of the most common remedies for scaly leg of fowls is to mix together kerosene and lard and thoroughly brush or rub this into the scales covering the foot and shank. It is rather harsh treatment, but will cure the trouble if repeated at intervals of a week. Some cases will be cured with two applications, while others may need several.

Probably the best remedy is oil of caraway. Mix one part of oil of caraway with five parts of vaseline. This material is very penetrating, but not nearly as irritating as kerosene. Rub the ointment in the leg and repeat every few days until signs of the disease disappear.

MITES ARE BLOOD SUCKERS

Pests Are Detrimental to Health of Fowls and Are Extremely Hard to Eradicate.

Mites feed on the birds, sucking their blood, during the night, but in the day retire to the dark crevices in the poultry house. Because of their blood sucking they are very detrimental to the health of the fowl. Thoroughly spray the house with some good disinfectant such as any of the cattle dips, crude oil, kerosene cmulsion, etc. Care should be used to get the solution into the ecacks and eark corners.

GROUND GRAIN IS ESSENTIAL

Less Work Is Required of the Gizzard and More Food Can Be Used for Flesh and Eggs.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A mash composed of ground grains or their by-products and some form of animal protein is an essential part of a ration for both growing chickens and laying hens. The reason is that birds putting on growth or producing eggs cannot assimilate enough nutriment from whole or cracked grains to supply the maximum need. When the grain is ground, little work is required of the gizzard, and much more of the feed can be used in making flesh or

The scratch grain part of the ration, however, is needed to give the gizzard something to do in order to keep the birds in health. For laying hens the scratch grain thrown in the litter provides an incentive to needed exercise.

It was once thought that the mash should be fed wet to produce the best results, but experiments have proved that in spite of the slightly better palatability of the wet feed, the convenience of feeding it dry overbalances any slight gain in production. Feeding it dry is now the usual method. Digestibility is not increased by wetting.

The principal objection to the wet mash is that it requires too much labor. It must be moistened, then carried to the hens once a day, and the troughs must be cleaned after each feeding. Cleanliness is absolutely essential, because indigestion and diarrhea will result from feeding in dirty troughs. On the other hand, the dry mash hopper may be filled once a week or even less frequently, and needs no further attention. Hens do not overeat of dry mash as they sometimes do

PROPER SIZE OF HEN FLOCK

Which Can Be Kent Most Effi. ciently Will Depend Upon Space Available.

The size of the flock which can be kept most efficiently will depend upon the space available and upon the amount of table scraps and other waste available for feed. It is a mistake to overstock your land, says the United States Department of Agriculture. Better results will be obtained from a few hens in a small yard than from a large number. The back-yard flock rarely should consist of more than 20 or 25 hens, and often of not more than eight or ten. For 20 or 25 hens you should have a yard 25 by 30 feet in size.

A constant supply of broken charcoal makes a good digestive regulator. Don't keep meat scraps in a warm,

The best medicine for poultry of any age is good care. The floor of the poultry house should be dry. It should always be well bedded with straw. A platform under the roosts keeps the floor clean and increases the capacity of the house. Old stone piles which are a breeding place for weasels are dangerous to the poultryman's profit.

Look out also for moldy wheat or grain mash of any kind left in the bottom of the hopper. This will quick-

When selecting breeding cockerels, choose the birds that matured early and show bright intelligent heads with short bills.

Patch the leaky poultry house roofs. This will improve the condition of the litter in the houses and help to preent colds and roup.

Isolate the first hen that shows signs of a cold and it will help to prevent other cases. Place the sick bird where the "ill not be for otten and neglected at feeding time.

Satisfactory Telephone Service

By "satisfactory" service we mean that the individual user shall be satisfied.

Telephone service embraces a variety of operations; the installation of telephones and changes in location; telephone operating; maintenance of the central office equipment; outside plant and telephone apparatus; accurate and up-to-date directory listings; billing; collecting and numerous other things that must be done to give service that will be complete and satisfactory.

Notwithstanding our aim to give the highest possible standard of service, we realize that at times difficulties will arise. Usually they are quickly remedied. But defects at times occur, which, in spite of our watchfulness, are not immediately detected.

Our patrons will confer a favor upon us if they will advise us immediately of such occurrences.

Some Dogs and Some Folks By C. B. WHITFORD

A big, fierce-looking Dane with a bad cut on his ham, limped into the doctor's office and asked if he could have his wound dressed.

"Sure, fix you up right away," said the doctor. "Bad cut, that; about four stitches, I guess," the doctor went on, as he examined the wound.

"What's that! Four stitches!" "Say, Bismarck, you ain't afraid of the needle, are you? Why, a great big husky looking dog like you ought to be able to have a leg sawed off without batting an eye."

THINK BEFORE BUYING LAND

Here Are Some Valuable Suggestions for Those Who Contemplate Establishing a Home.

Before you build it is necessary to have a parcel of ground. Too much care cannot be taken in the selection of a site. Remember, it is the spot on which you and your family will spend many years, at least that is the general supposition, for the building of a home is usually one of the highly important happenings of one's life.

Location determines the character of a house and it has much to do with the family's happiness and health. If the person contemplating building a home will observe the following suggestions when buying or selecting a site he will save himself a lot of future trouble and at the same time make an investment that will increase rather than decrease in value. Here are the suggestions:

Buy only in a section that is high, dry and healthful.

Locate in a neighborhood that is likely to increase in value and always be desirable for homes.

Ask about the water supply; where the water comes from, if the local system is modern and whether the supply is plentiful.

Churches, schools and stores should be convenient.

Find out if the section has all modern subsurface improvements; sewers, for instance. What is the tax levy? Compare it

CHURCH KIND TO BIRDS

In the quiet side yard of the First Congregational church, Admiral boulevard and Highland avenue, Kansas City, the church has placed a welldesigned fountain for birds. The fountain is a rendezvous for all sparrows in the neighborhood and their more aristocratic kinsmen. A sparrow, reveling in a bath, ducked out of sight below the rim of the fountain—the modest thing—while the picture was being snapped.

Autumn Time for Seeding Lawns.

