DETROIT STILL ENJOYING WINTER

Elections, Bond Issues, Industry,
Rents and Real Estate.

In one of my former letters to the Record, I indulged in a little bragging about the way the past winter had treated us, there having been but very little cold weather, although we had lots of snow. In fact more snow has fallen the past winter than in any two winters we have spent here. When I wrote my last letter, I did not count on March giving us such a raw deal, and consequently, after passing through that month, I will have to take back part of what I said. The weather through March has been something fierce; the thermometer registered as low as 6 degrees above zero, and we had snow at least on an average of every other day. There was only one day that I can recollect that could be called a March day, as we knew them in Maryland, and there were two days at least that equalled in inclemency anything that we had experienced during the worst part of the winter. Even now, with April one-fourth gone, we are having some of the same kind of weather, and there is plenty of ice on the river, while we read of the snow drifts being 10 feet or more high in the north of Michigan.

But there are signs of Spring that cannot be ignored. The robins, a small number of which have been with us all winter, are returning in large numbers; the farmers who make it a custom to come to Detroit each winter with the intention of picking up some extra spending money, by working in the automobile factories, are returning to their homes; and those who usually work during the cold weather and loaf when it is warm enough to sleep out doors, are handing in their time and preparing to take the road for another season. The small boy is getting rid of his accumulation of marbles, and flying kites, which is as sure a sign of Spring in Detroit as was the return of "Bolivar" from Westminster to Taneytown. Everywhere you see the future Ty Cobbs limbering up their arms in preparation for the coming baseball season. You also see the signs in the sporting columns of the daily newspapers, where baseball is taking the place of football, basketball and bowling, all of which are much indulged in by the young men of this city, in the proper season.

Another sign of the season is the fact that we have just held our Spring election. Two primaries and two elections every year, is the rule out here, and sometimes, as in the past year, a couple of special elections, are held. As far as the primaries are concerned, they are simply a farce, and the law is the queerest and poorest that I have ever heard of. No one need declare his affiliation when he registers, and all he needs to do at the primaries is to call for the ballot of the party he wishes to vote with for the time being. They say that this encourages independent voting, but all I can see in it is the chance for a member of one party to vote the ticket of the other at the primary, so as to get a weak candidate on the ticket he intends to vote against at the regular election; and believe me, this is done time and again.

The County Commissioners of Carroll County ought to come to Detroit and take instructions in getting wanted Bond issues approved by the voters. Twice inside of 6 months an issue of $500,000 worth of bonds to aid the Municipal Street Railway, was defeated, but the managers of the system were not satisfied and submitted it at the Spring election, and won out. Our taxes have been tripled in 4 years, but that makes no difference as long as the non-taxpayers vote.

We are still going ahead in Detroit, in the matter of work. More men are now working in the shops than ever before, and the outlook is for a larger output each month for some time to come. Real estate is beginning to climb, and some of the former Taneytowners have taken advantage of it, and have sold their properties. One would think, after seeing the amount of building going on, that homes would be getting cheaper, but such is not the case. One firm is building 100 two-family flats in our neighborhood, and disposing of them as fast as finished at a price twice as high as I paid for a much better one when we came out here in 1917, and rents are in accordance.

No one need expect to get any kind of a place for less than $50.00 a month and a single house, such as we have, will rent for as much a month, as you can get one in Taneytown for a whole year. So any one who is contemplating coming out here, may calculate on paying a stiff rent. Of course, the higher wages helps out a good bit, but taking the high taxes and other running expenses into account, a family must have an income running over $50.00 a week to live comfortably here.

I notice the death rate is keeping up in and around Taneytown. Almost the first thing we look for on receiving the Record, is the death column, and in looking back we find that a large number of our friends in your community have passed on. But, this is no more than we can look for, and by looking over the advertisements, we see that others are taking the places of those who die.

JOHN J. REID.

BARBARA FRITCHIE AGAIN.

Not a "Literary Fake" as charged by a Letter to The Sun.

Recently, an article appeared in the Baltimore Sun on the rejuvenated Barbara Fritchie incident, written by a Johns Hopkins student, apparently discrediting the whole story, practically classing it as a "myth," or flight of poetic fancy. Mr. Jesse Englar, of Baltimore, who has taken a somewhat active interest in the subject, and who has been heard from before, in The Record, made an investigation of the so-called facts as given by the student, and sent a letter to The Sun, as reproduced below.

The Sun did not publish this letter, giving as its reason that it was "too lengthy," but later published an abbreviated letter that omitted a portion of Mr. Englar's statements. As the Sun's article was no doubt widely read, and while we have already given the matter considerable space, we think it but fair to Mr. Englar and to the subject itself, that the full text of his letter to the Sun be published.

To the Editor of The Sun,

Sir:

There recently appeared in several issues of "The Sun" in large type conspicuously displayed the following head-lines, "Barbara Fritchie's Battle Story," "Class at Hopkins," "Whittier's Story of Barbara Fritchie crushed by Mr. T. M. Jenifer a young Hopkins student," and "Barbara Fritchie story again assailed by Hopkins student." This student, Mr. T. M. Jenifer claims that he had been assigned the subject by his teacher, Dr. Jno. C. French.

Mr. Jenifer's preliminary statement was that his studies took him deep into "reams of controversial literature, letters, essays, threats, denials and recriminations by everybody from the Civil War Postmaster to the Bentztown Bard." He states he discovered and revealed to his classmates that Barbara Fritchie did not exist. He further says society particularly in Frederick has been split and homes shattered over the Barbara Fritchie controversy. Now, as the Civil War Postmaster is long since dead, and Mr. McKinsey, the "Bentztown Bard," is dead, it must have been adopted from other sources and part of other columns by those to whom the wording of Whittier's poem is not pleasant reading.

His charges, of which there is no proof, are impossible to be true. No intelligent person of unbiased mind will ever believe a word of these so called "discoveries." There are of that class who have been deceived by repetition may only cause some skeptic to be further misled and even with the added name of Hopkins to the title of this student cannot give his statements any credence or dignity or decency. They are an insult to the memory of a patriotic woman as well as her living relatives and friends and should not go unchallenged. However, happily for the honor and reputation of Hopkins University, when Dr. French's attention was called to the matter, he promptly disclaimed any responsibility and stated that Mr. Jenifer selected his own subject and gave his own views and the publicity given the subject was through no wish of Dr. French, who further declared the article was written up by a reporter who happened to be in his class. Now, in the interest of right and truth, I will ask you to publish this letter in full together with the following evidence to refute the baseless statements and charges so widely broadcasted by Mr. Jenifer and his reporter friends through the medium of "The Sun."

Barbara Fritchie, (nee Hauer) was born in Lancaster, Pa., and when quite young, her parents moved to Frederick, Md., where she was married and resided until her death Dec. 18, 1862. Her body together with that of her husband was buried in Mt. Olivet Cemetery where a handsome monument marks her grave. This memorial was erected out of a fund created by voluntary contributions from all parts of the United States. In a history of Frederick County published by Mr. J. M. Williams, 1910 Mr. Folger McKinsey prepared a chapter wherein he refers to the departure of the Confederates from Frederick he states, it was when an army passed through the City that led to the Barbara Fritchie incident upon which the poem by John G. Whittier bearing the name of the aged heroine is based, there is positive proof that Barbara Fritchie waved her flag at that time but not sufficient evidence to justify the statement that the officer who defended her was Stonewall Jackson, when an attempt was made to take her flag.

Mr. Joseph Lowe now living in Minnesota, but formerly of Frederick County was the first witness to the flag waving that day and in "The Sun" Nov. 12, 1913 in a letter by Mr. Jas. L. Parsons who says he was a member of Jackson Third Brigade and marched by Mrs. Fritchie's house that day she waved her flag and the episode created comment throughout the line of the troops. There will also be found in the Congressional Library a letter from General Sherman to the Confederate Capt. Frank Myers in the Atlanta Constitution April 7, 1910 and in the Confederate Veterans' Magazine that Barbara Fritchie waved her flag.

As a rule, such events occurring on the spur of the moment are seen by a few persons only. Take the recent tragic occurrence here in Baltimore out of a population of over seven hundred thousand scarcely one dozen could be found who witnessed it. Possibly Mr. Jenifer felt that the majority of those who did witness Barbara Fritchie waving her flag were dead is why he took up the subject now, but that does not justify his attempt in the manner he did to try to cast doubt upon and actually deny the existence of Barbara Fritchie and the true incident which occurred sixty years ago and fully forty years before he was born.

JESSE ENGLAR.
Baltimore, March 28, 1923.

Missionaries, Returning.

Mrs. Hannah S. Garner and family, of near Union Bridge, are anxiously looking forward to the arrival of her son, Holly P. Garner and wife, who have been missionaries of the Church of the Brethren in India for over six years. They, in company with their one-and-a-half-year-old son, planned to leave India, April 3, and leave Liverpool, England, May 5, arriving in New York about May 10. Miss Florence Garner, of Frederick, will probably meet them in New York and accompany them home. They will make a short stay with relatives and friends, after which they will go to Mrs. Garner's home in Illinois, and likely attend the Annual Conference at Calgary, Canada. They will return to this section in the fall and make a more extended visit.

FARM BUREAU FEDERATION OF MD.

Public Meetings to Tell of Its Advantages to Farmers.

Do you know that there are eight counties in the state organized, that several counties are in the process of organization and that there are over six thousand members in the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation? Do you know that these six thousand members are buying farm supplies through the Agricultural Corporation of Maryland at quite a saving, that plans are being perfected at this time for sale of this spring's wool crop and to handle wheat, and that efforts are being made to help the farmer of Maryland solve his many problems?

The Farm Bureau is an organization of farmers to carry on the business of farming. Only a third of the farmers were visited in Carroll County and nearly three hundred have signed the three year agreement. A drive will be put on next week to clean up the county and give every farmer a chance to become a member of the Farm Bureau. The following meetings will be held and prominent speakers will tell of the workings of the Farm Bureau, not only in Maryland but all over the country.

Hampstead, Monday, April 16, High School.

Manchester, Monday, April 16, School House.

Frizzellburg, Tuesday, April 17, Frizzellburg Hall.

Taneytown, Tuesday, April 17, Opera House.

Taylorville, Wednesday, April 18, School House.

Mt. Airy, Wednesday, April 18, High School.

Barrett, Thursday, April 19, School House.

Sandyville, Thursday, April 19, School House.

All meetings will be held at 8 P. M.

As I do not have a complete mailing list of all the farmers in the county I hope that you will tell your neighbors of these meetings and urge them to be present. These are information meetings and plans will be made to make the drive for that section of the county the following day. Will you co-operate in this work by being present and by bringing your neighbor?

F. W. FULLER, Co. Agent.

Fire in Sykesville.

A fire believed to have been due to a defective flue destroyed the home of John Harris, Sykesville, early on Monday morning. The Harris' family, including the baby, ill with double pneumonia, were awakened from sleep and barely had time to flee to the street. At one time the Harris house the town hall, the jail and the "old volunteer house," occupied by the fire company, were in flames.

