THE NEW ELECTION LAW IN CARROLL

How "Fewer Elections" Will Affect Our Own Country.

The Democratic Advocate, last week, contained an article on the Fewer Elections law, definitely applying to its operation in Carroll county, a portion of which we reproduce below, for the information of voters.

"Sweeping changes in the terms of elected office-holders will be in effect at the next general election which will be next November. All county and State officers elected will hold terms of three years instead of two or six years as the case may be. In Carroll county, next November, a Sheriff, State's Attorney, County Commissioner, State Senator, County Treasurer, County Surveyor, three judges of the Orphans' Court, and five members of the House of Delegates will be chosen. This means the election of fifteen public office-holders in Carroll county. A number of these officers under the old law had only a two-year term, but under the revised State statute, these offices will be filled for three years, or until 1926, when the first election under the "fewer elections" law will really be held. All two-year-term office holders will hold over from 1925 until 1926, when the term of office will be increased to four years instead of only two years.

Under the revised law, there will be no county or State two-year-term offices. All candidates elected to hold public office will be for a minimum term of four years, and extending in some cases, such as judges of the courts, to a 15 years term.

In Carroll county, the following officers will be affected: Sheriff, State's Attorney, County Commissioners, County Treasurer, County Surveyor, Judges of the Orphans' Court, State Senator, and members of the House of Delegates.

Congressional elections are necessary every two years, and starting in 1926 there will be elections only in congressional years, or when a President is elected. Presidents are elected every four years and all Congressional elections come in even years. The "fewer elections" law will do away with the yearly elections and will make elections, whether county, state or national, every 2 years, coming in the years with even numbers. There will be no elections in 1927, 1929, 1931, etc.

Starting in 1926, all of the county two-year-term offices will be changed to four years and the next county election after 1926 will come in 1930. The only offices to be filled in 1928 will be President, six Representatives, and one U. S. Senator.

Many are asking: How will the new election law affect the County Commissioners of Carroll County? In order to clear this up, the following information has been furnished the Record by one in a position to give it pretty authoritatively:

"Each of the present Commissioners will finish his term of six years for which he was elected. The term of office of Mr. Roop will expire in 1923, and his successor will be elected in 1923 to serve until 1926. The term of Mr. Melville will expire in 1925, but as there will be no election that year, he will continue in office until 1926. In 1926, three County Commissioners will be elected to serve until 1930, but as the term of office of Mr. Repp will not expire until 1927, one of the three elected in 1926 will not qualify and enter upon his duties until 1927. Consequently, of the three elected in 1926, two will serve for four years, and one for only three years; the terms of all expiring in 1930, when the full Board of three members will be elected to serve for four years.

Legislation by the General Assembly of 1924 will probably be necessary to decide upon the method by which it shall be determined which of the three elected in 1926 shall serve for only three years; whether the member of the Board-elect receiving the lowest number of votes shall be designated for the short term; whether the short term incumbent shall be selected by lot; or some other method of determination fixed by law."

Along with the "fewer elections" proposition it is becoming apparent that we must have a shorter and simpler ballot, or the result will be that many persons will not attempt to vote.

Eclipses in 1923.

There will be four eclipses in 1923, only three of which are visible in the U. S. The first is a partial eclipse of the Moon, March 2, visible from about 9:30 to 11:30 P. M. The second is a partial eclipse of the Moon, August 26, visible from about 5:00 to 6:30 A. M. The third is a total eclipse of the Sun, Sept. 10, partially visible here, from about 3:40 to 5:30 P. M.

The Turkish government now has the job on hand of finding husbands for the former Sultan's 150 wives. The Sultan has "skipped out" leaving his wives penniless. They are in age from 17 to 35 years, mostly Circassians, and are described as "strikingly attractive, with matchless complexions, dark eyes and long hair, very religious, faithful and affectionate."

AN AUTO RIDE TO IOWA.

Interesting Experiences and Observations Along the Way.

Harry T. Smith, of Meservey, Iowa, who recently visited his mother and other relatives here, making the trip by auto, sends us an account of his experiences enroute, both coming and going. On account of the demands on our columns for other items, this week, we can give only the write-up covering the return trip as follows:

Leaving Taneytown, Oct. 22, Saturday P. M., I went to Gettysburg, saying hello to many old friends at a place where I worked a good many years ago. The battlefield grounds are southwest of the city, covering about 25 miles on monuments, marking all the important points and where Lincoln made his famous speech. Left on Sunday morning from my brother's for the west. Got as far as Laughinton, Pa., when I had a breakdown, tearing the rear gears out of the car going up the 16 mile grade in the mountains. Fixed the car up. If I ever got stung I got it there. Two prices for one job. There ought to be a law to prevent overcharging just because you are from another state. He will be remembered by all, not to stop there. I stayed at the Lincoln tea room while waiting for the car to be put in order. Those people surely did treat me fine, it was the same as home to me,—such friendly folks. Their assistance will never be forgotten by me.

Left Laughinton, October 25th., for the west again. Car was in good shape, and arrived at Pittsburgh in the morning, staying all night in East Canton, O. Hit a bridge that night, but did not injure me at all. The other fellow's car was badly smashed up. Three-fourths of a mile from this bridge three girls and two boys were killed by a freight.

Left East Canton in the morning for Elkhart, Ind. Stayed there all night, and left the next morning for Chicago. It's a short cut to Joliet. It was here I ran short of funds, which were sent me on short notice. Caused by overcharging me when I broke down. Went farther staying at New Lenox, Ill., from Saturday noon until Tuesday A. M., for Joliet and passed through Aurora to Geneva, Ill., then to Clinton, Iowa. Got as far as Whetland, Iowa, where I stayed all night. Next morning rain, and it was rain all day. Went to Tipton by train and back to Whetland that P. M. Left the next morning for Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Cedar Falls, plowing mud all day. Only a few miles of good roads. Stayed at Cedar Falls for the night. Left there for Hampton and from Hampton to Meservey. Only a few miles of good roads.

Maryland has good roads; transportation such as apples, and peas. Corn crop is also very good. Apples are selling for 35 cents to a dollar for choice lots per bushel. Maryland has good roads; transportation of livestock is mostly done by trucks to market. Cars in the state must have two license cards. Only the state of Maryland requires them, no other state needs them.

Citizens of Meservey were predicting that Harry T. would never return with his old 1913 tin Lizzie, but I did, and Lizzie returned together with me, although a little warm due to bad roads. But the eyes of a great many were almost in their vest pocket when I arrived with the old tin Lizzie. She is entitled to a new set of tires, but with only a little tightening up of different parts Lizzie will go to Maryland again.

3,000 miles, 140 gallons gas, 35 qts. oil, 2 lbs. grease. The price of gas ranged from 21c to 35c, oil from 15c to 25c a quart. Meals ranged from 35c to $1.25. Repairs on car $35.00. One puncture on the way, two on the way back. Rooms ranged from $1.25 to 50c a night.

To Taneytown School Patrons.

It has been felt for some time in our Taneytown community that a better understanding and a closer co-operation between school and home would result in mutual advantage. In many other communities, this result is reached very agreeably through Parent-Teacher Associations, Parent Home organizations, etc. Not to imitate others, but to carry out an honest effort for the school and the home to become better acquainted, the people of Taneytown community, particularly the patrons of the school, are invited to meet at the school building, on Friday afternoon, Dec. 15, at 2:45 o'clock.

A short literary and musical program, and immediately afterwards, the organization will be effected.

The Printer's Rush Season.

Advertisers, correspondents, and others, are warned that space in the Record until after Christmas will be in demand, as we do not expect to issue a supplement—unless so doing cannot be avoided—on account of our rush of job printing which takes our time and all the help we have. We are going to do our best to find both room and time for everything but in case we can not do so, we ask indulgence. Job printing orders will be handled the very best we can.

James R. Mann, perhaps the most widely known Republican member of Congress, died last Friday of pneumonia, after a brief illness. He had represented an Illinois district for twenty-five years, and was a most able, hard-working leader.

PROHIBITION IS BEING ENFORCED

Tightening Up in Prosecutions All Over the Country.

Since the election is safely over for members of Congress, for another two years, the enforcement of the Prohibition laws seems to be taking on new vigor, and the violators of the laws are finding themselves largely minus the backing of wet, and part wet, candidates. Besides, thinking people are beginning to realize that violating the Constitution of the United States is dangerous business, in this as well as any other particular, and that cultivating such a spirit must ultimately meet with its proper treatment.