Springtime is commonly considered to be seedtime, but with lawns better results often are obtained by seeding at some other season. Except, perhaps, in the northern tier of states and in New England, says the United States Department of Agriculture, early autumn seeding is much more satisfactory than spring seeding. South of the latitude of New York spring seeding should rarely if ever be practiced. There are good reasons for this rule. Young grass does not stool well in spring and summer and is not sufficiently aggressive to combat crabgrass and other summer annual weeds. In the area south of this and north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers the time is early in September. The reseeding of an old lawn should be done at the same season as new seeding.

Fire Prevention.

The general program of instruction concerning fire prevention is arranged largely for the benefit of school children. If these young persons can be sufficiently impresesd, much good will be accomplished. Yet there is much for the grown-ups to learn regarding the proper storage of coal, the removal of rubbish and other things which, experience teaches, cause fires. This campaign of instruction is highly important and should be given heed by all having the welfare of their comrunity at heart.

He Wanted Glutton Bread. "I want a loaf of glutton bread," said a small boy in a city grocery that keeps goods out of the ordinary. "What?" asked the astonished

"Glutton bread-the kind to take fat off," insisted the boy. "Some one told me that's the kind she ought to eat." Then he searched in his pockets and fished up a crumpled scrap of paper, which he nanded to the clerk.

The memorandum read: "One loaf of gluten bread."

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

Under the supervision of Marshall Wolfe, the College Library has been completely revolutionized. The numerous volumes, ranging upward to five thousand have been carefully congregated, numbered, listed and indexed. So feasible is this plan that any book in the library can be obtained without hesitation. No longer is it necessary to wonder whether a certain book is in stock. All you have to do is consult the index cards. Mr. Wolfe and his assistants are to be congratulated for this achievement.

Under the direction of coach Herre basketball practice is being carried on. Owing to soccer practice, most of the fellows are in good condition and already several hot scrimmages have been held. All of the veterans are exhibiting stellar form, and several new men look promising.

The Blue Ridge Soccer team lost a thrilling game to the Maryland State Normal School eleven by the close score of 1-0. Both teams gave a fine exhibition of soccer, and had it not been for a penalty on Blue Ridge, the game would have resulted in a scoreless tie. This was the first soccer game ever played by Blue Ridge, and as she was up against a powerful aggregation which was still inspired with 6-0 victory over City College, the showing was very creditable.

Our churches are both making preparations to have a play, some time in the future. Better go slow, or Christmas won't have any show at all.

It is plain to see that our young people will be kept very busy with their different practices, and the mothers are saying "always some-thing to keep the kids stirred up," and it does seem that amusements are largely taking the place of religion. What do you suppose our Grand Father's would have to say about it? But, of course, in these days almost any thing goes; and it is absolutely necessary to keep in the swim, if you don't want to be considered a back number.

testimony concerning that enigmatic sensation, the fear of the dark. Why is it, do you suppose, that two grown men, who have deliberately fled the great white ways because of the joys of the great unlighted-why should they prefer to stick around the campfire after dark? Once I slept alone in the woods for two months and at the end of that time I was no more broken from the faint distrust of something beyond the firelight than at in the world, my Adirondack camp. There were no dangerous animals, no dangerous insects, no snakes, no tramps. I took supper regularly with friends on the other side of the lake, paddled over alone under glorious heavens, and suffered no feeling of the nerves. But my tent was 50 feet back from the water's edge, and those 50 feet through darkness up the familiar path verged on the unpleasant. I ity to pick them for their parts. Durshould have left a lantern on the landbetter known to us as Miss Myrtle ing to light me home, but that seemed childish. There was always relief I had lighted the lantern in my tenta very slight relief, but actual. I never thought about being alone after the light was burning or minded waking up at night. I would like to know whether forest rangers, Yellowstone guards, nightwatchmen and all the citizens whose legal business is conducted after dark, have this same faint distrust of it, that is many degrees less than fright, yet a shade different from daylight ease. All our cave-men ancestors could not have been arrant cowards, lying in mortal terror at the approach of twilight. Yet anything short of that could scarcely have survived as instinct when so many other instincts have fallen by the way.-From T. Morris Longstreth's "The Adirondacks."

EGG PRODUCTION IN WINTER

Feeding a Well-Balanced Ration Is of First Importance-Greens and Exercise Needed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The pullets that are expected to be doing their bit in the laying flock this winter should have been put in winter quarters early in November and fed the sort of ration that will supply plenty of material for egg production. Every attention that will tend to stimulate laying is demanded by the pullets at this time, for a good early start may help to establish the habit of laying through a long season, say the poultrymen of the United States Department of Agriculture.

Good rations, however, cannot be expected to keep a flock laying properly if health conditions are not what they should be. Dropping boards and nests need cleaning and disinfection occasionally, and it goes almost without saying that there must be frequent changes of litter and always an abundant supply of clean water. A sick hen is about as poor a piece of property as a man can own, and many experienced poultry raisers go so far as to say that a sick one is less desirable than a dead one.

If pullets are a little slow in coming into laying it is sometimes possible to stimulate them by some changes in the feeding schedule. If the quantity of scratch feed allowed in the morning is cut down by one-half, it will make the birds hungrier during the day and they will consume more of the dry mash, which will frequently start them laying a week earlier than otherwise would be the case.

Another help is to feed a little of the mash wet at noon, as even this little variation seems to whet their appetites. The use of buttermilk in mixing this moist mash is one of the best stimulants to help start egg production. If the poultry keeper-feels that he does not want to force the birds too hard he may cut down on this moistened mash. It is possible that forcing too much on the feed may cause the fowls to be weakened in fertility, but few farmers and back-yard chicken raisers will be inclined to overdo this matter of feeding. A little stimulus in the beginning may have a great deal to do with getting the hens started in their work, and once on their way it is probable that they will keep on if well fed and cared for.

If the weather is mild it may be possible to feed the hens outside, and when this is done they will generally get plenty of exercise. When the birds must be kept in, feeding the grain in deep litter is the best way to get them to take the needed exercise. It is possible, however, to overdo such a good thing as exercise. Too much scratching and running around keeps the layers always hungry, and the de mands of the body are so great that egg making may be interfered with. The hens should go to roost every night with a crop full of feed, and usually a handful of grain for each hen will be equivalent to a cropful. Green feed is one of the essentials for laving hens and no good poultryman will neglect to supply it in some form or other. There is a great variety of this kind of feed, including cabbage, mangels, sprouted oats and cut green rye. It may be fed at noon, or such green stuff as cabbage and mangels may be nailed to the wall so that the birds may peck at it.