At 3:30 A. M., the blaze at the Harris house was discovered by Wm. Melville, postmaster of the town, who gave the alarm. Mr. and Mrs. Harris with their sick baby ran to the street in their nightclothes and other garments hastily thrown around them. Mrs. Harris and the child were cared for at the home of a neighbor.

Hardly more than a bucket brigade, the Sykesville Volunteer Fire Company is said to have done excellent work in fighting the flames until the arrival of the Westminster company.

Virtually all of the houses and buildings in Sykesville are of frame construction, and sparks carried by the wind from Harris' house ignited the building housing the Town Hall, jail and engine company. Timely arrival of the Westminster company prevented further spread of the flames and the two fire companies soon had the burning buildings under control.

Actual loss suffered is slight, the damage being conservatively fixed at $4000. The house occupied by Mr. Harris and owned by James Sullivan was burned to the ground. One side of the Town Hall was also burned.

Ownership of The Baltimore Sun.

From the Baltimore Sun's sworn published statement of ownership, it does not appear that William Randolph Hearst, recent purchaser of the American and News, is an owner of stock in The Sun, as the names of said owners appear on the books of the Company; and that "this affiant has no reason to believe that any other person, association or corporation has any interest, direct or indirect, in said stock, bonds or other securities than as so stated by him."

This statement is made by The Record, inasmuch as it published, last week, a clipping from the Brooklyn Eagle that Mr. Hearst owned "a controlling interest in the Abell Publishing Co., owning the morning and evening Sun."

Orphans' Home Supt. Dead.

Charles A. Widle, superintendent of Loysville, Pa., (Lutheran) Orphans' Home, died suddenly at the home, on Tuesday morning. Mr. Widle, was superintendent of the Home for 35 years, and was both popular and efficient. His age was 62 years.

A Kansas editor would like to know; "if a man descended or ascended from an ape how does it come that the ape remains an ape?" It may have been a matter of choice.—Toledo Blade.

WOMAN'S MISSIONARY MEETING

Reports Show Growth in Reformed
Missionary Work.

The ninth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Maryland Classis was held in Grace Reformed Church, Taneytown, April 5th, and 6th. Rev. Guy P. Bready, pastor. The Executive Committee meeting was held at 11 A. M. The Convention proper opened at 2 P. M., with the president Mrs. Chas. Wehler, Frederick, in the chair.

The devotional was conducted by Mrs. W. P. Beard, Hagerstown. Mrs. John C. Shreeve, of Taneytown, gave the greetings and Mrs. J. L. Barnhart, of Baltimore, the response.

The reports of officers and departmental secretaries showed a great increase in work, contributions and membership.

Thursday evening, at 7:30, Rev. Guy P. Bready, had charge, and a large and appreciative audience greeted Rev. Chas. S. Hoover, of Frederick, who gave his illustrated lecture on the missions in the West. The photographs he made when doing Survey Work for the Board of Home Missions in Arizona, Southern Canada and Mexico.

There was special music by the choir. Solos by Miss Dorothy Robb and Mrs. Elmer Dixon, of Frederick.

Friday at 9 A. M., was a meeting of all committees, and at 10 A. M., the convention opened. Mrs. Murray Ness, of Baust Church, conducted the devotional service. The reports of delegates showed increase in membership, new societies formed and work increased in all departments.

The afternoon session opened with devotional by Miss Charlotte Rensburg, of Middletown. After report of committees, the annual election of officers was held and the following were elected.

President, Mrs. Henry Foster, Clear Spring; First Vice-Pres., Mrs. E. R. Barnhart, Baltimore; 2nd. Vice-Pres., Mrs. John C. Shreeve, Taneytown; Rec. Sec., Mrs. Murray Ness, Baust Church; Cor. Sec., Mrs. Walter Rensburg, Middletown; Statistical Secretary, Mrs. Elmer Dixon, Frederick; Treas., Mrs. Ephraim Cornman, of Washington; Sec. Y. W. M. A., Mrs. Melvin Marley, Baltimore; Sec. Literature, Mrs. M. E. Shower, Baltimore; Sec. Thank-Offering, Mrs. Allen Lampe, Frederick; Temperance, Mrs. James R. Bergey, Baltimore; Organization and Membership, Mrs. Chas. Wehler, Frederick; Sec. Stewardship, Mrs. Conrad Clever, Hagerstown; Life Members and members in Memoriam, Mrs. R. S. Dutrow, Frederick.

Friday, at 7:30 we were favored with two addresses, Mrs. E. F. Evermayer, of San Francisco, Cal, spoke very forcefully of their work on the Pacific Coast, especially among the Japanese people; and Rev. Paul Schaffer, of China, of their work and the needs in the Foreign fields.

All the sessions were well attended. There were fourteen officers and thirty-eight delegates and a large number of visitors present. The lunch was served at the parsonage by members and friends of the Taneytown Missionary Society.

MRS. JOHN C. SHREEVE.

Odd Fellows Home Begun.

Frederick, April 10.—Ground was broken today for the main entrance to the State Odd Fellows' Home, on the North Market street road, a mile from the city limits.

Grand Master, L. B. Hafer, Taneytown; Grand Secretary, William A. Jones, Baltimore; Past Grand Masters H. Dorsey Etchison and Henry M. McCullough, the latter of Elkton, and about fifty members of the order, including members of the building commission, were present.

Short addresses were delivered by the Grand Officers, after which Grand Master Hafer plowed the first furrow of land. Ground will be broken for the main building next month.

The site comprises 95 acres on an elevation commanding an unsurpassed view of Catoctin Mountain and the surrounding country. Almost opposite is Rose Hill Manor, the historic home of Thomas Johnson, the first Governor of Maryland. The home will consist of an administration and other buildings, costing about $500,000 when completed.—Balt. Sun.

President Harding Not Decided.

President Harding, since his return from Florida, has left it be known that he has not decided whether he will be a candidate for renomination, or not, and may not decide the matter for several months. The Daugherty statement, made some weeks ago, was unauthorized; but it is expected to have the effect of keeping others out of the field until Mr. Harding decides. He is contemplating a trip to Alaska, which will be partly a speech-making tour across the country, and this may help in arriving at a final conclusion.

Wages and Prices.

The announcement, this week, that the U. S. Steel Corporation has raised the wages of its day laborers 11 percent, with an equitable adjustment for other classes of labor in these plants, which adds about $150,000 a week to the pay roll, does not look much like prices of steel and iron manufactures coming down.

This increase follows like action in many textile industries, copper mining and certain building trades. The tendency so far this year, has been upwards, in merchandise generally.

WORLD COURT ISSUE STIRS UP TROUBLE

President Harding Warned that the Party Would be Split.

President Harding has been warned by Senator Watson, of Indiana, that making a National issue of the World Court—or League of Nations Court—as sponsored by Secretaries Hughes and Hoover, would split the party, and make an easy victory for the Democrats in 1924. That the great bulk of Republicans is opposed to any participation by this country in any scheme that sounds like America entering a League of Nations, even though the World Court, as proposed, is not as sweeping as the Wilson League of Nations proposition.

That it would mean the nomination of a candidate of the Senator Johnson stripe; and would cause the whole group of "irreconcilables" to follow him, and split the party into two camps.

On the other hand, Secretary Hoover is now in the West, furthering a drive for the World Court. He denies that the issue would seriously split the party, and says the United States cannot escape taking its part in world politics. At Des Moines, Iowa, he said:

"The only obligations we take are these and only these: 'We promise to pay a share of the running expenses of the court, a matter less than $40,000 a year; and we promise to take part with 46 other nations in choosing the judges.'"

A rather surprising statement made by Secretary Hoover was that the court as constituted today is to a large degree the product of American thought and the handiwork of American men of both parties, for we were all represented in its formulation.

"Their (decrees of the court) enforcement rests wholly on public opinion not upon force. In supporting this court we subscribe to no compulsion whatever. Compulsion is, in fact, specifically excluded. We do not need to submit any case to the court unless we feel like doing so at the time the case arises. No other nation can summon us into court, except with our consent. The court itself cannot summon us in, nor in any manner or degree exert upon us any kind of compulsion, not even moral."

Parent-Teacher Program.

The following program of the Parent-Teachers' Association will be rendered in the Taneytown High School, on Friday, April 20, at 2:30 P. M., to which all are cordially invited.

Song by the audience, "Onward Christian Soldiers."

Business of the Association.

Recitation by a High School pupil.

Music by Miss Robb and Mr. Fern Hitchcock.

Subject for discussion, Should pupils who fall below "C" in their studies be barred from athletics until they have made up the deficiency?

Song by the audience, "God Be With You."

Adjournment.

Twenty-five Years Ago.

The Double Pipe Creek (now De-tour) warehouse elevator was destroyed by fire.

Franklin Bowersox had a buggy, harness and implement sale; 22 buggies and other items were sold at good prices.

The Roberts residence on Middle St., was sold to John J. Crapster for $3500., representing a loss on first cost of $3000.

Fifty percent of the peaches and pears in the Blue-Ridge section was killed by a snow and hard freeze.

War had not yet been declared against Spain, but the situation was growing very critical, and actual war was regarded inevitable.

Charles A. Elliot, James Buffington, and Lincoln J. Wright, made application for liquor license in Taneytown.

Carroll Society of Baltimore.

The Carroll County Society of Baltimore City held its annual meeting at the Y. M. C. A. Building, on Tuesday night last. George K. Mather, of Westminster, delivered a very interesting talk on Rio de Janeiro.

The following officers were elected for the coming year: Louis H. Dielman, President; William M. Panne-baker, M. D. and Mrs. Gara W. Bagwell, Vice-Presidents; Geo. R. Babylon, Secretary; George W. Houck, Treasurer; Mrs. Lily R. Benson, Harry E. Houck, W. Maurice Routsen, Lawrence Wooden, Board of Governors.

Seeds of plants and grains found in the tomb of Tut-ankh-Amen, 3,400 years old, were brought to this country by William Boyce Thompson, a mine owner who arrived this week on the Adriatic. They will be planted in Yonkers to ascertain whether they still retain life.

When a whale is captured an instrument like a gigantic hypodermic syringe is inserted into the dead body and air is pumped in until the whale floats. Then, if other whales are about, a flag is stuck in the blubber and the quarry cast adrift; a fresh line is coiled and the chase begins afresh. The harpoon is shot from a gun.

THE NEEDS OF FARMERS.

The Money Stringency having Effect on Business.

The Philadelphia Ledger gives the following brief review of the financial situation concerning farmers adjacent to Philadelphia.

"The financial status of the farmer this spring, according to several Philadelphia business houses that depend largely on country trade, is lower than for several years. Together with the adverse weather conditions of last summer, prices paid growers were low, and the resulting lack of each is apparent in the increasing requests for credit. Grain and general farmers are the hardest hit, while poultrymen and dairymen have had a better year.