Boozing, and the illicit trading in and handling of liquors in any and all ways, must eventually be stamped out. The government is bound to enforce its own laws, or confess that government is impotent. Officers of law are likely to find, before long, that they must enforce the laws, or get out, and marked activity toward strenuous law enforcement is becoming more in evidence everywhere.

What Congress may do toward liberalizing the Volstead Act, remains to be seen; but the counting of noses in the new Congress does not produce a great deal of confidence on the part of either the big wets, or little wets, that they have much to hope for with in the next two years, and two years is a long time to wait on a future hope for a wetness that may not even then come—apparently a more than remote possibility.

Federal Commissioner Haynes says there is a general movement toward "tightening up" on enforcement cases, and that 3800 men are employed in the work. He says the crisis in enforcement is at hand, in a report made before a House sub-committee.

The Prohibition Commissioner told the committee that he was "gratified with the present functioning" of his enforcement machinery, and that the department was securing "fine cooperation" from States and counties in the main. Courts were becoming "more sympathetic," he asserted, and jail sentences and fines were becoming heavier.

In the fiscal year ended June 30, 1922, the Prohibition Commissioner said there were 20,483 convictions in Federal courts for violations of the prohibition law. Acquittals numbered 4,625, cases dropped 8,237 and civil cases disposed of 544. At the end of the year, he said, 15,910 cases were pending in Federal courts bringing the total of cases handled to 44,779. These figures, he said, did not include cases in State courts. Fines in Federal courts which were deposited in the Treasury he placed at $2,791,000. In many cases proceedings toward forfeiture of bonds and other assessments were pending.

Carroll County Schools.

We clip from the Annual Report on Carroll County schools, the following conclusions, said to be evident:

1. That we have a great deal of illiteracy.
2. That there is too much irregular attendance upon school.
3. That children are kept out of school, especially in the rural districts to such an extent that a great percentage are very much over age.
4. That over agency costs the County thousands of dollars needlessly.
5. That in consequence of this composite situation, our position among the counties of Maryland is not so high as it ought to be.
6. That the high standing of our colored schools is necessary to pull the school system up to seventh place.
7. That we have too many provisional and untrained teachers.
8. That the salaries in other counties are higher, which prevents us from securing trained teachers.
9. That we do not prepare enough of our young people to enter the teaching profession.
10. That measured by other counties, Carroll has a low tax rate for schools.

Gathering Christmas Greens.

This is the season of the year, when property owners, especially along the highways, should exercise the utmost vigilance in protecting their evergreens, holly, running pine, laurel, and the like.

The gathering of Christmas greens became such a serious matter, because of vandalism practiced, that the Legislature of 1918 enacted a special law covering the subject. This law makes it a misdemeanor, with a fine of $25.00 or 90 days imprisonment, or both, to remove, injure, or destroy any trees or shrubs, without the written consent of the owner, or except under his personal direction.

The State Board of Forestry is co-operating with land owners in the enforcement of this law, and will be glad to furnish, without charge, suitable posters for the protection of property to any who may desire them. Apply for these posters to the Maryland State Board of Forestry, 815 Calvert Building, Baltimore, Maryland.

John Wanamaker, the widely known Philadelphia merchant, is seriously ill from developments growing out of a cold, but is reported much improved.

ELECTRIC IRON DANGER.

Carelessness in Use Apt to Cause Fire Loss.

Carelessness and thoughtlessness are admittedly national traits, but that carelessness on the part of individuals which jeopardizes the property and safety of others passes the excusable—such as thoughtlessness in the use of electric pressing irons. There is no more excuse for the many fires and damage occasioned by leaving these modern household conveniences "with the current on" than there would be for allowing small children to amuse themselves by playing with matches. Such comparison is not inappropriate, either, for it is the woman of the country, on whom the responsibility in the care of the rising generation largely devolves, who are the chief offenders in the reckless use of electric irons.

It is almost inconceivable to believe a mother, aunt, sister or even the most thoughtless of domestic servants so indifferent as to permit children to play with matches. Yet these same women, through thoughtlessness, will neglect elementary precautions when it comes to the use of electric irons and so jeopardize the safety of the children, their neighbors and property—their and others. It is indeed a serious reflection on the mentality and character of the womanfolk that there are many records of such carelessness. Charity demands, however, that some of this carelessness be attributed to ignorance, although it would seem that the plea of ignorance is today also a serious reflection.

The electric iron gives up heat when ironing, but, unlike the sad iron, tends to become hotter when not in use. Properly operated, the electric iron retains the heat it loses while ironing during the enforced intervals for arranging and folding the clothes, so that it always is at a suitable ironing temperature. If ironing is not resumed promptly, the iron may become overheated; under no condition does it become any cooler while connected to the electric outlet.

Such peculiarity of the electric iron is of common knowledge, if any thought at all is exercised, making the use of a suitable iron-stand—an ordinary sad iron stand will not suffice—or standing the iron on end, imperative whenever work is interrupted. Leaving a heated sad iron on the clothes, or on the ironing board, is an act of gross stupidity, the penalty for which is apt to be at least a scorched, piece or a charred ironing board, if the iron does not cool off rapidly enough, which it rarely does. Leaving an electric iron at full heat and growing hotter every minute is still more censurable. It is serious negligence, liable to involve, and deservedly, a much heavier penalty.

Then, too, there is the economic waste entailed in leaving an electric iron connected when not in use. Such a minor consideration as economy, though, can be expected to carry little weight with those individuals who are so thoughtless and careless as to risk the dangers of a fire rather than exercise sufficient thought to disconnect the electric iron when forced, even for a few minutes, to leave it. However, it may be news to some that the entire floor of a small house could be brightly illuminated—every light turned on—or all the rooms of an apartment, with no greater consumption of electricity than is used by one idle electric iron left in contact—idle, that is, so far as useful work is concerned, but not idle as far as advancing the reading of the meter is concerned. It would appear that the electric iron is almost too convenient to be entrusted to the thoughtless. If its use involved the exercise of greater attention or if the cost of the idle, connected iron were heavier, it is probable that its abuses would be less general.—From safeguarding America against Fire.

There is Nothing Wrong with Iowa.

Except—

"That entirely too many of us get up in the morning at the alarm of a Connecticut clock, button a pair of Chicago trousers to Ohio suspenders, put on a pair of shoes made in Massachusetts, wash in a Pittsburg tin bath, using Cincinnati soap and a cotton towel made in New Hampshire; sit down to a Grand Rapids table and eat pancakes made from Minneapolis flour, spread with Vermont maple syrup and Kansas City bacon fried on a St. Louis stove; buy fruit put up in California, seasoned with Rhode Island spices; put on a hat made in Philadelphia, hitch a Detroit tin mule fed on Texas gasoline to an Ohio plow and work like—all day long on an Iowa farm covered with a New England mortgage; send our money to Ohio for automobile tires, wondering why Iowa taxes are $2.75 per acre while the farmers of Ohio pay $1.00 and drive everywhere on paved roads, and at night we crawl under New Jersey blankets to be kept awake by a dog—the only home product on the place—wondering all the while why ready money and prosperity are not more abundant in this wonderful state of ours!"—From an Iowa paper.

SECRETARY WEEKS WANTS LARGER ARMY

Says World's Future Peace Rests on United States.

Secretary of War, Weeks, in his report to Congress, says the present strength of the army of 12,000 officers and 125,000 men, is inadequate. He says in part:

"It has taken time and money to build what we have. It has taken blood and money to prove that we have not, even now, what we need. We should, when practicable, add to what we have and attain to the progress called for in our defence project under the terms of the law."

Declaring the officer corps "is really the backbone of our military system," Mr. Weeks said that security for the future must rest "upon the foundation of our leadership."

"I do not belittle the enlisted man—ours is the best in the world," he continued. "It is because I appreciate him that I emphasize the need for officers to give the soldier his best opportunity to fight for his country and for his life."

"We must have officers sufficient to handle the great army of the United States. We have not these officers now."

"Our reserve officers are the first to complain that their present lack of training is causing them to lose the knowledge that they gained in the war. Where is there any training to come from? Only through the regular officers."

"I earnestly advocate a reconstituting of our officer body to a minimum of 13,000 at the earliest date."

"My conclusions are not entirely welcome at this time, when people have been hoping that nations had learned to avoid conflicts of force. My conclusions are, nevertheless, that we should continue to prepare for such conflicts."