PULLET CULLING PROFITABLE

Main Points to Consider Are Long, Broad Back and Full Abdomen -Many Are Slackers.

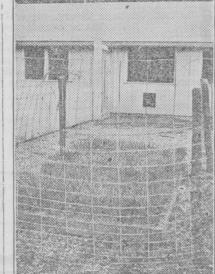

In culling pullets, the main points to consider are a long, broad back; full abdomen, deep, long breast; clean cut head; and a bright eye. Ten to fifteen per cent of the pullet crop can be killed without affecting the flocks prospects.

REPLACING BUGS AND GREENS

Poultryman Must Provide Spring Substitutes in Order to Secure Eggs During Winter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) In the management of hens it has been found that the largest profits are obtained if a good proportion of the eggs are laid during the winter. If two extra eggs a week can be obtained from each hen, a good profit will be made, and if the product is increased by only one egg a week in winter this one egg will pay for all the feed the hen eats, say poultrymen of the United States Department of Agriculture. To get this greater production use young hens of a good laying breed and feed the right sort of ration.

In the spring the production of eggs on the farm is easy. Chickens are usually on free range where they get all the green and animal feed they need to make a balanced ration. They also get plenty of exercise and fresh air. In order to produce eggs in the winter time, the feeder must provide substitutes for spring conditions Green cut bone, meat scraps, animal meal, fish meal or tankage furnish good substitutes for the insects and worms. Cabbages, turnips, beets, potatoes and carrots furnish excellent green feed at little cost. Sprouted oats are also good, but require more care in preparation.

Grit is essential to the health of fowls and also to economy in feeding. Grit in a chicken's gizzard is like teeth in a person's mouth—it helps prepare the food for digestion. An open box of this material should be kept in every yard. An abundance of fresh water is also necessary and should be kept in sanitary containers.

WINTER HOUSE FOR POULTRY

Openings on South Side of Building Should Be Covered With Muslin or Burlap.

On stormy nights, windows or openings in the south side of the chicken house should be covered by a drop curtain. The curtain should be made of muslin or burlap. The floor of the house should be covered with a deep litter of straw in which the grain is scattered in order to make the hens work. Keep a mash mixture before the hens at all times. This can be composed of a mixture of bran, shorts, cornmeal, ground oats, etc. To this must be added a good grade of meat meal which should compose 20 per cent of the mixture.

Always feed good laying rations.

Stimulants and poultry tonics are of no value if a good laying ration is fed.

The use of green feed in the winter ration not only helps to keep the birds healthy, but it seems to influence the following spring.

It is not hard to select the best pullets when culling the young stock for winter. Discard the slow-growing, crow-headed pullets which show their ack of vigor.

.O VOICE IN THE MATTER

Psychoanalysis Theory Fell to the Ground When Owner of Flaming Hat Gave Testimony.

The suburbanite and her friend, who was interested in psychoanalysis, were riding in the subway together. Their attention was drawn to a poor, winched-looking woman who wore a most inappropriate hat of flame-colored taffeta trimmed with a gold tassel. "It is always a mystery to me," said the suburbanite quite innocently, "why people select, to wear, the very last thing in apparel that was ever de signed for them. What, for instance, could have inspired that sad, colorless creature to flaunt a hat like that?"

"There, my dear," cried her friend eagerly, "is exactly where you touch the subject of psychoanalysis. Away back in the dim corridor of her ancestry that flame color was probably impressed upon consciousness. She knows nothing of that, but the urge is there."

"You mean that something subconscious has forced her to select that "Certainly. However, she undoubtedly would give you a conscious reason if asked. Just for argument's sake I'm going to ask her." "She'll be offended."

"I don't care. I'm sure she'll say something indicative." The friend leaned forward and spoke.

"I beg your pardon for seeming curious, but we have been admiring your hat. Wasn't it the wonderful color that made you choose it from all the others in the shops?"

The pale woman stared, stiffened, then relaxed as though too weary to be offended.

"I didn't do no choosin' of this hat," she said, finally. "It was giv' to me." New York Sun.

GYPSY BANDS IN HUNGARY

In Almost Every Village of That Country There Is One Whose Members Play by Ear.

Nowhere but in Hungary are found so many musicians who play without being able to read music.

It is to the gypsies that the world owes its appreciation of the true Magyar music. Leland, .the historian,

"The Hungarian gypsy has a deeper, wider and more original feeling in his music than any other of his European brothers."

In every village there is a gypsy band. The violin and the czimbalom are the instruments most used. The czimbalom was created by the Hungarians for the proper rendering of their music. It is used to accompany the violin. What the banjo is to our negro, the czimbalom is to the Mag-

In her essay on "Hungarian and Slav Music" Helen Ware says:

"They know music not as an algebra of black dots and dashes, but simply as a means of expressing their deepest emotions."

Tarantula Commits Suicide. A. S. Lanier tells of his experiences with a tarantula he had captured, says the Adventure Magazine.

"Placing the tarantula in a bottle, I started walking toward my office, holding the bottle in front of me and watching him. After about four attempts to climb the sides of the bottle he either threw himself or fell on his back. I stopped walking and, holding the bottle where the bright sunlight would strike full upon him, I saw a thick milky looking substance coming from his mouth. He then raised his two front 'legs' that are located directly in front of his head, and proceeded to dip his 'fangs' up and down, not sideways like other spiders, into the secretion. His fangs were curved just like those of a rattlesnake and. after dipping them several times, he pulled the two little legs over them and seemed to stick his fangs into them. He repeated this three times or possibly four and in less than a minute was stone dead. He had committed suicide.

Roman Woman First Nurse.

Fabiola, the first nurse recorded in history, was a Roman woman who established a hospital and convalescent home for the poor after her conversion to Christianity, about A. D. 380. She inaugurated a society of rich women and had them trained as sick nurses.