Last fall farmers sold their wheat for 88 cents a bushel and now, when they are looking for a new reaper and binder, they find the implement men asking $225. Farm equipment is from 7 to 12 percent higher than a year ago and the tendency is to go higher before the season is over.

Country implement dealers have not anticipated the needs of their customers and are buying only as orders come to them. The farm equipment now being used is said not to be in as good shape as for the last five years, and present buying is for absolute needs, the main trade being in repair parts in endeavor to make the old machines last another year.

Fertilizer manufacturers who have made it a practice for the last forty-five years to sell on credit are watering sales carefully this year and in some cases refusing business they would be glad to get ordinarily. Many customers have not settled for the last two years' supplies.

Prices for ready-mixed fertilizers this year are the same as last year and a little lower than prices of raw materials. This is because the manufacturers bought largely at last year's raw material prices.

Horse dealers in West Philadelphia who depend on farm trade at this time of the year complain of lack of money in the farmers' hands and their desire to buy on notes. Demand for horses is strong, and dealers believe they could easily exceed last year's record business if they were willing to extend more credit. The best farm horses are now coming from Iowa and teams are bringing around $300."

Proceedings of the Orphans' Court.

The Editorial Page.

Very frequently the Editor of The Record writes something for this page, or carefully selects articles written by others, with the feeling that he is simply "filling up" several columns of space, and consigning said articles to a sort of weekly graveyard where they will rest largely unknown and unremembered, hardly worth the time and effort for their preparation and burial, which means that one's best efforts are to some extent discouraged in advance.

Certainly, the number of those who read the "editorial" page must be very small by comparison with the number reading the "locals," the first page, and even the advertisements; but, even with this certain knowledge there is the accompaniment that editorials—or at least the purpose of them—should be read and considered, as helping people to think for themselves, even by arousing their disagreement.

Without doubt, there is a trend in the public mind away from preaching; away from sound thought; away from dullness and careful study; but, it is a wrong—a dangerous—trend, and we are having instead a crop of half-baked, hastily thrown together, surface propaganda, that is working ill for this country, and the whole world, even with reference to the most vital important moral and social questions.

The President's Record.

If the people of the United States, even by political units, know what they want, they have a way of knowing it for but a short time. When Col. Roosevelt was President, and later when Mr. Wilson drove the ship of state, a good many people were sure that they did not want so much "one man" rule; it was too much like being ruled by a Czar, or an Emperor, or some other dictator. But, now that Mr. Harding is trying to be more modest, and let Congress have a show at running things, some of these same critics are no better satisfied.

Mr. Harding is too unemotional. He lacks initiative. He does not keep the country properly thrilled with new and popular American policies. He has had two years in which to please the farmers, the labor unions, the Railroad interests, and in general, that mixed class that wants the things they deal in to go higher, and those they buy to go lower, and strange to say, he has not succeeded.

"They say," there is neither much applause, nor very much hostility, but this must mean that he has not made good, because he has not exuberantly pleased the whole crowd. Apparently, it never strikes the critics that the real thing for the American people to do is agree among themselves how things ought to be done—how they want them done—then put it up to the Executive head of the country to put their wishes through.

The people can not settle their own difficulties, nor prevent new ones coming, yet somehow expect the President to do it—somehow—any old way.

We make of our President a sort of dumping ground for the country's ills—our own rumpuses—and no matter what he does about them, he does it wrong—for somebody. We expect the President to be omnipotent; but, if he actually was, we would not believe it, nor accept him as such.

A Preface by Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan recently delivered an address on "Darwinism and its Disciples," in Chicago, the preface to which was so representative of the Bryan way of approaching topics in general, and at the same time so full of naive humor with respect to politics and religion, that we give it space.

I do not suppose that I have a single person in this audience to convert this afternoon. This audience is much like one I had at a high school down near Jacksonville, Ill., in 1884; that is, this is religiously like that politically. As I went from the rear of the little school house up to the front, one of the Democrats stopped me and whispered, "Hit 'em hard. There isn't a Republican here." He thought that was a good audience where I could hit the Republicans because there were none there.

As a matter of fact that is not my idea of an audience, and I have very seldom had one like it. There are always some Republicans who will slip in to disturb the peace. I would rather speak to an audience with Republicans, if I was making a political speech, than an audience of Democrats.

Now this may seem strange to you but I will explain it. I heard of a criminal lawyer, who said he did not like to defend a man who was innocent. Whenever he defended a man who was innocent he was oppressed by the thought that by some mistake of his that innocent man might be convicted, and the thought of being responsible for such a blot upon a man's life was so great that he just did not like to defend an innocent man. But he was willing to defend a guilty man for if he was sent to the penitentiary he deserved it any how.

You may get from this story why it is that I feel more free when speaking to Republicans than to Democrats. When I am speaking to Democrats I feel they are all right, and I cannot do them much good, and might possibly do them harm, and the responsibility that rests upon me when I think of doing a Democrat harm is too great. When I speak to Republicans I know I cannot hurt them and I may help them.

And so when on a religious subject, if I am speaking only to Christians, there is not the opportunity to do good that there is where there may be some who could be brought to say that I presented arguments they had not heard before and that I had convinced them. When I am talking to an audience like this, all I can hope to do is to increase the enthusiasm, and that is a great deal.

You will pardon me if, after the experience I have had in politics, I apply in religious presentations something of the rules I have applied in politics. I found a long while ago that there were two things I had to bear in mind in a political speech. One was to convert those who were opposed to me, but that is the smallest part; the largest part of a political meeting is to increase the enthusiasm of those who are with you that they may go out and do more individual and effective work.

In other words, the primary object of a political meeting is to raise the temperature. Now Democrats, and Republicans too, vary in temperature from just above freezing up to the boiling point. The Democrat who is just above freezing must be handled very carefully, for a little drop in the temperature—and he is gone. But if you can raise him up to the boiling point he will take care of himself, and so it is with you.

Now I want this afternoon, more than tonight, to raise the temperature. If there are any Christians here just above freezing I want to raise them to as near the boiling point as possible. Why? Because when they get to the boiling point they work. I want to increase your religious zeal.

The speaker in politics furnishes arguments for the masses to use. The number of converts made at a political meeting is not large, but if the speaker can present the arguments to those who are with him, they can go out and with his arguments in their own opportunities make more converts than can be made in any meeting.

And so this afternoon I am coming to you not as a minister, but just a layman, and I want to say this to you: the only embarrassment I have in making a religious speech is, that when the papers accept my religious speeches they are apt to leave the impression that I have turned aside from politics to religion. That was suggested recently by a man who introduced me, that I had suspended my political work to engage in a different kind.

This is a mistake—I have not turned aside from politics. "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's and unto God the things that are God's." As a citizen I am interested in the form of government. There is nobody more interested, and I stand ready to defend popular government against anybody on earth.

I am interested in the perfecting of government. I tell the people that they should prize American citizenship; it is the greatest in the world, and the way to prove that you believe in it is to recognize the responsibility, and as a citizen take part in making that government as good as human wisdom can make it.

I do not ask the people to think as I do, but I ask them to think. I would rather have a man think and differ from me than just agree with me without thinking, for if I should happen to make a mistake, those who follow me without thinking will follow me into error; but if I can make the people think, I will trust their arriving at a true conclusion.

Indigestion and Constipation.

Prior to using Chamberlain's Tablets, I suffered dreadfully from indigestion. Nothing I ate agreed with me and I lost flesh and ran down in health. Chamberlain's Tablets strengthened my digestion and cured me of constipation," writes Mrs. George Stroup, Solway, N. Y.

Deafness a National Menace.

That deafness is rapidly becoming a nation-wide menace and that many automobile accidents could be avoided if the defective hearing of citizens, especially children, was remedied, is the claim of Dr. Paul V. Winslow, of Madison avenue, who has recently made preliminary plans for the organization of a national association for the prevention of deafness.

Dr. Winslow favors the radio and says that he believes in many cases the use of the radio with the head attachment for receiving really improves the hearing. As a matter of fact, he is advising certain patients to use the radio, and some have already reported they have been benefited by its use. He said today:

"The Boards of Education of New York and other cities have worked wonders in caring for school children's eyes and teeth, but little has ever been done by the authorities to care for or improve the children's hearing. Catarrh is the worst enemy of the ears. Once catarrh sets in, the hearing is soon affected, and as the disease develops the victim hears less day by day. The mucus drops down, the voice weakens and a general nervousness develops.

"With these handicaps an adult or child in the street is in greater danger of automobile accidents. With thousands of cars racing the streets, the whole atmosphere becomes permeated with carbon monoxide gas, which also affects the hearing. Many automobile accidents could be traced directly to defective hearing, either that of pedestrians or persons at the driving wheel of the car.

"With the ever-increasing street noises, carbon monoxide gas and catarrh, all affecting hearing, we are facing a crucial situation and in time might become a nation of deaf-mutes. Thousands of persons are losing their hearing every year who should not. It is in the their behalf that I have given thought and effort to the formation of a national organization."

Thomas A. Edison and Miss Helen Keller are among the notables who are interested in Dr. Winslow's project. The physician is vice-president of the National Round Table for Speech Improvement.—From N. Y. correspondence to The Philadelphia Ledger.

The Road to Happiness.

You must keep well if you wish to be happy. When constipated take one or two of Chamberlain's Tablets immediately after supper. They cause a gentle movement of the bowels.

Why Pueblo Indians Place Great Importance on the Perpetuation of the Holy Fire.

Among many of the religious forms of the Pueblo Indians, perhaps the most interesting was the perpetuation of the holy fire, by the side of which the Aztecs kept a continual watch for the return to earth of Quetzalcoatl—the god of Air—who, according to their tradition, visited the earth and instructed the inhabitants in agriculture and other useful arts. During his sojourn he caused the earth to yield ten-fold productions, without the necessity of human labor. Everywhere corn, fruit and flowers delighted the eye; the cotton-plant produced its wool already dyed by nature with various hues, aromatic odors pervaded the air, and on all sides resounded the melodious notes of singing birds.

Quetzalcoatl embarked in his boat of rattle skins, on the Gulf of Mexico, and as he was seen to steer to the eastward, his arrival was consequently looked for from that quarter. When the Spaniards arrived from the east, as they resembled the god in the color of their skin, they were at first generally supposed to be the messengers from, or descendants of, the god of the air.

NEW SOURCE OF FUEL FOUND?

What Is Called "Wooden Coal" Said to Have Been Proved Practical—Comparatively Cheap.

In an effort to solve the ever-recurring fuel problem two Tacoma inventors have turned their attention to perfecting a wooden coal which is proving quite practical and is generally used throughout the state of Washington.

Waste products of the lumber mills form the basis for the briquets which the pair have evolved. Bark, sawdust and mill refuse, listed as an economic waste in the past, is being utilized. Tests prove that the briquets possess 97 per cent carbon, 2 per cent volatiles and 1 per cent ash. In addition, they are smokeless.

Rated by the British thermal unit test, the briquets as manufactured by the two rank with the best anthracite coal. Plants for the production of the briquets are now being planned in the various districts, and a scheme is being worked out to reduce the cost of manufacture. At the present time, the actual cost of preparing the waste is $6 a ton. It is believed that by installing larger and heavier machinery and speeding up the production, this cost can be reduced materially.