"If it is unwelcome, it is no less true that Americans, like all other peoples, are subject to the law which punishes those nations who fail to prepare for defence as well as those who fail to strive for peace."

Annun-Horner Receivership.

Judge Glenn H. Worthington, Saturday afternoon signed an order appointing Reno S. Harp, receiver for the banking firm of Annun, Horner and Company, Emmitsburg. It is understood that an accountant will be employed to investigate the condition and the business of the institution, with the view of settling up the partnership for the benefit of its creditors.

The court's order, naming the receiver, directed the latter to take possession of all the property of the partnership of every kind and description, wherever situated, and all money coming into his hands shall be applied first to the payment of costs of the receivership and bond, then to the satisfaction and payment of the indebtedness due the complainant and all other creditors of the partnership, and the residue, if any, to be distributed among the members of the partnership.

Mr. Harp stated that he would proceed at once to sell the real estate of the bank and to collect all notes and other assets of the firm for the purpose of winding up the affairs of the bank. The petition of Dr. Jamison placed the liabilities of the partnership at $110,000, but no estimate was made of the assets.

Edgar L. Annun, named in the petition as one of the members of the partnership, has filed a paper in court denying that he is a partner in the firm, and asks to be dismissed from the proceedings.—Frederick News.

Exchange War Savings Stamps.

The following is a portion of advisory letter, received from a reliable source:

"The large amount of money invested, and the great number of persons who purchased war savings stamps, showed that the people of this country could save money when the necessity arose. Now, if they will take the money they saved when they bought stamps to aid the government in the prosecution of the war and buy Treasury savings certificates, they will demonstrate that the thrift lessons of the war have not been without effect.

The holders of war savings stamps have seen investments of about $20.50 grow to $25.00 in five years, and larger amounts in the same proportion. They can see the same thing repeated if they re-invest in Treasury savings certificates. Interest accumulates at the rate of 4 per cent. each year, compounded semi-annually. These savings certificates are exempt from the normal Federal income tax, and from all State and local taxation (except estate and inheritance taxes), and may be held to the amount of $5,000, maturity value, for each issue, by every member of a family. They are backed by the credit of the United States Government, and afford an easy and sure method of saving."

A jury in Texas recently found an itinerant Baptist preacher guilty of criminal libel and fined him $1,000 in connection with reading an alleged bores oath of the Knights of Columbus to a congregation last Easter Sunday. At a former trial, the jury disagreed.

LAST OF NORRIS CASES.

Further Convictions and Sentences in Banker's Murder.

The Norris murder case has about closed, with more convictions. The Sun, of Friday, gives this review of the remaining cases:

State's Attorney Leach refuses to discuss Allers, but there are reports that Allers may go free next week. The authorities of Baltimore county may have to catch him themselves if they want him.

Trial of Allan Blades, scheduled to begin next Monday or later. He is the last of the men charged with being accessories in the murder of William B. Norris, and, when his fate and the fate of Allers has been decided, the Norris case, which has had the attention of the Baltimore public for three months, will be ended.

New York A Foreign City.

New York largely is a city of foreigners. This is strikingly shown in a recent report of the United States Department of Commerce. Foreign-born whites, by which is meant those born abroad, or one or both of whose parents were, numbered 4,294,629 in 1920, an increase of 546,758 in ten years.

The changing tide of immigration in recent years is mirrored in the shifting proportions in the metropolis. The Italians showed greatest increase since 1910, advancing from 546,000 to 803,000. The Russians there now number 221,000, as compared with 27,000 in 1910. The English-speaking residents included in the classification of foreign-born—representing English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh—decreased from 964,000 in 1910, to 897,000 in 1920, and the Germans from 820,000 to 690,000.

New York's present population shows a truly cosmopolitan complexion. Hebrews and Yiddish to the number of 946,000 lead the list, followed by the English and Celtic (Irish predominating), Italians, Germans, Russians and Poles in the order named. Among the smaller groups are 76,000 Magyars, 60,000 Swedes, 40,000 Norwegians, 32,000 Scandinavians, 26,000 Rumanians and 25,000 Greeks.

What Do They Want?

Will the objectors to the Volstead Act, who say they are opposed to the return of the "open saloon," and many of them even to the legalized sale of "light wine and beer," tell us exactly what they do favor, written out, word for word, in legal shape; so plainly that everybody can understand?

We hear a great deal of the unpopularity of the present prohibition amendment and the efforts at its enforcement; that the country wants "modification" and a "reasonable" form of prohibition—one that will satisfy the people, and can be enforced. Very well; the 18th Amendment and the Volstead act are written out; so why not write out the exact modifications?

Just negative action is purely destructive. Simple denial is not evidence. Destructive criticism without constructive replacement, is child's play.

Those who want the best legislation to be had, want something definite to take the place of that which we have. There must be real law, for one and all. Let us see how many of the various "wet" organizations can get together and agree on one definite law.

DEPENDABILITY.

(By J. Thomas Wilhite, Toronto Can.)
There is a wide difference between "responsibility" and "dependability." The dependable man will make himself responsible, but the responsible man is not always dependable. A man may be responsible for a time, but can not be depended upon to fulfil it. Many capable men and women are filling the grad grind routine of life, because they lack the courage and self-confidence to assume the responsibilities attached.

Others have the conceit, courage, self-confidence, and presumption, and stand ready to assume any responsibility, on paper or promise, at a moment's notice.

They assure you they can tell the world just how the job ought to be done; they could fill the depleted exchequer to overflowing with golden coin, but can't fill their own; they could have carried the late war thro to a glorious world-wide peace, but can't make peace in their own home; and could now bring peace out of the present chaotic condition, and make Turkey a willing vassal, when they can't even secure a turkey for Christmas dinner; but you will notice these men are not put on the job, because they lack dependability.

Ask yourself the direct question, am I dependable? Am I to be found on the job doing my best in time of storm and adversity, the same as in fair weather and prosperity?

You may be an athlete, a master of art, or in your trade or profession, or the prize beauty, but are you dependable? No man lives to himself. Each one is a part of a great human wheel, or machine. You are a cog in the wheel, or a link in the chain. Know this, no wheel or chain, no matter how ponderous, is more dependable than the weakest link, or cog.

If that cog, or link, fails the whole is not only useless, but the most disastrous results naturally follow, because of the lack of dependability. Upon the dependability of the weakest cog, or link, hangs the happiness and success of the home, business, and church and nation. The stability of the world without, depends upon the dependability of the world within.

Do not disparage the weak cog, or link. The fact is, it is the all-important one. You may be that weak link, or cog, but be dependable, and all the mighty cogs and links must do you honor.

There is not much dependability in the business world today. I bought a machine, guaranteed, paid cash to insure the best instruction. The demonstrator took a defective part away to come back next day. Three weeks passed; on inquiry found he had made no report, and gone off on holiday. The Company had to give my money back, and lose a sale. Not dependable.

I called up a certain minister controlling certain city interests. His clerk told me he was out, but, he would call me up as soon as he came in. I stayed in my office all day, and till noon next day, and no call. Not dependable.

The dependable man or woman is the physically healthy, mentally alert, morally righteous, socially pure, spiritually Christ-like. Have you the qualifications?

This is a dependability worth while. It commands not only the respect and admiration of the best minds, but prepares the chair of state and seat of honor, and cushions it too, for the most responsible position in the gift of the people, and will win the prize at the end of the race.

To gain this degree of dependability, you will have to put up the fight of your life against the desires of your flesh, in opposition to the noblest, highest, purest and best aspirations of your spirit. Dependability is all in the power of your will, and can be attained by all whose motto is: "I can be all that I will to be, and I will to be all that I can be."

Mr. Ford is Wrong.

We think that Henry Ford said a foolish thing, not long ago, when he said that a man should not try to make money until he is 40 years of age, but that up to that time he should spend his earnings on himself, getting experience—or words to that effect, Mr. Ford is no doubt a great genius; anyway, he has made a great success, financially, and built up a great business, but just the same we do not agree that this entitled him to set a motto for average young men.

Mr. Ford owes a great deal to just "making a hit" with a cheap car at the psychological time, and unquestionably he had the vision and genius to make his big idea pay, helped along immensely by the popularity of it. Place Henry Ford in the same circumstances of life and finances, in another decade, and with a different business venture, and his success, in all probability, would not entitle him to set rules for young men.