Nurses, who are addressed as "sis ter" on account of the old religious traditions associated with their work, lost their professional dignity in 1544. when 12 women were engaged at St. Bartholomew's hospital, London, to nurse the sick and perform menial work.

From that time nurses were untrained until the doctors at the New York hospital began to lecture them on "scientific cleanness" in 1790.

Language of Telegraph.

According to the results of a special study among telegraph operators, government investigators have determined that each operator has a telegraphic language of his own, differing in various particulars from the typical form, although all can, of course, understand one another. The greatest number of words known to have been sent in one minute by the Morse code is 49. The average sending rate per minute is from 20 to 24 words of four letters each. Skillful operators can usually receive faster than they can send, but with beginners the case is reversed.

What Is Earth Like Inside? Old ideas in regard to the high heat on the unknown inside of the earth may have to be revised, if the inconclusive evidence adduced by temperature tests in 107 deep wells in the United States by Dr. C. E. Van Orstrand, physical geologist of the United States Geological survey, should be confirmed by later investigations. According to this expert, the steady increase in temperature, so great that a miner could not live at a depth of one mile, appears to be less rapid a little beyond that depth. Combined with the fact that mathematicians have not yet found the law of distribution of temperature from the surface to the center of the earth, this makes uncertain the estimation of some scientists that the heat at the center is as high as 180,000 degress Fahrenheit. Observations at a depth of about 7,500 feet have been taken, but Dr. Van Orstrand has not been able to carry his investigations further.—Science Serv-

JATES FROM ANCIENT TIMES

Why the Unmarried Female of Today Is Officially Designated by the Word "Spinster."

The word "spinster" comes down from old English times, when the males and females of a family were described as of the "spear side," or "spindle side," from the different occupations of the sexes. While the men worked or fought, the women stopped at home spinning wool or linen.

In those days every woman, whether single or married, was a spinster, because in the literal meaning of the word, her chief work was spinning while the men fought or hunted.

Gradually the word spinster came to mean more especially the unmarried daughters, possibly because it was understood that they were spinring for themselves, and the future "bottom drawer," whereas the word wife meant literally one who had been a weaver, and therefore was not now. Later spinster stood exclusively for the unmarried, and in 1617 it became the legal term for such.

Tom's Occult Love

By JANE OSBORN

"Who's the pretty girl?" There were surprise and concern in Mrs. Claverly's tone as she looked first at the small photograph print and then at her nephew, Thomas Claverly, seated opposite her at the reading

"Pretty girl?" queried Tom. "I didn't meet any girls, much less pretty ones. "Why, in one of these pictures that you gave me to look at-here in this envelope that you said contained views of your shack. It's rather queer. There's a giri, big as life and twice as natural standing beside the cabin-that's perfectly clear, too, only the girl seems to be bigger than the cabin. Tom, what does it mean?"

"Let's see," said Tom, stretching a much tanned hand across the table. "To tell the truth. I hadn't seen the prints. I got them from the photograph man on my way home and didn't look at them. But the only pictures I took were of the shack, with one or two of Bob. There weren't any girls there. Good Lord! How the deuce-'

"Tom Claverly, who is she?"

"Blessed if I know. Yet seems as if I'd seen her somewhere. She looks familiar and yet-"

"Tom!" Mrs. Claverly looked intently into her nephew's face. "It's -it's-Tom. I never thought you were psychic enough to have anything like that happen to you. You know that medium had some pictures-'

"Now, aunt, you haven't been going to any more of those fool seances, lave you?"

"That's neither here nor there. But plearly this picture is one of thoseyou know, spirit exposures. Tom, did you ever know a girl that looked like that-who died?"

"Died? Goodness no! I have a port of an idea that I saw a girl that looked like that once, but she isn't

"Have you been thinking of her? Has her face been haunting your dreams? Tom, she's your soulmate. She may be alive, but her spirit is hovering near yours."

To all of this Tom said "Bosh." He did not admit that on carefully studying the face of the girl in the picture he recalled having seen her and having watched her at the hotel where he stopped on his way to his mountain retreat where he had just passed his vacation. He had taken no photographs on the way. That weather was unfavorable. He didn't even know the girl's name, yet he had to admit that he had thought of that face, that once even he had dreamed of her. However, he did not confide this fact to his aunt. And that was all there was to it for several days so far as Tom was concerned. He did not know that the next night, when he was working at the office, his aunt, Mrs. Claverly, went to another of "those fool seances," and that she carried with her, carefully wrapped in tissue paper, the picture of Tom's mountain shack and his soulmatehis occult love, as she called it. She showed it proudly to the medium, who in the course of the evening had a communication from a departed Indian princess, who made it perfectly clear that the girl in question was still among the living. But she was the soulmate of the man who lived in the shack. Her spirit was haunting

The medium asked for the picture, and Mrs. Claverly compromised, by promising her a photograph of it. This she delivered to the medium within a day or so and then replaced the photograph in the little pocket of photographs which had remained on the living room table. Fortunately Tom had not asked for the photographs in the time that elapsed and had apparently not discovered the temporary absence of the spook picture that so interested his credulous

A Sunday came and went, and then on Tuesday night Tom came home from his office in apparent excitement. He hurriedly fumbled through the pictures in the envelope on the living room table until he found the "spook picture." He studied it carefully, and then looked as carefully at a newspaper clipping that he took from his pocket and then opened and reador reread—a letter also taken from his

At dinner he was a little abrupt to his aunt. "Who has had those prints?" he demanded, and the poor aunt hedged, but had to admit the

"Did you know the fool medium gave the print to the newspapers, and also gave my name and my business connection? The whole thing came out in a Sunday supplement day before yesterday. Lucky no one at the office happened to see it. But I got a letter from the girl-"

"The girl in the picture—your soulmate? Oh, do let me have the letter. I must show it to the medium."

"Show it to nobody," said Tom. "You've messed things up enough

And that was all the satisfaction that Mrs. Claverly got from Tom. The next morning Tom announced that he would not be home for dinner. No, he was not going to work, he was going to make a call out of town; he might not be back that night. Still no satisfaction, and the next weekend he was away-"visiting friends," said Tom, and that was still all the satisfaction that Mrs. Claverly got.