TRAPPER HAS NEW METHODS

Employs Only Lassoes, Lengths of Chain and Bare Hands in Capture of Wild Animals.

A remarkable article illustrated with very unique photographs appeared in the Wide World Magazine under the caption of "Trapping Wild Animals Alive." It was written by Maj. Jack Allen and the feats he describes are calculated to make the ordinary big-game hunter blink with amazement.

"From first to last," says Major Allen, "I never use a gun except in the utmost extremity of self-defense." The only equipment he uses consists of lassoes, lengths of chain and bare hands! With these bloodless instruments Captain Allen has captured jaguars, leopards and tigers. He has had many narrow escapes from death, and his experiences make thrilling reading.

Major Allen says the strength of the tiger is practically equal to that of the lion, while he has the reputation among hunters of being far more courageous. Therefore the process of capturing a tiger alive involves a considerable degree of risk, but on no occasion has Captain Allen met with a mishap.

The Lost Token.

The car stopped and three passengers escaped from the confusion of the traffic to the comparative safety of the car's platform. One was a young man with a pink rose in his hand. But as he stepped into the car he dropped the rose to the street. He had already paid his fare and the car had covered half a block before he realized his loss.

An expression, not only of regret, but of panic spread over his face. He pressed the button frantically and at the next corner alighted and started back along the car tracks dodging the traffic.

The woman stretched and craned her neck to see if he were rewarded. Yes, he snatched up the rose from the black city mud and stood brushing the dirt from its pure petals. He had recovered his token for which he was willing to give his time and his fare—just a commonplace, ordinary young man like hundreds you see every day. Who dares say romance is dead?—Chicago Journal.

MELROSE.

Nellie A. Zepp spent Saturday last with Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Frock and family, of Westminster Ave., Hanover, Pa.

Our neighborhood deeply sympathizes with Cyrus Leese's family. Mr. Leese's aged sister and his two children have been very ill with grip and pneumonia. At this writing they are slowly improving, after about eight week's illness.

It was a pleasant surprise to learn that David L. Frock, one of our estimable young business men, and Miss Corinne Thomas, a highly respected young lady of Bachman's Valley, were united in the holy bonds of matrimony on Saturday evening last, after which they took a pleasant trip. We take great pleasure in wishing this worthy young couple much happiness and prosperity throughout life.

We want to congratulate Curvin Grogg and Miss Garnet Krug, two highly respected young people of our neighbor town, Lineboro, who were recently married, and wish them the best of everything as they journey together through life.

Carroll Shaffer who recently moved his family to Hanover, had the misfortune to break both bones in his leg while helping to load a truck.

Quite a large number of our people attended the dedication services at the Lutheran Church in Manchester, on Sunday, when the new $4000 pipe organ, recently installed, was tested. There were three services, morning, afternoon and night, quite a number of ministers from neighboring towns participating in the program.

Recently, Amos Grogg an elderly gentleman making his home with Theo. J. Myers, had the misfortune to have two bones in his foot broken, by having the limb of a tree falling accidentally striking it.

Berne Lippy, who was sick with the grip, is able to be about again.

BLUE RIDGE COLLEGE.

No efforts are being spared by Prof. Fletcher in the work on the Operetta, which will be given April 19th. This performance bids fair to eclipse all past ones. The characters have all adapted themselves admirably and a fine rendition is anticipated.

A rare musical treat is offered to the public on April 27, when one of the greatest American violinists, Estelle Gray-Lehvinne will appear in the College Auditorium. Miss Gray-Lehvinne, with her numerous victor records circulated throughout the homes of the country, needs no further introduction. It was indeed a fine achievement for those who were instrumental in securing her services for an evening.

With Metzger pitching superbly, coupled with the timely hitting and brilliant support of his teammates, Blue Ridge humbled her strong rival, Mt. St. Mary's College, at Emmitsburg, Saturday. The game was a pretty pitching duel between Metzger and Baier, until the seventh inning when St. Mary's home run over the left field bank, with two on, broke up the game. This is certainly a fine beginning toward the State Championship. A large crowd of supporters accompanied the team.

Bue Ridge will cross bats with Hopkins, on Thursday, at Homewood. Saturday, April 14, at 2:30 P. M., Penn State Forestry will be met at New Windsor.

A tennis tournament will be played on Saturday morning with Loyola College, at New Windsor.

A Farmer Cured of Rheumatism.
"A man living on a farm near here came in a short time ago completely doubled up with rheumatism. I handed him a bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and told him to use it freely" says C. P. Rayder, Patten Mills, N. Y. "A few days later he walked into the store as straight as a string and handed me a dollar saying, give me another bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment; I want it in the house all the time for it cured me."

KEYMAR.

Miss Mattie Simpson, of Bruceville, made a business trip to Frederick, Saturday last.

David Neuman, spent from Saturday until Monday in Smithburg.

Mrs. Fannie Sappington and daughter, spent the week-end in Taneytown with the former's sister, Mrs. R. A. Alexander.

Miss Stella Koons, spent Friday last with her brother, M. A. Koons and family, of Taneytown, and attended the Woman's Missionary convention of the Reformed Church.

Those who visited at the home of R. W. Galt's, the past week were: G. W. Shipley, D. D. and wife, and Miss Jennie Galt, of Taneytown; Jacob Weaver and wife, and their son, William and wife, and daughter, Sarah, of Hunterstown, and Mrs. E. H. Essig, of Baltimore.

William Mehning made a business trip to Frederick, Friday of last week. Mrs. R. W. Galt was taken suddenly, seriously ill, Friday last, but at this writing she is improving, and we hope for a speedy recovery.

Mrs. Sue Crapster, of Taneytown, is spending some time with Mrs. R. W. Galt.

Charles Stitely, of near this place, was taken with a pain in his right arm Tuesday of last week, while helping to move Roy Dern. He became quite sick, and was taken home by W. M. Mehning, and was a great sufferer for a few days, but at this writing is improving slowly.

J. W. Forrest and wife, Misses Irene Davis and Alice Garber, spent Sunday in Baltimore, with the former's daughter, Miss Lolo.

Carroll Cover, of Brunswick, made a business trip to this place, the first of this week. We are always glad to see his smiling face. He was a former postmaster at this place.

There will be services at Mt. Zion (Haugh) Lutheran Church, next week, beginning Tuesday evening, April 17, at 7:45 o'clock, by the pastor Rev. R. S. Patterson; and the following Sunday there will be Communion Service, at 10:30 A. M.

EMMITSBURG.

Fred Warrenfeltz and family, of Hagerstown, moved to the home of his brother, Henry Warrenfeltz, last week.

Mrs. R. K. Harman and son, Wm., of Taneytown, visited at the home of Charles Landers, on Sunday.

Mrs. Harry Stokes has returned home, after spending some time with her father, in Frederick.

Mrs. Charles Wegand and son, returned to their home, in Lancaster, after spending a week with Miss Mary McNair.

Mrs. Mary Rowe and Miss Frances Rowe, were in Gettysburg, on Tuesday.

Miss Belle Rowe entertained her Sunday School Class, of little tots, at a party, last Thursday evening.

Mrs. Charles Haugh, of Detour, spent Tuesday with Mrs. Laura Devillbiss.

Miss Elsie Gross, entertained a number of her friends at a bridge party, last Thursday evening.

JARNEY.

Revival services are in progress at the U. B. Church, and are being fairly well attended.

Ben. Marshall has purchased a pair of horses.

We learn that work has been commenced on the road again, and that the part commenced last fall will be finished. It should not stop there, but should be completed through to the State line. Strangers tell us that you can easily tell when you get into Maryland, coming from Gettysburg; because that road is kept in fair condition, while ours is in a disgraceful condition. It seems that there is no one to look after the roads, any more.

MARRIED.

RINAMAN—CRABBS.

Mr. Cletus C. Rinaman and Miss Manola Crabbs, both of Littlestown, Pa., were united in marriage by Rev. L. B. Hafer, at the Lutheran parsonage, Taneytown, on March 31. There were no attendants.

DUTTERA—FRANTZ.

On Saturday afternoon, April 7th, 1923, Mr. Sterling M. Dutterer, son of Mr. and Mrs. John T. Dutterer, of Taneytown, Md., and Miss Bertha A. Frantz, the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edw. Frantz, of York, Pa., were united in marriage by Rev. J. C. McCanney, of York, Pa. There was no attendants. They will reside at the home of the bride's parents.

HARNER—ADAMS.

On Wednesday evening, April 4th, 1923, in the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Epiphany, Detroit, Michigan, Mr. Ray W. Harner, of 163 Drexel Ave., was united in the bonds of matrimony to Miss Virginia E. Adams, of 2638 Lenox Ave. The groom is the son of the late Clayton H. Harner and Mrs. Leila B. Stahl, of Detroit, and formerly lived in the vicinity of Taneytown. The many friends of the happy couple join in extending to them their best wishes for the future. After April 25, they will reside in the home recently purchased by the groom from his mother, 163 Drexel Ave., Detroit.

DIED.

Obituaries, poetry and resolutions, charged for at the rate of five cents per line. The regular death notices published free.

MR. DAVID HELTEBRIDLE.

Mr. David Heltebridle died at his home at Mayberry, on Thursday morning, April 12, 1923, aged 82 years, 2 months, 29 days. He is survived by one son, Charles Heltebridle, of Mayberry, and one brother, George, in York, Pa. Funeral services on Saturday morning, meeting at the house at 9:30. Services and interment at the Lutheran Church, Taneytown, in charge of Rev. L. B. Hafer.

MRS. SARAH C. REAVER.

Sarah C., wife of Rufus Wm. Reaver, of near Taneytown, died at her home, on Saturday morning, April 7, 1923, aged 68 years, 8 months 13 days. Funeral services were held on Tuesday, at Grace Reformed Church, by her pastor, Rev. Guy P. Bready; interment in Reformed cemetery.

She is survived by her husband, and the following children; Mrs. Edgar Brown, Mrs. C. F. Baumgardner, and Mrs. Vernon Brower, all of near Taneytown; and two sons, Russell, of Greenmount, and Roland R., of near Taneytown. Also by two brothers: Josiah and George Erb, both of near Silver Run.

In Memory of our dear wife and mother, MRS. J. W. ALBAUGH, who departed this life 1 year ago today, April 16, 1922.

Will not take you from our heart, Since death strangely bade us part, But dear mother, all its changes, One sad year with all its changes,

In our heart your memory lingers, Tender, kind and true, There is not a day, dear mother, That we did not think of you, By her Husband, Son and Two Daughters

In Sad, but Loving Remembrance of our dear mother,

MRS. EMANUEL OVERHOLTZER, who entered into rest, April 16, 1918.

In life we loved you dearly, In death we do the same, We often sit and think of you, And wish you were here again.

We did not want to part with you, But God knew what was best, Some day we hope to meet again In that sweet land of rest.