We venture the statement that the history of most successful business men, covering wide areas of both time and place, show that success has most frequently followed those who laid the foundations of fortune, if not the practically completed structure of it, between the ages of thirty and forty years, notwithstanding the fact that normally a man ought to be at his best between forty and fifty years of age.

The man with lots of experience, alone, at forty, needs to make money very rapidly indeed, to gain a competency by the time he reaches fifty, when work begins to be a real burden and mental ingenuity at least not on the increase. Mr. Ford should not set his own case for the rule, but should regard it as an exception; and if he is fully wise, he will thank other things than his own inherent genius, or experience, for his success.

Taking Desperate Chances.

It is true that many contract severe colds and recover from them without taking any precaution or treatment, and a knowledge of this fact leads others to take their chances instead of giving their colds the needed attention. It should be borne in mind that every cold weakens the lungs, lowers the vitality, makes the system less able to withstand each succeeding attack and paves the way for the more serious diseases. Can you afford to take such desperate chances when Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, famous for its cures of bad colds may be had for a trifle?

The Agricultural Situation.

The agricultural situation during the past month is summed up by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics, United States Department of Agriculture, as follows:

"These are the times that try men's efficiency. Farmers who have been lucky enough to acquire a new dollar for an old this summer have done it by efficient production, not by strikes, not by rise in land values. The farmer has added to his stout old formula of hard work and frugal living a productive genius that is a national asset in times like these. The full larder is a great antidote for an empty coal bin.

"The money crops—wheat, cotton, potatoes, etc., already fill the channels of trade. Railroad congestion has been a serious brake on movements lately. Which is a reminder that while freight rates are of great importance to the farmers, a primary issue, after all, is adequate transportation.

"The wage situation looms up. City industry has found it profitable to begin some bidding for labor. Wages, like prices, are out of balance. They are based on vital replenishment of goods, not yet on normal growth.

Wages in agriculture have been unable to keep up. They are relatively low. The farmer suffers thereby, for the bulk of farm work is done by himself and family. The question is, does the leveling up of wages mean an unusual movement from farm to town.

"As for the fundamental situation, it has not changed much in a month. Present prosperity is still mainly city prosperity. What hurts the farmer is that his careful efficiency and hard work have counted so little in bridging the disparity between his own returns and the prices and charges demanded by urban industry. This disparity persists and it is serious."

A Grown-up Santa Claus.

There's a period in life, somewhere between the ages of seven and the day when we become parents, in which we are all atheists in the matter of disbelief in the "deity" called Santa Claus. The loss of that belief stings our childish minds so poignantly that the scar remains well into the age of reason.

It is only when little fingers curl around our own later in life that we triumphantly subscribe over again to the belief in the God of Good Nature. But the jolly old soul is strictly a mid-winter personality. He is forgotten the rest of the year and, like all old friends who have been away, his acquaintance has to be made afresh each year.

Somebody has to be the first to dust off his great-coat, tie on his mittens, load down his sleigh and start the reindeers. It is in this respect that the country editor functions at his best. Even before the minister starts his annual fracture of the second of the Ten Commandments, regarding serving strange gods, the editor puts old Kris Kringle back on his pedestal and the world gives itself up to jollity mirth and unselfishness.

The time now is here for Santa Claus' annual tour. Its the leading subject of news in the paper and, willy-nilly, even the advertising pages must get into the game—not that they have any desire to dodge such a pleasant and, to them, profitable duty. Give them a start and they will do the rest.—Publishers Auxiliary.

Wake Up!

A man 40 years old who has fairly leaped ahead during the past year in the big organization with which he is connected, was asked why he had gone ahead so rapidly in one year and had moved so slowly during the previous years.

He smiled rather ruefully and replied: "I started to work for this concern when I was a youngster. I felt that I had plenty of time to settle down, so I did the work that was expected of me and nothing more.

"About a year ago, however, I overheard a couple of young college men in the organization refer to me as Old Blank. One of them said to the other, 'One thing is sure; when I am 40 years old I don't want to be pottering around like Old Blank. He has been standing still for over a dozen years.' 'Right then and there I woke up. I realized that I was 40 years old and that during the next ten or fifteen years I'd have to do things if I ever was going to do anything.

"That's the whole explanation. I woke up, that's all and went to work. Fortunately I hadn't weakened myself by dissipation, so after I got my unused mental muscles exercised a bit I had no trouble going ahead pretty fast."—Exchange.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy the Mother's Favorite.
The soothing and healing properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, its pleasant taste and prompt and effective cures have made it a favorite with people everywhere. It is especially prized by mothers of young children for colds, croup and whooping cough, as it always affords quick relief and is free from opium and other harmful drugs.

PACK GIFTS WITH CARE

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS SHOULD BE WRAPPED WELL.

Parcels to Go by Mail and Express Need the Careful Attention of the Sender.

IT IS all very well just to wrap an ordinary package in paper and tie it securely with string, but with a Christmas gift it's different. Somehow the Christmas sentiment oozes out even to the outside of the package, and we must take just as much care in "doing up" our parcels as in making or buying them in the first place.

Let us be practical, however, first of all. Let us wrap the parcels, especially the ones which have to go by mail or express, very securely indeed, registering them if they are valuable. Tissue paper first, and then good, strong wrapping paper, tied with stout cord or heavy elastic, is the best method. Reserve ribbons and fancy cards for the inside of the package, and remember that putting a seal over the fastening of a parcel prevents its being sent third class. For perishable objects use cardboard boxes.

As for the packages which are to be delivered in person, however, or the inside of those to be sent by mail or express, you may exhaust your ingenuity to make them pretty. With a box, of course, it is always easy to use holly tissue paper and green and red ribbon and a sprig of holly or mistletoe; but a wrapped parcel always looks more clumsy.

Wrap the gift first in white tissue paper; then roll it in white bristol-board; and then cover it with green or red crepe paper. Tie around it a bow of ribbon in the contrasting shade, stick through this a sprig of holly and a card of good wishes, fasten at the ends with Christmas seals, and there you are!

These seals, by the way, although they may be purchased very cheaply, still have a further touch of individuality when made at home. Do them on glazed paper and coat them, before cutting out, with mucilage that can be allowed to dry and then wet again when necessary. Three suggestions for designs are the bell and star, the Christmas tree with presents and Santa Claus with his pack. Many more to be drawn, touched up with watercolor and cut out, will suggest themselves to the reader.

The very ribbon with which your gifts are tied can be stenciled with a design more original than the inevitable holly of the shops. The red border and the mistletoe wreaths and stars make one pretty pattern. The process is the simple one of ordinary stenciling.

With your gift send some pretty card expressing your affection for the recipient. A good idea, especially with a book or some other gift of the sort, is to send instead of a card a little blotter calendar. It consists of two or more blotters tied together with a bow of holly ribbon, a calendar pad for 1922, and a picture (a post card will do, but the subject must be suited to your friend's tastes) fastened to it on the other side. The fastening may be done by clips or by sealing wax. A slip of paper with a Christmas greeting should also be added. The blotters may be red and green or they may give the colors of some club or college in which the donor or recipient is interested.

Finally do not forget to weigh all packages you mail. Nothing is more annoying than to have to pay for a package sent out by some careless friend. And keep a card catalogue of your Christmas presents. Then you will avoid the two pitfalls of forgetting some one or duplicating a gift—both horrible to contemplate.

Above all, wrap your presents with a kindly thought—or do not give any at all.

Overcome by Fumes of Fungus.
A large fungus growing in the wainscoting of a cottage at Valenciennes exploded, the resultant fumes overcoming the owner of the cottage and his wife.

His Song Appropriate.
Whilst a well-known baritone was singing "Son o' Mine" to a Portland audience a messenger approached and told him his wife had just given birth to a son.

The Chinese Way

They do things differently over on the other side of the world. In China the natives have a habit of shaking hands with themselves whenever they make friends.

Not such a bad plan, either. You can shake hands with yourself, too, if you have a bank account these days, when the value of a dollar is increasing, for you are in luck. You may well shake hands, with yourself, pat yourself on the back, even hand yourself a bouquet if you like. In addition to having an account at the bank, it is our Bank, you are more fortunate still, for there it is safe.

Our school patrons and pupils were sorry to learn that our very efficient teacher, Harry L. Feaser, has been appointed Postmaster, at Taneytown; not because we do not wish him success, but owing to his many years of values service, we are sorry to lose him as a teacher, and we believe that were he to say just what he really thinks, it would be that he would soon see some one else appointed; because, we believe, that he is as sorry to leave all the children as they are to see him go. We hope however that those in authority will see it that we get a good teacher to fill his place, so that our school may be kept up to its usual high standard. However, we are confident that Prof. Unger knows our requirements, and will do the best thing possible for us.