Monday at dinner she was frankly repentant. "You have been so cool to me lately," she said, a little tearfully. "I am sure it was all because of that snapshot of yours. Honestly, I didn't know what the medium was going to do with it, and I think it was real mean of her to go and give it to the papers and to give your name and everything. But, of course, it is interesting-it's one of the best pieces of evidence of the occult that there has been for a long time. You've got to admit that. But honestly, Tom, I'm sorry if I offended you. I hope you'll forgive me-"

"Don't talk about forgiveness, aunt," said Tom. "Of course the fellows have been ragging me about it since they knew. It's given me a little notoriety that I didn't quite expect. But after all I'm much obliged to you and your medium friend. The laugh may be on her after all. But to change the subject, aunt, I want to tell you of my engagement. I feel sure you'll like her. She-"

"But, Tom, you'll never be happy with any one but the spirit girl, She'll haunt you and make you regret-"

"That's the girl I'm engaged to. You see-but suppose you let Eleanor explain. I've asked her and her aunt to come to 'ladies' night' at the club tomorrow. You join us and then we'll the general introductions over

And that was all that Tom would

At the club the next night, when the preliminaries of introduction were over with, Mrs. Claverly looked long and intently at the girl.

"Excuse me for staring," she said, "but I couldn't believe that you were really the girl in the picture. So you're Tom's occult sweetheart, after Isn't it wonderful to feel-"

"Wasn't it the funniest thing?" giggled Eleanor. "And we are so much obliged to the medium, too, because if it hadn't been for the picture I never would have been able to find Tom. You know how it was? You see, Tom stopped for the night at the hotel where my aunt and I were stopping. I admit that I was attracted from the first and knew that Tom had noticed me, but of course there was no way of our getting an introduction. Well, anyway, the next morning, quite by accident, I left my little camera in the lobby. "Fred Gage had taken a snap of me with it the day before, but we hadn't turned it. And Tom must have left his camera in the lobby, too, and when he went back for it he got mine. That was just before he went away. I knew right off that I had the wrong camera and I rather thought it was his. It somehow didn't look like mine. I was so anxious to find out what Tom's name was, but auntie wouldn't let me ask the clerk or look at the registration book. I rather thought he'd find that picture of me in the camera he took. He took one over it and made a double exposure. Then when my picture appeared in the paper, of course aunt insisted on our writing and asking him to explain. All my friends recognized it as me and teased me unmercifully about it. So we wrote, and right away Tom came out to see us and-well, won't it be rich! When we send the announcement of our engagement to the papers we're going to let them have the little story about the camera, not that we like publicity, but that will let the world know that there really wasn't anything spooky about the pictures after all.

because of course there never is-" And so impressed was Aunt Claverly by the fluency of her nephew's fiancee that she merely murmured. "Of course not."

Now what are the points upon which we should base such a judgment of towns? Just as a starter, we might suggest these:

Health, beauty, virtue, public spirit, educational facilities, social facilities, administrative efficiency, administrative honesty, progressiveness, minimum prosperity.

The health and beauty listed would not mean the health and beauty due to natural advantages, but the efforts made by the town to improve in these matters.—From an article, "Making Towns Fit to Live In," by Charlotte Perkins Gilman, in the Century Maga-

Windows of House You Build. In general, windows look best, both inside and out, if they are grouped. An occasional bay breaks the monotony of walls, both inside and out, and even in a flat wall the group of three or four windows separated only by thin mullions is far more effective than scattered windows.

There is no doubt that the casement type of window, preferably leaded, is far more interesting than the doublehung, two-sash type, or that small panes are more picturesque than large ones. Of course, small panes are is setting convenience above architectural charm.

To be thought of in connection with windows are shutters. Fortunately, the battened-wood or panel type is growing increasingly popular. WORKED UP OVER TITLES!

Britisher Tells of Tribulations He Suffered at the Hands of Inquiring American Lady.

I was quite exhausted the other evening when I had been properly cross-examined by an information-hungry young American lady about why a duke and an archbishop were called 'your grace," why marquises, earls, viscounts and barons were all lumped together as "noble lords," why it was that the daughter of a baron was called "the Honorable Cynthia Brown," whereas if she were the daughter of City?" It should be a cheap little the earl of Twickenham she would be the Lady Cynthia Brown, and what were courtesy titles anyway, and why should Lord Robert Cecil be just like a commoner whereas his elder brother, the marquis of Salisbury, was a real lord, so that a lord was not a real lord unless he sat in the house of lords; and why the eldest son takes the second title of his father so that the son of the duke of Devonshire is called the marquis of Hartington, and as they are all Ladies how is it possible to tell the difference between the wife of a baronet and his wife, or even the daughter, of an earl; and, of course, she knew it was not correct to call a lord a lord in his presence if you knew him quite well as "Jimmy," or "Toddles," or anything, except when introducing somebody to him or at a public meeting, when you came out strong with "His grace, the duke of Peebles," but otherwise at golf you would call him "old thing" to show you liked nuisance to have precedence so as to be quite sure you didn't go in to dinner before somebody else, and was it true-oh, dear, dear, dear.-Sir John Foster Fraser in Arts and Decoration.

TRICKS USED BY SMUGGLERS

Customs Officers Have to Be Very Wide Awake to Cope With Illicit Dealers in Drugs.

The smuggler of drugs has many tricks and wiles whereby he evades the law and introduces his wares into the country. A favorite method is to use artificial flowers for concealing cocaine, opium, and other drugs. One consignment of opium was smuggled through in the stalks of artificial poppies, while cocaine has been found in violets. Vegetables are even more satisfactory from the smuggler's point of view, for quite a large quantity of drugs can be concealed in a hollowed potato. Perhaps the strangest trick of all was the use of a stuffed dog. Probably it would never have been detected had not a watchful secret service agent seen the woman with Protection for the homes and boule- the dog open it and pull out a phial of "snow." German sausages have also been known to harbor other things besides meat. Not long ago a consignment of ink came under suspicion, and after a thorough search it was discovered that one in every ten of the bottles was a cunningly camouflaged receptacle for cocaine. Briquettes, firelighters, opera hats, pearance in smuggling operations, and one German smuggler even inclosed the drugs in a model of the Cenotaph.