Then let us not mourn for a dear one gone, She's free from all burden and care, She lives in the light of our Father's love, And sorrow will never reach her there.

MRS. JOHN T. ALBAUGH AND MRS. FRANK E. CROUSE.

CARD OF THANKS.

The neighbors and all who assisted us during our recent bereavement, are hereby most cordially thanked for kindness and help when we most needed it.

R. W. REAVER AND FAMILY.

UNION BRIDGE.

Harry Stone has gone to Baltimore to work at brick-laying.

Earl Bloom has passed the crisis and reports from the hospital are encouraging.

An official of the public service Commission has been in this vicinity to inspect the light conditions. Miss Cleo Pittinger has not been able to return to her duties in the Baltimore schools on account of illness. She is improving.

Mr. Easterday has moved here from Cavetown in order to devote more time to the Light Company.

Rev. Dr. Hanks has been returned to the M. P. Church for another year. Rev. Sadolsky has been stationed in the Washington district. Rev. C. Richmond is the new pastor of the M. E. Church.

Movings are about over and people are settling down to routine.

Dr. Baer has moved to the house next door to his office.

Rev. Sadolsky has been stationed in ors here this week.

Preventative Medicine.

The tendency of medical science is toward preventative measures. It is easier and better to prevent than to cure. Pneumonia, one of the most dangerous diseases that medical men have to contend with, often follows a cold or attack of the grip. The cold prepares the system for the reception and development of the pneumonia germ. The longer the cold hangs on, the greater the danger. Take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as soon as the first indication of a cold appears so as to get rid of it with the least possible delay. It is folly to risk an attack of pneumonia when this remedy may be obtained for a trifle.

FRIZZELLBURG.

We wish to remind the members of Frizzellburg Lodge No. 132 K. of P., of the services to be held in the Chapel, here, next Sunday night, April 15. Brothers, come out, and let us have a good attendance. Members will meet in the hall at 7 P. M. Divine services at 7:30 P. M. The public is invited. Rev. J. D. Bowersox, of Westminster, will preach the sermon.

E. C. Poole has stored his furniture and with his family went to Baltimore last Thursday.

Alfred S. Babylon died at his home, near here, on Wednesday night, after a brief illness, aged about 66 years. He took his bed on Monday prior, and kept growing worse until the end came. He will be missed in the home and community. His disposition was such that to know him was to like him. We extend our sympathy to the bereaved family. At this writing we have no details as to the burial.

Woman's Case Amazes Taneytown.

A business man's wife suffered for two years with sore, watery eyes, which pained day and night. Finally she tried simple camphor, hydrastis, witchhazel, etc., as mixed in Lavoptik eye wash. This helped her AT ONCE. Another lady reports "it leaves eyes cool and fresh." One small bottle Lavoptik usually helps ANY CASE weak, strained or inflamed eyes Aluminum eye cup FREE. R. S. McKinney, Druggist.

NO. 5447 EQUITY. In the Circuit Court for Carroll County:

BERTHA ESTELLA KUBLITZ, Plaintiff,
VS.
FREDERICK HANS KUBLITZ, Defendant.

The object of this suit is to procure for the plaintiff a divorce a vinculo matrimonii from Frederick Hans Kublitz, defendant, as well as general relief.

The bill states that on the 3rd day of January, 1910, they were married by Rev. Schoder, a minister of the Gospel of the Lutheran Church, at Washington, D. C. and that they lived together as man and wife in Baltimore, Maryland, until January 21st, 1913 when they moved to Houston, Texas, and lived there until June 30, 1913, when the defendant abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and has since said last mentioned date ceased to live with her, and has resided separate and apart from the plaintiff. That the conduct of the plaintiff towards the defendant was always kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that the defendant on the 30th day of June, 1923, without just cause or reason abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and has lived separate and apart from the plaintiff since said date, and that such abandonment by the defendant of the plaintiff has continued uninterrupted for more than three years, and is deliberate and final, and the separation of the parties beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation. That they have no children born to them as a result of their said marriage.

That the plaintiff is and has been a resident of Carroll County, Maryland, for the past seven years; and that the defendant is a non-resident of the State of Maryland and is a resident of the State of Arizona.

It is thereupon this 12th day of April, A. D., 1923, ordered by the Circuit Court for Carroll County, sitting as a Court of Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Carroll County, once a week for four successive weeks before the 14th day of May, 1923, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this bill, warning him to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor, on or before the 4th day of June next, to show cause, if any he has, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I wish to announce that I have procured the agency for the International Harvester Co., line in Taneytown.

I will be open for business on or about

Thursday, April 5th., 1923,

in the Geo. W. Lemmon building, opposite the Pennsylvania Station.

Will be glad to serve you with your needs in the way of new machines or repairs for old ones.

My aim will be to serve you at all times with that service which will make you a satisfied customer.

Would be glad to have you call at my place, on your next trip to town.

Hoping to get acquainted with you, and your needs, that I can best serve you.

Yours Respectfully,

TANEYTOWN, MD.

Your Part in the Farm Bureau

"THE rain falls on the just and the unjust." The things that the Farm Bureau accomplishes benefit both the member and the non-member.

If you are a non-member, do not let your neighbors do it all for you.

They will, those public-spirited fellow farmers of yours; they'll carry you as a burden if necessary.

Or if they aren't quite able to do it, it'll be their money they lose, not yours, you can say.

But the cause they lose is yours.

You and your farm and your family will lose all that your neighbors are fighting for. All that they are trying to get, not selfishly for themselves, but for you.

We're all farmers like you. We need your help badly. Join with us now. Pull farming out of the rut!

AN INTIMATE PORTRAIT OF EDITH BARNARD DELANO

It is difficult to know quite where to begin in writing of Edith Barnard Delano. She has done and is so many things. She began writing when she was little more than a girl, and sold immediately her first ten stories. She adds, "and then the good old grind. Meanest job there is—writing—but I would not take any other." More stories sold, a great many more, to all the leading magazines, and then she wrote for the screen. But Mrs. Delano is an artist, and the call to return to the "legitimate" writing of fiction was too great. She abandoned the motion-picture field, except vicariously, for her place as a novelist.

She was the first author to whom I talked of the Star Author Series of Matrimonial Adventures. Her grasp of the idea was instantaneous. Though one of the biggest magazines in the country is monopolizing her work, she agreed to join. "For Value Received" is short in length, but large in scope. One to whom it was read in manuscript remarked, "Every wife should run away just once."

MARY STEWART CUTTING, JR.

On the way back from the post office Anita Prescott stopped at the turn of the road, where the old apple tree was shedding its rosy petals, and looked down at Miriam's house. Just so had she first seen it on that day four years before, when she and Michael were on their honeymoon wandering; yet it was not that moment of companioned ecstasy that had brought her back, but the remembered peace of it. Peace—that was what she had wanted; when she determined to escape from all that was not peace, all that was disillusion, a sudden vision had come to her of the little white house under the elm, the red roof and the smoke wavering up from its chimney, and the strong, smiling woman who had given them milk to drink. Peace—a refuge during the long year that she must wait for freedom; peace that she must have, and that, she told herself, she should find here. Determination, vision, flight; then a visit to a lawyer who "took" cases like hers—as if there could be any other like hers!—and, finally, speech with Miriam at the door of the white house.

"You don't want to board here," Miriam had told her. "I have a room, yes. And I'd just love to have you. But this isn't the place for you. You don't know anything about me."

"As much as you know about me."

The other shook her head. "I guess it's different," said she. "Folks around here don't have anything to do with me. You'd be lonely."

"I want a place where I can be alone."

The woman gave her a steady look; then she said, calmly, as though offering an explanation that did not touch herself at all, "My name's Miriam. Around here they seem to think it ought to be Hagar."

Anita flushed a little under the baldness of it; but she said, "Well—there's a wilderness for most of us. I am—in flight, too."

"Come in," Miriam had said; and so far that remained the fullness of explanation between them. Anita was thinking of it today, because of the letter she had brought from the village, the letter postmarked Cleveland and forwarded by the man who took cases like hers. "You will remember that you were warned," her mother had written. "Your hiding yourself away now is nothing more than a pose. It doesn't help things. You can get a divorce here as well as wherever you are, and you will come home at once, where you belong. The sooner it is all over, and we can forget the unfortunate affair—"

Anita's lips twisted in a bitter little smile; her eyes hardened. She crossed the road to the grassy bank under the apple tree, and leaned her elbows on the fence, looking off across the mellowing fields. Beyond, a tremulous breath of green along the river; early-plowed furrows gleaming where the setting sun touched them; purple shadows under the hill, appleblossom in her hair, bluest and violets under her feet, a world pulsing to new life—this quietude, this peace, peace but for her thoughts—her being here a pose! Oh, yes, they had warned her! Heavens, how they had warned! She had been won by the glamour of a uniform; they didn't know anything about his people; he wasn't their "sort." He was poor; worse, he was visionary, with those talked-of inventions of his; did she suppose she could be happy as a poor man's wife, even though she did have a wee bit of money of her own! And look at the day his lips set, and that hard look that came into his eyes when he faced their perfectly natural opposition to the marriage! She had always been headstrong, always wanted her own way; did she think she could get on with a man like that?

Oh, it was unthinkable; so the family had warned her. And their warnings had but added to her feeling of release, her joyous sense of conquest, when she had gone to her man.

Four years ago—and now it was all over! Her mother had no better word for it than to call it an unfortunate affair, that marriage and the divorce she was waiting for. No better word for those four brimming years of life. Only that, for the first glad confidence of having found her mate; for the happy making of the little home; for her pride in her Michael. That, for the daily growing loneliness, the feeling of being cut off from her own world; for the slowly creeping reserves between them that had been swept away, at lessening intervals, by the re-blossoming of their love; that—for quarrels and kisses, for bitter words and repentant cheek to cheek, for the hours that he was away from her and his increasing absorption in his work and her unreasonable jealousy of it; for the crowning moments of their repented love—oh, for all of it, everything; Not great things; not even great things, but little things that totaled so disastrously high; and, at last, for her conviction that their marriage had been a mistake, that they were not meant for each other, that the only thing to do was to end it, to end it. Then, her flight; her communication with him through the man who took cases like hers; and, at last, Miriam's.

Now for a month she had been here, where she had thought peace must dwell; been here watching spring come, watching Miriam, thinking. Sap rising, birds on the wing; Miriam, working; Anita—thinking, Miriam plowing, Miriam at work in the garden, sowing early peas, digging parsnips and taking a share to the house next door and leaving them on the doorstep; Anita—watching, thinking. Miriam and her father, that old man who gave her no pleasant word, nor helped in her tasks; the old man with a snarl, a bitter name for her sometimes; the old man sitting in the sun, or in the window with a Bible on his knees; Miriam serene in the kitchen, humming, tramping from stove to table; Anita—idle, thinking. The cow lowing for her calf; Miriam carrying a brimming pail of milk across the grass to the house next door, the girl there who went in when she saw her coming with the gift; Anita—remembering Michael, his obnoxiousness, thinking, thinking. Blue birds nesting; Miriam running to a child who had stumbled on the road, wiping the tears from its face; Anita—thinking, of the children Michael had wanted, and she had not. The cloud of a youth next door, and the stone he threw at Miriam, and the way she smiled when she put hot water on the cut; Anita—thinking, thinking of the wounds of the spirit that she had kept to herself and resented, thinking, thinking.