Butchering seems to be the order of the day, and some fine porkers are being slaughtered.

It Isn't the Church; it's You.

It isn't the preacher's flowing prayer Or the way the choir sings; Or the size of the coin your neighbor gives, Or the help your brother brings. It isn't the size of your favorite church, Or the cost of your favorite pew; Or the style of the clothes the members wear; For it isn't the church, it's you.

It isn't the way the work is done, Or the way the money's spent; Or whether the gospel's all brought in, Or whether there's some that's sent.

It isn't the kind of creed they love, Or peculiar things they do; Or whether the doctrine suits your taste; For it isn't the church, it's you!

For a chain is as strong as the weakest link, And it breaks with a heavy load, But a church that's full of the links that pull

Can level the roughest road. If you get in tune with the Master's will,

With your heart and your labors, too, You will love your church, though it has its faults,

For it isn't the church, it's you!—R. R. Newberry, in Christian Herald.

When You Are Constipated.

SPECIAL CHRISTMAS OFFER.

Last year, a lot of folks, on our suggestion, invested in printed stationery—envelopes and paper—for Christmas gifts. This year, no doubt many more will want to do so, and to help the proposition along we will make the following SPECIAL offer. We will print good quality paper, envelopes to match—

250 of each for $2.00

100 of each for $1.00

The price is for the two together, and we will either mail the orders, free of charge, to any address, within the second zone, or deliver at our office at the same price. Orders to be mailed to be accompanied by cash with order. There can be four lines of printing to be alike on both paper and envelopes, something like this—

JOHN D. BAKER

MEADOWBROOK FARM

EASTON, PENNA.

Or, instead of name of farm, a business, or profession, may be used—the envelope to contain a return request, in addition.

The unruled paper will be 5 1/2 x 8 1/2 inches, while the ruled paper will be 6 x 9 1/2 inches, with either 6 or 6 1/2 in. envelopes. If desired, the paper will be made up in pads.

It will be necessary for us to have orders early, not later than Dec. 15, but they will not be mailed, or delivered, until the customers directs. Think this over. For a useful, practical present, for the cost, it will be 100 percent valuable.

Ephraim Eyler, 87 years old, near Woodsboro, has just finished husking 100 barrels of corn, and has helped to haul and crib 350 barrels of corn. He was born in Johnsville district and in 35 years lived on a farm. In recent years he has been helping farmers. He is in good health at present, and expects to live a "ripe old age," he said.

"Shaved Rooster" and "Burned Peacock" Among the New Materials Used by Milliners.

Hats are always the loveliest of all Parisian creations. The modistes have the art of chapeau making developed to the last degree, and whatever they do is bound to be artistic as well as beautiful and suited in every way to the feminine mode of thinking and behaving. It is hard to pick one hatmaker from another as being supreme in her art. The things they turn out are all so extraordinarily lovely. But a study of the hats and toques and turbans which come from the hands of each of them reveals surprise and originalities which are destined to thrill the heart of any woman bent upon dressing in the height of the season's mode.

Because there are so many high fur collars, Jane Blanche makes all of her hats slightly narrower in the brim at back. She is making an equal proportion of large roll-brim hats and small toques, giving preference to neither one nor the other.

Velvet and panne velvet in all of the various gradations of the leather shades are used for her hats. And the scale of green is run in many smart models. She uses, with great originality, feathers so that they simulate the appearance of fur, giving in this way the smart look of a fur trimming in much less expensive medium. Charmingly she uses gray ostrich so that it appears as though it were nothing less than the luxurious chinchilla. Little ribbons exquisitely curled represent the spirit of astrakhan. A large hat of gray panne velvet is incrustated with huge circles of lace, leaving the sides of the crown transparent.

Some of the small hats are trimmed with a graceful draping of the material which is used for the hat itself. New materials noted are "shaved rooster," which process leaves a mere tuft of short feathers. There is also the "burned peacock" which means that the feather itself is burned away, leaving only the bare and slender spine.

Tailored Mode Holds Favor in Children's Wear; Hats and Bonnets to Match Coats.

The tailored mode seems to be a leading influence in children's wear during the season when coats are worn especially. One house has found the mannish type of costume most in demand. The line consists of hats and bonnets to match coats of both the dressy and outing types, the latter being most favored at present. Sports' fabrics, many with either contrasting solid or plaid backs, are developed in tailored models with the reverse of the material often applied as trimming for collar, cuffs or insets at the pockets. One such garment has the plain back revealed only once, and that in pocket panels inserted down to the bottom of the coat.

The muffler, or throw collar, is a dull Mollaw red, the lining of a buff material on another coat, the reverse appearing also on pockets and cuffs. The tam-o'-shanter is a popular companion piece of these coats, made up in the self material with either the top or under section in contrast. The costumes are bought, it is said, for both boys and girls with almost equal favor, due to the tendency toward mannish effects in play and school outfits.

Imported fabrics of the same type are especially good looking in a few of the numbers, one a blue diagonal, and another an English material with soft nap, shown in dull green in a tailored style with brown leather buttons. A cap to match has ear tabs for very cold weather. This is a particularly smart outfit.

Two shades, golden tan and slate gray, are selected for the chinchilla costumes, the coats perfectly simple, with tam-o'-shanters of the same material trimmed with balls suspended at the side.

The finish of these little coats of tailored variety is the same as the exterior, sateen and satin both employed for the linings, with regard for the details of completion.

EVOLUTION OF MILADY'S CAPE

Popular Garment is Embroidered and Fur-Trimmed; Bandings of Contrasting Material.

The French designers are still making capes—a great many of them, in fact. They are embroidered and fur-trimmed. They are lined in lavish ways. They are trimmed with bandings of contrasting material. In fact, they are no longer the simple strips of material that they once were.

But this Parisian sanction of the cape idea decides the fact that wraps of this sort will be worn by those who like them through the winter.

A cape from one of the recent openings has Chinese embroidery all over its surface and is then supplied with a wide collar of fur. Another one has applied motifs of chenille making up a design running over its entire surface. Still another one holds its lining as its piece de resistance, for that is a bright yellow against a purple velvet surface. Others of them are lined with furs or marabou, and each one is a distinct law unto itself in the matter of design, although its lines conform so strictly to the laws laid down by a general fashion tendency.

HIGH COLORS TO BE THE FASHION

Gay Hues Are to Characterize the Modes for Women This Autumn and Winter.

GREAT VARIETY IN SLEEVES

Arm Coverings Often Full Length and Many Styles Offered—Skirts of Various Lengths; Some Have One-Side Drapery.

Eccentricity in detail rather than change in form, together with an adoption of extreme novelties in fabrics, a revival of metal and the return to use of high colors, characterizes the fashions for autumn and winter 1922-23, writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Tribune.

Fashions seem to be moving toward a more stately type of dress, as many of the designers have gone back to the Renaissance period for the details. Hardly a dressmaker in Paris but shows some leaning toward the extravagances of the period of Francis I, Henry VIII, Henry II and on down to the period of Louis XIII.

Here and there the idea is caught in the sleeve; again one sees it in the collar and in the arrangement of the girdle. Very frequently it is the design in the fabric; again it is the regal coloring, mixtures of gold, silver, steel and copper in fabrics which look as if they had been hammered or wrought in metal and not woven on looms. Incrustations of jewels, precious and semi-precious, recall the flourishing arts of this sumptuous period.

Exploits Seventeenth Century Styles. As a variation from the Renaissance there is the note of the pure Venetian styles of the Seventeenth century. Jeanne Lanvin uses this motif, thereby holding persistently to her wide skirt effects. She has little support, however, in this from other dressmakers. A predominance of the slender silhouette confirms the insignificance of other eccentric period styles.

Running through all of the fashions is the Oriental note, the Persian, the Egyptian, the Chinese, the Japanese, sometimes in its pure form, and again in the cleverly modernized interpretation.

Magnificent embroideries, hand quiltings, beadings, incrustations, hammered, pressed and printed fabrics all have significant showing. France, from the standpoint of novelty materials and trimmings, is coming back into her own. Not since the several propitious seasons immediately preceding the war has France produced so many wonderful novelties. This elaboration of tissues, whether it be in weave or applied after the work of the looms, will add greatly to the cost of fashionable clothes.