But he never pauses or opens the bag. An inquisitive pedestrian followed him the other day to find out where he made his "pitch" or kept his begging rendezvous. He trailed the crippled one down Nassau street and up the stairway of a building occupied by a stamp and die factory. There the crippled one took off his leather satchel and handed it through the cashier's window.

He wasn't a beggar at all. He carries the payroll and the firm's daily deposits, amounting to hundreds of dollars, back and forth to the bank.-New

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 19

JESUS THE FRIEND OF SINNERS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 7:37-48. GOLDEN TEXT—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Christ Jesus came into the world to save REFERENCE MATERIAL-Luke 15:1-

PRIMARY TOPIC-Jesus Loves Everybody.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus the Friend of

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC The Sympathy of Jesus.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC -Jesus Helps the Sinful and Sorrowful.

I. A Penitent Woman's Act of Love (vv. 37, 48).

1. Place of (v. 37). It was in the home of Simon the Pharisee while Jesus was sitting at meat. The feast must have been public, else she could not have so readily gained ac-

2. The Act of (v. 38). She washed Jesus' feet with her tears and wiped them with her hair. Through some means she had heard of Jesus' pardoning grace, and God had opened her heart to receive Him as her Saviour. Out of a heart of gratitude she kissed His feet and anointed them with precious ointment.

3. Who She Was (v. 37). Her name is not mentioned. She was of a notoriously bad character. Though known to the public as a bad woman, something had happened which transformed her. She was now a saved sinner, because she believed on Jesus Christ.

II. The Pharisee's Displeasure (v.

happening at his table. He was a respectable man. For Jesus to tolerate such familiarity on the part of a woman of such evil repute greatly perplexed him. He reasoned that if Jesus were a prophet He would have known the character of this woman and would have either withdrawn His feet from her or thrust her back with them, or if He knew her character His tolerance of such familiarity proved that He was not a good man. Simon's righteousness was of that sort which gathers up its skirts and his filth.

III. Jesus Teaches the Pharisee (vv. eign lands. 40-48).

He taught him by means of a parable of a creditor and two debtors. Observe that Jesus made it very clear that He not only knew the woman, but knew Simon also.

1. The Common Debt (v. 41). The woman was a sinner, so was Simon, though he was not the same kind of a sinner that she was. There were two debtors, though the one owed ten times as much as the other. This is representative of all sinners still. The Bible declares all to be sinners, yet recognizes degrees of guilt. Full credit ought to be given to the man who is honest, virtuous, generous and kind. Yet such a life will not secure entrance into heaven. The Savior's words are a severe rebuke to the respectable Pharisees who are sitting in judgment against the sinners of a coarser type.

2. The Common Insolvency (v. 42). "And when they had nothing to pay" Jesus freely granted the difference in the degree of the woman's sins and those of the Pharisee, but drove home to him the fact that they were both debtors and had nothing with which to pay (Rom. 3:23). Therefore all have need of a Saviour. As sinners we may quit our sinning and hate our deeds, but that does not make satisfaction for the sins of the past. What we have done is irrevocable—it has passed from our reach. Every transgression shall receive a just recom- ; pense of reward (Heb. 2:2). We must come to our Creditor, God Almighty. and acknowledge our insolvency and accept the kindness of Jesus Christ who bore our sins in His own body on the tree (I Pet. 2:24). We are all other as to relative guilt, we should come to God and sue for pardon. 3. The Relation of Forgiveness and Love (vv. 44-48. Simon's reluctant answer to Jesus' question shows that he got the point of Jesus' teaching. In order to make His teaching con crete He turned to the woman, calling Simon's attention to what she had done in contrast to what he had done. Simon had neglected to extend to Jesus the common courtesies of a respectable guest, but this forgiven woman had lavished upon Him her affection and gifts. The measure of one's love is determined by the measure of the apprehension of sins forgiven. The one who is forgiven most

November 19 How We Can Help Home Mission

Work Galatians 6:6-10

We can help home mission work first by remembering that the field is the world; by lifting up our eyes and looking out upon the field. This we can do through the reading of the Bible and other missionary books. A study course in missions spiritualized by prayer and directed by a competent leader adds greatly to our knowledge of the field. We must not forget that missionary facts are the fuel for the kindling of missionary fires. Get hold of a few home missionary facts present them wisely to your society and you will do much to help home missionary work. We can help missionary work by giving proper emphasis to the present of fly paper is sometimes put around Scripture lesson which says "Be not the trunk and does some good for a deceived; God is not mocked, for what soever a man soweth that shall he also reap." The Apostle is not simply laying down a general principle but is speaking especially about penurious giving or stinginess and baneful effect upon life. Be not deceived in this matter of giving. God is not mocked. The law of the harvest operates here; sow much, reap much. Invest in the things of the flesh and you get a harvest of ashes. Invest in the things of the Spirit and behold, great is your reward in heaven, and great is your joy on earth. If returns seem slow be not weary in well doing. Sacrifice is the law of spiritual progress. It is enough for faith that God has said, "In due sea-we shall reap if we faint not."

How can we help mission work? By looking forward to a definite place and part in that work. The harvest is plenteous, but the laborers few. Simon felt scandalized by such a "Is it vain," asks a recent writer, "to hope that there may be found, young men and young women with hearts prepared and souls afire to step forth from the ranks and say, "Ready?" Surely not. The need of the world is met by contact with that need rather than by any contact on the part of others far removed from the need. Both are necessary, but he who can have personal contact with darkened hearts and give them the message of Christ and His salvagives the sinner a backward push into tion is doing the most for mission work whether it be in home or for-

is prepared as follows: Break two eggs into a measuring cup, fill it with sour cream, add one cupful of sugar, a quarter of a teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of baking powder sifted in one and one-quarter cupfuls of flour, add spices to taste and bake in gem pans, in layers or in a sheet. Sweet Potato Loaf .- Rice six medium-sized potatoes, season with two teaspoonfuls of salt, two tablespoonfuls of butter, one-eighth of a teaspoonful of pepper and one beaten egg. Beat well, adding hot milk or cream to make it of the consistency of mashed potatoes. Arrange in a loaf on a buttered pyrex plate and brown paupers, and instead of judging each in a hot oven. Serve from the dish garnished with fried sausages, arranged in V's, two sausages of uncut links. Curls of bacon may be used if desired in place of the sausages.