"You aren't much like other women," Miriam said to her one day, when she had come back from leaving another thankless gift at the house next door. "You never ask any questions."

"Well—you aren't much like other women, yourself," Anita answered.

But Miriam laughed, tossed back a stray lock of hair and said, "Oh, yes I am! That's just exactly what I am!"

The old man muttered an ugly name; Anita watched Miriam, watched the swelling apple buds, thought. Thoughts that were bruises, memories that flamed and seared; questionings that would not be answered; no help from the nights or days, no bread of understanding, no water of comfort. So had the weeks passed.

The day the letter came she went out after supper and sat on the doorstep. A young moon had left the night to the radiance of gleaming stars; the tender sweetness of the air was pierced by the song of the little frogs carolling their return to life, and the sadness of past summers, and the joy of the summer to come; the fragrance of the drying fields was like an incense. A world drowsing, yet stirring to resurrection . . . Michael . . . at work, of course . . . later, the opening of a door and the night's air coming in; his step on the stairs and the way—the way—Oh! No—no!

Miriam's skirt was brushing Anita's shoulder. "What a night!" she said. There was a basket in her hand. "Don't you want to walk down the road? I have an errand. A man who does work for me sometimes is in trouble."

They went side by side through the song and the incense and the starlight, Miriam intent upon her errand, Anita—remembering, thinking. They went through the village, and those they met passed them by as though they were shadows; they came to a house on a hillside beyond, a low, poor house, where a lamp shone from within. A man came to the door; his eyes in his unshaven face looked as though some fire of pain had burned in them and died, leaving them scorched. He looked at Miriam.

"I can't come to work in the morning," he said.

"I know," she told him, "I'll be there with you, tomorrow. Here's something I've brought for her to eat. You must take some, too. You'll need your strength."

"She ain't eat anything yet," the man said, "She's awful sick—grievin'."

Before they had gone far on their homeward way the man overtook them. "I wanted to ask you—would it be showing respect if I did it for my myself! The sexton charges five dollars, and—but I wouldn't want to do anything that didn't show respect."

Miriam touched his arm. "It would be the most beautiful thing you could do," she said. "You'd always have it to remember—that you had done something for them."

As they neared Miriam's house, she said, softly. "It is such a very beautiful world."

"Beautiful!" All of Anita's bitterness, all the dregs of her accumulated thinking, lay in the word.

"Yes, it is. Struggle is not beautiful, nor shirking; but just living is."

"There was death back there, wasn't there. Pain first, and death, and sorrow. Is that beautiful? And your days—the way you have to work, the way people—that stone . . . How can you call it beautiful?"

"I know," said Miriam. "I used to feel that way, too. I hadn't weighed things. I used to think more about what I had to pay than about what I had. Of course you have to pay for whatever you have. Everybody has to pay, one way or another. But that's only fair. Life's worth it."

"Never! Nothing could be worth—that you have to pay sometimes."

"Ah—" The word was a murmur of protest; then Miriam said, "Look up at that sky! It was a night like this that I went away, with—him. Oh, I knew what I was doing. I knew what they'd—think of me. Rightly, too. I knew I'd have to pay, but I'd made up my mind that what I would have would be worth it. It's the greatest thing there is; I guess everybody pays for it one way or another. We had always loved each other; I threw him over; and after mother died, and I came back here to teach the school and look after father, he was married to someone else. They lived next door. Yes, those are his children. He always worked hard, but he never got on. His wife—she wasn't easy to live with; at last they had to take her to the asylum—hopeless. Her mother came to look after the children. Then—he got tuberculosis. There on the porch, night and day; not a chance for him here, but the West—so we went. He lived eight years. And I lived them. Now—I'm paying, that's all. It was worth it."

Oh, those thoughts that sobbed and sang, those thoughts that stung and throbbed and flamed! "Worth it! Then what you had was different, somehow greater—"

"It was just what other women have. Good and bad. The better and the worse. Marriage is like that. Neither of us was an angel. You don't live with any man eight years on honey. His wife died soon, and we were married before the law; but sometimes I remembered what I'd done, and something in me shrank away from myself; sometimes he was lonely, fretful, impatient. We said things; we wanted things. But we had each other. We belonged. Yes, it was worth it."

They walked on through a shadowy place, came out into the starlight again. "You are so strong," whispered Anita.

"Because I came back here to look after them all? I'd have had to pay, anyway. It's life that's strong. You don't get away from life. Life makes you pay, even when you think you're dodging payment. Honest—life is. It gives—but it makes you pay for value received. One way or another."

They were passing the house next door, where the surly girl and the cruel lad lived. "One thing you escaped," Anita said. "You must be thankful that you had no children."

Miriam stood still, looked at her. "I would give all the rest of my life," she said, "if I might have put a child of mine into the arms of the man I loved. I would go into any bondage if I might only serve a living child of my own, and it would be freedom, blessed freedom."

Anita shuddered. "Ah—you're not like any other woman! No one else would say that, honestly! Children are care and anxiety and mostly sorrow—do you think anybody deliberately chooses that, today?"

"I know they do! It's a small price to pay for the joy of it, child."

"Never! It's not worth it! I don't believe anyone honestly thinks it is!"

Miriam walked on. "Come with me tomorrow," she said. "I think perhaps you'll understand, then."

So, in the morning, they walked the road together again; this time Miriam had a great sheaf of blossoms in her arms. They came to a quiet place on a hill, and there they met the man of the night before. There was a small box in his feet, carefully wrapped, and in his hand a spade. He began to dig, and as the yellow earth became a mound Anita drew back, shuddering.

"One was a boy and one was a girl," the man said. "Twins. The others is all girls."

"Yes," said Miriam, softly. "Two to love. Two to remember."

"We'll do that," said the man. "Both of us will do that."

Anita's hand went to her throat. They waited until the mound was higher, until the man stood waist-deep in the earth.

"I guess it's enough," he said, looking up at Miriam. "They're so little."

She gave him the boughs of bloom. "Make them a soft bed," she told him. He took them—blossoms that would never be fruit—and lined the grave with them. Anita watched his mired fingers touching their pink and whiteness, caressing them, laying them so that no stems protruded. Then he clambered out, and knelt beside the box on the ground.

"Would you want to see it?" he asked.

"Oh, yes!" Miriam murmured, stooping; Anita had all she could do not to draw back. But she could not take her eyes from those soil-grimed hands with their nails broken by toil, as they unfastened the paper. The hands were shaking, shaking; the man did not look up.

"It's velvet. See—white velvet."

Miriam knelt and touched the soft fabric. "Oh, lovely, lovely," she said.

"Twins," the man said, his voice husky. "They're layin' in there with their arms around each other. They look like little dolls."

"It isn't everybody has twins," Miriam said. "You've had them."

"That's what my wife said, I'm glad we had them, anyway, Ben," she said. "He laid the little box down upon the soft bed of flowers."

Anita, feeling as though the wings of her spirit were beating against her heart, stumbled away into the woods. Last year's leaves underfoot; a dead thrush in the path; fern unfolding, and—and the earth falling from the spade, back there . . . Life, that was life, everywhere . . . honest life, that gave and gave, and made you pay . . . Dread of understanding . . . Water of comfort . . . Michael.

She found their little house locked and unlighted; she guessed that he had not used it since her flight. She found him on the old couch in his office, an arm thrown over his eyes in the gesture of sleep that she remembered. Her picture was still on his desk; but the littered untidiness of his papers, his crumpled clothes the weary relaxation of him, all impressed her as never before with the pitiable helplessness of the male, his unconscious dependence on woman-made comfort.

"Michael—Michael—" Oh, on her knees—just to touch . . . him. . .

The eyes that met hers were like that other man's who had lost and suffered, blackened from a fire that burned too hot and too long. "Nita!" he whispered. Then, sitting up, "Nita! It's—Nita."

"Not a sob—speech first, and her hands upon him. 'Michael! I've come back. I'm sorry, Michael. I didn't understand!'"

"Understand—"

"It's you I want, Michael—and life—to be together. I'm willing to pay—"

His grasp on her arms hurt her, but the hurt made her glad. "Nita! What are you talking about! Pay?"

"Pay—yes! I've found out, Michael—I've thought, oh, thought! I was wrong—I wanted happiness, and I wasn't willing to pay for it. I thought you could have, without paying. I know better now. You have to pay for everything—life makes you do that, whether you want to or not. But it's worth it, Michael, it's worth it."

His face close to hers, his eyes smoldered with a gleam of fire in them deep. "Worth it!"

"Ah—yes! You, and me, together! That's the great thing. Nothing else counts. Life—I want all of it, good days and bad; all our joy and even—even sorrow. And children—I want children; and work, and—and wanting and hoping—Oh, I want you! You, Michael! I'm willing to pay whatever I must . . ."

Now it was his arms that hurt, and his heart on hers that made the singing. "Oh, my darling! Life can't be long enough to pay for all that! I need you so . . ."

"Oh, spring and blossoming summer, and the fall of leaves. Oh, life and its song and its battles! Oh, the dear weight of his head on her breast, her hand on his heart! Oh, promise—fulfillment!"

"Yes, dear—yes! I'm here with you. . ."

EARLY FORM OF CIGARETTE

Columbus' Historian Tells of Methods of Using Tobacco as Practiced by the Indians.

Of all things American, nothing is more so than the cigarette. When for the first time a European set foot in the western hemisphere, those Indian natives of San Salvador, who so startled the brave Genoese by blowing smoke from their mouths and nostrils, were really smoking crude and primitive cigarettes—tobacco wrapped in the leaves of Indian corn. Bartholomew de Las Casas, the apostle of the Indies, who edited the journal of Columbus, in his "Historia de las Indias," tells of two men of Columbus' party who returned from an expedition inland with an account of how the aborigines were accustomed to the solace of tobacco. Their manner of smoking, as narrated by Las Casas, plainly suggests the cigarette, and this is accounted the earliest reference to the use of tobacco in that form.

The natives of the New World, said the Spaniard, "wrap the tobacco in a certain leaf, in the manner of a musket formed of paper," and, "having lighted one end of it, by the other they suck, absorb or receive that smoke inside with their breath."

An Old Acquaintance.

He was the typical masher, and when he boarded the street car he looked carefully down the aisle before he sat down, and chose a seat beside a pretty young girl. The passengers were immediately interested, although inclined to resent the young man's forwardness.

As the man sat down he looked carefully at the girl, smiled at her and tipped his hat.

"I beg your pardon, but haven't we met somewhere before?" he asked. The girl gave him her best icy stare.

"Yes, I think we have," she admitted. "If I am not mistaken you are the man who used to haul our ashes."—Kansas City Star.