Sleeve Details Vary Silhouette. Details of sleeves have changed considerably, and it is in this point that the silhouette of 1922-23 will express itself largely. New sleeves are often full length and may be large at the wrist, elbow or throughout their full length. Long mitten-shaped sleeves are also much used. Many new forms in puffed effects are seen. Sometimes this puff breaks at the elbow; again it is at the wrist. Sometimes a succession of flare ruffles are placed at the elbow or on the wrist of a tight-fitting sleeve.

Many fancy sleeves are seen on evening dresses. Frequently they start from the elbow downward, and they are even attached at the wrist, covering the hands with deep circular frills. All these new sleeve effects are practically taken from the Renaissance period, court dress style. The sleeveless idea still exists, but is not so new as these other more fanciful forms. The waistline is a variable point, but a big percentage of models continues to be in low waistline style, many of which blouse in the back. There is still every degree of low waistline, from that which starts below the normal waistline to well down to below the turn of the hips, in distinct Egyptian and Oriental form.

One-Side Drapery.

The length of skirts is still variable, but the consensus of opinion is that the street skirt will be nine to ten inches from the ground. More dressy afternoon toilettes will be four to five inches from the ground. Eccentric period styles, both in crinoline and Renaissance effect, often touch and trail. So many of the best makers show such a predominance of the shorter lengths—that is, from nine to ten inches above the floor—that one might expect this to be the smartest length. Other variations will be more or less a personal and individual thing.

Surprising as it may seem, the skirt remains narrow, often extremely narrow. Fullness, when introduced, is unobtrusive, and is usually achieved by means of the circular cut. There is less unevenness about the hem, many of the skirts being straight around.

The one-sided drapery is a strong feature even in the plainest tailored dresses and coats; also the one-side fastening and wide, overlapping front. This overlapping one-side effect is also much noted in skirts.

The Three-Piece Suit.

Tailored suits are very pronounced in the showing of both two and three-piece effects. A great majority of the jackets are waist length and in straight, unbelted or slightly blousing and belted styles. The exceptions are incidental novelties in very short box bolero styles, Chinese mandarin full-swinging coats and three-quarter length circular-cut effects, the latter usually trimmed with fur.

The three-piece idea is prominent. It expresses itself in two forms—the smart one-piece wool dress with matching jacket or the crepe de chine or satin dress with a wool coat entirely covering it, the lining of which is made of the same material as the dress.

Afternoon dresses are much more elaborate than they were last season. They are often made of beautiful novelty materials; or if they are in plain materials they are richly embroidered, appliqued and beaded. They are in decided contrast to the very simple hand-made crepes which have been so greatly in vogue.

Evening dresses are much less decollete than in former years. Many of them are made with a slightly rounding or bateau neck. Some of the evening dresses have full-length sleeves, and it is only the very ceremonious type that is extremely decollete and sleeveless.

Draped Evening Dresses.

Considerable moire is used, notably in evening dresses, the moire often having a high luster satin back, making it possible to use in drapery where both sides of the material is allowed to show.

In crepe weaves marocain continues strong, replacing to no small degree crepe de chine. There is, however, a new quality of silk crepe called crepe mongol which is being used quite extensively. Crepe georgette and crepe roman are used for beaded dresses, of which there are still a great many. Georgette and sheer crepe roman are also used in combination.

Many pile fabrics in wools are being shown, notably in thick cord weaves and wafflelike checks, sheared to give a velvet pile surface. These are in solid colors and also in mixtures of two and three tones. A very beautiful line of this character, brought out by Rodier, has a mixture of wool and artificial silk which gives a sort of frosty look.

Rodier often uses a metallic color in the artificial silk which he uses to illuminate the duller woolen threads. In shades of brown and beige he uses flecks of gold and copper-colored silk; in blues and gray he uses silver and steel-tone silk. Thus even these woolens have a metallic glitter.

VETERAN MUST RESUME ALIAS

Peculiar Position With Which Aged Soldier of the Civil War Finds Himself Confronted.

An inmate of the Orange county almshouse, at the age of ninety-five, after having passed through some of the fiercest battles of the Civil war as a member of Uncle Sam's navy, R. L. Livingston, who has never yet drawn a cent of pension money, expects soon to have his name changed to "Matts Green," the name under which he enlisted, and receive a pension, with back pay.

"When I enlisted I was anxious to, keep the fact a secret from the members of my family, who were high-brows, and so I enlisted under the name of Matts Green, which name I bore throughout the war," the old veteran explained. "I am now very eager to have my name changed to the one I bore while I was working for Uncle Sam, and my attorney tells me I have sufficient proof of my identity to enable me to have the name changed and be able to get my pension, which has been held off all these years because of the difference in names. I have the affidavits of four of those who served with me and, as far as I know, there is only one other living."—Brooklyn Eagle.

COLORED SUBURB IN AFRICA

Attempt to Be Made in Bloemfontein to Raise Standard of Native Citizenship.

An important resolution was passed at a town council meeting antcipating the native urban areas bill and safeguarding the rights of the colored people, according to a Bloemfontein letter to the Christian Science Monitor. The idea is to raise the standard of colored citizenship by granting the colored people separate suburbs, involving the freehold of their own homes and the management of their own affairs under the direction of the town council. It is intended to give tenancy "at will" for the present, to be changed into "freehold" when the bill will be passed. The freehold is to be limited so as not to allow either any rights in town or permission to mortgage.

The resolution was passed in the following terms: "That the new colored suburb, as set out on the plan submitted by the city engineer, be approved, and that stands be allocated to colored people on application, and subject to the terms and conditions to be framed by the native affairs committee with a view to ultimately turning the same into limited freehold under the contemplated native-urban areas bill."

Lawyer's Ingenious Plea Won.

The court was badly fooled recently in Berlin. A hotel proprietress was about to be convicted for permitting her premises to be frequented by bad characters. The defense called a handsome young woman, who answered several questions. Then counsel asked for the acquittal of his client, because the witness was a man, not a woman. "If an all-wise court," he said, "cannot tell the difference between a man and a woman, how can it expect my client to tell good characters from bad, on sight?" He won his case.

Ring Twice Oddly Recovered.

Having his ring twice swallowed by fish and recovering it each time was the experience of a Nova Scotia fisherman. The first time he lost the ring when fishing for cod, and found it when cleaning one of the catch. A few days later he lost the same ring when herring fishing, and his wife found it in one of the herrings.

Strangled by "Squawker."

The death by strangulation of a four-year-old girl in Rochester, N. Y., was caused by the swallowing of a rubber toy known as a "squawker." The mother purchased the toy at a store and the child inhaled it in attempting to inflate it. The squawker lodged in her throat.

HAD RESIGNED, AS IT WERE

Statement of Gilded Youth Must Have Somewhat Surprised Commander of Vessel.

A gilded London youth of somewhat effeminate tendencies found himself "stony broke." Realizing that his only chance lay in a new country, he decided to go to America, and, as he could not pay his passage money, tried to get a job on one of the boats crossing the Atlantic. Ship after ship he tried in vain, and at last began to despair of ever getting out of England—shipping people did not seem to like him. At last he tried a big liner on the verge of sailing, and found that a stoker had failed to turn up. With great joy he signed on, went aboard, was directed below by the captain, and disappeared.

Nothing was seen or heard of him for three days, but on the fourth day the skipper suddenly came upon a resplendent figure in full yachting kit, with glasses slung over one shoulder, promenading the deck.

"What on earth are you doing here?" he demanded. "I thought I told you to go below!"

The youth gazed rapturously at the mate officer, stepped back, tapped him lightly on the shoulder, and said: "Oh, haven't you heard? I've left."

FRENCH TO READ BROWNING

At Least, Works of the English Poet Are to Be Translated Into That Language.

"Robert Browning in French" does not sound an altogether promising proposition. Indeed, of all the modern poets of England one would imagine that he would be the most difficult to interpret to a foreigner. In spite of all drawbacks, however, an interesting selection of Browning's poems has been made by two translators, Paul Alfassa and Gilbert De Volsins, who have grappled by no means unsuccessfully with the acknowledged difficulties of the "enigmatic" poet. Mary Duclaux writes a foreword which is to all intents and purposes a careful study carried out in a fashion which must be undoubtedly agreeable to French readers. Mme. Duclaux is not afraid of grappling with problems either of interpretation or translation, and the little book published by the Librairie Grasset is an admirable example of that difficult art of translation of which the late Mr. Teixeira De Mattos was an acknowledged master. —London Daily Telegraph.