Frizzled Cold Boiled Ham .- Take boiled ham cut in very thin slices, place in a hot frying pan and cook until hot and well-curled. Serve with boiled sweet potatoes cut in lengthwise slices and fried in butter.

When making chocolate sauce to use in various dishes, the graining may be avoided by cooking the chocolate with a part of the hot water, then adding the sugar gradually and the remainder of the water or milk. This will also prevent the separation of oily particles of chocolate which sometimes float on the surface of hot chocolate sauce.

Marshmallow and Cream Dessert .add one-half pound of diced marshmallows, stir until well mixed, then set away to chill. Serve in sherbet cups garnished with a maraschino cherry with a bit of the juice or sirup.

A nice frosting for spice cakes is prepared with powdered sugar, a tablespoonful of softened butter and enough cold coffee to flavor and make of the consistency to spread.

TREES REQUIRE PROPER CARE

Merely Planting One Under Good Conditions Will Not Be Found to Give Full Satisfaction.

The lack of care of home landscape becomes most noticeable at this season. In this statement I refer to the care of trees on our lawns, says a writer in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. Many times we notice buckeye trees, as well as many other species, with the leaves all eaten off, after which a second crop of leaves appears only to be killed by the frost. This is hard on the life of the tree. The city has spent a great deal of money on the planting and care of trees, while the average citizen considers a tree a permanent fixture of the house. A band our town requires and can support. short time, then becomes dry and useless, whereas a band of cotton will last a full season or even several seasons. A band of cotton prevents worms from attacking the tree, thereby keeping it looking better longer. It is not "too much trouble" nor "too expensive." The average person will spend much more time on a few flowers, for which I do not condemn them, but they last only one season, while the trees that should last many years, die prematurely from the lack of a little attention. There is, of course, much more work to make a tree last its maximum life, but a little attention adds many vears to its existence.

HAVE STAKE IN COMMUNITY

Small-Home Owners Always the Most Stable Portion of the American Population.

John H. Puelicher, president of the American Bankers' association, remarked in an indorsement of a statement that "the most stable population of America has always been the smallhome owner."

"English colonists," writes Mr. Puelicher in the National Real Estate Journal, "secured the right to hold property-they became established. That ownership brought a higher form of civilization, a desire to live happily as a community of individuals, each respecting the rights of others. It brought greater contentment. It encouraged the people to work and develop their holdings, since the improvement and betterment of these result in reward to the owner.

"Today a man who owns his home or his farm is, in a measure, owned by his home or his farm. There are so many elements of respectability that come to him who finds permanent shelter for his loved ones. It is a force for law, since a home owner desires protection by law. He acquires respect for the property of others. He wants od sound government and desires to become an advocate of law and order. Ownership makes him vigilant. I think it was Gladstone who said: 'Property always sleeps with one eye

How to Plant Fruit Trees.

To plant fruit trees instead of shade trees it is first necessary to give the trees plenty of room. Two perfect trees will fill the back yard of a 50foot lot, and any other trees in that space will crowd them. One must be prepared to give more care to fruit trees than to shade trees, and spraying and pruning a specimen 26 feet high is quite a job. Pear and cherry trees need less attention than apples, but a good yield of fruit requires not less than three sprayings in a season, and sometimes more than that. The more vigorous shade trees will need no spraying at all, unless attacked by an unusual Insect invasion.

There is little doubt that the trouble given to mature fruit trees is well repaid by their production, and there is no doubt whatever that fruit can be produced in back yards equal in quality to any on earth and far superior to that obtained in the markets. because it can be ripened on the tree and eaten when just right.

Realty Ownership Thrift. We find fewer spendthrifts among the owners of real estate. They know that the mere filing of a judgment in the county clerk's office becomes a lien on their real property-not as if they could conceal their assets in some out-of-town bank and when they found their debts accumulating silently steal away. Hence, it is to the real-estate owners that the storekeeper looks for his best customers, and since, after all, the entire fiscal powers of the government are nourished by trade, it can readily be seen that home ownership encourages trade and stabilizes credits.-Exchange.

"MOTHER NATURE" AT WORK

Wise Old Dame Makes No Mistakes in Looking Out for Safety of Her Numerous Progeny.

A striking example of the effects of environment and changed conditions of life upon the forms of animals is furnished by a species of partridges living in the Canary islands. About Mother Would Have No Lassies in the 400 years ago the Spaniards introduced the red-legged partridge from Europe into these islands, but as recent examination proves, it has undergone modifications clearly brought unmarried sons, seventy-three and about by the conditions under which it

Its back has turned from russet color to gray. This looks like a case of protective coloration, since the bird passes its life amid gray volcanic

Then its beak has become onefourth longer and thicker than that of its ancestors and of its European relatives, and its legs have also increased in length and grown stouter.

These changes are exactly such as were needed to suit it to the life that it is now compelled to lead amid the rocks and on the mountain sides of the islands, where a more vigorous physical development is required than was needed upon the plains of England and France.

As has been remarked, if such changes can be wrought by nature in the animal form in 400 years, what might not have been accomplished in

PARTY OF FOUR WAS "MESS"

Term Used Most Frequently in the Army and Navy Has Changed Slightly in Meaning.

Orginally the term "mess," as applied to persons who are in the habit of eating their meals together, and thus particularly of the parties into which a ship's company or an army regiment are divided, was a group of four persons sitting at one table and helped from the same dishes. In the Inns of Court, London, the original number is preserved, four benchers or four students dining together.

In the navy it is usually convenient to have a captain's mess, another for the wardroom officers, another for the warrant officers, etc. The men's mess for the sailors or marines is styled the "general mess," but this is generally divided into sections, as a matter of convenience. It has become common to employ ammunition passers as mess attendants.