Great Luck.

A little golf story from New York. A wife, green at the game, said to her husband, "I had fine luck this morning. I did the nine holes in par."

He looked skeptical.

"I did," she insisted. "Of course it was par. Haven't you always told me that par is 100?"

LESSON FOR APRIL 15

JOSEPH, THE PRESERVER OF HIS PEOPLE

LESSON TEXT—Genesis 45:3-15.
GOLDEN TEXT—Honor thy father and thy mother, that thy days may be long upon the land which the Lord thy God giveth thee.—Exodus 20:12.
REFERENCE MATERIAL—Joshua 24:32; Psalm 105:16-22; Hebrews 11:21-22.

PRIMARY TOPIC—Joseph Forgiving Brothers.

JUNIOR TOPIC—Joseph, the Forgiving Brother.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Joseph as Son and Brother.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Inspiring Example of Joseph.

While the climax of the story is reached in Joseph's revelation to his brethren yet his life should be briefly sketched in order to get the full force of this climax.

I. Loved by His Father; Hated by His Brethren (Genesis 37). The betrayal of the father's partiality increased his brothers' hatred for him. His dreams were prophecies of God's dealing with them.

II. Sold into Slavery (Genesis 37). So intensely did they hate him that they proposed to kill him. This murderous purpose was turned aside by the proposition to sell him into slavery. They sold him to merchantmen who were going down into Egypt and in turn they sold him as a slave.

III. Cast into Prison (Genesis 39). While serving as a slave he was falsely accused and sent to prison. Joseph's character had so impressed Potiphar that he doubted his wife's charges against him. If he had believed he would have put this Hebrew slave to death.

IV. Made Prime Minister (Genesis 41). Though falsely accused and imprisoned the hand of the Lord was so upon him that he was soon exalted to the throne of Pharaoh.

V. His Dealing With His Brethren (Genesis 41-44). He dealt harshly with them, desiring to test their characters before revealing himself to them.

VI. Joseph Reveals Himself to His Brethren (Genesis 45:1-15).

1. Alone With His Brothers (vv. 1-2). When his pent-up emotions could no longer be restrained he ordered all the men to withdraw. Here alone with his brethren he made himself known to them. There are some emotions too sacred to disclose in the presence of unsympathetic men.

2. Conscience Smiteth Brothers (v. 3). When Joseph disclosed his identity they stood condemned in his presence. They were smitten with a guilty conscience. A score of years before they had put him into a pit to die, but later lifted him out and sold him into slavery. Now they are before him with reversed positions. They are at his mercy. Some day every man shall face his sins unless they be canceled in the blood of Jesus.

3. Divine Providence Interpreted (vv. 4-8). (1) His gracious invitation (v. 4). "Come near, I am your brother." How like the Savior. He is saying unto sinners who have wronged him, "Come near, I am your brother." (2) "Be not grieved" (v. 5). He sought by these words to allay the distress in which his brothers were. Jesus is saying the same kind words to repentant sinners today. (3) "God sent me to preserve life" (vv. 5-8). God turned the wicked thoughts of these brethren to good. God is today making the wrath of men to praise him. All that Satan can do but further God's purposes. The very wicked thoughts of these brothers in attempting to destroy Joseph were turned to the preservation of their lives.

4. Joseph's Message to His Father (vv. 9-13). (1) "God hath made me Lord of Egypt" (v. 9). He made them hasten to his father with the assurance that God had elevated him to a place of lordship in Egypt. (2) Urgent Invitation (vv. 9-10). His father is invited to come, bringing his children, grandchildren and flocks. This must have been a great and joyful surprise to Jacob when famine and death were facing him. (3) Promise of nourishment during famine (v. 11). Joseph did not allow his prosperity to make him selfish. His character stood the test of prosperity. (4) Tell father of all my glory in Egypt (v. 13). This was not boasting but an effort to convince his father of his ability to care for him.

5. Joseph's Forgiving Love (vv. 14-15). Joseph weeping upon the neck of his brethren is a most touching scene. There was entire forgiveness; there was full reconciliation. This transcendent scene causes Joseph's character to shine forth in its true glory.

How Can We Become Truly Educated?

Proverbs 4:1-9

The answer to the question in the topic is found in the seventh verse of our Scripture lesson—"Wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom; and with all thy getting get understanding." There can be no true education apart from this.

It is possible to get a lot of knowledge, knowledge of history, literature, philosophy, and ethics, and yet to be uneducated or unwise. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom." Apart from that reverence and regard for God expressed in the word "fear" one cannot get wisdom and understanding, no more than one could have a wheel without a hub. The wisdom that comes from the knowledge of God is the unifying principle in true education. It is indeed "an ornament of grace and a crown of glory." Those who by divine grace have become recipients of the knowledge of God in Christ, realize how utterly vain all else is. When Christ who is the wisdom of God is discovered or revealed to the soul, then the student has a proper center, a satisfying Saviour, a unifying principle. Therefore "with all thy getting get understanding." Without this there will be failure; not failure in making a living perhaps, but failure in building a life.

The principle underlying the education given in our institutions of learning may be seen in the following incident. An honor man in one of our great institutions put the thing in this way, "I passed through four years of hard drudgery. The professors poured in and poured in knowledge on the whole range of subjects in the curriculum; and when I came to the end of the course they asked me to pour it out and I poured it all out and it stayed out." How different it might have been in his experience had there been a proper connecting link, a proper unifying principle.

The school of Christ is a great school. The education of faith is a marvelous experience. The Spirit of God is a wonderful teacher. All the lessons He teaches find their unifying principle in Christ. Concerning life He teaches us that it is indeed a race, strenuous and exacting, but it can be run with patience as we look away unto Jesus who for the joy set before Him, endured the cross, despised the shame and is set down at the right hand of God. See Hebrews 12:1, 2.

The KITCHEN CABINET

(©, 1923, Western Newspaper Union.)

The man who looks back on his past life and says: "I have nothing to regret," has lived in vain. The life without regret is the life without gain. Regret is but the light of fuller wisdom from our past, illuminating our future.

WHAT SHALL WE HAVE FOR DINNER?

A most delicious stuffed apple and one that is quite unusual is

Hill Stuffed Apples.—

Core nice-flavored apples like the Jonathan. Fill the centers with mince meat. Place the apples in a baking dish, sprinkle with sugar and pour around one-half cupful of water for each six apples. Cover and bake until tender, then uncover and sprinkle with sugar to glaze. Serve hot.

Raisin Surprise.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of raisins, one beaten egg, one orange, four cupfuls of cooked corn meal mush, five tablespoonfuls of sugar, beaten with the egg. Add mush to the sugar and egg, then the grated rind and juice of the orange, with water enough to make a cupful. Stir in the raisins at the last. Pour in a mold and when firm serve with whipped cream.

Cranberry Conserve.—Take two cupfuls of cranberries cooked until tender and put through a coarse sieve. Add one-half cupful of orange juice, one teaspoonful of grated orange rind, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, one cupful of raisins, one-half cupful of blanched and shredded almonds. Cook until jelly-like and mold or turn into glasses; cover with paraffin.

Orange Marmalade.—When oranges are the most plentiful and cheapest is the time to prepare this delicious concoction. The following is a prize winner from the Times-Picayune: Select sour smooth-skinned oranges, weigh and allow three-fourths their weight in sugar. Remove the peel in quarters and cook soft in enough boiling water to cover. Drain and remove all the white part from the peel, scraping it with a spoon. Cut the thin yellow rind into fine strips with a pair of shears. Divide the oranges into sections, remove the seeds and tough portions of the fiber, put into a kettle and heat to the boiling point; add the sugar gradually, cooking slowly, one hour; add the rind and cook another hour. Turn into glasses.

American Individualism

A Timely Message to the American People

By HERBERT HOOVER
Secretary of Commerce.

II.—Philosophic Grounds.

ON THE philosophic side we can agree at once that intelligence, character, courage, and the divine spark of the human soul are alone the property of individuals. These do not lie in agreements, in organizations, in institutions, in masses, or in groups. They abide alone in the individual mind and heart.

Production both of mind and hand rests upon impulses in each individual. These impulses are made of the varied forces of original instincts, motives, and acquired desires. Many of these are destructive and must be restrained through moral leadership and authority of the law and be eliminated finally by education. All are modified by a vast fund of experience and a vast plant and equipment of civilization which we pass on with increments to each succeeding generation.

The inherited instincts of self-preservation, acquisitiveness, fear, kindness, hate, curiosity, desire for self-expression, for power, for adulation, that we carry over from a thousand of generations must, for good or evil, be comprehended in a workable system embracing our accumulation of experiences and equipment. They may modify themselves with time—but in terms of generations. They differ in their urge upon different individuals. The dominant ones are selfish. But no civilization could be built or can endure solely upon the groundwork of unrestrained and unintelligent self-interest. The problem of the world is to restrain the destructive instincts while strengthening and enlarging those of altruistic character and constructive impulse—for thus we build for the future.

From the instincts of kindness, pity, fealty to family and race; the love of liberty; the mystical yearnings for spiritual things; the desire for fuller expression of the creative faculties; the impulses of service to community and nation, are molded the ideals of our people. And the most potent force in society is its ideals. If one were to attempt to delimit the potency of instinct and ideals, it would be found that while instinct dominates in our preservation yet the great propelling force of progress is right ideals. It is true we do not realize the ideal; not even a single person personifies that realization. It is therefore not surprising that society, a collection of persons, a necessary maze of compromises, cannot realize it. But that it has ideals, that they revolve in a system that makes for steady advance of them is the first thing. Yet true as this is, the day has not arrived when any economic or social system will function and last if founded upon altruism alone.

With the growth of ideals through education, with the higher realization of freedom, of justice, of humanity, of service, the selfish impulses become less and less dominant, and if we ever reach the millennium, they will disappear in the aspirations and satisfactions of pure altruism. But for the next several generations we dare not abandon self-interest as a motive force to leadership and to production, lest we die.

The will-o'-the-wisp of all breeds of socialism is that they contemplate a motivation of human animals by altruism alone. It necessitates a bureaucracy of the entire population, in which, having obliterated the economic stimulation of each member, the fine gradations of character and ability are to be arranged in relative authority by ballot or more likely by a Tammany Hall or a Bolshevik party, or some other form of tyranny. The proof of the futility of these ideas as a stimulation to the development and activity of the individual does not lie alone in the ghastly failure of Russia, but it also lies in our own failure in attempts at nationalized industry.

Likewise the basic foundation of autocracy, whether it be class government or capitalism in the sense that a few men through unrestrained control of property determine the welfare of great numbers, is as far apart from the rightful expression of American individualism as the two poles. The will-o'-the-wisp of autocracy in any form is that it supposes that the good Lord endowed a special few with all the divine attributes. It contemplates one human animal dealing to the other human animals his just share of earth, of glory, and of immortality. The proof of the futility of these ideas in the development of the world does not lie alone in the grim failure of Germany, but it lies in the damage to our moral and social fabric from those who have sought economic domination in America, whether employer or employee.