THE SWEETEST OF JOBS

One Man's Farm English Parish. At Luffield abbey, close to Buckingham, England, lives a farmer who is in the unique position of being his own overseer and rate collector; and the Buckingham board of guardians just carried out their annual task of re-electing him Luffield abbey's overseer. This farmer is probably the only man in England who makes his own rate for himself, levies it, on himself, and collects it from himself. Then he signs his own parish books. His farm constitutes the parish.

Traveled Far for Small Job. Traveling 280 miles for one hour's work was the record of a Liverpool (Eng.) man. He went all the way from Liverpool to a small town near Worcester to put up six small window blinds in a new bank. The work took about an hour, and then he went the 140 miles home again.

A Word About Wages

This Company's largest item of expenditure is for wages; it constitutes about two-thirds of the total expense of the business. Our aim is to pay our employees a wage that will keep them loyal to their task and zealous in their efforts to furnish service that will satisfy our patrons.

In a system such as ours where the service is largely a personal service, an attempt to keep to the lowest possible point the wages paid the employees who furnish this service may be false economy, because to give good service there must be high morals, loyalty and enthusiasm.

During the period following the World War, it was this Company's policy to advance wages only to such levels as we expected to be able to maintain. This policy has been amply justified by the result. We have now a more permanent force working more efficiently than ever before, which has resulted in substantial economies for the benefit of our patrons.

In 1918, the Company had one employee for every 38 telephones; now we have one employee for every 46 telephones. While there has been a 23 percent increase in the number of telephones, there has been a slight decrease in the number of employees. Thus, with a smaller number of employees than in 1918, we are furnishing service to a greatly increased number of patrons.

This increase in the efficiency of our employees has also resulted in a greatly improved service to the public, and our records show that at no time in the history of the Company has the service we are furnishing been better than at present.

LESSON FOR DECEMBER 10

THE STORY OF THE GOOD SAMARITAN

LESSON TEXT—Luke 10:25-37.
GOLDEN TEXT—Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.—Lev. 19:18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Showing Kindness to a Stranger.
JUNIOR TOPIC—The Story of the Good Samaritan.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Being a Good Neighbor.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Who Is My Neighbor?

I. How to Inherit Eternal Life (vv. 25-28).

1. The Lawyer's Question (v. 29). "Lawyer" here means one versed in religious law—the Scriptures. This does not mean lawyer in our modern sense of that term. It would more nearly correspond to a theological professor. The lawyer's object was to trap Jesus—to induce Him to take such a stand as would weaken His influence as a teacher. He expected Jesus to set forth some new ceremonies which would conflict with or disparage the law.

2. Jesus' Question (v. 26). Though Jesus knew the motive of the lawyer He did not evade his question. He sent him to the law—the field which was familiar to him. He thus was robbed of his own weapon.

3. The Lawyer's Reply (v. 27). He made an intelligent answer declaring that the entire content of the law was embraced in love to God and man. This expresses the whole of human duty.

4. Jesus Reply (v. 28). This straightforward answer went to the heart of the lawyer. Perfect love to God and man is truly the way of life. No man has yet had or can have such love. His sinful condition precludes its possibility. Man's failure to measure up to this requirement is his condemnation. The lawyer keenly felt this thrust. He was defeated on his own grounds and convicted of guilt.

II. Who Is My Neighbor (vv. 29-37).

1. The Lawyer's Question (v. 29). This question reveals the insincerity of the lawyer. Christ's answer had reached his conscience and now he seeks to escape the difficulty by asking a captious question. Lawyer-like he sought to get off by raising a question as to the meaning of words.

2. Jesus' Answer (vv. 30-37). Christ's reply more than answered the lawyer's question. In the parable of the Good Samaritan He makes clear who is a neighbor, and also what it means to be a neighbor, or what loving a neighbor means. Christ's answer had a double meaning. He not only made clear who is my neighbor, but made it clear that the lawyer was not playing the neighbor. He thus was convicted of not having been a neighbor.

(1) Who is my neighbor? This destitute and wounded man left on the highway by the robbers is the man who needs a neighbor. My neighbor, therefore, is the one who needs my help, whether he lives next door or on the outside of the world. Those who have the Spirit of Christ can see their neighbors on every hand.

(2) What being a neighbor means. Our supreme concern should not be "Who is my neighbor?" but "Whose neighbor am I?" To be a neighbor is (a) to see those about us who need help (v. 33). Love is keen to discern need. We should be on the lookout for those in need of our help. (b) Have compassion on the needy (v. 33). Christ's compassion was aroused as He came into contact with those who were suffering and in need. All those who have His nature will be likewise moved. (c) Give to those in need (v. 34). Many are willing to give money to help the poor and needy, but are unwilling to personally minister to them. Many times the personal touch is more important than the material aid. We should give ourselves as well as our money. (d) Bind up wounds (v. 34). Set the helpless ones on our beasts while we walk (v. 34). This is proof that love is genuine. Christians will deny themselves in order to have something to give to those who have need. This kind of sympathy is greatly needed today. (f) Bring to the inn and take care of the unfortunate (v. 34). Genuine love does not leave its service incomplete. Much Christian service is spasmodic, helps and then leaves a man to take care of himself. (g) Give money (v. 35). Love is a good deal to be a neighbor. Love is the most expensive thing in the world. It cost God His only Son. It cost Christ His life. May we go and do likewise!

When the Last Trump Sounds. The Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first.—I Thessalonians 4:16.

Such as I Love. I rebuke and chastise. Be zealous, therefore, and do penance.—Apocalypse 3:19.

Doing Nothing. Doing nothing with a deal of skill.—Cowper.

THE CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR TOPIC

From Moody Bible Institute Monthly
Chicago, Ill.

December 10
Some Things I Believe
John 11:17-27, 41-46

Such a topic as this is indeed a challenge. These are the days in which all the positive and outstanding things of our historic Christian faith are negated or denied by a system that calls itself by the name of "Liberalism" or "Modernism." It professes to know a lot of things that are "not so," especially about matters which throughout the past centuries have proved to be "the power of God unto salvation." It is destructive and not constructive. It refuses to answer our question as the one suggested by our topic, "What do I believe?" and prefers to talk about "What I do not believe." And in talking of this, every great and grand doctrine of evangelical faith would in its turn be denied.

Looking now at our Scripture lesson, let the question be asked in all honesty, What do I believe? Do you believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, the one promised and sent by the Father, as clearly expressed in verse 27, and do you believe that the result of faith in Him is eternal life and a new position as a child of God, as clearly set forth in John 20:31, I John 5:1 and Galatians 3:26? Do you believe that Christ is the Lord and Giver of life as in verses 43 and 44? That He will some day raise all the dead, just as surely as He raised Lazarus, simply by speaking a word? Do you believe He is able to save to the uttermost? All of these things ought to be most heartily believed because they are declared to be so in the Word of God. See John 5:28, 29; Hebrews 7:25 and Phillipians 3:20, 21. Do you believe in the Sermon on the Mount as practical for regenerated people? The worldly cannot live such a life, but you can if you are a child of God, by faith in Christ Jesus. For the Holy Spirit now dwells within you and the fruit of the Spirit as recorded in Galatians 5:22, 23, meets all the requirements of the Sermon on the Mount. In closing look carefully at John 16:31 and answer as in the Lord's presence, the question found there.

THE NOISEMAKER

In every town and hamlet, on every village street,
There is an anti-clamlet that you are bound to meet;
He emulates no oyster when out among the boys,
But opens up his cut-out, and you know him by his noise.

He is the wisest guy that lives,
On everything that goes—
And Noah Webster never knew
What Wisenheimer knows.

He is the village wonder, the marvel of the town—
He knows the weight of thunder and why a star falls down;
He knows why Pierpont Morgan controls so many things,
And speaking of the angels, he can name them by their wings!

He is the king professor
Of everything there is,
And Solomon never had the head
To hold as much as his.

He megaphones his knowledge; to hear him bellow, you
Think he might teach a college a worthwhile thing or two;
And when you hear him spinning his volumes of romance,
You wonder at the hol-polloi's deplorable ignorance!

He is the wisest guy that lives,
And you would not suppose
The Three Wise Men knew anything
Compared with what he knows!
—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

HOLDS WORLD IN MINIATURE

Process of Evolution May Be Watched Through Observation of Contents of Small Jar.