In early times the word "mess" was applied to food of a more or less liquid character, as soup, porridge, broth, etc. It is probably in allusion to the sloppy nature of semi-liquid messes of food that a mess has come also to mean a state of disorder, confusion and discomfort. Skeat takes the word to be a variant of "mash," originally to mix up.

Finns and Finlanders.

The people of Finland embrace Finlanders, who speak only Swedish, and Finns, who speak only Finnish. There is, according to the Helsingfors correspondent of the Vossische Zeitung, a fine distinction between the two words

However, a traveler might be unaware of this distinction, for city people, especially in western Finland, generally speak three languages fluently, having a mastery of German as well as Swedish and Finnish. Russian, which used to be compulsory in the schools, has been intentionally forgotten.

Only Finnish is spoken in the eastern and northern parts of the country, and there one is more likely to find a knowledge of German than of

Their common language makes it easy for Finlanders to establish themselves in Sweden. The latter country is regarded by many of them as a sort of promised land, on account of its urban attractions and higher wage standards.

Iron in Antiquity. An eminent scientist recently summed up some interesting facts about the use of iron by the ancients. Interesting in the light of metallurgical practice is a part of an iron tool found in the Great Pyramid, because it contains not only nickel, but also combined carbon, showing that it is not of meteoric origin. Under a sphinx at Karnak an iron sickle was found. At Delhi there still exists an iron pillar, 50 feet high and 16 inches in diameter, made up of 50-pound blooms welded together. This pillar, it is suggested, may be regarded as "the doyen among products of the heavy iron industry." The use of iron and steel in China has been traced to the year 2357 B. C. The Japanese are said to have had a curious method of making steel. They buried forged iron in marshy ground, and after eight or ten years, through some alchemy of nature, it came out steel.

Ocean Life in Inland Lakes. The riddle of Baikal, in Central Asia is similar to that of Lake Tanganyika, in Central Africa. In both cases a large body of fresh water remote from the ocean contains organ isms apparently marine. Both lakes. again, contain a very large number of species not found elsewhere. Lake Baikal contains a few mollusca of apparently marine forms. One of the most remarkable features of the lake perhaps is that, although it is frozen over for about five months in the year, the animal life is extremely abundant end varied. This may be partly accounted for by the existence of hot

SEE ANNUAL CROP OF IVORY

Discovery Recently Made May Solve Problem That Has Given the World Much Thought.

A rem. kable discovery at the seal rookeries on Pribilof islands may prolong the world's vanishing ivory sup-

Last summer an obnoxious bull walrus was mauled by government seal keepers, and in the fight one of its long tusks was broken off. This spring the same recalcitrant mammal returned and to the surprise of both natives and attendants the tusk had grown out five inches, the end still showing the ragged edge of the break.

It is now believed that an annual crop of this excellent ivory can be harvested by cutting off one-half of one tusk each year from the bull walrus.

The one left intact is used by the mammal in digging clams and sea food. In a year the stub would have grown out enough to serve as a pickaxe, so the other tusk could be sacrificed for the fancies of man. Walrus ivory is in great demand in China and Japan, where it is utilized for small carvings.

Soy Bean as Food.

During the last five years much progress has been made in widening the circle of American users of the soy bean. Previous to that time its use was largely confined to the Orient where it has been a staple article of diet for many thousands of years.

The dried soy bean may now be purchased in the American market and is capable of almost as many uses as our own navy bean. Little cakes for tea, crisp and toothsome, croquettes, soup, purees, plain "vegetables"—these are but a few of its many uses.

Housewives wishing to add this nourishing food to their menus may obtain descriptive bulletins and recipes for preparing it by writing either to their state colleges or to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

RECENT INVENTION WILL REDUCE PRICE OF SILK. -Silk has always been considered an article of luxury on account of its high cost in comparison with other textile materials, writes United States Commercial Attache H. C. Mac-Lean from Rome. This has been due in large degree to the labor necessary in handling the cocoons and preparing the thread for spinning. Consequently the silk industry has flourished only in countries where cheap labor is available.

After soaking the cocoons in water the thread has always been unreeled by hand, which is a work of great delicacy, but one for which it has not been possible to pay high wages. Thus, while silk weaving in Italy has been making progress the preparation of the raw silk has shown a decline. It is now reported that an Italian silk expert has succeeded in perfecting a machine which will perform the operation of unreeling the thread mechanically. A new company has recently been formed, which has taken over the patents covering the invention and will manufacture the machines.

If the invention succeeds commercially as well as it has in the experiments that have been made it bids fair to revolutionize the silk industry, and, according to the inventor, the cost of silk may be reduced to such an extent that it will be able to compete with cotton and linen.

 MAN'S NOSE SENSITIVE ORGAN

How Extraordinarily Minute Particles in Air at Once Affect the Olfactory Nerve.

Do you know why you have to "sniff the air" when trying to detect a faint odor? It is because the nerves governing the sense of smell are not located, as is generally supposed, in the nasal passages, but in an area of sensitive membrane about the size of a dime and located high above each nostril.

A portion of the hairlike tips of the olfactory nerves terminating in this membrane receives the sense impression and conducts it to the brain. Because of the position of this membrane outside the natural path of the breath, it is necessary to draw aside a current of air by sniffing before the exact shade of odor can be determined.

The effects of snuff and smelling salts have nothing to do with the sense of smell. They react only on the linings of the nasal passages.

So far as physiologists have been able to learn, smells are pigeonholed in the brain as visual impressions. Each smell carries associations good or bad and these associated images are brought forth by the brain when particular nerves are excited.

The reaction of the brain to an odor depends also to a large extent on the sense of taste. Only by combining the brain reports of these two senses can odors be accurately catalogued.

Degenerate as the olfactory nerve sense in man has become through evolution, it still retains the marvelous ability to detect one part of camphor in four hundred thousand parts of air, and one part of vanillin in ten million parts of air. As for the obnoxious smell mercaptan, the human nose can detect the presence of one part in twenty-five trillion parts of air.-Popular Science Monthly.

STOMACH GAS CAUSED BAD FAINTING SPELLS

"I was bothered a lot with indigestion, dyspepsia, and a bloated feeling brought on by excess gas. Fainting spells would suddenly, and I was in dire distress.