We in America have had too much experience of life to fool ourselves into pretending that all men are equal in ability, in character, in intelligence, in ambition. That was part of the claptrap of the French Revolution. We have grown to understand that all we can hope to assure to the individual through government is liberty, justice, intellectual welfare, equality of opportunity, and stimulation to service.

It is in maintenance of a society fluid to these human qualities that our individualism departs from the individualism of Europe. There can be no rise for the individual through the frozen strata of classes, or of castes, and no stratification can take place in a mass lived by the free stir of its particles. This guarding of our individualism against stratification insists not only in preserving in the social solution an equal opportunity for the able and ambitious to rise from the bottom; it also insists that the sons of the successful shall not by any mere right of birth or favor continue to occupy their fathers' places of power against the rise of a new generation in process of coming up from the bottom. The pioneers of our American individualism had the good sense not to reward Washington and Jefferson and Hamilton with hereditary dukedoms and fixtures in landed estates, as Great Britain rewarded Marlborough and Nelson. Otherwise our American fields of opportunity would have been clogged with long generations inheriting their fathers' privileges without their fathers' capacity for service.

That our system has avoided the establishment and domination of class has a significant proof in the present administration in Washington. Of the twelve men comprising the President, vice president, and cabinet, nine have earned their own way in life without economic inheritance, and eight of them started with manual labor.

If we examine the impulses that carry us forward, none is so potent for progress as the yearning for individual self-expression, the desire for creation of something. Perhaps the greatest human happiness flows from personal achievement. Here lies the great urge of the constructive instinct of mankind. But it can only thrive in a society where the individual has liberty and stimulation to achievement. Nor does the community progress except through its participation in these multitudes of achievements.

Furthermore, the maintenance of productivity and the advancement of the things of the spirit depend upon the ever-renewed supply from the mass of those who can rise to leadership. Our social, economic, and intellectual progress is almost solely dependent upon the creative minds of those individuals with imaginative and administrative intelligence who create or who carry discoveries to widespread application. No race possesses more than a small percentage of these minds in a single generation. But little thought has ever been given to our racial dependency upon them. Nor that our progress is in so large a measure due to the fact that with our increased means of communication these rare individuals are today able to spread their influence over so enlarged a number of lesser capable minds as to have increased their potency a million-fold. In truth, the vastly greater productivity of the world with actually less physical labor is due to the wider spread of their influence through the discovery of these facilities. And they can arise solely through the selection that comes from the free-running mills of competition. They must be free to rise from the mass; they must be given the attraction of premiums to effort.

Leadership is a quality of the individual. It is the individual alone who can function in the world of intellect and in the field of leadership. If democracy is to secure its authorities in morals, religion, and statesmanship, it must stimulate leadership from its own mass. Human leadership cannot be replenished by selection like queen bees, by divine right or bureaucracies, but by the free rise of ability, character and intelligence.

Even so, leadership cannot, no matter how brilliant, carry progress far ahead of the average of the mass of individual units. Progress of the nation is the sum of progress in its individuals. Acts and ideas that lead to progress are born out of the womb of the individual mind, not out of the mind of the crowd. The crowd only feels; it has no mind of its own which can plan. The crowd is credulous, it destroys, it consumes, it hates, and it dreams—but it never builds. It is one of the most profound and important of exact psychological truths that man in the mass does not think but only feels. The mob functions only in a world of emotion. The demagogue feeds on mob emotions and his leadership is the leadership of emotion, not the leadership of intellect and progress. Popular desires are no criteria to the real need; they can be determined only by deliberative consideration, by education, by constructive leadership.

Who Invented Bowie Knife.

Some authorities say that the Bowie knife was invented by Col. James Bowie, who was born in 1790, and was killed in the Alamo with Col. Travis and David Crockett in 1836 during the Texan revolution against Mexico. Col. Bowie was a great hunter and one of the most daring Indian fighters in the southern states. On the Potomac river is the grave of a man who was killed by Bowie in a duel before the latter went to Texas. Other authorities say that Colonel Bowie had nothing to do with the invention of the Bowie knife. They claim it was invented by a man named R. P. Bowie, about whom very little is known.

Just Two Chances For Farmers

TO GET MORE FOR THEIR MONEY IN FARM MACHINERY

If crop prices won't go up, then other things must come down. One way to bring implement cost down is to cut out the waste in getting them to you.

That is exactly what "The Moline Plan" does. As a result, we are offering Moline Implements at savings which are sensational. Our customers are getting more for their money—and we are here permanently to give service, carry repairs, and back up Moline Implements.

The other chance to make your dollar go farther is better, more efficient implements. The Moline Line is being improved constantly. New implements altogether different in type of construction are being brought out. Moline inventors are making history.

The farmer who doesn't know what is new in Moline Implements is likely to find himself behind the times.

It will pay you to come in, talk over "The Moline Plan," compare our prices and see all our implements. We will be glad to explain our SAVINGS OFFER to you.

TANEYTOWN LOCALS

Brief Items of Local News of Special Interest to Our Home Readers.

Sterling Dutterer and wife, of York, Pa., visited the former's parents, on Tuesday.

Rev. W. C. Day, of Emmitsburg, paid our office an appreciated call, last Saturday.

B. O. Slonaker's family has removed to a new location in Detroit, Mich.,—2191 Gray Avenue.

Mrs. James B. Galt spent Tuesday in town. She expects to return for the Summer, in a week or two.

Miss Frances Shoemaker, who is at a Hagerstown hospital, is recovering nicely from an operation for appendicitis.

John H. Kiser is preparing the foundation for his new home on Emmitsburg St., and will push building operations right along.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Chaney, of Washington, and Miss Theresa Chaney, of Baltimore, spent the last week-end with Mrs. N. B. Hagan.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. Bower, of Hanover, spent last Sunday in town. Both are looking well, and Mr. Bower's new business venture is quite prosperous.

Mrs. Roy B. Garner and two children accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Victor Zepp to Washington, on Monday, and expects to pay them a visit of about two weeks.

The sale of refreshments, etc., by the ladies for the benefit of the Baseball Club last Saturday, resulted in a profit of about $100.00. Very gratifying we think.

One of a pair of mules belonging to Howard Shoemaker, that had been driven to town Saturday morning, dropped dead at The Taneytown Elevator. It had not shown any signs of sickness.

The Bowersox sale, on Saturday, drew the customary big crowd, and taken as a whole the sale was a satisfactory one. Buggies were sold going over a wide territory, likely due to good advertising.

The removal of junk and "trash" of various sorts, by the town authorities, was popularly responded to by householders generally, on Wednesday morning. It is a practice that should be kept up, at least once, but better twice, a year.

The play "Next Door" given in the Opera House, Saturday night, was fully up to the Holbein standard and was enjoyed by a good-sized audience. The program on Friday night, given by the Razoux-Reynolds Co., under the auspices of Taney Lodge I. O. O. F., was also very enjoyable. The folks are not through yet wondering "how it was done," especially getting out of the trunk, and the watch trick.

Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Kesselring, entertained the following, Saturday, April 7: Mr. and Mrs. Alonza Myers, Mr. and Mrs. Ira Stoner and son, Robert; Mrs. Theodore Warner, Mrs. Elwood Nusbaum, all of near Kump; Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Halter and daughters, Cora and Rhoda and son, Paul, of Markers Mill; Mr. Wm. P. Halter and Eva Bankard, of Silver Run; Mr. Wm. E. Bankard and daughter, Helen and Ludean, of Taneytown; Miss Verna Bankard, of Bark Hill.

The High School program, on Monday night, was a pronounced success and was attended by a full house. There were fourteen declamations, all excellently rendered, the decision of the judges giving first honors to Miss Ethel Sauble for "How Ruby Played" and to Norville Shoemaker for "The Death of Caesar." The Glee Club of the school rendered several numbers, and Miss Robb sang "The Road to Mandalay" all very excellent vocal efforts. The program concluded with a mirth producing play by Ralph Baumgardner, Kenneth Gilds, Robert Baumgardner and Charles Hesson.

Last Saturday evening a two mule team belonging to Harry F. Angell became frightened at the 6 o'clock whistle, at the railroad, broke away from Mr. Angell and ran up Baltimore St., toward the square. Milton A. Koons attempted to stop the run-aways as they passed his store, but his efforts appeared to frighten them more, and in the attempt he was struck by one of the mules and thrown to the ground, two of the wheels of the wagon passing over him. He was severely cut about one eye, and otherwise injured about the face and body, but fortunately no bones were broken. For several days he was quite ill, but is now getting better. Miss Dorothy Chenoweth, a nurse, is waiting on him.

Mrs. Emma Fowler, of Baltimore, spent Sunday and Monday visiting at G. Walter Wilt's.

S. C. Ott is preparing to erect an additional auto storage building on his lot on Emmitsburg St.

Mrs. Mary Crapster and granddaughter, Miss Mary, are visiting the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Smeltzer, of Intermont, Va.

Mrs. Robert S. McKinney is visiting her aunt, Miss Agnes Barr, of Gettysburg, who was recently stricken with paralysis, and is critically ill.

We have a small lot of garden seeds for free distribution, a portion of which will be reserved for out of town persons until first of next week—if they last that long.

Earl Bowers, who had public sale of personal effects, on Tuesday, moved into the Buffington dwelling, on Thursday, on East Baltimore St., vacated by Mr. and Mrs. John Shaum.

A meeting of the High School teachers of the county was held in the Taneytown High School building, last Monday. There was a very representative attendance, and various matters of importance to school work were discussed.

John E. E. Hess received another stroke of paralysis, at his home, on Tuesday, shortly after noon. He had just remarked that he was feeling very well, and thought he would come to town, and while walking toward the barn, was stricken. He is critically ill.

Auctioneer J. N. O. Smith, will close the Spring sale season with about 40 sales to his credit, or almost up to the mark of last year. He reports that generally the prices received for good stock and implements were very satisfactory, considering the times, and that his patrons were nearly all very well pleased.

The Sunday School Convention held in the Reformed Church, last Sunday afternoon, was addressed by J. Walter Englar, of New Windsor; Frank Mather, of Westminster, and Rev. J. M. Clayton, of Centerville, Queen Annes County. The program of addresses was accompanied by a number of excellent selections by Blue Ridge College quartet.

The Taneytown High School Baseball team opened the season with a game on the home diamond, Friday afternoon, April 6, against Union Bridge High School. The Taneytown boys showed unusual ability and came through with a victory, 8 to 6. On Tuesday, the team journeyed to Mt. Airy, and were defeated 16 to 2. The Taneytown team was entirely out-clasped in age, experience and playing ability.

The noisy "manners" of some of the boys in the audience, Monday night, were annoying, to say the least. The shrill whistling would have been bad enough on the outside, among their own kind, but when given before an audience "cordially invited to be present," presumably to hear what the High School was accomplishing, it seems to us that it should have been somebody's business to see that the members of the school off the platform, as well as on, displayed manners in harmony with the occasion.