What constitutes a world of life? The wide expanse of the globe is not necessary for a balanced ecology. A whole biological world can be contained in one jar of water.

Here is a picture of a small sealed flask. Its cover is plugged down tight, neither air nor water can enter nor escape. Green algae are growing in the jar. They are bright and healthy, although the jar has been sealed up for a year. Each day a little sunshine

A World Two Inches High. Is permitted to fall on the jar. This suffices to keep the metabolism of the cells in perfect order.

There is no reason why such a jar might not live forever, if kept from too great extremes of light and heat. Not only would it live, but evolution will begin here as though this little jar were the beginning of a new world. New forms and habits will evolve themselves to fit conditions found inside the glass.

HIS TROUBLE NOT PERMANENT

Partridge's Sympathy With Seemingly Badly Afflicted Stranger Just a Little Overdone.

Partridge, on his way to town, was perturbed by the behavior of the man sitting opposite him. The poor fellow made no movement, but sat there motionless, his elbows pressed tightly to his sides, his hands stretched out in front of him. "Paralyzed!" thought Partridge, and being a good-natured fellow, he was only too pleased to accede to the stranger's request that he should take his pipe out of his waistcoat pocket, fill it, and place it in his mouth for him.

"A dreadful thing, paralysis!" remarked Partridge, sympathetically. "Paralysis!" gasped the stranger. "I'm not paralyzed! My wife asked me to come up to town to buy a piece of silk, and"—nodding toward his outstretched hands—"this is the result!"

RADIO ACTS AS CURFEW BELL

With the Announcement of "Bedtime Stories" Patrons of Restaurants Think of Home.

Patrons of a "New York" restaurant in a suburban town are wondering if the proprietors have discovered a subtle way of letting it be known when the closing hour of 8 p. m. is drawing near.

Always on the alert for something to keep the guests amused, the management recently installed a radiophone to supplant a talking machine. The new device proved entertaining with its varied programs of band concerts, vocal selections, summaries of the world's news and other items.

But when 7:30 o'clock brings the announcement of "bedtime stories for the little folks" the majority of the diners begin glancing toward a big clock fastened to one of the walls overhead or else look at their watches. As a result fewer patrons linger after 8 p. m.—New York Sun.

Antipodes Get Radio Signals. Radio time signals sent out from Annapolis station have been heard at the antipodes, or half-way around the world. According to C. E. Adams, official astronomer and seismologist at the Hector observatory, Wellington, New Zealand, time signals sent by radio from the naval station at Annapolis, Md., were heard distinctly by him. Another report received by the naval observatory from Australia stated that the time signals had been heard there within a fraction of a second after their transmission, apparently coming both ways around the world.

THE ULTIMATE CONSUMER

Mr. Titus Wadde—Four dollars a week is a pretty big price for board. Do I get any rebate for the scraps I leave on my plate?
Mrs. Borden-Lodge—The eight dollar boarders get the scrap rebate. At four dollars a week you won't leave any scraps.

All of One Denomination. The lieutenant governor of Manitoba, Sir James Aikins, has been informed that all cabinet ministers who took office last month are Scots, or of Scotch extraction, and they are Presbyterians. This is the first time in the history of the province any cabinet has been entirely of one religious denomination, although they may have all been Scots.

Cow Has Odd Hoof. A Nova Scotia correspondent of a Canadian newspaper says that her neighbor owns a cow with an odd hoof. Three of the animal's hoofs are natural but the fourth is round and single like that of a horse. The cow is quite normal in every other way.

Woman Runs Great Farm. Miss "California" Gibson is the manager of one of the Pacific coast's most prosperous ranches and director of an irrigation district. She controls nearly 2,200 acres, and hundreds of men workers, but can lift a helping hand herself when necessary.

Dog and Rooster Fight. A Montana ranchman says he has a dog and a rooster that fight each other. They fight for hours at a time. When the dog gets tired and goes off to lie down, the rooster crows, as though he had won the day.

Umbrellas Match Gowns. Umbrellas with detachable covers, which can be changed to match any individual gown, have been invented.

TO BE LEARNED BY HEART

O, beautiful for spacious skies,
For amber waves of grain,
For purple mountain majesties
Above the fruited plain;
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

O, beautiful for pilgrim feet,
Whose stern, impassioned stress
A thoroughfare for freedom beat
Across the wilderness;
America! America!
God mend thine every flaw,
Confirm thy soul in self-control,
Thy liberty in law.

O, beautiful for heroes proved
In liberating strife,
Who more than self their country loved,
And mercy more than life!
America! America!
May God thy gold refine
Till all success be nobleness,
And every gain divine.

O, beautiful for patriot dream,
That sees beyond the years
Thine alabaster cities gleam
Undimmed by human tears;
America! America!
God shed His grace on thee,
And crown thy good with brotherhood
From sea to shining sea.

CONVEYS WARNING TO MINERS

What Might Be Called Singing Lamp Tells of the Presence of Dangerous Gases.

The safety lamp formerly in common use by miners has now been almost entirely supplanted by the use of electric lighting. However, one miner in each shaft is still provided with the benzine safety lamp, for the reason that it affords a reliable indication of the presence of explosive gases. This is because the flame immediately undergoes an alteration in size and color when gas makes its appearance. This demands constant watchfulness to detect the change. Dr. Hans Fleissner, professor at the Leoben High School of Mines, Germany, has recently made the discovery that by means of a special adaptation of the benzine lamp, explosive gases can be made to give a warning to the ear as well as to the eye. Its outer form corresponds to the ordinary benzine lamp. In the upper part of the lamp there is a system of tubes so arranged that the air on entering is obliged to take the direction shown by the arrows in order to reach the flame. When the air contains a percentage of some combustible gas, the flame is increased in size in the familiar manner and there are also produced vibrations in the narrow glass tubes within which the flame burns, which occasion a clearly perceptible sound. In order to make the flame more sensitive it is surrounded by a spiral wire, thus forming a sort of Bunsen burner. As soon as the air which enters the lamp ceases to contain any inflammable gas, the sound ceases and the flame assumes its normal aspect. Experiments have shown, according to an account in Die Umschau (Frankfurt), that this lamp affords an absolutely reliable audible indication of danger when explosive gases are present. It was also shown that the sound is produced only when the methane is mixed with the proper amount of oxygen to form an explosive mixture.—From the Literary Digest.

"Pests" Made Useful. Glasgow, which prides itself on its municipal efficiency, has lately discovered that even small insects may be utilized in the interests of the empire. The filters at its sewage purification works become periodically choked with a gelatinous matter, the clearing away of which was very costly. The local authorities have now enlisted large number of insects of the flea tribe and the results are remarkable. Each of these insects absorbs four pounds per week of this disturbing gelatin and allows the sewage to be converted into water that possesses crystal clearness. Acharubes, as they are called, have hitherto been regarded merely as pests, now we employ them.

Calf Went Home in State. The unusual sight of a calf being pushed home from market in a perambulator while the cow, its mother, walked by the side was seen in Newburg, England, recently. Originally the occupant of the perambulator was a baby, but as the calf became obstreperous in a busy part of the town the Postmaster Wm. E. Burke, who will soon retire as Postmaster of Taneytown, will do so with an excellent record. Both he and his assistant, Wm. E., Jr., have conducted the affairs of the office with general satisfaction to the patrons, and one of the best recommendations, of Mr. Burke's administration is the fact that many Republican patrons would not have raised serious complaint had he been appointed for a third term; but, two terms seems to have been established as the limit, for the past 36 years.

A Virginia Horse Adv.

The following horse ad recently appeared in the Scottsville (Va.) News, and is said to have brought almost 50 replies, and a quick sale.

"FOR SALE—One male animal, alleged to be a horse. Age unknown, but in all probability was foaled sometime during the present century; 15.3 hands high, inclined to be angular. Harness will hang on him anywhere and at any angle. Condition fair to middling; 11 ribs on each side; (you can count them for yourself) the rest of his anatomy is fairly well concealed. Four legs, one of them in excellent shape—better in fact than many which have been in evidence of late. Two eyes which are normal for a horse of his age. Teeth need some repairs and some replacements. Any lady with plenty of time, patience, and a good whip can drive him—and he will stand without hitching. This is probably the best thing he does. Price, with the usual factory guarantee, exceptions as above, $12; price "as is," without recourse, $10; halter extra. Apply Sam Huffman, Esmont, Va."
